AN ANCIENT DITTY.

BY EPHRAIM.

Once I knew a charming fellow,
Long time ago;
Who every night got sweetly mellow,
Long time ago.

A jug of rum he fondly cherished,
Blow high or low;
But, alas! the poor man perished,
Long time ago.

One night he started, drunk and merry,
On home to go;
Next day they found him, sunken very Deep in the snow.

A happy man, and very frisky,
When just so so;
He lived and died on rum and whiskey,
Long time ago.

The "Loafer's Club" at once thought proper
Respect to show;
And wore crape, for the defunct toper,
Long time ago.

THE CONSPIRACY OF NEAMATHLA.

An Authentic Sketch.

BY W. IRVING.

In the autumn of 1823, Gov. Duval, and other commissioners on the part of the United States, concluded a treaty with the chiefs and warriors of the Florida Indians, by which the latter, for certain considerations, ceded all claims to the whole territory excepting a district in the eastern part, to which they were to remove, and within which they were to reside for twenty years. Several of the chiefs signed the treaty with great reluctance; but none opposed it more strongly than Neamathla, principal chief of the Mickasookies, a fierce and warlike people, many of them Creeks by origin who lived about the Mickasookie lake. Neamathla had always been active in those depredations on the frontiers of Georgia which had brought vengeance and ruin on the Seminoles. He was a remarkable man, upwards of sixty years of age, about six feet high, with a fine eye and a strongly marked countenance, over which he possessed great command. His hatred of the white men appeared to be mixed with contempt; on the common people he looked down with infinite scorn. He seemed unwilling to acknowledge any superiority of rank or dignity in Gov. Duval, claiming to associate with him on terms of equality, as two great chieftains. Though he had been prevailed upon to sign the treaty, his heart revolted at it. In one of his frank conversations with Governor Duval, he observed: 'This country belongs to the red man, and if I had the number of warriors at my command that this nation once had, I would not leave a white man on my lands. I would exterminate the whole. I can say this to you, for you can understand me; you are a man; but I would not say it to your people. They'd cry out I was a savage, and would take my life. They cannot appreciate the feelings of a man that loves his country.'

As Florida had but recently been erected into a territory, every thing as yet was in rude and simple style. The Governor, to make himself acquainted with the Indians, and to be near at hand to keep an eye upon them, fixed his residence at Tallahassee, near the Fowel towns, inhabited by the Mickasookies. His government palace for a time was a mere log house, and he lived on hunter's fare. The village of Neamathla was but about three miles off, and thither the governor occasionally rode, to visit the old chieftain. In one of these visits, he found Neamathla seated in his wigwam, in the centre of the village, surrounded by his warriors. The governor had brought him some liquor as a present, but it mounted quickly into his brain, and rendered him quite hostile and belligerent. The theme ever uppermost in his mind, was the treaty with the whites. 'It was true,' he said, 'the red men had made such a treaty, but the white men had not acted up to it. The red men had received none of the money and the cattle that had been promised them; the treaty, therefore, was at an end, and they did not mean to be bound by it.'

Governor Duval calmly represented to him that the time appointed in the treaty for the payment and delivery of the money and the cattle had not yet arrived. This the old chieftain knew full well, but he chose, for the moment, to pretend ignorance. He kept on drinking and talking, his voice growing louder and louder, until it resounded all over the village. He held in his hand a long knife, with which he had been rasping tobacco; this he kept flourishing backward and forward, as he talked, by way of giving effect to his words, brandishing it at times within an inch of the governor's throat. He concluded this tirade by repeating, that the country belonged to the red men, and that sooner than give it up, his bones and the bones of his people should bleach upon its soil.

Duval saw that the object of all this bluster was to see whether he could be intimidated. He kept his eye, therefore, fixed steadily on the chief, and the moment he concluded with his menace, seized him by the bosom of his hunting shirt, and clenching his other fist:

'I've heard what you have said,' replied he. 'You have made a treaty, yet you say your bones shall bleach before you comply with it. As sure as there is a sun in heaven, your bones shall bleach, if you do not fulfil every article of the treaty! I'll let you know that I am first here, and will see that you do your duty!'

Upon this the old chieftain threw himself back, burst into a fit of laughing, and declared that all he had said was in joke. The governor suspected, however, that there was a grave meaning at the bottom of this jocularity.

For two months every thing went on smoothly; the Indians repaired daily to the log cabin palace of the governor, at Tallahassee, and appeared perfectly contented. All at once they ceased their visits, and for three or four days not one was to be seen. Gov. Duval began to apprehend that some mischief was brewing. On the evening of the fourth day a chief named Yellow Hair, a resolute, intelligent fellow, who had always evinced an attachment for the governor, entered his cabin about twelve o'clock at night, and informed him that between four and five hundred warriors, painted and decorated, were assembled to hold a secret war-talk at Neamaltha's town. He had slipped off to give intelligence, at the risk of his life, and hastened back lest his absence should be discovered.

Governor Duval passed an anxious night after this intelligence. He knew the talent and the daring character of Neamathla; he recollected the threats he had thrown out; he reflected that about eighty families were scattered widely apart, over a great extent of country, and might be swept away at once, should the Indians, as he feared, determine to clear the country. That he did not exaggerate the dangers of the case, has been proved by the horrid scenes of Indian warfare that have since desolated that devoted region. After a night of sleepless cogitation, Duval determined on a measure suited to his prompt and resolute character. Knowing the admiration of the savages for personal courage, he determined, by a sudden surprise, to endeavor to overawe and check them. It was hazarding much; but where so many lives were in jeopardy, he felt bound to incur the hazard.

Accordingly, on the next morning, he sat off on horseback, attended merely by a white man, who had been reared among the Seminoles, and understood their language and manners, and who acted as interpreter. They struck into an Indian trail, leading to Neamathla's village. After proceeding about half a mile, Governor Duval informed the interpreter of the object of his expedition. The latter, though a bold man, paused and remonstrated. The Indians among whom they were going were among the most desperate and discontented of the nation. Many of them were veteran warriors, impoverished and exasperated by defeat, and ready to sell their lives at any hazard. He said that if they were holding a war council, it must be with desperate intent, and it would be certain death to intrude among them.

Duval made light of his apprehensions; he said he was perfectly well acquainted with the Indian character, and should certainly proceed. So saying, he rode on. When within half a mile of the village, the interpreter addressed him again, in such a tremulous tone, that Duval turned and looked him in the face. He was deadly pale, and once more urged the governor to return, as they would certainly be massacred if they proceeded.

Duval repeated his determination to go on, but advised the other to return, lest his pale face should betray fear to the Indians, and they might take advantage of it. The interpreter replied that he would rather die a thousand deaths, than have it said that he deserted his leader when in peril.

Duval then told him that he must translate faithfully all he should say to the Indians, without softening a word. The interpreter promised faithfully to do so, adding that he well knew, when they were once in town, nothing but boldness could save them.

They now rode into the village, and advanced to the council-house. This was rather a group of four houses, forming a square, in the centre of which was a great council fire. The houses were open in front, toward the fire, and closed in the rear. At each corner of the square, there was an interval between the houses, for ingress and egress. In these houses sat the old men and the chiefs; the young men were gathered round the fire. Neamathla presided at the council, elevated on a higher seat than the rest.

Governor Duval entered by one of the corner intervals, and rode boldly into the centre of the square. The young men made way for him; an old man who was speaking, paused in the midst of his harangue. In an instant, thirty or forty rifles were cocked and levelled. Never had Duval heard so loud a click of triggers; it seemed to strike on his heart. He gave one glance at the Indians, and turned off with an air of contempt. He did not dare, he says, to look again, lest it might affect his nerves, and on the firmness of his nerves every thing depended.

The chief threw up his arm. The rifles were lowered. Duval breathed more freely: he felt disposed to leap from his horse, but restrained himself, and dismounted leisurely. He then walked deliberately up to Neamathla, and demanded in an authoritative tone, what were his motives for holding that council. The moment he made this demand, the orator sat down. The chief made no reply, but hung his head in apparent confusion. After a moment's pause, Duval proceeded:

'I am well aware of the meaning of this war-council, and deem it my duty to warn you against prosecuting the schemes you have been devising. If a single hair of a white man in this country falls to the ground, I will hang you and your chiefs on the trees around the council-house!—You cannot pretend to withstand the power of the white men. You are in the palm of the hand of your Great Father at Washington, who can crush you like an egg-shell! You may kill me: I am but one man; but recollect, white men are as numerous as the leaves on the trees. Remember the fate of your warriors whose bones are withering on battle-fields. Remember your wives and children who perished in swamps. Do you want to provoke hostilities? Another war with the white men, and there will not be a Seminole left to tell the story of his race.

Seeing the effect of his words, he concluded by appointing a day for the Indians to meet him at St. Marks, and give an account of their conduct. He then rode off, without giving them time to recover from their surprise.—That night he rode 40 miles to Apalachicola river, to the tribe of the same name, who were in feud with the Seminoles. They promptly put two hundred and fifty warriors at his disposal, whom he ordered to be at St. Marks at the appointed day. He sent out runners, also, and mustered one hundred of the militia to repair to the same place, together with a number of regulars from the army. All his arrangements were successful.

Having taken these measures, he returned to Tallahassee, to the neighborhood of the conspirators, to show them that he was not afraid. Here he ascertained, through Yellow Hair, that nine towns were disaffected, and had been concerned in the conspiracy. He was careful to inform himself, from the same source, of the names of the warriors in each of those towns who were most popular, though poor, and destitute of rank and command.

When the appointed day was at hand for the meeting at St. Marks, Governor Duval set off Neamathla, who was at the head of eight or nine hundred warriors, but who feared to venture into the fort without him. As they entered the fort, and saw troops and militia drawn up there, and a force of Apalachicola soldiers stationed on the opposite bank of the river, they thought they were betrayed, and were about to fly; but Duval assured them they were safe, and that when the talk was over, they might go home unmolested.

A grand talk was now held, in which the late conspiracy was discussed. As he had foreseen, Neamathla and the other old chiefs threw all the blame upon the young men.—'Well,' replied Duval, 'with us white men, when we find a man incompetent to govern those under him, we put him down, and appoint another in his place. Now as you all acknowledge you cannot manage your young men, we must put chiefs over them who can.'

So saying, he deposed Neamathla first; appointing another in his place; and so on with all the rest; taking care to substitute the warriors who had been pointed out to him as poor and popular; putting medals around their necks, and investing them with great ceremony. The Indians were surprised and delighted at finding the appointments fall upon the very men they would themselves have chosen, and hailed them with acclamations. The warriors thus unexpectedly elevated to command, and clothed with dignity, were secured to the interest of the Governor, and sure to keep an eye on the disaffected. As to the great chief Neamathla, he left the country in disgust, and returned to the Creek nation, who elected him a chief of one of their towns. Thus by the resolute spirit and prompt energy of one man, a dangerous conspiracy was completely defeated. Gov. Duval was afterwards enabled to remove the whole nation, through his own personal influence, without the aid of the General Government.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 21st, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. Mr. Gallagher offered the following:—

Whereas the Banks of this State were compelled to suspend specie payments in consequence of the Philadelphia Banks having previously suspended; and whereas the Philadelphia Banks are now redeeming their notes in specie; and whereas the Banks of Virginia have declared that they are ready and willing to resume specie payments so soon as the Banks of the City of Baltimore shall resume their responsibilities in paying specie for their proper circulation, Therefore,

Resolved, That the several Banking institutions of this State be, and they are hereby required to resume the payment in specie of all their notes and other liabilities on or before Monday, the first day of February.

Mr. E. A. Lynch offered as a substitute for said resolution the following:—

Resolved, That as the Banks of Maryland have been at all times prepared to resume specie payments when the Banks of other States were able to unite with them in doing so permanently, this Legislature have entire confidence in the ability and readiness of the Banks of this State to resume whenever the true interest of the community require it.

Mr. Graves offered as a substitute for the whole, the following:—

Resolved, That as the Mechanics' Bank of Baltimore, the Merchants' Bank of Baltimore, and the Commercial and Farmers' Bank of Baltimore, by their action, have decided that in the opinion of their officers and directors, the true interests of the community require an immediate resumption of specie payments, that therefore this Legislature have good reason to believe that such resumption should at once take place, and so most solemnly express their opinion, and are prepared to take action to enforce the same.

On motion of Mr. Gantt, the preamble, resolution and substitutes, were made the order of the day for Thursday next, the 28th inst.

The House then resumed the consideration of the bill reported by Mr. Gantt to authorise the banks to receive and pay out the orders drawn by the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company on stock of the city of Baltimore.

Mr. Nesbitt, by permission of the House withdrew his amendments, offered as two additional sections, which were under consideration yesterday.

Mr. Holmes offered the following additional section which was rejected.

Be it enacted that all such Banks as shall receive and pay out the stock orders as herein before provided shall redeem the same in specie, when they resume the payment of specie for their debts and obligations.

The bill is now undergoing a further discussion. At the present time it is impossible to predict what will be its fate.

SENATE. The committee on Internal Improvement reported favorably upon the bill to direct the manner of appointing the Agents in all joint stock companies in which the State has any interest.

No other business of importance was transacted.

LOST IN A CANEBRAKE. The Corydon (Ia.) Whig states that two citizens of that county, one by the name of John Ellis, the other not remembered, while on their way to New Orleans with a flatboat, landed somewhere in Arkansas, on account of bad weather, and left the boat, taking with them their guns, intending to take a few hour's hunt. They soon got into a very heavy cane-brake; and after turning round a few times knew not the course back to the boat; and it had snowed so fast they were unable to follow back their track.

So they continued lost for four days and nights, travelling through a deep snow in a heavy canebrake, without a fire or a mouthful to eat. They were found in a most piteous and wretched condition, one of them insensible to his misery, and the other barely able to walk, but yet urging the other one forward, who was falling and pitching in every direction. Mr. Ellis, the most able one of them, has come home. He, from all probability, will lose all his toes, several of them having come off already. He was much injured otherwise from the cold.

☞ There are outstanding at the present time $750,000 of the notes of the old United States Bank, most of which are supposed to be destroyed, as they have almost entirely ceased to make their appearance for redemption.

" Wilmington	1 P.M.	"	Charleston at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is out of connection through-out, whilst it is evident that Foul Rough Weather!! and Steamboat!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. All persons, having Negroes to sell, would do well to see me before they dispose of them, as I am always buying and forwarding to the New Orleans market. I will also receive and keep Negroes at twenty-five cents each, per day, and forward them to any Southern port, at the request of the owner. My establishment is large, comfortable and airy, and all above ground; and kept in complete order, with a large yard for exercise; and is the strongest and most splendid building of the kind in the United States. And as the character of my house and yard is so completely established, for strength, comfort and cleanliness, and it being a place where I keep all my own, I will not be accountable, for the future, for any escapes of any kind from my establishment.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

SATURDAY MORNING, JAN. 23, 1841.

TO CORRESPONDENTS. We are compelled to defer the communication of "L." until Monday, when it shall be attended to. We have recently received a number of poetical articles—their non-appearance implies their rejection.

THE OCEAN. The Ocean and Weekly Clipper can be had at the counter at any time this morning. Price 6¼ cents. The contents are of a varied nature, "from grave to gay, from lively to severe."

Subscriptions only $1.50 per annum, sent in wrappers to any part of the United States.

☞Distant agents would confer a favor by remitting either Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware or Virginia money. The latter can be obtained in almost every section of the Union.

THE BANKS. The impression prevails very generally that there should be a change in the present system of banking. There is too much looseness in their management—too great a partiality in their accommodations. The design with which they were originally chartered is perverted—and, instead of being the medium through which the wealthy can safely lend of their superabundance to the more necessitous—instead of being used for the promotion of the general interests of society—they are suspected to have degenerated, in too many instances, into mere brokers' offices. This, perhaps, may be a necessary consequence of their great increase in number. Whilst particular individuals can have the use of two-thirds of the banking capital, it is apparent that the great majority must suffer inconvenience. A bank to be safely managed should distribute its means into many hands; and directors and officers should be prohibited from monopoly. Some of our banks are no doubt conducted upon liberal and honorable principles, and to the best advantage of stockholders and community—but others have been sadly mismanaged. Public attention is awakened to this subject, and the interference of the legislature should be invoked. The juggling by which innocent persons have been sacrificed must be exposed, and the practice reformed.

We have heretofore expressed ourselves favorable to a reduction in the number of our banks, and we repeat, that four banks, with sufficient capital, and conducted as they should be, would be more serviceable than the whole batch that we at present have. Charters have been granted more for individual benefit than the public good; and hence a system of bank brokerage has been instituted, alike disreputable and injurious.

In Ohio the banking system is undergoing revision, and it is probable that an entire reorganization will be the result. The legislature has the subject under consideration, and we give from the American of yesterday morning the following abstract of the bill reported in the lower house by the committee on banks and the currency.

"The bill proposes to incorporate the State Bank of Ohio, with branches, having in the whole a capital of twelve millions of dollars. This is to constitute the banking capital of the state. The corporate banks now existing are authorised to subscribe their stock to the State Bank, not exceeding their available capital. Each branch bank is to have a separate corporate existence, and to derive separate profits. The whole system is to be under a Board of Control, elected by the branches, each voting in proportion to its stock.

The organization being thus complete, the operations of the system are to be regulated as follows:

"The Board of Control has the sole power of issuing the circulation; they furnish it to the branches, countersigned by their President and by the Cashier of the branch. The Board of Control are to determine the amount of the circulation of each branch according to the business and character of the place where it is located; but in no case shall any branch issue a circulation greater than twice the amount of its capital. For the further security of the bank notes a fund is to be raised by a tax on the dividends, increasing as the dividends increase. This fund is to be invested and the interest re-invested until it amounts to one-tenth of the whole capital of the branches; and in case that a branch becomes insolvent, its notes are to be redeemed immediately by the other branches, and they are to be reimbursed from the fund. The affairs of the insolvent branch are to be settled by a trustee appointed by the Board of Control.

"To preserve a uniformity of exchange, the paper of each branch is to be taken at any other branch, and in payment of all dues to the State. It is made the duty of the Board of Control to visit by committee, the different branches, to regulate exchanges, settle balances, &c.

"With regard to the Directors and Stockholders, it is provided that the directors are to act under oath, and to be liable in their individual capacity;—and that no stockholder shall owe a branch more than the amount of his stock actually paid in.

"Such are the leading provisions of the system, as we find them in the sketches of the Bill published in the Ohio papers. The subject is one of interest; and we present this outline to our readers that they may be kept informed of the views elsewhere entertained concerning banking."

The process recommended above for closing the banks of Ohio, could be as easily and safely adopted here in relation to banks which it might be deemed expedient to discontinue. Their capitals could be subscribed to the other banks, and their good paper transferred without loss or inconvenience. Some regulations with regard to directors and officers would have to be adopted and enforced. It would possibly be found advantageous to diminish the number of directors—to put them upon their oaths—to forbid their obtaining accommodations—or to limit their discounts to the amount of their stock—to require that they hold stock to a certain amount, and to compensate them for their services—and above all, they should be invested with full power to inspect all accounts, including those of the officers. These are some of the alterations which we think could be made in the banking system of this state, without detriment to the community, and with greater security to stockholders and creditors of the institutions.

With the concluding comments of the American we entirely concur.

"The importance of banks to a business community—their usefulness, and the indispensable necessity there is for their agency—render it a matter of great concern that they should be regulated upon safe and sound principles. They are endowed with high powers; they are authorized to create a currency. This is an act of sovereignty; and when the State entrusts this prerogative to particular institutions, there should be a watchful vigilance exercised to see that the trust is faithfully executed and not abused."

REPORT ON THE PUBLIC LANDS. The report lately made to the Legislature of this State by Mr. Cousin, chairman of the select committee to whom was referred so much of the governor's message as relates to this subject, is said to be an able production. We expect to receive a copy of it in a few days, when, if practicable, it shall be laid before our readers in extenso—for it is upon a matter to which the citizens of Maryland cannot feel indifferent. According to the Annapolis correspondent of the American, the report comes to the following, among other, conclusions:

"That the Public Lands were never intended, nor can they be used, as a source of revenue to meet the common expenditures of the General Government:

"That they were to be applied primarily to the extinction of the debt 'incurred in acquiring them,' and then as a fund for the benefit of the States, as such, in just proportions; and not for the General Government.

"That, the public debt being extinguished, the time has arrived for the performance of the ultimate trusts, distribution to the States in just proportion of the proceeds to be by them applied to such objects of expenditure, within the limits of the States, as may most truly tend in their results 'to the common use and benefits of all the States.'

"These are some of the principal topics of arguments, which were filled up and carried out with distinguished research and ability."

We must see the facts upon which these conclusions are based, before we can pronounce upon their soundness; but from the distinguished talents of the gentleman who made the report, we have no doubt he has ably fortified himself with evidence to sustain his positions. It is certain that it never was designed that the old States should be deprived of participation in the benefits resulting from the public lands either by distribution of the proceeds of their sale, or by appropriation for general purposes by the national government. And yet it has been gravely proposed to cede them to the States in which they lie.

GEORGETOWN. We cannot refuse the use of our columns to "Jupiter," as we stand somewhat in awe of his majesty and dread his thunderbolts. Since he has visited earth on the harmless errand of listening to the discussions of a debating society, he ought to be indulged in the innocent liberty of expressing his opinions of members; some of whom he appears disposed to render as immortal as himself.

We give his second epistle below:

Messrs. Editors: In the midst of a dreary snow storm, I write to inform you that "Jupiter" has set the knowing ones to work, in ferreting out the spy upon the "sayings and doings" of the Union Literary Debating Society. Well, be it so.—When Junius wrote, he called for all the good, better, best and unhealthy faculties of the human mind, and why should Jupiter be denied the pleasure of a notice from the anxious ones for delineating the true powers of this very able and polite assemblage of nearly all that is "strong and weak," is more than any reasonable man could think of. Once more for the task.

Mr. Hoban. This member is a free, easy debater, and at times very powerful; as a wit, he is nearly a match for the celebrated Curran, certainly superior to any other member of this association; he is most decidedly a warrior in argument; he marshals his forces with skill and judgment, and when he enters the field of battle, we be to the contending parties—he fights with a vigor and pertinacity that bids fair to elevate him to the highest rank, which others have gained without half his personal worth or merits.

Mr. Wroe. This member is rather too pedantic; some talent, and with proper care might show to advantage on certain occasions. Be studious, I say, and earn for yourself an enviable reputation.

Mr. Clephane. An excellent presiding officer, possessing talents, but of the quiet order. Arouse into action the fiery elements of your nature, Mr. Clephane, and I will extend my notice on another occasion.

Mr. Law. An excellent clerk—possessing considerable talent and a fund of good humor—would make a popular debater if he could get rid of a little of his innate modesty.

KILLED BY A BEAR. A correspondent of the Boston Mail, writing from St. Albans, Vt., states that on Monday, the 11th inst., while Mr. John C. Clark and James Owen were chopping cord wood, about two miles from the centre of that village, on what is called the old Hitchburn road, they were suddenly attacked by four bears, and melancholy to relate, Mr. Owen was killed in the encounter by being squeezed to death by one of the bears. Mr. Clark, it is stated, succeeded in killing two of the animals, by striking them on the head with his axe.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22, 1841.

In the House of Representatives the consideration of the treasury note bill was resumed in committee of the whole.

Mr. Rhett, of S. C. having the floor, spoke at some length in support of the bill. He contended that there was no necessity, as stated by some, for either a loan of ten millions, or the imposition of a new tariff, for relieving the treasury; for in his opinion the temporary assistance afforded by the bill would be amply sufficient. He denied that a tax on luxuries would not have the effect of diminishing the revenue, as assumed by some. He admitted, however, that such would be the case in regard to necessaries.

Mr. W. Thompson maintained that a tax upon such luxuries as wines and silks would not have the effect of reducing the revenue. For these articles were used by the rich, to whom a higher price would be a further recommendation for their use.

The debate had not concluded when the House adjourned.

It is expected that the bill will be forced through to-morrow.

The Senate is still engaged upon the pre-emption bill, and when the debate will terminate is uncertain.

Mr. Crittenden has renewed the motion made by him when in committee of the whole, to recommit the bill to the committee on public lands, with instructions to report an amendment authorising the distribution of the proceeds from the sales of public lands among the states, upon certain conditions. Mr. C., I am informed, proposes to supply the deficiency in the treasury, which must then necessarily ensue, by a tax on foreign manufactured silks.

The bill for extending the charter of the Bank of Alexandria, was taken up by the Senate during the morning hour, and passed.

A CHARGE OF THEFT. Yesterday afternoon, a case of some importance was tried at the police court before squire Barnard. The substance of the affair is as follows: On Thursday night of last week, there was a ball, or kind of "hoe down," at a tavern kept by Mr. Matthias, in Camden-st. opposite the depot. During the progress of the ball, a young man named John Fitzpatrick, in company with some others of his associates, visited the house. While at this place, they encountered an individual known by the name of John, alias Owen Hagan. Hagan, it seems, became very drunk, and rather unruly, so much so that it became necessary to put him out of the house, which was done by some of the persons present. After Hagan was put out, he discovered that he had lost his purse, containing seventy odd dollars, the greater part of which was in gold, the balance in notes. A search was soon instituted for the recovery of the money, when it was found in a vault in the back yard.—Suspicion was subsequently fixed upon young Fitzpatrick, who was arrested on the charge of having stolen the purse with its contents, and afterwards, fearing detection, threw it into the vault beforementioned. Much testimony was produced on the part of the prisoner to prove his honesty and good character. Mr. Collins was counsel for the accused, and Yates Walsh, esq. for the state. After all the facts having been elicited, pro. and con., the squire decided against the accused, who was held to bail in the sum of $100 for his appearance at the city court in February next. There is one fact demonstrated by the above, (whether the young man is guilty or innocent—to the latter of which we are inclined) and that is, it is always best to keep out of bad company.

WAR AGAINST THE DRAMA. The non-commissioned officer of the Richmond Star has opened a battery upon Mr. George Jones, the Godfather of the drama in Virginia, and peppers him handsomely for attempting to force an indecent and immoral play down the throats of the public. The Corporal, like a good surgeon, cuts deep in order to effect a cure. The true friend of the drama will purge it of its immorality, and the voice of the press must be heard. Streeter appears not to possess the fashionable refinement in his notions of the French ballet dancers; he has proclaimed "war to the knife" with Lecompte's troupe, and thus describes them:

Madame Lecompte is a short, fat, active little Dutch-looking lady, with a long nose; and her assistant is less fat, quite as short, and with a long nose, too. They are neither of them handsome—(ladies are never ugly.) Monsieur is as ugly as we are, with a big nose also. The ladies appeared in brief petticoats, (or whatever they may be called) and the Monsieur was decked out in a loose shirt, and prodigiously tight drawers. From his waist to his pumps, every part of his figure was as fairly shown as a skin-tight covering would allow.

The Baltimore Clipper tells a story, which is copied by our papers, of a diabolical attempt to kill Miss Monier, the manageress of the theatre in Washington, by putting balls in pistols to be used in a play. How people can credit such miserable humbuggery we cannot imagine. The story was, of course, got up to excite sympathies for the actress.—N. Y. Signal.

The story was not "of course" got up to excite sympathies for the actress. We, at least, are above such miserable trickery, and the Signal would do well to look to it itself before it hangs the charge at our door. We obtained the account from Mr. Day, treasurer of the Washington theatre, who writes us that he can, if necessary, procure certificates of the fact from many persons concerned in the establishment.

A MISS IS AS GOOD AS A MILE. We have been informed that the "buck-eye blacksmith," purchased the ticket which drew a $10,000 prize in the town hall lottery, but being dissatisfied with the number, returned it to the vender in Washington, when it fell into more lucky hands.

COLONIZATION SOCIETY. The receipts of the American Colonization Society for the past year, are upwards of $25,000.

NEWS ABOUT TOWNS.

KNOW YE THE LAW. On Thursday afternoon last a case came off before Squire McDonald, the substance of which may be interesting if not beneficial to the general reader. It involved a principle which is not exactly understood by all—and a knowledge of which may save much unnecessary trouble as well as expense. The case related to the liabilities of insolvent debtors, after having petitioned for the benefit of the insolvent laws.

The plaintiff was Levi Collins, a Jew, vs. Solomon Jacobs, of the same religious faith. It seems that the defendant had petitioned on the 5th of September, 1840, and that previous to that time had been indebted to the plaintiff the amount of $46.62½. On the strength of an assertion which the defendant had made subsequent to his application for the benefit of the insolvent act, in the presence of Mr. Solomon Harris, the plaintiff brought suit against him for the recovery of his claim. Harris deposed that the defendant had said in his presence that he would pay plaintiff's bill—also, that he would pay $20 of it after the holydays, if he could; but the particular holydays were not specified. Whether the past Christmas holydays, or those to come at Easter Sunday, or those at the jumping off place of time were the ones he meant was not made manifest on evidence. In consequence therefore of a want of proofs relative to the particular time and manner at and in which the debt was to be discharged, judgment was rendered against the plaintiff—or in other words, he was non-suited to the amount of costs.

In relation to this matter there seems to exist a blindness, or false sympathy, with many who are forced to petition. Not unfrequently is it the case, that after they have been compelled to undergo the mortification of bankruptcy—which, in the eye of law, is a just equivalent for all previous pecuniary liabilities, they will turn round and foolishly make themselves again responsible for the very debts which forced humiliation had legally cancelled. We are aware that there is nothing wrong in a man desiring to pay all dues for which he has received an honest equivalent, but there is nothing gained and much to be lost by throwing himself again (when he is unable to pay) upon the cold charity of promiscuous creditors. A man who has petitioned should never promise to pay at a definite time, or when he is able. In the former case suit can be instituted against him at that time, and in the latter he can be held responsible when proof can be brought of his ability. There are always constables eager to secure fees, and men who, if they get the slightest hold, will prosecute to the end of the chain. We would therefore advise the insolvent portion of the community to be on their guard. At the same time we would inform creditors that it is useless to institute a suit against any insolvent debtor for money due previous to his application for the benefit of the insolvent law, unless proof positive can be brought that the debt was assumed, and the money to be paid at or before some specified time; or that it should be discharged in some specific mode or manner. We say to all—know ye the law and profit thereby.

"ANNALS OF ANNAPOLIS." We have been favored by Messrs. Knight & Colburn with a copy of this work. It is a handsome volume, compiled and edited by David Ridgely, state librarian, who, from his station and capacity, is well qualified to give interest to the work. It contains a variety of information derived from records, public documents and other sources, accessible to Mr. Ridgely, and which must have required time and labor to collect and arrange. We have not had leisure to give the volume a minute examination, but we have seen sufficient to justify our recommending it to public patronage. The author we have known for many years, and have no doubt that he has discharged the duties of author with the same fidelity that has characterized his labors as librarian of the state library—and we take pleasure in promoting the interests of so worthy a man. His book should be in the hands of every one who would wish to possess historical facts connected with the ancient city or the settlement and progress of Maryland.

THE KNICKERBOCKER for January, is, as usual, filled with excellent articles in prose and verse. The character of this periodical for literary productions of the first order, is too well established to require particular notice. It is a fitting decoration for the centre table. To be had of N. Hickman.

INSOLENT NEGROES. As yet the slave laws govern in the state of Maryland, and, "situated as we are," between what are termed the free and the slave states, the laws which should protect the white citizen appears to be almost a dead letter, for the spirit of abolitionism seems to make ours a kind of neutral ground whereon to plan its attacks upon the southern interests. It lies with the press to keep this spirit down, and while we acknowledge the rights of the free negro, we draw a strong line of distinction between them and the white population. The insolence of some of the blacks is becoming intolerable, and what is it to be attributed to? We answer, to the hood-winking of the abolitionist press, to the half-covered approval of those who, while they pretend to sustain the laws in their wholesome operation, applaud the mulatto or black upstart who threatens to publish a respectable white lady and assaults her son. What safe-guard have we while such "moral censors" are allowed to dwell amongst us? We leave it to the public to answer.

WATCH RECORDS. We are glad to state that the returns from each of the watch districts give evidence of the continued good order. Only a few lodgers were admitted on Thursday night. This speaks well for the moral improvement of our city, and we hope the time is not far distant when we shall find it necessary to abandon the watch reports altogether.

CONSUMPTION.

☞ Consumption, that fell Destroyer! More Proofs of the efficacy of Doctor SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP or WILD CHERRY, in relieving afflicted Man. To Dr. SWAYNE.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 38 cents per bottle.

MURDER. On Christmas day, at the grocery of V. Franklin, of Jefferson county, Missouri, two gentlemen, Mr. Toy and Mr. Ringer, were in conversation about a horse race. Some angry words passed between the parties, when John Toy, the son of one of the persons, drew from his pocket a pistol and shot Ringer through the heart. Toy was taken before a magistrate, tried and sent to St. Louis Jail for farther trial.

A NOVELTY. As a proof of the mildness of the weather of late, the editor of the St. Johns (N. B.) Times says that he was presented with a Violet, in full bloom, which was pulled from a flower-bed in the open air, in front of the residence of Mr. J. H. Buchanan, in Morris street, and which, until recently, had been covered with snow.

THE CASE OF THE TIGRIS. Mr. Jackson, the British midshipman who brought in the Tigris, has been arrested at the suit of four of the seamen of that vessel, for a trespass in bringing them home in custody. Bail in $4000 was demanded, but he was suffered to remain at large on his parole of honor.

MUSICAL. Strauss and Lanner are about being eclipsed by Bendel and Fahrback. Their latest waltzes were published under the titles "Automaton Gallop," "The Enchanted Fiddle," "Deaf to all but Music," "Air Gallopade," Sounds from the Seraglio" and "Brrrr."

NEW YORK THEATRICALS. The "Concerts a la Musard" are still in vogue at the Park. The National Opera House continues closed. Niblo's opened last evening with a promenade concert in opposition to the Park. Ginbilie, Seguin, Manvers and Miss Poole sing some of their best songs.

POLICE. Charles Howard and Martha Thompson, colored, were on Thursday committed to the alms-house, as vagrants, by justices McDonald and Gorsuch.

LOOK OUT!!
"Caution" is the Parent of Safety.

AN ATTACK of the "PILES" may be positively prevented by using (when the premonitory symptoms are felt) the celebrated HAYES' LINIMENT. There are more than one thousand people in this city, and in the United States an immense number, who have suffered beyond endurance by this dreadful complaint, who keep themselves wholly free from attacks by applying this Liniment when they feel any symptoms of its approach—of this there is the most perfect proof.

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

A Beautiful and Suitable Present for Ladies.

THE LADY'S BOOK. We have scarcely penned a paragraph of praise to this paragon of periodicals, and another deserving still more is required. People may talk of puffing as much as they please, but we can say to the most heretical, let him but see the beautiful engraving prepared by Godey for the January number of his Lady's Book, and if he does not say that it surpasses excellence, then are we willing to knock under. The plate is called "Neapolitan Peasants going to the Festa of the Pic di Grotta," and a more life-like piece of art it has never been our fortune to see. There you have, as natural as life itself, a group of half a dozen peasants, on their way to the city, each carrying the fruits of their industry. In the fore ground are a small boy and girl, bearing on their shoulders a pole, on which are slung all sorts of viands; then comes a good looking matron, carrying on her head a basket, and holding by the hand a chubby-looking girl, who, like the rest, is carrying a bunch of grapes; and behind comes three or four others, following in the trail, while in the distance are several busily employed in preparing articles for market. Altogether, it is one of the very handsomest things ever gotten up for a periodical of any country, and is alone worth twice the subscription price to the Book. Subscriptions received at

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. FARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. THE SUM OF LIFE.

BY J. O. ROCKWELL.

SEARCHER OF GOLD—whose days and nights
All waste away in anxious care;
Estranged from all Life's pure delights,
Unlearned in all that is most fair;
Who sailest not with easy glide,
But delvest in the depth of tide,
And strugglest in the foam—
Oh come and view this land of graves,
Death's northern sea of frozen waves,
And mark thee out thy home.

LOVER OF WOMEN—whose sad heart
Wastes like a fountain in the sun,
Clings most where most its pain doth start,
Dies by the light it lives upon—
Come to the land of graves! for here
Are Beauty's smile and Beauty's tear
Gathered in holy trust;
Here slumber forms as fair as those Whose cheeks, now living, shame the rose—
Their glory turned to dust.

LOVER OF FAME—whose foolish thought
Steals onward from the wave of Time—
Tell me, what goodness hath it brought Atoning for that restless crime?
The spirit-mansion desolate
That opens to thy storms of fate,
The absent soul in fear—
Bring home thy thoughts, and come with me,
And see where all thy pride must be;
Searcher of Fame, look here!

And WARRIOR—thou of sunny plume,
That gayest to the bugle's call—
Come and look down—this lonely tomb
Shall hold thee and thy glories all;
The haughty brow, the manly frame,
The daring deeds, the sounding fame,
Are trophies but for Death!
And millions who have toiled like thee
Are stayed, and here they sleep; and see
Does Glory lend them breath!

THE TWIN-DOOMED.

BY C. F. HOFFMAN.

"Twin born they live, twin born they die,
In grief and joy twin-hearted;
Like buds upon one parent bough,
Twin-doomed in death not parted."

The superstition embodied in the above distich is very common in those parts of New York and New Jersey which were originally settled by a Dutch population. It had its influence with Dominie Dewitt from the moment that his good woman presented him with the twin-brothers, whose fortunes are the subject of our story. He regarded them from the first as children of fate—as boons that were but lent to their parents to be reclaimed so soon, that it was a waste of feeling, if not an impious intermeddling with Providence, to allow parental affection to devolve in its full love and strength upon them.

They were waits, he thought, upon the waters of life, which it hardly concerned his heart to claim.

The death of the mother, which soon followed the birth of the twins, confirmed this superstitious feeling, and their forms were henceforth ever associated with images of gloom in the breast of their only surviving parent. Old Dewitt, however, though a selfish and contracted man, was not wanting in the ideas of duty which became his station as a Christian pastor. He imparted all the slender advantages of education which were shared by his other children to the two youngest; and though they had not an equal interest in his affections with the rest, he still left them unvisited by any harshness whatever. The indifference of their father was, in fact, all of which the twins had to complain.

The consequence was natural; the boys being left so much to themselves, became all-in-all to each other. Their pursuits were in every respect the same. At school, or in any quarrel or scene of boyish fiction, the two Dewitts were always named as one individual; and as they shot up toward manhood, they were equally inseparable. If Ernest went out to drive a deer, Rupert must always accompany him to shoot patridges by the way; and if Rupert borrowed his brother's rifle for the larger game, Ernest in turn would shoulder the smooth-bore of the other, to bring home some birds at the same time. Together, though, they always went.

The "Forrest of Deane," which has kept its name and dimensions almost until the moment when I write, was the scene of their early sports. The wild deer at that time still frequented the Highlands of the Hudson, and the rocky passes which led down from this romantic forest to the river, were often scoured by these active youths in pursuit of a hunted buck which would here take the water. Many a time, then, have the cliffs of Dundenberg echoed their woodland shout, when the blood of their quarry dyed the waves which washed its base. Their names as dead shots and keen hunters were well known in the country below, and there are those yet living in the opposite village of Peekskill, who have feasted upon bear's meat, which the two huntsmen carried thither from the forest of Deane.

Our story, however, has but little to do with the early career of the Rockland hunters, and I have merely glanced at the years of their life which were passed in that romantic region of a state whose sequie beauties are, perhaps, unmatched in variety by any district of the same size, in order to show how the dispositions of the twins were fused and moulded together in early life. It was on the banks of the Ohio (Oh-ey-o, or Beautiful River, as it is called in the mellifluous dialect of the Senecas,) that the two foresters of Deane first began to play a part in the world's drama. As the larger game became scarce on the Hudson, they had emigrated to this then remote region, and here they became as famous for their boldness and address in tracing the Indian marauder to his lair, as they had been previous noted for their skill in striking a less dangerous quarry.

The courage and enterprise of the two brothers made them great favorites in the community of hunters, of which they were now members. A frontier settler always depends more upon his rifle than his farm for subsistence, during the infancy of his "improvements;" and this habit of taking so often to the woods, brings him continually into collision with the Indians. It has ever, indeed, been the main source of all our border difficulties. The two Dewitts had their full share of these wild adventures. They were both distinguished for their feats of daring, but upon one occasion, Rupert, in particular, gave such signal proofs of conduct and bravery that upon the fall of the chief man in the settlement, in a skirmish wherein young Dewitt amply revenged his death, Rupert was unanimously elected captain of the station, and all the cabins of the stockade were placed under his especial guardianship.

Ernest witnessed the preferment of his brother with the same emotion of pride as if it had been conferred upon himself; and so much did the twins seem actuated by one soul, that in all measures that were taken by the band of pioneers, they insensibly followed the lead of either brother. Superstition which had given a fated character to their lives at home, followed in a certain degree, even here, and their characters were supposed to be so thoroughly identified, their fortunes so completely bound up in each other, that, feeling no harm could overtake the one which was not shared by the other, their followers had equal confidence in both, and volunteered, with the same alacrity, upon any border expedition, when either of the brothers chanced to lead.

It was about this time that General Wayne, who had been sent by government to crush the allied forces of the North Western Indians, established his camp upon the Ohio, with the intention of passing the winter in disciplining his raw levies, and in preparing for the winter campaign, which was afterwards so brilliantly decided near the Miami of the Lakes. The mail route from Pittsburg to Beaver now passes the field where those troops were marshalled, and the traveller may still see the rude fire-places of the soldiery blackening the rich pastures through which he rides. He may see, too—but I must not anticipate the character of my story, whose truth is indicated by more than one silent memento.

The western militia, large bodies of which had been drafted into Wayne's army, were never remarkable for military subordination, of which, not to mention the Black Hawk war of 1832, the more notable campaigns with the British afforded many an instance. They are a gallant set of men, but they have an invincible propensity, each man "to fight on his own hook;" and not merely that, but when not employed upon immediate active service, it is almost impossible to keep them together. They become disgusted with the monotony of military duties; revolt at their acting precision; and though full of fight, when fight is to be had, are eager to disperse upon the least intermission of active service, and come and go as individual caprice may lead them. General Wayne's camp, indeed, was for a while a complete caravanserai, where not merely one or two, but whole troops of volunteers, could be seen arriving and departing at any hour. This, to the spirit of an old soldier, who had been bred in the armies of Washington, was unendurable. But as these flitting gentry constituted the sharp-shooters, upon whom he chiefly depended, the veteran officer bore with them as long as possible, in the hope that, by humoring the volunteers, he might best attach them to the service for which this species of force was all-important.

At length, however, matters reached such a pass, that the army was in danger of complete disorganization, and a new system must necessarily be adopted. "Mad Anthony," as Wayne's men called him, (who, when he really took a thing in hand, never did it by halves,) established martial law in its most rigid form, and proclaimed that every man on his muster-roll, of whatsoever rank, who should pass beyond the lines without a special permit from himself, should be tried as a deserter, and suffer accordingly. The threatened severity seemed only to multiply the desertions; but so keen were the backwoods militiamen in making their escape from what they now considered as outrageous tyranny, that, with all the vigilance of the regular officers, it was impossible to seize any to make a military example of them.

Fresh volunteers, however, occasionally supplied the place of those who thus absented themselves without leave; and one morning in particular, a great sensation was created throughout the camp by the arrival of a new body of levies, which, though numerically small, struck every one as the finest company that had ever yet been mustered beneath the standard of Wayne. The troop consisted of mounted riflemen, thoroughly armed and equipped after the border fashion, and clad in the belted hunting frock, which is the most graceful of modern costumes. Both horses and men seemed picked for special service, and their make and movement exhibited that union of strength and agility, which, alike in man and beast, constitutes the perfection of that amphibious force—the dragoon; whose original character, perhaps, is only represented in modern armies by the mounted rangers of our Western prairies.

The commandant of this corps seemed worthy to be the leader of such a band.—His martial figure, the horse he rode, and all his personal equipments, were in every respect complete, and suited to each other. The eagle feather in his wolf-skin cap, told of a keen eye and a long shot; the quilled pouch, torn, with the wampum belt which sustained his hatchet and pistols, from the body of some swarthy Iroquois, spoke of the daring spirit and iron arm; while the panther skin which formed the housings of his sable roan, betrayed that the rider had vanquished a foe more terrible than the red savage himself. His horse, a cross of the heavy Conestoga with a mettlesome Virginia racer, bore himself as if proud of so gallant a master; and as the fringed leggin pressed his flank, while the young officer faced the general in passing in salute before him, he executed his passages with all the graceful precision of a charger trained in the manege.

A murmur of admiration ran along the ranks as this gallant cavalier paced slowly in front of the soldiery, and reined up his champing steed before the line of his tall followers, as they were at length marshalled upon the parade.—But the sensation which his air and figure excited, was almost equally shared by another individual, who had hitherto ridden beside him in the van, but who now drew up his rough Indian pony apart from the rest, as if claiming no share in the lot of the new comers.

It was a sun-burnt youth, whose handsome features afforded so exact a counterpart of those of the leader of the band, that were it not for the difference of their equipments, either of the two might at first be taken for the other, and even upon a narrower inspection, the dark locks and more thoughtful countenance of Ernest, would alone have been distinguished from the brown curls and animated features of his sanguine and high spirited brother. The former, as we have mentioned, had drawn off from the corps the moment it halted and formed for inspection. He now stood leaning upon his rifle, his plain leathern hunting shirt contrasting not less with the gay colored frocks of his companions than did the shaggy coat of his stunted pony with the sleek hides of their clean limbed coursers. His look too was widely different from the blithe and buoyant one which lighted their features; and his eye and lip betrayed a mingled expression of sorrow and scorn, as he glanced from the lithe and noble figure of his brother to the buckram regulars, whose platoons were marshalled near.

The new levies were duly mustered, and after rules and articles of war had been read aloud to them, several camp regulations were promulgated; and among the rest the recent order of the commander-in-chief, whereby a breach of discipline, is going beyond the chain of sentinels, incurred the penalty of desertion.

"No, by Heaven!" shouted Ernest, when this was read; Rupert, Rupert, my brother, you shall never bear such slavery! Away—away from this roofless prison, and if your life is what they want, let them have it in the woods—in your own way. But bind not yourself to these written laws, that bear chains and death in every letter. Away Rupert, away, from this accursed thraldom!" And leaping into his saddle before half these words were uttered, he seized the bridle rein of his brother, and nearly urged him from the spot while pouring out his passionate appeal.

"By the soul of Washington!" roared old Wayne, "what mad youngster is this? Nay, seize him not," added he good-humoredly, seeing that Rupert did not yield to his brother's violence, and that the other checked himself and withdrew abashed from the parade, as a coarse laugh, elicited by his Quixotism, stung his ear. "By the soul of Washington!" cried the General, repeating his favorite oath, "but ye're a fine brace of fellows; and Uncle Sam has so much need of both of you, that he has no idea of letting more than one go." And calling Rupert to his side, he spoke with a kindness to the young officer, that was probably meant to secure a new recruit in his brother, who had, however, disappeared from the scene.

[TO BE CONCLUDED IN OUR NEXT.]

For the Baltimore Clipper.

MESSRS. EDITORS: It is with regret that I have seen several articles on the subject of "Banks and their management," published in many of our daily papers. The regret arises not that the subject is being discussed, but that sensible men, in a matter involving such delicate interest, and where personal character is concerned, should, without informing themselves thoroughly as to the correctness of what they publish, cast unsolicited reflections upon the management of all our banks, and bring the character of their executive officers into suspicion. If it were a fact, as stated in many of the articles, that our banks had passed by-laws prohibiting their directors from examining private accounts, and particularly the accounts of their executive officers and clerks, then indeed no censure on such conduct could be too severe—it would be just and merited. But before an editor or correspondent should publish it to be a fact, and thus cast an unjust imputation upon all, ought he not to have known, or if he did not know, to have inquired from the proper sources, whether that which he was publishing was correct or not? and if he found that there were exceptions to the course condemned, should not those exceptions have been also given? This, it appears to me would have been the proper plan. Justice to the parties concerned would seem to have demanded it. Has this been the case? No. Because some bank,—and it is for the public to know what bank,—has passed a by-law, prohibiting its directors from examining private accounts and the accounts of its executive officers, it is assumed as a fact that all the other banks have placed their directors in the same situation, and therefore are to suffer a common censure.—Now I happen to know that one bank in this city (and I have no doubt there are more) is not liable to this censure. There is not only no by-law preventing the examination of private accounts, but the cashier and clerks are not allowed to keep accounts with this bank, nor to hold stock in the bank. How many other banks there may be who have the same regulations I am unable to say, not having made the proper inquiry. I can, however, say, that in nearly all the banks, the books necessary for a correct knowledge of the situation of the bank are in the table of the directors, and always open to their inspection, that is to say, that the discount ledger, and the account of every individual who has had a loan from the bank and may be applying for one, is on the table, subject to the examination of every director, and at a glance the indebtedness of each individual is shewn. This book is regularly posted, and is the most essential book to the director. It is of very little use to the directors to know whether A deposits $1000 in bank to-day and may draw out $1000 to-morrow—but it is very important for him to know the amount A may have out of bank on loan, and this book will shew that.

I have been induced to make these remarks, to correct a false impression, and in justice to the several parties interested in the matter, and to relieve them from the undue censure heaped upon them.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies of the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	"	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	"	Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	"	Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	"	Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	"	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	"	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	"	Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Fogs! Rough Weather!! and Storms!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

Dr. Hitzelberger, who is a graduate of one of the first schools in the United States, has these celebrated medicines for sale, and he would ask, why, oh! why will ye purchase the detestable quack nostrums with which this city abounds, when you can obtain the medical advice of a regular physician, and be treated with these celebrated remedies, for the unprecedented low charge of $3. Positive cure in every case guaranteed or the money returned.

MONDAY MORNING, Jan. 25, 1841.

RESUMPTION. We understand that the banks in Baltimore have resolved to resume specie payments on the first of next month, if the Virginia banks concur in the measure, of which there can be no doubt. We presume that the banks throughout Maryland will resume on the same day.

BANK MANAGEMENT. We publish with pleasure, the communication of L. in relation to the management of banks, and are glad to understand that some of the banks of our city are managed with propriety and with a proper sense of responsibility. Until the disclosure made in the American of the fact, that the accounts of individuals (including bank officers,) were exempt from inspection by directors, we were under the impression that all accounts were subjected to their examination. We were surprised that it should be otherwise, for we could not perceive the policy or justice of admitting a rule of exclusion which opened a door to fraud. Our sentiments on the subject have been freely expressed with the view to awaken the attention of stockholders and others, who had a right to presume that their interests were rigidly protected by those who had been constituted their guardians. We have not wantonly assailed, nor knowingly misrepresented—nor do we see how injury has been inflicted upon banks which have been properly conducted, as they possess the power to exonerate themselves, at any moment, from all liability to censure.

We are not the enemies of banks—on the contrary we think them indispensable to a commercial community: but then they must be administered in good faith, that they may answer the object for which they were designed. Banking, however, may be carried to excess, and we think that such is the fact, not only in Baltimore but in this state. The aggregate of bank capital in this city is not, probably, too large—indeed it may not be sufficient for the legitimate wants of the people; but its distribution into so many channels produce jealousies, collisions and pressure. The right hand will not grant lest the left hand get. This clashing of interests is unfavorable to borrowers and disadvantageous to banks; and hence the frequent changes in our monetary condition. There is no system—no permanency—and business fluctuates according to whim and caprice.—A better condition of things would be produced by a reduction in the number of our banking institutions—and we should not then have to go the rounds of expansion—contraction—suspension—resumption—explosion; and the money of the widow and the orphan would find a safe investment in bank stocks, out of the reach of the depredation of land sharks.

PUBLIC TREASURY. The controversy about the mode of supplying the deficiency in the U. S. treasury is still continued in the house of representatives. The difficulty is between a loan and an issue of treasury notes. In the course of the discussion of these matters, we are pleased to see that a disposition has been manifested to resort to duties on silks, wines, brandies and other articles of luxury. It is so obviously the interest of the country, and the duty of Congress, to furnish revenue from this source, that we are surprised that there should be the slightest hesitation on the subject. Some of the southern members affect to believe that the measure is designed as a blow at southern interests. This appears to us to be ridiculous, and we think that they either do not sufficiently comprehend the interests of their constituents, or are too sensitive on the subject of the tariff. It would be the extreme of folly to levy direct taxes for the support of government, and permit foreign nations to flood our country with their productions free of charge, or on payment of a nominal duty. Besides the immense foreign debt that would result from this policy, our own citizens would be oppressed by heavy internal burthens. It has been stated that the aggregate amount now due by the states, banks and individuals of the United States to subjects of other governments is about two hundred millions of dollars, which is a mortgage for so much upon the productive industry of this country. This immense debt will be augmented by large importations of foreign goods; and it is a matter of serious consideration how it is ever to be liquidated. If we mean to deal honestly with our creditors, we must retrench our extravagance, and commence a rigid system of economy.

SELECT SEMINARY FOR YOUNG LADIES. We ask the attention of the reader to the advertisement of Mr. Richard H. Ball, which will be found in to-day's paper. We visited his school on Saturday last, and found it advantageously located and handsomely prepared for the reception of young ladies. The school is supplied with a well selected and appropriate library, globes and beautiful apparatus for demonstrations in Natural Philosophy, Chemistry and Astronomy—and of the superior qualifications of the Principal there can be no doubt, as he presided for some years, with great success, over the Northumberland (Va.) Academy; an institution of nearly equal celebrity with that of Richmond; and comes recommended by gentlemen of distinguished talents. In music and the modern languages he has engaged the services of the best teachers in this city.

We heartily recommend this Seminary to the patronage of those who desire to have their daughters educated under the superintendance of a gentleman of high respectability, of amiable manners and extensive acquirements.

OUR PAPER. The sure and steady increase of our circulation gives indication of the good will of the public towards us. Day after day we are adding names to the lists of the carriers in this city, and the demand for our paper in the District of Columbia is beyond all precedent. For this encouragement we return our sincere thanks, and by industry shall endeavor to make the Clipper still more worthy of public favor. We feel no disposition to underrate the claims other concerns may have upon the consideration of Baltimoreans, yet as the false puffing of one in particular has a tendency to humbug the public into a belief that it is omnipresent, and leaves not a single square inch of this terrestrial globe unilluminated by its rays, we feel bound to state, without fear of contradiction, that with the exception of the New York Sun, there is not a penny paper in the United States that enjoys a wider circulation than ours. Our Belper Printing Machine is known to work faster than any press in this city, and it works longer too—hence we very justly conclude, the boasting of others to the contrary notwithstanding, that it has left all opposition behind. The cur may snap at our heels as much as he pleases—but let him be careful, lest, in a moment of anger, we kick him over.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]
WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.

In the House of Representatives to day, the Treasury Note bill was again taken up in committee of the whole, the question being on the motion of Mr. Barnard to strike out the enacting clause.

Mr. Thompson, of Mississippi, made a speech of some length in favor of the bill. He replied to the constitutional objections raised against the issue of Treasury notes by the previous speakers, and maintained that neither a loan nor a new tariff was requisite.

Mr. Lane, of Indiana, followed, and in a speech which kept the House in continued laughter, condemned the bill as a mere pretext to hide the emptiness of a bankrupt treasury.

Without taking any question, the committee then rose and the House adjourned.

The Senate has been again engaged the whole day on the everlasting pre-emption bill.

The question pending being on the motion of Mr. Crittenden to recommit the bill with instructions to report an amendment embodying the distributica principle.

Mr. Calhoun made a vigorous attack upon that system, and contended that it was impolitic and unconstitutional.

Mr. Webster denied that such was the fact, and entered into a long argument to show that a distribution of the proceeds from the public lands was in strict conformity with the provisions of the constitution.

Without taking the question, the Senate adjourned. The debate will probably be extended throughout the whole of next week.

The remains of the late lamented Commodore Stevens were this morning interred at the Congressional burial ground. Upwards of two thousand persons followed the body to the grave.—The Marines, the Light Infantry, and the various officers of the Army and Navy in the city joined the procession. It was an imposing sight. It is said that the widow of the Commodore has been deranged ever since his death.

IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT. We hope that we have been misinformed, but we are told that it is likely that the bill to abolish imprisonment for debt, which passed the house of delegates some days since, will be rejected by the senate. It is possible that there may be some objection to the bill in its present shape—if so, we trust that the senate will amend and pass it. Any amendment, not affecting the principle of the bill, would be accepted, we believe, by the house, in preference to having the measure killed or postponed. If we did not conscientiously think the proposition to dispense with imprisonment for debt founded on justice, humanity and social policy, we should feel no solicitude on the subject—but, with our present impressions we must earnestly entreat that the bill be not refuted by the senate. Most of those confined for debt are committed for sums under fifty dollars, and are in situations of life where their services are indispensable to the support of their families; imprisonment, therefore, has the oppressive effect of injuring the innocent wife and helpless children, without advancing the interest of the creditor.

COMPROMISE ACT. According to Mr. Rhett, (member of the house of representatives from South Carolina,) this act is not to be considered as permanently settling the policy of the country in relation to the tariff, but expires by limitation on the 6th of March, 1842, and that, after that day, not a dollar can be collected under it. If this opinion be correct, a new tariff will have to be enacted at the next session of Congress, or the resources of the country from duties be cut off. We think that he is singular in the opinion thus expressed, and that the prevailing conviction is, that the law will still be operative.

EDITOR'S RAMPANT. The Lexington Intelligencer of Saturday last, charges D. C. Wickliffe, editor of the Observer, with attempting to assassinate the senior editor of that paper, N. L. Fennel, Esq. Mr. Wickliffe is said to have stood behind a door at the Post Office; and to have given Mr. Fennel a blow from behind with a big stick which stunned him. The latter recovered, however, and thinks he could have got the better of his antagonist, but they were separated. Wickliffe was fined $98, and Fennel was bound over to keep the peace!

☞Some of the papers are trying very hard to get up a breeze between John Bull and Brother Jonathan. Bring out your big guns, gentlemen—we don't know how many "hairs" McLeod has on his head; but if thousands of American lives are to atone for every one that is touched, we sincerely wish the fellow had been born bald.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

HABEAS CORPUS. A case of habeas corpus was brought up, which excited some interest. A Mr. Silas Tucker petitioned the Court to order Emily Parrott to deliver to him his daughter, who had for some time been in custody of said Emily Parrott. The young girl was about fourteen years of age, very beautiful, and in manners highly accomplished. It seems that she had been brought up and educated by the lady referred to, and that her treatment in every respect had been such as the fondest mother would bestow upon her own daughter. The young girl had become much attached to her female guardian, and did not wish to be separated from her under any circumstances. The court, however, in conformity to law, was compelled to order her delivery to the father upon condition of his paying the costs. Upon hearing this decision, the little Miss wept most bitterly, her eyes were swimming with innocent tears, and her heart almost ready to burst. She loved her father, but long attachment had so united her affections with the fond guardian of her tender years, that to be separated was like tearing the heart-strings asunder.

Charles P. Forbes, who was bound over some time since to appear at the February term, to answer to the charge of an assault upon the daughter of Mr. Levi Benjamin, through the intercession of Mr. B. obtained permission of the court to compromise the affair.

Andrew Lins was tried for an assault on Mrs. Hocket. It appears Lins had a bill against the husband of the plaintiff, and that he called at the house for the purpose of collecting it, when the lady told him that it was of no use, as her husband had taken the benefit of the insolvent laws. Here Lins got into a passion and Mrs. H. ordered him out several times, he appearing to be disposed to remain where he was, she threatened his sconce with an umbrella, and he in warding off the blow, struck her, and then retreated, breaking the lock of the door, for which judgment of damages was afterwards obtained against him. The court taking into consideration the latter circumstance, stated that the defendant could not be tried twice for the same offence, and dismissed the case, plaintiff paying costs.

FIRE. About three o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the frame stable attached to the warehouse of Messrs. John & James Bigham, flour merchants, corner of Eutaw and Franklin streets. The engine companies were on the spot with their usual vigilance, and a large amount of property was saved by their exertions. There were serious apprehensions at one time, as a large quantity of gunpowder was in the back part of the store contiguous to the stable, which was removed, however, in good time. A horse was with great difficulty saved from the stable. Eleven barrels of molasses out of twenty-five were destroyed. The adjoining buildings were slightly injured. There is but little doubt that it was the work of an incendiary.

FORTUNATE DELIVERANCE. On Friday evening, about 7 o'clock, a young gentleman named McWilliams, residing on Federal Hill, when passing one of the wharves opposite the city, heard a cry and noise as if some person had fallen in the water, which attracted his attention, and on immediately repairing to the spot he saw a woman struggling in the water; his first impulse was to save her if possible, which he did by catching hold of her clothes when sinking, and raising her above the water; he then called for assistance, and some friends happening to be near at the time, they got the poor woman out and removed her to an adjacent house, and by using proper restoratives she was in a short time much recovered. It appears that she had been washing and went to the river to rinse her clothes and slipped in.

SATURDAY COURT. In July 1839, David Stewart, Esq. was presented by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, for neglecting to fill up a vacant lot of his at the corner of Park and Madison streets, which, by the Board of Health, was deemed a nuisance. The case was tried before Squire Pennington, and judgment given in favor of the city. Mr. Stewart appealed and brought his grievances before the City Court, where he proved satisfactorily that the lot complained of was properly and immediately attended to as soon as he was notified of its condition by the authorities. Upon a full investigation of the matter, the court reversed the judgment, leaving the city to pay the costs.

LECTURE. The Rev. Dr. Bethune will, by special request, deliver a lecture this evening, before the Mercantile Library Association. His previous lecture was one of uncommon interest, and to-night his subject being the "life and opinions of Socrates," it cannot be otherwise than instructive. Mr. Bethune is a gentleman of profound learning, great power of eloquence, &c. We have no doubt but the church will be crowded (as lectures are all the fashion) to overflowing. We refer to the advertisement for information relative to the tickets.

WHAT'S THE FUSS? We have received no papers south of Savannah for five days. Probably the Picayune and all the rest of them have gone round by the way of the immortal Aristook, in order to furnish us intelligence concerning the border troubles. This may be called enterprize, but it looks like intringing on the business of the Post office.

DREADFUL. We learn from the Providence Herald that the body of Mr. Washington Pike, who wandered away from his friends, in Attleboro, Mass. in a state of mental derangement, was recently found horribly mutilated. It was partially devoured by foxes.

A Mr. Eagle, of Indianapolis, was killed by the falling of a tree on the 5th inst. His head is represented as having been mangled in a most shocking manner.

EXCHANGE AND MONEY MARKET.

January 25, 1841.

Exchanges remain very unsettled. We quote Exchange on New York a ¼ prem., on Philadelphia par, and Richmond, Petersburg, Norfolk and Winchester, 1a1½ disc.

Specie is scarcely worth anything, in consequence of the banks having determined to resume specie payments on the 1st February.

Treasury Notes were selling at a small discount.

Franklin Bank funds have improved slightly again; we quote them from 10a12½ discount.

Cohen's Notes of this city were selling at 2 per cent. disc., in consequence of their non-redemption in Baltimore funds. They are also in bad repute in Philadelphia.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 22d, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. The bill to authorise the Banks to receive and pay out the orders drawn by the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company, on the Stock of the City of Baltimore, was under debate.—The bill passed.

Mr. Graves presented the petition of Elizabeth Cockey, of Baltimore, praying for a divorce.

Mr. Jones, of Somerset, offered a resolution, that the Treasurer of the Western Shore proceed forthwith to call a general meeting of the Stockholders of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Co. at Frederick upon the earliest convenient day, in pursuance of the resolution unanimously adopted for the regulation and government of said company, by the Stockholders thereof—on the 10th day of July 1828, to investigate the affairs and past management of the Company, and to take such further order in the premises as the interests of the Stockholders may require; which was assented to.

Mr. Orrick submitted an order, that a committee be appointed by the Speaker, consisting of one member from each county, and one member from the city of Baltimore and Annapolis, to take into consideration the expediency of removing the Seat of Government to the city of Baltimore, and report by bill or otherwise. The order was rejected.

Mr. Holmes reported a bill to divorce Susanna Frank of Baltimore.

Mr. Frazier reported a bill to divorce Frances Smith of Baltimore.

The House then took up the preamble and resolution submitted by Mr. Forman relative to the repeal of the Sub-Treasury.

Mr. Gallagher offered a substitute:

Resolved, That the policy of loaning out to individuals and corporations the taxes collected from the people has proved injurious to the public interest.

The Speaker decided the substitute to be out of order, as it did not relate to the subject then before the House. Considerable debate ensued, and the House adjourned, without coming to a decision.

SENATE. The bill to authorise the Banks to receive and pay out the orders drawn by the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, was reported favorably upon, and made the order of the day for Monday next.

A communication was received from the Secretary of the Baltimore and Harford Turnpike Company, showing the receipts and disbursements of said Company.

NATIONAL THEATRE, WASHINGTON. Why don't the young men of Washington display their gallantry, and give the accomplished Miss Monier bumpers every night? Come, gentlemen, stir about. The favorite tragedian, Mr. Booth, is engaged—he is as prime as ever, and we trust will draw full and fashionable houses.

What right has an ex-editor and a bachelor to be seen carrying a pair of patent brass corsets home to his lodgings?—Boston Post.

A good reason—Col. Green has no need of corsets since he lost his commission.

HORRIBLE. A Mrs. Mair, of Freedom township, Maumee county, Ohio, on the 1st inst. in a fit of insanity, threw her infant on to the fire, by which it was burnt to a crisp! The little sufferer made frequent attempts to creep from the flames, but as often did the insane mother thrust it again, until it perished amid the embers! Mrs. M. has heretofore been subject to fits of mental aberration.

A disgraceful affray took place at Lewisburg on the night of the 10th instant, in which several persons belonging to the steamboat Cherokee and a man named Thompson, a citizen of Lewisburg, were engaged. All of them had been drinking, gambling and quarreling, which resulted in the death of Jabez Doins, engineer of the boat, who was shot, and in the shocking mutilation of Thompson with a Bowie knife.—Arkansas Gaz.

ANOTHER. A new two cent paper on the cash principle has been started in Petersburg, Va. by Messrs. Suple & Ellyson. It appears daily and is called "The Little Cockade." The title is not very euphonious, but the paper is well got up and edited with spirit Corporal, look out.

STATE ARMORY
AND TOWN HALL LOTTERY.

☞In reply to the note of D. S. GREGORY & Co. to the editor of the Patriot, and the accompanying letter published in that paper on the 19th inst. the Board of Commissioners submit the following statement of facts: The Commissioners sold twelve schemes to D. S. Gregory & Co. to be drawn in one year, (which expired in the month of May, 1840,) upon the same terms on which they contracted with the State Commissioners of Lotteries. At the expiration of the year, D. S. Gregory & Co. declined a renewal of the contract, and the Commissioners failed in all their efforts to effect any admissible contract with others. Under these circumstances it became a matter of grave consideration with the Board whether they should wholly abandon an enterprize of so much importance to the State and city, or assume upon themselves the responsibility and labor of preparing and drawing schemes of their own. After much deliberation, and with great reluctance, they adopted the latter alternative, and proceeded, at considerable cost, to make all the necessary arrangements. When their plans were matured, and the tickets in their first scheme ready for sale, they were met with a refusal on the part of the established Lottery venders to sell their tickets. The Board were informed, upon authority which they could not question, that the venders had come to this determination from a threat on the part of D. S. Gregory & Co. that they would not sell their tickets to such of the venders as sold the tickets of the State Armory and Town Hall Lottery. The Board still anxious to interfere as little as possible with the State Contractors, and, if practicable, to move in harmony with them, delayed taking such steps as the provisions of the Act of Assembly, and the circumstances of the case, warranted them in adopting. Whilst matters stood thus, on the 8th of this month, the Agents of D. S. Gregory & Co. called separately at the office of the Commissioners, and after expressing to a member of the Board, an anxious wish for harmonious action, suggested that a letter to D. S. Gregory & Co. would, they had no doubt, effect that object. Upon this suggestion, that member believing that they were sincere, and fully as anxious as they seemed to be of bringing about this harmony of action, immediately addressed a letter to D. S. Gregory & Co. of which the following is a copy:

GENTLEMEN—In an interview which Mr. Scribner sought with us to-day—he suggested, for the better understanding of our respective opinions concerning the sale of Town Hall Tickets, that a correspondence be opened with your house. Not entirely coinciding in his views, nevertheless desirous of meeting all amicable overtures in a proper spirit, we have concluded to put you the query as to how far you deem it advisable, under the existing state of things, to oppose the sale of our tickets. Various rumors are afloat as to threats, &c. said to have been issued by your house against the regular brokers, if they should deal with us. Of course we pay no attention to mere rumors; nevertheless, it will conduce to a friendly feeling if a more perfect understanding of our respective views was interchanged, &c. Dated 8th January, 1840.

On the day following, the 9th ult. these same agents sent a circular to all the venders in the city, of which the following is a copy:

[CIRCULAR COPY.]

Dear Sir—We think it proper to apprise you, that we should deem your acceptance of an agency to sell any other tickets, than those embraced in the contract of the State, to conflict with your engagements with the contractors of the State Lotteries. Respectfully yours,
(Signed) D. S. GREGORY & CO.

By S. SCRIBNER & Co.

Thus situated, it became imperative upon the board to appoint agents of their own, to make sale of their tickets, and they accordingly, on the 11th of January, gave notice that they would proceed to appoint agents. On the 16th of January, (Saturday,) the members of the Board, who had written to D. S. Gregory & Co. received their answer, and on the Tuesday following, before any reasonable time had been given for a reply, or for any interchange of views, that answer and the note to the editor of the Patriot were published. The Board disclaims any connexion or concern with any article which has appeared in the papers in relation to D. S. Gregory & Co. save the notice above referred to, and one other which was published on the 14th. D. S. Gregory & Co deny hostility to the State Armory and Town Hall; the probability is that they are alike indifferent to its success or failure, except so far as it may come in conflict with their interests. That the Board, and D. S. Gregory & Co. are placed in the position of antagonists, is not the work of the Board, who used every means to avoid it, short of an entire surrender of the rights with which they are invested by the Act of Assembly which appointed them, and of the feelings and wishes of a large number of their fellow-citizens, who are solicitous for the construction of the State Armory and Town Hall. The intimation of D. S. Gregory & Co. that the course adopted by this Board can or ought to relieve them from the performance of any of the obligations of their recent contract with the State, is destitute of any foundation in reason or justice. D. S. Gregory & Co. long before that contract was made, were familiar with the provisions of the Act of Assembly referred to, and with the extent of the powers claimed by this Board, under it. That the Board have, contrary to their wishes, resorted to the full exercise of those powers, is the result of the acts of D. S. Gregory & Co. themselves.

VALLIER'S FRENCH PILLS, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

CAUTION. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. MRS. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

FOREIGN NEWS!

TEN DAYS LATER FROM ENGLAND.

By the arrival of the steam ship Columbia, at Boston, on Thursday morning, we have London dates to Jan. 4th, and Liverpool to the 5th.

The Queen, it will be perceived, having long been "as well as could be expected," is now much better.

The holydays made political news scarce in England.

Liverpool Cotton Market, Jan. 2. The sales since our last (made up to Thursday) amount to 25,250 bales, and comprise in part 420 Sea Island at 14¼d. to 24d; 3530 Mobile, 5¼ to 6¾d; 11,470 New Orleans, 5¼ to 7¼. The sales to-day are 3000 bales, at steady prices, holders showing great firmness.

Monday evening, 4th. This morning the market opened with a general and good demand from the trade, and 4000 bales have been sold at full prices; in many instances parcels have been taken which were refused as dear last week. Brazils are more in demand, and Pernams in particular are decidedly dearer since stocktaking.

Stock of American Cotton on hand 31st ult. was estimated at 271,170 bales; in 1839, same date, 158,360.

Liverpool Cotton Market, Jan. 4. American flour, free has sustained late rates, but has been rather slow of sale, the best marks of the United States at 36s., Canadian at 35s. to 36s. per bbl.—A little U. S. has been sold, in bond, for export, at 26s. per bbl.

Money Market and the Funds. The Mercantile Gazette of Saturday, Jan. 2d, says: The British market opened this morning rather firmer than it left off on Saturday, at 89¼ for the account, no doubt in consequence of the King of the French's reply to the various addresses to him on the day of the new year, which were of a very pacific nature. Afterwards Consols were not quite so good, and may be quoted now at 89 1-8, the leaving off price of Saturday. Exchequer Bills, 4-6 prem.; Bank Stock, 157 158; India Stock, 238 239.

Trade in the English manufacturing districts was dull, few buyers appearing during the holydays.

Her Majesty and Prince Albert, attended by the Duchess of Kent, on new year's day went to Frogmore to see the skating.

The act of Parliament for the registration of births, applies not only to the community at large, but also to all the members of the Royal Family—in accordance with which the birth of the Princess Royal has been duly registered. The entry was made in the registration books of the parish of St. George, and was entered on the 22d inst., by Mr. William Pierce Jordan.

Considerable excitement and alarm have prevailed at Newport, in consequence of a fresh Chartist agitation in that place. A large meeting was held on New Year's Day by the Chartists, but was unattended with any serious results. It was held for the purpose of getting up an address to the Queen, praying for the restoration of Frost, Williams and Jones from banishment.—There was no disturbance of the public peace, and the concourse, which consisted of some thousands, separated quietly.

Eighteen or twenty men had been killed on the London and Brighton Railway by two accidents. Each occurred in a tunnell, through mounds of earth. The train, being thrown off the track, knocked away the wooden arching, in two instances. In one case two men were buried and killed—in the other seventeen.

THE EAST. Rumors were current in London that the British had taken possession of Pekin. They were founded on mercantile letters, or so professed to be founded, but did not receive much credence. The Manchester Guardian gives the following, dated St. Petersburg, 11th Dec. addressed to "an eminent foreign house" at Manchester, and received on Tuesday—

"At the beginning of this week, a Tarter arrived here from Kaichta, with the news that the English had taken the capital of China, after having bombarded, and destroyed all the forts near the river. The Emperor, the son of the Sun, had fled with all his Mandarins. The consequence of this event will be a good treaty, which will completely change the commercial dealings with that empire."

Kiachta is geographically the nearest, and moreover the most convenient point from which the news might be expected overland.

The papers state that an interruption had been given to the negociations with Mehemet Ali, by the refusal of Admiral Stopford to ratify Com. Napier's agreement. All had, however, been put in a new train by direct communication between Egypt and the Porte, and there was little doubt of the final adjustment, after some delay.

A terrific storm occurred at Constantinople on the 1st December. Among the vessels lost were two or three English, and the Russian commercial steamer Nina.

The difficulties between Spain and Portugal are in a train of settlement through British mediation.

We have discovered nothing important from France.

We perceive by the Paris papers that Marshal Vallee has been recalled from Algiers, and that General Bugeaud is to succeed him in the command of the "grand army" in Africa.

Further plots against Louis Phillippe's life are again spoken of. In the pocket of the driver of a Paris omnibus, who committed suicide, a paper is said to have been found, setting forth that, being a member of a secret society, his turn had come by lot to kill the King; but finding himself unable to commit the crime, he had determined to hang himself.

The French King has remitted that part of Mad. Laffarge's sentence which condemns her to exposition publique.

Rumors were prevalent in Paris of changes in the ministry. It is conjectured that Guizot will have to succomb to the war party.

The Belle Poule is shortly to sail to the China seas, under command of the Prince de Joinville.

A horrid occurrence took place on Christmas morning, at the Roman Catholic Church, Francis street, Dublin. One of the planks upon which the people are accustomed to kneel, owing to the pressure of the people standing on it, broke.—This created an alarm, and a rush was made for the door, and so great was the crowd that more than a hundred people were thrown down and trampled upon. Three persons were killed, and several more severely injured.

There has been an awful fire at Dundee, by which three churches, being connected, were burnt down.

There was an accidental collision between H. M. mail steamship Merlin, and a river steamer, on the morning of the 5th Jan. The former sustained very serious injury, and was obliged to put back into Liverpool.

Lord Cardigan was hissed out of Drury Lane Theatre, recently.

The Prince Royal of Hanover is said to be seriously ill.

The christening of the Princess Royal is fixed for the 10th of February, the anniversary of her Majesty's marriage.

Cape of Good Hope papers had been received to the 21st of October, but they contained no news.

It was the prevailing opinion that the Messrs. Rothschild at Paris, with the bankers in that capital, would take the French loan of £19,000,000, but the above loan would not be contracted at present, as the French Minister of Finance has a sufficient supply to go on with for some time to come.

We find no confirmation of the rumor that Prince Louis Napoleon was to be liberated from prison. He is, however, allowed to correspond with his friends.

A French paper states, under date of Madrid, Dec. 23d, that "the state of Spain is satisfactory, and affairs begin to revive, owing to the movements in public credit.

A person named Borel has been arrested in Switzerland, charged with being an accessory to the attempt by Darmes on the life of Louis Phillippe, on the 15th Oct. last.

A letter from Vienna, quoted by the Moniteur Parisien, announces that Prince Metternich is seriously ill.

Thomas Hill, Esq. says the Literary Gazette, an individual more intimately known in the literary circles of London, than any other person, perhaps, that ever existed, died at his residence in the Adelphi, on Sunday, the 27th ult. in the 80th year of his age.

Lady Smyth, widow of the late Sir Hugh Smyth, Bart. died at Bath, recently.

LOOK OUT!!
"Caution" is the Parent of Safety.

AN ATTACK of the "PILES" may be positively prevented by using (when the premonitory symptoms are felt) the celebrated HAYS' LINIMENT. There are more than one thousand people in this city, and in the United States an immense number, who have suffered beyond endurance by this dreadful complaint, who keep themselves wholly free from attacks by applying this Liniment when they feel any symptoms of its approach—of this there is the most perfect proof.

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Hartich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

A Beautiful and Suitable Present for Ladies.

THE LADY'S BOOK. We have scarcely penned a paragraph of praise to this paragon of periodicals, and another deserving still more is required. People may talk of puffing as much as they please, but we can say to the most heretical, let him but see the beautiful engraving prepared by Godey for the January number of his Lady's Book, and if he does not say that it surpasses excellence, then are we willing to knock under. The plate is called "Neapolitan Peasants going to the Festa of the Pic di Gross," and a more life-like piece of art it has never been our fortune to see. There you have, as natural as life itself, a group of half a dozen peasants, on their way to the city, each carrying the fruits of their industry. In the fore ground are a small boy and girl, bearing on their shoulders a pole, on which are slung all sorts of viands; then comes a good looking matron, carrying on her head a basket, and holding by the hand a chubby-looking girl, who, like the rest, is carrying a bunch of grapes; and behind comes three or four others, following in the trail, while in the distance are several busily employed in preparing articles for market. Altogether, it is one of the very handsomest things ever gotten up for a periodical of any country, and is alone worth twice the subscription price to the Book. Subscriptions received at

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FITS, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains ra aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

WHERE ART THOU GONE?

[BY LEONE.]

Where art thou gone? is there nought can allure thee
Back to the home of thy childhood, once dear?
Where art thou lost? does the ocean sweep o'er thee,
Canst thou the plaint of a fond mother hear?

The home of thy childhood is trodden by strangers,
All dreary the hearth which thy smile lit with joy,
While thy early pathway is teeming with dangers,
Which threaten thy mother's fond hopes to destroy.

Where is the stripling who bounds from my side,
Like a fawn with a dart in his breast deeply buried;
The shallop approaches, he floats o'er the tide,
And soon to the dark ocean billows is hurried.

Where art thou gone? where the fierce savage yell
Breaks on thine ear in the dead hour of night;
As borne on the breeze their numbers now swell,
While thy slender hand shrink dismayed at their might.

Ah! where art thou gone? dost thou rest in the shade,
On Florida's coast 'neath the sweet orange bloom;
Where staid is the grip of the dark Spanish maid,
As she lingers to weave a green wreath for thy tomb.

Or hast thou escaped from ingloious death,
Where too many sanguine of fame, have been hurried?
No friends to watch o'er them, to catch their last breath,
In warm Southern climes their loved ashes lie buried.

Sweet sisters and sisters I weave thee a wreath,
To twine 'round thy brows for thy loved ones departed
We will weave from the cypress and wild Laurel leaf,
'Tis meet for the mourner, the brave and true hearted

Ah! where art thou gone? my harp's gentle numbers,
Can ne'er breathe a cadence so sweet to mine ear,
As when softly awakened from unquiet slumbers,
Methinks thy name borne on a zephyr I hear.

Where, where art thou gone? come back to thy rest,
Thy mother invites—tho' bereft of a home;
Life's storms have been rudely upon thee and breast,
Oh! haste thee, beloved one, I wander alone.

Art thou gone? then adieu to all hope, save of heav'n,
Those who smiled at my birth will weep o'er my bier
Every tie that would bind me to earth is now riv'n,
Farewell! my sad harp-strings are wet with a tear.

THE TWIN-DOOMED.

BY C. F. HOFFMAN.

[Concluded from our last.]

The parade was now dismissed, and so soon as Rupert had taken possession of his quarters, and seen that his men and horses were all properly taken care of, he parted from his comrades to take a farewell of Ernest, who awaited him in a clump of trees upon the bank of the river, at a short distance from the camp. Ernest seemed to have fully recovered his equanimity; but though, youth-like, ashamed of the fit of heroics which had placed his brother in a somewhat ridiculous position a few hours before, he had not altered the views which he had entertained from the first, about Rupert's taking service under General Wayne.

"You will not start homeward to night?" cried Rupert, at length changing a subject it was useless to discuss.

"Yes, to-night I must be off, and that soon, too, Rupert. Little Needji must pace his thirty miles before midnight. I don't know that I have done wisely in coming so far with you; but, in truth, I wanted to see how our hunters would look among the continentals Mad Anthony has brought with him."

"Wait till we come to the fighting, Ernest, and the old general will soon find out who's who. His regulars may do in civilized war, but a man must live in the woods to know how to fight in them."

"Ay, ay, that's it; a hound may do for a deer that isn't worth a powder horn stopper upon a panther track. But you must remember," continued his brother, fixing his eyes sadly upon Rupert, "that you will have to fight just in the way that the General tells you—which means, I take it, that real manhood must go for nothing. Why, there's not a drummer in the ranks that will not know his duty better than you;—ay, and for aught I see, be able to do it, too, as well."

A flush of pride—perhaps of pain—crossed the countenance of the young officer, as his brother thus spoke; and, laying his hand upon his arm, added, with the indignant tone of a caged hunter, "Why, Rupert, you must not dare even, soldier that you now are, to take the bush, and keep your hand in by killing a buck occasionally."

"Believe it not, Ernest; my men will never stand that, for all the Mad Anthonys or mad devils in the universe."

"You must, you must, my brother," answered Ernest, shaking his head; "and now you begin to see why I would not volunteer upon this service. I am quicker than you, and therefore saw further into matters than you did, when you choose to come hither rather than give up the command of your company. But where's the use of looking back upon a cold trail? You are now one of Uncle Sam's men, and Heaven knows when he will let go his grip upon you."

Conversing thus, the brothers had walked some distance. The moon was shining brightly above them, and a silver coil of light trailing along the rippling Ohio, seemed to lure them onward with the river's course. At length, however, the more considerate Ernest deemed it prudent that they should part, and catching the pony, which had followed them like a dog, he mounted and prepared to move off. But Rupert would not yet leave his brother and retrace his steps to the camp. It might be long before they should meet again—they who had never before parted—who had been always inseparable, alike in counsel and in action, and who were now about for the first time to be severed, when stout hearts and strong hands might best be mutually serviceable.

"I don't think I will leave you just yet, Ernest. I may as well walk with you as far as the branch; and we are hardly without shot of the soldier who is standing sentry yonder. What a mark the fellow's cap would be from that clump of pawpaws!"

"Yes," said Ernest, lifting his rifle from his lap as the musket gleamed in the moonlight, "I am almost tempted to pick that shining smooth bore out of his fingers, just to show how ridiculous it is to carry such shooting irons as that into the woods. But come; the time is gone by for such jokes; if you will go farther with me, let us push on." They reached the "branch," or brook, and crossed it; and still they continued increasing the distance between themselves and the camp.

"Well, I suppose we must now really bid good bye," exclaimed Rupert at last, seizing the hand of his brother. "But here, Ernest, I wish you would carry home my Indian belt, and these other fixins; they will remind you of old times if I'm kept away long, and the cutler will give me something more in camp fashion." As he spoke thus, he tied the wampum sash around the waist of his brother, and while throwing the Indian pouch over his shoulder, their arms met in the folds of brotherhood; and the twins parted with that silent embrace. Rupert, rapidly retracing his steps towards the camp, soon reached the brook, and a half hour's walk might yet have enabled him to regain his quarters in safety; but the finger of Fate was upon him, and he, who had already been led away from duty by the strong lure of affection, was still further induced to violate it by an instinct not less impulsive in the bosom of a borderer.

Pausing to drink at the rivulet, Rupert, in stooping over the bank, thought that he discovered a fresh moccasin print, and bending down the branches which embowered the spot so as to bring the rays of the moon full upon it, a more thorough examination fully satisfied him that an Indian had lately passed that way. A regular soldier, upon thus discovering tracks of a spy in the neighborhood of the camp, would at once have reported it to the officer of the day, and allowed his superior to take measures accordingly. But such an idea never occurred to the backwood ranger. He had discovered an Indian trail, and there were but two things, in his opinion, to be done: first, to find out its direction, and then to follow it to the death. A sleuth hound upon the scent of blood could not be impelled by a more irresistible instinct than that which urged the fiery Rupert on that fatal chase.

It boots not to tell the various chances of his hunt; how here he missed the trail upon rocky ground, where the moccasin had left no print—how there he was obliged to feel for it in some tangled copse, where no betraying moonbeam fell—and how, at last, when the stars grew dim, and the grey dawn had warned into ruddy day, he for the first time rested his wearied limbs upon the banks of a stream, where the trail disappeared entirely.

Let us now follow the fortunes of the doomed Ernest, who, like the hero of classic story, bore about his person the fatal gifts that were to work his destruction. Not a half hour elapsed from the time that he had parted from his brother, before he found himself the prisoner of a sergeant's guard, which had been despatched to "take or slay the deserter, Rupert Dewitt."

Apprehending no ill, Ernest allowed himself to be seized; the equipments he had just received from Rupert, not less than the similitude of likeness to his twin brother, in the opinion of the party that captured him, fully established his identity; and the horror which he felt at discovering how Rupert had forfeited his life, was almost counterbalanced by a thrill of joy, as it suggested itself to the high-souled Ernest that he might so far keep up the counterfeit, as to become a sacrifice in the place of the brother on whom he doated. The comrades of Rupert, who might have detected the imposition, chanced to be off in fatigue parties in different directions: and thus, together with the summary mode of proceeding that was adopted upon his reaching camp, favored his design.

A drum-head court martial was instantly called to decide upon the fate of a prisoner, to whose guilt there seemed to be, alas! too many witnesses. The road he had taken—the distance from the camp—the time of night he had chosen to wander so far from the lines—nay, the fact of his leaving his blood horse at the stable, as if fearing detection through him, and stealing off an Indian pony—all seemed to make out a flagrant case of desertion. But why dwell upon these painful details of an affair which was so amply canvassed in all its bearings throughout the western country afterwards! Let the reader be content with the bare historical fact, that the ill-starred militiaman was condemned to be shot to death as a deserter, under the circumstances as I have stated them. It seemed a terrible proceeding, when these circumstances were afterwards reviewed; but though at the time General Wayne was much censured for signing that young man's death warrant, yet both military men and civilians, who knew the condition of the army, have agreed that it was this one example alone which prevented that army from falling to pieces.

The heart of Ernest was so thoroughly made up to meet the fate which was intended for his brother, that his pulses did not change in a single throb, when he was told he had but an hour to prepare himself for death. "The sooner that it be over, the better for Rupert," exclaimed he, mentally. And then, man as he was, his eyes filled with tears when he thought of the anguish his darling brother would suffer on learning the fate which had overtaken him.

"Oh, God!" he cried aloud, clasping his hands above his head as he paced the narrow guard-room in which he was now immured: "God of Heaven! that they would place us together with our rifles in the forest, and send this whole army to hunt us down." The features of the wild bush-fighter lighted up with a grim smile, as he thought of keeping a battalion at bay in the green wood, and crippling it with his single arm. The proud thought seemed to bear with it a new train of views. "If Rupert knew," said he, pausing in his walk—"if he but dreamed how matters were going, he would soon collect a score of rifles to strike with, and take me from their very bayonets. But this is madness"—

"Ay! that it is, my fine fellow," answered the sentinel who guarded his door, and who now, hearing the last words uttered while the steps of those who were to have the final charge of the prisoner were heard upon the stair, thought it incumbent upon him to remind the youth where he was. Ernest compressed his lip, and drawing himself to his full height, as he wheeled and faced his escort, motioned to them to lead on. He was at once conducted to the esplanade in front of the camp, upon the river's bluff.

The morning was gusty and drizzling, as if Nature shuddered in tears at the sacrifice of one who, from his infancy had worshipped her so faithfully. The young hunter scarcely cast a glance at the military array as he stepped forward to take the fatal position from which he was never to move more. Pride alone seemed to prompt the haughty mein and averted but unblenching eye, that were, in fact, governed by a nobler impulse—the fear of a personal recognition by some of the soldiery before his substitution as a victim to martial law was completed; but of the many in his brother's band who had so often echoed his own shout upon the joyous hunt, or caught up his charging cheer in the Indian onslaught, there was now not one to look upon the dying youth.

Considerations of feeling, or the fear, perhaps, of exciting a mutinous spirit among those hot-headed levies, had induced the general to keep the comrades of the twin-brothers at a distance from the fatal scene. As already stated, they had originally been detailed on some fatigue duty, which took them to a distance from the camp, and measures had been since adopted to prolong their absence until the catastrophe was over. Once, and once only, did Ernest trust himself to run his eye along the formal files of stranger faces; and then—while the scenes of his early days by the bright river of the north, flashed athwart his memory—he felt a momentary shrinking of the heart to think there was no home-loved friend who could witness the manner of his death; and yet, when he remembered that one such witness might, by identifying him, prevent his sacrifice and endanger the life of Rupert, he was content that it should be thus.

A platoon of regulars was now drawn up in front of him, and waited but the word of their officer—when suddenly a murmur ran along the column, which was displayed upon the ground in order to give solemnity to the scene. It was mistaken for a symptom of mutiny, and precipitated the fatal moment.

"Fire!" cried the officer; and even as he spoke, a haggard figure in a torn hunting shirt—with a ghastly look, and tangled hair that floated on the breeze—leaped before the line of deadly muzzles! He uttered one piercing shriek,—whether of joy or agony it were impossible to tell—and then fell staggering with one arm across the bosom of Ernest, who breathed out his life while springing forward to meet the embrace of his brother!

They were buried in one grave, and the voyager upon the Ohio, whose boat may near the north western shore, where the traces of Wayne's encampment are yet visible, still sees the shadowy beckeye, beneath which repose the twin-doomed foresters of Deganc!

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 23rd, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. Mr. Welsh presented the petition of sundry citizens of Baltimore and Anne Arundel counties, counter to the petition of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company, respecting an increase of tolls on said Rail Road.

Mr. Nichols, from the committee on ways and means, made an unfavorable report upon the memorial of the managers of the Washington Monument, praying that an annual sum may be granted for the completion of that work in lieu of the surplus of Lotteries—read and concurred in.

Mr. Foreman, from the committee on Internal Improvements, reported a bill entitled an act to repeal certain parts of an act, entitled an act relating to charges for transportation upon the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road.

On motion of Mr. Prestman, said bill was made the order of the day for Tuesday next 26th inst. and ordered to be printed.

A Bill was received from the Senate, entitled an act supplementary to an act, entitled an act respecting the equity jurisdiction of County Courts.

The House then resumed the consideration of the preamble and resolution submitted by Mr. Foreman adverse to the Sub-Treasury system, and also the substitute offered by Mr. Gallagher, which the Speaker had decided to be out of order. Mr. Gallagher took an appeal from the decision of the Chair. The decision of the Speaker was sustained.

Mr. Seidenstricker offered several amendments which were rejected.

A substitute was also offered by Mr. Graves, for Mr. Foreman's resolution, which was also rejected. The vote was then taken on the preamble and resolution offered by Mr. Foreman, which were adopted by a vote of 49 to 13. Mr. Bowie, Chairman of the committee on Ways and Means, delivered a Report. He recommends taxation as the only means by which the State can be extricated from her present embarrassments.

On motion of Mr. Prestman, one of the Committee, ordered that it be noted on the journal of the House that he dissented from the Report, but agreed to the resolution.

Mr. Martin, a member of same committee offered an order that it be entered on the journal of the House that he dissented from both the report and resolution of the committee. The following is a copy of the resolution submitted by the committee:

Resolved, as the sense of this House, that in order to sustain the faith and credit of the State, and to raise a fund to pay the interest on the public debt of the State, it is indispensably necessary for the Legislature at the present session of the General Assembly to adopt such a system of taxation as will be fully adequate to the wants of the Treasury, so long as they shall continue; and the committee of Ways and Means are hereby instructed to report to the House as early as practicable the bills for that purpose.

Mr. Jones from the Committee on Ways and Means reported a supplement to the act to prevent obstructions in Smith and other private docks in Baltimore city. Ordered to lie on the Table.

The House adjourned until Monday.

SENATE. Mr. Ely presented the petition of the Baltimore and Susquehanna Rail Road, for relief therein mentioned. Referred to the committee on Internal Improvements.

LOUISIANA. The legislature of this state has elected Alexander Barrow, esq. to the senate of the United States for six years, to succeed R. C. Nicholas, esq., whose term of service expires on the 4th of March next.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M. reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	" Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	" Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'kburg	12 M.	" Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	" Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	" Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	" Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection throughout, whilst it is evident that Foul Recon Weathers and Storms!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

☞Passengers for the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road pay through to Petersburg, Va. For further information and Through Tickets, apply at the office of

TUESDAY MORNING, JAN. 26, 1841.

THE ALMS-HOUSE. We have been favored with a copy of the bill now before the house of delegates, in relation to the alms-house, which will be found in our columns to-day. The provisions of the bill are different from what we had heard and read; the impression upon our minds was, that the act was a simple party movement, without any design to benefit the institution.—But it will be seen, that the object is to remove a portion only of the trustees at a time, so as to have experienced men always in the board. This is perfectly correct, and will be found highly beneficial. The board of trustees is to be divided into classes, so many to go out each year—their successors to be appointed as at present, by the mayor of Baltimore city and the county commissioners. This will leave the political complexion of the board to be determined by the elections, which is right.

REPORT OF THE TRUSTEES OF THE POOR. The expenditures during the past year have been about $22,000, (not including amount received from paupers,) of which $6,000 yet remain due; and the estimated expense for the present year is $25,000. It is stated in the report that the expenses have been materially decreased from former years, notwithstanding the extensive and valuable improvements made by the overseer, the augmentation of the quantity of food allowed to the inmates, and the application of 6,000 bushels of lime in improvement of the farm during the past year. There have been admitted into the alms-house during the year ending 31st Dec., 1840, 1,212 persons; born in it 27; discharged 371; died 189; bound out 17; eloped 609; leaving 584, including those previously there. Of these 584, there are white males 239; white females 212; colored males 51; colored females 82. There are 188 considered as paupers for life, viz: insane 76; idiots 12; old age, &c. 100; usual number of children 165; of sick persons 100. The value of labor performed and articles manufactured by the paupers is $3,209 80.

Considerable improvements have been made in the buildings and the surrounding grounds. The children are kept separate from the adults, and the white paupers from the colored. The overseer very justly suggests that vagrants, who seek the alms-house as a temporary refuge, and when clothed decamp, should not be admitted on the same equality as the necessitous, but be taught to consider it as a place of punishment to be avoided.

Of the adults admitted the last year eight hundred and fifty-seven were intemperate; children of intemperate parents 55.

The report of Mr. Murray (farmer to the alms-house) is very satisfactory, and shows that the farm has been well cultivated, and is in progress of high improvement. The product of the farm for the year is $7,620, besides extra labor estimated at $429 35.

Doctor Robinson's report of the lunatic department should be well considered by the City Council. He states that the present buildings are not suitable for these unfortunate inmates, and advises that others be provided better suited to the accommodation of lunatics, and to any classification of the patients that may be deemed advisable.

TAXES. The committee of ways and means of the house of delegates of this state, have come to the determination, which we considered inevitable, that taxes must be laid to sustain the credit of the state. We see that Mr. Brestman, of this city, and Mr. Martin, of Talbot, members of the committee, both requested their dissent to the report to be entered upon the journal. If these gentlemen, or either of them, can suggest any expedient, other than taxation, by which to relieve the treasury from embarrassment and afford a sufficient permanent revenue, the people would be glad to have the project submitted.—We confess that our vision is too obscure to discover any other path that can be travelled with safety.

It is not intended, we presume, to resort to direct taxation to supply all the deficiency of the treasury. Such a measure would be unjust and oppressive, and in direct opposition to the letter and spirit of the constitution. The small land proprietor would be taxed, whilst the large capitalist would be exempt. Licenses are now required of store-keepers, tavern-keepers, &c. and we think that the license system could be extended to other vocations with benefit. Moneyed investments should also be taxed, as there is no propriety in taxing ground and exempting ground rents. As the system of taxation which may be adopted during the present session of the legislature will probably be permanent, it should be so comprehensive as to embrace every object justly subject to its operation. By thus distributing the burthen it will be comparatively light. But, if a partial system be adopted, by which one class of the community will be saddled with a heavier burthen than another, there will be dissatisfaction and complaint, and the next election will produce a change in the law.

FIRE AND LOSS OF LIVES. A destructive fire broke out in Philadelphia on Saturday morning in the wholesale four story umbrella factory of Messrs. Wright & Brothers, No. 125, Market Street. The house adjoining, occupied as a fancy goods store by Messrs. Wilmer & Brothers, was materially injured and a large amount of goods damaged. Two young men named Oscar Douglass and Mark S. Risk, belonging to the fire department were killed by the falling of the wall about two o'clock.

LOOK OUT. The President elect has started for Washington city, and will arrive, it is supposed, about the 7th or 8th of next month. It is said that he is in robust health. This is fortunate, for he has a trial to undergo that would reduce the flesh of a younger man. Office-seekers are on the qui vive, and, from their number, will probably have to encamp around the capitol for want of accommodations. Office holders are shivering in their shoes—whilst we, pure and patriotic, are disinterestedly watching to see who is to get the largest share of the public pap. As all the spoons are engaged, we have nothing wherewith to dip into the public dish, and of course must munch our own provender. Well, be it so—we enjoy, at least, an independent mind; and that is preferable to a well-lined purse got by servility and beggary.

We admire the serenity with which our friend of the Republican looks upon this subject. He is about to lose his spoon, and yet he bears it with the dignity of a philosopher. He moralizes admirably, and we publish his reflections for the benefit of those who, like the dog in the fable, will grasp at the shadow whilst they lose the substance.

Having given office-seekers a rap over the knuckles, he proceeds:

"But we are wandering from the design with which we commenced this article. Our purpose was to speak of the injustice which many men do to themselves by their eager pursuit after office. Many there are who, being engaged in a regular business with which they are perfectly familiar, and which it has possibly cost them years of attention and labor to establish, and when it affords them not only a competency, but is placing them regularly, though it may be not rapidly, in circumstances of increased comfort, throw away that business and their personal independence, to accept of an office of which an unexpected turn of fortune's wheel in matters of politics, or the determination of men holding in their hands the power of appointment, may suddenly deprive them, and leave them to build up a business by the slow and laborious process through which they passed in reaching the position which they abandoned, for the uncertain emoluments of office. Such cases have frequently occurred, and such cases may be expected to continue to occur, so long as men are disposed to sacrifice a regular and certain business and their personal independence for the tenure of an office which a man can hope to hold only so long as it may be the pleasure of others, without even knowing who those others may be.

"The man who has a regular business under his own control, which affords him a comfortable living, with a prospect of an increase of means, even if that increase be but moderate, depending upon no one man or set of men, is not only much more independent than the occupant of an office, but stands upon a much better and much more certain foundation on which to rest his hopes of future competency and comfort."

COMPETITION. It is said of the celebrated Doctor Goldsmith, that, not content with his literary fame, he aspired to do whatever he saw another perform, and by this absurd ambition frequently rendered himself ridiculous. Competition begets excellence—but there are certain professions so low, that no man of sound mind or good principle will consent to rival the first practitioner. Of this class we had supposed was the imitation of the negro dialect, names and manners: but we observe that Mr. Rice has competitors, one of whom (Mr. Sweeney,) is now performing in Washington city with great success. This is what may be termed low ambition; but shall the actor be condemned for metamorphosing himself into a negro, whilst his representations are applauded to the very echo by the elite of the country? If the people will prefer the dance and the song of the negro to the thrilling and sublime language of Shakspeare, is it surprising that actors should be willing to "fool them to the top of their bent!" This gross degeneracy of taste is lamentable, and the quicker it is corrected the sooner will the intellectual character of the country be restored, and the moral tone and feeling of the community become elevated. Jim Crow, and all such disgusting representations, must be banished from the stage, if we would preserve any reputation for refinement of taste and decency of manners.

SOUTHERN MAILS. We received yesterday a heterogeneous batch of southern papers, and had selected some items, but the press of other matter has crowded them out.

The Orphan Asylum in Lafayette city was burnt on the 12th.

A serious fire occurred in New Orleans on the 13th by which two or three houses were burnt in Chartres street.

News had been received from Matamoras at N. Orleans up to the 20th ult. The Mexicans appear to have no idea of invading Texas.

News from Texas was up to the 5th, nothing of consequence.

There were mobs and riots in Jamaica.

The British steamer Argyle was wrecked off the port of Vera Cruz on the 5th Dec. and entirely lost. Two of the crew perished.

A violent tornado had been experienced on the Pacific coast of Mexico. Five or six hundred houses had been thrown down.

The new theatre opened at Mobile on the night of the 11th.

Wagner has been beaten on the Mobile race course.

A Frenchman named Faure was murdered at Natchitoches on the 8th inst. by Samuel P. Sackett.

A cooper by the name of Cruzat committed suicide by cutting his throat at New Orleans on the 14th.

COUNTERFEITERS. Two counterfeiters named Daniel Moore and John Hildebrant have been arrested in Philadelphia.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25, 1841.

In the Senate the pre-emption land bill is still under discussion, and Mr. Allan is doing battle to the knife, in favor of the settlers.

In the House of Representatives a great number of executive communications were received and referred to appropriate committees. Among them was a message from the President in answer to a resolution offered some time ago by Mr. Adams, and calling for information as to our actual relations with China. It is voluminous, and was referred to the committee on foreign affairs, who have the other papers in relation to that subject under consideration.

The Senate bill extending the charter of the Bank of Alexandria was taken up, read twice and referred to the committee on the District.

The amendment of the Senate to the House bill, making temporary provision for lunatics in the District, was also taken up and agreed to. The amendment merely provides that the annual expense shall not exceed $3,000.

After the reference of about a hundred private and other bills from the Senate, there was a call from many members for petitions. But Mr. Adams declared he would object unless every member could have an opportunity of emptying his desk of their accumulated loads.

On motion of Mr. Jones, the House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, and resumed the consideration of the treasury note bill, the question pending being on the motion to strike out the enacting clause.

Mr. Duncan having the floor, spoke the whole day in favor of the bill, and in the discussion of a variety of incidental subjects connected with the policy of the present administration.

The weather is delightful, and the galleries of both houses are plentifully sprinkled with ladies.

LAND QUESTION. The citizens of Washington had the high gratification on Saturday last of listening to Messrs. Calhoun and Webster, on the disposition of the public lands. They are among the most eloquent and able debaters in the country, and the Senate galleries were of course crowded to excess. Mr. Calhoun sustained his peculiar notions with distinguished ability—but Demosthenes himself would fail to convince the "old thirteen" of the justice of depriving them of their equitable share of the public lands. We do not doubt the sincerity of Mr. Calhoun's convictions or the patriotism of his motives, in the course he has taken; but that it is erroneous, and would, if adopted, be productive of great injury and injustice, we are fully persuaded. To cede the public lands to the states in which they lie, would be as unjustifiable as to distribute to the younger branches of a family the whole patrimonial estate. Indeed the injustice is greater, because the old states voluntarily threw that into the common stock, of which it is now proposed to divest them.

The speech of Mr. Webster is spoken of in the National Intelligencer, as fully equal, if not superior, to any previous effort of that gentleman; and so highly was it approved by the auditory that their plaudits were involuntarily given. He supports the distribution policy—a policy which must be adopted if public faith is to be preserved.

TEMPERANCE HALL. The number of temperance societies which have recently been established in Baltimore, and the rapid spread of the cause, has suggested the propriety of erecting a Temperance Hall in some central part of the city, in which to hold meetings. We think that the most likely mode of succeeding in this project would be, to unite it with the cause of literature. The literary associations would doubtless contribute towards the expense of such a building, if they could have the use of it. At present both temperance and literary societies are dependent upon the good will of other associations for rooms sufficiently large to accommodate them; and, although these have been most courteously granted, yet it would be preferable to have a permanent place, suitably prepared, in which to assemble. We throw out this suggestion for consideration, and if it be adopted, a committee composed of members from the several associations could make the necessary arrangements to have the required amount subscribed either in stock or otherwise.

SUB-TREASURY. After considerable wrangling, the house of delegates has passed the resolution submitted some time since, adverse to the sub-treasury. We think that the labor was supererogatory, and that the house could have been as well occupied in its legitimate business. Parties are too unequally divided in the house for a fair contest, and it would seem more magnanimous in the majority not to provoke it.

SENATE. The National Intelligencer of yesterday says: "In conformity to usage, we learn that the senate of the United States has been summoned by the executive to meet in this city on the 4th of March next, for the transaction of business (being, of course, of an executive character, connected with the commencement of a new administration, the formation of a new cabinet, &c.)"

UNFEELING. The least that can be said of an article which appeared in a morning paper of yesterday concerning the death of a certain lady, is that it evinces a desire to wound the already lacerated feelings of a man, who, though he may have been guilty of indiscretion, yet is known to have been a kind husband. We sincerely regret that the press has been so debased as not only to pry within the walls of domestic retirement, but to prey upon the sacred ashes of the dead.

THE PILOT. The editor of this paper announces the temporary suspension of the daily paper, but expresses the confident expectation that it will be speedily revived and placed upon permanent ground. In the mean time subscribers to the daily will be served with the weekly paper, which is to be continued.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

A BEAUTIFUL DAY. Yesterday was one of those soft and balmy days which give life and animation to all nature. Market street was crowded to overflowing with strangers, citizens, ladies and men of business. Every countenance wore a smile, and every fair cheek the rose of beauty. We know not when we have had the pleasure of beholding so exquisite an array of fashion and elegance. The ladies actually seemed as if they had just escaped from their bandboxes, determined by their arch glances and fascinating smiles to tease the sons of Bachelori. Oh ye witching angels, how soothing to the soul of man is your benign and captivating influence. While we are struggling mid the toils of commerce, you form the alphabet from which we read in one word the end of all our pursuits—and that word is—HAPPINESS.

"THE MERRY BIRDS ARE SINGING." While we are writing this there are a half dozen canary birds hanging from the different windows in our neighborhood, warbling away as if the spring flowers had sprung up to listen to their music. The little rascals! they are making the best use of the pleasant sunshine.

EFFECT OF IMPRISONMENT. Yesterday in our perambulations we visited the jail, where we found three white slaves, or, in other words, three men who had been deprived of their liberty in this boasted land of freedom, because misfortune, perchance, had made them debtors, while rogues can swindle, filch from the orphan and the widow their all, and yet stand, to the world's eye, in the light of gentlemen. In our estimation the American flag was never made to wave over the imprisoned, where guilt, both in the sight of God and man, cannot be alleged. One of the individuals was put in jail for the sum of thirty dollars. He has at this present time a wife and four children dependent upon his exertions for the bread to sustain life. Let shame touch the heart of his persecutor, so that mercy may restore him to his perishing family.

The deleterious effects, however, of imprisonment were more deplorably manifested in the person of a man named O'Connell. He was confined some months since for a slight assault. When first put in prison he was of remarkably stout, robust constitution. He has since fallen into a consumption, (owing to mental and physical depression,) and is now indeed an object of pity. His time is nearly out, though a few months more would place him in that narrow prison, the key of whose door is death.

A BOY KILLED. Yesterday about 12 o'clock, while some workmen were engaged in tearing down the wall of a house at the corner of Camden and Hanover streets, a boy named Wm. Roach, about 13 years of age, was instantly crushed to death in the ruins. His head was literally mashed to atoms, and his whole body buried beneath a huge mass of brick.

This is another fearful warning to careless boys. It should teach them to keep, at all times, out of danger's way, and at the same time admonish parents to have a strict and watchful eye over their children.

OYSTERS. The man of the Picayune returns his sincere thanks for a barrel of oysters received from some one. Pooh! we get bushels of the like every day, and dont take any notice of them.

TOWN HALL LOTTERY. We have received a copy of an act in aid of the construction of a State Armory and Town Hall in the city of Baltimore, together with the plan, as suggested by R. C Long, Esq. From the statement of Mr. Long, we perceive that the contemplated Hall will cost about $185,000—additional for the purchase of ground, $40,000. It is sincerely hoped that the splendid object of the commissioners will be fully carried out—the lottery is highly popular, and it is stated that the corner stone of the building will be laid on the 4th of July next.

The Universal Yankee Nation,
The biggest paper in all creations.

We have a copy of this whopper before us. It is the weekly of the Boston "Mail," a spirited little daily. "Great oaks from little acorns grow," as the boy said when he delivered his maiden speech.

BEEF ON THE HOOF. We were not aware that Baltimoreans were such a set of gormandizers until yesterday. Large droves of cattle entered the city through almost every avenue. They did not say whether they were to be eaten or not.

BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL. An eloquent and appropriate sermon was delivered by the Rev. S. P. Hill, pastor of the First Baptist Church, before the Sunday School on the occasion of their anniversary.

STATE ARMORY
AND TOWN HALL LOTTERY.

☞ In reply to the note of D. S. GREGORY & Co. to the editor of the Patriot, and the accompanying letter published in that paper on the 15th inst. the Board of Commissioners submit the following statement of facts: The Commissioners sold twelve schemes to D. S. Gregory & Co. to be drawn in one year, (which expired in the month of May, 1840,) upon the same terms on which they contracted with the State Commissioners of Lotteries. At the expiration of the year, D. S. Gregory & Co. declined a renewal of the contract, and the Commissioners failed in all their efforts to effect any admissible contract with others. Under these circumstances it became a matter of grave consideration with the Board whether they should wholly abandon an enterprize of so much importance to the State and city, or assume upon themselves the responsibility and labor of preparing and drawing schemes of their own. After much deliberation, and with great reluctance, they adopted the latter alternative, and proceeded, at considerable cost, to make all the necessary arrangements. When their plans were matured, and the tickets in their first scheme ready for sale, they were met with a refusal on the part of the established Lottery venders to sell their tickets. The Board were informed, upon authority which they could not question, that the venders had come to this determination from a threat on the part of D. S. Gregory & Co. that they would not sell their tickets to such of the venders as sold the tickets of the State Armory and Town Hall Lottery. The Board still anxious to interfere as little as possible with the State Contractors, and, if practicable, to move in harmony with them, delayed taking such steps as the provisions of the Act of Assembly, and the circumstances of the case, warranted them in adopting. Whilst matters stood thus, on the 8th of this month, the Agents of D. S. Gregory & Co. called separately at the office of the Commissioners, and after expressing to a member of the Board, an anxious wish for harmonious action, suggested that a letter to D. S. Gregory & Co. would, they had no doubt, effect that object. Upon this suggestion, that member believing that they were sincere, and fully as anxious as they seemed to be of bringing about this harmony of action, immediately addressed a letter to D. S. Gregory & Co. of which the following is a copy:

GENTLEMEN—In an interview which Mr. Scribner sought with us to-day—he suggested, for the better understanding of our respective opinions concerning the sale of Town Hall Tickets, that a correspondence be opened with your house. Not entirely coinciding in his views, nevertheless desirous of meeting all amicable overtures in a proper spirit, we have concluded to put you the query as to how far you deem it advisable, under the existing state of things, to oppose the sale of our tickets. Various rumors are afloat as to threats, &c. said to have been issued by your house against the regular brokers, if they should deal with us. Of course we pay no attention to mere rumors; nevertheless, it will conduce to a friendly feeling if a more perfect understanding of our respective views was interchanged, &c. Dated 8th January, 1841.

On the day following, the 9th ult. these same agents sent a circular to all the venders in the city, of which the following is a copy:

[CIRCULAR COPY.]

Dear Sir—We think it proper to apprise you, that we should deem your acceptance of an agency to sell any other tickets, than those embraced in the contract of the State, to conflict with your engagements with the contractors of the State Lotteries. Respectfully yours,

(Signed) D. S. GREGORY & CO.

By S. SCRIBNER & Co.

Thus situated, it became imperative upon the board to appoint agents of their own, to make sale of their tickets, and they accordingly, on the 11th of January, gave notice that they would proceed to appoint agents. On the 16th of January, (Saturday,) the member of the Board, who had written to D. S. Gregory & Co. received their answer, and on the Tuesday following, before any reasonable time had been given for a reply, or for any interchange of views, that answer and the note to the editor of the Patriot were published. The Board disclaims any connexion or concern with any article which has appeared in the papers in relation to D. S. Gregory & Co save the notice above referred to, and one other which was published on the 14th. D. S. Gregory & Co deny hostility to the State Armory and Town Hall; the probability is that they are alike indifferent to its success or failure, except so far as it may come in conflict with their interests. That the Board, and D. S. Gregory & Co. are placed in the position of antagonists, is not the work of the Board, who used every means to avoid it, short of an entire surrender of the rights which they are invested by the Act of Assembly which appointed them, and of the feelings and wishes of a large number of their fellow-citizens, who are solicitous for the construction of the State Armory and Town Hall. The intimation of D. S. Gregory & Co. that the course adopted by this Board can or ought to relieve them from the performance of any of the obligations of their recent contract with the State, is destitute of any foundation in reason or justice. D. S. Gregory & Co. long before that contract was made, were familiar with the provisions of the Act of Assembly referred to, and with the extent of the powers claimed by this Board, under it. That the Board have, contrary to their wishes, resorted to the full exercise of those powers, is the result of the acts of D. S. Gregory & Co. themselves.

By order of the Commissioners of State Armory and Town Hall Lottery.

ja25-3t JAMES H. COX, General Agent.

VALLIER'S FRENCH PILL, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. MRS. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Baker, of the city of Baltimore, on the part of the city, and Joshua Hutchins, William Crook, and Tobias E. Stansbury, of Baltimore county, on the part of the county, be and they are hereby appointed and constituted the board of trustees for the alms-house of Baltimore city and county.

SEC. 8. And be it enacted, That at the first meeting of the board after the passage of this act, the trustees on the part of the city shall divide themselves into four classes, by ballot or otherwise, as a majority of them may determine, the first class shall go out of office at the expiration of one year from the passage of this act; the second class at the expiration of two years, the third class at the expiration of three years, and the fourth class at the expiration of four years, from the passage of this act; and at the same meeting, and in such manner as a majority of them shall determine, the trustees on the part of the county shall divide themselves into three classes, the first class shall go out of office at the expiration of one year from the passage of this act, the second class at the expiration of two years, the third class at the expiration of three years, from the passage of this act.

SEC. 9. And be it enacted, That the vacancies which shall occur under the provisions of the above section, shall be filled by appointment as now provided by law; and that all vacancies which shall occur by death, resignation, or removal out of the city or county, shall in like manner be filled by appointment as now provided by law.

CITY COUNCIL. First Branch, Jan. 25. Pursuant to adjournment the Council met. Present—Mr. Snyder, president, and all the members.

Whether there were any "set speeches" anticipated or not we are unable to say, but the number of lobby members was unusually large. Perhaps it was thought that Mr. Bradshaw had intended making his "maiden speech," all were disappointed—his eloquence was mute as the chords of an unstrung harp.

The first business brought up was a petition offered by Mr. Myers signed Wells R. Hall and others, praying for a refund of taxes erroneously paid by him on property which he had disposed of some two years since. It was referred to the City Collector. A motion was made to refer the petition back again to the committee on claims, which was carried. Messrs. Myers, Pinkney and Fields entered into a slight discussion. Mr. P. was of opinion that the Council had no jurisdiction over the matter—that the petitioner's redress must first be had by law, and that subsequently it might be brought up and be a prerogative of the Council. Mr. Myers was of the same opinion. Mr. Hack was of a contrary opinion.

Mr. Cole presented the petition of John R. Wright and others, relative to the markets, which was referred to the joint committee on markets.

Mr. J. S. Brown presented the report of the Washington Hose Company. Referred to the joint committe on fire companies.

Mr. Hammond called up the report of the joint committee on conference relative to changing the time of meeting of the Councils from the first to the second Monday in January. The report was favorable, but on vote was lost.

A message was received from the Mayor, inclosing a petition signed John Mitchell and others, praying to have a room attached to the police building for private purposes—referred to the committee on police.

The report of the committee on claims relative to the town clock was unfavorable. The minority of the same committee asked leave to report, and offered a resolution that the committee on claims be directed to enter into controversy with the deacons, elders, &c. of said church relative to the matter. This resolution, with an amendment, was passed.

Mr. Bender presented a petition from A. H. Reip and others relative to Broom street. Referred to committee on streets.

A resolution relative to joint committee on streets was called up and passed.

The report of the joint committee on commerce was returned from the Second Branch concurred in.

Mr. Donovan moved that a verbal message be sent to the Second Branch, informing its members that the First Branch was ready to go into secret convention for the purpose of electing certain officers. The following is the result.

ESCAPE OF DR. HINES. We learn, says the N. O. Picayune of the 15th, that the notorious Dr. Hines, who was sent to the penitentiary at Baton Rouge last summer for fourteen years, has escaped and is again at large.—By some means he got possession of false keys, made his way by the aid of them to the cigar shop in the upper part of the prison, cut a hole in the roof and then let himself down by means of cords. An Irishman escaped at the same time but was afterwards retaken.

It seems that the runaways kept company, with the prison chains still fast to them, for some six miles back of Baton Rouge. On reaching the highlands the clank of the chains was heard by some negroes belonging to a plantation, who immediately gave the alarm. A pack of dogs were put upon the trail and after a short run succeeded in capturing the Irishman, but Hines made his escape. Hundreds of the citizens of Baton Rouge, however, were in pursuit, and our informant states that they were sanguine of again capturing him. We could not learn how Hines came in possession of keys and cords, but it would appear that he must have had friends outside who assisted him.

FREAK OF A WATCHMAN. On Friday night, a substitute watchman, in the Middle District, named William Keene, was arrested by Captain Mullen and Lieut. Hann, and brought to the watch house, charged with taking from a boy $30, which the latter had picked up in the street, and, as it subsequently appeared, had been dropped by Mr. Samuel G. Wyman. On being arraigned before the officers, Keene admitted that he had taken the money from the boy, and offered to return ten dollars, that being all he had in possession, having spent the other $20. In the morning he was taken before Justice Wright, who committed the offender to prison for further examination.—Patriot.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. Paris blown in the bottles, and the label and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. THE INDIAN'S WRONGS.

"To the far off land of the setting sun"
The foul wronged red man flees;
Why leaves he his bright hunting ground,
With its high and noble trees?
Where his arm so oft has bent the bow,
Or chased the panther wild,
Why leave the forest's free glad scene,
That forest's native child?

'Tis the white man's hand has drove him hence
From the graves of his buried sires,
He has usurped the Indian's home
And climm'd his council fires;
No more, deep ringing thro' the glades,
Is heard the war whoop's sound,
The prairie gives no echoes back,
But silence dwells around.

The curling smoke ascends no more,
From the wigwam of the brave,
And on the lake no swift canoe
Bounds o'er the limpid wave.
The spoilers came from o'er the seas,
By thirst of gold lured on,
They won the red man's land by force,
And drove him farther on.

Still farther on—unto the world's
Last verge, they will be driven,
And yet this is the Indian's home,
By the "Great Spirit" given.
And still his children have a clime,
When ties of earth are riven,
Where the "pale face" can control no more,
'Tis the "HUNTING GROUND" of Heaven.

A CHAPTER ON PROPOSALS.

As will be understood by the title to this essay, I propose to offer at present a few remarks upon the subject of matrimonial proposals. So much has been said, thought, written, and done upon this subject, that the man who could actually offer anything like a genuine, and efficient chart to the lorn and frightened mariner upon the uncertain sea of love, must indeed be a genius, the rail road track of whose imagination diverges far from the ordinary highway of human thoughts.

Your humble correspondent proposes no such lofty flight. For him it shall be sufficient if he succeeds in selecting among the many awkward modes now in vogue, of asking a lady's heart, that which is least so, nothing doubting, but that by so doing he will confer a lasting favor upon the many individuals who are doomed to tread the dark and shadowy path toward that fairy land from whose bourne (take the word of a happy husband of thirty years experience for it) no traveller wishes to return.

But to enter more minutely into the subject, allow me to give, as in the outset I have proposed, a brief account of an early adventure:

"quæque ipse miserrima vidi
Et quorum, pars magna, fui."

It will not be deemed vanity at my age to say, that at twenty-five I was possessed of a full share of the ordinary personal charms of youth. Within a little of the Chesterfield standard of height, five feet ten, with locks black and glossy as the raven's wing, (alas! the driven snow is not whiter now) with fair complexion, cheeks glowing with the red tide of youth and health, and possessing what is considered sufficient good sense and education for all the practical purposes of life, it may be thought that my experience in matters of the heart ought to prove an exception to the rule that "the course of true love never did run smooth." But alas! not so! It was my fortune to become acquainted with a young lady possessed of so many charms, mental, moral, and personal, and so super-eminent in each, that it was indeed impossible for me to avoid falling, as I did, desperately in love with her.

As far as glances of the eyes, tremors of the voice, and occasional innendoes, might go, I doubt not that I succeeded full well in imparting to her a knowledge of the state of my heart; and I will not presume upon your patience so much as to detail the ecstacy of joy with which I first discovered, through similar media, a reciprocity of feeling on the part of the young lady. Let it suffice to say that this was the case, and that the time came when it was incumbent on me to make a distinct avowal of my love. This after long and perplexing mental debate, I resolved to do by letter; and after writing some forty epistles on as many sheets of gilded satin-paper, I finally succeeded in forming a letter, amounting to about six lines, containing, as I thought, the condensed quintessence of every thing that could or ought to be said on the subject. Of this precious morceau, I retain now but slight recollection. That it abounded with terms expressive of pure, warm, ardent, glowing, undying, everlasting and unprecedented affection, I have not the least doubt. But unfortunately, this little specimen of epistolary excellence was scarcely finished, when chancing to peruse some of the experience of a predecessor in the path of love, I read that nothing was more unwise or dangerous, than making an offer of one's hand and heart by means of pen and paper.

With the credulity of a simple mind, I at once gave implicit credence to this doctrine, and frightened at the fearful precipice which I had so narrowly avoided, I immediately destroyed my letter, and resolved to declare myself in person, with my own lips and voice, and to hear with my own ears the reply which was to seal my destiny.

Never did an Alexander, a Wallace, or a Napoleon, feel the inspiring effect of a heroic resolution more powerful than I felt the influence of this. I had resolved. I would execute! I walked the streets with a proud consciousness of the height of my pride, fairly fearing lest, in the words of the poet, I should "strike the stars with my lofty head." But sensible of the imperfections of human powers, and conscious that mine, in particular, were liable to fail on so delicate an emergency, I resolved at least to write and commit to memory my declaratory speech. This undignified and foolish thing I did. Instead of trusting to the warm outpourings of an ingenious heart, which in some way at least, would have managed to make itself understood and felt, I committed to memory a cold formula of words, to be delivered as the schoolboy recites his speech, of which it is sufficient for the purpose of this little article to recollect the following sentence: "Miss Adams! you will allow me to offer you my hand and heart!"

The fearful hour arrived. The evening for my wonted visit approached, and I found myself seated by the side of my adored in the summer evening twilight. The last rays of the setting sun had gradually disappeared from the rosy clouds that lingered about the west. The full moon rode high in the heavens, and one by one the glorious stars became visible.

The open window by which we sat looked out upon the garden stored with a profusion of rich and rare flowers, from which there exhaled and rose around us a delicious fragrance, forming a fit atmosphere for such a scene. The time, the silence, the scenery, every thing was appropriate; and she, the beautiful, and almost unearthly, seemed by intuition to understand my thoughts and intention, as with head bent down, she gazed earnestly (and with a slight blush upon her fair cheeks around which her auburn curls were playing,) upon a moss-rose which she was earnestly engaged in pulling to pieces. I was employed in the equally serious occupation of opening and shutting a small fancy snuff-box which I held in my hand.

Alas! where now was the Alexandrian or Neapolitan courage that had inspired me? I felt my valor oozing out of the palms of my hands! But at length summoning resolution, like a man upon the scaffold, who wishes to die with at least seeming fortitude—or to use the more forcible illustration, gathering together and concentrating, as it were, all the energies of my mind, after the manner of one about to submit to that most inhuman of all earthly tortures, the extraction of a tooth; I say, with such energy as this, I raised my eyes to those of Isabella, and in the language of my prepared speech said, "Miss Adams!"

The unnecessary and startling emphasis with which this rather formal commencement was delivered, seriously frightened both parties. The rose dropped from her fingers, the box from mine, and I was only able to follow up this impressive exordium with some common-place remark about the beauty of the evening, after which we relapsed into our former silence.

Gathering, however, energy from defeat, I made, after a slight pause, a second attempt.

"Miss Adams," said I, in a slow, solemn, sepulchral voice, "*will you, will you—will you—*allow me to offer you—to offer you—a pinch of snuff."

"With pleasure, sir," replied a soft, sweet voice, which, in contrast with my own, sounded like a strain of soft music following up the rumbling of an earthquake. I felt my eyes starting from my head. I felt the veins on my neck were swollen like the streams of spring. I heard the loud beating of my heart, and in an agony of both bodily and mental pain, to which the rack, the wheel and the gibbet were paradise, I rushed from the room, and hurried to my home, entered my own chamber, locked doubly, trebly locked my door, lest any one should observe my shame, and vented my spleen in idle imprecation upon my own stupidity.

An hour's walk across my chamber served, however, to calm my spirits; and with a composure that seemed naturally supernatural, compared with my recent violent agitation, I sat down and wrote:

"DEAR ISABELLA—Take pity on an unhappy youth, who is too deeply in love with you to utter three consecutive words in your presence! I am miserable till I hear from you."

This note was immediately despatched, and in half an hour I was the happiest man in the universe. My Isabella proved a pattern of excellence. I was never offended with her but once, and then she dispelled my wrath, by asking me, in a mock-serious tone of voice: "Will you—will you—will you—allow me to offer you—a pinch of snuff?"

MAD. CELESTE. We find the following in the Patriot of yesterday. We have been credibly informed of its correctness, and therefore give it that persons may learn the falsity of a counter statement which was made some time since.

"It was stated in the New York 'Courier des Etats Unis,' about ten days since that Mad. Celeste was 'returning to this country in a steamer, now on her way from Liverpool to Boston.' The steamer Columbia has since arrived at Boston, from Liverpool, and there was but one lady on board, the wife of a gentleman passenger.

"The statement of the New York paper was erroneous. A letter, dated in London, in December last, has been received in this city, which makes it utterly impossible that she could have returned in the Columbia, and improbable that she will return hereafter."

THE SENECA TREATY. There is a good deal of excitement at Buffalo in relation to the treaty between the Ogden Land Company and the Seneca Indians. The Commercial Advertiser says:

"Two or more public meetings have been held by the people. The first was called by the friends of those who oppose the treaty, at which it was denounced in strong terms as an iniquitous affair. The second meeting was called by those favorable to the execution of the treaty. But when the people had assembled they insisted upon a free discussion of both sides of the question. The consequence was a tumult for a time, resulting in permission for the opponents of the treaty to speak."

LOSS OF BRITISH SHIP RUBY. Capt. Paul, of the above ship, arrived here yesterday in the brig Sydney, Capt. Chamberlaine, from Turks Island, who informs us that his ship was cast away on the Blue Cayces, on the 18th Dec. last. She was from Liverpool with a cargo of salt bound to New Orleans. Ship and cargo lost. Crew and part of the materials saved.—Norfolk Beacon of the 25th.

THE PRESIDENT steam ship will leave Liverpool on the 10th of February for New York.

From the London & Paris Ladies' Magazine of Fashion.

FASHIONS FOR JANUARY.

Materials shaded in rose dekhue and porcelaine, blue with orange, or white, are the most fashionable colors; very elegant dresses are made in the latter style, the pattern in orange on white satin or reps, having the effect of gold; they are trimmed with blond, and scarfs to match. Many dresses are made of the tunic form, which is sometimes of velvet on dress of satin. Crape raye gauffre, called jardiniere is among the novelties of the moment, and derives its name from the multitude of small flowers of every color, which form quite a parterre, shaded with a thousand tints. Black lace dresses are fashionable, lined with pink, yellow, or lilac, with velvet flowers to ornament them. Pretty negligé dresses are made en peignoir, of sarcenet, quilted all round about five or six inches deep; they are of dark colors, lined with pink, blue, or the same as the outside, and are worn with under levantine or taffetas of red, blue, or green, with a deep flounce, or quilted to match the peignoir. Robes de chambre and travelling cloaks are made of worsted materials, with a band of silk to line the edge.

Manteaux for the evening are with hoods, imitating the shawl collar; many cloaks have the hood resembling the domino hood, trimmed with lace or fur; short cloaks have round full hoods; a Polonaises have the pointed hood, with gimp trimmings. Many of the short cloaks of velvet are just now trimmed with fur, with muffs to match, orielle d'ours, ramoneur, grenat are the favorite colors, lined with satin of the same shade, and quilted all over in patterns.

Bonnets are a degree larger, but they continue of the close capote form with low crown; maraboats matching in color with the material are fashionable; velvet bonnets have also been made full.

Many pretty coiffures are formed of gold and velvet ribbon, with resilles of gold; the newest coiffure is composed of a fichu of point lace, bouillonne at the back of the head, each bouillon is confined by a leaf of green velvet. Fanchonnettes of black or white lace are worn, placed over the chou of hair, the points falling near the cheek, mix with the curls and flowers.

Canezous for dress are made of tulle, with application of Brussels trimmings. The newest sleeve is that termed mayenne, very tight on the lower part of the arm, and widening moderately to the shoulders. Scarfs of pink or blue satin are trimmed with pluche, imitating chinchilla, and are very pretty for evening wear.

Mr. E. A. The bill reported by Mr. Holmes, to divorce Susanna Frank from her husband a mensa et thoro, was passed.

SENATE. The bill reported by Mr. Gantt, authorising Banks to pay out Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Notes, was taken up and after debate passed.

NAVAL. The Norfolk Beacon of Tuesday states that a survey will be held on that day on the U. S. Ship Delaware, Capt. Skinner, now lying off the Naval Hospital, under the superintendence of the Naval Constructor, Francis Grice, Esq., and that she will be fitted out for sea immediately. It is also rumoured that the officers at present attached to the Delaware will go out in her.

C. to CHARLESTON, S. " Wilmington	1 P.M. next day.	"	Charleston	at 5 the

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection throughout, whilst it is evident that FOUL WEATHER and STORMS must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞-The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞-This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, Jan. 27, 1841.

IMPORTATIONS. The Liverpool papers state, that the amount of British manufactures which are in course of transit to the United States, is larger than at any period since 1838. We are not, therefore, surprised that they should assert that "the year opens well for trade;" or express the hope "that the export of goods will not only continue, but increase." Were the trade between this country and Great Britain based upon principles of reciprocity, the immense importations of British manufactures into the United States might be matter of gratulation on both sides—but as England takes not a particle of our productions with which she can dispense, in exchange for her manufactures, and the surplus forms a standing balance against this country, it becomes a subject of anxious inquiry how this accumulating debt is ever to be paid. Our chief articles of export are, tobacco, rice and cotton—the latter being essential to the manufacturers of England, is the most material article of our commerce with that country; but how long cotton will maintain a price in the English markets is uncertain, as the experiment now making to raise it in quantity in the East Indies may succeed.—No nation upon earth understands better than England the policy of protecting domestic industry, and none acts more fully up to that policy. We are the best customers she has, and yet she does not relax her restrictive measures in the slightest degree in our favor. The land-holders being the great tax-payers upon which her government must rely, they are protected from American competition unless by the failure of the harvest, her people are reduced almost to a state of starvation. This would seem to be impolitic, and is certainly unjust towards the residue of her population; but the landed interest is too powerful to permit a liberal change in the corn law.—To sell as much, and buy as little, as possible, is the principle by which she is governed—whilst our practice is, to buy largely if we sell nothing. The consequence is, that we are always tributary to others, and always have an unpaid mortgage upon our property.

But it is not with England alone that this inequality of trade exists. Almost every nation has laws to protect domestic industry from foreign competition; whilst we, like spendthrifts, indulge in all kinds of luxuries and superfluities, without regard to our ability to pay for them, and let the foreign artizan triumph over our own fellow citizens. The trade of a country carried on to such disadvantage, is no evidence of prosperity. Individuals may flourish and amass fortunes—foreign agents may prosper and retire with our coin—but the mass of the American people is injured by these excessive importations. Necessity occasionally compels us to restrict this trade, and the benefit is immediately felt in producing a balance in our favor. Would it not then, be wise to limit importations by additional duties, particularly upon articles of luxury, and thus afford the opportunity to diminish our indebtedness, at the same time that we replenish our public exchequer? We hope that congress will reply affirmatively to the question.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. If we did not know to the contrary, we should be constrained to believe, from the discussions in the House of Representatives, that there were no rules regulating the course of proceedings. On all occasions, no matter what the subject under consideration, members are permitted to indulge in party slang and vile detraction. There is an utter disregard of order, propriety and decency. The pot-house politicians of the house no sooner get the floor, than they forget their stations, their characters and responsibilities; transport themselves in imagination to their former haunts, and "deal damnation round the land," with a coarseness and vulgarity that would disgrace the most illiterate mountebank. Why are they indulged in thus trespassing upon the time of the House and spending the money of the people? If there be rules to confine members to the discussion of the question at issue, why are they not enforced?—In many cases it would be impossible from the debate, to ascertain the subject under consideration. When such latitude is given the grossest abuses will exist, and foolish ranters and contemptible babblers will continue to occupy the time of the house, to the serious injury of the public interests. Such men should be silenced, or compelled to speak to the matter before the House. It is the same dish cooked over and over again until every one has become nauseated with it. Their speeches contain the same low slang that we have heard and read for years past, without the addition of a single new idea. We wish that members could be induced to hold themselves in respect, and then they would have more regard for public opinion.

RAIL ROAD NOTES. The bill authorizing the banks of this state to receive and pay out these notes has passed both houses and is now a law. This will make the rail road notes equivalent, for all business purposes, to those of the banks, if not to specie. They will certainly furnish a perfectly safe paper currency; and it being the interest of the citizens of Baltimore to keep them in circulation, we have no reason to believe that they will depreciate in value. They may also relieve the banks somewhat in the resumption of specie payments, as many persons will prefer them to specie, as being more convenient.

GOT AN OFFICE. Alexander C. Bullitt, editor of the New Orleans Bee, has been chosen State Printer of Louisiana, by a majority of three votes.

VIRGINIA AND NEW YORK. These states are engaged in a delicate controversy, which may assume a serious aspect. The governor of Virginia having demanded of the executive of New York the delivery of a fugitive from justice, in accordance with the provisions of the constitution of the United States, the latter has declined on the alleged ground that the offence (negro stealing,) is not recognized by the laws of New York. This appears to us to be novel ground, which, if maintained, must bring the slaveholding and non-slaveholding states into perpetual collision. The constitution of the United States admits no such plea for withholding a fugitive from justice, nor does it recognize any distinction of crime. The fugitive who has been guilty of "treason, felony or other crime," shall be delivered up on demand of the state where the offence was committed. It is sufficient to authorize this demand, that the act is criminal in the state where perpetrated, and no reference can be had to the laws of the state where the delinquent has sought refuge. We think that the meaning of the constitution is clear and explicit, and does not admit of mystification.

Should the governor of New York persist in the refusal, what will be the result? Virginia cannot relinquish her plain, constitutional rights, without violating her duty to herself and to the southern states; and yet we see no mode of redress compatible with that harmony which should exist between the states. The governor of Virginia has addressed the executive officers of the southern states on the subject; and it is possible that, should the governor of New York adhere to his decision, and continue to protect the fugitive, there may be a combined movement in the matter by the south. We sincerely regret that this difficulty has arisen, but we hope that the controversy will be maintained in a spirit of amity and good feeling on both sides, although we are clearly of opinion that the governor of New York is in the wrong.

LARGE INCOMES. It is stated that the income, from fees, of the United States' district attorney for New York, during the last year, was $28,000—that of the clerk of the court $19,460—and of the marshal of Mississippi $87,150. It is proposed in congress to make these and similar appointments salary offices at $5000 per annum. We vote in the affirmative; and let the balance of the receipts go into the public treasury. Five thousand dollars are a sufficient compensation for the duty that any person can perform for the public, where the officer can live as a private individual. More than this sum is extravagance and waste, whether the officer be appointed by the state or general government. We hope that the party having the power in both state and union will look into this matter, and rectify errors where they may be found. The people will be sorely pinched to meet the demands against them, and therefore a rigid system of retrenchment and reform should be adopted.

In Maryland every useless office should be discontinued; and the beginning might be well made with that of lottery commissioners. Sinecures are not to be tolerated, and that designation is not more applicable to some offices under the British government, than to the lottery commissioners of Maryland, who receive large pay for doing—nothing!

MANAGEMENT OF BANKS. We published, on Monday last, a communication on the above subject, signed L., denying that all the banks had regulations prohibiting directors from inspecting accounts. From our personal knowledge of the high respectability of our correspondent, we placed implicit faith in his statement, nor would we now be understood as intimating the least doubt of his accuracy—but we cannot decline publishing the following from another correspondent, who desires further information from L.

Will L. do me the favor to state what bank "has not passed any by-laws preventing the examination of private accounts?"

He might also enlighten the understanding of many citizens by giving you for publication the by-laws of the bank in which it is evident he is a director. A.

GRAHAM'S LADY'S & GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE. The magazines are beginning to come out a month in advance. Before us is the February number of the Lady's and Gentleman's Magazine, for which we are indebted to our friend Hickman. The number is embellished with a beautiful mezzotinto engraving on steel, representing Bulwer's Nydia, the blind flower girl of Pompeii—and a plate of the fashions. There are a number of choice morceaux amongst the original papers contributed; some of them we shall take the liberty to present to our readers, as they are not copy-right.

LIABILITY IN TENANTS. It has heretofore been generally understood that a tenant occupying premises that were destroyed by fire remained liable for the rent until the expiration of his term; but in the Marine Court of New York, a few days since, Judge Randall charged the jury that by recent decisions this doctrine had been overruled, and that the ouster of the tenant by fire exonerated him from the payment of rent from the date thereof. If this is the law, the people ought to know it.

DUEL. The St. Augustine Herald states that a man named Pelot, of Jacksonville, Fa. died recently in that place of a wound received by him in a duel fought with one Babcock, from the city of New York, a few days previously. They met at the Cumberland Island—dueling pistols—half ounce balls—distance 35 yards. All the business, it is stated, was from the commencement conducted according to 'established usage.'

KILLED. An aged lady named Mary Castello was killed in New York, on Saturday last, by being run over by a car on the Harlaem rail-road. So much for allowing rails to be laid in the crowded streets of a city.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

BROUGHT UP ALL STANDING. All who love good oysters and the accompanying et ceteras, know that Robinson, of Light street, is a peaceable, quiet and well-disposed man, and keeps a house that a London Alderman would not be ashamed to dine in. With all his sober bearing and great attention to the wants of those who call, he is at times troubled with some very unprofitable customers—sponges, who get their living by imposing upon the good nature of others.

One night last week, a young gentleman, dressed with studied neatness, and wearing a costly cloth cloak, honored the establishment with his presence, and stepping up to the oyster-box, told the subordinate to furnish him with the best beef steak in the house, together with the necessary trimmings, ordering it in the box nearest the door. Sambo did as he was bid—and in good time the rich dish was served up, but not in the box the customer wished, but one nearer to the bar, where Thomas wielded his muddler with despotic sway over the bottle imps. When the customer had got well seated, Sambo rubbed his hands and grinned a grin of approbation—then approaching Thomas, whispered to him:—

"Dat's him, marster—dat's de werry 'dentical gepleman wot comes here every night, gets him grub and 'waporates widout paying for valer received. It's bin tree weeks since he's gin us his custom—and I been gwoin to tell you some time pas!"

Thomas needed no better hint; he kept an eye on the box where the gentleman was regaling himself. The room was pretty full at the time, and, lest his customer should give him the slip, he took his post near the door—when forth came the non-paying man of taste. He picked his teeth, and then picked up an umbrella. Seeing the hawk-eye of the bar-keeper on him, he stood awhile by the stove, then went to the looking glass and brushed up his hair. Finding importance of no avail, he made a bold push towards the door, and was about vanishing, umbrella and all, when Thomas nabbed him by the back of the neck, and exclaiming "no you don't!" pulled him in again, and asked the gentlemen present if any of them knew him. No one appearing desirous of claiming an acquaintance with the incog, he then exposed his trickery, and was about dealing harshly with him, when Mr. Robinson interfered and in his usual good-natured manner, told him "he was a bad man," thrust him gently out of his house, telling him that he needed no more of his custom.

We give the above facts publicity merely to caution sponges not to carry their game too far; and, in so doing we think we are putting them under obligations to us—the herd being numerous and "in the full tide of successful operation."

APOLOGIES. There is nothing more annoying to a theatrical audience than to be detained between the play and farce to listen to the labored oratory of an actor who wishes to apologize for an omission or change which the said audience knew all about before he attempted to throw himself and the "management" upon their "kind indulgence." Decamp used to glory in an opportunity to make a speech, although it was frequently replied to in hisses, and Abbott was sure to interlard the bare announcement of "to-morrow night's performance" with divers flowers of eloquence which caused no little amusement to the audience. We, for one, have always considered these apologetical speeches as "clap-traps" got up more for the purpose of testing the influence the orator has over the audience, than to explain away any misfortune that may have happened to the management in the non-appearance of a favorite or prominent performer.

Not long since, at one of the theatres in this city, an actor came forward, and after bowing and scraping for some time, and placing his hand upon his heart, he commenced an eloquent speech about regrets—unlooked for and unavoidable circumstances—kind indulgencies—past favors, &c. &c., and wound up with stating that on account of the severe indisposition of Mr. ——, the evening's performance would have to be changed. He had scarcely concluded his oration, when a voice from the boxes exclaimed "It's a cursed lie; I'm ready to play whenever you're ready to pay me what you owe me."

ATTEMPT TO BREAK JAIL. On Monday evening last about 8 o'clock an attempt was made by the criminal prisoners of our jail to make their escape. Their first attempt was to open door No. 1, by prying it from the hinges. The prisoners of the second room made their way into the first by forcing a passage though the fire place. Previously, however, they had succeeded in picking the lock of a door which led into a vacant room, No. 4, where a passage through the jail wall leading into the yard had been almost effected. The officers of the jail being upon the alert, the attempt was soon discovered, and as quickly frustrated. All the prisoners, (22 in number,) with the exception of three or four, among whom were James Wilson and John Brown, had engaged in the conspiracy. The two "ringleaders" were John P. Parks and a fellow named Cordery. They resisted lustily at the approach of the keepers. Cordery had a shoemaker's awl, which he used as weapon of defence, and with which he slightly wounded Mr. Herring, the Warden. Cordery and Parks were immediately put in irons and secured in the cells.

George Boon Esq. of the Indiana legislature, and Mr. Barace, Sergeant at Arms of the House of Representatives of Indiana, died recently.

THE LECTURE. The Rev. Mr. Bethune's lecture before the Mercantile Library Association was most numerously attended on Monday night last. The church was so crowded that many were unable to obtain seats. This delightful entertainment, as we predicted, has become all the fashion. The attention which the various lecturers now receive fully demonstrates that the citizens of Baltimore are going forward in the march of intellectual improvement with rapid strides. The lecture was one of great beauty, and richly interspersed with moral sentiments calculated to produce the most beneficial results. The whole auditory seemed pleased, not only with the flowing style and eloquence of the lecturer, but with the sentiments of his discourse.

FINE WEATHER. We had another beautiful day yesterday; the brightness of the sun was only eclipsed by the eloquent beaming of ladies' eyes. There was a handsome display of the winter fashions.

OUTRAGE. The Patriot of last evening relates an account of the waylaying of a Mr. Savage by two desperadoes near St. Patrick's church, on Fell's Point. Mr. S. was knocked down with brick bats and severely injured. The object of the rogues was no doubt plunder; but they found Mr. S. rather too good stuff for them.

POLICE. James Kane, charged with assaulting and beating his wife, in default of security, was committed to jail by Justice Gorsuch.

Robert Linds and James Christian, colored, charged with pitching cents on the Sabbath, were both released on giving security for fine and costs.

Sarah Saunders, Jesse Edmunds, and James Martin, were committed to the alms-house as vagrants.

NIGHT WATCH. The Eastern District was as quiet as usual during watch-hours. In the Middle District, Patrick Sha, of Fort McHenry, was found drilling on the oblique step, and imprisoned for intoxication. James Martin and Andrew Stevenson were admitted as lodgers, and left for the Police to be sent to the alms-house. In the Western District, Edward Toogood was again found getting drunk and wallowing in the streets.—Isaiah Lawton, colored, was found trespassing in Wm. Gist's brick-yard. Mary Williams was brought in for lodgings by a bailiff.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26, 1841.

In the House of Representatives a bill was introduced by Mr. Tillinghast, which will, if passed, affect the pockets of the ladies. It proposes to repeal so much of the import act of 1832 as exempts pins of foreign manufacture from the payment of duties; and the laying of a duty of twenty-five per cent. on such articles after the first of April next. It was read twice and referred.

After the reference of some private bills, on motion of Mr. Jones, the House went into committee of the whole, and resumed the consideration of the treasury note bill.

Mr. Duncan having the floor, continued his remarks from yesterday in reply to the various objections urged against the bill by previous speakers.

The Doctor will publish his speech in full very shortly, and intends, I understand, to illustrate and confirm his arguments by a goodly portion of American manufactured poetry, being a mixture of rhyme and blank verse. Such things take well with the people of the west, who love to laugh well before meals.

Before concluding, Mr. Duncan referred to the report of the National Intelligencer on yesterday, wherein Mr. Cost Johnson is represented as having said that Mr. D. had no right to call general Harrison a coward, when he, Mr. D., had himself been branded on the floor of the House as a coward.

Mr. D. said he did not hear any such remark from the member.

After some discussion of a conversational character, Mr. Johnson said he did use the words, whether the member from Ohio heard them or not.

Mr. Duncan replied in some remarks of an angry character, and there the matter rests.

The Senate is still engaged on the pre-emption bill.

THE BOUNDARY QUESTION. Gov. Davis, of Massachusetts, sent a message to the legislature on Friday, accompanying a resolution of the legislature of Maine, in which he expresses his fears that there is no disposition on the part of Great Britain to settle this long disputed question, in regard to which the terms of the treaty of '83 are plain and intelligible.

STATE ARMORY
AND TOWN HALL LOTTERY.

☞ In reply to the note of D. S. GREGORY & Co. to the editor of the Patriot, and the accompanying letter published in that paper on the 13th inst. the Board of Commissioners submit the following statement of facts: The Commissioners sold twelve schemes to D. S. Gregory & Co. to be drawn in one year, (which expired in the month of May, 1840,) upon the same terms on which they contracted with the State Commissioners of Lotteries. At the expiration of the year, D. S. Gregory & Co. declined a renewal of the contract, and the Commissioners failed in all their efforts to effect any admissible contract with others. Under these circumstances it became a matter of grave consideration with the Board whether they should wholly abandon an enterprize of so much importance to the State and city, or assume upon themselves the responsibility and labor of preparing and drawing schemes of their own. After much deliberation, and with great reluctance, they adopted the latter alternative, and proceeded, at considerable cost, to make all the necessary arrangements. When their plans were matured, and the tickets in their first scheme ready for sale, they were met with a refusal on the part of the established Lottery venders to sell their tickets. The Board were informed, upon authority which they could not question, that the venders had come to this determination from a threat on the part of D. S. Gregory & Co. that they would not sell their tickets to such of the venders as sold the tickets of the State Armory and Town Hall Lottery. The Board still anxious to interfere as little as possible with the State Contractors, and, if practicable, to move in harmony with them, delayed taking such steps as the provisions of the Act of Assembly, and the circumstances of the case, warranted them in adopting. Whilst matters stood thus, on the 8th of this month, the Agents of D. S. Gregory & Co. called separately at the office of the Commissioners, and after expressing to a member of the Board, an anxious wish for harmonious action, suggested that a letter to D. S. Gregory & Co. would, they had no doubt, effect that object. Upon this suggestion, that member believing that they were sincere, and fully as anxious as they seemed to be of bringing about this harmony of action, immediately addressed a letter to D. S. Gregory & Co. of which the following is a copy:

GENTLEMEN—In an interview which Mr. Scribner sought with us to-day—he suggested, for the better understanding of our respective opinions concerning the sale of Town Hall Tickets, that a correspondence be opened with your house. Not entirely coinciding in his views, nevertheless desirous of meeting all amicable overtures in a proper spirit, we have concluded to put you the query as to how far you deem it advisable, under the existing state of things, to oppose the sale of our tickets. Various rumors are afloat as to threats, &c. said to have been issued by your house against the regular brokers, if they should deal with us. Of course we pay no attention to mere rumors; nevertheless, it will conduce to a friendly feeling if a more perfect understanding of our respective views was interchanged, &c. Dated 8th January, 1840.

On the day following, the 9th ult. these same agents sent a circular to all the venders in the city, of which the following is a copy:

[CIRCULAR COPY.]

Dear Sir—We think it proper to apprise you, that we should deem your acceptance of an agency to sell any other tickets, than those embraced in the contract of the State, to conflict with your engagements with the contractors of the State Lotteries. Respectfully yours,

(Signed) D. S. GREGORY & CO.

By S. SCRIBNER & Co.

Thus situated, it became imperative upon the board to appoint agents of their own, to make sale of their tickets, and they accordingly, on the 11th of January, gave notice that they would proceed to appoint agents. On the 16th of January, (Saturday,) the member of the Board, who had written to D. S. Gregory & Co. received their answer, and on the Tuesday following, before any reasonable time had been given for a reply, or for any interchange of views, that answer and the note to the editor of the Patriot were published. The Board disclaims any connexion or concern with any article which has appeared in the papers in relation to D. S. Gregory & Co. save the notice above referred to, and one other which was published on the 14th. D. S. Gregory & Co deny hostility to the State Armory and Town Hall; the probability is that they are alike in different to its success or failure, except so far as it may come in conflict with their interests. That the Board, and D. S. Gregory & Co. are placed in the position of antagonists, is not the work of the Board, who used every means to avoid it, short of an entire surrender of the rights with which they are invested by the Act of Assembly which appointed them, and of the feelings and wishes of a large number of their fellow-citizens, who are solicitous for the construction of the State Armory and Town Hall. The intimation of D. S. Gregory & Co. that the course adopted by this Board can or ought to relieve them from the performance of any of the obligations of their recent contract with the State, is destitute of any foundation in reason or justice. D. S. Gregory & Co. long before that contract was made, were familiar with the provisions of the Act of Assembly referred to, and with the extent of the powers claimed by this Board, under it. That the Board have, contrary to their wishes, resorted to the full exercise of those powers, is the result of the acts of D. S. Gregory & Co. themselves.

By order of the Commissioners of State Armory and Town Hall Lottery.

ja25-3t JAMES H. COX, General Agent.

THE undersigned respectfully announces to the public, that he intends to open in the city of Baltimore, on MONDAY, the 9th of November next, a SELECT, SCIENTIFIC AND CLASSICAL SEMINARY, FOR THE EDUCATION OF YOUNG LADIES.

Having had charge for several years of Northumberland Academy, one of the most flourishing Institutions in the state of Virginia, and having spent much time in making himself familiar with the systems of teaching accepted in the best Schools, he will bring into his Seminary those methods of instruction which have been demonstrated to be most efficient in facilitating the acquisition of a sound, useful, polite and ornamental education.

His APPARATUS for illustrating the principles of Natural Philosophy, Chemistry and Astronomy, is entirely new, and includes the most recent improvements: his TEXT BOOKS have been selected with the greatest care both as to style and matter; and his LIBRARY is enriched with the best works on the various branches of Science and Polite Literature.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 50 cents per bottle.

CITY COUNCIL. First Branch, January 26th. The Branch met according to adjournment. Present—Mr. Snyder, president, and all the members except Messrs. Peregoy and Hack.

The lobby did not present so formidable an array of "office seekers" as the day before. These are truly the days of expectancy—almost every man who has looked at a "log cabin," or shouldered the "hickory pole," thinks he has a claim to a portion of the emoluments in the gift of either devotee, from the Mayor up to the President. If we were desirous of nominating any man to special favor, we would point out that unassuming personage so faithful to his "hundred eyed monster." We are inclined to think he verifies the saying that "still water runs deep." One thing is certain—his good natured colleague will shield him from difficulty.

After the previous day's proceedings were read a message was received from the Second Branch, which was a report of the joint committee on streets; also, a majority report of the joint committee on claims relative to the German Reformed Church in Second street—both were concurred in.

Mr. Keyser offered a resolution, asking that the city commissioners be authorised to examine the steeple of the German Reformed Church, for the purpose of estimating and reporting the probable amount requisite to repair it.

The joint committee on harbors reported unfavorably relative to the appropriation asked for the repairing of Jones' Falls near Gay street bridge. The committee was therefore discharged.

Mr. De Loughery offered the report of the joint committee on health relative to the soap and candle factory of Michael Gallagher, which was favorable. Mr. Gallagher is therefore permitted to go on with his business as usual. It was the opinion of the Council that those citizens in the immediate neighborhood who felt aggrieved could have redress at law. The same was concurred in by the Second Branch.

A communication was received relating to the necessity of having a concave water course made across Aisquith street into Low. Referred to the committee on streets.

The joint committee on commerce reported relative to the petition of Robert Garrett and others, asking the appointment of additional inspectors of butter and lard. Laid on the table.

A message from the Second Branch, sanctioning the repeal of an ordinance relative to the shipping of flaxseed, was received, proposing that it may be shipped in any manner most convenient. There being nothing further before the Council, Mr. J. S. Brown moved an adjournment, which was complied with. The Council adjourned until to-morrow at half past 3 o'clock.

LATE FROM FLORIDA. By an arrival at Charleston from Florida, news from St. Augustine to the 8th inst. has been received, which brings the important information that Col. Harney, in his late expedition had succeeded in discovering the several Islands which have afforded a secure retreat to the savages; and the St. Augustine News says: "The charm of the Indian's security is broken up, and his strong holds upon which he relied for safety are open to enterprise and courage."

Chakika was killed by the indomitable perseverance and courage of private Hall, of the 2nd Dragoons. More distant than any of the Indians when they landed, he was engaged in cutting wood, and on finding himself discovered, he broke and ran for the grass. Several started in pursuit, but they all gave out except Hall, who followed until he had almost overtaken him, when Chakika smiled, and extended his hand, wet with the blood of his comrades, women and children. Hall levelled his rifle, and the ball sinking in the brain of the chief, he fell dead in the water, but a short distance from the island which was the depot of his plunder.

This chief was of great daring, headed the massacre of troops at Caloosahatchee, and led the attack on Indian Key. His loss to his people will be attended with results fatal to their confidence, and holds out to the Territory a subject for the warmest congratulations.

There is a family in Montreal, the father of which is a Frenchman, the mother a Russian, the eldest child a Maltese, the second a Sicilian, the third a Spaniard, and the fourth a Canadian.

We can beat this all hollow. There is a family in this city—the father a Scotchman, the mother a Yankee. They have six children living, the eldest of whom is eight years old, and all born in different states, as follows: the first in New York, second in Baltimore, third in Michigan, fourth in Ohio, fifth in Kentucky, sixth in Pennsylvania; and each born upon remarkable days. First—September 22, 1832, the day Sir Walter Scott died, and the anniversary of the marriage of the prolific pair. Second—November 25, 1833, the anniversary of the evacuation of New York by the British troops. Third—April 23, 1835, being St. George day, and the anniversary of the birth and death of Shakspeare. Fourth—January 8, 1837, anniversary of the battle of New Orleans. Fifth—March 17, 1839, St. Patrick's day. Sixth—July 4, 1840, anniversary of our national independence. On the wife's side the father is an Italian, the mother an Englishwoman.

MUTINY. On Friday last, says the Norfolk Beacon of Tuesday, the Revenue Cutter Van Buren, Capt. Prince, from a cruize, fell in with inside of Cape Henry, the British schr. Margarettesville, Capt. Johnson, 65 days from Jamaica bound to Baltimore, with a cargo of logwood, was short of provisions and water and her crew in a state of mutiny. Capt. Prince transferred the mutineers to the Cutter and sent a force to the Margarettesville, to work her up to this port where she arrived on Saturday morning last, and was placed in the hands of William Gray, Esq. British Consul.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. LIFE'S CHANGES.

Our's is a world of sorrow,
Life's earnest, fairest hopes,
Are blasted, ere to morrow
Upon our vision opes.
To day, with cloudless lustre,
Our sky serene may glow,
To-morrow, clouds may cluster,
And raging tempests blow.

To-day, the smile of gladness
May mantle youthe gay bloom,
To morrow, all its sadness,
May wither in the tomb.
Thus vanish earth's illusions,
Ere scarcely they are seen;
And death, with rude obtrusions,
Blights many a hope serene.

But there's a world of glory,
Whose beauties never fade;
There, disappointment's story
Shall never bliss invade;
But hope, in sweet fruition,
Shall tune each golden lyre;
Felicity Elysian,
Each bosom shall inspire. G. W. M.

AN INDIAN COUNCIL AND FORAY.

A FRAGMENT OF TENNESSEE HISTORY.

The Cherokee Indians, a fierce and turbulent tribe, had been tranquil unusually long; the old chiefs, covered over with scars and honors, now that their ardor and savage propensities had subsided, sedulously advised the repose of peace, but the young men, weary of inaction, enamored of matial renown, and impatient of restraint within a limited territory, began to mutter secret discontents, and their passions, naturally strong and vehement, were soon inflamed beyond control by the harangues of ambitious and popular orators. A descent upon the white settlements was resolved on, and every art was employed and exertion used to rouse passion and excite discontent.—Chieftains flew from village to village to inspire with hope or animate with vengeance the hearts of the peaceful, and runners were despatched to the distant towns to collect at one rendezvous the unquiet and restless.

Near the close of autumn, a thousand warriors, grim and black with martial paints, had assembled at Willstown to concert a plan of operation, and to indulge with savage delight in anticipations of blood and plunder. Burning with zeal they readily prepared for council; the ground was selected, and a block erected for the orators, a lofty pole was attached to it from which hung in derision, a tattered flag of the United States. The most renowned braves and head men occupied the first circle, the others less distinguished crowded closely around.

Watts, an active, artful and eloquent chief, whose authority and influence were powerful, instigated by the arts of the Spaniards and inflamed at the encroachments of the whites, assumed the dignity of leader. He arose to address them, and in a proud and stately manner advanced to the block. The scene was wild, martial and picturesque; the Indians in their various paints and costumes, armed with hatchets, knives and carbines, their frightful and solitary scalp-locks tossing in the wind, were bending their savage faces eagerly toward the speaker, whose arms stretched forth, displaying to them a roll of paper. It was a letter from the Spanish Governor of Florida, persuading them to hostility against the States, and promising to furnish ample munitions. The orator gazed a moment at the paper, and in a rich and figurative style touched with eloquent force all the chords of savage passion. He displayed many presents from his Spanish friend; among them were strings of beads, a beatifully adorned breast pistol, and a dirk sparkling with jewels. The Indians, impelled by the violence of savage curiosity, unmindful of the dignity of the occasion or distinction of rank, bounded forward together to examine the glittering toys. When quiet was restored the orator exclaimed:—

"Brothers, our young men are turning to women. Can they follow the track of a white man, or take his scalp? They had better hoe corn and cook venison."

A laugh of scorn arose.

"Brothers, I am for war. I will wash all over with the blood of the pale-faces."

The fearful war-cry burst from a thousand throats, guns were discharged at the flag, and tomahawks hurled at the pole. In the midst of this tumult of passions arose the Bloody-Fellow. Though of a daring and ferocious spirit, delighting in war and terrible to his tribe, he was now the advocate of peace; he exerted sagacity and firmness in encountering the flow of rage and exultation at the prospect of blood; he was alone in his sentiments, yet erect and undaunted he stood among the scowling warriors, and pointing to the flag he cried:

"Those stars are not villages but states, mighty in strength. Will little birds fight with eagles? Fools! go home in peace."

Muttering and confusion arose, and the White Owl, a Shawnee brave, leaped fiercely up, and in a rude bravado, exclaimed, "I have slain three hundred whites. I will slay three hundred more."

Watts, still occupying the block, and regarding with joy and triumph the potency and effect of his arts, now raised the war shout. It was the signal of commotion; passion was let loose to riot with savage license. The warriors, transported with rage, hurried about in confusion, uttering fearful and varied sounds, peculiar to the barbarian, and expressive of every emotion, one instant sighing in a plaintive tone their woes and insults, the next yelling in a wild and angry voice fierce curses against the desolating whites. This agitation and disorder continued until night, when retreating a moment into the shades of the forest, they stripped to the girdle, and besmearing all over with black and red; bounded again into the area to celebrate their hostile resolve by a war-dance around the military and hated flag.

The spectacle was terrible and unnatural; each grim savage, blackened and disguised under a cloud of paint, and rendered more hideous by the glare of lights, a battle hatchet firmly grasped in his hand, commenced a slow and solemn step, uttering at the same time low and monotonous sounds; as excitement increased the pace was quickened and the voice elevated, until both became extreme. Now and then, a warrior more frenzied and malignant than the rest would pause to signalize his hatred by tossing a hatchet at the flag, or in fierce menaces give expressions to his bloody designs. This ceremony was continued until subdued nature was incapable of further exertion, and near the dawn of day a thousand forms extended on the bare earth and buried in sleep were dimly visible in the light of the expiring fires.

On the next evening, being recovered from stupor and exhaustion, they again met to determine the spot on which their vengeance was to fall. Watts, the master spirit, directed their deliberations, and the Cumberland settlements were destined to feel the explosion of savage wrath. In the gloomy recesses of minds capable of the utmost cruelty, they resolved to destroy every living thing, and to sweep away every vestige of the white race. Inspired by despair, they would make a last effort to regain their hunting grounds, and to stay the waves of encroachment. Chieftains, the most renowned for valor and prowess, were elected to lead them, and a day appointed for departure.

At this critical juncture, information of the intended descent was despatched to the whites.—The intelligence flew as the quick lightning, along the frontier. The unwary and helpless settlers, engaged in the arts of peace and wrapt in dreams of traquility, roused by the fearful were confounded with dismay; abandoning their all in the utmost confusion, they hurried off amidst the cries of women and children to the nearest station; animated by fear, their flight was quickly accomplished, and secure in the protection of ramparts they calmly awaited the coming of the storm, from which they had fled with such terror. Some families who, more daring than the rest, had pinaged far into the depths of the wilderness were left to await in ignorance their approaching doom.

Late in autumn, the Indians, full of violent and sanguinary purposes, began their march, and to outstrip intelligence of their approach and to fall with unresisted force upon the terrified settlers, they advanced rapidly upon the frontier. Then commenced a scene of havoc and desolation which shocks humanity to relate: old and young, the feeble and athletic, without regard to sex, were butchered—the hatchet, red with the blood of the husband, was buried in the brain of the weeping wife; the child, wildly clinging to its mother's breast, was snatched rudely away and dashed to pieces; and the cries of the parent were soon stilled in the silence of death. When the scalps, prized as badges of valor and honor, were wrested from the victims, their mangled bodies were exposed to be devoured by wild beasts, or tossed headlong into their dwellings to be consumed by fire, while the unhappy captive, more unfortunate than his murdered friends, had to endure all the tortures which wanton barbarity could invent or savage ferocity inflict; cruelty prevailed even over rapacity, and every living thing and every species of property, because it related to the hated was destroyed.—Yards and fields were stained with blood, and the air was dim with the smoke of burning houses. Ruin marked the route of the savage army until it arrived at the point against which its fiercest rage was directed; it was Buchanan's Station, which, strong in its defences, afforded in all alarms shelter and protection to the scattered settlers.

The Indians reached the fort in the night; the coldness of the autumn airs had driven in the picket, and the garrison was buried in sleep. A gate was, by accident, open, and the creaking of its hinges, as the wind drove it to and fro, gave notice to the Indians. Exulting with hope, they determined to seize the gate and to burst with all force upon the surprised fort, and gratify with blood their utmost wishes. A few, distinguished for valor and action, throbbing and breathless with anxiety and eagerness, commenced a slow and noiseless progress towards the spot—they were already within the shade of the wall, creeping and winding snake-like along, when the cattle, filled with terror at the presence of the strangers, dashed by the station in wild affright and roused the sleeping inmates. Some rushed to the block-houses—others to the gates; they were met by the savages and a fierce struggle ensued. One party animated by the dread of torture and captivity, the other transported with the rage of disappointment. The Indians were expelled and the gate closed and bolted. The result of the enterprise was announced to the lurking army by a wild and plaintive cry, and in a moment the forests enveloped in darknes, were vocal with terrible howls, expressive of baffled vengeance. Indian prowess was now at fault. In their native woods, armed with hatchets and knives, their strength is fearful, but against ramparts it is vain. They vented their impotent rage by firing at the stockade until daylight, when collecting their dead and wounded, they began in sullen sadness to retreat. Their native ferocity, provoked by defeat and disappointment, made them complete the remains of the desolation which their weariness of destruction had on their advance induced them to spare. Their cruel resolve to sweep away every vestige of the white race, was utterly fulfilled—the silence and solitude of death reigned over all the country. I.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 26th, 1841.

The Toronto Patriot, says the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser, proposes to cut the gordian knot in the case of McLeod by the Canadian government giving bail to the amount required, and then taking measures to assure her Magesty's subjects that obedience to the Colonial authorities shall not be held indictable offences this side of the Niagara river.

SUICIDE. Lydia Burnham, committed suicide at South Boston on Saturday last, by hanging herself with a silk handkerchief. It is said she was deranged, as most people are when they put an end to themselves.

A TRIO OF BLESSINGS. The wife of Mr. James Lanagan, New York, last week presented him with three bouncing children—two girls and only one boy. What delightful music the happy father must have to listen to!

DISCHARGE OF THE ELDRIDGE JURY. On Tuesday night the jury in the case of Eldridge were discharged, they not being able to agree in a verdict. They had been out 13 days; eleven were for conviction and one for acquittal.

NEW FRAUDS. A large quantity of spurious $5 bills, purporting to be of the Oneida county bank are said to be in circulation. There is no such bank as the Oneida County Bank. Counterfeit 5's on the Union Bank of Buffalo are also afloat, and 10's of the Newburg Bank.

ARGOT THRIVING. The Skaneateles Courier states that one of the residents in that village, a few nights since, had his teeth abstracted whilst asleeep, and notwithstanding the most diligent search, they remain undiscovered.

We are informed, says the Buffalo Republican, that two companies of artillery have been ordered from this station to Lockport. Rumor attributes this to an anticipated attempt of the Canadians to rescue McLeod.

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

" Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection throughout, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads Weather!! and Stormy!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon; and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

THURSDAY MORNING, Jan. 28, 1841.

Report of the Committee of Ways and Means. After recapitulating the statements made by the Treasurer, exhibiting the financial condition of the state, the committee come to the conclusion that the ordinary revenue will be sufficient to defray the ordinary expenses, leaving the interest upon the public debt alone to be provided for. This is estimated at $600,000, which will have to be provided for annually by taxation. The committee say:

"Of the ability of the state to raise the required sums by taxation, your committee can entertain no doubt. If we assume the value of the assessible property in Maryland to be two hundred millions of dollars, (which your committee believe to be a moderate estimate,) the rate of tax that will be necessary to raise six hundred thousand dollars, will be thirty cents in every hundred dollars, or three tenths of one per cent., and if to this be added the county tax now paid, it will form an aggregate much below what is paid by other states, which, nevertheless, enjoy great prosperity."

The report states that some diversity of opinion existed among the committee, as to the necessity for a resort to taxation, but the majority deemed it absolutely called for by the necessities of the treasury.

The demands against the treasury to the first of April, 1842, are estimated at $800,000; and as the committee think it impossible to collect, by taxation, that amount within the period required, they recommend that the treasurer be authorised "to contract such temporary loans, not exceeding $600,000, on the security of said tax at a rate of interest not exceeding six per centum, as may be required for the use of the treasury; but as that sum will be expended by the first of January, 1842, and it is the purpose of your committee to relieve the treasury to the first of April in that year, they would further recommend that the said treasurer be empowered to borrow, at the same rate of interest, $200,000 more, on a pledge of so much of the Bank Stock of the state, as may be necessary to raise that sum, unless, in his judgment, the interest of the state will be better promoted by selling such portion of said stock as will realize to the treasury the same amount, in which case it is proposed that he be authorised to sell. This will place the treasury one quarter in advance of all the demands that can be made upon it, and by a prudent application of the avails of the tax as the same shall be received at the treasury, it is believed that, after the current year, there can be no necessity to borrow in any one year, on the security of tax, more than $350,000 to pay the interest on the existing public debt; and even that, your committee cannot believe will continue very long."

In relation to the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company, the report contains the following remarks:

"The greater portion of the state debt, say upwards of $7,000,000, was created for the purpose of aiding in the construction of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal, under the confident expectation that the return from that work, when completed, would enable the treasury to meet its engagement for interest on the debt created for its construction, and leave a surplus applicable to other expenses of government. But the canal is yet incomplete and unproductive, nor can any income or revenue be derived from it, until after it shall have reached Cumberland, and be connected with the coal mines near that place, when it is believed the advantages expected to be derived from it will be realized.

"Your committee have purposely avoided in this report making any provision for the further prosecution of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal. That subject is now in the hands of the appropriate committee of this House, who will, doubtless, give to it all the consideration which its great and growing importance demands. To abandon that magnificent enterprise in its present unfinished and unproductive condition, would be to entail upon the people of Maryland a stupendous debt of upwards of $7,000,000, and the interest thereon forever; yet it must be confessed that, to raise the means at this time of finishing it to any profitable terminus, is so surrounded with difficulties, that, connected as this subject is with the financial prosperity of the state, your committee are unwilling, if indeed it be proper for them to do so, to enter upon its examination, until after the report of the committee on internal improvement shall have been made, and some action had thereon by the House.

The report states that Maryland "has a fair claim against the general government for more than $200,000, for interest on the debt incurred by this state, in the late war with Great Britain" —and the committee believe that the fourth instalment of the public deposites will yet be paid to the state.

On the subject of the public lands the committee say: "Your committee are aware that many persons have looked to the proceeds of the public lands, as a source of supply to our exhausted treasury, and they cannot too strongly express their decided conviction, that the long settled opinion of the state which has so uniformly sanctioned the claim of the states to a fair and just distribution of these proceeds, is based upon principles of the plainest justice; and they will not cease the expectation, that at a future and not distant day, this long cherished opinion of our state, will be adopted and acted upon elsewhere. It appears, however, to your committee, from the known opinions of those who now control the action of congress on this subject, and from the course of proceeding pursued by them in the present session, that there is no rational prospect of receiving the slightest aid from this source, in season to rescue the state from the embarrassments which must at once be relieved."

The report concludes with a resolution affirming the necessity of adopting, at the present session, a system of taxation fully adequate to the wants of the treasury, and instructing the committee of ways and means to report bills for that purpose.

Union Bank. A gentleman has placed in our hands a copy of the Charter of the Union Bank of Maryland, and its supplements, together with the By-Laws. The date of the publication is 1835, and we presume that the by-laws then existing are still in force. We annex the 27th article, by which it will be seen that ample authority is reserved to the directors to inspect all the accounts of the bank, and if the duty imposed in this article (which we do not mean to assert,) the fault is with the directors and not in the by-law.

We make this publication as an act of justice to the directors of that institution. The public mind having been considerably excited by the information that the accounts of officers and others were not subject to inspection by directors, it is but just that censure should not attach where it is not deserved. We are ready to exculpate any bank which can exhibit a by-law of similar import with that now published.

Art. 27. A committee of the board of directors, consisting of three persons, shall be appointed in rotation, once in every three months, (whose duties shall continue until their successors be appointed) to visit the vaults of the bank at such times as they shall think proper, in which the cash and other valuable effects are deposited: and shall at least once during the period of their appointment, make, or cause to be made, in their presence, an inventory of the effects of the bank, which they shall compare with the books, in order to ascertain their agreement therewith, and shall make a report in writing to the board of directors of their proceedings: which report shall be entered upon the minutes of the board. And the said committee during the continuance of their appointment, shall be permitted to examine any individual accounts they may think proper.

Tobacco. The memorial from planters of Prince George's county, Maryland, presented by Mr. Merrick to the U. S. senate on the 26th instant, states, "that one-tenth of the population of the United States are concerned in the growth of tobacco, and that an immense capital is employed in the cultivation of the article."

The memorial asserts that the tobacco sold to France alone for $6,000,000, yields some fifty millions, and that the French government enjoys the trade as a monopoly. And yet in the face of this fact, the expediency of all retaliatory measures is denied, and we are not to tax the silks and wines of that country. The opponents of a duty upon articles of luxury admit the injustice done in the article of tobacco, but are unwilling to apply a remedy. They are willing that the labor of this country shall contribute to support the French government, but deny the justice of retaliation. This is the extreme of generosity, fully equal to the scriptural doctrine that, when smote on one cheeck you must turn the other.—However suitable this doctrine may be for private concerns, it is totally inapplicable in the intercourse between nations. If we would be truly independent, we must act with becoming spirit; multiplying our own resources, and relying less on the justice and forbearance of other powers.

Taxes. Any suggestions having in view the equalization of taxes, are deserving consideration; we therefore give the following from a correspondent, and shall freely open our columns to such further remarks as the writer or others may think proper to make, on the most proper and equitable system of taxation. We have heretofore expressed our own sentiments in favor of a tax in strict conformity to the provisions of the constitution—that is, that every man be made to contribute in proportion to his worth in real and personal property. According to the old mode of levying taxes, the wealthiest citizens have been comparatively exempted from taxation, whilst the burthen fell upon those less able to bear it.

Messrs. Editors: As your invaluable paper is extensively circulated in Annapolis, you would confer a favor on many property-holders by suggesting (what, it is hoped, will be anticipated by them,) that in laying the taxes they will proportion them according to the rent, and not, as is now the case with the city taxes, to what the property was once valued at, as the rents in some sections of the city have depreciated to a great extent, while in others they hold their original value. You might benefit a large portion of the community by devoting a portion of your paper to this object, both in the city and state taxes.—This should also be adopted in taxing moneyed investments, according to their per centage, and not to the amount paid in.

Irregularity of the Southern Mail. On Monday we received six New Orleans dates—and then, as if we had been surfeited, our allowance was stopped. We have heard no reason given for the irregularity of the southern mail, and presume it is not worthy of investigation. The New Orleans and Mobile papers complain loudly of the bad management of the northern and Eastern mail route—hence, we come to the conclusion that there is something wrong somewhere.

☞The letter writer who signs himself "Anonymus" and dates his letter at Richmond, might have had the politeness to pay the postage. The amount may seem a trifle to him, but we feel no disposition to be saddled with even a trifle for his personal gratification.

☞The ship Grace Brown, which some time since was taken into Norfolk in distress, is now lying at Craig's wharf, on the Point, unloading. She is a fine large vessel, and to outward appearance seems to have sustained but little damage.

Humane Impartial Society. In compliance with a very polite note received yesterday morning from some ministering angel of charity, we cheerfully call attention to the anniversary meeting of the above laudable society, which takes place this evening at seven o'clock, in the Rev. Mr. Hill's church, Sharp street. The object of the meeting is to devise means for the relief of the indigent widow and orphan. Addresses are expected from the Rev. Mr. Hill, Rev. Mr. Rice, and Z. Collins Lee, Esq.

We remember upon a former occasion of having spoken at large relative to the claims of this society on the generosity and benevolence of our philanthropic citizens. It is based upon principles which cannot but meet the approbation of every intelligent mind. The object is to furnish means by which the poor may be judiciously employed. We well know that there are hundreds who are able and willing to earn an honest living by the industry of their own hands, but who are thrown upon the cold charity of a pitiless world, because they can get nothing to do. From this circumstance, a thousand times has honest poverty been forced to dishonesty, and even the bright temple of virtue itself demolished, shattered and thrown into a mass of corruptible ruins. What is the first sentence generally spoken by the petitioner for alms when approaching the door of hospitality? It is "I am out of employ—can find nothing to do, and I am therefore forced to beggary."

The Humane Impartial Society points us to a hall of industry where even the "widow's mite" will be thankfully received and reciprocated by the toil of the widow's hand—where the orphan will be supported and educated by the willing industry of its mother, if the more opulent but furnish the means whereby that principle of industry can have an opportunity for exercise.—The poor who come under the cognizance of the above institution do not ask to be maintained in idleness—they only call for a share of public patronage, in order that by the sweat of their brows they may, like others, earn honestly the bread of life. Seeing, therefore, the manifestations of so praiseworthy an object, who, having it in his power thus to do good, by smoothing down the rugged pillow of the disconsolate widow, or of making brighter the dark pathway of the little orphan, could refuse to extend his patronage?

We do hope that the annual meeting of this evening will be numerously attended—that the benevolent of all denominations will be fully awakened to its importance, and that the just cause in which the Humane Impartial Society is engaged may be brought more generally into public notice than it ever yet has been. If time will permit we shall be happy in a compliance with the latter clause of our friend's note, and be present at the meeting, when the subject shall receive our further attention.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

Washington, Jan. 27, 1841.

In the House of Representatives a memorial was presented from the legislature of Alabama, asking the repayment of money advanced by that state in the Creek war. I wonder if they think they will get it.

After the reference of some other business of a similar character, to be dozed over by the committees, the House, in committee of the whole, again took up the bill authorising the issue of five millions of treasury notes.

Mr. Pope being entitled to the floor, made a proposition that the question should be taken without further debate. But Messrs. Wise, Stanley, Hunt and other members, intimating their determination to speak, the proposition was withdrawn. Mr. P. then made a long speech, in which he introduced a variety of topics, having no connexion with the subject before the committee.—But as other members had done the same, Mr. P. was as much in order as any of them.

It is now evident that the bill will not pass before the end of the week.

After Mr. Pope had concluded, Mr. Wise obtained the floor, but gave way to Mr. Wm. C. Johnson, who referred to the reported language of Mr. Duncan, wherein Mr. D. is represented as calling Mr. J. a "liar, puppy and scoundrel." Mr. Johnson denied that such words had been used.

Mr. Duncan was not in his seat, but I presume he will notice the matter at some other time.—So you see that what with the McLeod case, and the affair of Messrs. Johnson and Duncan, we have war in prospect.

The Senate is still engaged on the pre-emption bill, and Mr. Wright was speaking when this was closed.

Last evening I understand Booth gave much satisfaction, and made ample amends for his non-appearance on the previous night. In order to keep him in proper order, I am informed that he was taken in tow by a committee, who did their duty to the satisfaction of all.

The New Jersey Legislature. Applications have been made to extend the charters of the People's Bank of Paterson and the Salem Banking Company. A resolution that all persons applying for divorce should advertise a notice of the application in the newspapers of their county, was laid on the table. The resolution offered a few days ago, to the effect that the Legislature would not take cognizance of divorce cases, when the Court of Chancery could have jurisdiction, was negatived.

Pennsylvania loan. The loan of $800,000 required by the state was not taken on Tuesday last, the time fixed for opening the proposals. It was reported in Philadelphia that a gentleman of Easton, (Pa.) had offered the sum of $56,000, the only offer known to have been made. The loan is required to discharge the interest on the public debt of Pennsylvania, which will fall due on the first of next month.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

Caught him. Some time since a coat was stolen from a citizen, and from circumstances, Mr. League, a city bailiff, came to the conclusion that it had been taken and sold at the shop of a Jew by the name of Keaton, in Pratt street. He, consequently, got out a search warrant, and from a description of the coat given Mrs. K. found that it had been there, but she disposed of it to some one else. He advised her to watch for the man who brought her the coat, and when she saw him to have him arrested. Yesterday she encountered the fellow, and through the aid of officer Hall, had him brought to the Police office. His name is James Wagner, and the evidence being pretty positive against him, he was committed to jail by Justice Snyder, until ordered to appear before the city court in February.

Baltimore County Court. Yesterday the celebrated shinplaster case, which was an appeal from the Squire's decision, came up. The parties were Peter Saurwein and others, vs. H. Baker, Wm. Stewart and John W. Clark. The court was occupied with the case all day in hearing the arguments of the counsel, Messrs. Giles and Preston for the appellants, and A. B. Wolfe Esq. for the appellees. The court suspended its opinion for the purpose of hearing another similar case which is to be argued to-day, pending between N. U. Chafee, appellant, and R. McEldowney, Simeon Alden, Herman Wigman and Joseph Farrow, appellees. The decision in these cases will be looked for with much interest. If it does not decide the fate of nations, it will at least decide the fate of shinplasters in Baltimore.

Harpers' Family Library. We have before us Nos. 119 and 120 of this popular and interesting work. The present numbers contain the history of the United States from their first settlement to the conclusion of Mr. Madison's administration in 1817, by Salma Hale. It must prove interesting to every American citizen. It is for sale at Messrs. Cushing & Brother's, Baltimore street.

We have also received from the same establishment a new historical romance in two vols., by Harriet Martineau, entitled "The Hour and the Man." We have not yet had leisure to examine it thoroughly, but from the cursory view we have taken of its contents we doubt not that it will prove interesting to the lovers of light reading.

The Lady's Book. The February number of this fashionable Magazine is before us. It is embellished with a splendid steel engraving of the Falls of Niagara, and a plate of the fashions for February. This work steadily increases in literary worth, the present number containing several valuable contributions from the ablest writers. We could describe the fashions, but prefer referring the ladies to Mr. N. Hickman, who will doubtless satisfy their curiosity.

Sacred Concert. The Baltimore choir, an association of vocalists who have, by industry and perseverence, acquired quite a proficiency in music, announce a concert of sacred music at the Assembly Rooms this evening. We had the pleasure on Tuesday evening of attending the rehearsal, and were not only surprised but gratified at the rapid improvement the members have made during the past year. They are to be assisted by a number of the members of the Harmonic Society, and the combined forces of the two will doubtless ensure a rich treat to the lovers of harmony.

Town Hall Lottery. The 2d Class Town Hall Lottery draws to-day. We have had an itching in the palm of our right hand ever since we bought that ticket of E. Bull, No. 7 North Gay street. A prize must come, we know it must, so no one need ask us to sell our chance.

Sale of bank stocks. The several parcels of bank stocks reported in our paper of yesterday as having been sold on Tuesday at the Exchange, were supposed to have been held in on owners' account, or withdrawn, to wait a more favorable market.

Police. Edward Brown, charged with assaulting and beating George Moog, was on Tuesday arrested and brought before Justice Wright. On giving security for his appearance, he was released.

George Thompson, colored, was committed to the alms-house yesterday as a vagrant, by Justice Wright.

Susan Jarbo, and Elizabeth Hiner, colored women, were yesterday morning, committed to the alms-house as vagrants, by Justice Keplinger.

Watch Reports. In the Eastern District on Tuesday night, two white men came in for lodgings. In the Middle District, Martha Robinson, colored, was brought in drunk, and left for the police. Negroes Elizabeth Hiner and Susan Ford were brought in drunk, and also left for the police. Thomas Speddin and Patrick Costa were brought in intoxicated—released in the morning. In the Western District, Susan Reubin, colored, was brought in for being drunk and disturbing the peace.

The poor. A meeting for the relief of the poor is called in the Sixth Ward this evening.—It will be held at Military Hall.

Black and White. The bill to repeal that section of the Marriage Act, which prohibits intermarriage between whites and blacks, came up, in the Massachusetts Legislature, on Saturday. It passed to a third reading by a vote of 144 to 92.

(*) We have not received the Richmond Star for a long, long while. What's the row? We did hear that there was a smash in the office—and that Mr. Manager Jones had knocked the "little twinkler" into pi.

The Garrick, it is now pretty certain, will be got off, unless very bad weather occurs. Nearly all the goods are out of her.

HIBERNIAN SOCIETY—Of Baltimore.

NOTICE. All those members of this Society, who are still in arrear for their ANNUAL CONTRIBUTION, are earnestly requested to pay the same to the Collector, when called upon, as in consequence of the heavy demands for relief during the present winter, caused by the early inclemency of the season, the funds in the hands of the Treasurer have been nearly exhausted. As there are many subscribers, whose residence could not be found by the Collector, it is requested that all who see this notice, and are conscious of not having paid (and there are a great many who have been delinquent for the last two years) will please to send the amount of their contributions to the subscriber, without further delay, and thereby save to the Society the collection commission of thirty cents on each annual subscription.

CONSUMPTION.

To Dr. SWAYNE.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

Your friend, ABRAHAM SKINNER,
Crawford county, Pa.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

TOO SOON.

Too soon! too soon! how oft that word
Comes o'er the spirit like a spell;
Awakening every mournful chord
That in the human heart may dwell!
Of hopes that perished in their noon—
Of youth decayed—too soon, too soon!

Too soon, too soon—it is a sound
To dim the light with many a tear,
As bitterly we gaze around,
And find how few we love are here;
Ah!—when shall we again commune
With those we lost too soon—too soon!

Too soon, too soon—how wild that tone
Bursts on our dearest hours of bliss,
And leaves us silent and alone,
To muse on such a theme as this;
No frown upon the quiet noon,
Whose parting light comes all too soon!

Too soon, too soon—if e'er were thine
The joys, the fears, the hopes of love!
If thou hast knelt before the shrine
Of beauty, in some starlight grove;
Whose lips, young rose, breathed of June,
Thou'st wept those words—too soon, too soon!

Too soon is stamped on every leaf,
In characters of dim decay;
Too soon is writ in tears of grief!
On all things fading fast away!
Oh! is there one terrestrial boon,
Our hearts lose not—too soon, too soon.

MR. CLIPPER—What think you of the following "precious gem" indited by a love-sick swain to his Dulcinea?

Her cheeks are majestic and bald;
Her eyes are like diamonds all set up in gold;
Her voice is so very mellorific,
It reminds you of the ancient hieroglyphic!
Can any of your correspondents match this? B.

CITY COUNCIL. First Branch, January 27th. The Council met pursuant to adjournment. Present—Mr. Snyder, president, and all the members.

If we were to say that this learned body met, adjourned and did nothing, we would come near to the truth; but in order to detail the particulars we shall proceed as follows:

After the previous day's proceedings were read, Mr. Gersuch offered a petition signed Richard B. Varden, praying for a remuneration for extra services rendered by him as clerk to the commissioners appointed to change the location of Madison street. Referred to the committee on claims.

Mr. Bradshaw handed in a petition signed Jas. Townsend and others, relative to freshets on Jones' Falls. Mr. B. had no speech prepared to sustain the petition, it was therefore referred to the committee on harbors.

Mr. Peregoy presented a petition signed Wm. McLean, Henry Malloue and Bartholomew Cassady, praying for the amount of their services when attending court at Annapolis as witnesses for the state on the trial of John Price. Referred to committee on claims.

A message was handed in from the Second Branch, which was a report relative to instructions for the joint select committee as regards the government of the two branches of the City Council—concurred in.

Mr. Fields called up bill No. 4, touching the inspection of butter and lard, which asked for the appointment of two additional inspectors. The bill was passed with an amendment.

A message was received from the Second Branch, which was a bill entitled an ordinance relative to making reports to the Mayor. Not passed.

A message came from the Mayor which signified his approval of a bill relative to the Baltimore General Dispensary. Also another, which was a report of the commissioners of finance. On motion it was sent to the Second Branch, with instrustions that it be referred to the joint select committee on accounts of the commissioners of finance. The second branch assented to the proposition of the first in regard to the report of the commissioners. This report will be published in to-morrow's proceedings.

A message was received from the Second Branch, which was a report from the minority of the committee on claims in reference to the German Reformed Church, in Second-st. Read a second time and concurred in.

Mr. Bender offered a resolution asking the repeal of a resolution, No. 67, adopted in May 22, 1839, in reference to selling manure from our streets to the authorities of the alms-house.—Laid on the table. Upon this all-important item there was considerable discussion. At the close of the arguments, the members becoming weary of doing little, Mr. Fields (by the way a great economist) moved an adjournment in order to save candles. The "lictors," therefore, came down from their seats and absquatulated until to-morrow at half-past 3, P. M.

MESSRS. EDITORS: The sole object I had in writing the communication published in Monday's Clipper was the correction of any wrong impressions derivable from certain editorials and communications on the subject of the "banks and their management," which have, from time to time, appeared in our daily papers, by stating the fact, which I again assert to be true, that all the banks in this city had not passed by-laws preventing the examination of private accounts."

The name of the bank, which has not passed the by-laws is immaterial to the question, unless A doubts the correctness of my statement, and therefore decline answering his question. And if it is so evident that I am a director in the bank, A certainly should see the impropriety of my publishing the by-laws of the bank without authority. L.

BOZ. The London correspondent of the Signal says that Mr. Dickens is in receipt of about $3500 a year for the labors of his pen; his first publishers, Chapman & Hall, whom he has never deserted, not even while he lent his name and Oliver Twist to Mr. Bently, have realized a fortune out of the sale of his works. VALLIER'S FRENCH PILL, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

CAUTION. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident o their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Hartich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains ra aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

LINES,

Written within a wreath of flowers in a Lady's Album.

To Margaret's laugh, and sparkling eyes,
Where many a witching influence lies,
And mind-bound gem in secret shines—
To mirth, to grace, to beauty too,
As real as ever lover knew,
I dedicate these humble lines.

Some lady's hand should thus bequeath
Her living wishes in this wreath,
Nor let me mar its rosy hue—
But Time will to this garland prove,
Its leaves will fade before his love,
Who gives his brightest wish to you. J. A. B.

THE BOLD AND BEAUTIFUL CONVICT.

Rose Mac Orne was a rare sample of Scottish beauty. Her eyes deeply blue, as Loch Lomond; glowing cheeks; hair light and glossy, parted over her broad forehead, like folds of flax colored satin; features which a shrewd and active mind had strongly developed; a tall muscular frame of stately proportions and a firm elastic, rapid tread which she had acquired in early days, when

'Down the rocks she leaped along,
Like rivulets of May.'

Her youth was unfortunate, for her mother had died during her infancy; and her selfish and prodigate father had abandoned her before she reached the dangerous age of fifteen.

Many were anxious to take her into their service, for she was as neat and thrifty as a brownie, and had the obsequious manner of their countrymen, united with their proverbial knowledge of the most direct road to favor and fortune. Her greatest misfortune was her beauty. Often, after the most unremitting efforts to please, poor Rose was accused of a thousand faults, and dismissed by prudent wives and mothers, lest she should become too dear a servant. Scotch discrimination soon discovered the source of the difficulty, and Scottish ambition resolved to make the most of it. To lovers of her own rank she was alternately winning and disdainful—determined that none should break her charms, yet dealing out her scorn to each, as their characters would bear. With her superiors she played a deep, insidious game. Trusting to her own strength of pride, she resisted their arts, while she almost invariably made them the victims of her own. In all this Rose Mac Orne was actuated by something more than a mere girlish love of flirtation and triumph; she was ambitious, and had formed high hopes of an opulent marriage. Many a Cantab and Oxonian, many a testy bachelor and gouty widower had got entangled in her nets, and been disentangled only by the interference of proud and prudent relations. At length, notwithstanding her modest manners and apparent artlessness, the intrigues of Rose Mac Orne became as proverbial as her beauty; and she could obtain no service in any family where there were youth to fascinate or wealthy old age to be cajoled.

Hearing an East Indiaman was about to sail, with many ladies on board, Rose resolved to seek employment among them, and succeeded in being appointed dressing-maid to an elderly lady, who was going out to reside with an invalid son. India! match-making India! opened glorious prospects to Scotch ambition. Rose took unexampled pains to please her new mistress, and in two days she was a decided favorite. No wonder the gipsy felt proud of her power, for she never attempted to please without effecting her purpose. But when was inordinate ambition known to be a safeguard either to talent or beauty? In two days Rose was to leave England, and her mistress having granted her permission to attend the races, she as a last act of kindness to one of her earliest and most favored lovers consented to accompany him. Rose was very fond of ornaments—and it chanced that her heart was particularly set upon a large pearl pin, which her mistress said she seldom wore on account of its antique fashion. Rose had more than once signified how pretty she thought it; and wondered if she was rich enough to buy pearls, whether they would become her full and snowy neck. She dared not ask for it outright, and she never in her time had thought of taking anything dishonestly. But vanity, vanity, that foolish and contemptible passion which has 'slain its tens of thousands,' and that too among the fairest and brightest of God's works, prevailed over the better feelings of Rose Mac Orne. She took the envied pin—wore it to the races—heard James Mac Intyre praise it—told him her new mistress had given it to her—and then, dreading the discovery of the fact, began to devise schemes for exchanging the bauble.

The path of sin is steep, and every step presses one forward with accumulated power. Rose had already committed a second crime to conceal the first, and the plan of secrecy urged her to commit others. She sold the breast-pin, bought a ring with the money, in the hopes that the pearl would never be inquired for this side of India.—But in this she was mistaken; that very day her mistress missed the jewel, and Rose went even deeper into falsehood than was necessary to keep up appearances.

I will not follow her through every step of this shameful struggle. It is sufficient to say that the theft was discovered, and Rose instead of sailing for glorious "match-making India," was in a few weeks hurried on board a vessel, in which sixty-two other convicts were bound for Botany Bay. This was a painful reverse for one so young, so beautiful, and so inordinately ambitious. She looked back upon England with feelings of grief and burning indignation—contempt of self and hatred of the laws under which she suffered.—And for what had she endured this terrible conflict, which first and last, had given her more unhappiness than had been crowded in the whole of her previous existence? Why, nothing but the foolish vanity of wearing a cast of pearls!

But Rose Mac Orne had a mind elastic and vigorous; it soon rebounded from depression, and began to think of new schemes of conquest. She looked around among her companions—most of them were tall and robust—some of them were very handsome women. She counted them and counted the crew. There were sixty-two convicts and fifteen men. Before they were half across the Atlantic, Rose Mac Orne had laid a plan daring enough for the helmeted Joan of Arc, in the full tide of her inspiration. She communicated the plan to the women, which they entered into heartily and warmly. Rose might have found lovers enough, notwithstanding the strict orders of the officers; but she chose but one; and that was to be the pilot! Glances and tender notes soon passed between them, unperceived by others; for the artful Rose was like a glacier when the eye of the officers was upon her; and her lover was capable of playing as deep a game as she.

At length the important hour arrived—every precaution had been taken—all things were in readiness. The vessels stood for the La Plata, to exchange cargoes and take in refreshments. They entered the huge arms of that silvery river, and cut its waters with the arrowy flight of a bird. At length Buenos Ayres lay before them in the distance, with the broad, clear, bright moonlight spread over it like a heavenly robe. The wind died away, and the vessel lay gently moving on the bosom of that majestic river, like a child playing itself into slumber.

Midnight came—Rose had an eye like a burning glass—the crisis was at hand—all looked to her for direction. Her lover, according to his promise, had taken his turn to be pilot, and all slept save him and the convicts. He sat at the helm looking out upon the water, and listening to the 'silence audible.' There was a silent motion of the sails announced by a low whistle from the pilot. In twenty minutes every man was bound fast and gagged, the convicts were armed, and the vessel in full prize to the prisoners! Great noise was made about the vessel seized by the women and brought triumphantly into port. The 'Lady Shore' (for that was the vessel's name) was crowded with South Americans. The bravery of the women was loudly applauded, and in three days the richest young Spaniard in the city offered himself to the bold and beautiful Rose Mac Orne. Her promise to the pilot was forgotten. The ambitious Scotch woman now wears pearls and diamonds in plenty; and most of her sister convicts are at the head of respectable families in Buenos Ayres.

MORE SCIENTIFIC SWINDLING.

An operation in the way of swindling was performed on Saturday last, on board the steamer Little Red, which is a perfect chef d' œuvre in its way—a game entirely original, and carried out upon new and improved principles. The trick was played in the following manner:

A tall, robust looking man came on board the Little Red at the mouth of the Ohio, while on her way down to this city. He entered his name as Robert McIntyre, pretended to be an agent of several persons in the North for locating lots of land, getting out title deeds, &c. He heaped maledictions innumerable on the sub-treasury scheme and its authors—not for its political effect on our institutions, but in consequence of the inconvenience which it caused in the transmission of money, of which he had personal experience. Then he would tell how many boxes of specie he had deposited in one of the New Orleans banks—how nigh losing one of them he came, while crossing a river at the time of a freshet in Georgia—how a negro attempted to run away with one of them, when taking them from the hotel to the steamboat in Mobile; and how a 'roper in' thought to divert his attention from them as they lay on the Levee in New Orleans that another fellow might have an opportunity to run off with one of them. He would again d——n the Benton policy, and swear that whatever personal inconvenience he might suffer in transporting his "precious metals', he was determined that no one should fool him out of them. On leaving the boat and bidding the Captain good-bye, he made particular inquiries when the Little Red would again start upwards. Although he had little else to do in the city than draw some of his specie out of the bank, he said he liked the Little Red and should return to the West in her. He then left the boat, and some four days elapsed before he was seen or heard of, when on Tuesday he was perceived approaching the boat, carrying in his arms an ordinary specie box with the lid screwed down in the most secure manner, the weight of which appeared to fatigue him very much.

"Massa," says a negro, "jus gib me dat and I'll carry it for you."

"Go along, you black rascal," says Mr. McIntyre, "I would not entrust you with it for all you're worth."

He finally reached the boat, sat his heavy box down, and, after a little preliminary puffing and blowing, gave a loud "whew!" by way of recovering his breath. After this he asked one of the officers if he had ever felt it so hot before, commenced fanning himself with his handkerchief, gave another cut at the rascally metallic currency system, and then placed the box in the clerk's office with strict injunctions that it should be closely watched. He now suddenly recollected that he wanted $50 for immediate use, when the officer who had seen the specie deposited handed him the money. Mr. McIntyre then left the boat and has not since been seen. After waiting patiently until yesterday the officer who had loaned him the money began to grow impatient, finally unscrewed the lid of the box, when lo! instead of feasting his eyes upon American half eagles and Mexican eastings, he found it filled with brickbats!

This we look upon as one of the most ingenious tricks that has been played lately, and Mr. McIntyre certainly deserves credit on the score of originality. By having his pretended specie box filled with bricks he was what an Arkansas man would call "In town with a pocket full of rocks."

STEAMBOAT ACCIDENT. The Savannah Republican of the 23d contains the following account of an accident which happened to the steamboat Huntress:

By a passenger who arrived in town yesterday, in the steamer Beaufort District, we learn the following particulars of an accident that happened to the steamboat Huntress. On Tuesday last, the H. left Wilmington for Charleston, as usual, with passengers and the U. S. Mail; about 8 P. M., when about to go to sea, it being very dark, she came in contact with a schooner, which stove in her wheel house and broke her wheel, at the same time carrying away the schooner's bowsprit. The H. immediately dropped her anchor and swung round, when she came in contact with another schooner carrying away her railings, &c. near her stern. There being a heavy sea, and the wind blowing fresh at the time, it was feared that the jib boom of the schooner would break through the hull of the steamboat, she being unmanageable, but fortunately she got clear without sustaining further damage. There were a number of passengers on board the boat, among whom were several ladies—the latter were much alarmed, and not without cause, as the steamer was in imminent danger for some time. She lay by till noon next day, and then returned to Wilmington.

On Thursday the steamboat Wilmington left for Charleston with the passengers of the Huntress, among whom was our informant, but meeting the Beaufort District in Charleston harbor on Friday morning, he, with others, were transferred on board the latter boat.

A TRANCE. The Philadelphia Chronicle of yesterday says two young ladies residing in Fourth street, between Master and Phœnix, District of Kensington, one named —— Skull, the other Sarah Middleton, have been lying in a trance since Sunday evening. They attended, as was their custom, religious meeting on the evening alluded to, and had for several weeks previous devoted their whole thoughts to religion; but, on that occasion, returned home apparently more affected than at any former time, retired to bed, and had not, up to Wednesday morning, shown the least possibility of a revival; notwithstanding several attempts have been made to offer them some nourishment, they appeared to take no notice of the endeavors.

FATAL ATTACK OF A SERPENT. A letter from Martinique, in the Journal of Guadeloupe, states that M. de Pichery, merchant, was met while on a hunting excursion, by an enormous serpent, which attacked him and inflicted several severe wounds in his legs. He defended himself with great courage; but, although timely succor was administered, he died four hours after. The serpent was nearly seven feet in length, and when opened, there were found in its belly one hundred and sixty-two little ones.

FIRE AT BROOKLYN. On Wednesday morning a fire broke out in the floor cloth factory, corner of Smith and Livingston streets, Brooklyn, owned by Mr. John Manley, which was, with its contents, entirely consumed. Owing to the scarcity of water in the vicinity, the fire communicated to a dwelling house, owned by Mr. Alexander Burbeck, and also a stable, owned by Mr. John English, which also were entirely destroyed.

The Bridgeton (N. J.) Chronicle states that David P. Horton, a young man of steady habits, aged 27, left his residence at Port Elizabeth on the 21st ult. was seen in Philadelphia on the 22d, but has not been heard of since. His friends and relatives are laboring under serious apprehensions with regard to him.

DONATIONS. The Vermont University, at Burlington, has 160 pupils. A donation of $30,000 has recently been made to it by Mr. Williams, a citizen of the state. Its library contains 10,000 volumes. Washington College, (Hartford,) has received a legacy of $3,000 from the estate of Z. Marks.

DIVORCES. The Vice Chancellor of New York on Monday decided five cases in which application had been made for divorce, granting a decree in each. Only in one instance was the husband the applicant.

MAINE. The militia of Maine now consists of 46,338 men, distributed into corps as follows:—Cavalry 1,728; Artillery 2,212; Infantry 35,308; Light Infantry 4,884; Riflemen 2,206.

The deaths in New York for the year which has just gone by, 8,474. The ratio of mortality was 1 to 34 among the colored, and 1 to 40 among whites.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.,	"	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	"	Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	"	Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	"	Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	"	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	"	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	"	Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through out, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads, Weather and Storms!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—14[illegible] miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

☞ Passengers for the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road pay through to Petersburg, Va. For further information and Through Tickets, apply at the office of

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

FRIDAY MORNING, JAN. 29, 1841.

RAIL ROAD NOTES. We are informed that these notes have suddenly fallen to five per cent. discount, and that it is supposed there will be a further depreciation. Why is this? What has occurred to reduce the value of this paper? Nothing. They can be converted into six per cent. stock at any moment, with the whole property of the city of Baltimore pledged for principal and interest—and who will demand better security? Why then, we ask, this sudden and unexpected decline in their value? We think that we understand the management which is at work, and venture to assert that these notes will recover their par value as suddenly as they lost it. It is known that the legislature has authorized the banks to receive and issue rail road notes below five dollars, and there is no doubt that they will be so received and issued; and, as the banks will have to receive them at par, they will of course be at par with the community. Now, if either the brokers or the banks can, by management, reduce their value, previous to the resumption of specie payments, five or ten per cent. and purchase them at that depreciation, the difference will be pocketed as clear profit. Their sudden reduction in value is the result of misrepresentation and trickery, designed to cheat the unsuspecting; and we caution those who hold such notes not to part with them at a stiver below par. They are preferable (as far as relates to security) to any other paper currency, because, unless Baltimore be destroyed by an earthquake, or totally consumed by fire, (very improbable events,) it is impossible that the guarantee for their redemption can fail. Speculators may endeavor to produce a panic in relation to these notes, but if they are of doubtful character, why do these same speculators purchase them at a discount? They do not want to stock them; and if there is to be a further depreciation how are they to realize their money? We repeat that the whole is a trick, and that the rail road notes now selling at five per cent. discount, will, in a short time, be paid at the counters of the banks at par.

We speak plainly upon this subject, because we think it our duty to guard the public against a system of jugglery, which is to be played at the expense of the honest and industrious portion of the community.

THE PUBLIC LANDS AND THE TARIFF. The main argument relied on by the opponents of the distribution of the proceeds of the sales of public lands, is, that it would necessarily raise the tariff to fill the vacuum in the public treasury caused by the abstraction of the public land fund. This argument does not touch the justice of the question, as, if the distribution be just it should be made, without reference to the effect which it may have upon the tariff. We do not see why the two questions should be thus connected. It is true that the amount accruing from the sales of the public lands, now goes into the public treasury and is disbursed for general purposes—but he who has paid the least attention to the "signs of the times" must know that the real issue now is, between distribution and cession to the states in which the lands lie. But were it otherwise, and we had the certainty that the fund would continue to be applied as at present, we should still be in favor of distribution, and for the very reason that is urged against the measure, viz: that it might create the necessity for an increase of the tariff. Sound policy requires that foreign governments shall not be permitted to tax the labor of this country without retaliation. We think that the protection of domestic industry is an imperative duty, and that members of congress would be unfaithful to the trust reposed in them, if they legislate upon the principle once avowed, that "our workshops should be in Europe."

It is a strange objection to the distribution bill, thrt it would assist the states to discharge the obligations they they have contracted for works of internal improvement. We do not know any purpose to which the money could be better applied in the states so situated. We presume that it would not be misused in any state—but however it might be appropriated it would be productive of some benefit, which will be lost if the proposition to cede the lands be successful. Divest this matter of extraneous considerations—sever it entirely from partizan view—and there is not an intelligent man in Maryland who would not be favorable to the plan of distribution. The citizens of the old states begin to feel the necessity of having a speedy and permanent settlement of the land question, and are moving seriously in the business. They never can consent to be divested of their property, and will therefore insist upon the adoption of such measures as will secure to them their distributive share of the proceeds of the public lands. Another congress will not pass without final action in the matter.

TAXING BACHELORS AND WIDOWERS! The St. Louis Bulletin says: "We learn from a private correspondent at Jefferson, that an attempt was made to tax 'old bachelors and widowers.' We presume, however, the gentleman who offered the amendment which would embrace this class of citizens, was 'only joking.' If they would embrace old maids and widows, the law would be less exceptionable."

CAT-ASTROPHE. A dead cat was thrown upon the stage of the Richmond theatre, during the performance of "Matrimony in disguise," on Tuesday night. Mr. Jones walked forward and offered $100 reward for the person who could be so pussylanimous. It was no doubt done for amusement.

SCHOOL DISTRICT LIBRARY. We ask the attention of the commissioners of public schools in this city and throughout the state, where the public school system has been adopted, to the following remarks in relation to a popular and useful publication. If each of the public schools were supplied with the work here mentioned, it would prove highly beneficial to pupils, as the School District Library contains information upon most subjects of practical utility, and which pupils could not obtain in so condensed and useful a form. The propriety of providing a library for the use of public schools is so apparent, that we may be excused from urging the subject farther upon the attention of commissioners.

Harpers' School District Library. We have had occasion heretofore to speak of this valuable series of works published by the Harpers, in 145 volumes, and we are pleased with the opportunity of transferring to our columns the following excellent article on the subject from the Courier and Enquirer, in which we most heartily concur. N. Y. Signal.

"There is no part of Governor Seward's late message, in our opinion, more deserving public attention than that relating to these invaluable institutions; and most gratifying it is to learn that they are in a highly prosperous condition. We therefore give a distinct and separate insertion to the following extracts, and could wish that they might occupy a prominent place in every newspaper in the land. 'There are,' says the Governor, 'about eleven thousand school districts in the State. Of these school districts, there are very few which have not complied with the act providing for the establishment of school district libraries, and there are, at this time, in these various district libraries about one million of volumes. Within the five years limited by the law, there will have been expended in the purchase of books more than half a million of dollars. These libraries include general history and biography, voyages and travels, works on natural history and the physical sciences, treatises upon agriculture, commerce, manufactures and the arts, and judicious selections from modern literature.—Henceforth no citizen who shall have improved the advantages offered by our common schools, and the district libraries, will be without some scientific knowledge of the earth, its physical condition and phenomena, the animals that inhabit it, the vegetables that clothe it with verdure, and the animals under its surface, the physiology and the intellectual powers of man, the laws of mechanics, and their practical uses, those of chymistry, and their application to the arts, the principles of moral and political economy, the history of nations, and especially that of our own country, the progress and triumph of the democratic principle in the governments on this continent, and the prospect of ascendancy throughout the world, the trials and faith, valor and constancy of our ancestors, with all the inspiring examples of benevolence, virtue and patriotism exhibited in the lives of the benefactors of mankind. The fruits of this enlightened and benificent enterprise are chiefly to be gathered by our successors. But the present generation will not be altogether unrewarded. Although many of our citizens may pass the district library, heedless of the treasures it contains, the unpretending volumes will find their way to the fireside, diffusing knowledge, increasing domestic happiness, and promoting public virtue."

After speaking of our enormous importation of articles of mere luxury, its injurious effect upon the country, and the importance of disseminating correct view in relation to the encouragement of domestic industry, he again says, "I have observed with pleasure, that the School District Library, now in the course of publication by the enterprising Harpers, contains several interesting and instructive treatises upon political economy and agriculture, which cannot be without their just influence. The fruits of the seed thus scattered, are sure to be gathered. It is only to be regretted that this generation should not allow itself to anticipate them." When it is considered that the children now being enlightened by these libraries, are to become future legislators, the importance of these remarks must be apparent to every one.

One other extract in relation to a most benevolent and judicious use of these libraries, and we have done. "The complaints of cruelty which heretofore engaged public sympathy, and brought our penitentiary system into disrepute, have altogether ceased. Sunday schools have been maintained; and in pursuance of my recommendation, the cell of each prisoner is always supplied with a volume of the School District Library. This measure was followed by a gratifying improvement in the conduct of the prisoners. Many weary hours of solitary confinement are beguiled, resolutions of repentance and reformation are formed, and the minds of the unhappy convicts, accustomed to the contemplation of virtue and expanded by knowledge, are gradually prepared to resist the temptations which await them on their return to society." We wish that these enlightened and merciful views might meet the eye of every friend to humanity, that the prisoner's cell might everywhere be made a school of instruction, and his solitude relieved, and while sentiments of returning virtue would be excited within him, by the wholsome stimulus of intellectual occupation.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER. We are glad to hear that this spicy little sheet is well patronized, and that its circulation is rapidly increasing. It only proves that Baltimoreans know how to appreciate talent in a proper manner.—N. Y. Democrat.

We make our best bow to the editor of the Democrat for his compliment. It is true that the Clipper goes ahead with all sail set, wafted by the breese of popular favor. We abhor puffing, nor are we easily puffed up with prosperity—but could we be elated beyond moderation, we might be induced to brag of a circulation surpassed by but one or two papers in the Union. Our motto is "go ahead," and our practice is conformable.

"Give credit for our articles, which we prepare with trouble."—Argus.

Certainly—these things that are prepared with so much trouble ought to be accredited to their proper source. Yesterday the appointments in the Fire Department appeared in our paper without credit. We will be "magnanimous" and give the "Argus" the credit of the appointments.—Now that we have made the atonement—take care that you do not fall into the same error yourself, and whenever any appointments are made by the city council, credit the Clipper with them.

☞The southern papers continue to complain of the irregularity of the northern and eastern mails.

We received no papers south of Mobile yesterday.

DROWNED. A man by the name of Robert Grant, a native of Scotland, was accidentally drowned at Mobile on the 18th.

LOTTERIES. We have received a communication touching the conduct of D. S. Gregory & Co. lottery contractors, and their agent in this city, but must be excused from publishing it entire, as portions of it are of too private and personal a character for our columns. We have no objections to insert any commentary upon the lottery system as conducted under the management of Messrs. Gregory & Co. or upon the immorality and injurious tendency of the whole lottery system—but the principle and not the individual must be the object of attack.

We give below such parts of the communication as are admissable:

"What means this controversy between the lottery agents and contractors and state commissioners? and why is the public appealed to? If either has any claim on the public, which is it? It is asserted in favor of lotteries, that while they take from the prodigal, they lessen the necessity of taxing industry for the support of government—the good more than balancing the evil effects of the system. But what is this boasted system of D. S. Gregory, in behalf of which he appeals to the public? Is it the drawing of dead grants for objects which have long passed away, and the grants for which have been bought in for little or nothing. A grant was obtained in Rhode Island years ago for the purpose of uniforming a company of soldiers, and long after the uniforms had been worn out, and the company disbanded, the lottery was in full blast. What interest has the community in such a lottery? And yet, under this and other like grants a large amount of foreign tickets have been sold in this city, while few or no prizes have been disposed of. Surely if the blanks are sold and few or no prizes, immense amounts are taken from the city. Out of the sales of at least half a million of dollars worth of tickets per annum in the last seven years, there has not been sold in the city of Baltimore one prize of twenty thousand dollars in a whole ticket, or any share of a prize to that amount except one quarter in the Town Hall lottery. Must not the managers' profits be immense?

D. S. Gregory, in his lament upon the downfall of his system, dismisses without ceremony the state commissioners. Would he draw and certify the result himself. The state commissioners have too long authorised the drawing of the 75 and 78 number lotteries."

The writer then comments, in severe terms, upon the course pursued towards lottery venders by the agent of D. S. Gregory & Co., charging him with illegal conduct, &c. &c.; but we cannot give place to his observations, as they have no bearing upon the public interests.

JAS. B. GLENTWORTH. This individual has, we hear with pleasure, been indicted by the Grand Jury now sitting.

There will be now an opportunity of sifting judicially, and establishing or confuting the charge of procuring illegal votes.—N. Y. Amer.

Our readers will recollect that, preceding the late election, Glentworth was charged with having procured illegal voters from Philadelphia in preceding years. This was denied by Glentworth, who charged his accusers with an attempt to bribe him to commit perjury. We are glad that this business is about to be submitted to judicial investigation; that, if the allegation against Glentworth be substantiated, he may be punished in the most exemplary manner. We trust that in every instance where fraud has been, or may hereafter be, practised to control elections through the agency of imported or illegal voters, the most rigid scrutiny will be had, and the guilty parties visited with the severest punishment the law will admit.

There is an evident necessity for a revision of the election laws, that the rights of the legal voter may be better guarded, and the practices of illegal voters more certainly punished—and we have before called the attention of our legislature to the subject. It is a matter of the first importance, if the elective franchise be considered worthy of being preserved in purity—but if hired voters can be transported from place to place, and be permitted to vote as party interests may require, not only will elections cease to be the true expression of public sentiment, but the country will be delivered into the hands of demagogues and knaves, to be ruled as their interests may dictate.

LATEST FROM CHINA. We learn from the Philadelphia Gazette of Wednesday, that the ship Montezuma has arrived at the Breakwater from Manilla, whence she sailed on the first of September. She brings accounts from Macao to the middle of August. The Chinese had seized an English Missionary and had taken him to Canton, where he was menaced with decapitation. The English had demanded his release in five days, which was declined; and they had, in consequence, attacked and destroyed the Chinese fort, which divides the Chinese from the Portuguese jurisdiction, near Macao, and killed sixty or seventy Chinese, with trifling loss on their part. The forts at the Bocca Tigris have two hundred cannon mounted, and were so formidable that the English did not choose to attack. The universal opinion was, that the force of the British in China was inadequate to make any important impression, and that there was no probability of any renewal of the foreign trade. Indeed it was thought that years might elapse before that event would take place.

MORTON, THE "NICE YOUNG MAN." Our readers may remember this gentleman, who a week or two since endeavored to obtain five similes of the Baltimore post office—but was checked in his swindling career by our police. The St. Louis Gazette copies our account of him, and the editor writes the following on the margin of the paper:

"This Morton is a grand villain. He "eloped" from these "diggins" a few months since, having been discovered in attempting to commit all sorts of monkey shines, such as passing himself off as a son of gov. Morton, of Mass.—pretending to be a preacher, &c. He didn't come it over many here, except one or two female women."

DR. ELDRIDGE. A jury was empannelled yesterday morning for the purpose of again trying Dr. Eldridge for forgery. There are several bills of indictment still against him.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28, 1841.

The Speaker laid before the House a communication from the post office department, describing the new post routes which have been established during the past year.

The Senate bill, providing for the taking of evidence in the District of Columbia, and a host of bills of a private character, were taken up, read twice and referred.

The House then went into committee of the whole, and resumed the consideration of the treasury note bill.

Mr. Wise being entitled to the floor, yielded it to Mr. Duncan, who wished to make an explanation in relation to the remarks of Mr. Wm. C. Johnson on yesterday.

Mr. Duncan then read the report of the Globe of his remarks on Tuesday, and where he is represented as saying that Mr W. C. Johnson was "a base liar, a contemptible puppy, a scoundrel, and an infamous coward."

Mr. D. proceeded to say, that to his utter astonishment he perceived by the Intelligencer, that Mr. Johnson had denied that he, Mr. D., had used such language. He, Mr. D., said he did use every word of it, and did then and there reiterate it every word.

Mr. Johnson made a brief reply, in which he reiterated his former charge.

Mr. Stanley endeavored to get the floor, but Mr. Wise thought no good would arise from any further discussion on personal matters, and therefore refused.

Mr. W. then went on with his remarks upon the bill before the committee.

In the Senate the cry from the main-top is still "land ho!" but when the bill will get to land nobody can tell.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

WASHINGTON LIGHT INFANTRY. This fine Company, belonging to the city of Washington, it will be perceived, intend giving their anniversary ball at Carusi's room on the 2d of February. We feel a strong disposition to pay them a public compliment for the handsome and strictly military manner their entertainment was gotten up last year, when we had the honor of footing it with some of the loveliest girls in the District—but, let that pass; the coming fete is the thing—and though a wrinkle or two may be added to our brow, yet we think we shall brush up and figure on "the light fantastic toe." What will Mrs. Grundy say?—odds! pirrouettes and hairtriggers! Captain France, lay aside a bottle of prime Chateau Margeaux for our especial use—and invite the "powder monkey" to sip it with us.

"EXPERIENCE" MEETING. On Wednesday night a large concourse of people of both sexes assembled at the Eutaw street meeting house to hear the "experience" of the members of the Washington Temperance Society. No doubt many an appalling fact was brought out for individual contemplation, but there were some persons present who experienced rather more than they wished. We have been informed that a number of ladies' mantillas were ruined by either the wantonness or envy of their own sex, who, with scissors or knives cut out large pieces of the cloth. One lady had the majority of her cape cut off. Some polished reformer used a gentleman's hat for a "spittoon," and ornamented the interior in handsome style with the "juice of the nauseous weed." The Anti-tobacco-chewing-Society should take the affair into consideration; for the members of the Temperance Societies in their laudable exertions to do good, have enough to do to reform the drunkard.

COUNTY COURT. Yesterday the arguments in reference to the great shinplaster cases pending before the court for the last two days, were brought to a close. We had intended publishing the trial in full, but as the decision was not given, and will not be probably for some two or three days, we deem it unnecessary to say anything farther upon the subject at present.

We would remark, however, that the opinion or decision of the court in this case will be of great importance, and will almost effectually determine the future destiny of shinplasters, or in other words notes of a less denomination than $5, issued in this state as a circulating medium.

ROBBERY. The Patriot of last evening says—Capt. Wm. Wallace, on his passage from Charleston to Wilmington, N. C., in the steamboat, had his pocket book taken from the pocket of his coat, which was under his pillow. It contained several bills of exchange, drawn on New York and Baltimore, and about $400 in cash, in bank notes.

There was a search instituted on board the boat, but nothing was discovered.

WATCH REPORTS. In the Eastern District last night, Henry Brooks was found lying in the street intoxicated. In the Middle District, John Valts, exhibiting symptoms of insanity, was brought in at 9 o'clock. Henry Wilson applied for lodgings. Both released in the morning. In the Western District, Charles Boyce was discovered in an intoxicated state, by a police officer, and locked up till morning.

FIRE. Last night, about 12 o'clock, a fire broke out in a frame building, occupied by a cedar cooper and lock-smith situated on west Baltimore st. opposite the Gen. Wayne Inn, it was however, by the prompt exertion of our firemen, confined to the premises in which it originated.

WORTHY OF EXAMPLE. The committee of Catholics in New York, upon whom it devolves to make preparations for the celebration of St. Patrick's Day, on the 17th of March next, in that city, have decided that no kind of intoxicating liquor shall be placed on the table, at the supper on that occasion, or be allowed in the hall where they shall assemble. Water is to be the only drink

A HEAD. The Richmond Star has got a new head, of which the editor seems extremely proud. There is nothing said about brains, without which no paper can go a-head.

CONSUMPTION.

☞ Consumption, that fell Destroyer! More Proofs of the efficacy of Doctor SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP of WILD CHERRY, in relieving afflicted Man. To Dr. SWAYNE.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, that it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. MRS. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 25 cents per bottle.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

SERGEANT AT ARMS. We hasten to publish the communication of our Georgetown correspondent, Jupiter, recommending a deserving man for the office of sergeant at arms to the United States Senate. If gods tremble at the commands of Jupiter, surely men cannot resist when he entreats in favor of a veteran of sterling worth. We had rather have a hundred such men as Mr. Boyd rewarded with office, than one noisy blockhead, who, like "babbling echo," repeats, but cannot originate. We hope the honorable Senators will take the claims of Mr. Boyd into serious consideration; for, although personally unacquainted with Mr. Boyd, we think we can safely underwrite for our friend Jupiter.

JUPITER would respectfully call the attention of United States Senators to the undeniable fact, that of all the survivors who actually participated in that noble and daring act, the destruction of the frigate Philadelphia in the harbor of Tripoli, in the year 1804, Joseph K. Boyd, Esq. stands alone unrewarded. Shall it stand recorded in this generous and enlightened age, that the Senate of the United States, the most honorable and dignified body of men in the world, left this gallant veteran to feel his way through life unnoticed and unrewarded? It cannot, it will not, I am certain, when honorable Senators give the subject a full and fair investigation. The time will soon arrive when this honorable body will have it in their power to reward this brave, intelligent and very active man, by bestowing upon him, as an act of duty, the station of sergeant-at-arms of that body.

Of all the applicants for this office none have a more solid claim upon the gratitude of their country than J. K. Boyd, Esq. As to his peculiar fitness for the station, no one acquainted with him would call it in question.

The system pursued by Bonaparte, (when he laughed to scorn the pretensions of mighty kings,) in rewarding his gallant warriors, would answer exceedingly well in the present case. He never was known to leave unrewarded a meritorious case. He always showed, on these important occasions, a spirit of liberality well becoming a great and mighty conqueror. And shall it be said that Bonaparte had more of the refined and generous feeling of the human heart than the Senate of the United States? No, no; it cannot, it will not be said—but Senators, looking well to the future destiny of our common country, will, I am sure, confer upon this gentleman a mark of their unbounded approbation, as a token to ages yet unborn, that he who serves his country honorably and faithfully shall be rewarded in a manner commensurate with the deed itself.

Mr. Catalina, who acted as pilot and interpreter in this hazardous expedition, has been not only rewarded with a pension, but actually holds the rank and pay of a sailing master in the U. S. navy. This is right, very right.

There is one other in this case whose merits have not been properly appreciated, I mean Commodore Charles Morris. A more noble and gallant sea officer we have not in our navy. He possesses a heart that beats high for his country's glory, and when called to defend the proud stripes and stars of this republic, he will say to its enemies, "thus far shalt thou go and no farther."

CITY COUNCIL—First Branch, Jan. 28, 1841. The Council met agreeable to adjournment—all the members present.

After the previous day's proceedings were read, Mr. Dryden presented the petition of R. Norris, relative to erroneously paid taxes. Referred to the committee on claims.

Mr. Dryden also called up some unfinished business, relative to selling manure to the authorities of the alms-house, which was referred to the committee on alms-house.

Mr. Pinkney offered the report of the joint committee on claims, relative to a petition offered by R. B. Varden, asking a refund of taxes erroneously paid by him. The report was unfavorable and the committee discharged.

Mr. Pinkney also offered the report of the joint committee on claims, relative to the petition of Wm. McLean and others, praying for regular pay as city watchmen, while attending court at Annapolis. The report was unfavorable.

Also, a report of the same committee, relative to a refund of taxes illegally paid by W. R. Hall, which was favorable.

Mr. DeLoughrey offered the report of the joint committee on health, relative to a portion of the message of the Mayor touching that subject. The report was unfavorable and laid on the table.

A communication was received by the President of the First Branch, signed Jesse Hunt, which was accompanied by a number of documents originating in the previous sessions of the councils in 1840, which were read and referred to appropriate committees.

The application of Solomon W. Wilson, relative to markets, on motion of Mr. Cole, was called up and referred from joint committee on claims to committee on markets.

A message was received from the Second Branch, relative to the petition of Wm. McLean and others, which was concurred in.

Also, in relation to W. R. Hall, which was likewise concurred in.

A message was received from the Mayor which proved to be a communication from Henry White, Esq. declining his appointment as commissioner of public schools. A message was sent to the Second Branch, proposing to fill the vacancy produced by the resignation of Mr. White at the next conventional meeting of the council, which was assented to by the Second Branch.

A message was received from the Second Branch, proposing that when the Councils adjourn this evening they adjourn until Monday next. The message was non-concurred in. The council then adjourned until to-morrow at half past three o'clock.

P. S. Mr. Gorsuch made a speech in opposition to the passage of a resolution relative to Mr. Varden.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE. The Hon. Abbott Lawrence has withdrawn his name from the list of candidates from among whom is to be selected the successor of Mr. Webster, who, it is expected, will resign his seat about the middle of February, in order to enable the legislature now in session to nominate his successor.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident o their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.f

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

Opinion of the New York Press:

We have been favored with a copy of a steel engraving of the Light House near Caldwell's Landing, intended to illustrate the January number of the Ladies' Companion, published by Mr. Snowden, 109 Fulton-st. CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. FLORENCE.

Thou art before my vision now,
Bright image of that pure fair girl,
With golden curls hung 'round thy brow,
Like clustered sunshine on a pearl.

Thine eyes—those eyes of soft sweet blue,
Beneath their white fringed lids they lie,
Twinkling like starlight, stealing thro'
A snow cloud, in the far off sky.

And oh! the heart, my Florence best,
Which was with thy rare beauty given,
An angel might with pride be blest,
Earth claimed it not—'twas all of Heaven.

Thou art no more—years have fled by,
Since that sad hour when last we met,
Thy grave lies 'neath a southern sky,
But my fond heart still mourns thee yet.

And in the lone and silent night,
Forth to you land of sunny bloom,
My yearning memory wings its flight,
To greet thee in thy happy home.

Fair there—I would not win thee back,
Sweet spirit, freed to earthly care;
To shine within a holier sphere.

Baltimore, Jan. 27, 1841. EMILY.

A SCOTCH DON JUAN—Four wives murdered—a starved mother eating her own child, &c. Never, perhaps, since the time of Lord Byron, has a handsomer face been seen than that of Sir C. Waterfort. His full dark eyes, his expansive forehead, and his small and gentlemanly hand, distinguished him among all the ladies of this part of the country. Nothing was so dangerous to their peace of mind as his conversation, and nothing so seductive as his little flatteries. In short he turned all their heads. But Sir Charles had a ruinous vice, which blighted everything. He was a gambler. He had espoused rich and noble ladies, whose doweries should have made him a rich man, for he had four wives, who were all dead, and slept forever in the same tomb. To-day Sir Charles Waterfort appeared before a jury, in company with a Dr. Black, charged with having attempted the death of his wife, Lady Betsy Rap, by starvation. At the commencement of the present year this lady, contrary to the wishes of her family, married Sir Charles, already four times a widower. She had long loved him, and it was in vain that her family remonstrated with her, and pointed out the mysterious fate of the four deceased wives. The marriage was celebrated, and Lady Betsy in due time presented the worthy Baronet with an heir to his title. Her ladyship one day feeling slightly indisposed, Dr. Black was called in. He felt the pulse of his patient, examined the tongue, and prescribed a diet. The diet was continued until the unfortunate lady was almost mad. Nothing but liquids was allowed her, not a particle of bread must enter her lips.

In a fit of delirium she snatched up her infant, and seemed in the very act of devouring it to satisfy the cravings of nature, when the piercing cries of the child brought the father into the room, who could not bear the thoughts of losing the child, although he had planned the destruction of its mother. To save the child he ordered food to be given to the parent, and thus to a sort of paternal instinct, against which the hardened heart of Sir Charles was not quite proof, her ladyship owed her preservation.

Sir Charles Waterfort was further charged with having, by the assistance of Dr. Black, caused the death of his four first wives by the same means, in order to get their fortunes, for the purpose of liquidating the debts which his gambling propensities were continually incurring. The noble prosecutrix simply stated the fact of her having been starved, as above stated, but said she had nothing more to say against the prisoners. Twenty-one witnesses were examined in proof of the facts of the case, consisting of the servants and treasury of the accused Baronet. Both prisoners were found guilty, and sentenced to twenty years transportation.

GRATITUDE OF A CAT.

The cat certainly cannot boast much of its reputation for gratitude; but a correspondent says "I have met with some instances which prove that there is a diversity of character and feeling in cats as well as men. I was on a visit to a friend last summer, who had a favorite cat and dog, that lived together on the best possible terms, eating from the same plate and sleeping on the same rug. Puss had a young family while I was at the park, and Pincher paid a daily visit to the kittens, whose nursery was at the top of the house. One morning there was a tremendous storm of thunder and lightning: Pincher was in the drawing room, and the cat was attending her family in the garret. Pincher seemed to be considerably annoyed by the vivid flashes of lightning which continually startled him, and just as he had crept closer to my feet, some one entered the drawing room followed by puss, who walked in with a disturbed air as wing with all her might. She came up to Pincher—rubbed her face against his cheek—touched him gently with her paw, and then walked to the door—stopped—looked back, viewed all of which said as plainly as words could have done. 'Come with me, Pincher;' but Pincher was too much frightened himself to give any consolation to her, and took no notice of the invitation. The cat then returned and renewed her application with increased energy; but the dog was immoveable, though it was evident that he understood her meaning, for he turned away his head with a half-conscious look and crept still closer to me; and puss, finding all her entreaties unavailing, then left the room. Soon after this her mewing became so piteous, that I could no longer resist going to see what was the matter. I met the cat at the top of the stairs; close to the open door of my sleeping apartment. She ran to me, rubbed here if against me, and then went into the room and crept under the wardrobe. I then heard two voices, and discovered that she had brought down one of her kittens and lodged it there for safety; but her fears and cares being so divided between the kittens above and the little one below, I supposed she wanted Pincher to watch by this one while she went for the others, for having confided them to my protection she hastened up stairs. I followed her with my young charge, placed it beside her, and moved their little bed further from the window through which the lightning had flashed so vividly as to alarm poor puss for the safety of her family. I remained there till the storm had subsided, and all was again calm. On the following morning, much to my surprise, I found puss waiting for me at the door of my apartment; she accompanied me down to breakfast, sat by me and caressed me in every possible way. She had always been in the habit, of going down to breakfast with the lady of the house, but on this morning she had resisted all her coaxing to leave my door, and would not move a step till I made my appearance. She went to the breakfast-room with me, and remained, as I have mentioned, until breakfast was over, and then went up stairs to her family. She had never done this before, and never did it again; she had shown her gratitude for my care of her little ones, and her duty was done."

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 28th, 1841.

Mr. Thayer presented the memorial of sundry citizens of Allegany county, praying that a law may be passed authorising the banks of the State to issue one, two and three dollar notes. Referred to committee on ways and means.

Mr. Poultney presented a petition from the commissioners of Baltimore county, praying the passage of an act regulating the joint property of the city and county of Baltimore. Referred to a select committee, viz: Messrs. Poulney, Holmes, Orrick, Graves and Gallagher.

On motion of Mr. Nichols, the committee, to whom was referred the memorial of the President and Visiters of the Maryland Hospital, were instructed to proceed to Baltimore to visit and examine that institution.

On motion of Mr. Bowie, it was ordered that the committee on ways and means be instructed to inquire into the expediency of imposing a tax on the Clerks and Register and all other public officers in this state who are paid by fees of office or commission.

The bill from the Senate, to give the chancellor and county courts as courts of equity jurisdiction in cases of divorce, was made the order of the day for the 3d of Feb.

The bill from the Senate, entitled an act declaratory of the law authorising the closing of judgments in the several county courts of this state, and the amendment reported thereto from the committee on grievances and courts of justice, was read as amended and passed.

The order of the day, the bill reported by Mr. Foreman, entitled an act to repeal certain parts of an act, relating to charges for transportation on the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, was taken up. The question before the House was the amendment offered by Mr. Legrand on the 26th inst. as an additional section to the bill. The vote being taken upon the amendment, it was determined in the negative.

Another motion was then made to amend it, which excited considerable debate, and is still pending.

In the Senate, leave was granted to report a bill to prevent the exaction of oppressive wharfage in Baltimore.

DR. HINES RE-CAPTURED. The N. O. Bulletin of the 18th says, this notorious convict, after remaining in the swamp two or three days, being tired of longer fasting, came out to a plantation on the highlands and requested the negroes to take his irons off. The slaves at once took measures for securing him, in which they effectually succeeded, notwithstanding the Doctor offered resistance with a bowie knife. He was again taken to his proper place in the cells of the Penitentiary.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

A few days ago, a very learned and pious minister of the church said Jupiter had been disarmed of his thunder, and Venus of her charms, by the force and power of the cause in which he is enlisted. Now, sir, I am exceedingly mortified to find that it should have become necessary for this gentleman to say before the assembled wisdom and beauty of our common country, that Jupiter had become disarmed of his thunder, when, in fact, I am still on the great theatre of action, thundering away in a manner that will give new life and vigor to the Baltimore Clipper, a paper every way fitted for the more useful and appropriate duties of disseminating truth and light on all the more important questions of the day. I would call the attention of all my friends in the District of Columbia to the fact that this paper has a large subscription list here—and ere long it will be extended to a length sufficiently respectable to call the exclusive attention of the advertising public to its columns—Mercury of the Sun to the contrary notwithstanding.

Having said this much for myself, I will leave Venus for the present in your arms, believing that you are every way qualified to make her happy; and proceed to give the public a sketch of the following members of the Union Literary and Debating Society.

Mr. Dent. A very good clerk, a considerable debater, and withal possessing a fine mind.—With my limited knowledge of this member's reasoning faculties, I think he bids fair to become a very useful acquisition to the association.

Mr. Harrison. This member is, without mental hesitation or equivocation of mind in me whatever, decidedly a giant in tongue-fighting. He wields a three-edged sword at times, and cuts so deep that I have seen members wincing and receding under the heavy blows that he has been compelled to deal upon them. He once made a speech to St. Patrick, in which he carried his eulogistic powers to such an extreme, as to beget the apprehension that the Saint would rise from the tomb to thank the speaker for his compliments.

BUENOS AYRES. The New Orleans papers state that as soon as the news of the treaty between Admiral Mackau and Rosas reached Montevideo, the Government of that Province (under President Fructuosa Rivera) immediately placed an embargo on all the vessels in that harbor, in order to prohibit their going up to Buenos Ayres. The American and English Commodores formally protested against this embargo, and ordered all vessels belonging to their respective nations to get ready to leave the harbor instantly. Commodore Ridgely, with the U. S. ships Potomac and Decatur, intended remaining at the river till these difficulties were over.

FIRE AT ST. LOUIS. A serious fire occurred at St. Louis on the morning of the 16th in South Main street. It broke out in the saddler's shop of Mr. Martin, which was entirely consumed, it then communicated to the store of Raborg & Schafner, leather dealers, which was consumed with about $5000 worth of goods. Two other buildings were injured. There was no insurance.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	" Washington	8 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	" Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	" Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	" Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	" Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	" Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is out of a connection through-out, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads Weather!! and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

☞ Passengers for the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road pay through to Petersburg, Va. For further information and Through Tickets, apply at the office of British Navy. We have been politely furnished with a few Scotch and English papers, from one of which we cut the following comparative view of the naval strength of various powers in 1793 and in 1840, from which it will be seen that England, in the latter year, possessed more line of battle ships than all the other powers combined. Her superiority in naval strength was probably about the same in 1812, when she engaged in war with this country; and yet the skill and bravery of American commanders and seamen humbled her pride, and rendered her numerical advantage of little consequence. Since that period, however, a new mode of naval warfare has been introduced, and steam has been substituted for canvas. She has been prompt in the application of this new power to purposes of war, and other nations have followed her example. The United States alone appear to lie dormant, as if insensible to the necessity of being prepared for any crisis—but this indifference cannot continue. The people will demand from their representatives the construction of so many steam frigates as may be required to protect our seaports from destruction; and now, whilst we have the opportunity to make these and other preparations for defence, undisturbed, is the auspicious time to commence the work. We know not what a month or a day may bring forth. Our relations with Great Britain are not of so amicable a character as to permit us to slumber in security—and the safest way to prevent aggression is to be prepared to resist it.

The exhausted condition of the public treasury may be thought to form an obstacle to such an undertaking; but is there any probability that, under existing circumstances, with the progressive diminution of duties, the treasury will be replenished? We think not. Shall we then remain in our present defenceless condition until necessity compels us to action? We trust that we shall not be guilty of the folly; but forthwith place such duties on foreign productions, as, whilst they protect home industry, will afford the means of putting the nation in an attitude of defence.

[From the Devonport Telegraph.]

The British Navy. The British navy, in 1793, contained 153 line of battle ships, including all the receiving ships, hulks, and those on the stocks building. Of the foreign navies then existing, we have, by dint of many inquiries among old officers who were in active service at the commencement of the last war, and searching "James' Naval History," and other records of those days, obtained the following account, which may be considered as entitled to every credit, being as accurate a statement as can be produced under the circumstances. With the exception of France, none of the naval powers of the day published any official returns of their marine, and France so frequently changed the names of her vessels, that we do not profess to be precisely correct to a single ship.

Here we perceive that, in 1793, while England possessed 153 sail of the line, the other maritime powers could muster 268. But a comparison at the present day presents a very different result—

Our naval detractors should look on this picture and on that, and ask themselves what ground there can possibly be for all their clamor. England is now stronger on her native element than the whole world in arms. In 1793, when she entered upon the greatest naval war ever recorded in history, she was little more than half as strong, comparatively, as at present, and yet she crushed every power in battle, and made their fleets her own.

We are dull exceedingly to-day, and cannot hammer out any thing witty, by any possible chance.—N. Y. Planet.

There's nothing unusual in that, friend Planet.

Premature publications. While it is our custom and duty to complain of the follies and expose the evils of the world, yet in attempting to do this, we should not forget that we have misgivings of our own, too frequently overlooked, and in some cases to the detriment and at the expense of the innocent. Premature publications upon the part of those having control of that all-potent engine, the press, have (we say it with deep regret) been instrumental in blasting the fair fame of innocence, and despoiling forever that which is the foundation of all hope—a good name. The evil of this practice may, in the first place, be attributed to the absence of a proper public taste. With many who are devoted to the perusal of public journals there exists an indescribable desire to read of the misfortunes and foibles of their fellow men. A mystic allusion relative to the fall of virtue, the chronicle of some black-hearted deed perpetrated by the midnight assassin, a tale of uncompromisable scandal touching the character of a persecuted individual—that even which borders upon indiscrete and improper action of almost every description, is read by a large number with more avidity than would be the chaste reflections of a moralist, the instructive descriptions of the historian, the good sense of the common writer, or the deep, profound speculations of the philanthropist and the philosopher. This taste, therefore, existing with a large portion of the public, those who serve them with intelligence have been blindly led into the error of fostering, instead of correcting it.

To arrive at truth is one great point, and to exercise judgment in making it public is another. It is impossible—just as much so as it would be to "dam up the Nile with bulrushes," for us to draw correct conclusions, involving the interests of different individuals, without time, mature judgment and proper deliberation. But how stands the case? This matter and that are gathered up by piecemeal, perhaps from biassed or interested parties, thrown together in eagerness to be first, without the maturing hand of time or the slightest reflection, not knowing perhaps either of the parties concerned, and published to the world for the reader's disposal according to his own blinded judgment. Though unintended by the writer, one single premature paragraph thus carelessly and loosely made public may contain within it a sting which will sink deep into the vitals of innocence, and leave an impression to be blotted out only in the home of departed memory. Often the female character is unjustly invaded by some hungry scribbler, in order to manufacture an item—and, great God! can it be possible that there are any so debased as to touch a hem so sacred, and prostrate it for ever in oblivion's night, merely for the purpose of pleasing an insatiable and corrupt taste. A word may blast a reputation which ten thousand volumes cannot repair. These are private matters with which the public have no business. Let them die then within the sphere of their own guilt and be forgotten. A community can always be furnished by the press with instructive matter, such as will teach of virtue, not through the instrumentality of false reports, base accusations and infamous libels, but through the influence of virtue itself. Let every writer keep this fact in mind, that the character and good name of others are as priceless to them as his is to him. Let him touch no subject where can exist the slightest possibility of doing harm.

Quarrelling. We dislike a quarrelsome disposition, and act upon the principle that it is better to step aside than to encounter a man of that temperament. If forbearance be commendable in private life, it is still more praiseworthy when exhibited in a public station—and hence we never read the accounts of personal controversies in the houses of Congress without feelings of deep mortification. We wish that members could be prevailed upon to forego these scenes. We know the difficulty of restraining the temper under a state of excitement; but if members would reflect that "harsh words break no bones," they would see the futility of exchanging epithets, which, however they may irritate, fail to subdue the adversary. Too much latitude is given in debates, and the slanderous viper misuses this liberty to spit his venom upon the most worthy. The lowest creature that crawls through slime and dirt into the halls of Congress thinks itself privileged to scatter its filth over the most able, virtuous and upright of the country; as if bespattering the great could ennoble the vile. There are men so contemptible that even a kick would bring them into some respect. But even the kick should be withheld. We have seen such men in all parties.

But there are men of a higher order of intellect, and of unquestioned respectability, who sometimes forget that "discretion is the better part of valor," and permit the impetuosity of their feelings to force them into false positions. This has frequently occurred in Congress, and sometimes with lamentable results. And we have a recent instance which we are sure will be viewed with regret when passion shall have subsided. We allude to the dispute between W. Cost Johnson, Esq. and Doctor Duncan. With Mr. Johnson we have the pleasure of a personal acquaintance, and have always considered him as generous as he is brave. We know not the precise grounds of dispute; but we think that the controversy has been carried too far, and should be dropped. The duelling law prohibits fighting, and if it did not, we hope that good sense would prevent conflict. We think that the language used by both gentlemen was unbecoming their station, and could have been spared with advantage—for however such scenes may gratify the morbid appetite, they are revolting to the moral feeling of the country.

Steamboat lost. The Ricuzi was snagged about 60 miles below St. Louis, a few days since, and it is feared that she and her cargo will both be a total loss.

☞On Thursday evening last we attended the anniversary meeting of the Humane Impartial Society, held at the Baptist Church, in Sharp-st. The number of ladies and gentlemen present was large. After a very fervent prayer by the Rev. Dr. Johns, the Rev. Mr. Hill arose, and in a few brief though beautiful remarks, stated the object of the meeting. He was followed by Z. Collins Lee, Esq., who in his usual touching and eloquent manner, reverted with great force to the claims of the widow and orphan upon the charitable feelings of a benevolent world. After Mr. Lee had finished, the Rev. Mr. Rice came upon the stand. He, in a very masterly style, painted the deplorable situation of the unfortunate poor. Some of his appeals struck directly home. They fell upon the heart with irresistible eloquence and caused the fountain of charity to send forth the pure water of life. Upon the close of Mr. Rice's remarks a liberal collection was taken up, when the Rev Mr. Purviance dismissed the meeting by the delivery of a most solemn, beautiful and touching prayer.

There is certainly no one understanding the nature of the Humane Impartial Society but would be willing to give it encouragement. To this institution are attached a large number of subscribers who are required to pay the annual sum, only, of one dollar. Those who reap the benefit of this small donation are poor widows and their little famishing children. The repository of the society is located in S. Gay-st., a few doors from Market. For general information, we would state, that there the poor, industrious widow can at all times be found ready to perform, in the best manner, at the shortest notice and upon the most reasonable terms, for the purpose of supporting herself and offspring, such needlework as may be given her to do by a generous community. One distinct and beautiful feature of the Humane Impartial Society, is, that it proposes to encourage industry. It seeks out the indigent, disconsolate widow, and places her in a situation where she can almost, if not entirely, support herself and those dependent upon her, by her own willing perseverance. We would respectfully suggest to young gentlemen, as well as ladies, who have garments to make, to give this society a call. We are told (indeed we know from experience) that the work is performed most faithfully and at reasonable prices.

Barbarism. In an account from the Savannah Republican, of the killing of two Indians by the Georgia volunteers, it is stated that "the two scalps, with two rifles and powder, a few dollars in silver, (found in one of the pockets,) and a handsome Bowie knife, were brought in as trophies."

We think it full time to abolish by law or military orders, this abominable practice of scalping enemies. It is inhuman and disgraceful, and totally inconsistent with civilization and refinement, to say nothing of christianity. It is supposed to have originated with the progenitors of the American Indians, who required their youth to destroy an enemy before being admitted into the rank of men, and as the best evidence of such exploit was the enemy's head, it was usual to cut off and exhibit it. In time scalping was substituted, as affording the same testimony with less trouble. And it is this barbarous custom that the soldiers and volunteers of the United States now imitate. We object to its continuance as unnecessary and degrading, and as having a tendency to derogate from the American character.

Fanny Elssler. After emptying the pockets and turning the heads of half the young men of this country, Fanny is about to figure in Havana to the tune of $1000 per night, with a benefit which it is supposed will produce her from four to five thousand dollars. If the words of the song 'the face can smile when the purse is well lined,' be true, Fanny ought to have perpetual sunshine on her countenance; for certes, her light heels have made a heavy pocket. Even Spanish gravity is about to relax in her favor, and to cover her with doubloons in recompense for the exposure of her person. Such is public taste. But

"Let Hercules himself do what he may,
The cat will mew, the dog will have his day."

And so our moralizing against such exhibitions is likely to be time misspent.

Clerks and Registers. Mr. Bowie, chairman of the committee of ways and means, seems to be actively engaged in searching for proper objects of taxation, and has proposed a tax upon clerks and registers. Very correct—for in matters of taxation the scripture rule, "to him that hath shall be given," must be reversed, and from him that hath must be taken. Clerks and registers have snug berths, and should not repose on beds of roses whilst others have thorns in their pillows. How would it do to make every civil state officer pay for his commission in proportion to the value of his office? In these office-seeking times there would be no commissions returned for non-acceptance, and a clever little revenue might be raised. Perhaps, also, attorneys, physicians, brokers, &c. would like to contribute to the public necessities, by paying for a license. The committee must remember that "many littles make a muckle."

Register's Report. The receipts of the register from all sources, during the year which terminated on the 31st Dec., 1840, (including a small balance in the treasury the preceding year,) were $1,205,359 55, and the expenditures on all accounts during the same period, $1,203,457 72—leaving a balance in the treasury at the beginning of this year, of $1,901 63 cents.

Yankees in China. The most interesting intelligence, says the Phil. Spirit of the Times, recently brought from China, by the Montezuma of that port, is a rumor that the crews of two American ships, the Panama and Kosciusko, had deserted and entered into the service of the Chinese—in their resistance of British aggression—and that they have been employed expressly to man the Bogue Forts.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

Baltimore Choir. The concert of this association on Thursday night drew together an unusually large audience, and every person appeared to be gratified with the highly creditable exhibition the members made of their proficiency in vocal music. The chorusses, generally speaking, were full, though they might have proved more effective had there been greater power in the soprano department, which, in truth, was sustained by three or four voices. The solo of "When our weary limbs to rest," was ably sustained by a lady enjoying an enviable reputation as a vocalist—the composition, by one of our first masters, is not pleasing, it apparently being intended merely for a display of the power and compass of the voice, without regard to any particular subject. The young lady who sang "Christ stilling the tempest," has cause to be proud of the flexibility of her voice—with proper care and tuition she might rank among the first vocalists of the day. The soprano voice in "Lord remember David" was also conspicuous, and governed with much taste. In the spirited solo of "The trumpet shall sound," the trumpet passages were executed with uncommon skill by Mr. Wm. Roundtree, Jr; in short, the entire concert went off with great eclat, and the Society deserve praise for furnishing an entertainment so pleasing.

The Impostor arrested. Some time since we published in our paper, from the National Intelligencer, an account of an accomplished swindler, named Perot, who had managed to rob a lady travelling South, of valuable jewelry to a large amount. The National Intelligencer of yesterday morning says—"A full description of the villain was given in the advertisement of Col. De Bussy, U. S. Engineer, at Old Point Comfort, Va. who offered a reward of $200 for the apprehension and conviction of the thief and the recovery of the property. From letters just received in Washington, we learn that this swindler, who styles himself the Marquis de Cologne has lately been arrested at Vincennes, Indiana, by a constable and a Mr. John Myers, and other persons resident there. It is stated that the laws of Indiana not allowing the captors to detain the prisoner without an affidavit, the captors consented to let the scoundrel go, on his giving up the stolen articles, viz, one gold watch, one breastpin, and four gold rings, which are now in the hands of the constable or magistrate at Vincennes, Indiana.

Shocking Accident. As the train of cars from Annapolis to Baltimore had proceeded near half way on their trip at about half-past 6 o'clock yesterday morning, a fatal accident occurred. The cars had stopped to take up about twenty of the hands belonging to the road, one of whom, in passing from one car to another at the moment of starting slipped between the cars, when the wheels of one of them passed over him, crushing one thigh and otherwise lacerating him in a horrible manner. Doctor Maccubbin, of the house of delegates, being in the cars, rendered all the assistance in his power, but considered it impossible for the man to recover. The unfortunate sufferer is an Irishman, and was conveyed to a house where every attention will be paid to him.

Robbery. The house of Mr. Wm. Larkins, S. High-st., was entered on Thursday night last by some unknown scoundrels, and robbed of a large amount of clothing, silver spoons, plate, &c. The entrance was made by means of a night-key, with which the passage door was opened. This should admonish persons to be very careful how they fasten their doors.

Der Leiderkranzes. On Monday night next "Der Leiderkranzes" give another concert and ball at the Law Building. Let the Germans alone for true enjoyment, music and the dance'—soft sounds and ladies' bright eyes' and then the songs of their "Vaterland"—their wild mountain melodies and—the giddy waltz. We do not intend to miss the treat.

Lady's Book. We have received from the agent, W. N. Harrison, the February number of this excellent periodical. Besides its usual quantity of first rate reading matter, it is embellished with an engraved view of the Falls of Niagara.

Assault. Joseph Randall, charged with assaulting and beating Hugh McKenna in his own house, was on Thursday arrested and held to bail for his appearance at the City Court.

Police. Hanson Dorsey, colored, charged with threatening the life of Julia Ann Brewer, was on Thursday arrested and brought before Justice Penington. Released on security.

Michael Coffee, vagrant, without visible means of support, was committed to the Alms-house by Justice McDonald.

Night Watch. In the Eastern District on Thursday night, Horace Lloyd and William Smith were imprisoned for intoxication. In the Middle District, negroes Charles Russell, Samuel Durham, Harrison Redfedon, Elizabeth Ann Tender, Eliza Jane Brown, and Mary Ann Thomas, were drunk and riotous. John Rodgers and Barney Murray U. S. A. were quartered. Both of them were more than "half cocked"—and considerably "primed." They had been practising the oblique step so steadily, that they found they were "advancing backward"—until the watch placed them on the "solora hope."

The Fire on board the Columbia. Capt. Judkins, of the steamship Columbia, at Boston, in explaining the cause of the fire which was reported to have occurred on board that vessel while at sea, says:—"The fire was only in the roof of a small house round the funnel on deck, occasioned by the oversight of its being built rather too near it. Although immediately extinguished, the fire could have done no serious harm, had the whole of the house been consumed."

JONATHAN D. STEVENSON.

☞As many efforts have been made to create impressions unfavorable to the character of Mr. J. D. Stevenson of New York, to whose energy and fearlessness the public are indebted for the complete exposure of the Glentworth election fraud, we subjoin, from the New York Evening Post, an article which completely vindicates him from the aspersions of those who would have destroyed his reputation, to impair the force of his testimony. It will be seen that the grand jury, composed chiefly of Mr Stevenson's political opponents, who went closely into an investigation of his character, in order to save their friends by discrediting the witness—if it could possibly be done on just grounds—have joined in certifying, as the result of scrutiny, that Mr. Stevenson's character for truth and morality was fully proved by many respectable citizens who have known him from childhood—that the reports circulated against him are slanderous, and without foundation in truth, and that they take pleasure in stating that "the whole result of their examination was honorable to his integrity as a man, and to his moral deportment as a citizen." This, it appears to us, is a vindication as "triumphant as a man could desire, and sets at rest all question as to Mr. Stevenson's veracity." Such an endorsement, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, in one of which he and his friends may well be proud. The strongest efforts have been made to crush the gentleman to question; his whole private life has been dragged forth, in the hope that some flaw could be found in it that might serve to beat his traces, and enable his enemies to hold him up to the public as unworthy of belief; but the effort, strenuous and unrelenting as it was, has failed utterly. His deportment in all the relations of life has been proved to be exemplary and irreproachable. Now what have they to say who are implicated by Mr. Stevenson's disclosures? Their chief weapon of defence is broken in their hands. What are we to think of the refusals to bring in a bill against Glentworth, or to have any action taken against his associates, when the very grand jury itself, Whig as it was, is compelled to acknowledge that the chief witness, who is sustained, be it remembered, by an abundance of other proof, personal, circumstantial and documentary, is above impeachment? The enquiring papers assert that Mr. Stevenson's veracity is not to be questioned—that no grounds can be discovered for doubting his word. His past life is without reproach, and it is not even hinted that he has spoken falsely in regard to the Glentworth affair. What then is left for those to stand upon, who would gainsay his disclosures.—Pennsylvanian.

From the N. Y. Evening Post.

The two papers which follow are signed by every member of the grand jury, which finished its investigations on Saturday. They are favorable in the highest degree to Mr. Stevenson, and particularly to his character for honor and veracity. Ten of the seventeen persons of whom the grand jury was composed, are Whigs.

How the grand jury, after having so thoroughly investigated the character of Mr. Stevenson, and after being so fully convinced of his unimpeachable veracity, should have refused to bring to a bill against Glentworth, on his statement, supported by Glentworth's own confession, can be explained upon no other principle than a desire to screen their political friends from exposure and punishment.

New York, 5th Jan. 1841.

The undersigned citizens and residents of the city of New York, having heard various calumnious reports derogatory to the character of Johnathan D. Stevenson of the said city, for truth and morality, have fully and fairly investigated the same, and having found them without foundation in truth, are therefore induced, from a sense of justice to Mr. Stevenson, to certify that his character for truth and morality was fully proved by many of our most respectable citizens, who have known him from his early age, and they take pleasure in stating that the whole result of this investigation was honorable to his integrity as a man, and to his moral deportment as a citizen.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE.—Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave, her physicians tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 50 cents per bottle.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28, 1841.

You will perceive that the difference between Messrs W. C. Johnson and Duncan is not likely to come to a speedy settlement. The latter appears in the Globe of this morning, denouncing, under his own signature, Mr. Johnson. It is really a pity that such matter cannot be crushed in the bud. A firm and decisive chairman might always accomplish it. Whether there will be any fighting or not I cannot pretend to say. What must be the opinion of foreign courts of the dignity of the American Congress.

The Senate is still engaged on the pre-emption bill, and Mr. Clay, of Kentucky, is going along like a locomotive running a race against the wind.

In the House of Representatives a motion was made by Mr. Morris, of Ohio, to suspend the rules for the purpose of submitting a resolution for the repeal of the sub-treasury law. As might have been expected, the motion to suspend was negatived.

The House then went into committee on the treasury note bill, and Mr. Wise resumed and concluded his remarks in favor of the bill. It was thought that Mr. W. would be a bitter opponent of the measure, and the course he has taken has surprised his friends.

CITY COUNCIL. First Branch, Jan. 29. Pursuant to adjournment the Council met. Present—Mr. Snyder, president, and all the members except Mr. Burns.

We forgot an item yesterday of some importance. One of the lusty members, characteristic for his good nature, was absent. He had gone on a fox hunting expedition down towards North Point. The game being scarce he was therefore obliged to return, without even the sign of a tail. To-day he is "himself again." His colleague is also "at the book."

Mr. J. S. Brown offered a petition from John B. Seidenstricker and others, praying for the erection of a market house on Federal Hill. Referred to committee on markets.

Mr. Pinkney called up the report of the joint committee on claims, relative to a petition of R. B. Varden, Esq. asking pay for services while acting as clerk to the commissioners, who were authorised to open Market street.

Mr. Gorsuch moved an amendment, which, upon considerable discussion, in which himself, Mr. Pinkney, Mr. Keyser, Mr. Peregoy and Mr. Dryden took part, was rejected. The resolution as reported originally was passed.

A report from the joint select committee relative to the collection of taxes, was handed in, accompanying which was a resolution requesting the councils of the city to prepare a memorial (which memorial had been prepared and read) to be presented to the Legislature of Maryland, praying for the passage of an act which would more effectually reach the collection of certain taxes due by citizens of Baltimore. Passed and concurred in by the Second Branch.

Mr. Keyser, chairman of the joint committee on fire companies, handed in favorable reports on all the petitions which had been presented, praying for special appropriations, &c.

A message was received from the Mayor, which was a petition from the United Fire company, praying for an appropriation. Referred to committee on fire companies.

Mr. Peregoy called up the report and substitute of the joint committee on the 4th, and which, on motion, was granted and ordered to be laid on the table.

A message was received from the Second Branch informing the First Branch of its adjournment.

On motion of Mr. Brown, the councils adjourned until Monday next at half past three o'clock.

On the 16th and 17th instant the mercury fell as low as 12 degrees below zero, or 44 degrees below freezing point. This beats the yankees! PILL, FOR THE VALLIER'S FOUR DISEASES. One box of this CURE (or 6) is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

☞ Price one dollar per box. For sale in Baltimore by SETH S. HANCE, ja11-y Corner of Charles and Pratt streets.

TO OUR PATRONS AND OTHERS.
READ AND BE NOT HUMBUGGED.

The friends and old customers of the subscribers will please to bear in mind that we do not, nor do we intend selling HATS in the Maryland Arcade again, and if any of our patrons are not aware of our removal, and should again visit there with a desire to purchase a Hat of KEEVIL'S Manufacture, they will be deceived, as we have no connexion with any concern whatever, excepting our only establishment, No. 66½ BALTIMORE STREET, where, by unremitting attention to business, and manufacture of our Hats, we hope to merit a continuance of the liberal support of the public. Our prices are well known, and are as follows: Fine Russia Hats for $3.50, of the same quality as those selling elsewhere for $5. Also, beautiful Silk Hats on Russia bodies for only $2.50, actually worth $4. We make our own Hats and warrant them to be first rate, at KEVIL'S well known Store, No. 66½ Baltimore street, opposite Tripolett's alley, between Gay and Holliday-sts. So call in for first rate

Wearers of Hats, this is no humbug or puff, the fact of the subscriber's being their own Manufacturers, who perform most of the labor with their own hands, and being at a low rent, their economical habits of living, and cash system of doing business, are sufficient reasons for their being enabled to sell at such unprecedented low prices—and knowing, from experience, as they do, that small profits and quick returns are most advantageous in the end—don't forget to call at

This work has received the encomiums of all our most eminent clergymen and reviewers. Numerous testimonials like the following can be produced: From the rev. Spencer H. Cone, President of the American and Foreign Bible Society:—Accept my sincere thanks for a copy of your SPLENDID "PICTORIAL ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE BIBLE." I have looked it over with much pleasure. The work is handsomely executed, and not only contains many interesting facts, and correct representations of men and manners in the East, but is also offered at a price unusually low. My hope is that it may obtain extensive patronage.

As our object is to furnish a first rate article at the lowest possible price, we respectfully solicit a share of public patronage.

CASH FOR NEGROES. The highest cash prices will at all times be given for Negroes of both sexes, that are slaves for life, and good titles. My office is in Pratt street, between Sharp and Howard streets, and opposite to the Repository—where I or my agent can be seen at all times. All persons, having Negroes to sell, would do well to see me before they dispose of them, as I am always buying and forwarding to the New Orleans market. I will also receive and keep Negroes at twenty-five cents each, per day, and forward them to any Southern port, at the request of the owner. My establishment is large, comfortable and airy, and all above ground; and kept in complete order, with a large yard for exercise; and is the strongest and most splendid building of the kind in the United States. BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

MONDAY MORNING, Feb. 1, 1841.

RESUMPTION. This is the day set apart by the banks of our city to resume specie payments.

RAIL ROAD NOTES. Speculators are busily engaged in endeavoring to depreciate the value of these notes, and misrepresentation is used to effect the object. Let the people mark whoare engaged in this business and they will comprehend the motive of action. These notes are emphatically the people's money, for the property of the people of Baltimore is pledged for their redemption; it is, therefore, the direct interest of every taxable citizen of Baltimore that they should be continued in circulation. We know that a contrary opinion is entertained by some persons, who assert that the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company gains all the advantage of their circulation, as the interest, they say, on the notes when converted into stock has to be paid by the company, and not by the city of Baltimore. But such is not the fact. The moment they are exchanged for stock, they bear an interest of six per cent., which interest is to be levied upon the assessable property of Baltimore. To prove that we are correct, we extract from "An ordinance making provision for the city's subscription of three millions of dollars to the capital stock of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company." Approved April 26, 1836, by S. Smith, Mayor.

Sec. 1. Requires the President and Directors of the company to file a certificate with the Mayor, that no legal obstacles exist to prevent the completion of the road to the western waters, &c. "that then the Mayor he, and he is hereby authorised and directed to subscribe in the name of the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to the capital stock of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company, the said three millions of dollars, or such part thereof as the said President and Directors may have elected to take.

Sec. 2. And be it enacted and ordained, That the commissioners of finance be, and they are hereby authorized and directed to borrow on the credit of the city of Baltimore, the sum of money necessary to meet the payments of the installments aforesaid, for which purpose a city stock shall be created not exceeding three millions of dollars, bearing an interest of six per cent. payable quarterly, and irredeemable before the first day of July, in the year eighteen hundred and ninety.

Sec. 5. And be it enacted and ordained, That there shall annually hereafter be levied upon the assessable property within the limits of the city of Baltimore, a sum of money which with the profits of the rail road shall be sufficient to pay the interest upon the debt hereby authorized.

It will be remembered that this subscription to the stock of the rail road company was made by the city councils under instructions from every ward in the city. It was deemed absolutely necessary to the prosperity of Baltimore that the road should be completed with all practicable dispatch, and hence the great feeling which was then manifested. It was supposed that the city bonds would command par, if not an advance. In this we were disappointed. The derangement in monetary concerns depreciated the value of all stocks, and sooner than have the bonds sacrificed the expedient of issuing stock orders of one dollar and upwards was adopted. These orders are now in circulation, and whilst they continue so, the city will be relieved from taxes on interest account to the amount of $180,000 per annum. Is it not, then, desirable at a moment when the ordinary taxes are heavy, and we have the certainty of a large additional state tax—is it not desirable, we say, to avoid another additional tax of $180,000 to our burthens? He is not, then, a true friend to the interests of the city, who endeavors, by depreciating the value of these notes or orders, to drive them from circulation, and compel holders to convert them into stock. They afford the most undoubted security, and we believe will be received and paid by the banks. If not, the people have the remedy in their own hands.

EFFECTS OF ABOLITION. The Dayton Transcript of the 27th ult. states that an abolition mob took place in that city, in consequence of the murder of an individual named McCreary, and the stabbing and otherwise injuring four or five others, by negroes, on the night previous. The house of Dr. Jewett, where the abolition meeting was held, was broken into, windows destroyed, and other acts of violence committed.

The Transcript says:—"The greatest excitement prevails among us, and God only knows where the matter may terminate! We are in the midst of commotion. While we write, our streets are promenaded by men, in whose countenances are depicted, sorrow, consternation, horror, and vengeance."

COLONIZATION SOCIETY. This society held its annual meeting in the Senate chamber, Annapolis, on Wednesday night last, in presence of a large assemblage of ladies and gentlemen. A highly satisfactory report on the condition and prospects of the colony was made; after which the meeting was eloquently addressed by J. H. B. Latrobe and John L. Carey, Esqs., Mr. Goult and Isaac D. Jones, of the House of Delegates.

CANDID. The following, from the Richmond Star, shows that the Corporal is determined to let his readers know every thing.

Perhaps there is no time when an editor's notions of duty and responsibility are more misty and confused than when he is half asleep, or half drunk; in one or the other of which conditions we AMALGAMATION. The Legislature of Massachusetts has had under consideration a bill to permit intermarriage between the white and colored races, but it has been rejected by a majority of about sixty. We are not informed whether this proposition originated with the ladies or gentlemen; but it is a pity that white beaux or belles are so scarce in that state as to render recourse to the colored folk necessary. Had the law passed, it might have been beneficial to the southern states, as their free colored ladies and gentlemen would have no doubt sought partners amongst the philanthropists of the Bay state.

We have a proposition to submit on this subject, which we hope will receive consideration from the friends of amalgamation. It is this: It has been proposed that the United States should purchase California, with a view to colonize it with colored people. Let the place be purchased, and then require that upon marriage of white and colored the parties shall be forthwith transported to populate California. There they might luxuriate in their loves to their heart's content; and, as their company would not be desirable among the free white people of this country, they could not do better than seek a home where they would be freed from surrounding prejudice.

The following are the proceedings had on the bill:

The bill to repeal the law fobidding intermarriage between individuals of certain races; was read a third time.

Mr. Gardner of Nantucket, proposed to strike out all after the enacting clause, and substitute a law allowing such intermarriage, but refusing dower to the wife, and tenancy by the courtesy to the husband; and also allowing natural children to inherit property like those born in wedlock. Mr. G. did not wish such intermarriages to take place.

That Moses married an Ethiopian was no reason that we should follow his example—for he was then an unregenerated man. He was a murderer too, and surely there we should not follow his example. Moreover, that Ethiopian might have been white. The word was not translated right. It should have been an Arabian.

The House refused to adopt the amendment by a vote of 150 to 15. Mr. Lunt, of Newburyport, opposed the bill as shameful in its character and pernicious in its consequences.

On taking the question of passing it to be engrossed, it was rejected by about 60 majority.

STEAM-BOATS. To guard as far as practicable, against steam-boat explosions and the consequent loss of life and property, a writer in the National Intelligencer suggests, that the young men at West Point be "fully instructed in all those branches appertaining to steam, steam engines, chemistry, mechanics and mathematics;" and that there shall be erected at the public expense, a national manufactory of steam engines, where these young men may learn the practical construction, and fully understand all the parts, uses and powers of these engines. After passing through this course of study, the young men to be subjected to a board of examiners, who shall grant a diploma to such as may be found efficient.

We view with favor any proposition that aims at affording greater security to persons and property on board of steam-boats—and, in case of the construction of steam-frigates, no one will dispute the necessity of having the most competent engineers—so far then, as regards the instruction of the young men at West Point in scientific and practical engineering, the suggestion is good. But we doubt the necessity of erecting a national manufactory of steam engines, because we believe that individual skill and enterprise will render them as perfect as can be done by national means, and perhaps at equal or less cost.

We believe that most of the disasters which have occurred from the explosions on board of steamboats, have arisen more from the carelessness or folly of the commanders or engineers than from deficient construction of machinery. In some instances it may have been otherwise.—Congress has endeavored to restrain the evil by the appointment of inspectors, but we apprehend that the duty has been negligently performed in the examination of some of the steamboats on the western waters.

We should be glad to see some mode adopted which would give security in steam vessels; and it would certainly advance this desirable object, to subject all engineers to the rigid examination of a competent board.

SCHR. SAMUEL SLATER. The Newport Republican gives the following particulars, in regard to the fate of the above named vessel—"It is but too probable that our worst fears in regard to this vessel have been realized. A letter was received on Monday last by Mr. Bull, from the commissioner of wrecks on the Virginia shore, informing him of the marks on some of the casks of rum saved; which corresponded with those shipped by Mr. B. and leave no doubt that the vessel wrecked was the S. S. The commissioner states that she came on shore in pieces, and that nineteen hhds. of rum had been picked up, three of which had been stoved. It is barely possible that the crew abandoned her before she went to pieces; and have been saved by some vessel bound on a foreign voyage; but there is not much room for hope. The circumstance of her boat having drifted ashore with the wreck, militates strongly against the supposition."

FIRE. A fire broke out in the Iron foundry of Mr. B. M. Hyatt, in Wilmington, (Del.) on Wednesday morning last, between two and three o'clock, which entirely destroyed the building, together with nearly all the contents.

☞We observe that M. C. Field, of the Picayune, won the prize offered for the best address at the opening of the new theatre in Mobile, and the tribute to his talents is by no means undeserved.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

CITY COURT. This court commences its session this day. The following is the list of jurors returned by the Sheriff:

Grand Jurors.—Sheppard C. Leakin, Fielding Lucas, William Pinkney, Thomas Wildey, Wm. P. Steuart, Peter Bargar, Francis Burns, Thomas Carroll, Alexander Gould, Jacob Zimmerman, James Blair, Henry Brice, John Krems, John S. Schriver, Rezin Wight, Philip Uhler, Wm. Ball, jr., Wm. H. Conkling, James Corner, William Jackson, Jacob Smith, Robert Garrett, Simeon Alden, Robert Graves.

CITY COURT—A touching case. On Saturday last one of the most thrilling cases we have ever witnessed was brought before the City Court.—The accused was a Mrs. D. B. Downey, who was charged by her daughter, Miss R. J. Cunningham, a beautiful, innocent little girl, aged about sixteen, with assaulting her and attempting to force her from her sphere of virtue and innocence into a house of "ill fame." It appeared from the young girl's acknowledgment, that her mother had for some time been living in a place of bad repute, in consequence of which the daughter separated from her and sought protection from an aunt, who is a highly respectable lady. It was also stated that the mother had threatened her life if she did not comply with her base and demon-like wishes. When the young girl appeared on the stand to give in her testimony, innocence in all its transcendant loveliness seemed to speak with overpowering eloquence in a thousand tears which rolled down her blushing cheek. Her words were clear, her language chaste, her story touching, and her demeanor throughout the paragon of unsophisticated modesty. Her protestations of innocence would have melted any heart except that of a mother as fallen as her own I am sorry to say to your honors, she observed, that my mother is a bad woman, that she unfortunately lives in a bad place, and would make me abandoned if she could—but oh do—I pray you! give me some protection for my innocence, my life and my character. Her appeals seemed to moisten the eye of almost every beholder. She shuddered at the sight of her mother, and cried "save me!" when the inhuman monster approached her. Never was stern integrity more beautifully manifested than in the behaviour of this unfortunate young female. She wanted no language to speak in her behalf. Her countenance and her tears proclaimed the triumph of innocence, and of themselves bore condemnation to the awful mother, in whom not one redeeming quality was shown. The mother attempted, we are told, to assault her daughter in court, and has also declared vengeance against her life. The court, after hearing the case, informed the young girl that, as she was sixteen years of age, she was beyond control of the mother and was her own mistress, subject only to such obedience as a prudent daughter is bound by the ties of parental affection to a prudent parent. The mother was held in security to the sum of one hundred dollars to keep the peace, in default of giving which she was again committed to jail.

Assault. J. B. Owings was tried for assaulting and beating Alfred Peirce. The case was compromised.

Another. Edward Brown was brought up charged with assaulting George Moog. Brown was made to pay costs and fined nominally.

COUNTY COURT—Counsellor Hyam's Speech. Saturday last was the day appointed by the Court to hear the prayer of Abraham Hyam, Esq. in reference to the case of John Clark, an insolvent debtor. At an early hour the Court room was crowded with a heterogeneous auditory, anxious to hear the "maiden speech" of the home-made lawyer, who, for special purposes, had been admitted to practice in his own defence at the bar. Custom it is said establishes law;—if so, we contend that a certain apple-woman, well known about these "diggins," should be entitled to her "bonus" from A. Hyam, Esq., as his admission fee. We advise her to give him rest neither day nor night until the chink is handed over.

Previous to the Court having been called, we were asked by a quizzical kind of genius at our elbow what personage that was with mounted spectacles, sitting at the table, almost buried in the musty rubbish of innumerable documents, and surrounded by large piles of law books. "That, sir, said we, is the learned counsellor, Mr. Hyam, whose eloquence you shall shortly hear."—A few moments elapsed, when it was announced by the Court that it was ready to hear any thing the learned gentleman might have to say. Upon this announcement, the law expounder arose.—Here was a breathless, a universal silence—a pin might have been heard to drop. All eyes were turned upon the speaker. Immediately before the approach of a terrible thunder storm, when the heavens are hung in black, the sunlight is shut out, and the chickens have gone to roost, there is generally a short interval of fearful calm—so was it upon this occasion. The elements were muttering just as we hear the faint rumbling of distant thunder. The speaker's eye was fixed upon the Court, his right hand placed upon a large volume of law—he stood erect, at first exhibiting a slight tremor in the knees which, with an electric inexplicableness, darted through his whole frame, not even escaping his lips. The first observation (as near as we can remember) which dropped from the learned counsel, after having made the customary salutation to the Court, was, that he was an humble mechanic, or rather a mechanic metamorphosed into a lawyer, and had, for the first time, discovered himself to be in an awkward predicament. This sentence disposed of, the learned counsellor went into a rather tedious examination of the documents and the law. At this juncture of the proceeding, the debutant had recovered a considerable share of self-possession, which enabled him to despatch arguments upon the locomotive principle. As the speech progressed, the speaker grew more and more animated, and occasionally indulged in bursts of eloquence, an idea of which we can only form by thinking of the first attempt of the celebrated Patrick Henry, or going back in imagination to the days of Cicero and Demosthenes.—The auditory were carried step by step from one link in the chain of argument to another, until lost in the labyrinth of wonder. Indeed, the learned counsellor seemed to carry the Court, spectators, inspectors and speculators with him at will, by the force of argument and power of eloquence, through all the intricate windings of law from the days of Lycurgus, the great Spartan law giver, down to those of Blackstone, and from thence to the present. His rich fund of legal intelligence conclusively demonstrated that he had explored the secret archives of jurisprudence—that he had concentrated in one head more law than ever Lord Mansfield had thought of, or Coke had read. Indeed, his shafts were so pointed and his keen sarcasm so withering, that Mr. Glenn, against whom some of them were aimed, could say nothing in defence, but that "all the learned gentleman had been saying was a tissue of falsehoods." Lawyer Hyam occupied the attention of the Court for the space of about an hour. His object was to show that the trustee of John Clark had not made a fair distribution of his effects to the creditors, and his prayer was to ask of the Court the appointment of new trustees. Counsellor Hyam gave it as his opinion, which opinion had been formed from the examination of various documents and authorities, that there was yet a large amount of property, belonging to the creditors of John Clark, in the hands of his trustee, and that that property should and of right ought to be refunded to the creditors. The Court held the case under advisement.

DARING OUTRAGE. A few evenings since, between twilight and dark, while a very respectable lady was on her way to church, she was overtaken by a large brawney colored man on Market street, near McKim's Free School, who caught her with a fiendish grasp by the arm and attempted to force her with him up a small alley. He peremptorily threatened her life if she offered to make any resistance or give the alarm. Fortunately, however, a gentleman chanced to be passing along at the time, upon the discovery of whom the black monster immediately fled.—Such conduct is really too intolerable to be borne. We blush to mention it, yet justice speaks through every pore of humanity for redress, calling upon our authorities to be on the alert for the detection and punishment of such sable monsters.

THEFT. On Saturday last a black fellow was caught in the act of stealing a piece of bacon from the store of Jno. & Saml. Bigham. He got his bacon but did not save it, for he was immediately caught and flogged in proportion to the amount of his crime by those from whom he had filched.

☞The alarm of fire yesterday afternoon was caused from nothing, and ended in a disgraceful riot at the corner of Gay and Market srtees. Two of the rioters were rested and lodged at the watch house. Their names are not worth mentioning.

PRISON TO LET. We were informed yesterday by one of the jail officers, that the debtors department does not contain even a solitary individual. This, however, may be accounted for by the recent increased ratio of applicants for the benefit, and is no argument in favor of imprisonment for debt.

NIGHT WATCH. In the Eastern District on Friday night no disturbance of the peace. In the Middle District, Francis Kelly, of the U. S. Army, from Fort McHenry, was brought in by the police, before watch hours. Negroes Solomon Martin and Harriet Pollard were imprisoned for street walking. John Rogers and Robert Sanders were admitted as lodgers. In the Western District, a couple of lodgers.

POLICE. James Newland was on Saturday morning committed to the alms house as a vagrant by Justice King.

To Dr. Swayne.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences.

Your friend, ABRAHAM SKINNER,

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one, that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and he wortly of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1.50 each.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

STANZAS.

What called forth genius, which lie fettered long
In chains, wrought by oppressive tyrant power?
Not dazzling wit, or pinitive murmured song,
Or hill, or glen, or April's sportive shower.

'Twere not the luminous deep blue vault of heaven,
Which myriads deck with garlands rich and rare;
Call'd from vast fields by inspiration given,
A poet's aim to cultivate with care.

'Twere not my own sad fate that broke the spell,
And taught me breathe a minstrel's plaintive lay;
Yet! would I not the pleasing task dispel,
Tho' it should oft a deep sad thought betray.

'Twere not the deep blue sea, or mountains wild,
Call'd forth those strains & placed the music measure;
Ah! 'twas affection's uncompliai ing child,
Explored the mines and found this hidden treasure.

He pressed the earth bereft of heaven's bright rays,
Yet! ne'er o'erclouded was the open brow;
The bland soft smile a heart of ease betrays,
And 'neath the chastening rod would meekly bow.

But tho' no eye beamed forth its lustrous light,
Which threw a halo 'round his soul's enclosure;
Yet! talents shone like stars in wintry night,
And nought disturbed the soul's serene composure.

Awakened sympathy now strikes the chord,
And softly wails the breathing tones to heav'n;
Genious advances, ventures but a word,
And straight the first impulse to poesy giv'n.

And now, where'er the eye of genius turns,
It rests not save upon the stricken stranger;
Like Bethlehem's star which o'er the infant burns,
And guides the shepherds to the lowly manger.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan 29, 1841. LEONE.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30, 1841.

The ladies are all getting ready for the Light Infantry ball on to-morrow evening. Captain France will have to exercise his best military skill, or he will certainly be surrounded. As you have announced your intention to brush up your epauletts and come to his assistance, I presume he has not much fear of the result. So you must take one half the enemy—the gallant France the other half, and I will attend to the other. The powder monkey sends his compliments to you, with the assurance that the "bottle of Champagne" will be laid aside; but with the promise that if you are not on parade at the precise moment, it will be taken inside, notwithstanding all that Mrs. Grundy may say to the contrary. "Them's his sentiments."

In the House of Representatives Mr. Pickens offered a resolution calling upon the President for information in relation to the seizure of American vessels on the coast of Africa by the British cruizers. After an ineffectual attempt of Mr. Adams to amend it, the resolution was agreed to.

A message was received from the President, stating that if the survey of the north eastern boundary is to be completed, an additional appropriation will be necessary. It was referred to the comittee on foreign affairs.

After the disposal of some other executive communications, the House went again into committee of the whole on the treasury note bill.

Messrs. Hubbard and Jenifer gave their views, the former in favor, and the latter against the bill.

Mr. Vanderpoel next obtained the floor, but there being no quorum, the committee rose and the House adjourned.

In the Senate the big guns have been roaring the whole day, not so much on the land question as upon each other. Mr. Calhoun retaliated on Mr. Mangum for severe language used by the latter on a former day.

Mr. Mangum rejoined, and I assure you the place did at one time smell most awfully of gunpowder. As most of these matters do, however, it ended amicably.

It is supposed that the question on the bill will be taken sometime between now and the fourth of March.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 29th, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. The bill to allow an increase of tolls on the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road was passed by a vote of 42 to 21.

Mr. Prestman presented the petition of Sarah Martin, wife of Wm. Martin, praying for a divorce.

Mr. Prestman also presented the memorial of Jno. Gibson, Henry Didier and others, praying for an act to incorporate the Rose Hill Improving Company.

He also presented the memorial of Jacob Heald and others, of Baltimore, praying an act of incorporation for the Powhatan Steam Boat Company. Referred to the committe on corporations.

The Committee on Elections were instructed to report a bill to define more particularly the meaning of residence as contemplated in the laws of the State regulating elections, so as to distinguish between those who may be regarded as mere sojourners and bona fide residents.

Mr. Hellen obtained leave to bring in a bill to incorporate a Bank for the use of the Tobacco Planters of this State. Referred to a select committee.

Mr. Cousin obtained leave to bring in a bill relating to the appointment of a Commissioner of Loans for this State.

Mr. Legrand from the committee on corporations, reported a bill to incorporate the Washington Temperance Society of Baltimore.—Passed.

Mr. Legrand, from the committee on corporations, reported a bill to incorporate the German Beneficial Society; also a bill to incorporate the Marine Insurance Company.

Mr. Lecompte, from the committee on corporations, made a favorable report upon the bill to incorporate the Christ Church Asylum for female children.

Mr. Legrand made a favorable report upon the bill to incorporate the Western Beneficial Society of Baltimore. Also a favorable report upon the bill to incorporate the Jackson Beneficial Society of Baltimore. Mr. Legrand also made a favorable report upon the bill for the incorporation of Chosen Friends Lodge, number 34, of the order of Independent Odd Fellows.

The preamble and resolution submitted by Mr. Gallagher in relation to the Banking Institutions of this State were laid on the table.

The bill in relation to the power of the Legislature to grant Lotteries was made the order of the day for the 10th Feby.

The supplement to the act to incorporate the Farmers' and Planters' Bank of Baltimore, was passed.

SENATE. The State Geologist delivered his Annual Report.—The bill to incorporate the Washington Temperance Society was passed.

LATER FROM EUROPE.—Highly Important from China. By the arrival at New York of the Packet Ship North America, news has been received from Liverpool to the 7th ult. and London to the 6th.

From the London Times of the 6th January.

We have received, by extraordinary express from Paris, the Messager of Monday night. It contains the following most important

TELEGRAPHIC DESPATCH.

"MARSEILLES, Jan. 2, 6 o'clock in the evening.
"Received in the Afternoon of the 4th.
MALTA Dec. 28.

"The Consul of France to the Minister for Foreign Affairs:

"Kurruck Singh, King of Lahore, died on the 5th of November. During the funeral ceremony his successor, Nou Nehal Singh, was killed by accident. Shere Singh was to mount the throne.

"The affairs of China are on the point of being settled.—The English are to receive three millions sterling as an indemnity.

"Dost Mahomed has definitively surrendered to the English."

In these three pieces of intelligence, brought no doubt by the Indian Mail, are comprised, the settlement of the China quarrel, the termination of the Cabool war, and the menaced hostility of the Seiks removed. For the prince, announced as having died during the funeral of his relative, was he who was considered likely to make use of his power against the Edglish.

Great sickness prevails amongst the troops at Chusan; only 110 men of the Cameronians and 220 of the 49th being fit for duty, and this chiefly on account of the bad state of the provisions sent from Calcutta. The island itself, however, is stated to be unhealthy. Capt. Anstruther, of the Madras engineers, was unfortunately captured by the Chinese while sketching within a mole of the town of Chusan, and was taken to Ningpo. The Kite and the Indian Oak are lost, and the officers and crew of the former are in the hands of the Chinese at Ningpo.

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday, Jan. 5.—To-day there has been a very fair demand for Cotton, and at least 4000 bags have been disposed of, including 500 American on speculation.

Wednesday, Jan. 6.—To-day sales of cotton amount to 4100 bags, which are made up chiefly of American descriptions, and nearly all the trade. Extreme prices have been obtained for all qualities of American descriptions.

LATEST FROM TEXAS. The steamship Savannah, Capt. Wade, arrived at New Orleans from Galveston, bringing dates to the 13th inst.

Later news had been received from the Western frontier and it seems that Arista still continued his threats of invasion, although it was known that he had not 2,000 men under his command. Mr. Van Ness and Col. Seguin had arrived at Austin from San Antonio. They state that the general opinion was that Arista would attempt an invasion, but not until he had received reinforcements. He has stated that he shall carry on the war with more circumspection than Santa Anna did, but the Texians laugh at his threats.

A joint resolution has been introduced by Mr. Mayfield, one of the members of the Texian House of Representatives, "to adopt measures for an offensive war against Mexico." It passed its first reading, but on a motion to suspend the rules and pass it to a second reading, the ayes and noes were called, and although the motion was lost—it requiring a majority of two thirds to suspend a rule of the house—yet it is regarded as a test vote on its final passage, there being 22 in favor of and 14 against the suspension. It will not however be hurried through just at this juncture, and will not probably pass until certain and official intelligence can be had in relation to the rumored treaty between Great Britain and Texas.

EX-GOV. CASS. The Paris correspondent of the Boston Daily Advertiser writes as follows:

The gay season, as it is called, has commenced, and now we shall have a succession of balls and parties for the next two months. Gen. Cass gave his opening ball last Thursday night, at which there were more than a hundred Americans present, and the show of Yankee beauty was one to be proud of. Comparisons it is said, are odious, but I think that the honest and fresh beauty of our country women is a fair match at any time for all of the mere accomplished and made beauties I have ever yet seen in Europe.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FITS, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. VALLIER'S FRENCH PILL, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

CAUTION. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for those diseases are composed of such noxious drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of the superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

☞ Price one dollar per box. For sale in Baltimore by

MOONLIGHT SCENE AT FORT McHENRY—IN SUMMER.

Day's last golden tints have faded,
Far behind the western hills;
Darksome evening's veil has shaded Mountains, valleys, brooks, and rills.

From the distant orient 'merging,
See fair Cynthia's silvery disk,
Modest beams, from thence diverging,
O'er the landscape play and frisk.

Through the star-deck'd hall of heaven,
See the Night-queen wend her way;
Many a blushing star is driven
Out of sight, by her fair ray!

Swiftly o'er the Moon-lit water,
See yon gallant vessel glide;
Eastern breezes, now have brought her,
By McHenry's gun-deck'd side.

Lovely prospect, I could ever
Watch the fair enchanting sight;
See the Fort, the hills, the river,
Bathed in streams of silvery light!

Thus at life's declining story,
May the beams of heavenly love,
Light up fadeless scenes of glory,
In yon brighter world above.

A FOX HUNT IN OHIO.

BY A BALTIMORE FIREMAN.

"I was with Hercules and Cadmus once,
When in a wood of Crete they bay'd the bear
With hounds of Sparta: never did I hear
Such gallant chiding: for besides the groves,
The skies, the fountains, every region near Seem'd all one mutual cry: I never heard
So musical a discord, such sweet thunder."
Midsummer night's dream.

Late in the month of February, 1840, being on a visit to a friend in the flourishing little village of Portland, situated in Jefferson county, some quarter of a mile from the beautiful Ohio, I was seated at the window by a snug coal fire, watching the progress of a noble steamer which was making rapid headway against the then turbulent stream, and ruminating over the mighty changes which a few short years had made. The wilderness has been felled by the axe—and the land of the Indian and the savage beast had been changed into fruitful and smiling fields. The Indian wigwam has given place to the elegant mansion, the neat cottage, the comfortable farm house, and the never ceasing mill—and the Indian village to the busy city, with its restless multitude, and the flourishing and pleasant town, with its quiet and industrious population.

My meditations were interrupted by the abrupt entrance of my friend B., announcing in joyous tones a fox hunt for the morrow, and demanding me as one of the party.

At the appointed hour the next day, I made my appearance at the village store (as usual the starting place of all such expeditions) dressed in my old drab fire suit with its large brass buttons and whose greasy and ragged outside bore witness to many a midnight's wild alarm, and of the many day's of hard unpaid labor it had undergone.

At the store were already collected some score of young and hardy villagers, whose bright and smiling faces were but a sweet token of the happiness which reigned within.

As I was the last one expected we soon got under way, and taking a narrow path which wound along the side of a bounding little stream, we soon found ourselves at the agreed-upon rendezvous of our section. After a short delay caused by the choosing of officers, we commenced our arrangements by spreading to the right and left and forming a portion of an immense circle, which must have been some 15 or 18 miles in circumference.

At a given signal we commenced our march, and with loud cries and the blowing of numerous horns and conch shells, which were multiplied and re-echoed by the surrounding hills, we continued to press forward in unbroken lines, sometimes in the depths of the dark forests of sugar maple, at others clambering the sides of steep hills which seemed formed in broken ridges running successively from the banks of the river.

As we gradually neared the appointed centre, the hunt became more and more animating, numerous birds and several flocks of wild pigeons were to be seen circling in air, apparently at a loss which way to escape from the general commotion—horsemen were hurrying by giving their orders and making their arrangements with as much regularity and tact as if on the eve of an Indian engagement.

The spot selected for the final close of the tragedy was a small thick forest containing about five acres of sugar maple, almost entirely clear of under wood, and intersected by a small stream with gradual sloping banks forming a kind of natural arena, thus enabling all to have a fair view of the sport.

Around the outer edges of the wood we were formed into a circle of from three to five deep, those with the dogs being placed on the inner part, each with a strong strip of buckskin, one end of which was held firmly in the left hand, the other being tied round the neck of the hound. In this position we remained for some moments anxiously waiting for the signal of attack, a notable passion of excitement appeared in all, but the wisest beholder that knew no more but seeing, could not say if the importance were joy or sorrow, but the extremity of the one it must needs be.

The shrill note of the bugle was followed by a general stir, a quick leap, and a loud bay from the loosened hounds, which caused the affrighted foxes, who had till now huddled together in wretched companionship, to start, and with eager search attempt to find an opening for escape. But alas! too late; penned in on all sides, and closely followed by the deep-mouthed hounds, their fate was soon sealed; some were torn to pieces on the spot; others, by their quick doublings, were for a while enabled to elude the savage grasp of their pursuers, but in the end their fate was the no less sure. Thus were all destroyed save one, a noble fellow, who had twice escaped from the wild confusion, and was now seen dashing with maddened fury for a small opening in the ranks caused by the bed of the stream, which at this spot was both deep and rapid. As he approached the narrow pass a common feeling of sympathy seemed to seize upon all, and the cry of "let him out—let him out," resounded from every quarter; the next moment poor reynard went bounding through the neighboring forest, eagerly followed by a long string of baying hounds and a few straggling horsemen, until the shout and the cry and the chase's wild clamor became distant and faint and finally died away upon the gale.

After a hearty shake of the hand with many an old friend and neighbor, we turned our steps homeward rejoicing that for a while our neighborhood would be rid of the obnoxious vermin. Thus ended the fox hunt in Ohio. V.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 29, 1841.

Dear Sirs: In looking over your paper of the 29th inst. my attention was arrested by a remark of your faithful correspondent, Jupiter, of Georgetown, relative to the claim of Joseph K. Boyd, Esq. for the office of sergeant-at-arms of the U. S. Senate, on the ground of his having been engaged in the ever-glorious enterprise of burning the frigate Philadelphia at Tripoli, in 1804—a recommendation with which I most heartily concur. But when he asserts that Mr. Boyd is the only survivor who has not been rewarded, I most respectfully beg leave to correct his error, by informing him through your columns that there resides in your good city of Baltimore, a Venitian by birth, from the Austrian Dominions, (a hatter by trade,) who is struggling with scanty means for the support of a large family, who was one of the number who volunteered his services, and did, on that noble and daring occasion, follow the gallant Decator to the achievement of an enterprise which shines now, as it ever will shine, bright on the pages of American history. This man deserves something of this his adopted country, but as yet, to my knowledge, he has not asked any thing, but would no doubt under existing circumstances, gratefully accept a small salary. His character for sobriety, industry and strict integrity is undoubted. Should this meet his eye and his approbation, he will no doubt be able and willing to furnish materials for a very interesting narrative relative to the above-mentioned affair. Respectfully, &c.

REPUTATION. The "Lowell Factory Girls" have vindicated themselves stoutly against this passage in a recent article by Mr. Brownson—"She has worked in a factory, is sufficient to damn to infamy the most worthy and virtuous girl."—The last number of their periodical, the "Lowell Offering," has a spirited article from this text, entitled "Factory Girls," in which the sentence is pronounced a slander, and the character of their sisterhood is vindicated with creditable ability and zeal. Here is a specimen:—

The erroneous idea, wherever it exists, must be done away—that there is in factories but one sort of girls, and that the baser and degraded sort. There are amongst us all sorts of girls. I believe that there are few occupations which can exhibit so many gradations of piety and intelligence; but the majority may at least lay claim to as much of the former as females in other stations of life. The more intelligent among them would scorn to sit night after night to view the gestures of a Fanny Elsler.

The Improvement Circles, the Lyceum and Institute, the social religious meetings, the Circulating and other Libraries, can bear testimony that the little time they have is spent in a better manner. Our well-filled churches and lecture halls, and the high character of our clergymen and lecturers, will testify that the state of morals and intelligence is not low.

THE ORIGIN OF DRUNKENNESS. A friend has furnished us with the following account of the origin of drunkenness, and says that in his youthful days an old schoolmaster used to repeat it to his boys at least once a week, it constituting what he commonly called his weekly lecture for the benefit of the morals of the rising generation.

"Noah planted a vineyard, and after he had retired from it, Satan approached it, and said, "I will cultivate and nurture the charming plant." He accordingly took three animals, a sheep, a lion and a hog, and slaughtered them, and moistened the roots of the vine with the blood of these three animals. The virtue of the blood of these three animals penetrated the roots of the vine, and are still manifest in its properties. When a man drinks one goblet of wine he is agreeable, kind, friendly and gentle, having the nature of the lamb; when he drinks two he becomes a lion; he wars, quarrels, fights, bullies, brags, storms, and throw every thing into confusion. When he drinks a third his senses forsake him, he becomes torpid and feeble, he reels and staggers, and lastly falls into the mud or mire, and there wallows like hog.

SPLENDID BEQUESTS. The New Orleans Bulletin says:—On the death of our fellow citizen, Nicholas Girod, his large estate was administered upon as a vacant succession; as he died without heirs in the State and was supposed to have left no will. Within a few days past, however, discoveries were made in rummaging the contents of an old desk sold as a part of the estate, which may lead to a very different disposition of the property from what was anticipated. The desk alluded to was purchased at public auction by a gentleman of New Orleans, and on examination was found to contain in a secret drawer, due bills signed by the deceased, giving to certain individuals, corporations, and public institutions, large bequests. We have heard the following legacies mentioned:

To the city of New Orleans, for building an Asylum for French Orphans,	$100,000
To the Orphan Asylum,	30,000
To Second Municipality,	100,000
To Charity Hospital,	30,000
To E. Moutemal,	50,000
To E. Mazareau,	20,000
To Mechoud,	20,000
To Dennis Prieur,	41,000

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 30th, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. The Speaker presented the memorial of the trustees of the Maryland State Agricultural Society, suggesting the propriety of protecting the slaveholder's property by effectual enactment. Referred to the committee on grievances and courts of justice.

Mr. Legrand presented the petition of Ann Lloyd, praying a divorce.

Also presented the memorial of E. S. Gill, protesting against an act to divorce her from her husband John Gill.

Mr. Gallagher pesented the memorial of 164 voters of the city of Baltimore, praying for the passage of a law prohibiting any license to be issued for retailing drinks in any election district of any County or any ward of this State wherein a majority of the voters thereof at the polls, at any general Election after its passage, on their ballots express their opinion that no such license should be grasted; and further prohibiting the sale of any intoxicating liquors of any kind on the Sabbath. Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

The bill from the Senate to divorce Charlotte A. Vaughan, of Baltimore was passed.

Mr. Lecompte, from the committee on corporations, reported the supplement to the act, to incorporate the Trustees of the poor of Baltimore City and County. The bill was made the order of the day for the 5th of February.

The bill to prohibit the issuing of licenses to free negroes and mulattoes was passed by a vote of 43 to 2.

The bill to incorporate the German Hermann Beneficial Society of Baltimore was passed.

The Senate did not sit.

SHOCKING AFFAIR. On Thursday last a man named Rufus Orcutt was committed to the "Bridewell" in the basement story of the wooden block of buildings nearly opposite the Post Office in this place, on the complaint of his wife that when intoxicated he had previously attempted to take her life, and had threatened to do so on the day the complaint was made. Soon after his imprisonment, the Bridewell was discovered to be on fire, and as soon as assistance could be obtained, the door was broken open and Orcutt taken out so dreadfully burned that he was at first thought to be dead, but medical aid being immediately rendered, he was partially recovered and survived until Sunday morning last. Orcutt is supposed to have purposely set on fire with a match the straw deposited in the cell, thus causing his own death, and, but for a timely discovery, exposing the most populous part of the town to destruction by fire.—Concord (N. H.) Patriot.

"LIFE" IN AN OYSTER. The liquor in an oyster contains incredible multitudes of small embryos, covered with small shells, perfectly transparent, swimming nimbly about. One hundred and twenty of those in a row, would extend one inch. Besides these young oysters, the liquor contains a great variety of animalcule, five hundred times less in size, which emit phosphoric light. The list of inhabitants, however, does not conclude here, for besides the last mentioned, there are three distinct species of worm, called the oyster worm, found in oysters half an inch in length, which shine like the glow worm. The sea-star, the cockle, and the muscle, are the great enemies of the oyster. The first gets into the shell when they gape, and sucks them out. When the tide is flowing, oysters lay with the hollow side downward, but when it ebbs turn on the other side. What a lesson may be drawn from the economy of the oyster!

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads Weather and Steamsail must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon; and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

TUESDAY MORNING, FEB. 2, 1841.

RESUMPTION OF SPECIE PAYMENTS AND BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAIL ROAD STOCKHOLDERS.

We have made general enquiry, and have ascertained that there was but very little demand yesterday for specie—less by far than many persons anticipated. There certainly did not appear to be more people about the banks for several hours after opening in the morning than have been for months past. The reason for this is most obvious, and is to be found in the fact that the stockholders of the Rail Road Company have supplied, in a very great degree, the wants of the community for small change, and render a run on the banks for silver unnecessary; and the additional reason is, that the people have been satisfied with the orders, and will continue to be satisfied unless those interested in decrying them should be able to create doubts as to the solvency and ability of the city to meet her engagements.

If instead of these orders the notes of banks out of the state under the denomination of five dollars had been used, the run on the banks would have thrown in upon them in a few days a great proportion of their circulation, because people would have been anxious to get rid of that with whose value they are unacquainted for the precious metals. But every body knowing the value of the orders, based on the wealth and faith of Baltimore, keep them and the five dollar notes of the banks together in their pockets, the former in fact protecting the banks from a run on them to redeem the latter.

What then is the interest of the banks and the community as shown by the events of a single day even?—why it is to give credit to the orders in question. If this is done, specie payments may be maintained. If this is not done, and the banks are obliged to supply the demand of the community for change in sums under five dollars, it will be impossible for them to do it. As to the banks having power given to them to increase their paper issues by putting out one dollar notes, the tone of this community is against it. We already have a one dollar paper circulation in the stock orders, whose value we all know. We would not willingly change it for a one dollar bank paper circulation, whose value is known only to the directors of the bank.

GENERAL HARRISON. We have certain accounts that the President elect has left his home, and will be amongst us in a few days. Already do we hear the note of preparation for his reception, and we have no doubt that the concourse at Washington on the fourth of next month will exceed in numbers all previous exhibitions of the kind. For the sake of the General, as well as of his numerous friends and the office-seekers, we hope that there will be fine weather. The General will have his hands full; and should he undertake to reply to all applicants he will require at least two or three dozen additional secretaries. We have read of a petition presented to the British parliament which required several men to carry; and, from the industry of some of the office seekers in obtaining signatures, we apprehend that their petitions will have to be presented in a wheel-barrow. Among them all we doubt whether we shall be able to find one, who, like the Athenian, will rejoice that others are deemed more worthy of serving the public. There will be great scratching of pates, for, although "many will come, few will be accepted."

Baltimore will be crowded with young Whigs in a few days, and the young ladies are of course studying the prettiest smiles for their reception. This is all right and very natural—and we wish, for the sake of the girls, that conventions could be held every month in the year.

MR. WISE. The positions assumed by this gentleman, in his speech on the pre-emption bill, appear to have excited some surprise among his political friends. There is only one point in his speech upon which we shall remark—his opposition to the distribution bill. We give him full credit for independence of spirit and sincerity of motive, but regret that he does not see, that in the distribution of the proceeds of the public lands lies the only safety to the old states. That the design of some politicians is to sacrifice the interests of the old states, to ingratiate themselves with the new, is too apparent to have escaped the penetration of Mr. Wise—hence the surprise at his present course. We are persuaded that Virginia never will consent to yield her interest in the public domain, nor do we believe that the proposition of Mr. Calhoun to cede them to the states in which they lie, will be sanctioned by any one of the old states when the question comes to be fairly tested. We have no apprehension that such a bill can be at present forced through Congress—but the time will arrive when the measure may be successful, provided a permanent disposition of the land question be not previously made.

☞ The following paragraph touching the Charlestown Nunnery, is taken from the Boston Post, and we most sincerely join our wishes that the stain which dims the escutcheon of Massachusetts may speedily be wiped off:

The Ursuline Convent. Justice—honor—humanity; every principle which distinguishes right from wrong, demands of the Commonwealth that remuneration should be made for the destruction of the property upon Mount Benedict. We hope the friends of true republicanism—of religious toleration—of the supremacy of the law over violence, will unite and urge the speedy adoption of such measures by the Legislature as will be considered some atonement for the brutal outrage which disgraced the State, and deprived innocent citizens of their home and their property.

CHINA. Accounts published yesterday shew that the English forces have succeeded in extorting from China, indemnity to the amount of two or three millions pounds sterling, and that the difficulties between the two nations are likely to be finally adjusted. However we may rejoice at the restoration of peace, as preventing the farther sacrifice of life, yet we shall regret to find that the opium trade is to be re-established. The foreign items contain nothing on this subject; but, as the spirit of the emperor has been so far subdued as to induce him to denounce and offer to deliver into the hands of the English his commissioner Linn, we are prepared to see any other sacrifice made by the Chinese government that may be required by Admiral Elliott.

There is no people more extensively engaged in the establishment of missionary stations than the English, and they have expended millions in the propagation of the christian religion. To judge from their zeal in spreading the "glad tidings" among the heathen, we should believe them influenced by a spirit of holiness in all their intercourse with nations not professing the principles of christianity. And yet such impression would be most unfounded. Religion, with them, means submission to British authority—they therefore approach their victims with the bible in one hand and the sword in the other.—We venture to assert, that the natives of British India were better and happier before their subjection to England than at the present moment; for they are now initiated in European vices, without any consequent intellectual improvement, and besides, are reduced to the condition of slaves. The religion and humanity of Britain is now carried from the cannon's mouth to China, because the emperor will not permit his subjects to be poisoned by his christian adversaries. How is it possible that the heathen can become the sincere convert to a religion whose professors act in direct opposition to the principles they promulgate? When Bonaparte was charged with having poisoned his prisoners at Jaffa, horror and indignation were universally felt and expressed, and he was denominated a monster. But the British can poison a whole people, in the way of trade, and the profits sanctify the act. Such is rational morality and justice: such the subterfuges by which the most inhuman conduct is justified.

We hope that the Chinese emperor will resist to extremity, the introduction of opium into his empire, and that his noble efforts to preserve the lives and morals of his people may be aided by other powers.

SUPPOSED ROBBERY OF THE MAIL. Very early yesterday morning, says the Phil. Ledger of yesterday, two mail bags, supposed to be part of the Jersey way mail, were found in an alley first above Chesnut street, between Water and the wharf, cut open and rifled of their contents. A knife used for the purpose was found near them. They were either dropped from the mail carriage or stolen on the way from the Post-office to the depot of the Trenton Rail-road. They were found by some sailors, who immediately gave information at the Post-office. There was nothing whatever in them, nor was there discovered any thing like paper where they were found. One of the bags was labelled "Elizabethtown, N. J.," but that is not conclusive that it contained the mail of that place at the time of the robbery, as the bags are frequently used as their size suits without reference to the label.

In the afternoon a number of letters were found by some boys among the stalls of the Second street market, below Pine street, all of which had been opened and rifled of their contents. The boys divided the letters among their party. Subsequently a portion of them were returned to the Post-office by the father of one of the boys, and measures immediately taken to ascertain the whereabouts of the remainder.

MAIL. Several persons in New York that expected remittances from Troy by the mail of the 9th inst. were disappointed in not receiving them. The mail bag, it appears, was lost under the following circumstances. An ox-sled had been used to transport the mails for a portion of the way, and that when they were transferred from the sled to the stage, the Troy mail fell through the side, and escaped the notice of those who had charge of it. The bag remained under the snow for about ten days, when, on removing the sled, it was discovered and promptly forwarded to the city.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 18, 1840.

You are aware that the U. S. ship Marion, Capt. Belt, arrived here last month from the river La Plata, where she had been ashore, some days since; she was heaving out to examine her bottom, when, by some unknown cause, she filled and sunk. Captain Belt took immediate measures to raise her, by means of lighters, and they have now got her poop just above water. It is thought she cannot be much injured.

FOUND DEAD. A man by the name of Robert Newton, between 30 and 35 years of age, a blacksmith by trade, and a native of Loudoun county, Virginia, was found dead on Sunday morning, in a gravel hole in Olmstead's woods, about a mile and a quarter from Germantown, Pa.

ABOLITION. The Spanish Government has refused to recognize the new British Consul at Havana, Mr. Turnbull, on account of his abolition principles.

SUICIDE. John Burroughs, a laboring man of Philadelphia, died on Thursday from the effects of laudanum, which he had taken the day before.

REJECTED. The Indiana Senate has rejected the bill to suspend the prosecution of the public works of that state.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1, 1841.

In the House of Representatives this morning some sharp shooting arose on a proposition to pay Mr. Sherrod Williams a sum for short mileage, claimed by him. The whole merits of the mileage question was brought up, and some members were extremely apprehensive that they would have to go through the very disagreeable task of "refunding." Finally a motion to lay the whole subject on the table was made, and carried by a tremendous roar of "Ayes."

On motion of Mr. Jones, of Va., the House then went into committee of the whole, and resumed the consideration of the Treasury Note bill.

Mr. Vanderpoel having the floor, spoke at some length in favor of the bill, and in reply to the arguments urged against it. Mr. V. is like a political water-wheel, for when he is once set a-going he finds it difficult to stop.

The Senate is plunging away through the "land ocean," as a down caster has it.

Notwithstanding all I can say, Mr. Albert Smith will continue his whisperings while the House is in session. This morning a friend near him asked how Mr. Weller of Ohio was. Mr. Smith replied "he is weller." This is decidedly the best Wellerism that Mr. S. has perpetrated. I would again remind him, however, that there is a tell-tale pillar on my right, which echoes his whispers like a thunder clap.

The weather is most awful, and the streets are deluged with mud and water.

In the Hall of the House this morning there was a very interesting exhibition by the pupils of the Virginia Institution for the Blind. Altho' the rain was pouring with fury, there was a good attendance of both sexes.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

SPECIE CHANGE. A rather ludicrous scene occurred in front of one of the banks yesterday, the principal actors in which were two negroes, one a carter the other a sawyer. It seems that the carter had received a five dollar bill for a cord of wood, and wanted to pay the sawyer for sawing it. The latter, after some difficulty, was persuaded to go into the bank and obtain the change, as it was the first day of what they called "assumption." After a while old sawdust returned with a half eagle in his hand, laughing heartily at the idea of his holding "sich a marcifulquantity ob gold."

"Whoy—what you got dar, nigger?" asked the carter, with his eyes like two saucers.

"Whoy—dat's rail generwine gold. Cha! see how him glisten! Yer see, I went up to de gepleman an' ax him to gib me specie, and de dam fool gib me gold! haw! haw! dat's de time I walk into his mattoo!"

"Well, what yer gwoin to do now, nigger?" asked the carter, turning out his lips and looking glum.

"What I gwoin to do? Whoy, you're nigger all ober, an' always will be. Ha'nt we got de rail guld for paper currency—and didn't de man say it was legal tenderum?"

"Yes—but what yer gwoin to do for change?"

"Oh—dat's anodder ting—I guess you know best, Jim."

"I no know nothin' about it. I want to gib you a half dollar; an' how yer gwoin to make it out oh yer dam legal tenderum—as yer call it?"

"Dat's a fact, Jim—I didn't tink ob dat."

Here they scratched their heads and were considerably non-plus'd, until a person present offered to change their half eagle, and give them in return four one dollar bills of the Baltimore and Ohio rail road, and two fifty cent shinplasters; an offer which they accepted with many thanks, finding out, for the the first time, that specie did not always make change.

COMPLIMENTARY. Last evening the Junior Artillerists, one of our best military associations, presented to their late captain, Col. Henry McKinnell, a beautiful silver pitcher, as a testimony of the high esteem in which that officer was held by the members of the company. The pitcher weighs 2 lbs. 5 oz. and was manufactured by Mr. John Murray, Light street. As a specimen of workmanship, it does infinite credit to the Baltimore mechanic. On one side are engraved the words—

"Presented by the Junior Artillerists to their late Captain—Col. Henry McKinnell."

On the other—

"A testimonial of esteem. Baltimore, January 1st, 1841."

WATCH RETURNS. Eastern District, Jan. 30. Richard Stirling and Wm. M'Gaughan, were admitted as lodgers, and negro Dan Freeman imprisoned for intoxication. Jan. 31—John Hanson and Thomas Prince were locked up for fighting, released in the morning. Middle District, Jan. 30—Vallentine Duff was imprisoned for intoxication and abuse of the watchmen. Mary Stevenson, colored, was found strolling the streets after hours, and brought in for the Police. John Harney was found drunk and so were Hiram Baker and John Rodgers, all left for the Police to send to the Alms-house. Jan. 31—The only prisoner, Geo. Sturgess, was brought in for rioting. Western District, Jan. 30—Wm. Marshall, colored, was locked up for strolling the streets. Charles Thompson, for disturbing the peace, was brought in at 1 o'clock. Jan. 31—Doctor M'Manus's boy was brought in at an early hour for his disorderly conduct.

POLICE. Walter Gray, charged with theatening Alphonso Osborne with personal injury, was arrested on Saturday and taken before Justice Pennington, who committed him to jail.

Samuel Allen, having no means of support, was on Sunday committed to the Alms-house, as a vagrant by Justice King.

"Every man ought to take a paper"—as the loafer said when he stole the Clipper from the door of a regular subscriber.

[Reported for the Baltimore Clipper.]

USING FIRE ARMS. An action of damage was brought before Justice Peschin. The plaintiff claimed of a father for glass broken by his son, by discharging a loaded gun into and through the window of a house at Canton.

The magistrate said "the case, as proved by the evidence, seemed to involve trespass, damage and debt. Discharging the contents of a loaded gun into and through a house, and invading domestic quiet and repose is, at least, like trespass 'with force of arms.' And the alarm and terror to the lady exposed to such perils, calls loudly for damage for personal injury. The breaking of glass, and the consequent expenditure for mending, would justify shaping it as a case of debt."

Judgment in favor of the plaintiff for damage claimed and costs; leaving the defendant still liable for the penalty for violating an ordinance against firing in the city.

VIOLATING A CONTRACT. Before the same magistrate was tried a suit for damages for detention of a watch, value $15. Egerstorff vs. Robinson. Evidence was given that the plaintiff purchased a watch of the defendant for $6.50, for which a note or due-bill was given, payable in 60 days. Some days after the sale and delivery of the watch, the defendant called at the house of the plaintiff, and by the exercise of cunning and deception, obtained possession of the watch from the son of the plaintiff. The defendant admitted that he had repossessed himself of the watch, and offered as a justification that he had been informed the plaintiff would never pay him. He admitted that he had destroyed the note, which had been drawn by himself and signed by the plaintiff; but offered no evidence to prove such destruction.

The Justice decided that the defendant had violated the contract in a most reprehensible manner. He said it should be visited with penalty. If a party were permitted thus to usurp the right and power of seizing property, after being sold and delivered, either by violence or means of circumvention, there would be an end to all safety in negotiation.

Judgment was given in favor of the plaintiff, for damage five dollars and costs, and an exemplification from any claim for the note or due-bill given by the defendant for the watch. Should it be put afloat the defendant to be responsible for it.

CITY COURT.—Present, Judges Brice, Nortal and Worthington. Yesterday morning the City Court organized. After qualifying the grand and petit juries, the petit jury was discharged until Thursday next, in order to give the grand jury time to find indictments.

JEFFERS' CASE. Madison Jeffers gave bail yesterday morning for the removal of his case to Annapolis, to be tried at the Court which commences its session on the third Monday in April next. His reason for removing the case was for the purpose of obtaining some important witnesses whom he could not secure if the trial was prosecuted in Baltimore.

LYNCHING IN NEW JERSEY. A resident of the lower part of Salem county, Jersey, named Jonathan D. Ayras, who had made himself odious in the neighborhood by his bad conduct towards his wife, was waited upon one day last week by a number of the neighbors, who, after divesting him of his clothing, gave him a suit of tar and feathers, and then ordered him to leave the place or they would visit him the next day. He obeyed their order, and has not been seen since.

A USEFUL HINT TO HOUSEKEEPERS. "If you would save your house from being entered by burglars with false keys," says the New York Journal of Commerce, "fasten your door by a plain bolt on the inside, disconnected from the lock. Burglars can pick a ten dollar lock with all the ease in the world; but they cannot pick a two shilling bolt. If your house should be robbed some night, be sure to put a bolt on the door immediately afterwards."

MURDERER ARRESTED. The Dayton (Ohio) Journal of the 28th ult. says:—Price, the black fellow, charged with the murder of M'Clure, was lodged in jail last night. He was taken by H. Achey, three miles above Springfield—and was in company with a number of other blacks who were skinning a cow. He made no resistance, but begged his pursuer not to shoot him. The blacks tied him, and gave him up.

MORE VICTIMS OF STEAM. Calvin Pike, aged 18 years, was killed, and two others were considerably injured, by the explosion of a steam boiler in the sash factory of G. M. Pike, at Newhaven, on the 27th ult. The engine was thrown 200 feet in the air.

FIRE AND DEATH FROM EXPLOSION OF A STEAM BOILER. A serious fire occurred at Providence, R. I. on the 29th ult. by the bursting of a steam boiler in an India rubber factory. The building was shattered to atoms, one female burnt to death and another badly burnt.

A CARD.

To the Stockholders of the Western Bank.

A report being in circulation that the present Board of Directors of the Western Bank intend to run a new ticket at the approaching election, and that its object the removal of the present executive officers of that institution, the committee on the part of the stockholders offering this ticket, deem it proper to give this public assurance to the voters that no such intention has ever been entertained by them, but that the re-election is simply to examine the concerns of the institution and all other proceedings are to depend upon the manner in which they find the affairs to have been conducted. Far from any feeling of hostility towards its present officers, the gentlemen composing the new ticket will be most happy to be justified in re-electing them to their places.

On this occasion is takes to notice another report which has had its existence and which intimates that the movement in favor of a new ticket of Directors has its impulse in the wish of certain of the present directors to open to themselves a source of Bank accommodations. To silence this attack the committee beg to say that they are authorized by each and every one of the new directors—those who have been in the direction of the Bank—to give a pledge to stockholders that not one of them will ever ask for the discount of a single note or bill while he remains a director of the institution, nor will the firm of which he may be a member make any such application, but that, so far as the new names are concerned, the means of the Bank shall be only devoted for the accommodation of its regular customers.

The committee in giving this pledge venture to add that as a similar assurance with regard to the ticket to be presented by the administration side, will, they have no doubt, be acceptable to stockholders. fe12 d

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one, that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and be worthy of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1 50 each.

AGENCY. HOUSES, FARMS, VACANT LOTS, GROUND RENTS, LANDS, &c. bought and sold on commission. SLAVES, for life or a term of years, bought or sold on commission, and the highest prices obtained. Persons having Slaves, which they wish to dispose of, will do well to apply at this office before selling.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. MRS. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 25 cents per bottle.

MALIGNANT FEVER. The Bloomsburg Register gives an account of a malignant fever, prevailing in the family of Mr. John Knorr, of Briar Creek township. A brother and sister died about a week since. Two more brothers were laying very low, one of which, Samuel, escaped on Friday night, last, in a state of delirium, through one of the windows in his night clothes, and was tracked through the snow over piles of ice into the river. His remains were found a short time afterwards about 150 yards below.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains as aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by jy28-y WM. G. COOK, No. 3 N. Gay-st.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

ODE—TO THE PRESS.

BY G. G. FOSTER.

As breaks the sun o'er ocean's gloom,
And lights the dark and frowning sea—
While the frail bark, escaped its doom,
Again sails onward fast and free—
So the dark world, beneath thy light,
Sprung up in intellectual might.

The pride, the pomp, the power of kings,
Faded like mist before thy ray;
And men perceived those mighty things
Dwindle to atoms, even as they—
While o'er the earth a Spirit went,
With voice and eye all eloquent.

The nations heard its voice, and all
The populous millions of earth's slaves
Re echod, with glad shout, the call
Of Freedom—standing o'er the graves
Of uncrowned kings, unmitred popes,
And all that crushed man's highest hopes.

No more the emancipated world
Bowed 'neath the despot's iron rod;
The tyrant from his throne was hurled—
Man, slave no more, assumed the god—
And Genius, with her arts sublime,
Gilded the wings of passing time!

BRAVERY OF THE IRISH.

The indomitable courage, patience and perseverance exhibited upon all occasions by the Irish soldier, even when laboring under excessive privation, is a matter of notoriety. The Duke of Wellington, during his early campaigns in India, duly appreciated the valor of his countrymen in the service of the E. I. Company.

Subsequently, during the peninsular war in Spain and Portugal, the noble and kind hearted Duke took especial care to place the Irish regiments in front, to bear the brunt of the different battles, being well aware of the unflinching character of the sons of Erin.

Still later, at Waterloo, he may thank the Irish and Scotch troops, who remained immobile under the most tremendous fire of artillery and musquetry, combined with repeated attacks of cavalry.

That brave Englishman, General Sir Thomas Picton, when on service in Spain, commanded a division emphatically called the "Fighting Brigade," composed of Irish regiments; wherever danger was to be found, or glory won, the brave Picton and his troops were sure to be found. The heroic general fell on the plains of Waterloo.

The following extracts taken from "Ferrar's History of Limerick," a work of the highest authority, published in Ireland in 1787, may serve to illustrate the subject, and will doubtless prove gratifying to our Irish citizens who have not had an opportunity of perusing the work alluded to, which has become very scarce.

The garrison of Limerick made a glorious struggle in defence of their religion and liberty, even the women gave proofs of valor, which cannot be equalled in history. After the capitulation in 1691, nineteen thousand and fifty-nine of the Irish troops, officers included, embarked for France. These troops were regimented in Ireland, afterwards reformed in France, so that colonels became captains, &c. The regiments of O'Neal, O'Donnell, Mac Donnell, Maguire, Mac Mahon, Magennis, were incorporated, so was that of O'Reily; and in 1695, all the Irish troops were reduced to twelve regiments.

In 1708 the king of Spain raised two regiments of dragoons, and three regiments of Irish foot; the infantry he afterwards augmented, making of each regiment two battallions. These served with the greatest distinction, at Oran; in Sicily and Italy in 1733 and '34. In 1743 these troops, by their bravery, saved the Spanish army at Villetri, and Don Philip who would have been taken prisoner, and beat back the Imperialists. On the most exact calculations, taken out of the war-office of France, it appear, that from 1691, when these troops first arrived in France, to the year 1745, after the battle of Fontenoy, above four hundred and fifty thousand Irish had lost their lives in the service of France, and with what considerable loss to the allies, the annals of history to this day prove.

When the Prince Eugene surprised Cremona, in 1702, Villeroy, the French General, most of his officers, military chest, &c. were taken. The Germans were in possession of the whole town, except the Po-gate, which was guarded by O'Mahony's and Burke's Irish regiments. Before Eugene attacked that post, he sent Gen. M'Donnell, an Irishman, to shew his countrymen the folly of sacrificing their lives, where there was no probability of relief, and make them large offers to enter into the Imperial service. The Irish listened to both proposals with high disdain and told the Prince that while one of them existed, the German Eagle should not be displayed on the Po-gate. They were attacked by a large body of horse and foot, supported by 5000 cuirassiers or German horses, completely armed; and after a dreadful conflict of two hours, the Germans retreated. The Irish availing themselves of this success, pursued the enemy into the streets, drove them from the town, retook the general, and recovered the military chest, &c. This action was of such eclat, that it was said in the British House of Commons, the Irish abroad had done more mischief to the allies, than they could have done at home by being repossessed of their estates.

After the surrender of the Saxons near Pirna, in the late German war, the King of Prussia did every thing to corrupt the troops, and alienate them from their sovereign. He soothed, he flattered, he threatened; amidst a circle of officers, he applied to O'Cavenagh, Colonel of the Irish guards. "Sire," replied this brave man, "my life and fortune are in your power, and you may dispose of them, but my honor is beyond your reach, and you shall not wound it. I have given my faith to the King of Poland, and this faith I will carry unsullied to the grave."

At the battle of Blenheim, Lord Clare's dragoons alone were victorious on the side of the French, having cut to pieces a German regiment, commanded by Colonel Goore. It was Ligonier's horse, to a man Irish, which preserved the King's person, and thereby gained the battle of Dettingen. Dr. Maty, in his life of Lord Chesterfield, ascribes to the Irish brigade, the turn of the day at the battle of Fontenoy, in favor of the French. Many other cases are adduced to the same purpose. It was probably reflections of this nature, which produced the following lines of Swift:

"Her matchless sons, whose valor still remains
On French records, for twenty long campaigns;
Yet from an Empress, now a captive grown,
She saved Britannia's rights and lost her own."

Before the late reduction of Montreal, Colonel Sir James Stackpole Malone, Bart. an Irish officer, volunteered for a dangerous effort, went to the head of his regiment and asked for a hundred men of valour to turn out and join him in the enterprise. Three times did he proclaim his request, but no answer. Afraid of their cowardice, he called out a fourth time, "Gentlemen, I'm afraid you don't understand me." "Perfectly well," said one in the rank; but what do you mean by a hundred men of valour! We all lay claim to that title; fix upon your men, therefore, without this distinction, and they will follow you.

Col. Malone, charmed with this delicate bravery, apologized for his error, chose out his men, and immediately decamped in order to put his plan in execution, but unfortunately they were all cut off (including Colonel Malone) to eleven men.

The gallant Sarsfield, who bravely defended Limerick, and forced King William to raise the siege, received his death wound at the battle of Landen. He and his brigade exhibited prodigies of valour, and it may be said, were victorious in the centre of a defeated army. He died in the midst of military glory, and what could redound more to his honour, than that the British forces bore testimony to his abilities, intrepidity and humanity.

At the battle of Ramilies, Clare's brigade again proved what Irishmen can do, and were covered with laurels. They attacked the regiment of guards; and their valour harried them on, almost to the centre of the allied army, where they braved their fate, with incredible resolution, and would have been cut off to a man, had not an Italian regiment, and another called the Cravats, generously pushed up to their relief, and favoured their retreat, they however carried off the colours and trophies of that regiment, which remain, we believe to this day in the cloister of the Irish nuns at Ipres; the brave Clare, was himself mortally wounded in this battle.

At Spirchack, Nugent's regiment of horse, by a brave and successful charge on two regiments of Cuirassiers, completely armed with breast and back plates, and iron helmets, brought a decisive victory to their army, which seemed to have been deserted by good fortune. Lieutenant General Dillon chiefly contributed to the preservation of Toulon. Count Medavi, himself acknowledged that to the bravery of the Irish brigades he chiefly owed his victories in Italy; and the great Vendome, whenever he spoke of the Irish, it was in words of veneration and enthusiasm.

In Spain, they chiefly contributed to the establishment of Philip on that throne; and this affords us an opportunity of reciting an anecdote, perhaps the most curious to be met with in history.

By the defeat at Saragossa, and the very low ebb to which France was reduced, Philip apprehended he should be obliged to relinquish his right to the Spanish monarchy, amongst others it was apprehended that the duke of Medina Celi was in the interest of his competitor Charles. To render so powerful a prince inactive would be almost equal to a victory, but the method to effect this, in the exhausted state of Philip, seemed difficult. Sir Patrick Lawless, then an Irish Colonel, charged himself singly to secure the Duke. He had previously concerted all his measures. He repaired to the Duke's court, as with a commission from Philip. He invited him to a fine terrass walk, to converse the more freely; they insensibly rambled to a distance from the Duke's suite, until they came near a door, which communicated with the high road; here the Colonel had a carriage in waiting, and in a few words told the Duke that he must directly, and as it were of his own free will, pass the door, or that otherwise he must die. That he had engaged at the hazard of his life, to bring him to Madrid, where he would find the most gracious reception from Philip. The Duke seeing himself in the power of a man, cool and determined, agreed to the alternative, and was soon conveyed to Madrid, where he found every thing to correspond with the colonel's accounts; and the battle of Almanza happening some time after, made the duke deem his visiter, his preserver, and that of his state. He was after this raised to the rank of Lieutenant General, and Governor of Majorca; and some years after Ambassador from King Philip to the court of France.

In the year 1732, Oran was besieged by a large body of Arabs, and from their numbers, and the fierceness of their attacks, the town was apprehended to be in the utmost danger; the regiment of Ultonia or Ulster, consisting of two battalions, and then commanded by General Lucy, a county of Limerick gentleman, and whose son has been ambassador from the court of Spain to Russia, was ordered to embark to relieve that important place. As soon as they had landed on the beach, and taken some refreshment, they requested the governor to direct a Sortie, or at least to order a body of troops to support them, and they would directly attack the enemy in their trenches; the proposal animated the garrison with fresh courage—all seconded the generous offer—General Lacy and his brigade led on to action, and after a bloody conflict, it proved decisive in favor of the Spaniards; the Moors being completely defeated, their camp plundered, and all their ordnance and military stores brought into the garrison. He married a daughter of the Marquis of Abbeville, by whom he had a son, now Captain General of all the artillery, to his Most Catholic Majesty; also a Knight of the Order of Carlos Tercero; and a daughter who married to Marquis of Canada, originally Irish, of the ancient family of Terry.

[To be concluded in our next.]

More Poisoning Suspected. The N. Y. Herald states that the body of Mr. Wm. A. Murrell has arrived at Staten Island, in charge of his wife and child, under circumstances which create suspicions of foul play. Mr. Murrell, who formerly kept a store in Greenwich street, near Vesey, had removed to the South, intending to send for his wife when his arrangements were perfected.

Before, however, he had sent for her, she embarked in a vessel for Baltimore, accompanied by her daughter and a strange gentleman. Mr. Murrell, who had been advised of this, caused the arrest of the stranger, immediately on the arrival of the packet at Baltimore, on a charge of theft. The husband and wife then made preparations to return to that city, and a friend was requested by letter to procure lodgings for them.

The appointed day passed, and the next, but last week the lady and her daughter returned with the corpse of the late Mr. Murrell, which she said she had brought here at his earnest request, in order that it might be buried in the vault of his family at Port Richmond, Staten Island. On Wednesday the funeral was to take place, but when they came to the grave the lady had no certificate from a medical man, which the law requires; and as the sexton refused to receive the body without the coroner of that county was sent for, the lady then represented that the body had been many days travelling, and that decomposition must have commenced, which fact might make it very unpleasant to have an examination. However it was the general wish, and the coffin was opened, when the body of the dead man appeared quite fresh, and appeared to be only discolored in two places, under the ear and around the stomach. The coroner deeming the circumstances to be suspicious, permitted the funeral ceremony to be performed, and the earth closed, as it was supposed for ever, over the coffin.

That night the lady and her daughter staid with the family of her husband at Staten Island, and of course the sudden bereavement of the disconsolate widow was the principal topic of conversation. Mrs. Murrell told different stories of her late husband's last moments to different people, and one of the relations of the deceased elicited from the daughter, that her mother has poisoned her father, and was going to return to Baltimore to marry the other gentleman.

This man went again to the Coroner, and the body was exhumed, the stomach, duedenum and other intestines taken out and brought to this city on Saturday, and delivered to Dr. Chilton, the eminent chemist of Broadway, for analyzation. The investigation has not yet commenced, and therefore we cannot give the result at present, but we understand that there are many circumstances beside the confession of the girl, which seem to strengthen the suspicion of poisoning. A final investigation will be held in a day or two, and we shall give the proceedings thereof; but the strongest part of the affair is the fact, that the lady and the child have been permitted to return to Baltimore.

Horrible. We copy the following account of a cold-blooded murder from the St. Louis Pennant—who credits it to the "Illinoian:"

Not knowing the full particulars, we only give them as street talk. It appears that four men whose names are George Gardner, Nash, and two brothers by the name of Crue, had been playing at cards and drinking, commenced quarrelling about a pocket handkerchief, each one accusing the other of having stolen it, from which circumstances Gardner and the two Crues joined and fell upon Nash. A double barrel gun was procured by Gardner, and he pursued Nash, in company with the Crues, and when near enough to Nash discharged both barrels at him, both taking effect. The left breast received seventy shot and two balls, which cut off the lower part of the heart. Whilst expiring from the wounds thus received, the two Crues, one with an iron poker and the other with a heavy stick, commenced striking him over the head, which literally mashed it to a jelly.

At this juncture a citizen came up and interfered, when an attack was made upon him, but he escaped without injury. After they had satisfied themselves with their fiendish work, one of them caught up the dead man's hat on the end of the stick with which he had been beating him, and exultingly whirled it over his head in token of triumph. A circumstance which more forcibly conveyed the callous heart than any other scene in the tragedy.

The three murderers are now in prison, having made but little resistance when taken. The murdered man was from Ireland, and the three murderers are English by birth. As the matter will be legally investigated, we defer any further remarks.

P. S. Since writing the above we have heard that Nash fired the first gun.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	6 A.M.	reach Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	" Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	" Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'kburg	12 M.	" Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	" Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	" Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	" Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection throughout, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads, Weather and Storms!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

☞ Passengers for the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road pay through to Petersburg, Va. For further information and Through Tickets, apply at the office of

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, Feb. 3, 1841.

To Subscribers in the N. W. section of the city. The carrier's route bounded east and west by N. Charles and N. Howard streets, has been very much neglected recently on account of the inattention of the carriers employed on it. A carrier yesterday took charge of the route, and requests us to state that all those subscribers who do not receive the paper will confer a favor on him by leaving their names at the office. It is his determination to extend the circulation of the paper in that district, and by unremitting attention to insure a continuation of patronage.

Baltimore Mechanics. In our paper of the 19th ult. we touched briefly on the ingenuity, skill and industry of the mechanics of Baltimore, and incidentally noticed the locomotive engine constructed by our townsman, Ross Winans, with a promise that, at a future day, we would give a more minute description of the machine, with its advantages over engines of ordinary construction. We now proceed to comply with our promise.

The engine is constructed with a view to adapting it to the purposes of transportation. Its weight, when in running condition, is nineteen and a third tons, equally distributed on eight wheels, all of which are driving or propelling wheels; hence the adhesion of the entire weight of the machine is made subservient to its tractive power. The boiler is of the upright description with vertical tubes, is peculiarly adapted to the use of coal, has 650 tubes and 20 square feet of fire grate. The cylinders are 14½ inches in diameter and 24 in stroke. A highly important feature of the machine is, that while it has eight propelling wheels and is admirably adapted to the traversing of curves of the shortest radius common on rail roads, (say 3 to 400 feet,) it is simple, compact and permanent in its construction to a degree that would scarcely be deemed possible without an inspection of the engine; it having a decided advantage in this respect over the generality of engines in use in the country, having one and two pairs of driveing wheels only.

The appearance of the engine is remarkably plain, pleasing and imposing, while it is entirely without ornament, except the neatness of its outline and the superiority of its workmanship, which is of the very best description. Among the practical advantages which this engine has, compared with the best of others known to the public, are the following: The adhesion is double, and consequently the load taken, or the amount of business performed is double, while the weight on any one wheel is not more, and in most cases considerably less than any engine possessing half its power. Thus the expense of men in attendance on the engine and train is reduced one half in proportion to the work performed, and a relief is afforded to the road which will result in the diminution of its repairs. The unusual power of the engine and amount of work performed by it per day produces a material decrease in the amount of fuel required for a given amount of goods transported. The great weight and strength of the various parts of the machine, (which is permitted by the weight being equally distributed on so many bearing points on the road,) will manifestly diminish the repairs of the machine in proportion to its useful effect.

Again: this description of engine will enable roads with heavy grades to be worked with an efficiency which has not before been obtained, for reasons which will be manifest to engineers. The engine in question was constructed with particular reference to the character and purposes of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, with a view to affording that company the means of testing fully and practically on their road the great advantages which were expected to result from the employment of engines of such power, provided the weight could be equally distributed on eight propelling wheels, combined with a simple, permanent and practicable arrangement and mode of causing the engine to traverse the numerous curves of that road with the requisite facility and safety. This Mr. Winans has accomplished to a degree which few, if any besides himself, believed possible, until the engine was put on the road, so that little more, if any thing, is desirable in that respect.

The several trips which Mr. Winans has made with the engine to Harper's Ferry and back with heavy loads, to ascertain whether all was as he wished previous to his calling the attention of the company to the subject, have, so far as they go, fully supported the most favorable opinions entertained in reference to the advantages and saving to result from the employment of such class of engines. Mr. Winans has now offered his engine to the rail road company, for the purpose of enabling them to test fully its properties, and to compare its advantages and economy in the working of the road with those of the several descriptions of the most approved plan of engines known in their employ, previous to the company's taking measures to procure the additional engines required on their completion of the road to Cumberland, which it is expected will be accomplished in the next eighteen or twenty months.

This offer of Mr. Winans the company will no doubt most cordially embrace, as it comes most opportunely to enable them to complete the comparisons between the most promising engines extant, which they have been pursuing for several years, to enable them to act understandingly is a matter of such importance to the successful and profitable working of the road as that of selecting the plan of engine best suited to its requirement.

In a matter where the evidence is so decidedly in favor of the interests of the company being so materially served, at the same time that encouragement will be given to our home industry, our mechanics will, without question, receive that consideration and cordial co-operation which will enable them to enter into a fair and equal competition with those from abroad; and, if successful in such competition, they will be encouraged accordingly, instead of having their merits and productions slightingly passed by, as is too often the case; and which neglect compels them to seek that patronage abroad, (and out of the range of unfounded prejudice,) which is denied them at home, and which is the cause of that state of things so much deplored by the chief magistrate of the city, and which is evidenced by the fact, that nineteen-twentieths of the amount of rail-road machinery manufactured for sale in Baltimore within the last few years, has gone on to roads out of the state of Maryland—over 100,000 dollars worth of which has gone to Philadelphia and Boston, among a people whose pride and boast is, the superior skill of their mechanics, and the excellence of their manufactures. At the same time a similar sum of the people's money has gone from Baltimore to other places for the purchase of machinery for use on roads in Maryland. This argues much better for the skill of our mechanics, than for a becoming patronage extended to them by our citizens.

Gold, Silver and Paper—Look at Home. There have been many laws passed in many states prohibiting paper issues by banks under five dollars. The object has been to make silver the circulating medium for ordinary purposes in the community. When these laws originated a piece of gold was so rare as to be almost a curiosity, and silver was the precious metal most common in the country; and as the most common want of the public was change in fractional parts of a dollar, silver readily supplied it. But the laws in question are no longer applicable to the existing state of things. The circumstances which justified the legislation in question have changed.

The "gold bill," as it is termed, passed some years since by Congress, made silver more valuable, for the purpose of exportation to equalize the balance of trade, which has ever since been against us, than gold; and the consequence has been, that gold is as common nearly as silver used to be, and silver is becoming as scarce. The two metals have changed places. Now, while gold is equally a legal tender with silver, it will not so easily make change—the smallest coin being worth two dollars and fifty cents, while the smallest silver coin is five cents. The banks may be as strong in specie now as ever, by having large deposites of gold—but they are as useless for the purpose of furnishing change to the public, as if they had not a dollar of specie in their vaults. A man who wants to pay fifty cents is as badly off with a half eagle as with a five dollar bank note. The banks are justified for their convenience, and this is a sufficient justification—but here we see an existing law, over which the states that charter them have no control, operates to prevent them from ministering to the public convenience. What then is to be done? The answer is plain—there must be a one, two and three dollar paper circulation to enable the public to make out the fractional parts of eagles, half and quarter eagles—since these are the coins, not dollars and half dollars, as of old, that are accumulated in the banks as the basis of their issues. But who shall make the circulation? This brings us home. Shall the banks make it, or shall it be furnished by the stock orders that we now have in use? Can there be a moment's doubt? We ask for answer those most interested:—those whose small dealings rarely enable them to accumulate a five dollar note to present for specie at the counter of a bank. We ask the whole community—will you have a small paper circulation based on the wealth and faith of Baltimore, which we can all understand and know the value of—or one based on bank credit, whose value is known but to the board of directors, and indeed, as events shew, not always fully to them? Why, the answer must be, we will have the former, for the same reason we prefer a certainty to an uncertainty.

Rail Road Notes. Our readers must have noticed by the proceedings of the first branch of the city council, published in yesterday's paper, that the mayor has asked the action of the councils on the subject of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road notes, in order to give to them greater stability and credit. This has no doubt been occasioned by recent movements in relation to these notes which have tended to depreciate their value in public estimation; and we are glad to see, that, in a matter which so deeply affects the interests of Baltimore, the chief magistrate of the city has thought proper to move. We have urged again and again the necessity of keeping these notes in circulation, and the safety of the guarantee for their redemption. We have not found a single individual who denied the perfect security of the notes, but it is objected by some, who are interested in reducing them below par, that they cannot with safety be received in banking transactions. This is not correct. The banks, if authorized, would immediately issue small notes of their own, which would be receivable on deposit or in payment, and they would deem such issue advantageous to their interests. Now, since the banks cannot issue small notes of their own, why will they not give currency to those of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road? They could be passed as freely as they would be received, and it is folly to place the refusal of the banks to receive them on the ground that they would subject themselves to redeem them in specie.

We have not seen the mayor's message, but hope that it may produce such decisive action on the part of the councils, as may induce the banks at once to adopt measures in accordance with the wishes and interests of the people. It is a matter of too great importance to be trifled with.—The opportunity is afforded to construct the rail road to Cumberland without additional taxation to the citizens of Baltimore; and the moment it reaches that point the probability is, that the interest then accruing on the city stock will be nearly adequate to the expenditure required.—Should the banks undertake to frustrate this desirable result, they will incur a fearful responsibility, and impose upon the citizens of Baltimore the necessity of sustaining their own currency. But a hostile attitude on the part of the banks is so palpably inconsistent with their interests and duty, that we have little apprehension that they will persist in their resolution to refuse giving circulation to the rail road notes. Some of them have already come forward on the subject in the most liberal and patriotic manner. The notes were yesterday, we learn, received and paid out at the counters of the Merchants' Bank, Bank of Baltimore, Union Bank of Maryland, Commercial and Farmers' Bank, and Western Bank.—The Bank of Baltimore has offered to take five per cent. of its capital in these notes, which it proposes to stamp and redeem as its own paper. We have no doubt that the example of the above institutions will be followed by the other banks of the city; if not, the people will be able to discriminate between the banks which are favorable to the interests of Baltimore, and those that are otherwise.

The rail road notes have now a considerable circulation in the adjacent states, and are, in many instances, laid up by those who desire to have at command a currency which cannot depreciate.

Don't touch them. The notes of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company are at a discount of 7 per cent. in Baltimore, and it is supposed that a still greater depreciation will take place in a few days. They are redeemable in the stock of the company, at the par value of $100 per share; but the stock is selling at $31 per share, so that the holders of them will lose 69 out of every 100 dollars.

The above article is from the Delaware Gazette of yesterday, and exhibits either gross ignorance or wilful misrepresentation in the editor. In the first place, the rail road notes are not at a discount of seven per cent. but pass currently at par; and in the second, the notes are not redeemable in the stock of the company, but in city stock bearing an interest of six per cent. It is foolish to attempt to instruct in a matter which one does not understand. If the editor of the Delaware Gazette could receive all his subscriptions in rail road notes, he might lay them by in lavender without the fear of loss.

The Bible cause. We had the pleasure of being present, on Monday evening last, at a meeting held in the Rev. Mr. Hammer's church, Hanover street, under the authority of the Maryland Bible Society. Although the evening was inclement, the house was crowded with an audience of ladies and gentlemen. After the reading of the annual reports, the Rev. Dr. Parker arose and delivered an instructive address, enforcing the importance of giving increased attention to the great cause in which himself, his brother missionaries, and the good of all denominations were engaged. Dr. Parker, it is known, has been a missionary from the American board for Canton, in China, where he has been laboring in the great work for the last six years. His arrival in this country was announced only a few weeks since. Dr. Parker gave many interesting accounts of his travels in China, plainly demonstrated the great necessity of sending the gospel to the three hundred and sixty millions of human souls who now live in idolatry throughout the "Celestial Empire." He stated that many of the Chinese had already abandoned their idols for the book of life—that they were willing to be instructed and learn of the christian. He also alluded to the Chinese literature, their advancement in arts and sciences, together with their customs, &c. all of which was to us at least (and we are satisfied to the general auditory) highly pleasing as well as instructive.

After Dr. Parker had closed his address, at the request of some persons present, he stated briefly the cause which led to the late disturbance between Great Britain and China, and exhonerated the English from the imprecations now heaped upon them as being the aggressors. He stated, that, contrary to general opinion, the Chinese offered the first provocations, and that the English were acting upon the defensive. This is entirely different from the general impression heretofore entertained. But no one having a better opportunity to know the truth than the Doctor, (he having been an eye witness), we must give way to his opinion.

Accompanying the Doctor was Chin Sung, a native Chinese, dressed in full Chinese costume, who acts in the capacity of a teacher of the Chinese language. Chin Sung appeared to be quite an important personage. The expression of his features are altogether prepossessing. He is in age probably 22 years. We are not aware that he understands the English language; he was, however, busily engaged in shaking hands with a large number who seemed eager to extend him the hand of fellowship.

The Rev. Mr. Sortel, an American missionary to France, was also present upon the occasion, and addressed the meeting. We were struck with one very forcible observation which fell from this Rev. gentlemen. He stated that it had been his intention to visit the south on a missionary tour, but hearing that the times were so bad and money so scarce he had nearly come to the conclusion to abandon for a time at least, his visit. In reading a newspaper not long since, his attention was called to a paragraph where it was stated that Fanny Elsler had been engaged to dance ten nights at Havana, at the rate of one thousand dollars per night. Upon this, observed the speaker, my opinion as to the poverty of the south was changed. If they are able to pay a simple girl one thousand dollars per night for dancing but a short time, they will certainly not refuse giving something for the promulgation of that book which goes beyond all time and teaches of immortality. This conclusion was forcible and the argument overwhelming. Upon the close of Mr. Sortel's remarks, a very liberal collection was taken up, when it was moved that the Rev. Dr. Parker be requested, at an early period, to address an audience in this city upon the subject of his travels in China. Dr. Parker is a beautiful speaker—his style is polished and his language highly classical.

Washington, Feb. 2, 1841.

This morning in the House of Representatives a resolution was adopted, by which on to-morrow, at three, P. M., the committee of the whole will be discharged from the further consideration of the treasury note bill.

It will then be before the House, and subject to amendment. Notice has been given of several amendments for striking out the enacting clause of the bill, and substituting an authority for raising a loan. These cannot pass, as the vote in favor of the bill in its present shape is too large.

The above resolution having been adopted, Mr. Triplett took the floor against the bill, and hurled both prose and poetry against its defenders. In the course of his remarks in favor of a protective tariff on foreign luxuries, Mr. T. alluded to the tobacco interest of this country. He called attention to the fact that while our cotton was taxed by England but 33 per cent., our tobacco had a tax laid upon it of 800 per cent. This, he contended, was enough to rouse the blood of every man in the tobacco growing states.

Mr. Coles, of Virginia, followed in support of the bill, but with the same view of the tobacco question.

The Senate is still engaged on the pre-emption bill, but it is understood that it is to be disposed of this evening.

I am requested to state that the first anniversary of the Metropolitan Lyceum will be held at Carusi's Saloon, on to-morrow evening, at seven o'clock. The public are invited to attend. It cannot fail to be interesting.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

"Der Leiderkranzes." The concert and ball of this association of German vocalists on Monday night went off with more than usual eclat. A number of chorusses, solos, &c. were sung with masterly effect, though the society is made up entirely of amateurs. Amongst the lady singers there was one who bids fair to become a bright star in the musical firmament, she sung a delightful solo by Von Weber with much taste and neatness. The young lady who performed the brilliant variations, by Czerny, on the piano forte, won well-merited applause; she will be, if she is not already, an accomplished pianist. Amongst a number of chorusses sung, we cannot help noticing the grand finale to Don Juan. It was in this that the society exhibited its full force, and to say that it was executed well would be but faint praise. The divine conception of Mozart had its full scope, and the vocalists determined to base their reputation entirely upon its failure or success. The triumph was sealed by the loud approval of the audience.

After the concert, the hall was cleared and the ball was opened with a grand Polonaise, or Promenade, of such a winding and twisting nature, that we will not attempt to describe it, lest we should entangle our readers. And then the dizzy waltz, so enthusiastically participated in by Germans, but with us (personally) a thing pleasanter to be looked at than share. There are some very neat dancers among the members, at least if grace be an important quality in dancing, though we are half inclined to believe that it is growing out of fashion, and the "double shuffle" and "break down" are usurping its place.

A CARD.

To the Stockholders of the Western Bank.

☞ A report being in circulation that the presentation of a new ticket of Directors for the Western Bank has for its object the removal of the present executive officers of that institution, the committee on the part of the stockholders offering this ticket, deem it proper to give this public assurance to the voters that no such intention has ever been entertained by them, but that their aim is simply to examine the concerns of the Bank, and all other proceedings are to depend upon the manner in which they find its affairs to have been conducted. Far from any feeling of hostility towards its present officers, the gentlemen composing the new ticket will be most happy to be justified in re electing them to their places.

This occasion is taken to notice another report which is in existence and which intimates that the movement for reform has its impulse in the wish of certain of the new directors to open to themselves a source of Bank facilities. To silence this attack the committee beg to state that they are authorized by each and every one of the new Directors—those who have been in the direction of the Bank—to give a pledge to stockholders that not one of them will ever ask for the discount of a single dollar while he remains a director of the institution, nor will the firm of which he may be a member make any such application, but that, so far as the new names are concerned, the means of the Bank shall be only used for the accommodation of its regular customers.

The committee in giving this pledge venture to add that a similar assurance with regard to the ticket to be offered by the administration side, will, they have no doubt, be acceptable to stockholders. fe12 d

CONSUMPTION.

☞ Consumption, that fell Destroyer! More Proofs of the efficacy of Doctor SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, in relieving afflicted Mankind.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. MRS. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

BOARDING may be obtained by two or three genteel young men, or a gentleman and his lady, in a respectable private bo

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

FRANKLIN BANK MEETING. Agreeably to public notice, a meeting of the stockholders of this institution was held yesterday in the saloon of the Assembly Rooms, at which a considerable majority of the stock was represented. Doctor McCulloh, was appointed Chairman, and Wm. Bose, Esq. Secretary. We copy the amount of proceedings from the Patriot:

JAMES HOWARD, Esq., the President of the Franklin Bank, then rose, and addressed the meeting, in the course of which, he explained the causes and circumstances which had induced the Directors of the Bank to place its affairs in a state of liquidation. At the close, Mr. Howard read a detailed statement, setting forth the existing assets and liabilities of the bank, as submitted to the Board by a committee of the Directors, who had been appointed for that purpose. This statement or report of the examining committee, shews that the liabilities of the bank have been very considerably lessened, since the resignation of the late Cashier. And it is given as the result of this examination, or as the opinion of the board, founded thereon, that the stock of the bank, after all reasonable allowances, is yet worth $13.50 the share.

After the statement of the Board was thus submitted, a series of resolutions were offered by Mr. RIDGEN, in substance, that a committee of five stockholders be appointed by the chair (of which the chairman should be one) whose duty it should be to make an examination into the affairs and condition of the bank, and to report in favor of winding up, or of recommencing operations, to another meeting of the stockholders, to be called for that purpose. The second meeting to be called by the committee, so soon as they were ready to report.

The resolutions were adopted. And the chairman, in a suggestion of the importance of the duty assigned to him in designating the committee, asked and obtained leave to proceed to its discharge after the meeting should adjourn. The examining committee of stockholders, so soon as appointed, will be announced through the press. On motion, the meeting then adjourned.

From an estimate made during the call of the list of stockholders, we should judge the list to comprise about three hundred individuals and firms.

INFERNAL MACHINE. The Detroit Free Press contains an account of the explosion of an "infernal machine," by which Dr. Henry Lawson, landlord of the Eagle Hotel in that city was severely injured. The machine found its way amongst the baggage in the baggage room, and exploded while the Doctor was looking for a buffalo skin. It was about two feet long, and fourteen inches deep, and contained an oak block about 17 or 18 inches in circumference, which appeared by the fragments to have been in three or four pieces, and pinned together in such manner as to form a hollow space in the centre, some four inches in circumference, and about four inches high, which was apparently filled with powder, or a composition of a like combustible nature. There were a number of pebble stones scattered around the room about the size of a hen's egg, which were probably laid upon the top of the powder. A steel spring was found attached to the under part of the lid of the box; a small rinck hammer, attached to a wire was also found among the fragments, which likely formed a portion of the igniting machinery, and which was probably so arranged as to go off by any little jar. The oak block, containing the powder or composition was hooped by two strong bands of iron, about one quarter of an inch thick.

The box was directed to Peter Weed and Wilks Durkee, Bloomfield, by the Pontiac Rail Road, to the care of Mr. Kelsey, Birmingham; which directions was ascertained by putting the fragments of the cover of the box together.

The partitions enclosing the baggage room were blown out and shattered to pieces, and the windows of the bar-room were blown out, and the bar and house generally were much injured. Mr. Lawson's clothes were on fire and all torn to pieces when he received assistance.

There are various conjectures as to the object intended to be accomplished.

CITY COUNCIL. First Branch, February 2. The Branch met pursuant to adjournment.—Present, Mr. Snyder, President, and all the members except one.

After the previous day's proceedings were read, Mr. Keyser presented the petition of Abraham Hyam, Esq. praying the authorities of Baltimore to take some action against the practice of removing criminal cases out of the city court to the courts in adjoining counties. Also, praying for some move to be made in opposition to the practice of gambling. On motion, the documents were referred to the joint committee on police.

Mr. Peregoy presented the petition of Michael Gross, relative to removing a work shop, which was referred to the joint committeee on fire companies.

Mr. Blakeney presented the petition of John J. Turner and others, relative to repaving the sidewalks from Monument to Eager streets. Referred to committee on streets.

Mr. Fields also presented a petition in reference to the bad condition of the south side of Canal street from Gough to Bank street. Referred to committee on streets.

Mr. Gorsuch offered a petition signed by John B. Mathiot and others, relative to a pump at the corner of Eager and East streets. Referred to committee on water.

Mr. DeLoughrey presented a resolution asking that the Mayor be requested to state to the members of the council whether any communication has been received by his honor in reference to the prevention of disease on Long Dock, and if so to communicate said document to this branch.—The resolution was passed.

A resolution from the joint committee on harbors was called up, which originated in the Second Branch, relative to a communication from the city commissioners. The committee were discharged.

Mr. Dryden, from the Ninth ward, asked leave of absence from the council for the space of eight or nine weeks. On motion of Mr. Pinkney, leave of absence was granted.

Mr. Bender presented the petition of John Lynch and others, asking for a change in the name of Chamberlain's alley to the name of Eutaw court. Referred to committee on streets.

The joint committee on the Jail presented the report and resolution relative to that institution, which were favorable.

Mr. Hack presented the report of the joint committee on internal improvements, relative to the erection of a public square, which was unfavorable. The committee were discharged.

Mr. Keyser presented the report of the joint committee on conference, relative to metalic roofs. Here all proceedings came to an end until to-morrow at half past three o'clock.

ST. AUGUSTINE, (Fa.) Jan. 22.

The schooner Frances arrived this morning, bringing the news of additional success in the capture and destruction of the enemy south. On the 8th, Col. Harney captured and killed in the Everglades 12 Indians. On the 10th, at Indian River, the command under Maj. Childs, Lieuts. Taylor, Steptoe, Van Vliet, and Dr. Simmons, captured 34 Indians and negroes, killing 4. On the 11th, on the St. John's, Lieuts. Taylor and Van Vliet captured 5 Indians, killing 1. Col. Harney had to return for additional force, and is again in pursuit of the enemy.

The news from the South is truly cheering—the successes of Col. Harney, and the prompt and gallant conduct of Maj. Childs, and the officers of the 3d artillery, are entitled to all praise. Maj. Childs is a brave officer, and already distinguished for good conduct at Fort Drane. We say, God speed such men as are operating at the South; they have large claims upon the gratitude of the country.

We have been favored with a copy of a steel engraving of the Light House near Caldwell's Landing, intended to illustrate the January number of the Ladies' Companion, published by Mr. Snowden, 109 Fulton-st. AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FITS, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. VALLIER'S FRENCH PILL, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

COMMENT If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

MOURN NOT FOR THE FLOWERS.

Mourn not for the flowers, the bright young flowers
That sparkled 'midst the summer reign;
Revived by April's gentle showers,
They all will come to life again.

Yes, every blighted bud, that now
Lays withering on the gloomy ground,
Shall with new traits of beauty glow,
When Summer takes her annual round.

Thou mourncst for the flowers! it is well with thee
If it is thy only cause for woe;
Alas! a thousand ills we see,
To cloud our journey here below.

To mourn it is our certain doom,
We wander on our weary way;
The few short joys that 'round us bloom,
Are transient, from our grasp they fly.

Is there no balm to soothe our woe,
Be God forever praised, there is
A ray to cheer us as we go,
A light that leads to realms of bliss.

A humble heart, a contrite mind,
The God of mercy will not spurn;
He opens Heaven's high mansions wide,
Freely to Him, O mourners, turn.

'Tis there the weary are at rest,
'Tis there that flowers unfading bloom;
'Tis there the sun of righteousness
Disperses every earthly gloom. JULIA.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 1, 1841.

BRAVERY OF THE IRISH.

[CONCLUDED FROM OUR LAST.]

The illustrious and ancient house of Lacy has produced many exalted characters. There were three branches of this family seated at Bruree, Bruff and Baltingarry, in the county of Limerick. The loss of their possessions did not extinguish the memory of their ancestors. Deprived by impolitic laws of the exercise of their inherent military virtues, they found in the service of those sovereigns, under whose banners they bled, and whose armies they often led to victory, honors as high, and distinctions as marked, as were ever conferred on any family. Field Marshal Lacy might truly say, *veni, vidi, vici. His conquests gave such weight to the Empress' representations at the diet of Sweden, that they contributed to place the crown in the present royal family; as his conduct at and subsequent to the siege of Dantzick, in conjunction with the forces of the Emperor, secured the crown of Poland for King Augustus. The Marshal's son is now at Vienna, and highly esteemed by the Emperor, for his abilities as a General and Statesman.—Colonel Count Lacy is now settled at Riga in Livonia.

Allied to this family are the Brownes of Camas, in the county of Limerick, who have distinguished themselves by acts of great bravery in the Imperial service. Besides the Field Marshal, whose life has been published in German and French, Colonel George Browne was killed at the battle of Guastalla in Italy. George Baron Browne, Governor of Deva in Transylvania, married the Countess de Rohdt, niece to the Prince of Constance. General Count Browne, of Russia, Governor General of Livonia, signalized himself with uncommon bravery at the battle of Zorndoff. He married the daughter of Field Marshal Lacy, by whom he had issue General and Colonel Browne, now in the Emperor's service. What an honor to the county of Limerick, to have given birth to a family on whom France, Spain, Russia and Germany vied with each other in heaping distinguished honors and employments!†

Let us now add the opinion of a celebrated foreigner, as to the merit of General Browne. "It must be acknowledged that the victory at Lobositz was bravely disputed by Browne, an officer of great activity, fertile in expedients, wise in the planning of any enterprise, and prompt in the execution of it. If I was to compare him with any of the ancients, I should place him by the side of Vespasian and Marcellus. He deserves the favor he enjoys at the court of Vienna, and is worthy the honor of being the opponent to the King of Prussia. His retreat, in order to gain the camp of Baden, is considered as an admirable manœuvre. But what did him infinitely more honor was, the march he undertook, all stays after the battle of Lobositz towards Saxony, in order to liberate the King of Poland and his army from the hands of the Prussians. On this occasion it was observed, in allusion to his attempt at Villetri, that whether Browne endeavored to take or liberate a King, he was equally successful."

In the late war, Colonel Browne was Aid de Camp to the Count d'Estaing, on service in America. The Count determined on an attack of Savannah and Georgia, contrary to the opinion of Colonel Browne and others of his officers. But the brave Colonel Browne remarked to the Count, though he disapproved his opinion, he should have no cause to complain of his conduct; accordingly he marched his regiment immediately to the attack, planted the French colors twice on the walls of Savannah, and in the third attempt was killed. This gentleman's uncle, Marshal Browne, died at Vienna in the year 1784. They were both of the family of Moyne.

Of the county of Limerick, and its neighborhood, were the following gentlemen also: Admiral Macnamara, who evinced great courage and good conduct in the service of France, in the war which commenced in 1755; his nephew commanded the frigate La Fripoune, in which he took a number of valuable prizes. The Marquis of Macmahon, colonel of a regiment in the same service, Knight of the Royal Military Order of St. Lewis, and of the American Order of Cincinnatus, acquitted himself honorably as ambassador to the States of America, and Colonel Macmahon, a Knight of Malta, distinguished himself in the service of France and Spain. Colonel Harrold, of Limerick, is Chamberlain to the Elector of Bavaria. Count Conard is a colonel in the French service, and his brother, the Chevalier, at a very early age, got the command of the Count d'Artois. Captain Macbride and Sir William Burnaby have not refused their tribute of applause to the gallant conduct of this accomplished young gentleman. Brigadier General Creagh signalized himself on many occasions in the same service.* Captain George Woulfe, of the city of Limerick, was proscribed by General Ireton, for his attachment to the royal cause. He fled to the North of England, where he settled, and his grandson, Gen. Edward Woulfe, was appointed colonel of the 8th regiment of foot in the year 1745. He transmitted his virtues with additional lustre to his son, Major General James Woulfe, whose memory will be ever dear to his country, and whose name will be immortalized in history.

Mr. Boswell, in his tour to Corsica, relates a remarkable anecdote, which General Paoli told him. At the siecge of Toronta the commander of the army ordered Captain Carew, an Irish officer in the service of Naples, to advance with a detachment to a particular post. Having given his orders, he whispered to Carew, "Sir, I know you to be a gallant man, I have therefore put you on this duty, which I tell you in confidence, is certain death to you and your men; I place you there to make the enemy spring a mine below you." Carew made a bow to the General, and led on his men in silence to the dreadful post.—He there stood with an undaunted countenance, and having called to one of his soldiers for a draught of wine, "Here," said he, "I drink to all those who bravely fall in battle." Fortunately at that instant, Toronta capitulated, and Carew escaped, after displaying a rare instance of determined intrepidity.

It is worthy of remark, that not one Irishman deserted from the Emperor's service, on the frontiers of Holland, although large bribes were offered for recruits to fill the Dutch levies. Complaints founded in jealousy and envy being made against the Irish brigades, induced the King to tell the Marshal, Earl of Thomond, "Some of your countrymen, Marshal, give me a good deal of trouble." He replied, "Sire, your Majesty's enemies make the same complaint in every part of the world."

The character of the Irish Brigade in foreign services, we hinted at before, but think it deserving of being particularized—it is in these words:

"Wisdom and courage are congenial to the Irish nation, and we rejoice that the time is come when Irishmen are permitted to serve in the army of their own King. Our statesmen and warriors will no longer be obliged to fly their native land, and all their dearest connexions, to assist the councils and fight the battles of other countries.

"Long were the glories of Ierne lost,
Her deeds of Greatness and of ancient Boast!
Silent the Ge ius which in times of old,
With Greece and Rome her learned name enroll'd!
Exil'd the valour of her hardy race,
By rigid edicts hostile camps to grace;
Compell'd unwilling Victories to gain,
Or doom'd to perish in a foreign plain!
But now does justy every right restore,
And strengthens claims great Nature form'd before;
The serpents teeth, that laws severe had sown,
Rise in arm'd Hosts, that Loyalty may own,
Freedom and Loyalty,—by Wisdom join'd,
Our MONARCH's brows with fresher Bays to bind!"

LORD M——y.

At the battle of Fontenoi, fought in 1741, where the Duke of Cumberland commanded the English and Marshal Saxe the troops of France, the Irish Brigade under Lord Stair were kept in reserve—the battle was going altogether in favor of the British; as a last resource, the Marshal sent for Lord Stair, and told him that the fate of the French monarchy was in his hands; his Lordship replied that his troops were manifesting the greatest impatience, and loudly demanded to be led on against the English: the order to advance was instantly given, when the Irish to a man stripped off their coats, and with loud cheers charged bayonets upon the hitherto impenetrable British column, which was soon compelled to give way and turn their backs; the cavalry of the brigade followed up the movement, and cut up the flying English, and so decided the day in favor of the French arms.

*General Creagh lost an eye at the battle of Roubach; he is a Knight of the Order of St. Lewis, and it is no less true than surprising, that at the battle of Fontenoy, when he was a Lieutenant Colonel in Clare's regiment, the cross of the order was shot quite through his body, and he was nine months soliciting at the Herald's Office in Paris, before he could obtain another.

†The life of Ulysses Maximilian Browne, Count of the Holy Roman Empire, Field Marshal of their Imperial Majesties' armies, and Knight of the Golden Fleece, was published at Prague in 1757, and is full of his exploits. He was educated at the diocesan school of Limerick, under the Rev. Mr. Cashin, and in 1715, was called into Hungary by his uncle Count Browne, and on his death, in 1757, the Empress Queen, in consideration of his important services, granted a pension to his widow.

CHESNUT STREET THEATRE. Notwithstanding the "immense attraction" of the grand opera of Norma at the Chesnut street theatre, Philadelphia, the house has been compelled to close "in consequence of unfortunate circumstances," as the card of the managers says.

LATEST FROM HAVANA. By an arrival at New Orleans on the 22d ult. dates from Havana have been received up to the 13th Jan.

A private letter received at New Orleans says Fanny Elssler, the "divine," was at Key West the night before, and was hourly expected to arrive. "What a fuss they make about her! I saw her in Paris. Pretty—very—but if she is a goddess, I can only say that goddesses have legs like poor humanity, for I'll swear I saw hers."

MEXICO. We find in the Havana papers, dates from Mexico to the 20th of December. The Bishop of Gaudalaxara has ceded to the Supreme Government the college of Jerez, in Zacatecas, with all its property, which are hereafter to be devoted to manufacturing purposes.

The Vera Cruz Censor, (Santa Anna's organ, be it understood,) speaking of the loss of Tobasco, says that the futility attempts to put down the exertions of the revolutionists in that province, shows most clearly the injustice of the claims of Mexico; and avers that the department of Vera Cruz itself is now ripe for a revolution, and that the government has not the power to prevent the movement.

The Censor states that eight different divisions of the national troops are now engaged in battling with the hostile Indians, in the country about Monterey.

The same paper gives its readers to know, that a Treaty had been concluded between England and Texas, acknowledging the independence of the latter—without a single remark.

On the 29th December, rumors were afloat in Vera Cruz, that the Texian adventurers had commenced anew their crusade against Mexico, and in confirmation of it news was brought that the schr. Ann Maria had been captured by a Texian cruizer and sent to Galveston.

BUENOS AYRES. Arrivals from this port at New Orleans bring advices from Buenos Ayres, several days later than those received at this port via Rio Janeiro. On the 4th of November the French residents at Montevideo, having read the treaty concluded by Admiral Mackau with Gen. Rosas, held a public meeting in the theatre, to protest against its provisions.—Several resolutions were passed—to the effect, that the treaty is illusory and dishonorable to Frenchmen, and that Admiral Mackau, as the representative of the French nation, for his truckling to the Buenos Ayreans, ought to be disgraced in the eyes of the whole civilized world. Compromising, as they believed the said treaty did, the honor of the French name, as well as the vital interests of all the French residents of the Argentine republic, the meeting resolved to send to Paris forthwith, a delegate, charged with representing to the government and the Chambers, the objectionable features, with a view to prevent the ratification of the obnoxious treaty by France.

CANADA. The British Colonist says it was currently reported that orders had been received by the Adjutant General to call into active service two companies of each regiment of militia in the province.

An ordinance has been published by authority, as about to be passed, for making the Temiscouta Turnpike, a part of which, the Quebec Gazette says, is in the territory claimed by the United States.

THE MAIL ROBBERY. Braddee, Pinnell and Thayer are in the custody of the United States Marshall, to be sent to prison at Pittsburg. In Braddee's house has since been discovered another mail bag, containing letters dated Jan., 1840, and several crucibles and a bar of iron.

Since the above we learn from the Pittsburg Intelligencer that Judge Irwin, on Thursday last, discharged Braddee on bail. B. himself became bound in $60,000, and twenty-two of his neighbors from Uniontown in the same amount for his appearance to stand his trial.

MISSING VESSEL. The brig Edward Vincent, Nichols, of and for New York, cleared from Mobile on the 4th October last, and was seen about 25 days after off Cape Rock, (under very easy sail, in moderate weather,) since which she has not been heard of. It is supposed that at the time she was seen all hands were sick, and possibly afterwards died, and the vessel foundered.

SHIPWRECKS. The brig Venezuela, from Port Spain, Trinidad, for Porto Cabello and Laguyra, was lost on the evening of the 20th ult. on the Bocas. Vessel and cargo a total loss, with the exception of some specie which was saved.

The brig Pearl, of Portland, went on shore at St. Kitts on the night of the 13th ult. in a squall and heavy sea from the southward. It is thought she will be a total loss.

FURTHER IMPROVEMENTS IN STEAM. The following is a correct copy of a bill sent by a doctor "out west" to one of his customers:

There is something novel about the last item. It is rarely that "doctors" charge for the evils they have done.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE.
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	" Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	" Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	" Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	" Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	" Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	" Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads Weather!! and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

THURSDAY MORNING, Feb. 4, 1841.

☞It will be seen by reference to our City Council proceedings that a resolution has passed both branches in reference to the Baltimore and Ohio rail road notes, calculated to give them entire confidence with the people, and if we mistake not, bring them immediately to par value.

Female Temperance Societies. Every body knows that the ladies have no occasion to swear off from intemperance in drink, however some of them may transgress with the tongue: when, therefore, they form themselves into temperance societies we may be assured that the motive is pure and the object praiseworthy.—They exercise a powerful influence in society, and where exerted for the reformation of those who affect to be the lords of creation, it cannot fail to be salutary.

"Woman, lovely woman, all things own thy sway." And since thy smiles confer happiness, it is right that thy frowns should inflict pain. What would be more likely to reform the young reprobate, than to know that his inebriation rendered him contemptible to the fair sex? Let it be once understood that the intemperate shall be excluded from respectable female association, and there will soon be a diminution of whiskey perfume among our fashionable loafers.

We have read the "Constitution of the Baltimore Female Temperance Association, No. 1." It is thoroughgoing and covers the whole ground. They will not use, sell nor give "inebriating drink;" nor will they "receive the addresses of, nor encourage an intimacy (in every case in which we are left free to act,) with any individual who may be knowingly guilty of so using it." Mark that, ye Soaplocks, who think that girls can be wooed and won as easily as ye can toss off your bitters before breakfast. Here is non-intercourse with a vengeance; and should the damsels throughout the city follow suit, ruin or reformation will be the word among the beaux. Should this not produce reform, marriages will be few, and the legislature idle for the want of divorce cases.

The constitution has been signed by 128 ladies, married and single. Some one of the latter probably suggested the following proviso to the 3d article: "Provided the language of this article be not so construed as to prohibit the transacting the necessary business of life with those who may violate the terms of this compact." Now as most girls consider marriage as the most "necessary business of life," have they not left "a loop-hole of retreat" in case of necessity? We fear that some lady of "a certain age" had that clause inserted, and move to add after the words "necessary business of life," the words "other than committing matrimony," so at to bind all fast.

Temperance. Never has this great cause been in such effectual progress as at the present time. The subject is one of general conversation in all parts of the city—meetings are being held almost every night, and hundreds are found pledging themselves upon the honor of gentlemen to drink no more of that liquid which dethrones reason, and causes man, brute-like, to trample down his own as well as his neighbor's rights. The great reformation is most palpably manifested in the person and deportment of many who have lately become members. He who in common parlance was once a loafer—a pensioner as it were upon the bounty of others—always consuming and never producing—penniless and without character, may now be seen genteelly clad, rising by degrees to respectability, seeking employment, being employed and earning for himself an honest living. This, reader, is beyond question the inevitable result of temperance societies and nothing else. While, therefore, so much good can be produced in a little time, and while the means that cause it are so simple, have we not reason, as a moral, as a political, as a commercial and as a free people, to rejoice in the present prospects, and in the anticipation of a more transcendent result?

General Harrison. This distinguished gentleman is slowly approaching the seat of government. Indeed his progress cannot be otherwise than at a snail's pace, as he is every where received with a flourish of trumpets, speeches and entertainments—and especially as he has to gratify the enthusiasm of the ladies, who are resolved to see, and be seen by, the general. The last advices left him at Pittsburg, where they had an illumination, and various other manifestations of respect.

We like to see the president elect treated with becoming respect, whether he belong to this or that party—but things may be overdone. We must not forget that we live in a republic where man worship should be avoided.

General Harrison's path to Washington may be one of "pleasantness and peace;" but we shall be mistaken if he find a bed of roses in the White House. The office-seekers, like musquetoes, will infest his chamber and prevent repose.

The Philadelphia papers received last evening state, that General Harrison was expected in that city yesterday or to-day, so that we may expect his arrival in Baltimore on or before Monday next.

Bank of the United States. A letter from London states that the agency of this bank has been transferred from Mr. Jaudon to the house of Morrison & Sons, and that stocks belonging to the bank have been sold, and the proceeds to the amount of $700,000 placed in the hands of the new agents, to meet drafts from the United States. It is supposed that this arrangement will be of great service to the institution.

Manufacture of Iron. All publications which develope the mineral and other resources of the state are valuable; and it is the duty of the legislature to offer such inducements as shall promote investigations which may direct attention to sources of wealth which might otherwise remain unobserved. The appointment of a State Geologist and Topographical Engineer, has materially contributed to this object. Both officers are of the first order of talents, and have been indefatigable in the discharge of their duties.

We have before us a voluminous report from J. H. Alexander, Esq., Topographical Engineer of the state, on the manufacture of iron, which contains facts and details highly important to those engaged in the business, and of interest to the general reader. The report is the result of a careful examination of several establishments for manufacturing iron in Great Britain, and of similar inquiries extensively made from establishments of the same kind in our own state—and is divided into four chapters.

"The first chapter contains a sketch of the history of this manufacture through its successive periods.

"The second chapter contains a view of the geographical position and occurrence of the different ores of iron, according to their respective uses and applicability, in a metallurgic sense, for manufacturing purposes.

"The third chapter is devoted to miscellaneous particulars, (yet arranged with as much order and precision as could be used,) touching the materials and methods which are applied in the different stages of manufacture.

"The fourth chapter treats of the most important chemical phenomena which are observable in furnaces, and attempts to explain them upon correct and well recognised chemical principles."

The volume abounds with statistical information which will make it valuable as a work of reference; and will, we hope, form the beginning of a series of publications upon the internal resources of Maryland to be deposited in the state library, and exchanged for similar productions of other states.

In furtherance of this desirable object we would respectfully suggest that the legislature invite annual reports from the manufacturing establishments of every description, and that the secretary of state be directed to condense these with a view to publication. We should thus be furnished with important statistical information annually, and be enabled to ascertain, with a degree of precision at present unknown, the progressive improvement in the various branches of wealth. We cannot doubt that such statements would be readily furnished by the proprietors of works, and their practical utility is too obvious for dispute. The labor imposed on the secretary of state would be so inconsiderable as not to require additional compensation.

Public Lands. Our readers will not be sorry to learn that the debate on the pre-emption bill has terminated in the senate; and we are sure that they will rejoice to hear that Mr. Calhoun's proposition to cede the public lands has been signally defeated. The pre-emption bill having passed the senate, has yet to be acted upon in the house.

Some of the most novel and extraordinary ideas have been broached during the present session of congress. Among them is that of Mr. Benton, (we believe,) not only to permit foreigners to enter the public lands for their own use, but to admit such foreigners to the right of suffrage without previous naturalization. This suggestion was scouted with proper indignation, nor would it be sanctioned by any man of any party who had the slightest regard for the rights of American citizens, or felt the least interest for the welfare of the country. Whenever the period shall have arrived when foreign influence can control the destiny of the Union by the means of illegal votes, our "star-spangled banner" will have become a mockery, and our liberty an empty sound.

We think that we see certain indications that the distribution bill will become a law—not, perhaps, at the present session of congress, but at the next. The old states are moving in the matter with great spirit, and will have it settled before it be too late. At the next election of representatives to congress in Maryland, this bill will be presented prominently to the people; and we entertain the hope, that, whoever may be the successful candidates, they will be required to support the interests of the state in this measure.

Virginia. The legislature of this state is about to authorize the banks to issue notes under the denomination of five dollars. The object is declared to be, "to facilitate the banks and the public in emerging from the existing financial difficulties." In other words, to have a small paper currency instead of specie. This will relieve the banks. In Maryland the same thing can be effected by a different process. We have already a sound small note currency in the rail road orders, and there is no necessity for the addition of bank issues of the same description. It is, however, the interest of some persons to depreciate the value of this currency, and it is perfectly "consistent" with the "experience" of such men, that more can be made by shaving notes under par, than by permitting them to circulate at their full value—for "by this art they thrive."

Fire. The fire last night about nine o'clock was caused by the burning of the Brass and Iron Foundry of Mr. Joseph Share, corner of Concord and Lombard streets. When we left, the roof had entirely fallen in and the whole upper story was in flames. Our energetic firemen were promptly on the spot, and succeeded in saving the lower part of the building. We have not learned whether there was any insurance on the property. The origin of the fire is supposed to have been accidental.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

Washington, Feb. 3, 1841.

The Light Infantry Ball was decidedly the best affair we have had for some years. The weather suddenly cleared up, and became good-tempered; and by the time the "markee" was exhibiting, the sweet moonlight fell upon the scene and streamed through the windows as if in homage of so precious a relic. The military evolutions were like clock work, and the gallant France and his corps did every thing but strike. The saloon was crowded to excess, and the girls appeared like an army of houris let louse upon earth to make war upon the obdurate heart of man. Captain France was never in so hot an engagement in his life, and I am almost sure I heard him cry "quarter" several times.

One sweet young creature, with eyes beaming with love and laughter, asked me if it was not a splendid party for her birth day. She was at that hour "sweet sixteen." In the language of the East, she is a lovely flower, and happy will be the man who places her in his garden.

It would take a ream of paper to record all the glorious doings of the occasion, so I must leave the imagination of the reader to fill up the picture.

Last evening after I closed, the vote was taken on the passage of the pre-emption bill, and decided in the affirmative. The amendments proposing a distribution and a cession of the public lands to the states were severally rejected. The vote on the passage of the bill was, yeas 31, nays 19.

In the House of Representatives this morning, after some debate of rather a noisy character, the vote by which on yesterday, on motion of Mr. Fillmore, it had been determined that the treasury note bill should be reported at 3 o'clock today, was reconsidered.

Mr. Fillmore then withdrew the proposition made by him yesterday, after which the House went again into committee without any restriction.

Mr. Weller, of Ohio, having the floor, spoke at some length in support of the bill, and in reply to the various objections urged against it.

He was followed by Messrs. Breckenridge and Mvnroe against the bill.

The Senate is engaged on private bills.

The N. O. Picayune. The proprietors of this paper announce the completion of the fourth and the commencement of the fifth volume, and express their gratitude "for the constantly increasing favor bestowed upon their labors." The Picayune is, in all probability, the raciest sheet published in this country—the spirit and humor which pervade its columns never flag—and the pens of "Straws," "Phazma" and the writer of the "Prairie Sketches," never tire in serving up bon bouches for their readers. We rejoice in the success of our southern friends, and at the same time express our voluntary approbation of the independent and spirited course pursued by them. So, with this, we wind up with a grand salaam, and an exclamation of "may your shadow never be less."

Franklin Bank. The following named gentlemen compose the committee of stockholders to investigate the concerns of the Franklin Bank, and to report upon the expediency of continuing the institution, &c. The meeting of stockholders stands adjourned to the 15th instant, unless sooner convened by the committee.

Shinplasters. We see a number of these ragged monsters still floating about in the community, as if to keep us in mind of the losses sustained by other "chips of the same block."—The banks having resumed specie payments, there can be no necessity for the continuance of these shinplasters in circulation, as the fractional parts of a dollar will be supplied in specie, which is far preferable. We therefore advise that they be forthwith sent in to their respective establishments for redemption.

Mining. A late Dubuque paper says "times seem to be mending in that part of the mining region. The recent discovery of a large body of mineral by the Messrs. Langworthy, near our town, has drawn the attention of miners to this lately too much neglected quarter. There are now a very large number of persons prospecting upon the hills in the rear of Dubuque, and more people may be seen in our streets with clay on their coats."

Murder. The Monticello Journal of the 13th ult. gives an account of a deliberate murder, in which Benjamin Massy, living near Topasaw, in cool blood, shot his brother-in-law, Daniel Bolton, while the latter was ploughing. There was a contest between them as to the proprietorship of the land. Massy fled, and has not yet been taken.

James McGavock, Esq. a respectable citizen of this county, says the Nashville Union of the 25th ult. was shot on Saturday last, by a man named Earthman, and died in a few moments. This unfortunate affair grew out of a difficulty which occurred a few days previous. Earthman has not yet been taken.

Tea. The price of tea declined in the London market, in one day, from 2s. 1½d. to 1s. 6½d. per lb. in consequence of the intelligence that the difficulties between England and China had been settled.

Ladies, look here. A new bustle has been invented in Philadelphia, and patented in Washington. It is called the "Grecian Bend"—and has been favorably received by the ladies of Washington. A bustle may be seen at our office any time during business hours.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

The weather—the butterflies, &c. Yesterday seemed like a truant spring day reposing in the lap of winter. It warmed out from their places of seclusion the gouty, the consumptive, the cadavarous, the nervous and the fashionable. Mamma's own daughter and papa's pet, the lisping miss of fourteen, just old enough to think about beaux and the newest patterns, came forth to see and be seen; wishing, yet scarcely daring to glance at the splendid whiskers and mustache of the tip of the ton as he passed. Old ladies and young—little children and lap-dogs, as if seized with a desire for locomotion, came forth to enliven the public promenades and bother the knights of the yard-stick. Wonders will never cease!—we yesterday saw a husband, and a business man too, walking arm in arm with his wife! Rare occurrences will take place even in these dull times, but if married people will expose themselves, let the blame fall upon their own shoulders.

Vessel sunk—And probable loss of the crew! Captain Hanna, of the brig Ann, says the Patriot of last evening, arrived at this port yesterday, states that while he was at anchor off the lower end of Kent Island, on Monday, with the wind ahead, he observed a schooner of about 50 or 60 tons, lying just above the Ann, also at anchor, but with the mainsail hoisted up. About 3 o'clock, a squall came up from the E. N. E., and blew quite fresh for a short time. When it cleared away he saw that the schooner was sunk, and something was floating on the water. He sent his boat, and found that the mainmast was broken in two, and the upper part with the sail attached floating on the surface; he took off the main-gaff, which is now on board the Ann. Capt. H. supposed that all on board were below at the time, and were all drowned. The mainsail, he observed was new; she was doubtless bound up.

Thieves let loose! The National Intelligencer of yesterday morning states that several rogues have lately been discharged from Greenleaf's Point Penitentiary, having served out their terms. Some of them will doubtless come this way; we therefore caution the public to be on their guard. The Intelligencer particularly mentions a mulatto fellow by the name of Bill Carpenter, who is quite an adept at pilfering passages and relieving them of such articles as coats, hats, cloaks, &c. &c. The fellow attempted to make tracks for this city immediately after his release, but was caught just as he was entering the cars, having in his possession a coat belonging to a Mr. McDaniel. He was fully committed for trial, and will doubtless have to go back to his old quarters.

Fatal accident. On Tuesday night, just as the cars from this city to Frederick were nearing the latter place, Mr. William Sheppard, a temporary conductor of the mail train on the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, while attempting to pass round a car on the foot board with a lantern in his hand, slipped and fell between the moving car and a stationary one on another track. His body was horribly mangled, being jammed between the two cars, and when he fell the hindermost car passed over his head and arm.

Watch Reports. In the Eastern District, on Tuesday night, negro Edward Parker, was charged with beating his wife, and brought in and reprimanded. In the Middle District, James Roach and negro Bishop Dixon were admitted as lodgers. Flora Crosby, colored, was imprisoned for disturbing the peace. In the Western District, Nelson Johnson was found drunk and disorderly, and locked up. William Mills was also found intoxicated and lying in the street. Jane Blackson, colored, was disturbing the peace. H. H. Woods was admitted to lodgings.

☞Individual shinplasters are in bad repute. They are almost invariably refused. We would advise those who may be so unfortunate as to have them on hand to return them directly to the issuers. We are inclined to the belief that the decision now pending in court in reference to this trash, when made public, will not have the effect of adding much to its credit.

The Odd Fellows. A portion of this band of brothers passed our office yesterday upon the occasion of the funeral of a brother member, Mr. Samuel Whitelock. The music was solemn and the procession imposing. We never see these brothers attend a funeral without being forcibly struck with the great utility and benevolent object of their commendable association.

Ladies' Companion. We have received from N. Hickman the February number of the Ladies' Companion—a choice work, and always a welcome visiter. It is embellished with a fine engraving—too tempting almost to look at, and contains the usual quantity of excellent reading matter.

☞Business on the wharf appears to be looking up. We took a stroll in that region yesterday, and found the harbor well filled with vessels of various descriptions. Every thing appeared cheerful and wore a commercial aspect.

☞Market street yesterday presented a busy crowd of most charming ladies. The retailers had hardly time to turn round. We observed one thing, and that was, they were all willing to take and glad to get Baltimore and Ohio rail road notes.

Fire wood. The mild weather has had a tendency to bring quite a fleet of bay-craft to our wharves. Good oak wood is selling for $4 per cord, and pine at $3.50.

Eclipse of the Moon. The moon will be totally eclipsed on to-morrow night, commencing at 7h. 9m. The eclipse will be visible over a large portion of the globe.

Casualty. Mr. Ransom Jones, of St. Louis was killed on the 22d ult. by the accidental discharge of a rifle in the hands of a friend, while on a hunting excursion. He was very much esteemed.

To the Editors of the Clipper—

☞Noticing a communication in the Sun of the 2d inst. respecting the detention of a child, aged four years, by Ann Bartlett, I consider it my duty to pronounce it untrue. Some 22 months since, the mother of he child died—the grandmother, several days after the death of the mother, sent the said boy, with an elder brother, to the Alms-house, where, it is said, a member of the family now resides. The eldest sister, by the aid of A. Bartlett, had the boys released by paying the usual expenses. Mr. Gamble (I cannot call him a father) frequently had access to the chid, and expressed his wishes that he should remain, as his appearance indicated he was well provided for—and never, until he heard that he was to be placed in an Institution where he would have all the chances of a good education, did he make the least objection.

☞We, the passengers in the T. R. Betton, ever willing to bestow praise where it is due, take this opportunity of publicly acknowledging our thanks to Capt. TRAVERS for his kind attention and hospitable treatment of us during our voyage from Port Leon, Florida. We feel confident of the truth of the assertion, when we say, that he is an able navigator and a skilful seaman—that his table is sumptuously provided, and that his vessel cannot be surpassed in comfort, convenience, and swiftness of sailing. We therefore earnestly recommend him to the public patronage.

A CARD.

To the Stockholders of the Western Bank.

☞A report being in circulation that the presentation of a new ticket of Directors for the Western Bank has for its object the removal of the present executive officers of that institution, the committee on the part of the stockholders offering this ticket, deem it proper to give this public assurance to the voters that no such intention has ever been entertained by them, but that their aim is simply to examine the concerns of the Bank, and all other proceedings are to depend upon the manner in which they find its affairs to have been conducted. Far from any feeling of hostility towards its present officers, the gentlemen composing the new ticket will be most happy to be justified in re-electing them to their places.

This occasion is taken to notice another report which is in existence and which intimates that the movement for reform has its impulse in the wish of certain of the new directors to open to themselves a source of Bank facilities. To silence this attack the committee beg to state that they are authorized by each and every one of the new directors—those who have been in the direction of the Bank—to give a pledge to stockholders that not one of them will ever ask for the discount of a single dollar while he remains a director of the institution, nor will the firm of which he may be a member make any such application, but that, so far as the new names are concerned, the means of the Bank shall be only used for the accommodation of its regular customers.

The committee in giving this pledge venture to add that a similar assurance with regard to the ticket to be offered by the administration side, will, they have no doubt, be acceptable to stockholders. feb2 d

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one, that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and be worthy of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1.50 each.

AGENCY. HOUSES, FARMS, VACANT LOTS, GROUND RENTS, LANDS, &c. bought and sold on commission. SLAVES, for life or a term of years, bought or sold on commission, and the highest prices obtained. Persons having Slaves, which they wish to dispose of, will do well to apply at this office before selling.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. MRS. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 50 cents per bottle.

Mr. Biskeney offered a resolution asking for the repeal of resolution No. 38, passed in 1838, preventing members of the council from being eligible to office while members. Here a discussion arose. Mr. B. thought the law oppressive. He was replied to by Messrs. Keyser and Dallam. Mr. Holter vindicated the opinions of Mr. Blakeney. He observed that he could see no good reason why a member of the council should not have the privilege of holding an office. He inferred that counsellors must all be wise and discreet men, and therefore capable of discharging the duties of office as well as others. After some further discussion the resolution was carried.—Yeas 13, nays 11.

A message was received from the Second Branch, which signified its concurrence in a report upon metallic roofs; also, a report of the committee relative to the jail; likewise a report from the joint committee on internal improvement relative to a public square; also, report of the joint committee on claims on the petition of Ann Morris, for refund of taxes.

Mr. Bender offered the report of the joint committee on ways and means upon the subject of the Baltimore and Ohio rail road notes. Accompanying the report was a resolution, the substance of which is to authorise the City Collector to receive in payment of taxes, with the approbation of the Mayor, Baltimore and Ohio rail road notes, and that the City Register be also required to use them in the payment of debts against the city. The resolution passed both branches of the Council. This act, it was shown by Mr. Keyser, would be effectual in saving annually to the city of Baltimore not much less than fifty or sixty thousand dollars. We are of opinion it will likewise be instrumental in giving at once a par value to the orders of the company. We were glad to see so much good feeling and promptness manifested on the part of the Councils in passing this bill. We are confident that all the members are strongly in favor of the rail road notes.

Mr. Bender, from the committee on streets, reported favorably in relation to the petition of J. J. Turner. Here business came to a close, and the Councils adjourned until to-morrow at half past 3 o'clock.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 2nd. 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES Mr. Sutton presented the petition of sundry citizens of Havre de Grace and its vicinity, praying an act to incorporate the Havre de Grace Bank.

Mr. Cousin offered a message, requesting the Senate to return a bill, entitled a supplement to an act to repair injuries done by Rail Road Carriages and Engines upon the several Rail Roads of this state.

Mr. Graves reported a bill entitled an act to vest certain powers in the coporation of Baltimore City in relation to the collection of taxes and other claims. Read the first time and passed.

Mr. Seidenstricker presented the memorial of John B. Hackett and others, relating to an alteration of the license laws. Referred to the committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. Seidenstricker reported a bill to change the names of Henry D. Bull, Anne S. Bull, Fanny M. Bull, and Mary E. Bull, of Baltimore, to the names of Henry D Preston, Anne S. Preston, Fanny M. Preston, and Mary E. Preston, which was passed.

On motion of Mr. Cousin, the House took up for consideration the report submitted by him in relation to the Public Lands. The report was made the order of the day for the 7th inst.

The House adjourned at an early hour.

The Senate did not sit to-day.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

Having observed an omission on the part of letter-writers to lay before the reading public an account of the very spirited manner in which the mechanics of the Washington Navy Yard noticed the decease and interment of the late Commodore Stevens, I listen to give the public as correct an account as circumstances at present will admit of.

The mechanics, on learning the sudden and unexpected decease of their commander, instantly called a meeting of their body and expressed their sorrow in language appropriate to the mournful occasion.

Resolutions were then introduced expressive of their high sense of the merits of the deceased, and also sympathising with the family for their irreparable loss.

The bell on their fire engine house was ordered to be tolled, signifying to the assembled multitude that the remains of a once brave and good man was about to be consigned to its mother earth; every other duty consistent with the sad and solemn occasion was attended to with a spirit well worthy the mechanics of the Navy Yard.

To do justice to this body of our citizens, I must say that a more public spirited and intelligent class of men we have not in the ten miles square; ever ready and prompt to the calls of humanity, they leave nothing undone that should be done.

A walk through the yard would be richly repaid by a notice of the system therein pursued. All things look well and the workmen exhibit at first view a look and exterior showing to every one of taste and judgment that he who may be destined in the providence of Deity, to command this post, may well be proud to find worth and intelligence his daily associates, while in the active discharge of his official duties. Opinion of the New York Press:

We have been favored with a copy of a steel engraving of the Light House near Caldwell's Landing, intended to illustrate the January number of the Ladies' Companion, published by Mr. Snowden, 169 Fulton-st. CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains the aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by Dr. RUSSELBAUGH'S CELEBRATED MEDICINES, for the cure of secret diseases. Dr. Hitzelberger, who is a graduate of one of the first schools in the United States, has these celebrated medicines for sale, and he would ask, why, oh! why will ye purchase the detestable quack nostrums with which this city abounds, when you can obtain the medical advice of a regular physicinn, and be treated with these celebrated remedies, for the unprecedented low charge of $3. VALLIER'S FRENCH PILL, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

CAUTION. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as with prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another or a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlech's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

HE COMES NOT.—By Lenore.

He comes not, and in vain I list the sound
Of every passing footstep as they bound,
With spring elastic—soon in distance lost,
Unconscious of the pain its echoes cost,
As, fading on the ear, it faintly dies,
And buoyant cheerful hope now prostrate lies;
But soon again impulse to hope is given,
And, swift as meteor through the expanse of heav'n,
It lights the bosom, cheers its flickering rays,
And tunes the minstrel's harp to songs of praise.
He comes not—does thou stand in beauty bright,
Already anxious for the coming night
Does no soft thoughts of home e'er cross thy breast,
Or fears for one by sorrow deep oppress?
To gain a name ambition fired the thought,
And now in deadly combat thou art brought.
For Texian honor thou may'st bleed and die,
I would not chide, nor would I have thee fly,
Pursue thy bright career, nor recreant prove,
Thou shalt retain a mother's cherished love,
But when the onset shall begin, and thou
Shalt dash the gathering drops from off thy brow,
Bound to thy steed for action swift prepare,
While warlike bugle notes float on the air,
Unsheath the glittering steel which decks thy side,
The border's dread, but the light dragoon's pride,
Recall the valor of the youth who won
Thy admiration, and hath urged thee on
To this dread hour, in which thou must await
With dauntless spirit, thy approaching fate;
Be it then good or ill, be thou resigned,
Give all thought, save of duty, to the wind—
Except the first, let it to God be given,
For thy protection angels leave their heav'n.
But, should thy breath escape on Texian borders,
Make one request e'en of the fierce marauders,
Plant on thy breast the cross that I have worn,
Inscribed thereon—"Rudolph hath nobly done."

MULLINAVAT RACES.

A STORY OF THE WIDOW HOGAN'S COW.

The following story was told a few evenings since by an Emeraldite to one of his companions, the latter of whom is something of a turfman, and had that day been to the Louisiana Course and witnessed a very interesting race which he was bragging about.

"Arrah, be aisy Pat wid yer shorics iv yer great races wid Sary Bladen an' Grey Medoe, an' Boston an' Gano, an' all the rist iv yer nags an' crathurs, whin all iv thim would be nothing entirely, kimpared wid the racing animals iv ould Ireland, that'll run their two mile an' three quarthers in half the time, an' thin tossh off a glassh or whiskey wid the company. Shtop a bit till I light me pipe, an' I'll inform ye iv a race that'll bate this country or anny other.

"Ye see the boys iv Mullinavat had jist returned from the Limerick races, whin what should inter their hids but to mek up a race jist to plaze the girls an' be way iv making a little shport; but there was no race horses to be had, no, the divil a one. Well, in consequince iv having med all the arrangemints widout thinkin' iv the horses at all at all, the boys were fooreed to tek Larry O'Doroty's ould lame horse, an' the Widdy Hogan's cow. Och! that was the cow for ye; sure, she'd outrin the divil an' all his imps in the bargin anny day, an' there wasn't a sowl in Mullinavat, nor twinty miles to the back iv that, barrin' the Widdy Hogan, could come up wid her. Well, the performanshis iv the day begun wid a fut race iv a quarther iv a mile hate, which was beauthifully contisted betwane Pat M'Guire an' Micky Cogrius the shoemaker, an' no doubt but Micky would iv won, if Pat hadn't run agin him jist afther they shtarted, which Micky resinted and shtruck Pat a blow unther the lug, an' thin kem three rounds sich, fair play, the last ov which settled poor Micky intirely. Thin the fut race being owver, the piper shtruck up the 'Sprig iv Shillelah,' as a signil for shtartin', an' off they wint, Larry mounted on his ould baste an' the Widdy Hogan ashtride the cow, wid all the boys iv Mullinavat a rinnin' afther thim for the bare life. Fat' an' be jabers! but the bitting rin high that time. 'Twinty to one on the Widdy.'—'Done,' siz the praisht. 'I'll wager yees a tin month ould pig agin a couple iv mupphies on the horse,' sed Barney Maloney. 'Done,' siz Pat McGuire. Mane time away they wint amidst the shouts iv the boys. 'Och, whack! go it Widdy.' 'Don't be bate by a cow, Larry,' an' so on, till the cow, catching a sight iv the horse passing her, (for the ould crathur had his lame leg greased an' put in orther, and wint shmart,) shtuck her tail in the air an' med at him full tilt, an' bet him a blow that sint him an' Larry, one be the other, nate an' comforthable on the grass, whilst the Widdy kep on till the ind iv the coorse, an' thin kem shport. The boys pilted the ould horse wid turf, an' Larry pilted it back at thim; an' wid that they pilted one another till it was all, Phililoo! Tarrinages! Shtand clare! Away wint turf, an' murphies, an' shillelahs; off wint hoss, an' bang wint shillelahs on the hids, an' mathurs wint to a great height whin the girls interfared; the ould piper shtarted a jig, an' from fightin' they all wint to dancin.' The boys brooched a barrel iv whiskey, and a naiter shindy niver occurred in Mullinavat from the time iv Methuselum to this day; and the Widdy ivery year, immediately afther the Limerick races, kapes up the anniversairy in the ould cow."

ANTIQUITIES OF THE WEST.

There is no portion of the world that abounds more in antiquities than the Western portion of the United States; and many of them are of a nature calculated to awaken the most curious conjectures.

On our prairies are mounds and small eminences of various kinds, that seem to have been raised by the hand of art; and many remains have been dug from the earth that show that those who inhabited this country before us, of whose history we have no account, possessed, to some extent, a knowledge of the arts.

In some instances, there has been dug from the earth regular made and burned brick; and in one instance, have been found the remains of a walled city—walled with brick, which would not only last to date that those who once inhabited it understood the art of making brick, but were in fear of aggressions from other tribes and nations.

There has been dug up, on the Illinois river, lately, what appeared to be the remains of an ancient blacksmith shop. A few days since, a friend of ours handed us in an account of some pieces of ware that were dug on his farm, in this county, which bore the marks of great antiquity.

What remains hidden under the fertile soil of Illinois is yet to be found out by the curiosity and perseverance of the more enterprising. While Columbus was philosophising upon the existence of this continent—while he was beating out into the vast waters beyond which it was not known that the foot of civilized or barbarous man had ever trod—while he even discovered this continent—while the Pilgrim Fathers were landing upon the rock at Plymouth, and were fitting themselves homes, thinking that beyond them was naught but the Red man—there might have been, in the Far West, a nation of people, whose history has not been handed down to us, and who possessed, as we have before stated, a degree of civilization. The appearance of the soil and earth, for some distance below the surface, seems to indicate that there has been a great change in the external appearance of this portion of country.

In this city we have seen petrified substances, that have been dug up, at the depth of twenty feet below the surface. It will be borne in mind that Springfield is not near any large stream that would justify the conclusion that this is alluvial earth, any more than any other part of our prairies; and from the appearance of the whole country, we are led to believe that nearly the whole surface of our prairie country has been formed or changed by some mighty movement in the great river of the West—the Mississippi.

PROVIDENTIAL ESCAPE. The late storm in the Bosphorus surprised a small Turkish kaick, rowed by one man, on its way from a village in the Bosphorus to Constantinople. The night was coming on, and the kaickgee was using all diligence to get quickly into port, as the inky blackness of the clouds to windward spoke of tempest and danger. "The more haste the less speed," is a proverb of which he was destined to learn the truth by experience, for, tugging away too hastily, one of his oars broke. His passengers, who were three women and one child of three years old, became alarmed as they saw that the frail bark was on the wing of the rising hurricane, being rapidly borne out to sea! They gave a shriek of despair—but who heard them? Luckily the boatman was a man of nerve, and he told them to remain quiet and fear nothing. He then unshipped his remaining oar, and by using it as a rudder, first on one side and then on the other, as the case might require, he kept his fragile boat in exactly the same direction as the wind and the giant waves. All his skill was required, for had he shipped one sea it would have been a hundred fold more than was required to send the whole party into eternity. In a few instants they were in the Marmora, nothing being visible but the drifting snow, the flying spray, and the crested billows. It became dark; with the darkness the gale increased to a hurricane, the sea ran every moment higher, and the boat seemed to be constantly followed by one mighty wave, ever ready to swallow them up.

Time can never be measured under such circumstances, but hour after hour must have passed: seeing how nobly the kaick and kaickgee behaved, the passengers began to hope that, if they could survive the cold, they might outlive the hurricane. At first they had some faint expectation of making one of the Prince's Islands; but the snow was so thick they saw them not; indeed, they had been borne away in a more northerly direction. The night, the storm, and the light bark, still sped on; the child, wrapped up in its mother's cloak, slept, though the wind whistled and howled, the waters hissed and roared; and on they darted, the boatman ever and anon dipping in his oar to keep his craft steady. At last, towards morning, the snow ceased, and they perceived land ahead at no great distance. Here the skill of the kaickgee became more needful than ever. After having accomplished in safety such a frightful navigation, he was not a man to throw himself on the rocks in despair and perish. He kept to sea until he spied a small headland, behind which he steered his tiny bark. In an instant all were ashore; they found a house, gained admission, and were told that they were at the island of Imrali, at a distance of nearly 40 miles from Constantinople. The party were nearly dead with cold, but in dry clothes, before a cheerful fire, and a good breakfast, they forgot their sufferings, and united in rendering thanks to the Almighty for their providential escape.—Galignani's Messenger.

LATEST FROM FLORIDA. The steamer Gen. Cliach, Capt. Brooks, arrived at Savannah on the 30th ult., from Florida. The Savannah Georgian says:

Gen. Read with two hundred men, is scouring the country between the Suwannee and the Ocilla. Eight or ten Indians have been captured or killed we are not certain which. The object is to search out and break up if possible, all their hiding places and encampments.

We have seen a letter from St. Augustine, which states that the prospect of closing the war is fairer than it has been at any time since its commencement.

The Editors of the Savannah Republican have received from their correspondent the following information:

The news from Florida is on the whole of a gratifying nature; the Indians continuing to come in at the various posts. Col. Riley, of whose ability and efficiency I need not again speak, has just returned from a scout to the head waters of the Ochlewaha. While out, he struck an Indian trail, and after following it for several days, much of the time waist deep in the water, his advanced scouts discovered the Indians in large numbers. The column was instantly halted, and portions of it thrown out right and left, and rushing upon the camp on all sides, completely surprised and captured the whole party numbering over one hundred. They proved to be the band of Coosa-Tustenuggee who, as they said, were collected together for the purpose of surrendering themselves to Gen. Armistead, at Tampa Bay, and exhibiting a pass from the General. Col. Riley was compelled after achieving by far the greatest victory during the war, to suffer them to go about their business.—Whether they will in reality go in, remains to be seen. Many condemn the course of the General in bitter terms, but as he is certainly accomplishing more with speeches and presents than has been done with coercive measures, I think him deserving of all praise. It will cost $20,000,000 to drive them out, if it can be done at all; and I suppose the tenth part of that sum would buy them all. But what is much better, is to do what I understand the Government is now endeavoring to accomplish, viz: to give them the South end of the Peninsula and buy their friendship by that which will always succeed, KINDNESS and JUSTICE.

NEW YORK. The following is from the N. York Commercial Advertiser, and is a capital hit at the extravagance of the councils of that city. We believe that members are allowed no compensation, but are permitted to have refreshments at the expense of the city. This would seem to be by no means an economical arrangement, as their honors appear to labour under prodigious hunger and thirst. We sincerely hope that our reverenced city legislators will not adopt the N. York system—or if they do, we shall move that they hold their sessions in Temperance Hall, the moment it is created.

"CORPORATION EXPENDITURES.—We have before us a return of contingent expenditures for the past year, apparently made under the auspices of our conscript fathers, some of the items of which are rather curious. For example, we find set down $4,267 77, 'refreshments for members of Common Council and committees,' which strikes us as a pretty large figure for oysters and brandy and water; 'coach hire' $1,118 87; 'ditto dinner to Gov. Seward,' $113;—what a stupendous appetite the Gov. must have to eat up so much cash at one dinner? Again, 'segars for members of Common Council,' $1,355! Almost $1,400 of the citizens' taxes puffed away in a very disagreeable smoke! 'Coffee, tea, and sugar,' $165 03; after burning their mouth with such a quantity of tobacco smoke, the worthy aldermen would need copious draughts of something; but it seems to us that cold water would have been more agreeable as well as wholesome. 'Executing death warrant on E. Coleman,' $352 19; we had no idea that it cost so much to hang a man. 'Chandeliers and girandoles,' $2,500. Too much to be thrown away on cops. 'A basket of Champagne,' $12; that went with the segars probably.—Michael Kent for loss of time bringing box of cloths,' $15; pretty good pay for a single act of porterage. 'Soap,' $17 50; whence it may be inferred that some dirty work is done in the Council Chamber sometimes.—'Spring water,' $24; that must be for washing, of course for it is not to be supposed that alderman drink water, when they pay so much for 'refreshments.' 'Washing table cloths,' $18; that must be for the suppers.—'Reception of Vice-President,' $1,251 12.—What under the sun did they do with him at such an expense. Tablets and pocket books for members of Common Council,' $189.—Does the city find them also in pocket combs and handkerchiefs? It might as well."

For the Baltimore Clipper.

The time has now arrived when it becomes the duty of every free and honest hearted citizen of our exalted republic to speak out in tones of thunder his disapprobation of the course about to be pursued by a certain noisy clique, who are now assembling as speedily as possible at the seat of the general government.

Their chief aim and ruling desire is, to sacrifice every clerk in the public offices at Washington, thereby producing an amount of misery not easily conceivable. They seem, by their words and actions, to be lost to all the finer feelings of the human heart. They care not how many poor fathers, mothers and little babes they may sacrifice on the altar of their iniquitous passions, so they can secure a profitable share of the spoils.

From the knowledge I possess of the true mark of our very worthy and generous minded President elect, I am bold in saying, that a system of proscription expected and called for by a set of spoils-men, will not be tolerated; but rather they will be sent home with this admonition—that the love of country alone prompted the good people of this nation to say, as with one voice, that William Henry Harrison, of Ohio, should be President of his whole country, and not a part thereof.

Mark me well, and if I prove a false prophet in this particular, then say that Jupiter never ruled in a council of gods.

None but the noisy "babbling echos" will be removed, and they richly deserve it.

The cabinet of President Harrison will be composed of men of sterling worth and tried integrity—men before whom "proscriptionists" would not dare to stand—the very sound of this remnant of barbarity will be buried by the more exalted and refined policy of men who have a higher aim than the destruction of sparrows by forty-four pounders.

JUPITER.

ARKANSAS GAME.—The Last Story Yet. A dialogue something like the following took place at a wood pile in Arkansas a few days since, between the barkeeper of a steamboat and a "native" of the State. The "Rackinsaw" man had a "pint companion" or "tickler" with him which he wanted filled with whiskey.

"Fine country here, sir," said the barkeeper handing the Arkansas man back his flask.

"Rather fine, that's a fact," retorted the native—"Plenty of cotton wood in these diggins, sharp axes, and no favors asked."

"Capital hunting round here, I s'pose," continued the barkeeper.

"Well it is," retorted the native.

"It looks so," continued the barkeeper, "but what is your principal game?"

"Well, generally poker, but occasionally we get up a touch of seven-up or low, jest as it suits the majority.

"You'll do," said the barkeeper, "and here's your change," at the same time handing the native a deck of cards.—N. O. Picayune.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE.

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M. reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M. "	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M. "	Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M. "	Richmond	5 P.M.

" Petersburg	7 P.M. "	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M. "	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M. "	Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads, Weather and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon; and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

FRIDAY MORNING, Feb. 5, 1841.

☞Some of our carriers have requested us to hint to their subscribers the absolute necessity of promptly paying them for the paper at the stipulated time. They are obliged to pay the proprietors cash—and they must have the cash to do it. "Call to-morrow" sounds harsh when the demand is only six and a quarter cents.

BRITISH AGGRESSIONS. Most of the civilized nations of the world have admitted the justice and humanity of abolishing the slave trade; and to carry into effect this philanthropic sentiment, certain powers are reciprocally given to search, and, if circumstances [illegible] to send in for adjudication such vessels [illegible] suspected of being engaged in this [illegible]-trade. This authority, designed to be [illegible] for legitimate purposes only, it would [illegible] has been much abused by the cruisers of [illegible] Britain, which have not only seized American vessels without sufficient pretext, but used the occasion to treat American citizens and the national flag with the most insulting disrespect. The frequent repetition of this conduct forbids the inference that it is the momentary ebullition of passion, or that it arises from the domineering disposition of certain British officers. But, viewed in its mildest aspect, if it go unreproved by the British government, the consequences may be easily foreseen: there will be collision and bloodshed; and then the quarrel will become national. The last war between England and the United States was preceded by a systematic course of insult and aggression by the British cruizers, the officers of which, claiming the right to search our vessels for English subjects, seldom failed to exercise their power in the most arbitrary and disgraceful manner. The experience of that war should have taught them, however, that future transgressions would not be permitted to pass unchastised.

With these repeated instances of British insolence before their eyes, our members of Congress continue to sleep on in security—or, when they awake, it is only to seize each other by the throat for some political difference. They can rant upon indifferent subjects and spend whole days in the discussion of points of order—but they purposely or ignorantly close their eyes to coming events, and consequently fail to make the necessary preparations to meet them. Like dogs wrangling over a worthless carcass, they are fighting over an empty treasury, instead of combining in their efforts to replenish it. Their patriotism is dead, or they would not look without emotion upon the national flag trailed in the dust. We can scarcely repress our indignation within the limits of moderation, when we see the insensibility of members of Congress to the honor and the interests of the country. What have they done? What will they do? Nothing—nothing. Money must be had—steam frigates should be built—our seaports put in a state of security—but, alas, these objects are insignificant when compared with the more important matter of delivering a scurrilous political harrangue for the twelfth time. As long as members receive eight dollars per day for abusing public confidence, we may expect to have long sessions with little done.

We say that the proceedings of the House of Representatives for several sessions have been unworthy and degrading; and, unless some method be adopted to abate the evil, we may anticipate its increase. In the first place, the people should be more particular in their selection of members. Empty headed babblers should be displaced and business men substituted; but this will hardly be done so long as attachment to party forms the only criterion of merit.

RECEPTION. The preparatory bustle for the reception of the president elect has commenced, and a day or two more will present him in our midst. He ought to receive a hearty, republican welcome, and we trust that it will be given: but let us have no Deification from sycophants, who

"Crook the pregnant hinges of the knee
Where th' aft may follow fawning."

And above all, let him be fairly decked in his high honors before the mail bags are emptied at his feet. We know that it will be difficult for a plain citizen to penetrate the mass of office-seekers so as to get a shake of the old hero's hand; but no matter—we had rather not present him our palm, than to ask him to grease it.

In Washington city preparations are also going forward to receive general Harrison with becoming respect; and we heard some time ago, that he had been invited by Mr. Van Buren to take up his residence in the white house. We hope this may prove true—for, although rival candidates, we cannot see why they should deny themselves the social intercourse and friendly feeling of American citizens and gentlemen.—Pigmy politicians may intermingle personal with political feeling, but exalted minds should despise the littleness.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE GEOLOGIST OF MARYLAND. A copy of this work has been laid on our table, but we have not had time to give much attention to its contents. The examinations for the year have been confined to Alleghany, Washington and Frederick counties, which contain immense mineral resources, which are treated of, as well as their agricultural condition. The report contains a geological profile of the Cumberland and National Roads, and a sectional profile of the Ore Beds worked at Lonaconing.

FATAL ACCIDENT. A young man named Wm. A. Howard, son of Col. John Howard of Mobile, died in that city on the 24th ult. from wounds received by the accidental discharge of a gun.

WESTERN BANK OF BALTIMORE. By publications made by some of the stockholders of this institution, it appears to be their determination to effect a change in the direction of the bank so as to have a thorough overhauling of its concerns. There can be no harm in that, for, if its affairs have been judiciously managed, (about which we know nothing,) scrutiny need not be feared. We think that the stockholders of every bank would do well to change the directors occasionally; it would make men more diligent and vigilant in the discharge of their duties, if they knew that they were to have successors who would detect and expose neglect. In some, probably most of the banks, so many of the directors go out annually by the charter—but this is so adroitly managed that the same active members of the board are continued in office. Those designed to be removed are taken from the country, and changed to suit the occasion; and thus the control of the bank is left in the same hands.

Heretofore the directors of our banks have been generally chosen by the presidents or cashiers, to whom proxies are given. A motion to abolish this practice, (by abolishing proxy votes,) has been introduced into the legislature of Maryland, and we hope will pass. There have been great errors in our banking system—at least in the practical execution of the system, which should be rectified, if necessary, by the legislature. In some banks, as we have heard, the directors and special favorites monopolize the whole funds, to the exclusion of business paper of undoubted security. A bank so administered is not only prejudicial to the interests of stockholders, but to those of the community, for it encourages a spirit of monopoly and speculation to the injury of the fair trader. Men thus linked together, having the use of other people's money, are playing the game "heads I win—tails you lose." If successful, they pocket the profits—if ruined, stockholders and the community suffer. In no event can they sustain injury—they are not even disgraced by the failure of their schemes—for, unfortunately the moral feeling has changed with the times, and words bear not the same signification as formerly. It is as difficult to punish great offenders as for little ones to escape. Old fashioned honesty is outfaced by modern impudence.

RAIL ROAD NOTES. The city councils having unanimously resolved that these notes shall be received in payment of taxes, the people await, with some little impatience, the final determination of those banks which have not consented to receive them. They wish to see whether there is a desire on the part of any bank to discredit these issues and compel them to be stocked to the public injury; because it is justly supposed, that the banks have as much right to confide in the faith of the people, as the latter have in that of the banks. The bank, therefore, which refuses to take the people's notes, must expect to redeem its own. If necessary to attain the object in view, there will be such a movement in the business as cannot be mistaken. We know that the citizens of Baltimore desire to have the rail road notes continued in circulation, and that they consider them at least as good as the notes of any bank in the state. With this feeling and this conviction they ask the co-operation of the banks—if it be denied, the responsibility will be taken with a knowledge of the consequences. We shall pause for the determination.

DIVORCES. The house of delegates has rejected the senate bill giving the chancellor and county courts jurisdiction in cases of divorce, so that the ladies must still kiss their hands to the members of the legislature for the privilege of exchanging husbands until they get one to their liking. We are sorry for this, as we wish to see our legislators differently employed.

McLEOD. From appearances this man stands in a critical situation. After having been released from prison on bail, he was seized by a large body of armed men and reconducted to jail, with the view, as it is alleged, of affording the owner of the Caroline the opportunity to proceed against him for the destruction of that vessel. This is decidedly wrong. Whatever may be the indignation at the outrage supposed to have been committed by this man, violence should not be resorted to. He has given bail in compliance with the requirements of law, and is as much entitled to have his person protected from assault as any other individual. His being a foreigner and a supposed transgressor of our laws, cannot diminish his claim to be dealt with according to law—his illegal arrest, therefore, by armed men is to be severely condemned. It has been intimated that he shall be punished in a summary manner—that is, by Lynch law; but we hope this abominable mode of proceeding will not be tolerated. As he is now illegally confined, we think it incumbent on the authorities of New York not only to order his release, but to protect him from injury.

After the above was in type we received a Philadelphia paper which contains the following particulars:

THE McLEOD AFFAIR. We have received a slip from the office of the Rochester Democrat, containing the following particulars concerning the account of the outrage at Lockport:

McLeod Bailed.—Popular Commotion at Lockport!—A gentleman of this city has just received the following letter from his friend, a respectable gentleman of Lockport, which he has obligingly permitted us to copy. What the result may be, can only be conjectured.

Lockport, Thursday, 12 o'clock, night.—I have just returned from the court house and jail, where there is, or was a short time since, assembled 250 or 300 citizens, who say McLeod shall not be liberated, although Judge Bowen admitted him to bail this afternoon, and Capt. Wm. Buel had become bail.

The Judge gave the order to his (McLeod's) attorney about 7 this evening, and in 40 minutes 200 men were in and about the court house and jail.

A meeting was organized in the court room, while 40 or 50 guarded the door below, some with muskets; while the drums and bugles outside must have made McLeod feel gloomy.—He was not allowed to see the Sheriff or any one else.

A committee was appointed to see Judge Bowen and ask him to surrender him, or rather withdraw his name from the bond. The committee had not returned when I left. I fear it will be much against him if he does not do so.

A messenger has gone to Buffalo, that the owner of the Caroline may be here to prosecute for private damages, &c., should the authorities insist on his liberation. The excitement is very great. Brotherson signed the bail bond with Buel.

Most of our best citizens are indignant at Judge Bowen for admitting him to bail, and also at the bail. If they let him go, I mistake the men I left at the court house.

Half-past 12.—I am going to the jail again.

Two o'clock, morning.—I found Judge Bowen addressing the meeting, and attempting to exonerate himself. Buel did not arrive, but I understand he will surrender him in the morning, to which time the meeting adjourned, although many will remain at the jail till morning.

The cannon was brought in front of the court house about 12 o'clock, and commenced firing, and made the glass fly in the court house, to the amusement of the Patriots. I will assure you. What must have been McLeod's feelings, not knowing what was going on during the seven hours the court house was full? I must say he was much to be pitied, if innocent.

A more insolent spirit than that manifested by the mob, in the proceedings above detailed, we have seldom heard of. A band of men arming themselves against the laws, and demanding of a public officer, sworn to see them faithfully executed, that he should reverse a decision he had made; and, for fear of their vengeance, send a prisoner whom he had released back to confinement. The conduct of the Judge was precisely such as tended to encourage the spirit of disorder and violence; instead of asserting the majesty of the laws, and his determination to support it at all hazards, he is found truckling to their insolence and excusating himself for the act he had done. Such an imbecile magistrate is unworthy to be entrusted with authority, and his criminal weakness almost as much deserves punishment as the daring and high-handed proceedings of the mob.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

BRAHAM & HORN. The joint composers of the "Devil's Bridge" and other old English operas, John Braham and Charles E. Horn, will visit this city in a few days for the purpose of giving a series of concerts. Both gentlemen have for many years enjoyed a reputation which seems not to fade although they are in "the sear and yellow leaf." Mr. Braham's concerts in this country, thus far, if we are to believe the papers, have been highly successful, though his theatrical performances have proved abortive. He has pleased the Bostonians, particularly in Sacred music, and they, in all probability, possess more critical acumen in musical affairs than any community in this country. If it were possible, hundreds besides ourselves would be pleased to hear of an arrangement between this celebrated vocalist and the Musical Association of this city. The oratorio of "David," we understand, is now under rehearsal by the Association; why not engage Braham and insure us a rich treat? It is our opinion that the receipts would justify the additional expense, and from our personal knowledge of the public-spirited officers of the Association, we have reason for believing that they would even run the risk of a sacrifice if they knew it was for the gratification of the public.

THE ECLIPSE. This evening, "wind and weather permitting," the earth will blacken the face of the moon, and if any of the good people of this city intend using burnt glasses, let those who have long noses take care that they do not eclipse the tip with lamp-black. The moon is now in her full, and should there be a clear sky, the veiling of "chaste Luna" will be a beautiful sight.

	h.	m.	s.
The eclipse will begin at	7	19	6
be total at	8	17	0
The moon will begin to re-appear at	9	54	5
The eclipse will end	10	52	0

EXCHANGE HOTEL. An additional wing has recently been added to this extensive establishment, and it has now assumed the form of the letter H, as was originally contemplated. The addition has been erected on Second street. The American of yesterday morning notices another improvement—the apartment lately occupied by the Merchants' Reading Room has been added to the hotel, and is now used as the public dining room, for which purpose it has been appropriately fitted up, and adds greatly to the comfort and convenience of the guests of the establishment, which now presents more than ordinary inducements to travellers.

☞We feel a strong desire to puff Pease's Candy, and shall do it whenever it cures the influenza which is now racking our brains and causing us to cough ourselves inside out. Pease's Candy is a wonderful affair, if we are to believe what the papers say, which we don't intend to do.—If you have no fuel, put it into a cold stove, and it will be cured instanter. At the North they are using it for the purpose of breaking up the rivers and canals; and it is said that whenever lovers find their mistresses cold hearted, they give them a dose and it's O. K.

KEEP COOL. When calm and reflecting citizens see bank presidents and bank directors quarrelling in the public streets, shaking their fists in each others' faces, and calling hard names, they are very apt to think that "there is something rotten in the state of Denmark." Gentlemen, keep cool, or you will most assuredly expose yourselves—if you stir the dull ashes, the embers beneath will blaze out.

WOOD ENGRAVING. We refer the reader to the advertisement of C. T. Hinckley, a young artiste who has recently located himself in our immediate neighborhood. We have seen a number of his specimens of wood engraving, and they do him infinite credit. He is a Baltimorean, and as such, we trust he will receive a portion of patronage.

☞There was, we understand, an insurance on the property of Joseph Share & Sons to the amount of $8000. This will not cover the loss by any means.

CITY COURT, Feb. 4, 1841.—Present, Judges Brier, Worthington and Nesbit. For the information of witnesses, as well as for the purpose of saving them expense, we will state that the State's Attorney gave notice that he intended having attachments immediately issued against each and every witness who had been regularly summoned to attend the court, if absent when his or her name was called to give testimony in the case pending. We hope that this rule will be enforced. It will prevent much trouble as well as expense and loss of time.

State vs. George Turner, who was indicted for stealing an overcoat from Jonathan Young. The prisoner confessed himself guilty of the offence.

A fellow named George Cordery was brought before court upon the charge of having stolen from John W. Creecy money and boots to the amount of $250. The prisoner made affidavit that he could not obtain a fair and impartial trial in this court, and asked liberty to remove his trial to Harford county, which liberty was granted him.

John Spicer was arraigned at the bar, indicted for stealing two pair of shoes and some other small matters. He plead guilty.

John Fields, a colored man, was put upon trial, charged with stealing two boxes of raisins, the property of Mr. D. Thomas. The jury pronounced the prisoner guilty.

Thomas Tilman, another colored man, was put upon trial, charged with stealing an amount of money from Mr. Maulsby. Not being ready for trial the prisoner was remanded to the custody of the Jailor.

John Williams, alias Lucky Wood, was brought up, charged with stealing a horse, but his trial was postponed.

Also, Charles Norris, for stealing a saddle from Jacob Taylor. His counsel, F. Lovegrove, Esq. asked for a postponement of his trial, which was granted.

State vs. John Watson, negro, who was indicted for stealing a pair of boots from Mr. John O'Harra. On this charge the prisoner was cleared. He was also tried for an assault and battery on Miss O'Harra, who it was proven he had knocked down on the street. For this the prisoner was sentenced to one day's imprisonment in the jail.

Harriet Rebwell, alias Dempsey, yellow girl, was placed upon trial, charged with stealing a piece of calico from a gentleman in Marsh Market space. The jury found her guilty, as it was pretty evident she had not been inappropriately amused. She was up to her profession, and did rob well.

At the close of this case, the court adjourned until to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

ROBBERY. The house of Mr. Placide, in Pratt street, was entered a few nights since, and six cloaks, together with the same number of bonnets, as well as some other articles, were stolen. The property had been left in the passage. The thief has not yet been caught.

WATCH RETURNS. Eastern District, Feb. 4. Henry Duesman, being drunk and disorderly, was locked up. Negro Bob Guise was charged with drawing a sword upon another negro. Michael Beatty was arrested for riotous conduct.

Middle District. John F. Segan was arrested, charged with breaking the windows of Henry Rabernager. Released. Eliza Jane Skinner, John Jury, Conrad Hunterman, Henry Bowling Lewis Whitelock, Richard Blake, Ann Blake, Bob Chew, and Bob Williams, negroes, were all brought in by the police and left for their disposition.

Western District. John Morehaad, Jacob Eckel, Clem Waters, John Cook and his wife Susan were arrested for disturbing the peace.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4, 1841.

In the House of Representatives, this morning, the treasury note bill was again taken up in committee of the whole.

Mr. Shepard, of N. C., having the floor, spoke for some time in defence of the bill, and in answer to the arguments in favor of a direct loan.

Mr. Garland, of Virginia, followed, and launched into a long dissertation on the tariff and other matters.

Mr. Adams followed, and expressed himself in favor of the bill, because he considered the honor of the nation ought to be maintained by the payment of its just debts.

In the course of his remarks, Mr. A. made some allusions to Mr. Wise, as the assumed leader of the House in the coming administration.—Mr. A. then adverted to the dueling law, and to the views of Mr. Wise on that subject. He then assigned the opinions of Mr. Wise on that subject as a reason why he, Mr. A., could not submit to act under such a leader.

A long and unpleasant altercation arose between these gentlemen, which my limits will not permit me to give. Mr. Adams said he could never submit to the lead of any man who would shoot his fellow man through the heart, and then shed tears over him. He could not be led by any man who thirsted for blood.

Mr. Wise said if the gentleman referred to him, he took the opportunity to say that he abhorred duelling, and considered a professed duellist as one of the most despicable characters in existence.

Mr. Adams hoped the gentleman's actions would correspond with his words.

During the debate, the affair between Messrs. W. C. Johnson and Duncan was brought up.

Mr. Johnson took the occasion to say, that with the exception of Messrs. Duncan and Adams, no man in the House, whether Whig or not Whig, should make any improper or indelicate allusion to him, without being called to account.

Mr. Adams then went on with his remarks, and he appears likely to speak for an hour longer.

Mr. Wise will of course reply.

A CARD.

To the Stockholders of the Western Bank.

☞ A report being in circulation that the presentation of a new ticket of Directors for the Western Bank has for its object the removal of the present executive officers of that institution, the committee on the part of the stockholders offering this ticket, deem it proper to give this public assurance to the voters that no such intention has ever been entertained by them, but that their aim is simply to examine the concerns of the Bank, and all other proceedings are to depend upon the manner in which they find its affairs to have been conducted. For from any feeling of hostility towards its present officers, the gentlemen composing the new ticket will be most happy to be justified in re electing them to their places.

This occasion is taken to notice another report which is in existence and which intimates that the movement for reform has its impulse in the wish of certain of the new directors to open to themselves a source of Bank facilities. To silence this attack the committee beg to state that they are authorized by each and every one of the new directors—those who have been in the direction of the Bank—to give a pledge to stockholders that not one of them will ever ask for the discount of a single dollar while he remains a director of the institution, nor will the firm of which he may be a member make any such application, but that, so far as the new names are concerned, the means of the Bank shall be easy as to the accommodation of its regular customers.

The committee in giving this pledge venture to add that a similar assurance with regard to the ticket to be offered by the administration side, will, they have no doubt, be acceptable to stockholders.

62 59 42 64 21 31 65 9 54 75 51 60

The gentleman who gained this prize was due his landlord $75 for one quarter's house rent—he tendered him rail road car dollar notes, (which every body knows is as good as silver,) yet the old cuddermudgeon would'nt take them. The gentleman, being of a mild turn, wishing to please every body, and knowing that

Prize Tickets brings Silver—as accordingly,
Says he, to himself, a chance I will try.

He forthwith presented himself at this office and purchased the above ticket, which yielded him $71 cash in silver. Like all high-minded folks, the sooner a debt is paid the better you feel on receiving the cash from us, immediately laid the $75 down in specie before old Shylock, (his last cent,) who grinned it with as much avidity as if he had procured a passport to Paradise. This anecdote is only related to show what extraordinary luck is had at this office—as proof, the ticket is on file, and any person, wishing to see it, will be cheerfully waited on. The Maryland Lottery draws TO-DAY—similar luck may attend persons who buy chances at STONER'S Universal Prize Office.

CONSUMPTION.

Dr. Swayne.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently demands on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one, that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and be worthy of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1 50 each.

AGENCY. HOUSES, FARMS, VACANT LOTS, GROUND RENTS, LANDS, &c. bought and sold on commission. SLAVES, for life or a term of years, bought or sold on commission, and the highest prices obtained. Persons having slaves, which they wish to dispose of, will do well to apply at this office before selling.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. Williams, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

CITY COUNCIL. First Branch, February 4th. Present—Mr. H. Snyder, President, and all the members.

After the previous day's proceedings were read, Mr. Keyser presented the report of the joint committee on fire companies relative to the petition of Michael Gross, which, with an accompanying resolution, was favorable.

Mr. Holter, of the joint committee on water, offered a report relative to the petition of John B. Mathiot in relation to the removal of a pump; accompanying which was a resolution, which was passed, favorable to the petitioner.

Mr. Dallam called up the bill to change the name of Chamberlain alley to Eulan court, which was passed and concurred in by the Second Branch.

Mr. Fields offered the report of the joint committee on commerce relative to the erection of a fort at "Sollers' Point Flats." Accompanying the report was a resolution, recommending the members of both branches of the Council to sign a memorial to Congress, asking a special appropriation for that purpose, which was sent to the Second Branch and concurred in with amendments.

A message was received from the Second Branch on the report and resolution relative to Michael Gross, which was concurred in. Also a report from the joint committee on fire companies relative to the petition of Henry Staley, which was favorable. Also, report relative to J. B. Mathiot, concurred in.

Mr. Dallam presented the report of the joint committee on streets relative to the petition of Jacob and Benjamin Horn, and the counter petition of A. H. Reip. The accompanying resolution laid on the table.

A message was received from the Mayor, approving and signing an ordinance supplementary to an ordinance relative to the inspection of butter and lard. Also a petition from Isaac Marrow, deputy market master of Lexington market, praying to have refunded $9.62½ which he took on account of the city of Knapp's and Pennington's shinplasters a few days previous to their explosion. The committee to whom this petition was referred reported unfavorably. On motion, the matter was laid on the table for further consideration.

A message was received from the Second Branch, relative to a repeal of ordinance No. 35, prohibiting members of the council from holding office. Not concurred in.

Mr. Gorsuch offered the report of the joint committee on police, relative to the increase of chimney sweeps, which was favorable.

Business being finished, both branches adjourned until Monday next at half past three o'clock.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 3, 1841.

Mr. E. A. Lynch presented the memorial of citizens of Georgetown and part of Washington county in the District of Columbia, praying the retrocession of that territory to the state of Maryland. Referred to a select committee composed of Messrs. E. H. Lynch, Cousin, Jones, of Som., Tuck, England, Sprigg, of Alleghany, and Martin.

Mr. Legrand presented the testimony of Hugh Davy Evans, George W. Dobbin and others, respecting the fitting up of the room occupied by the Library Company of the Baltimore Bar.

On motion of Mr. Randal, it was ordered that the committee on internal improvements inquire whether the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company are in the habit of permitting directors and all the members of their families, lawyers who have been employed by the company, and cashiers who have acted as disbursing agents, to ride without charge upon their road; and that they be instructed further to inquire whether such usage, if found to exist, be promotive of the pecuniary interests of this state.

On motion of Mr. Nesbit, leave was granted to the committee on corporations to introduce a bill to prevent the stockholders in several institutions of this state, from voting their stocks by proxy in any election for officers in said institution.

The order of the day, being the bill from the senate to give the chancellor and county courts jurisdiction in cases of divorce, was then taken up. The bill having been read and amended, the question was then taken on the passage of the bill, and it was rejected, yeas 26, nays 33.

On motion of Mr. Nesbit, the house took up the bill to establish a uniform system of charges of notaries public on all protested notes, drafts and bills of exchange. After undergoing some amendment, the bill was rejected. Adjourned.

NOVEL AND PLEASING AMUSEMENT. The N. O. Picayune says: We called yesterday on an old friend, who has been confined to his room for a week with a slight rheumatic attack, and found him sitting very coolly in his easy chair, amusing himself by throwing quids of tobacco at a mark on the mantel piece. The accuracy he has attained by practice is truly astonishing, so much so that at the distance of five paces he averages within an inch and a quarter every throw, and frequently drives the centre. He keeps a little darky busily employed all the time setting up his mark.

STAGE ACCIDENT. The Baltimore Mail Stage, says the St. Louis Bulletin of the 25th, was delayed two or three hours beyond its time, to-day, by an accident of a very unfortunate kind. In descending one of the hills between this place and Manchester, the horses became unmanageable and ran off, running across the bridge and into the woods on this side, where one of the horses was instantly killed, by striking his head against a tree. The driver was thrown off and had his leg broken, and is seriously injured. Messrs. Coxe, M'Gunnegle, Tracy, Glasgow and others, were in the stage, but are not much injured.

A TOWN TAVERN. The inhabitants of a town in Connecticut, it is said, have voted that, whereas the selling of rum is profitable to the seller, and unprofitable to the town, the town will take the business into their own hands. They accordingly appointed a man to sell spirits for them, voted him a salary, ordered the select men to furnish the rum, and directed the agent to register every man who bought the rum, and the quantity bought.

POLICE. [illegible] on Wednesday arrested and taken before Justice Pennington, charged with employing two small boys to take a trunk from on board a schooner at Pratt street wharf. After an examination, he was released on bail for his future appearance.

ROBBERY AND MURDER. At Selma, Mo., on the night of the 23d ult., three men entered the house of a German by the name of Von Harten, about four miles from town, and tied him and his children. Mrs. Harten screamed and ran, but one of the robbers, fearing she would alarm the neighborhood, pursued her and shot her through the breast. She cannot survive. The villains then robbed the house of about $150 in money, two watches, jewelry, a double barrelled gun, and a saddle and bridle. They also stole a horse. The whole country were in pursuit of the rogues.

Since we received the above information, says the St. Louis Bulletin, some of the party in pursuit arrived in the city yesterday, and gave information to Mr. Rizer, deputy marshal, who in a short time succeeded in arresting one of the ruffians, after a severe struggle, in one of the coffee-houses on Oak street.

A man of gentlemanly appearance dropped dead in Cambridge street last evening, about 7 o'clock. H. W. Fuller was marked on a white figured silk handkerchief.—Boston Advertiser.

We learn that the above mentioned individual is Judge Fuller, of Augusta, Me. He had been to Cambridge to see his son, and walked back in perfect health.—Transcript, 30th.

VALLIER'S FRENCH PILLS FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

CONSENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed!

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottle, and the labels are envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains as aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

"Caution" is the Parent of Safety.

AN ATTACK of the "PILES" may be positively prevented by using (when the premonitory symptoms are felt) the celebrated HAYS' LINIMENT. There are more than one thousand people in this city, and in the United States in immense number, who have suffered beyond endurance by this dreadful complaint, who keep themselves wholly free from attacks by applying this Liniment when they feel any symptoms of its approach—of this there is the most perfect proof.

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

SONG OF GREETING.

To be sung to "Old Tip," on his arrival in Baltimore, by a Chorus of Expectants.

[BY CHIPS.]

Tell Chapman to crow!—coo!, cook-a-coc-too!
And let the drums rattle away;
Huzza! for the hero of Tippecanoe,
Who visits our city to day.
Let the shrill trumpet bray—the old man has come,
Rich favors he holds in his hand;
Blow, blow the shrill fife, and beat the big drum,
For the hero, the choice of the land.
CHORUS—Then crow, Chapman, crow—cook, coo!-a-coc-too!
Huzza! for hard-cider and Tippecanoe!

We've thrown up our hats, and we've shouted aloud,
For your cause, gen'rous man, and we trust
You will deign to select a few whigs from the crowd,
For give us an office you must.
The people we rallied, and speeches we made,
Drank cider—though gin we preferr'd;
For this, it is right that your friends should be paid,
While Tippecanoe is the word!
CHORUS—Then crow, Chapman, crow, &c.

To the white house you go—but who paved the way!
Great General, you know it was we:
What labor we've done we're too modest to say,
And we don't wish to kick up a fuss.
We ask you to think of our claims on the spoils
The foe has left scatter'd about—
Reward, then, the true for their labor and toils,
And turn all the old locos out.
CHORUS—Then crow, Chapman, crow, &c.

Turn 'em out! turn 'em out!—we—we must be paid
For the labor we've done—on our knees,
We crave to sit down to the table that's laid,
Or to grab at the crumbs—as you please.
An office, an office—it matters not what—
Chief bo-t-black or ostler's the same;
Some pap, dearest Gen'ral, while full is the pot,
For raising our idol to fame.
CHORUS—Then crow, Chapman, crow, &c.

THE REEFER OF '76.

By the author of "Cruizing in the Last War."

FORT MOULTRIE.

How often has the story of the heart been told! The history of the love of one bosom is that of the millions who have alternated between hope and fear since the first human heart began to throb. The gradual awakening of our affection; the first consciousness we have of our own feelings; the tumultuous emotions of doubt and certainty we experience, and the wild rapture of the moment, when, for the first, we learn that our love is requited, have all been told by pens more graphic than mine, and in language as nervous as that of Fielding, or as moving as that of Richardson.

The daily companionship into which I was now thrown with Beatrice was, of all things, the most dangerous to my peace. From the first moment when I beheld her she had occupied a place in my thoughts; and the footing of acquaintanceship, not to say intimacy, on which we now lived, was little calculated to banish her from my mind. Oh! how I loved to linger by her side during the moonlight evenings of that balmy latitude, talking of a thousand things which, at other times, would have been void of interest, or gazing silently upon the peaceful scene around, with a hush upon our hearts it seemed almost sacrilege to break. And at such times how the merest trifle would afford us food for conversation, or how eloquent would be the quiet of that holy silence! Yes! the ripple of a wave, or the glimmer of the spray, or the twinkling of a star, or the voice of the night wind sighing low, or the deep, mysterious language of the unquiet ocean, had, at such moments, a beauty in them, stirring every chord in our hearts, and filling us, as it were, with sympathy not only for each other, but for every thing in nature. And when we would part for the night, I would pace for hours my solitary watch, thinking of Beatrice, with all the rapt devotion of a first, pure love.

But this could not last. The dream was pleasant, yet it might not lead me to dishonor. Beatrice was under my protection, and was it right to avail myself of that advantage to win her heart, when I knew from the difference of our stations in life, that it was madness to think that she could ever be mine. What! the heiress of one of the richest Jamaica residents, the granddaughter of a baron, and the near connexion of some of the wealthiest tory families of the south, to be wooed as an equal by one who not only had no fortune but his sword, but was the advocate, in the eyes of her advisers, of a rebellious cause! Nor did the service I had rendered her lessen the difficulty of my position.

These feelings, however, had rendered me more guarded, perhaps more cold, in the presence of Beatrice, for a day or two preceding our arrival in port. I felt my case hopeless: and I wished, by gradually avoiding the danger, to lessen the agony of the final separation. Besides, I knew nothing as yet of the sentiments of Beatrice toward myself. I was a novice in love; and the silent abstraction of her manner, together with the gradually increasing avoidance of my presence, filled me with uneasiness, despite the conviction of the hopelessness of my suit. But what was it to me, I would say, even if Beatrice loved me not? Was it not better that it should be so? Alas! reason and love are two very different things, and though I was better satisfied with myself when we made the lights of Charleston harbor, yet the almost total separation which had thus for nearly two days existed between Beatrice and myself, left my heart tormented with all a lover's fears.

It was the last evening we would spend together, perhaps for years. The wind had died away, and we slowly floated upward with the tide, the shores of James Island hanging like a dark cloud on the larboard beam, and the lights of the distant city glimmering along the horizon inboard; while no sound broke the stillness of the hour, except the occasional wash of a ripple, or the song of some negro fisherman floating across the water. As I stood by the starboard railing, gazing on this scenery, I could not help contrasting my present situation with what it had been but a few short weeks before, when I left the harbor of New York. So intensely was I wrapt in these thoughts, that I did not notice the appearance of Beatrice on deck, until the question of the helmsman, dissolving my reverie, caused me to look around me. For a moment I hesitated whether I should join her or not. My feelings at length, however, prevailed; and crossing the deck, I soon stood at her side. She did not appear to notice my presence, but with her elbow resting on the railing, and her head buried in her hand, was pensively looking down upon the tide.

"Miss Derwent!" said I, with a voice that I was conscious trembled, though I scarce knew why it did.

"Mr. Parker!" she ejaculated in a tone of surprise, her eyes sparkling, as starting suddenly around she blushed over neck and brow, and then as suddenly dropped her eyes to the deck, and began playing with her fan. For a moment we were both mutually embarrassed. A woman is, at such times, the first to speak.

"Shall we be able to land to-night?" said Beatrice.

"Not unless a breeze springs up—"

"Oh! then I hope we shall not have one," ejaculated the guileless girl; but instantly becoming aware of the interpretation which might be put upon her remark, she blushed again, and cast her eyes anew upon the deck. A strange, joyous hope shot through my bosom; but I made a strong effort and checked my feelings. Another silence ensued, which every moment became more oppressive.

"You join, I presume, your cousin's family on landing," said I at length, "I will, as soon as we come to anchor, send a messenger ashore, apprising him of your presence on board."

"How shall I ever thank you sufficiently," said Beatrice, raising her dark eyes frankly to mine, "for your kindness? Never—never," she continued more warmly, "shall I forget it."

My soul thrilled to its deepest fibre at the words, and more than all, at the tone of the speaker; and it was with some difficulty that I could answer calmly—

"The consciousness of having ever merited Miss Derwent's thanks, is a sufficient reward for all I have done. That she will not wholly forget me is more than I could ask; but believe me, Beatrice," said I, unable to restrain my feelings, and venturing, for the first time, to call her by that name, "though we shall soon part forever, never, never can I forget these few happy days."

"Why—do you leave Charleston instantly?" said she, with emotion, "shall I not see you again after my landing?"

I know not how it is, but there are moments when our best resolutions vanish as though they had never been made; and now, as I looked upon the earnest countenance of Beatrice, and felt the full meaning of the words so innocently said, a wild hope once more shot across my bosom, and I said softly—

"Why, Beatrice, would it be aught to you whether we ever met again?"

She lifted her eyes to mine, and gazed for an instant almost reproachfully upon me, but she did not answer. There was something, however, in the look encouraging me to go on. I then took her hand; she did not withdraw it;—and, in a few hurried, but burning words, I poured forth my love.

"Say, Beatrice?" I said, "can you, do you love me?"

She raised her dark eyes in answer up to mine, with an expression I shall never forget, and murmured, half inaudibly—

"You know—you know I do," and then overcome by the consciousness of all she had done, she burst into tears.

Can words describe my feelings? Oh! if I had the eloquence of a Roseau I could not portray the emotions of that moment. They were wild; they were almost uncontrollable. The tone, the words, everything convinced me that I was beloved, and all my well-formed resolutions were dissipated in a moment. Had we been alone I would have caught Beatrice to my bosom; but as it was, I could only press her hand in silence. I needed not to be assured, in more direct terms, of her affection. Henceforth she was to me my all. She was the star of my destiny!

The first dawn of morning beheld us abreast of the town, and at an early hour the equipage of Mr. Rochester, the relative of Beatrice, and whose guest she was now to be, was in waiting on the quay for my beautiful charge.

"You will come to-night, will you not?" said she, as I pressed her hand, on conducting her to the carriage.

I bowed affirmatively, the door was closed, and the sumptuous equipage, with its servants in livery, moved rapidly away.

It was now that I had parted with Beatrice, that the conviction of the almost utter hopelessness of my suit forced itself upon my mind. Mr. Rochester was the nearest male relative of Beatrice, being her maternal uncle. Her parents were both deceased, and the uncle, whose death I have related, together with the Carolinian nabob, were, by her father's will, her guardians. Mr. Rochester was, therefore, her natural protector.—Her fortune, though large, was fettered with a condition that she should not marry without her guardian's consent, and I soon learned that a union had long been projected between her and the eldest son of her surviving guardian. How little hope I had before, the reader knows, but that little was now fearfully diminished. It is true Beatrice had owned that she loved me, but how could I ask her to sacrifice the comforts as well as the elegancies of life, to share her lot with a poor unfriended midshipman? I could not endure the thought. What! should I take advantage of the gratitude of a pure young being—a being, too, who had always been nourished in the lap of luxury—to subject her to privation, and perhaps to beggary? No, rather would I have lived wholly absent from her presence. I could almost have consented to lose her love, sooner than be the instrument of inflicting on her miseries so crushing. My only hope was in winning a name that would yet entitle me to ask her hand as an equal; my only fear was, lest the length of time I should be absent from her side, would gradually lose me her affection. Such is the jealous fear of a lover's heart.

Meanwhile, however, the whole city resounded with the din of war. A despatch from the Secretary of State to Gov. Eden, of Maryland, had been intercepted by Com. Barron, of the Virginia service, in the Chesapeake. From this missive, intelligence was gleaned that the capitol of South Carolina was to be attacked; and on my arrival I found every exertion being made to place it in a posture of defence. I instantly volunteered, and the duties thus assumed, engrossing a large part of my time, left me little leisure, even for my suit. Still, however, I occasionally saw Beatrice, though the cold hateur with which my visits were received by her uncle's family, much diminished their frequency.

As the time rolled on, however, and the British fleet did not make its appearance, there were not wanting many who believed that the contemplated attack had been given up. But I was not of the number. So firm, indeed, was my conviction of the truth of the intelligence, that I ran out to sea every day or two, in a smart-sailing pilot-boat, in order, if possible, to gain the first positive knowledge of the approach of our foes.

"A sail," shouted our look-out one day, after we had been standing off and on for several hours—"a sail, broad on the weather-beam!"

Every eye was instantly turned toward the quarter indicated; spy-glasses were brought in requisition; and in a few minutes we made out distinctly nearly a dozen sail, on the larboard tack, looming up on the northern sea-board.—We counted no less than six men-of-war, besides several transports. Every thing was instantly wet down to the trucks, and heading at once for Charleston harbor, we soon bore the alarming intelligence to the inhabitants of the town.

That night all was terror and bustle in the tumultuous capital. The peaceful citizens, unused to bloodshed, gazed upon the approaching conflict with mingled resolution and terror, now determining to die rather than to be conquered, and now trembling for the safety of their wives and little ones. Crowds swarmed the wharves and even put out into the bay to catch a sight of the approaching squadron. At length it appeared off the bar, and we soon saw by their buoying out the channel, that an immediate attack was to take place by sea,—while expresses brought us hasty intelligence of the progress made by the royal troops in landing on Long Island. But want of water among our foes, and the indecision of their General, protracted the attack for more than three weeks, a delay which we eagerly improved.

At length, on the morning of the 28th of June, it became evident that our assailants were preparing to commence the attack. Eager to begin my career of fame, I sought a post under Colonel Moultrie, satisfied that the fort on Sullivan's Island would have to maintain the brunt of the conflict.

Never shall I forget the sight which presented itself to me on reaching our position. The fort we were expected to maintain was a low building of palmetto logs situated on the tongue of the island, and protected in the rear from the royalist troops, on Long Island, by a narrow channel, usually fordable, but now, owing to the late prevalence of easterly winds, providentially filled to a depth of some fathoms. In front of us lay the mouth of the harbor, commanded on the opposite shore, at the distance of about thirty-five hundred yards, by another fort in our possession, where Col. Gadsen with a respectable body of troops was posted. To the right opened the bay, sweeping almost a quarter of the compass around the horizon, toward the north,—and on its extreme verge, to the north west, rose up Haldrell's point, where Gen. Lee, our commander-in-chief, had taken up a position. About half-way round, and due west from us, lay the city, at the distance of nearly four miles, the view being partly intercepted by the low, marshy island, called Shute's Folly, between us and the town.

"We have but twenty-eight pounds of powder, Mr. Parker, a fact I should not like generally known," said Col. Moultrie to me, "but as you have been in action before—more than I can say of a dozen of my men—I know you may be trusted with the information."

"Never doubt the brave continentals here, colonel," I replied, "they are only four hundred, but we shall teach you braggarts a lesson, before to-day is over, which they shall not soon forget."

[To be concluded in our next.]

AN ATTEMPT TO ROB A BANK. The Central Bank in Hallowell, Me., was entered on Tuesday night last, and a number of locks broken. The robbers succeeded in forcing open the wooden door of the vault, and after an unsuccessful attempt to start the iron door, made good their retreat.

THREE CHILDREN BURNT TO DEATH. The Albany Advertiser states that on Friday evening last, the dwelling of Mr. J. Starr, of Henderson, Jefferson county, was consumed, and three children, the eldest 6 years, the youngest 18 months, perished in the flames.—It appears that Mrs. Starr was absent on a visit to one of her neighbours, and that Mr. S. was also a short distance from the house, on an errand.

By the kind liberality of a few citizens of Baltimore, a choice library of one hundred and twenty one volumes of moral and instructive books has recently been presented to the Baltimore Female Orphan Asylum in Mulberry street. This interesting Institution at present consists of about sixty girls. The accession of this library will be a source of amusement and edification to the children, and those who have contributed to place it within their reach cannot but enjoy the heartfelt satisfaction of having thereby been the means of doing much good.—American.

It is quite likely that Pease's Hoarhound Candy will be in great demand to day, especially after the people have seen our paper.—Cin. Ledger.

We should judge so, if all the numbers were as damp as the one we received.

DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	"	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	"	Fred'ksburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	"	Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	"	Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	"	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	"	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	"	Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, while it is evident that Fogs! Rough Weather!! and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT INLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon and travellers have no expense or trouble with their baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

☞ Passengers for the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road pay through to Petersburg, Va. For further information and Through Tickets, apply at the office of

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlick's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

THE INSANE POOR. In our notice of the Report of the Trustees of the Baltimore City and County Alms House, (published in the Clipper of the 26th ult.) we merely alluded to the Lunatic Department of the Institution, intending to give to the statements and suggestions contained in the report of Dr. Alex. C. Robinson, one of the attending physicians, such further consideration as time would permit. The Doctor has made every effort within his power to ameliorate the condition of this most unfortunate class of paupers, and his humane exertions have been measurably crowned with success; but the want of proper accommodation at the Alms House has prevented the adoption of such regulations as are deemed essential to the relief or permanent restoration of the insane inmates. Crowded together in rooms, this compulsory association has the direct tendency to render temporary aberrations confirmed lunacy. This is an injudicious and most lamentable economy; for it settles for life, and in a state of lunacy, upon the list of paupers, those who, with proper accommodations for themselves, and a fair opportunity for the application of the physician's judgment and skill, might be restored to their families and to usefulness. Although in particular stages of lunacy it may be possible for the physician to "minister to the mind deceased," yet, when the disease is confirmed by time, it is generally found impracticable to make a radical cure. Doctor Robinson has examined this subject with a feeling and sympathy for the situation of his unhappy patients, that must excite public commisseration, and beget a solicitude to aid in his philanthropic recommendations for their benefit.

When the city of Baltimore relinquished to the state the control of the Maryland Hospital, the legislature, in reorganizing the institution, expressly reserved to the counties the right of placing their destitute lunatics in the hospital on the payment of $100 per annum for each person. Some of the counties have so disposed of their pauper lunatics, whilst others, from a false economy, have continued them in their alms houses, where they are huddled together without discrimination, to the injury of the unfortunate beings and the disgrace of humanity. In other states ample provision is made for the proper treatment of this class of paupers, and every accommodation which their condition demands is afforded.—The legislature of this state designed the Maryland Hospital for the asylum of the insane, and it ought to be so appropriated—but, unless there be a compulsory law, the object will not be attained. Under the impression that this is called for by humanity, it is suggested that the legislature be memorialized to pass an act requiring all insane paupers in the state to be sent to the hospital, where the most effectual means can be adopted for their relief. The compensation now required from counties sending such persons, ($100 per annum) is little more than their actual cost in the poor house, if properly treated, and would be barely sufficient to provide for them comfortably in the hospital. But this is not a matter about which to enter into a calculation of dollars and cents. Society owes a duty to this destitute class of its members which must be discharged. If, by exchanging the poor house for the hospital, only a few of the many unfortunate beings laboring under insanity, can be restored to reason, a great work of charity will have been performed, and we shall have the sweet consolation of having discharged an important duty.

It is the opinion of Doctor Robinson, that, in the primary stage of the disease, relief would not be difficult, if patients could be properly classified and kept from indiscriminate association. Hence the necessity of having a building sufficiently commodious for the separation of patients and the introduction of such moral treatment and intellectual discipline as might be required. It is a subject of considerable interest to an enlightened and christian people; and had we room, we would willingly give publicity to the whole of Dr. Robinson's report—but we must conclude with copying the following note on the curability of cases:

"The ratio of curability of cases, which have existed less than three months, is nine in ten; and eight and a half in ten when it has existed under twelve months; on the other hand of three hundred and eighteen cases, which had fallen under the care of Sir Wm. Ellis, at the York West Riding Asylum, and which had existed from one to thirty years, only twenty-six were cured.—M. Esquirol, one of the greatest living authorities on the subject of insanity, has asserted, that after the disease has passed the third year of duration, the probability of cure is scarcely more than one in thirty. Such, too, have been the general influences deduced from the results of the several admirable insane establishments of our own country."—See second Appeal to the people of Pennsylvania, page 21.

EXTRA SESSION. From an editorial article in the National Intelligencer of yesterday, we are convinced that an extra session of Congress will be called. Such a measure is deemed necessary to carry out the views with which General Harrison was elected. This may be—but if the extra session is to be consumed in the same idle, rambling, ranting foolery as the present and preceding sessions, it would be preferable to endure the "ills we have" than attempt their remedy by such an infliction. We have nothing to do with the partizan considerations which may prompt the call, but nothing less than absolute necessity could make us favorable to an extra session. We begin to look upon the sessions of Congress with dread, for the inflammatory language, vile personal abuse and wanton dissipation of the public funds, render the proceedings of the house of representatives disgraceful to the nation and disgusting to the feelings. If the union of these states should ever be dissolved, the primary cause of dissolution will be traced to the halls of Congress.

The discussions in the house of representatives would exhaust the patience of Job. The treasury note bill has been before the house for weeks, and it is probable that it will not be disposed of until about twelve o'clock on the night of the third of March, when tongues must be silenced, many of them we hope forever in that hall. A celebrated man is said to have advised his pupils "never to rise until they had something to say; and always to conclude when they were done." We would ask the speaker to have this salutary advice printed in large characters, and placed within view of every member of the house. Something of this kind would seem to be required since he is not disposed to enforce the rules of the house.

Should an extra session be called for May, the probability is that it will continue till the succeeding session in December, unless the heat of July should incapacitate members for wagging their tongues. As the sub-treasury will be repealed, why not do it at once, and thus prevent an expensive extra session? Considerations of party ought to be set aside, and indeed can now be of no avail. Members, therefore, of both political parties should unite in the determination not to render an extra session necessary.

SPLENDID METEOR. Yesterday evening about a quarter before six o'clock, a most magnificent meteor was observed to pass over our city from north west to south east. When first observed it was about the size of a large cannon ball, and of a bright silvery hue. As it advanced it became more lurid, throwing off in its passage numerous beautiful scintillations, and leaving in its course a luminous trail resembling that of a comet. Its flight through the ethereal regions was remarkably swift, affording but a short time for the awe-struck observer to contemplate its grandeur.

We are not astronomer enough to account for the sudden appearance of this strange visiter. It may have been a Philadelphia banker, Swartwouting with a cargo of mint drops; or perhaps it came to run in opposition to the moon, which a short time afterwards exhibited to the beholder a sight seldom equalled in the way of an eclipse. Certain it is, that our young phenomenon was determined he would not be shorn of his resplendent beams by the pale queen of night. He therefore took the start, and we give him credit for his perseverance.

THE ECLIPSE. At the appointed minute last night the moon commenced her disappearance. She walked into the penumbra of the earth with all the bashfulness of a maiden into her bath—blushing, trembling, and, we were going to say, sighing—but we did'nt hear her. As the last brilliant point of her silvery rim vanished from the sight, she assumed the appearance of an illuminated balloon, and then she looked like an orange—and then a Chesshire cheese—and darker and darker she grew, until she reached the centre of the shadow, and then we kiss'd our hand to her and whistled "Rise, gentle moon," and a good many other appropriate songs, until she began to emerge from obliviousness, which she did in about an hour and a half. Like a brilliant diamond the tip of her southern rim blinked upon the world—and on, and on she came, nicely washed, smiling and seeming to say, "you may gaze upon me now!"—Thus endeth the chapter—our printer's devil said he could'nt have made a better eclipse if he had passed the ink-roller over her face.

THE NORFOLK BEACON. We would consider ourselves under obligations to the conductors of this paper, if they would be a little more careful in giving credit to the proper source. An article appeared in their last paper accredited to us, which we do not feel the least disposition to father; we have enough sins of our own to atone for, without making ourselves responsible for those of others. Not long since the same paper copied an article relative to the order of Odd Fellows from our paper, and gave credit to "another concern in this city"—we said nothing about it at the time, and would have remained silent now—but we cannot be out of fashion—we must complain—and, if the Beacon is not more careful, we shall be compelled to strike it from our exchange list! So—put that in your pipe and smoke it.

IMPORTANT. Be it understood by all who are concerned with the City Court, now in session, particularly those who have been summoned as witnesses, and those who are bound under recognizance to appear for trial, that they are specially ordered to be present when their names are called, otherwise their recognizances will be forfeited. The prosecuting attorney has already commenced a strict conformity to this order, and we learn is determined to carry it out in every instance without respect to persons. A conformity, therefore, to the above order will not only save expense, but greatly facilitate the proceedings of the court. We would advise all those who are under bail to be on the look out.

BANK OF THE UNITED STATES. That the resumption of specie payments in Philadelphia and elsewhere, was premature, we never entertained a doubt—but in Philadelphia it was a work of necessity, as the law required resumption on the 15th January under the penalty of a forfeiture of charter. The consequence of this compulsory measure is the suspension of specie payments by the Bank of the United States. This has produced, as was to have been expected, a great sensation, and probably heavy losses to individuals. It will be seen by the proceedings of the directors, that they promise to resume again as soon as practicable; but we apprehend that it will be a difficult matter to recover from the present blow. It is possible that, had the Bank not been compelled to resume on the fifteenth of last month, it might have made such disposition of its stocks and other resources in a few months, as to have enabled it to resume permanently; but hasty and inconsiderate legislation has sacrificed the interests of stockholders and the public.

The other Banks in Philadelphia have determined to continue specie payments. We hope that they may be able to withstand the shock; for, that the failure of the Bank of the United States to redeem its notes will cause a sensible increase in the demands for specie from other banks there can be no doubt, though prudence would dictate forbearance.

The resumption in Pennsylvania and the delay in Baltimore, have, perhaps, been fortunate for our city—for the banks of Philadelphia were indebted to our banks to a considerable amount, which has probably been collected in specie, or otherwise satisfactorily—so that the failure of the Bank of the United States can produce little effect here. We, therefore, cannot see any cause for excitement in Baltimore. Our banks are moving cautiously and judiciously, and should continue to receive public confidence.

The following account of the causes which led to the event above stated, and the official proceedings of the Directors of the United States Bank on the occasion, are taken from the Philadelphia Ledger.

Extraordinary excitement!—The U. S. Bank A great degree of excitement prevailed in this city yesterday afternoon and evening, in consequence of a rumor which prevailed in regard to the U. S. Bank. The cause which gave rise to this excitement was, as we learn, a failure on the part of the Bank to meet certain demands against it. As far as we could best ascertain the facts, there was a heavy draft presented about 2½ o'clock, by the runner of the brokers between this city and New York. We hear the sum stated as high as three hundred thousand dollars, which the bank failed to meet, the officer saying "it could not be paid," and the officer withdrew. Two other drafts, one for twenty thousand dollars, presented by a broker in Third street, and another for about the same amount, by another broker, was also refused payment.

As may be imagined, the rumors of these facts soon spread abroad, and the Exchange last evening was crowded with anxious inquirers into the truth of them; and opinions were various as to the probable consequences of this unexpected measure, and a meeting of the other city banks was held last evening in relation to the matter.

Since the above was in type, we have received the proceedings of a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bank of the United States, which may be found below. By them it would appear that the Board has made a faithful effort to sustain the resumption, but with what success the suspension yesterday fully explains.

BANK OF THE UNITED STATES,
February 4, 1841.

At a special meeting of the board of Directors of the Bank of the United States, held at the Banking House, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The Bank of the United States, in compliance with its pledge to the public, has made a fair and bona fide effort to resume and maintain specie payments, having since the 15th Jan. last paid out an amount little, if at all, short of six millions of dollars in coin or specie funds; and, whereas, the effort to maintain specie payments by this Bank has been rendered abortive by the intentional accumulation and extraordinary enforcement of its instant liabilities—Therefore,

Resolved, That this Bank is under the necessity, for the present, of suspending specie payments.

Resolved, That every exertion will be made by the Directors to collect the debts, and convert into cash the assets of this Bank, for the purpose of resuming payments in specie at the earliest practicable moment.

Resolved, That the foregoing preamble and resolutions be published.

[Extract from the minutes.]
A. LARDNER, Cashier.

We have just heard from the meeting of the Banks at the Exchange. The whole thirteen Bank were represented, and unanimously agreed to continue the payment of specie to-day and for the future, as heretofore.

GULLING THE NINNIES. Last night a lad in our neighborhood made upwards of fifty cents in the following manner: He persuaded the boys that the eclipse could only be seen from his mother's yard, and charged them a cent each for admission! That fellow will become a bank officer yet.

MARINE BANK. We are pleased to hear that this bank has resolved to receive and pay out rail road notes. Five banks yet remain to act upon the question; but they will all no doubt yield to the public wish on the subject, as they are all dependent upon public confidence for their existence.

FIRE IN NEW YORK. The store of Mr. Chas. Williams, hat maker, Jacob-st., was destroyed by fire on Wednesday night. Loss $3000.

(Correspondence of the National Clipper.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5, 1841.

Last evening I closed pending a speech of Mr. Adams on the subject of duelling, and the course of Mr. Wise in relation to that system. Mr. A. continued his remarks, and with much pertinacity insisted that the remarks of Mr. W. during the recent affair between Messrs. W. C. Johnson and Duncan plainly shewed that he lamented there was to be no fight.

Mr. Wise, in the most vehement manner, denied that such a construction could be placed upon his words.

Mr. Adams said he was willing to leave the matter to the people, and then proceeded at some length to denounce the duelling system.

Mr. Wise replied, and in a very impressive manner gave his views against the practice of duelling. He abhorred it, and declared that if he ever fought, it would be against his better judgment, and the prayers of his constituents. During his remarks loud tokens of applause were given from the galleries.

Mr. W. C. Johnson followed, but had not spoken many minutes before the committee rose and the House adjourned.

In the House, this morning, a resolution was offered by Mr. Lincoln for discharging the committee of the whole from further consideration of the treasury note bill at three o'clock to-day.

Much objection was made by those members pregnant with long speeches, and the matter was finally settled by a modification of the resolution, changing the hour to seven o'clock. The resolution as modified was then adopted; so this evening, I presume, the bill will pass.

In the Senate the bankrupt bill is fairly under weigh, but there appears to be but little hope that it will go through both houses at the present session.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

CITY COURT, Feb. 5, 1841.—Present, Judges Brice and Worthington. The court convened at the usual hour and proceeded to business.

The first personage brought up was Charles Ginnet, charged by the State with committing an assault and battery upon the person of John MacGuigan, on the night of the State Legislative election, last fall. There was no evidence upon the part of the State to sustain the charge. The accused had one witness, who testified that he had been in company with Ginnet all the evening, and that the accused had not been engaged in any assault upon McGuigan or any other person during the night alluded to. The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty.

John Moon was put upon trial for basely assaulting and beating a woman named Jane Campbell. The case was disposed of without empanelling a jury. Moon acted as his own lawyer. He first confessed his guilt—that he had struck Miss Campbell in the face with his open hand, in consequence of some abusive language which he alleged she had used in reference to himself and sister. We were inclined to the opinion that Moon had been accustomed to say "your honors" upon previous occasions. Neither himself nor his party had anything to boast of. The court fined him ten dollars and costs, and required him to give security in the sum of $100 to keep the peace for six months.

Elizabeth Sterling was put upon the stand; she plead "not guilty," and asked a removal of her case to Annapolis, which was granted.

A little black boy, aged eight years, named Travers, was next brought up, charged by the whole state of Maryland with stealing fifteen half dollars, the property of a Mr. O'Farrell. It seemed that the boy had been bound to O'Farrell for a term of years, and that the master's object was to get remunerated in the sum of $50 for the boy's time. This, however, did not sit well with the court. It ordered the master to take the boy home again, and advised him if he did not wish to keep him, to dispose of him to some one out of the county. The little fellow's eyes were all that was of him, and they were as large as two pewter dollars in a mud hole. We could hardly keep from laughing to see the state of Maryland, in her majesty, arrayed against such a nigger—he might have been put head-foremost into a pipe-stem. The court dismissed the case.

POLICE. Wm. J. Williams, alias Wm. H. Thornbury, charged with obtaining a suit of clothes, under false pretences, from Wm. H. Cole, the keeper of a clothing store at the corner of Second street and Market Space, was on Thursday arrested by officer Keller, at a house in Baltimore street, dressed up in the suit in readiness to attend a soiree. He was taken before Justice Barnard for examination, who committed him to prison.

Ellen Sawyer, charged with threatening the life of Eliza Cowles, was yesterday morning arrested and brought before Justice McDonald. On giving security to keep the peace, she was released.

WATCH RETURNS. The Eastern District on Thursday night was quiet throughout. The Middle District was also free from disturbance—Benj. W. Lincheomb, H. H. Wood and Lewis Shelar, were admitted to lodgings. In the Western District, John Collinson of the U. S. Army, was arrested at half past 5, by officer Chaney, as a deserter from Uncle Sams' service, and was yesterday morning committed to jail by Justice Wright.

INSUBORDINATION. The sixth and last number of this "story of Baltimore," appeared yesterday. The plot throughout has been well maintained.

MUSICAL. It will be seen the little Welsh harpists, the masters Hughes, are to give an entertainment for their benefit at 11 o'clock this morning. Go and hear them, they are prodigies.

TEMPERANCE. The Junior Washington Temperance Society are to hold a meeting at Union Hall to-night. Boys—go and set an example to your parents.

‡ For renewal of old debts.

§ Not John Mitchell, the high constable

†A CARD. Being unable to meet pressing demands made upon me at this time, I have taken the advantage of the Law, made and provided to relieve honest men who are in debt and cannot pay. I have been working for the last three years with Herculean exertions, to pay the debts I was bound for by endorsements as well as my own. How far I have succeeded my friends and the public may judge, when I state that I have, by my exertions alone, reduced a debt of thirty thousand dollars, down to ten. I have given up debts due me of nearly six thousand, and now I am forced to ask relief from the laws of my country, to release me from the iron grasp of a pettifogging lawyer. This lawyer reminds me of the fox who lost his tail by being caught in a steel trap when he was where he ought not to have been; he having taken the benefit of the insolvent law, forces others to do so that he may bring them down to a level with himself But I feel proud to think I shall not be on a level with him—that I not, I think, lose my character or standing in this community—I am too well known to be accused of any thing dishonorable or dishonest; necessity compelled me to the course I have taken, and not dishonesty I have given up all that belongs to me—justice now demands that I should take care of my wife and children, and support them in a respectable manner, as I have always done, that their friends and relatives may not be ashamed to own them as relations. I therefore confidently rely on the patronage of my old customers and the public, promising to give them a good work and fit, as can be obtained in this city or any other in the Union. THOS. E. TILDEN, Merchant Tailor.

A CARD.

To the Stockholders of the Western Bank.

☞ A report being in circulation that the presentation of a new ticket of Directors for the Western Bank has for its object the removal of the present executive officers of that institution, the committee on the part of the stockholders offering this ticket, deem it proper to give this public assurance to the voters that no such intention has ever been entertained by them, but that their aim is simply to examine the concerns of the Bank, and all other proceedings are to depend upon the manner in which they find its affairs to have been conducted. For from any feeling of hostility towards its present officers, the gentlemen composing the new ticket will be most happy to be justified in re electing them to their places.

This occasion is taken to notice another report which is in existence and which intimates that the movement for reform has its impulse in the wish of certain of the new directors to open to themselves a source of Bank facilities. To silence this attack the committee beg to state that they are authorized by each and every one of the new directors—those who have been in the direction of the Bank—to give a pledge to stockholders that not one of them will ever ask for the discount of a single dollar while he remains a director of the institution, nor will the firm of which he may be a member make any such application, but that, so far as the new names are concerned, the means of the Bank shall be amply used for the accommodation of its regular customers.

The committee in giving this pledge venture to add that a similar assurance with regard to the ticket to be offered by the administration side, will, they have no doubt, be accorded to stockholders. fe12 d

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 50 cents per bottle.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 4, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. Mr. Gantt presented the memorial of the Annapolis and Elk Ridge Rail Road Company, praying additional aid from the State. Referred to a select committee.

Mr. Hellen obtained leave to bring in a bill for the better regulation of private Banking in this State.--Referred to Messrs Hellen, Estep, Graves, Hooper and Willis.

On motion of Mr. E. A. Lynch, ordered that the committee on grievances and courts of justice be instructed to inquire into the expediency of so amending the insolvent laws of this State as to require all petitioners for their benefit to exhibit to the judge or justice before whom their petition is presented, before a personal release is granted, a certificate from the clerk of the county that they have not made application for such benefit or obtained a personal release within two years preceeding such application.

Mr. Legrand submitted a message, requesting the Senate to return a bill entitled an act to vest certain powers in the Corporation of Baltimore City in relation to the collection of taxes and other claims.

Mr. Gaither reported a bill supplementary to an act for the prevention of frauds on the right of voting by the stockholders in the several incorporated Institutions in this State, passed Dec. session 1836, chapter 264. Laid on the table.

Mr. Cassin offered an order requiring the Commissioners of Lotteries to report to this House the name of the Contractor for the State Lotteries, and furnish an abstract of his bond to the Sate for the payment of the prizes that may be drawn in either the State or Consolidated Scheme, particularising the penalty, the names of the obligees therein, and the means which they have taken to inform themselves of the sufficiency of such security; also the place of residence of said Contractor and obligees; and if residents of States in which the lottery system is prohibited by law, whether they have been legally advised, if the penalties of said bonds can be recovered against the contractor and his obligees: and further, whether said obligees are by copartnership or otherwise connected with said contractor in the conduct of said Lotteries, and what difference if any exists, in the phraseology of the licenses issued this year from those formerly issued, and upon what suggestions and for what purpose such difference in said licences was made.—The order was adopted.

SENATE. The committee on Internal Improvements reported a bill for the benefit of the Baltimore and Susquehanna Rail Road Company.

The supplement to the charter of the Marine Insurance Company was passed.

Mr. Howard, of Baltimore, obtained leave to report a bill to incorporate the Patapsco Canal and Navigation Company.

Mr. Pratt presented a memorial of sundry citizens of Georgetown in regard to retrocession. Referred to the committee on judicial proceedings.

PHILADELPHIA THEATRICALS. There has been quite a flare up in the Chesnut-st. Theatre between the stars, the principals being Mr. & Mrs. Wood and Mr s. Bailey. It seems the benefit of the latter was fixed for Monday night last, but Mr. Wood declined performing—hereupon cards were published—the theatre closed—and the public mistified. The Spirit of the Times of yesterday conclud es an article with the following sarcastic remark s: By the bye, it is not true that Mr. Wood seized by the aid of a Sheriff, the beautiful picture, by Sully, of Mrs. Wood as Amina, which so many will recollect has been hanging in the vestibule of the theatre. He took it by the aid of a porter for a debt of $546 due him by the managers, incurred during a previous engagement. After paying him $3,114 on account of ten nights' performances they were unable to pay the balance, because they had not received it in the house; and as Mr. Wood would not wait any longer for the money, (feeling, very properly, unwilling to trust an American,) he was permitted to take for $546 what cost $800, and was considered a bargain at that, a short time before. Of course this was all right. If managers will ruin themselves to provide popular "stars," certainly it is their own business, and the "stars" have no right to interfere to prevent among the "bloody Yankees" any such catastrophe.

A LONG PAUSE. We, amongst others, not long since tried our hand at a long pause, but we confess ourselves beaten by the Harrisburg Gazette, which says that a soldier, about 150 years ago, was frozen to death in Siberia. The last expression he made was—"It is ex"——He then frose as stiff as a marble. In the summer of 1840, some French physicians found him after having lain frozen 150 years. They gradually thawed him Upon animation being restored, he concluded his sentence with "exceedingly cold."

A gentleman in Alabama gets his boots blacked every Sunday by making his negro man wear them every Saturday. Sambo is so black that the skin strikes through.—N. O. Crescent City.

Exactly.—There is a gentleman in this city so economical that he thinks it extravagance to pay the barber. Every day when his beard is too long, he walks past a certain "discount office"—and gets shaved completely.

Just take a squint at the head of our paper.
Cincinnati Ledger.

We followed your direction—and have become cross-eyed from the obliquity of the type. We shall have to undergo the operation for strabismus.

DIGNIFIED PISTICUFFS. They have had a regular fight at Jefferson, the capital of Missouri. The principal actors were the Mayor of the City and the Judge of the Circuit Court. The aldermen had them both arrested—his honor the Mayor was discharged, and his honor the Judge had to pay $2.50 for a breach of the peace!

We are dull exceedingly to-day, and cannot hammer out any thing witty, by any possible chance.—Planet.

There's nothing unusual in that, friend Planet. Clipper.

We acknowledge it, cousin; for, of late, we have attempted to follow in your footsteps.—Planet.

Probably with the intention of picking our pockets—but it's a profitless business.

THE ACADIA took out about 30,000 letters and several wagon loads of papers.

VALLIER'S FRENCH PILL. FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these Justinable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

CAUTION. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for those diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the diseases. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottle, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains this aforesaid, trust it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

THE CAPTIVE'S DREAM.

Alone, in his dungeon cell of gloom,
With his pale brow raised to the silver moon,
A captive gazed on the starlit sky,
With a sadden'd soul—he was doom'd to die.
He was doomed to die—the hours sped fast,
As his mind flew back to the happy past,
He thought of his high and honored name,
He thought of his felon's death of shame,
And bitter tears fell burning there,
As he raised his heart to God in prayer.
The captive prayed—that sorrowing tone
Far on the still air floated on—
He wept, an angel heard the cry,
And, wending from his place on high,
Gather'd those pearls of off'ring meet,
And laid them at the Saviour's feet.
The Eternal heard—upon the scroll,
Where crimes of years had been enrolled,
The smile of Jesus beamed a ray
Which swept the characters away,
Wide thro' high heaven the sweet strains ran,
Forgiveness for repentant man;
His mind was calm, and as he wept
Those tears of peace, the captive slept.
He slept, and oh! what visions bright,
Rose there to bless his longing sight;
Far o'er the wide dark rolling sea,
That care-worn heart did onward flee,
While memory led bright fancy on,
And brought him to his childhood's home.
The sparkling river rolled along,
The spring birds warbled forth their song,
And hill and valley beamed as fair,
As when he left them blooming there.
With gladsome heart, he bounded on,
And stood beside his own hearth stone.
His father's hearth—the old man smiled,
To hail once more his wandering child;
A lovely blue-eyed girl stood there,
With ruby lips and golden hair,
His playmate sister wild he pressed
Her young form to his beating breast;
He hears a voice with music's tone,
As a gentle arm is 'round him thrown,
That voice oft in days gone by,
Had sung to his baby lullaby,
It blesses now her erring son,
His loved, his doting mother's own,
He gazes 'round with wild delight,
As each dear face breaks on his sight,
And then, subdued by home's sweet spell,
Down at that mother's feet he fell.
While shouts of joy came pealing round,
To welcome back the lost one found.
Still on he slept—the mournful sound
Of the death bell's toll rang o'er the ground;
A smile across his features gleamed,
And the captive's soul passed as he dream'd.

Baltimore, Feb. 2, 1841. EMILY.

THE REEFER OF '76.

By the author of "Cruizing in the Last War."

FORT MOULTRIE.

[Concluded from our last.]

"Bravo, my gallant young friend! With my twenty-six eighteen and twenty-four pounders, plenty of powder, and a few hundred fire-eaters like yourself, I would blow the whole fleet out of water. But after all," said he with good-humored raillery, "though you'll not glory in rescuing Miss Derwent to-day, you'll fight not a whit the worse for knowing that she is in Charleston, eh! But, come, don't blush—you must be my aid—I shall want you, depend upon it, before the day is over. If those red-coats here, behind us, attempt to take us in the rear, we shall have hot work—for by my hopes of eternal salvation, I'll drive them back, man and officer, in spite of Gen. Lee's fears that I cannot. But ha! there comes the first bomb"

Looking upward as he spoke, I beheld a large, dark body flying through the air; and in the next instant, amidst a cheer from all our men, it splashed into the morass behind us, simmered, and went out.

"Well sent, old Thunderer," ejaculated the imperturbable colonel, "but, faith, many another good bomb will you throw away on the swamps and palmetto logs you sneer at. Open upon them, my brave fellows, as they come around, and teach them what Carolinians can do. Remember, you fight, to-day, for your wives, your children, and your liberties. The Continental Congress forever against the minions of a tyrannical court."

The battle was now begun. One by one the British men-of-war, coming gallantly in their respective stations, and dropping their anchors with masterly coolness, opened their batteries upon us, firing with a rapidity and precision that displayed their skill. The odds against which we had to contend were indeed formidable. Directly in front of us, with springs on their cables, and supported by two frigates, were anchored a couple of two-deckers; while the three other men-of-war were working up to starboard, and endeavoring to get a position between us and the town, so as to cut off our communications with Haddrell's Point.

"Keep it up—run her out again," shouted the captain of a gun beside me, who was firing deliberately, but with murderous precision, every shot of his piece telling on the hull of one of the British cruizers, "huzza for Carolina!"

"Here comes the broadside of Sir Peter's two-decker," shouted another one, "make way for the British iron among the palmetto logs. Ha! old yellow breeches how d'ye like that?" he continued, as the shot from his piece, struck the quarter of the flag-ship, knocking the splinters high into the air, and cutting transversely through and through her crowded decks.

Meanwhile the three men-of-war attempting to cut off our communications, had got entangled among the shoals to our right, and now lay utterly helpless, engaged in attempting to get afloat, and unable to fire a gun. Directly two of them ran afoul, carrying away the bowsprit of the smaller one.

"Huzza!" shouted the old bruiser again, squatting a moment in that direction, "they're smashing each other to pieces there without our help, and so here goes at smashing their messmates in front here—what the devil," he continued, turning smartly around to cuff a powder boy, "what are you gaping up stream for, when you should be waiting on me—take that you varmint, and see if you can do as neat a thing as this when you're old enough to point a gun. By the Lord Harry I've cut away that fore-top-mast as clean as a whistle."

Meantime the conflict waxed hotter and hotter, and through the long summer afternoon, except during an interval when we slackened it for want of powder, our brave fellows, with the coolness of veterans, and the enthusiasm of youth, kept up their fire. A patriotic ardor burned along our lines, which only became more resistless, as the wounded were carried past in the arms of their comrades. The contest was at its height when General Lee arrived from the mainland to offer to remove us if we wished to abandon our perilous position.

"Abandon our position, General!" said Colonel Moultrie, "will your excellency but visit the guns, and ask the men whether they will give up the fort? No, we will die or conquer here."

The eye of the Commander-in-chief flashed proudly at this reply, and stepping out upon the plain, he approached a party who were firing with terrible precision upon the British fleet. This fearless exposure of his person called forth a cheer from the men; but without giving him time to remain long in so dangerous a position, Col. Moultrie exclaimed,

"My brave fellows, the general has come off to offer to remove you to the main if you are tired of your post. Shall it be?"

There was a universal negative, every man declaring he would sooner die at his gun. It was a noble sight. Their eyes flashing, their chests dilated; their brawny arms bared and covered with smoke, they stood there, determined, to a man, to save their native soil at every cost, from invasion. At this moment a group appeared, carrying a poor fellow, whom it could be seen at a glance was mortally wounded. His lips were blue; his countenance ghastly; and his dim eye rolled uneasily about. He breathed heavily. But as he approached us, the shouts of his fellow soldiers falling on his ear, aroused his dying faculties, and lifting himself heavily up, his eye, after wandering inquiringly about, caught the sight of his general.

"God bless you! my poor fellow," said Lee, compassionately, "you are, I fear, seriously hurt."

The dying man looked at him as if not comprehending his remark, and then fixing his eye upon his general, said faintly,

"Did not some one talk of abandoning the fort?"

"Yes," answered Lee, "I offered to remove you or let you fight it out—but I see you brave fellows would rather die than retreat."

"Die!" said the wounded man, raising himself half upright, with a sudden strength, whilst his eye gleamed with a brighter lustre than even in health, "I thank my God that I am dying, if we can only beat the British back. Die! I have no family, and my life is well given for the freedom of my country. No, my men, never retreat," he continued, turning to his fellow soldiers, and waving his arm around his head, "huzza for li—i—ber—ty—huz—za—a—a," and as the word died away, quivering in his throat, he fell back, a twitch passed over his face, and he was dead.

Need I detail the rest of that bloody day? For nine hours, without intermission, the cannonade was continued with a rapidity on the part of our foes, and a murderous precision on that of ourselves, such as I have never since seen equalled. Night did not terminate the conflict. The long afternoon wore away; the sun went down; the twilight came and vanished; darkness reigned over the distant shores around us, yet the flash of the guns, and the roar of the explosions did not cease. As the evening grew more obscure the whole horizon became illuminated by the fire of our batteries, and the long, meteor-like tracks of the shells through the sky. The crash of spars; the shouts of the men; and the thunder of the cannonade formed meanwhile a discord as terrible as it was exciting; while the lights flashing along the bay, and twinkling from our encampment at Haddrell's Point, made the scene even picturesque.

Long was the conflict, and desperately did our enemies struggle to maintain their posts. Even when the cable of the flag-ship had been cut away, and swinging around with her stern toward us, every shot from our battery was enabled to traverse the whole length of her decks, amid terrific slaughter she did not display a sign of fear, but doggedly maintained her position, keeping up a straggling fire upon us, for some time, from such of her guns as could be brought to bear. At length, however, a new cable was rigged upon her, and swinging around broadside on, she resumed her fire. But it was in vain. Had they fought till doomsday they could not have overcome the indomitable courage of men warring for their lives and liberties; and finding that our fire only grew more deadly at every discharge, Sir Peter Parker at length made the signal to retire. One of the frigates farther in the bay had grounded, however, so firmly on the shoals that she could not be got off; and when she was abandoned and fired next morning, our brave fellows, despite the flames wreathing already around her, boarded her, and fired at the retreating squadron until it was out of range. They had not finally deserted her more than a quarter of an hour before she blew up with a stunning shock.

The rejoicings among the inhabitants after this signal victory were long and joyous. We were thanked; feted; and became lions at once. The tory families, among which was that of Mr. Rochester, maintained, however, a sullen silence. The suspicion which such conduct created made it scarcely advisable that I should become a constant visitor at his mansion, even if the cold civility of his family had not, as I have stated before, furnished other obstacles to my seeing Beatrice. Mr. Rochester, it is true, had thanked me for the services I had rendered his ward, but he had done so in a manner frigid and reserved to the last degree, closing his expression of gratitude with an offer of pecuniary recompense, which not only made the blood tingle in my veins, but detracted from the value of what little he had said.

A fortnight had now elapsed since I had seen Beatrice, and I was still delayed at Charleston, waiting for a passage to the north, and arranging the proceeds of our prize; when I received an invitation to a ball at the house of one of the leaders of the ton, who affecting a neutrality in politics, issued cards indiscriminately to both parties. Feeling a presentiment that Beatrice would be there, and doubtless unaccompanied by her uncle or cousin, I determined to go, and seek an opportunity to bid her farewell, unobserved, before my departure.

The rooms were crowded to excess. All that taste could suggest, or wealth afford, had been called into requisition to increase the splendor of the fete. Rich chandeliers; sumptuous ottomans; flowers of every hue; and an array of loveliness such as I have rarely seen equalled, made the lofty apartments almost a fairy palace. But amid that throng of beauty there was but one form which attracted my eye. It was that of Beatrice. She was surrounded by a crowd of admirers, and I felt a pang of almost jealousy, when I saw her, as I thought, smiling as gaily as the most thoughtless beauty present. But as I drew nearer I noticed that, amid all her affected gayety, a sadness would momentarily steal over her fine countenance, like a cloud flitting over a sunny summer landscape. As I edged toward her through the crowd, her eye caught mine, and in an instant lighted up with a joyousness that was no longer assumed. I felt repaid, amply repaid by that one glance, for all the doubts I had suffered during the past fortnight; but the formalities of etiquette prevented me from doing aught except to return an answering glance, and solicit the hand of Beatrice.

"Oh! why have you been absent so long?" said the dear girl, after the dance had been concluded, and we had sauntered together, as if involuntarily, into a conservatory behind the ball room, "every one is talking of your conduct at the fort—do you know I too am a rebel—and do you then sail for the north?"

"Yes, dearest," I replied, "and I have sought you to-night to bid you adieu for months—it may be for years. God only knows, Beatrice," and I pressed her hand against my heart, "when we shall meet again. Perhaps you may not even hear from me; the war will doubtless cut off the communications; and sweet one, say will you still love me, though others may be willing to say that I have forgotten you?"

"Oh! how can you ask me? But you—will—write—won't you?" and she lifted those deep, dark, liquid eyes to mine, gazing confidingly upon me, until my soul swam in ecstacy. My best answer was a renewed pressure of that small, fair hand.

"And, Beatrice," said I, venturing upon a topic, to which I had never yet alluded, "if they seek to wed you to another will you—you still be mine only?"

"How can you ask so cruel a question?" was the answer, in a tone so low and sweet, yet half reproachful, that no ear but that of a lover could have heard it. "Oh! you know better—you know," she added, with energy, "that they have already planned a marriage between me and my cousin; but never, never can I consent to wed where my heart goes not with my hand. And now you know all," she said tearfully, "and though they may forbid me to think of you, yet I can never forget the past. No, believe me, Beatrice Derweut where once she has plighted her faith, will never afterward betray it;" and overcome by her emotions, the fair girl leaned upon my shoulder and wept long and freely.

But I will not protract the scene. Anew we exchanged our protestations of love, and after waiting until Beatrice had grown composed we returned to the ball room. Under the plea of illness I saw her soon depart, nor was I long in following. No one, however, had noticed our absence. Her haughty uncle, in his luxurious library, little suspected the scene that had that night occurred. But his conduct, I felt, had exonerated me from every obligation to him, and I determined to win his ward, if fortune favored me, in spite of his opposition. My honor was no longer concerned against me: I felt free to act as I chose.

The British fleet meanwhile, having been no more upon the coast, the communication with the north, by sea, became easy again. New York, however, was in the possession of the enemy, and a squadron was daily expected at the mouth of Delaware Bay. To neither of these ports, consequently, could I obtain a passage. Nor indeed did I wish it. There was no possibility that the Fire Fly would enter either to re-victual, and as I was anxious to join her, it was useless to waste time in a port where she could not enter. Newport held out the only chance to me for rejoining my vessel. It was but a day's travel from thence to Boston, and at one or the other of these places I felt confident the Fire Fly would appear before winter.

The very day, however, after seeing Beatrice, I obtained a passage in a brig, which had been bound to another port, but whose destination the owners had changed to Newport, almost on the eve of sailing. I instantly made arrangements for embarking in her, having already disposed of our prize, and invested the money in a manner which I knew would allow it to be distributed among the crew of the Fire Fly at the earliest opportunity. My parting with Col. Moultrie was like parting from a father. He gave me his blessing; I carried my kit on board: and before forty-eight hours I was once more at sea.

HEAR THE WRETCH. The editor of the Centreville (Md.) Sentinel, alluding to our remarks on the beauty of the ladies of our city, has the temerity to differ with us in opinion—and thus expresses himself.

Beautiful women are apt to be vain, but Baltimore beauties are the vainest of all, and this is partly owing to the flattery lavished upon them by the press. We know something about this matter, having lived there ourselves. True, there are some bright eyes and pretty faces, but as for their beaming with eloquence and intellectuality, they have about as much of it as a bowl of milk. Speak the truth, now, and you will say so too. There are some exceptions, but in the main, beautiful women have no time for intellectual improvement—it is all taken up in the decoration and display of their beautiful persons, and they are so in love with their own charms, they desire that every one else should be so too.

UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,

The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M. reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.

" Weldon	1 A.M. "	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M. "	Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, and, while it is evident that Foul Roads, Weather!! and STORMS!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed sleep, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

MONDAY MORNING, Feb 8 1841.

RECEPTION OF GENERAL HARRISON. Our city was all bustle on Saturday last. At about nine o'clock in the morning the signal guns announced that the president elect was on his way to Baltimore, and might be expected to arrive in the afternoon cars from Frederick. The several Tippecanoe clubs assembled about two o'clock, and with banners flying and music playing, they marched to the place of rendezvous. Previous to this a large body of horsemen had proceeded to the relay house on the rail road, to await the arrival of the General and escort him to town.

These preparatory movements created of course a great stir, and men, women and children made a leg (We beg pardon, we should have said a limb,) to obtain good stations to "see the sight." Office seekers were all life and activity, jostling each other in the streets, and nearly trampling down common people in their eagerness to be first in place. We looked amongst them in vain for a modest countenance. Their smirking faces expressed the glee of their hearts at the prospective division of "the spoils." They all seemed so joyous that we expected every moment to hear them sing in chorus,

"Sure such a day, so renowned, so victorious,
Such a day as this was never seen;
The courtiers so gay, and the mob so uproarious,
Nature seems to wear a universal grin."

But unhappily a slight sprinkle of rain damped their pleasure, and threatened to interrupt the order of proceedings.

About half past three o'clock the procession, which had been formed at the depot, turned into Calvert street, and in a few minutes General Harrison alighted from a barouche drawn by four horses, at the door of the City Hotel. As soon as the whole procession had arrived, the General appeared upon a stand which had been prepared at one of the windows, and was received with universal cheers. He was formally welcomed to the city by Charles F. Mayer, Esq. to whom he responded in a short address. We were much pleased that these ceremonies and addresses were not prolonged, as the unfavorable state of the weather might have affected the health of General Harrison had he been compelled to remain longer exposed to it uncovered.

In Baltimore and other streets through which the procession marched the pavements were crowded with men, and the windows with ladies, who waved their handkerchiefs in welcome of the old hero.

The collection of people in front of the hotel and in the square was immense, and the whole affair passed off creditably and handsomely. The upper windows of the hotel were beautifully decorated with ladies' sweet faces, which smiled their approbation upon the scene. The General was no doubt gratified with his reception. He yesterday attended divine service at St. Paul's church, which was filled to overflowing. He leaves town to-morrow morning for Washington city, and will be escorted a part of his way by the committee of reception and others.

☞It will be seen by our advertising columns, that Gen. Harrison will address the citizens of Baltimore this morning at 10 o'clock, from Barnum's City Hotel. From one o'clock, P. M, until three has been set apart for the General to receive the attention of the ladies, the saloon and drawing rooms on Fayette street having been appropriated for this purpose.

WASHINGTON TEMPERANCE SOCIETY. In another column will be found the act incorporating this society, together with a notice that books for subscriptions to stock to build a Temperance Hall will be opened on Wednesday next, at the Union Hall.

We understand the Society has purchased the lot upon which old Christ Church stood, together with the adjoining house and lot, and contemplate erecting thereon a spacious edifice for the meetings of the Society and other purposes. The basement to be occupied as stores, and the Hall to be on the second floor. It is also designed to attach bells to the building, to be used in cases of fire.

We sincerely rejoice at the rapid and immense accession to the temperance cause, and hope that the society may prove successful in their present undertaking. We have before suggested that the literary associations should unite in the erection of this building, that they might have a permanent place of meeting sufficiently capacious to contain their increasing numbers. We are informed that there would be no objection to such union on the part of the Washington Temperance Society, and that committees from such societies as take stock could consult as to the construction of the building with the building committee of the society.

THE CASH SYSTEM. The editors of that long established and ably conducted paper, the National Intelligencer, announce their determination to adopt the cash system. Subscribers will be taken as usual, by the year, if they pay in advance; and the carriers are authorised to furnish the paper at $1 per month, 25 cents per week, or five cents the single paper.

The editors state that a large sum has been credited upon their books, and that they cannot, in justice to themselves, longer continue the credit system.

The National Intelligencer has always maintained a high character for fairness and liberality, and for editorial talent, is unsurpassed in the country; and hence it has uniformly had an extensive circulation with gentlemen of all parties.

PHILADELPHIA BANKS. On Saturday last we announced the suspension of the Bank of the United States, and the resolution of the other Banks of Philadelphia to continue specie payments—and to-day we have to record the suspension of some of these very banks, four only of them continuing to pay specie. Thus the impolicy of premature resumption is becoming every day more manifest, and those who were so eager to force the banks into the measure, may now congratulate themselves on the ruin they have caused. The whole of the Philadelphia banks, it was thought, would suspend on Saturday, and the country banks of the state will be compelled to follow the example—so that they have all taken one step forward and two backward. This will always be the case where passion is permitted to control reason.—"The end has not yet come."

We copy the following from the Philadelphia Inquirer:

A day of excitement in Philadelphia—more suspensions by the Banks. Yesterday was a day of extraordinary excitement in Philadelphia. In our last we gave the proceedings of the U. States Bank, to the effect that that institution had, in consequence of heavy drafts from the east, been compelled to another temporary suspension of specie payments. Also, the proceedings of all the other banks of Philadelphia, to the effect that they would continue to pay specie for all their obligations. These publications produced a great sensation throughout the community, and, as must have been expected by every reasonable man, under the circumstances, hundreds of persons visited all the banks, and demanded specie in large and in small sums, and either on checks or in bank notes. Thus, at an early hour in the morning, the counters of most of our Banks were crowded, and although the excitement was evidently high, nothing indicative of violence or outrage took place; and indeed, the general deportment of the various crowds was quite creditable under the circumstances. The Bank of the United States was not particularly thronged after 12 o'clock; and throughout the whole day the Bank paid specie on its $5 notes. The other Banks, which commenced paying specie on all their obligations, gave way one by one, so that by three o'clock, the only institutions that paid specie in general terms, were the Philadelphia, Farmers' and Mechanics', Southwark, and Commercial Banks.—Even these, we are told, marked a number of checks that were presented, as "good." All, however, throughout the city and county, freely and promptly paid their $5 bills in specie; and in one or two cases amounts as large as $100,000 were paid in the aggregate before it was thought proper to violate the resolution to persevere in the resumption, which was passed in the Bank meeting on Thursday night. The Western bank paid all demands of every kind. The general expression of opinion was, that the banks acted very injudiciously in making a fruitless attempt to resume, after the U. S Bank had been forced to suspend. But, perhaps, we should give them credit for this effort, to comply with what they deem public opinion and law, and consider it as an earnest to sustain specie payments to the utmost, even when in the judgment of some of the Directors, such a course could be pursued only to the injury of the institutions. Every thing was in confusion, as relates to money matters throughout the day—most of the brokers refused to purchase notes—while all borrowing and lending seemed to be out of the question for the time.

LATER. The latest intelligence from Philadelphia, received by the cars yesterday afternoon, informs us that all the banks in that city, with the exception of two had again suspended specie payments. The excitement on Saturday was considerable, and large crowds of people collected during the day around the doors of the different banks.

PAUPERISM. Housekeepers are greatly annoyed by the numerous persons who follow begging for a livelihood. Scarcely a day passes without three or four applicants presenting themselves, of whom one half at least are as able to work as the persons from whom they solicit. To such it is no charity to give—on the contrary, it affords encouragement to continue in their idle and vicious course. Where there is evident want the hand of relief should be extended; but it would be much better if the whole system of begging were abolished. We are aware that there is a public poor-house, but there are many cases of distress where it would be improper to compel the parties to resort to the alms-house. In England the poor are confined to their several parishes, and are prevented from annoying other neighborhoods. If a similar regulation were adopted in this city, it might prove beneficial.—Each ward could produce a fund by subscription to support its own poor—or, if it be preferable to permit the paupers to solicit charity as at present, let them be required to produce a certificate of their residence signed by some authorized person of the ward. This would prevent imposition, because each applicant for such certificate would be required to shew that they were entitled to receive it.

Independent of the adult beggars, our streets are filled with children who are sent forth by their parents to "beg, borrow or steal" as opportunity may occur, and who become thus early initiated in practices which lead to the penitentiary. This is a class of paupers which particularly claims public attention, and for whose reformation every effort should be made. To send the infant offender to commingle with hardened criminals, is to condemn him to a life of guilt; for, with such associates his evil propensities will become confirmed; and he emerges from his prison intractable in disposition and resolved in his course of villany. Hence the necessity of a House of Refuge, where punishment, labor and improvement would be blended. But public attention has been so frequently and ineffectually called to this subject, that we despair of ever seeing the object accomplished. It would certainly be of infinite advantage to the young who might become its inmates, and to the public at large who are subjected to their depredations.—The reformation of a youthful criminal is worth an effort; and, as the House of Refuge has produced the desired result elsewhere, we should like to see the experiment tried in Baltimore.

MISCELLANEOUS DAMAGE. A large quantity of boards, benches, chairs, and one entire house floor, with carpet on it, lately drifted ashore on the easterly end of Long Island.

METEORIC SHOWERS. We cut from the American the following notice of an article which appears in the last number of Silliman's American Journal of Science and Arts—a work of distinguished merit.

"We notice in the miscellaneous department of the Journal some remarks by Professor Olmstead concerning the meteoric showers which were believed to be annual in the month of November. The year 1834, according to the Professor, was the last in which these showers were visible. In 1839 and in last November no such phenomena were seen. The belief is expressed that this remarkable visitation of meteors has passed by, after a recurrence of ten or eleven successive years. There are no records of it before the year 1820; but supposing that the extraordinary exhibition of 1833 was the middle of the series, when the phenomenon reached its maximum, and knowing that from that time it rapidly declined until 1835, after which it ceased altogether—the inference is drawn that it commenced the same number of years before 1833, namely, in 1824, although it did not arrest attention until 1830."

Professor Olmstead maintains, we believe, that meteoric showers originate from the explosion of gaseous comets which are supposed to revolve around the earth, and occasionally to drop into its atmosphere—but of the existence of such comets we know nothing, and we think that it will puzzle the learned professor to prove that it is possible for them to exist—or, if this be done, to show the possibility of their coming into contact with our atmosphere.

The learned professor appears to have a theory for every emergency. At first, alluding to his theory of terrestrial comets, meteoric showers were to occur in the month of November of every year; and in this opinion he was fortified by their recurrence at this period for some years in succession—but their non-appearance in 1839 and 1840 has changed his position, and "the belief is expressed that this remarkable visitation of meteors has passed by, after a recurrence of ten or eleven years." It is the "very error of the moon" to have resource to fanciful speculations to account for natural phenomena which may be explained upon rational principles. The meteoric showers are unquestionably the result of electrical action, and their invariable exhibition on that portion of the globe tending towards the sun, (morning side,) demonstrates that they are attributable to fixed and immutable causes. These causes are more fitting subjects for philosophical enquiry, than the imaginary comets of professor Olmstead.

Should the meteoric shower be again exhibited in November next, the new theory of the learned professor will be of course exploded, and he will have to resort to his imagination once more. The truth is, these beautiful phenomena are not confined to "days or seasons, but are more or less to be seen on almost every clear night of the year, between the hours of midnight and dawn. They are of the family of what is termed "the shooting star," and may be traced to the same cause.

BALTIMORE LYCEUM. At the meeting on Friday evening last, Dr. C. C. Cox delivered a lecture on electricity, in which he traced the progressive discoveries and improvements in the sciences. The lecture was accompanied by various experiments and illustrations, but the room being crowded to excess, the moisture was so great as to impair the power of the machine. The Doctor exhibited intimate knowledge of the subject, and his explanations were very satisfactory; and the audience, although nearly suffocated with heat, were so much interested and gratified with the lecture, that they listened attentively for more than an hour that the lecturer was before them.

After the lecture the postponed question, "Do protective duties increase national wealth," was further discussed, Mr. Lewis in the affirmative, Messrs. Preston and Candler in the negative. On taking the vote there was a tie, and the president determined it in the negative.

BANNERS. The ladies of the ninth ward on Saturday presented the Tippecanoe club of that ward with a beautiful banner. The presentation took place at the residence of Mr. Wm. Gist. There was quite a display of beauty on the occasion. The banner was painted by Mr. Ruckle.

The ladies of the eighth ward at the same time presented the young whigs of that ward with a splendid banner made by Ash. We have heard that none of the men were killed, though many were wounded.

DISTRESSING CIRCUMSTANCE. John Vliet, late proprietor of the tavern at the corner of Fulton and Furman streets, Brooklyn, left his house suddenly about 7 o'clock on Tuesday morning.—Not returning the whole of the day, fears were entertained that either he had destroyed himself or some serious accident had occurred. The worst apprehensions were confirmed on Thursday by the finding of the dead body in the river at the foot of Fulton-st. He had lately met with some losses, by selling out his establishment.

BALTIMORE BANKS. The news from Philadelphia on Friday evening had a tendency to cause a run upon our banks on Saturday. Large amounts of specie, we understand, were paid out until the town clock struck three—and then the tellers were allowed to breathe freely. A meeting of the officers of the banks was held on Saturday night; they adjourned to meet again this morning at 8 o'clock,

INAUGURATION MARCH. The manuscript of President Harrison's Grand Inauguration March, by Henry Deilman, of this city, was presented to the General by one of the whig committee on Saturday. The march is brilliant, and quite creditable to the composer. We presume the old gentleman would rather hear than see it.

LIEUT. O'BRIEN. Accounts from Florida give intelligence of the death of Lt. Lucius O'Brien, of the 8th Infantry, at Tampa Bay. Lieut. O'B. was a native of Baltimore, and was well known and much esteemed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6, 1841.

Last evening the debate on the Treasury Note bill continued until 2 o'clock, when the question was taken on the various pending amendments. All of them were rejected. Mr. Wise then offered an amendment, empowering the next administration to issue five millions of dollars after the 4th of March, if such should be required, notwithstanding any previously issued by the present administration. This was done by Mr. W. with a view of meeting the objection of those who contend that the wants of the Treasury will be a reason for the calling of an extra session.

After some conversational debate of rather a noisy character, his amendment was agreed to. The bill as amended was then reported to the House, after which it was read a third time and passed. The House then, at half-past eight, adjourned.

This morning, the first business in order was the bill for purchasing Raub's Patent for his Safety Valve; but as members have, it appears, no objection to being blown up, the bill was postponed until Tuesday next.

The House then spent the remainder of the day in the consideration of private bills.

The Senate is not in session to-day, requiring, I suppose, some rest before they enter the great battle on the Bankrupt bill, which they pretend is to be passed next week.

The eclipse of the moon came off here in great style. It took place after the cars left, or I would have sent you an account of it. The people who came on here from Baltimore to see it, were highly gratified.

CITY COURT, Feb. 6, 1841. Wm. O. Welch was brought up, charged by the state with assaulting and beating Joseph Faithful. Fined $1 and costs.

William Ridgaway, who had been indicted by the grand jury for obtaining money under false pretences, came into court and gave bail for his appearance at the present term.

The Grand Jury came down about ten o'clock, and announced to the court that it had adjourned until Monday, for the purpose of paying respect to the President elect, whose presence was expected in the course of a few hours. The court then adjourned.

THE BALTIMORE ANNUAL CONFERENCE of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will commence its session in this city on Wednesday morning next, the 10th inst. Its sittings will be held in the Monument street Church, North Baltimore Station. It is expected that Bishops Soule, Waugh, and Morris, with about one hundred and seventy other ministers of the gospel, will be in attendance. Bishop Morris will preside.

FROM HAVANA. The New Orleans Bulletin of the 26th contains some items of news from Havana up to the 17th ult. Mad'lle. Elssler and suite had arrived from the North, and taken lodgings at the mansion of Mrs. West.

A line of steam packet ships, to run between English and South American ports, to touch at Havana, is projected, to commence their trips on or about the first of October next. Some of the shares of the company are offered for sale in Havana, on the nominal amount, of which it is guaranteed not more than 50 per cent. will be called for.

Benj. Wright, Esq. arrived at Nuevitas in the beginning of January from New York, with men and materials to make the Rail Road from that place to Puerto Principe.—Mr. W. brought with him one of Norris' best locomotives, several freight cars, and 50 operatives. The passenger cars are being made, and it is believed the enterprise will now rapidly progress to completion, and go into use.

INTERESTING INTELLIGENCE FROM FLORIDA. By the steamer Newbern, Captain McNulty, arrived at Savannah on the 30th ult., the editors of the Georgian have received the following intelligence from their correspondent:

FLORIDA, Jan. 25, 1841.

Sixty-six Indians taken—Great hopes of the termination of the Florida War. Col. Harney's second expedition has resulted in his capturing and killing 16 warriors. Major Childs has taken 44 men, women and children. Lieut. Steptoe has also killed and captured six warriors, making a total of 66.

We are all looking for a speedy termination of the war, the news from the Gulf posts, tending, as it does, towards such a consummation of our wishes.

JANUARY 27. Capt. Barnum has returned to Fort Russell, the camp of Halleck-tus-te-nugee was discovered within seven miles of Fort Russell. He got wind of the troops and escaped. Capt. Barnum captured 3 squaws, one child and 3 ponies.

RUMOR. It was rumored in the city yesterday that the United States revenue cutter Jackson, while off the coast of Florida, had been fired into and sunk by a British armed vessel. An engagement, it is said, took place. The southern papers received at this office say nothing of the affair.

A BOY KILLED. While an immense crowd of persons were gathered around one of the Philadelphia banks on Saturday last, for the purpose of demanding specie, a boy was so badly injured by the pressure that he died in a few minutes after he was taken from the crowd.

MILITARY HONORS. The fine volunteer company from Ellicotts' Mills, under command of Capt. Swain, made a handsome appearance at the reception of General Harrison, near the depot, on Saturday. This was the only military association seen on the occasion.

A FACTORY DESTROYED. The cotton mill owned by the heirs of Seth Porter, Jr. and others, and occupied by E. C. Allen, situated in the West Village of Cummington, Mass. was entirely consumed by fire, together with all its contents, on the morning of Tuesday, the 11th inst. Loss estimated at $6300. Insured for $3600.

STATE ARMORY
AND TOWN HALL LOTTERY.

☞It is due to the citizens of Baltimore that they should be fully apprized of the combination openly at work to crush this project; and that the means and agents employed in the accomplishment of so illiberal a purpose may be nakedly exposed, a brief narrative of the facts are respectfully submitted to a discerning public. The want of a spacious Town Hall in our city suggested to some of our spirited fellow-citizens the possibility of supplying so great a desideratum by the aid of the lottery system. It was thought that, inasmuch as the universally admitted evil of that system was forced upon the people of the state, that it was but just that some benefit should be made to result to our own community from it—so that if the law to license lotteries could not be repealed, that the city of Baltimore, who's people were subjected to the system, were at least entitled to, and ought to enjoy from its wrath, the benefit of some public improvement.

The Town Hall Lottery was accordingly projected, a grant from the General Assembly obtained and authority had from the corporation to use the site of the present Hanover market place, as a suitable location of the contemplated spacious edifice. In obedience to the law, the individuals appointed to manage the lottery submitted their schemes to the State Lottery Commissioners, which were approved; and unwilling to await the tedious delay of the sale of the tickets themselves, the commissioners effected a sale of twelve schemes to D. S. Gregory & Co. large lottery contractors to the seaward, for which they received several thousands of dollars. These being all drawn, to the surprise of the Town Hall Lottery Commissioners, no further admissible proposition would be made for the further purchase of schemes, and the broad ground was openly taken by these foreign monopolists of Maryland Lotteries, that the Town Hall Commissioners should neither sell to any body else, nor draw themselves, their Lottery, authorized by the General Assembly of Maryland—and to consummate this outrage upon the rights of the Town Hall Lottery Commissioners, and in the way to crush the purpose of erecting a spacious Town Hall in the city of Baltimore, an order was issued through their agents in this city, forbidding all the Lottery Brokers, licensed by the State of Maryland, to sell the Town Hall Lottery Tickets under pain of cutting off their supply of tickets in other Lotteries—hoping by this fever, to effect the entire overthrow of the Town Hall Lottery, or coerce its Commissioners to put its schemes into their hands at their own price, and upon their own terms, or give up the project. In this aspect of affairs, nothing has been left to the Town Hall Lottery Commissioners, but to open an office, and sell their own tickets, and to appoint their own agents; since the regular Lottery dealers, whom they would gladly have employed, are, under pain of being broken up, prohibited from selling Town Hall tickets. These are the facts, and in view of them an indignant and enlightened community will not be in vain, it is confidently believed, invoked to crush so iniquitous a combination. Agents are appointed by the Commissioners in every part of the city, and the public are earnestly recommended, when they buy Lottery Tickets, to ask for Town Hall Tickets—and to buy none other.

Published by order of the Commissioners.

JAMES H. COX.

☞The next Town Hall Lottery will be drawn on THURSDAY, 11th inst. Capitals—1 of $12,000; 100 of $1,000. Tickets $5—Halves $2 50—Quarters $1.25. fe8-3t

A CARD.

To the Stockholders of the Western Bank.

☞ A report being in circulation that the presentation of a new ticket of Directors for the Western Bank has for its object the removal of the present executive officers of that institution, the committee on the part of the stockholders offering this ticket, deem it proper to give this public assurance to the voters that no such intention has ever been entertained by them, but that their aim is simply to examine the concerns of the Bank, and all other proceedings are to depend upon the manner in which they find its affairs to have been conducted. Far from any feeling of hostility towards its present officers, the gentlemen composing the new ticket will be most happy to be justified in re electing them to their places.

This occasion is taken to notice another report which is in existence and which insinuates that the movement for reform has its impulse in the wish of certain of the new directors to open to themselves a source of Bank facilities. To silence this attack the committee beg to state that they are authorized by each and every one of the new directors—those who have been in the circulation of the Bank—to give a pledge to stockholders that not one of them will ever ask for the discount of a single dollar while he remains a director of the institution, nor will the firm of which he may be a member make any such application, but that, so far as the new names are concerned, the means of the Bank shall be only used for the accommodation of its regular customers.

The committee in giving this pledge venture to add that a similar assurance with regard to the ticket to be offered by the administration side, will, they have no doubt, be acceptable to stockholders. ja23 d

CONSUMPTION.

☞ Consumption, that fell Destroyer! More Proofs of the efficacy of Doctor SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, in relieving afflicted Mankind. Dr. SWAYNE.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, and it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

Your friend, ABRAHAM SKINNER,

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough to a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. On motion of Mr. Prestman, leave was granted to report a bill for the despatch of business in Baltimore County Court.

On motion of Mr. Seidenstricker, leave was granted to report a bill to provide for cleansing out the docks of the State in Baltimore City, and for the reconstruction and repairing of the Wharves thereof.

Mr. Graves obtained leave to bring in a bill, to amend the Constitution of this State, so as to take from the majority of the Legislature the right to loan the public money or the credit of the State of Maryland to any corporation whatever. The Speaker laid before the House a report from the Commissioners of Lotteries.

The resolution proposes to borrow one million six hundred thousand dollars; the million to be appropriated towards the completion of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, and the remaining six hundred thousand to be apropriated towards the demands that will be made on the Treasury the present year. The resolutions also propose to lay a direct tax to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars, to be appropriated towards the payment of the loan, and provide for the increase of the tolls on the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, to be invested as a sinking fund to pay the principal of the proposed loan.

SENATE. Mr. Howard of Balt. reported a bill to incorporate the Patapsco Canal and Navigation Company. Mr. Ely reported a bill to amend the Constitution.

Mr. Pratt reported a bill to authorise the appointment of a Commissioner of Loans.

The Supplement to the act granting a Lottery in aid of the construction of a Town Hall in Baltimore, was passed.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

JUPITER would respectfully say in reply to "an old subscriber" that he has authorised Mercury to invite "a Venitian by birth from the Austrian dominions, (a hatter by trade,") to visit Washington and report in propria persona to J. K. Boyd, Esq., whose residence is on Pennsylvania avenue, two doors from the Madisonian office, who is authorised to examine him—and if he proves to be a true member of the residue of that chivalrous little band, I am in honor bound to use my pen and influence in securing for him a suitable reward. The time has now arrived when the claims of the few remaining gallant tars, who periled their lives in the destruction of the frigate Philadelphia, will, I am sure, receive that attention they so richly merit. I feel rejoiced to find that "an old subscriber" joins me in impressing the fact on the minds of our country men, that the deed "shines now, as it ever will shine, bright on the pages of American history." Is there an American whose heart does not beat high for the welfare of our gallant tars, when his mind recurs to this brilliant achievement? None, I am sure, will say there is. Then why are we so forgetful of the merits of the brave spirits who are now asking for simple justice at the outer door of our great republic—that is destined in the order of Providence to make the thrones of mighty kings recede from view, and lie buried with the things that were?

May the spirit of true justice arouse the attention of our countrymen to this subject is the prayer of one who believes the U. S. Senate will reward J. K. Boyd, Esq. with the post of sergeant-at arms of that honorable body, for having assisted with his naked arm in firing the frigate Philadelphia, in the harbor of Tripoli, under the guns of a heavy fortress.

ABSENCE OF MIND. A gentleman boarding for some time in Market street removed his board to Gay street; after the lapse of about a week he went to his former boarding house to dinner, ate of the fine turkey, smacked his lips over a fine slice of ham, and enjoyed in a large degree of the fine dessert which was spread before him, and was not aware of his mistake until he was about leaving the dining room, when the landlady politely asked him for the payment of arrearages.

BURNT TO DEATH. A child about four years old was burnt to death in New York on Thursday. Its father, a brute named B. C. Cosgrave, sent his wife out to work, and himself got drunk and laid down to sleep. While in this condition, the child set its clothes on fire and was literally roasted alive without alarming its father.

TWO CHILDREN BURNT. A fire broke out at No. 27½ Hudson street, New York, the day before yesterday. It was occupied by a woman of intemperate habits, who had two small children, one about five years, and the other half as old. About an hour before the fire was discovered, she had left the children alone in the room; and when it was entered on the discovery of the fire, the little sufferers were found with their clothes burned off, their bodies horribly burned, and dying from suffocation and pain.

Who ever heard of any one using "burnt glasses" to look at the moon?—Balt. Republican.

We do not know what kind of glasses the learned pundit of the Republican makes use of in matters of "moonshine;" but this we do know—we saw plenty of fools using burnt glasses on the night of the eclipse. Our paragraph read "if any of the good people of this city intend using burnt glasses," &c.; we did not tell them to use them. Try again, but clear your optics first.

FATAL ACCIDENT. An aged woman named McDevitt, at Brooklyn, came to her death a day or two ago in the following manner: She was engaged in hanging clothes upon a line in the back yard, when, it is supposed, she slipped and fell head foremost into a hogshead, which had been sunk in the ground, and dislocated her neck. The hogshead was nearly empty at the time of the accident.

MCLEOD'S CASE AGAIN. One of McLeod's bondsmen, in consequence of the demonstration of public feeling, has withdrawn his bail, and the owner of the Caroline has commenced a suit against McLeod for destroying his boat. $12,000 is now demanded, so that he is likely to remain in prison until his day of trial.

A KNIFE. A Mr. John Demarett, cutler, of Montpelier, Vt. has made a jack-knife, which he uses to cut ebony, whalebone, horn, and at the same time makes his pens, and shaves himself without grinding or honing!

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and be worthy of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1.50 each.

AGENCY. HOUSES, FARMS, VACANT LOTS, GROUND RENTS, LANDS, &c. bought and sold on commission. SLAVES, for life or a term of years, bought or sold on commission, and the highest prices obtained. Persons having slaves, which they wish to dispose of, will do well to apply at this office before selling

VALLIER'S FRENCH PILLS, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these Continuable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

CONSULT If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains the aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

VOL. III. NO. 126.] TUESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 9, 1841. [PRICE ONE CENT.

ODE.

Written for the celebration of the thirty fourth Anniversary of the New England Society of New York.

BY RUFUS DAWES.

Sons of New England sires!
Why do your aiter-fires
Flame up on high;—
Why from your festal board,
Wakes the loud anthem pour'd
Joyous, with one accord,
Wing'd for the sky?

Not for the voice that spoke Triumph—when Britain's yoke
Burst with your chains;—
Not for the heroes brave,
Bleeding by Cuarle's wave,
Not for the patriot's grave,
Wake ye your strains,—

But for the Pilgrim-band,
They who from Leyden's land
Dared the rough sea;
Braving the ocean vast,
Scorning the wintry blast,
So they might find, at last,
Room for the free.

Hark, how the thunder peals!
See, how the brave ship reels,
Whirl'd in the brine!—
Courage!—the God that wears
Storm-robes, the good man spares,
Pilgrim!—he hears your prayers,—
Joy to your line!

Nobly the May flower bows,
While the dark wave she ploughs
On to the West;
Till, from the tempest's shock,
Proudly she lands her flock,—
Where on old Plymouth-Rock,
Freedom found rest,

Join, hearts, heart and hand,
Sons of the Pilgrim band!
Swear now to be
All that your fathers sought,—
All that their virtue wrought,—
So shall your sons be taught
How to be free!

Lo! from yon starry sphere,
Spirits in light appear,
Glorious, but few;—
Pilgrims!—we see you now—
Fathers!—to you we bow—
Hear, then, your children's vow,
Still to be true.

DREADFUL MURDER. The Augusta Constitutionalist contains the following account of a most shocking murder which was perpetrated in the vicinity of Sparta, Hancock county, Georgia, within one mile and a half of that village. The murder occurred on the 28th ult.

After supper, Mr. Robert Petigrey, the overseer of Major R. Mitchell, left home, as he stated, to go to town for some tobacco, at about 8 or 9 o'clock. Next morning Mr. Petigrew was found near the road side dead, evidently to have been murdered. A jury was immediately called, and an inquest held. On the examination of the body, the skull was found to be fractured in two or three places. Suspicion soon rested upon Major Mitchell's negroes. A number of citizens were detached to arrest the negroes, and other citizens to search the negro houses, boxes, trunks, &c. The club used by the murderer was found within 40 or 50 feet of the dead body, with some of the hair of Mr. P. on it. Three of the negroes were soon placed in jail; and about the same time the watch of Mr. P. was found by the party who had been directed to search, in the box of one of the negroes who had been secured. Mr. P. had left home with the watch in his pocket. The watch was shown to the negro into whose box it had been found, and he confessed his guilt, and now awaits his trial which is to take place this day.

Many stages have been robbed, for some time past, of trunks, &c. in a very vicinity where this murder has been committed. A general search is now being made and progressing. Already many of the articles, known to have belonged to stage passengers who have been robbed, have been found; and it is now hoped that the mystery which has so long hung over the depredations committed in that neighborhood, will soon be developed, and that the villanies so long pepetrated will be exposed, and the perpetrators brought to justice.

SINGULAR AND DISTRESSING. A child of one of our citizens, Mr. Bradley, of the firm of Bradley & Sons, says a Danville paper, has been afflicted by the St. Vitus' dance, which is supposed to have been occasioned by a fright from one who had become a mendicant by this disease, and came to ask alms of Mr. B. The circumstances as we learn them are briefly these. The beggar entered the room where Mrs. B. was sitting with her children, and one of her boys was so much frightened by the singular appearance and odd movements of the distressed object who was so unexpectedly ushered into their presence, that he ran out of the room looking very pale and appearing much agitated.

Since then he has been subject to the same disease; but as he is very young and as every possible means are taken for his recovery, it is to be hoped that his parents will soon be relieved from the heart-reading spectacle that must be presented to them by the sight of their dear little boy should he continue to be thus afflicted.

WE HAVE FOUND IT OUT! We were puzzled to tell why it was that our orators of the present time were so much more long-winded in their speeches than those of former years, until we saw it stated, that there had been added to our language since the days of Johnson and Walker, some forty-five thousand words, or about double the number originally included in their dictionaries. Now as these words must be used, it is not expected that a man who gets up to speak in public can do less than occupy double the time that was customary when there were but half the words in use that there are at the present time. And so the wonder is accounted for.—Norfolk Herald.

MUTINY. The American sealing brig Uxor, Mitchell, of and from New London, via Fayal, bound to Prince Edward's Island, arrived in Table Bay, Nov. 3, put in on account of mutiny on board; a plot having been discovered 8 days previous of murdering the captain and officers, and running away with the vessel.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

In seven years Sir Walter Scott, in the decline of life, paid all but one-sixth of his enormous debt of £128,000 (equal to $619,529,) by his pen: and yet some of our states numbering a population not easily enumerated, find it very difficult, even with the aid of all their present auxiliary helps, to pay their debts without resorting to that odious measure—direct taxation.

Now, let me call the attention of each of the indebted states to the fact, that Scott paid this large sum by the novel productions of his brain, and it would appear invidious to say, that we have not enough of novelists, romancers, and tale makers, in our several legislatures, from which to select a suitable committee to originate and have published American works for the common benefit of all, without the necessity of sending to England every three or four months for novelty.

It is my private opinion publicly expressed, that Maryland could liquidate her debt with interest in two years, if her legislature would appoint a committee from its own body, to originate suitable light tales for our light artillery. What say you, gentlemen?

My compliments to the Union Literary and Debating Society, in the form of a notice of the debate of Thursday evening, 4th inst. The controversy upon the question, Whether the English Constitution partook more of the spirit of Despotism than Republicanism, was commenced by Mr. McDermot, by saying that he was laboring under a severe cold, and had taken a large dose of mercury, which he hoped would eradicate the disease, and on the next evening of debate, he would show every mother's son and daughter of us, that there are others of this association that stand as much in need of Mercury as he does.

Mr. Dow next took the floor, and said that the English constitution partook more of the spirit of republicanism than despotism—he travelled thro' Asia and Africa to prove that he was right; and finally concluded by crawling up the Mediterranean in a little boat.

Mr. Hampton then took the whole floor, and gave one of the most thrilling and heartfelt descriptions of English despotism I ever listened to in my pilgrimage here below—he booted at the idea of the House of Commons representing the wishes of the people—he then went to China, and returned to Washington by the steamer Poke-it-on-to-us, to prove that the English would soon be here to burn our fine houses, and if that was not proof sufficiently powerful to satisfy any reasonable mind that the spirit of the English constitution was despotic, then he had never seen the old Fox waiting with complacency the destruction of the Ironsides upon a Ice shore.

After the display of so much wit and pure eloquence, Mr. Harrison moved an adjournment, when we all 'absquatulated' to our several homes.

MESSRS EDITORS:—While "Jupiter" is very minute in giving a detailed account of all that transpires here, I see he has passed unnoticed the exhibition of the Metropolitan Lyceum, of this city, held at Carusi's Saloon on Wednesday evening last. This Society, you will remember, is composed entirely of minors and young men, who have a desire to improve themselves in the art of oratory, and in this particular I think they will succeed. You will, therefore, sir, pardon me, if I should notice the omission of "Jupiter." Perhaps, "Jupiter" was not there. The Society came to order at about half past 7 o'clock, when the room was crowded with ladies and gentlemen. The exhibition then commenced by Mr. Knowles' reading the constitution, after which Dialogues, Recitations, &c. occupied the balance of our attention. We then had a discourse on "Youth" by one of its members in a very happy style; then exquisite strains from the band, almost wafted our souls to other climes. Mr. Dowees then commenced his lecture on Astronomy, which did great credit to its author, and was worthy men of greater pretensions.—The Programme was well "got up," and all the characters personified were most admirably carried out. It will be recollected that there were some of these entirely original.

"A touch of the sublime" was then given us by Mr. Allen, and I don't know when I ever heard anything more worthy that appellation. This gentlemen, by the by, is one of the bulwarks of the Society, and discovers genius as vivid as did ever any man. The finale "came off" very well, notwithstanding it was done from the "spur of the moment."—It was farcical, tragical, and comical. This was performed by Messrs Allen and Knowles. I think the latter gentleman must be akin to the dramatist Knowles, or else, perchance, he is an actor, or else his talent is developed strongly that way! I might also mention Messrs Eckloff, Brannam and several others, who did great credit to themselves on this occasion. In short it all came off first rate. Yours &c. DOMESTICUS.

Washington, Feb. 5, 1841.

FROM THE OREGON. Interesting intelligence from this far country has been received. The mission under the care of the Methodist Episcopal Church was in a very prosperous condition, and since our last advices about one thousand of the natives had become converts to Christianity. It is worthy of notice that when the ship Lausanne entered Columbia River, with the reinforcement, under the charge of the Rev. Jason Lee, Mr. Daniel Lee, his nephew, was addressing a congregation of natives on the banks of that noble stream. The meeting of the Messrs. Lee, after so long a separation, was one of high interest.

The mission packet-ship Lausanne was to leave the Sandwich Islands on the 15th of October, for New York.

The corner stone of a new Roman Catholic Chapel was laid on the 6th of August, at the Sandwich Islands, His Majesty, Gov. Kekuanaoa, and the officers of the French frigate La Danaide being present.

SMALL POX. Several cases of this disease have been reported lately in N. Orleans, some of which have proved fatal.

LATEST FROM FLORIDA. We learn from a passenger in the U. S. steamer Beufort, Captain Hunter, says the Savannah Georgian of the 4th, that about two weeks since a wagon, owned by a Mr. Turner, and which was laden with hides and driven by a negro, was, on the way from Fort Tarver to Black Creek, attacked by a party of Indians about five miles from said Fort.

The driver and five horses were killed and the wagon and hides burnt.

Mr. Turner had his horse shot under him when he attempted to make his escape. He was chased and overtaken, when he fell on his knees, and while his head was raised they put a pistol to his head, fired, and shot him in the ear when he fell senseless. They then stripped him and robbed him of $150—in gold. While these men were engaged in plundering him, the party at the wagon raised a shout which induced the farmer to quit Mr. T. suddenly. Mr. Turner afterwards walked to Fort Tarver, about five miles distant. The pistol it appeared had nothing with the powder but wad, the ball having fallen out in the pursuit. The Indians while pursuing him threw down their rifles.

These Indians were tracked down towards the camp recently surprised by Col. Riley on the south side of the Ocklawaha, which is protected by Gen. Armistead with a safe guard.

It is rumored at Pilatka that Col. Harney had discovered Sam Jones' stronghold, and had returned for reinforcements.

☞ The New Orleans True American of the 29th ult. says: Serious apprehensions were entertained in that city for the fate of Captain Mead, of the ship Emily, which cleared for New York. The towboat was alongside of the ship at seven o'clock, ready to tow her to sea. When the time arrived for the departure, Captain Mead was missing, and upon examination, it was discovered that the staging had been broken up, with the exception of a single plank. The Captain's hat and the ship's latest papers and letters were discovered in the water, and it is feared, that not aware of the staging having been broken up, he carelessly attempted to go on board his ship and fell into the river and was drowned. Parties were out in all directions searching for him.

SUICIDE. On Saturday evening last the residents in the neighborhood of Brown and Third streets, Philadelphia, were alarmed by the report of a pistol, when several of them proceeded to ascertain from whence it emanated. In a few moments a man by the name of Jacob Sheets was discovered lying upon a vacant lot on the south side of Brown street, in a dying condition, and a pocket pistol lying under him. He was taken to the hotel of Mr. Roy, in Third street, where he shortly afterwards expired.

THE WOODS. We are sorry, says the Phil. Spirit of the Times, to hear that Mr. Wood had actually $51,000 invested in U. S. Bank stock, at $119 per share. His loss will be upwards of $34,000.

SKELETON IN CHAINS. Some workmen, engaged in digging away an embankment in Jackson street near the Navy Yard at Brooklyn on Thursday last, dug up a quantity of human bones. Among the rest were the remains of a skeleton with iron manacles on the wrists. It is highly probable that the mouldering bones are the remains of some of the victims of hate and oppression, which marked the conduct of the British during the revolutionary war.

DEPARTURE OF THE WOODS. We understand, says the Philadelphia Ledger, that the disturbance arising from the excitement against Mr. Wood has thrown Mrs. Wood into a nervous state, which obliges her to return to England, by the advice of her physician. At the Museum, on Saturday evening, she appeared to be distressingly agitated, and was so overcome by her feelings as to be unable for a time to sing. They sail in the George Washington for England.

UN-BUTTONED. The Superior Court now in session at Hartford, granted a divorce last week to Ursula B. Button, from Josia Button.

EXHORBITANT. The editor of the "Little Cockade"—wishes some one to send him a box of hats, just one dozen. The fellow must be hydra-headed.

Impudence passes current where modest merit is rejected.—Clipper.

Hem!—what's your circulation?—Rich. Star.

15,000 more than any other paper published in this city.

A man in Baltimore advertises to mend broken files. We shall send him several broken files of our paper to repair immediately.—Rich. Star.

Just the thing—he wants steal files.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	" Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	" Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	" Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	" Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	" Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	" Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads, Weather and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

☞ Passengers for the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road pay through to Petersburg, Va. For further information and Through Tickets, apply at the office of

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

TUESDAY MORNING, Feb. 9, 1841.

☞Our readers are referred to the advertisement in another column headed "to the stockholders of the Western Bank."

The Banks—Suspension—"As you were." The banks of Baltimore, after a resumption of specie payments for six days, have again suspended; and thus, all the pleasing anticipations of those who insisted upon resumption, and, in a measure, forced the banks into the rash act, have been blasted in one week; and the banks and community left in a worse condition than that previously occupied. That this would be the result we foretold. We raised our warning voice against premature resumption; but our opinions were decried, and our motives impeached. One of the morning prints insinuated that we were in the pay of the banks, and endeavored to excite the feelings of the people against our humble selves as well as against the banks. Nothing but resumption would satisfy its editors. When we asked the banks to pause until the experiment of resumption was fairly tried in Philadelphia, the suggestion was ridiculed and the banks denounced if they acceeded to it. Prudence was scouted, and a distrust of the result was treated as pusillanimity. We wanted the banks to pay out fractional parts of a dollar and to circulate rail road notes; but this, like every other suggestion which went to prevent the occurrence that has now taken place, was treated with contempt. In short, common sense was overwhelmed by imprudent clamor, and the banks were forced into a measure which their judgment condemned; and now the public will have to suffer for the mis-step.

The banks are now in a much worse condition than they were before the resumption; for their failure to continue specie payments, although resulting from imperative necessity, has weakened public confidence in their stability. But what does this signify to those who were more resolved on obtaining specie for a few five dollar bills than solicitons for the prosperity of the city?—Cunning mastered discretion, and the banks have to lament that they gave more weight to the former than to the latter.

We presume that the present suspension places the charters of the banks again at the discretion of the legislature; but there will be no disposition, we are confident, to exact the forfeiture. Under the circumstances it was utterly impossible for the banks of Baltimore to continue specie payments. To have made the effort would have exhibited obstinacy and folly, as their vaults would have been drained of the last dollar.

In the present condition of things it might be well for the legislature to take up the subject of banking, and to inquire whether the number of banks cannot be reduced with advantage to the public interests; and also, whether further restrictions are not necessary in the management of banks, to prevent defalcations and to insure a more just application of the means of these institutions, so that a few directors and their friends may not divide the "spoils" among themselves.

Shinplasters. We ask attention to the following communication from "An Old Retailer." It is evident that we must now have recourse to a small note currency, as the specie change will speedily disappear—and the question is, whether we shall give circulation to the issues of irresponsible individuals, or have a currency in which all can confide? We perceive that there can be no hesitation in the choice.—An issue of small notes by the corporation would, we believe, be the most acceptable; but some have objections on the score of want of power. If there be any doubt as to the authority to make the issue, it could be promptly removed by application to the legislature. We hope the subject will be brought before the Councils, and that we shall have none of the slang of party, either way, in the business. Something must be done to prevent innocent persons from being robbed by the crafty and dishonest.

Small Notes.—This is the crisis when some action ought to be taken to supply the public with small change, before they are again inundated with shinplasters. The banks having again suspended, it will be impossible to carry on business without small notes under a dollar. It is now generally admitted that the city made a grand mistake in not issuing their certificates, in which it opened the door to a flood of trash by which the public have sustained a heavy loss.—If the city should again be backward in this matter, let the B. & O. R. R. come promptly forward and supply the deficiency. Every body has confidence in their issues. Let them be of the denomination of 50, 25, 12½ and 6¼ cts., and they may confidently calculate on the lost notes paying all the expences of the emission, and at the same time earning for themselves the gratitude of the citizens. An Old Retailer.

Likeness of General Harrison. We were yesterday presented with an excellent lithographic likeness of General Harrison, published by H. R. Robinson, 52 Courtland street, New York. and Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D. C. If Mr. R. sells one copy to every applicant for office, he will do a handsome business. The likeness is so good that it cannot fail to have an extensive sale.

Maryland Cadets. This well disciplined and neat company intend giving a sociable cotillion party at the Assembly Rooms on Monday evening next. From the pains taken by the managers, we have every reason for believing that the affair will be a neat and pleasant one.

☞We have been informed that the rumor concerning the sinking of the cutter Jackson, mentioned in our paper of yesterday, has not the least foundation; that vessel being engaged off the coast of Long Island.

President elect. It having been announced in the public prints that General Harrison would deliver an address at Monument Square at ten o'clock yesterday morning, a great number of citizens were seen wending their way to that place previous to the hour appointed. At a few minutes past ten John P. Kennedy, Esq. made a short preliminary address, when General Harrison arose. He was received very cordially by the immense assemblage, and proceeded in response to the address welcoming him to the city, fatigue having prevented his reply on Saturday. He stated that he was aware that objections existed to the course he had pursued in thus addressing his fellow citizens; but he did not think it censurable. He had been called out by the manifestations of respect he had received, and could not, with propriety, decline to do in Baltimore as he had done in Pennsylvania and parts of Maryland. He expressed the gratification he felt at meeting the citizens of Baltimore—stated a variety of reasons for having a strong attachment to this city; among which were its having been the birth place or residence of some of the distinguished men who assisted to achieve the freedom of the country, the gallant defence of 1814, &c. He then went into a brief review of some of the charges which had been brought against him during the late canvass. He had been called a federalist, in the offensive sense of the term. To disprove this he recurred to the early history of his life, and his associations in those days. The sentiments which he had imbibed from infancy, confirmed by maturity, were those of the republican school; hostility to arbitrary power, and regard for the rights and interests of the people. He appealed to his whole public career, and challenged his adversaries to point to a single act of his life which would authorise the charge made against him—that if it could be found that he had deviated in a single instance, he should be content to have public confidence withdrawn from him. Passing from this subject, he spoke of the charge of his being an abolitionist, which he appeared to consider as unworthy of particular consideration. In one sense he admitted that he was an abolitionist—that he intended to emancipate the public officers—they should be no longer bound to interfere in elections, or to attempt to control public opinion. He had heard a great deal about the danger of our government degenerating into an aristocracy; but the experience of all ages had proved, that the tendency of republics was to monarchy, and this was the point to be guarded against in this country. It was the doctrine of the old federal party, that the executive department of the government was not sufficiently strong; but this complaint could not now exist, since the power of the purse and the sword had been united in the hands of the President. He thought the greatest safeguard of liberty was the vigilence of the people. It was their duty to watch, with jealous care, the movements of their rulers, and whenever they deviated to recall them to their proper path. He occasionally rapped the public officers over the knuckles, which appeared to afford great satisfaction. It was his determination to administer the government upon the principles which he had professed throughout life. He should be ungrateful did he not endeavor to promote, to the utmost of his power, the interests of the agriculturist, the mechanic and the laboring man, for he felt himself mainly indebted to them for the distinguished station he now held. They had thrown the mantle of greatness over his shoulders; withdraw that, and he was nothing more than the plain farmer of North Bend.

Our station was at a distance from the speaker, and the continual movements in the crowd prevented us from distinctly hearing the whole speech. We lost many parts which drew forth applause.

We were pleased to see the general so much recruited in strength. On Saturday he appeared feeble and exhausted—yesterday he was hearty and vigorous. His voice is clear and strong, and his gesticulation admirable. He has a ready flow of language and a self-command that enables him to speak with great ease and fluency. During his address he paid some handsome compliments to the ladies of Baltimore, which were, no doubt, particularly gratifying to the fair portion of his auditory.

During the afternoon he was visited by a number of ladies to whom he was introduced.

It is gratifying to see the President elect received with becoming honors; and we wish that these attentions could always be paid without distinction of party. As the ruler of a great and free people he is entitled to respect; and, whatever the difference of opinion previous to the election, as to the propriety of his elevation, the voice of the people having proclaimed him President, it is the duty of all respectfully to acquiesce. His future measures will be proper subjects of examination and of attack, if deemed erroneous—but objections to his political principles should not be extended to his person. We hope that, hereafter, all parties may act upon liberal principles, so that whilst each supports his party, all will unite for the common prosperity of the country.

We have said that General Harrison, in opening his address, alluded to objections to his thus publicly addressing the people. We are among those who have strong objections to political harangues from any President elect, and should think it a most undignified course to travel the country for such purpose—but we think General Harrison does not occupy this position. He is on his way to the seat of government in the discharge of his duty. His fellow-citizens in the towns and cities through which he has to pass, assemble to greet and congratulate him. This is a voluntary act on their part. Can he decline to respond to their kind congratulations? Were he to do so, it might be imputed to ignorance or want of respect. They speak to him and he replies: he cannot do less. But in his responses, whilst he reciprocates the warm feelings of his friends, he treats his opponents with great courtesy and respect—and imputes to them no sentiment or feeling inconsistent with honest conviction and pure patriotism.

General Harrison's address occupied somewhat more than half an hour.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

Washington, Feb. 8, 1841.

This morning, in the House of Representatives, a letter was received from the secretary of war, enclosing despatches from Florida, to the effect that a speedy termination of that inglorious war may now be reasonably expected, and asking $100,000. I am afraid, however, that it will prove as delusive as all former hopes of pacification in that quarter.

The House then went into committee of the whole on the navy pension bill, when Mr. Waddy Thompson moved to amend the bill, by adding a clause appropriating $100,000 to enable general Armstrong to carry out his arrangements with the Seminoles in Florida.

Mr. Thompson advocated the amendment at some length, and contended that it was folly to think of fighting the Indians or driving them off, when we could buy them off at a much cheaper rate.

The debate was continued by Messrs. Petrikin, Geddings and others.

As this was the regular day for the presentation of petitions, Mr. John Q. Adams made an earnest appeal to the House on that subject, but without effect.

In the Senate, an ineffectual attempt was made to bring up the bill for rechartering the District Banks.

The Bankruptcy bill was then considered, and a long debate arose upon the amendment proposing to recommit it to the judiciary committee with certain instructions.

The city is in a state of great excitement, owing to the anticipated visit of General Harrison to-morrow.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

The President elect and the ladies.—Doubtless the most pleasant part of the duty of Gen. Harrison, during his sojourn in this city, was his reception of the ladies yesterday between the hours of one and three. He is evidently a gallant of the olden school, and when a lady looked particularly anxious for a kiss, he was not backward in giving it, and with a good deal of ardor too. We envied him the taste of one pair of lips at least—it was like winter sipping honey from spring flowers.

Let us carry the reader for a moment into the drawing room of the City Hotel, appropriated for the purpose of introduction. The farmer of North Bend, racked almost into a nonentity by congratulations of his friends and the disinterested attentions of expectants, stood his ground like an old hero—the artillery of bright eyes was opened upon him, but he seemed proof against the battery. Posting lips and rosy cheeks did their utmost to conquer the veteran—and even the sear spinster thought that she yet had fascination enough left to meet favor in the eyes of the President.

"Shake the General's hand lightly," exclaimed the gentleman who had the arduous task of introduction. This was addressed to an old lady of large proportions, who had seized the "lion" by the paw, and seemed inclined to shake it off.

"Mrs. ——, of the revolution," was announced, and the old lady courtesied low, while the General kissed her dried and wrinkled forehead.

"This, General," said she, "is a happy moment to me. Here's my grand-daughter Jane—and here's my grandson William Henry Harrison. He always wipes his nose with a Tippecanoe handkerchief. Billy, show the General your handkerchief." The old man was, of course, bound to kiss the boy.

"Mrs. W—— and all the little W's," said the gentleman introducing.

"La! General!" said Mrs. W——, "you look moughty well considerin'. How's your good lady. This is my eldest daughter Harriet."

Here Miss Harriet stepped forward and modestly took the old man's hand.

"You are very pretty," said he, smiling.

"Yes, sir," replied the girl, courtesying low, and passing on.

"Ladies, please do not crowd on the General—one at a time. Pass on, madam, if you please, and make room for Mrs. ——," said one of the superintendents of the raree show.

Mrs. ——, a splendid creature, with a countenance full of light and a form as majestic as that of the "ox-eyed Juno." The General grew a foot taller as she approached—the hidden fire of his eye flashed forth, and the hale flush of regenerated youth illumined his face. He bowed lower than we had seen him before, and as he took her fair hand, something, no doubt, complimentary passed his lips, though we could not hear it, for there was a general buz at the time. The rosy tints of the lady's cheeks brightened—she slightly bent her head as if conscious of the power of beauty, and whispered something in the old man's ear. He paused a short moment, and then replied "certainly—by all means." That lady's husband will obtain an office if there is a spark of gallantry left in the bosom of the veteran—he cannot resist the eloquent appeal of a pair of soft blue eyes.

Towards two o'clock the crowd of women and children began to increase—pushing and jostling usurped the place of order. Every miss and maiden became anxious to touch the tip end of the General's finger, and that too, without gloves, for with them the touch would not be genuine. At length the "lion" had to "give in"—and close on three o'clock, he approached the window and addressed the formidable crowd of ladies that was gathering without. He said that fatigue compelled him to seek rest, and concluded by hoping "that all the single ladies might be married, and all the married be happy."

An incident. A very beautiful young lady on the Point, not long since, signed her name to a temperance pledge, one article of which prohibited her receiving the affectionate attention of any young gentleman who was in any way given to intemperance. It happened that the tender-hearted damsel had, at the very time she put her name to the paper, a beau with whom she was well pleased, but who, unfortunately, (according to report) took occasionally "a leetle too much."—The maiden was therefore under the painful necessity of addressing her "fondly loved one" a polite note, stating her situation, the nature of the pledge she had taken, and the utter impossibility of her ever after receiving his attention as a lover. "I love you as purely as ever," was the language of the note, "but my word has gone forth, and honor bids me respond to your kindness only in the light of a friend." The young man found himself completely subdued. The words "I love you as purely as ever," were too potent. Determined not to forfeit such devoted affection, he sought the earliest opportunity to become a temperance advocate himself, signed the pledge and is now a member of the Washington Temperance Society. Young love's dream with them has already brightened into engagement, and is, we understand, shortly to be consummated in matrimony. Powerful and beautiful is thy influence, oh woman!

Military. Strong efforts are being made to revive a becoming military spirit in this city, and it is to be hoped that their calls will be promptly responded to by the young men. The crisis requires that our citizens should be well armed and disciplined, for, under existing circumstances, the government will have to rely on the strength and prowess of our volunteer corps in case of emergency. There will be a meeting, we understand, of the officers of the old Fifth Regiment to-morrow night, when such measures will be taken as will tend to give strength and durability to their regiment. It is to be hoped that the other regiments will follow the example.

Fire. Yesterday morning between 2 and 3 o'clock, a fire broke out in a frame building situated on the corner of Howard and Centre streets, occupied by F. G. Waters, lumber merchant, as an office and stable. The building was entirely destroyed, and we regret to state that two valuable horses perished in the flames. The fire is believed to have been the work of an incendiary.

Fire. The alarm of fire last night about ten o'clock, was found to proceed from the Howard engine house. A dense smoke was seen issuing from the roof of that building; owing, however, to the fortunate and timely arrival of the engines, the fire was extinguished before any material damage was sustained. It is not known how the fire originated.

Lively. Yesterday afternoon Baltimore street was unusually lively, being crowded with ladies. There appeared to be a great number of strangers in town—at times the street was so thronged that it was with difficulty that one could pass.

The friends of Ireland is to take place at the Assembly Rooms at half past 6 o'clock this evening.

Attempted robbery. On Friday night an unsuccessful attempt was made to enter the store of Henry Shirk & Co. The thief had broken away a part of the door, when it is supposed he became alarmed and made off.

Police. A white boy, named John T. Parsons, charged with riotous conduct in the streets, was arrested Saturday and taken before John Wright, Esq. He was released on security to keep the peace.

Julius Freisles, charged with rioting at the public house of Mr. Schupp, in N. Gay street, was on Sunday arrested and taken before Justice Storm, who committed him to prison.

Two negroes, Hannibal Cooper and Elijah J. Tilghman, were on Sunday arrested for rioting and fighting in Potter street. They were both committed to prison by Justice Gorsuch.

A white man, named Richard Pearce, was on Sunday arrested, charged with being a common disturber of the peace, and committed to jail by Justice Gorsuch.

A white woman, named Sarah Horseman charged with disturbing the peace, was on Sunday committed to prison, by Justice Wright, in default of security.

John Clarke, charged with riotous and disorderly conduct, and assaulting the watchmen, was also committed, in default of security, by the same Justice.

Watch Returns. Eastern District, Feb. 7. Jacob Turner was imprisoned on Sunday evening for his drunken and disorderly conduct. John Thomas, and negroes Thomas Smith, Richard Elliott and Mary Brown, were brought in for disorderly conduct at a house in Wilk street. Feb. 8. Frederick and George Sings and Henry Fuller, were arrested on Sunday night for riotous conduct in Bond street. Wm. Whittaker was also arrested for being intoxicated. Fuller entered into recognizance for his good behaviour, and the rest were discharged.

Middle District, Feb. 7. George Jones, John Timmons, George Hill and Thomas Able were brought to the watch house for disorderly conduct in the streets and locked up till morning.

Western District, Feb. 7. Stephen Posey, colored, in a state of destitution, was locked up. Harriet Staunt, having no home, solicited lodgings, and was committed to the alms-house in the morning by Justice Wright.

A young rogue. A lad about seventeen years of age, was arrested at New Orleans on the 26th, by an officer from Mobile. It appears the youth had been engaged in a hotel in the latter city, and had, by means of false keys, opened the trunk of the proprietor, and stole therefrom six hundred and fifty dollars, with which he decamped. His name is Robert Jenkins.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE WESTERN BANK.

☞The two letters subjoined, are published for the benefit of those Stockholders of the Western Bank who are unwilling to sanction so unwarrantable a procedure as that which the letter of Mr. Phenix, as Cashier, discloses, and who would learn and profit by the views which experience suggests, as given in the very sensible letter of the country Stockholder. Both, it is hoped, will serve as true guides to the voters at the election which takes place TO-DAY.

It will be noticed that the Cashier speaks of the disposition manifested for change, which "disposition" was approved by the arrangement made by his own board, and sanctioned by the whole administration of the institution as "prejudicial to the best interests of the Bank;" thus, in his capacity as a servant of this board, repudiating its acts, and attempting to obstruct the performance of its contracts!

The letter of the Cashier, it will be observed, bears date only two days subsequently to the date of the letter of the President, lending the board to the support of the compromise ticket agreed upon, and six days prior to any intimation of the board of their intention not to abide by their resolution and agreement. Bearing, as this letter does, the signature of the Cashier, as such, it may well be asked if the collective character of the board is not involved by this act of its executive officer, and whether or not its tacit approbation of his proceeding may not justly be inferred, if the members allow his conduct to pass uncensured.

Stockholders will wrong themselves if they allow any mistaken sympathy for the President to induce them to support the Cashier, or his party; they should bear in mind that the Reform ticket aims at no change except where the interest and safety of the Bank shall imperiously demand it; and that the new ticket puts forth strong claims in the Pledge given—which pledge could well be afforded by the gentlemen who stand to it, because they already have their accounts established with other banks, and they have no need of any accommodations that the Western Bank might furnish.

This communication is written under the impression that all parties interested, who shall read it, will have seen the circular of the Reform Committee, which was addressed and sent to all the Stockholders, and which found its way into the Sun newspaper one day last week. A reference to that publication will exhibit to the reader, in a more palpable aspect, the impropriety (to use the mildest word) of the Cashier's conduct.

A STOCKHOLDER,
And a Candidate on the Reform Ticket of Directors.

Western Bank, }
Baltimore, January 21, 1841. }

James Dickey, Esq.

Dear Sir—A disposition having been manifested by some of the Stockholders to make a change in the Board of Directors, which in my opinion will be prejudicial to the best interests of the Bank, I annex a power of Attorney to vote your stock, in case it should be found necessary. If it meets your approbation, please return it by the next mail.

Very truly, yours,
T. Phenix, Cashier.

February 3d, 1841.

Dear Sir—I notice your name at the head of a ticket for directors of the Western Bank of Baltimore. I suppose the intention of stockholders in this city, is to bring about a change of directors, and probably a change of the by-laws and management of the institution. I was not aware until lately that it was customary for directors to vote away any right they had to a general knowledge of the accounts, both public and private, of a Bank, nor can I see any honest motive in either giving or asking for such a by-law. How is the board to know the condition of a Bank if they are prohibited from knowing the amount of each deposite? Any deficiency in cash can be met by deposites, which the board is to know nothing of. Certainly the executive officers can have no right to use the money for their own use, or that of their particular friends, on other conditions than others who need money. The very circumstance of directors depriving themselves of the right of examining private accounts, leads to the suspicion that they cannot have much interest in the Bank, and that advantages can be derived from another source.

I suppose similar by-laws have been passed in a country Bank that I hold an interest in, and on the death of the cashier there was a deficiency of some fifty or sixty thousand dollars, which I believe was made up in part by the security, and part from the surplus, but no account given to the stockholders how the deficiency occurred. Banks have been in the habit of permitting the cashier to pay over drafts; this is a dangerous privilege, for those who need money will manage to be considered the personal friends of the cashier in order to obtain money. I have known, at a time when Banks had refused to discount any paper, that large sums were drawn out on over-drafts, when the same person could not have got it with the best endorser. I have been informed, and I believe correctly, of one case when over-drafts amounted to more than fifty thousand dollars before known by directors, (eventually secured.)

A few years back, I requested a merchant visiting Baltimore to inquire of the character of the officers of the Western Bank and of its standing; he reported favorable, and I have obtained $12,000 of stock through the agency of the cashier, and from his attention I had formed a favorable opinion, and at his request, a few days ago, I sent him a power to vote for me at the coming election, with nearly the same observations you see in this letter—those who need money most rack their ingenuity to obtain it, and men have been known to borrow money to obtain a few shares of stock to enable them to become directors, and combine with others to obtain proxies, and when the board was elected it was found the majority did not hold $5,000 of stock. I cannot believe that Bank difficulties are over, but that they have difficulties to surmount as great as any that are past, and require better management than heretofore. You can see the difficulty stockholders at a distance have in knowing who to vote for as directors, as it frequently happens that they know no person connected with the institution. I suppose the whole amount of stock held in this section of country amounts to about $25,000. I have spoken to the holders, one of whom has an acquaintance in the city, to whom I suppose he will send his proxy, the other appears to have no acquaintance that he can confide in, and is likely to do nothing. There must have been heavy losses or bad management in the Western Bank to reduce their stock so much below par, and prevent a dividend in January. If I knew what I should do and who to vote for, be assured I would do it without favor. You in the city, who can have some knowledge of men and management, must act with firmness, as those at a distance must depend on you. I wish you had obtained the names of stockholders at a distance and warned them not to give their proxy, as it was thought advisable to make a change of directors. I fear you will not be able to make a change, although it may be for the better. Officers fix Bank have the advantage, and prepare to carry the election. If directors will persist in such by-laws as prevent them from seeing private accounts, stockholders in the city should demand a copy of such by-laws, and furnish each stockholder a copy. I will use every exertion to have such by-laws repealed as exclude directors from having access to all knowledge of the Bank.

If I understand the intention of such law, it is, that directors must not know the amount of individual deposites. This itself is sufficient to destroy the Bank, if the cashier should be so disposed.

We notice the cashier of the Schuylkill Bank had passed his receipt for a deposite of $75,000, without making an entry on the Bank books, which shows the necessity of a rigid watchfulness on the part of directors; and experience teaches us, that men who mean to take advantage, find it their policy to be unusually friendly, and honest men have nothing to conceal.

I would like to have an account of what is the true situation of this Bank, and the cause of its stock being so low, and why no dividend was made. Any thing on this subject, either in confidence or otherwise, would be considered as a favor.

With esteem, yours, &c.,

LOTTERIES.

AND TOWN HALL LOTTERY.

☞It is due to the citizens of Baltimore that they should be fully apprized of the combination openly at work to crush this project; and that the means and agents employed in the accomplishment of so illiberal a purpose may be nakedly exposed, a brief narrative of the facts are respectfully submitted to a discerning public. The want of a spacious Town Hall in our city suggested to some of our spirited fellow-citizens the feasibility of supplying so great a desideratum by the aid of the lottery system. It was thought that, inasmuch as the universally admitted evil of the lottery system was forced upon the people of the State, that it was but just that some benefit should be made to result to our own community from it—so that if the law to license lotteries could not be repealed, that the city of Baltimore, whose people were subjected to the system, were at least entitled to, and ought to enjoy for its own avails, the benefit of some public improvement.

The Town Hall Lottery was accordingly projected, a grant from the General Assembly obtained, and authority had from the corporation to use the site of the present Hanover market place, as a suitable location of the contemplated spacious edifice. In obedience to the law, the individuals appointed to manage the lottery submitted their schemes to the State Lottery Commissioners, which were approved; and unwilling to await the tedious delay of the sale of the tickets themselves, the commissioners effected a sale of twelve schemes to D. S. Gregory & Co. large lottery contractors to the eastward, for which they received several thousands of dollars. These being all drawn, to the surprise of the Town Hall Lottery Commissioners, no further admissible proposition would be made for the further purchase of schemes, and the broad ground was open'd taken by these foreign monopolists of Maryland Lotteries, that the Town Hall Commissioners should neither sell to any body else, nor draw themselves, their Lottery, authorized by the General Assembly of Maryland—and to consummate this outrage upon the rights of the Town Hall Lottery Commissioners, and in this way to crush the purpose of erecting a spacious Town Hall in the city of Baltimore, an edict was issued through their agents in this city, forbidding all the Lottery Brokers, licensed by the State of Maryland, to sell the Town Hall Lottery Tickets, under pain of cutting off their supply of tickets in other Lotteries—hoping, by this lever, to effect the entire overthrow of the Town Hall Lottery, or coerce its Commissioners to put its schemes into their hands at their own price, and upon their own terms, or give up the project. In this aspect of affairs, nothing has been left to the Town Hall Lottery Commissioners, but to open an office, and sell their own tickets, and to appoint their own agents; since the regular Lottery dealers, whom they would gladly have employed, are, under pain of being broken up, prohibited from selling Town Hall tickets. These are the facts, and in view of them, an indignant and enlightened community, will not be in vain, it is confidently believed, invoked to crush so iniquitous a combination. Agents are appointed by the Commissioners in every part of the city, and the public are earnestly recommended, when they buy Lottery Tickets, to ask for Town Hall Tickets—and to buy none other.

Published by order of the Commissioners.
JAMES H. COX.

☞The next Town Hall Lottery will be drawn on THURSDAY, 11th inst. Capitals—1 of $12,000; 100 of $1,000. Tickets $5—Halves $2.50—Quarters $1.25

A CARD.

To the Stockholders of the Western Bank.

☞A report being in circulation that the presentation of a new ticket of Directors for the Western Bank has for its object the removal of the present executive officers of that institution, the committee on the part of the stockholders offering this ticket, deem it proper to give this public assurance to the voters that no such intention has ever been entertained by them, but that their aim is simply to examine the concerns of the Bank, and all other proceedings are to depend upon the manner in which they find its affairs to have been conducted. Far from any feeling of hostility towards its present officers, the gentlemen composing the new ticket will be most happy to be justified in re-electing them to their places.

This occasion is taken to notice another report which is in existence and which insinuates that the movement for reform has its impulse in the wish of certain of the new directors to open to themselves a source of Bank facilities. To silence this attack the committee beg to state that they are authorized by each and every one of the new directors—those who have been in the direction of the Bank—to give a pledge to stockholders that not one of them will ever ask for the discount of a single dollar while he remains a director of the institution, nor will the firm of which he may be a member make any such application, but that, so far as the new names are concerned, the means of the Bank shall be only used for the accommodation of its regular customers.

The committee in giving this pledge venture to add that a similar assurance with regard to the ticket to be offered by the administration side, will, they have no doubt, be acceptable to stockholders. fe12 d

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 6, 1841

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. The House for the last two days have had under consideration the report of the Committee of Ways and Means, recommending a direct tax.

Mr. Coad yesterday submitted a series of resolutions, as a substitute for the report of the committee. The resolutions will again come up for debate to-day, and several days will probably be consumed in deliberation, before the House determines whether to follow the recommendation of the committee, or to adopt the substitute of Mr. Coad.

On motion of Mr. F. A. Lynch the House resumed the consideration of the unfinished order of yesterday, being the report and resolutions submitted by Mr. Bowie, from the committee of ways and means in relation to the finances of the State, and the substitute by Mr. Coad.

Mr. Gaither offered as a substitute for the report and resolution, and substitute of Mr. Coad, the following:

Resolved, That the report of the Chairman of the committee of Ways and Means, together with the resolutions of Mr. Coad as a substitute, be recommitted to the committee on ways and means, with instructions to bring in a bill to meet the present exigencies of the State.

The resolutions are still under discussion. The question will not be taken to-day, Mr. Cassin is at present addressing the House in reply to Mr. Bowie and Mr. Legrand.

CITY COUNCIL—First Branch, Feb. 8, 1841. The Council met agreeably to adjournment—all the members present except one.

After the previous day's proceedings had been read, Mr. Fields presented the petition of A. Park and others, relative to the repaving of Eden st. Referred to joint committee on streets. Also petition from the Deptford Fire Co., praying for a special appropriation. Referred to committee on fire companies.

Mr. De Loughrey presented a petition signed Wm. Schneibley and others, counter to the petition of Saml. J. Pentz for the erection of a slaughter house.

Mr. Hanson offered a petition signed Wm. Grass and others, praying the city authorities to issue small notes for the purposes of change. Referred to committee on ways and means.

A communication was received from the city commissioners relative to the town clock. Referred to committee on fire companies.

Mr. Gorsuch called up bill No. 7, relative to the appointment of three additional chimney sweeps, which on taking the yeas and nays was lost.

Mr. Hanson presented the report of the joint committee on harbors relative to the petition of Jos. Townsend, which was unfavorable.

A message came in from the Second Branch, requesting the committee of ways and means to confer with the president and directors of the B. and O. Rail Road, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the company would consent to issue notes of a less denomination than $1. The message was for a time laid on the table, but on motion of Mr. Bender was called up and passed.—Yeas 19, nays 4.

The petition of Isaac Morrow, market master of the Lexington Market, relative to an amount of shinplasters, was acted on and lost.

Mr. J. S. Brown presented the petition of Saml. Moore and others, in reference to the condition of sluice waters south of Monument-st. near Howard. Referred to joint committee on streets.

Mr. De Loughrey presented the report of the joint committee on health, to whom was referred the petition of Saml. J. & Wm. T. Pentz for the erection of a slaughter house near Pitt-st., which was unfavorable. The committee discharged. Also the report of do., in reference to the petition of Geo. Suter, praying for permission to built a slaughter house on Penna. Avenue, which was favorable.

The Second Branch concurred in the unfavorable of the First, relative to Isaac Morrow.

Mr. Gorsuch presented the report of the joint committee on police, relative to the petition of John Mitchell, high constable, praying for a partition to be put in the watch house. The report was favorable—a resolution likewise which was passed.

Mr. Dallam offered the report of the committee on streets, to whom was referred the petition of Jas. Armstrong, which was unfavorable.

Mr. Gorsuch presented the joint committee on police, to whom was referred a petition relative to the shipping of flaxseed. Read and laid on the table.

On motion of Mr. Blakeney the Council adjourned until to-morrow at half-past 3 o'clock.

ECLIPSE. Sweeter being a little apprehensive that a large majority of the good people of Richmond had not seen the lunar eclipse, very liberally eclipsed one half of his paper with a representation of it, with some very learned remarks as to the nature and character of the eclipse—mostly stolen from the works of the learned Flumgudget, vol. 742, page 2356—treatise on "blackballing." We would most respectfully ask the Corporal to inform us as to the comparative sizes of the earth and moon—and whether there are really castles in the latter?

A WET SHEET. Pie and all the rest of the New Orleans papers came to us yesterday as wet as bilge-water. Wonder if the editors were as soaked as their papers.

SYMPTOMS OF TROUBLE. Some body is in danger of being horse-whipped by a lady. Who is it? Whoever it may be, we advise him to do like us—have a salt cod-fish stitched into the back of his coat. You see we are "up to snuff." Richmond Star.

And his inside lined with clam-soup.

FIRE. A barn belonging to Mr. James March, at Magawagonish, U. C., was entirely consumed by fire, with the whole of its contents, of 17 head of cattle, a span of horses, 250 bushels of oats, about ten tons of hay, besides harness, farming utensils, &c.

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one, that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and be worthy of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1.50 each.

AGENCY. HOUSES, FARMS, VACANT LOTS, GROUND RENTS, LANDS, &c. bought and sold on commission. SLAVES, for life or a term of years, bought or sold on commission, and the highest prices obtained. Persons having slaves, which they wish to dispose of, will do well to apply at this office before selling.

N. B. All letters addressed to this office (post paid) thankfully received and promptly attended to.

CAUTION. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound. CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottle, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains the aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

THE SKELETON DANCE.

(BY CHIPS.)

I stood within the glittering hall,
And merry hearts were there:
It was a Christmas festival,
And no one heard the light foot-fall,
While music soar'd in air.

And oh! how beautiful the light
That flash'd from ladies' eyes;
And heaving breasts of snowy white,
With necks adorned with jewels bright,
And lips—all exacies!

On went the dance. Like airy things,
The lovely and the young,
Mov'd to the viol's trembling strings,
As if their angel forms had wings,
And every nerve was strung!

The waltz! the waltz! the luscious twirl,
That steals the soul away;
Lo! how they court the giddy whirl,
With pouting lip and flowing curl,
And eye of sparkling ray.

* * * * *

The scene then changed—a dreamy thought
Came o'er my intellect;
Methought I stood in Death's pale court,
The air with music still was fraught,
And muffled harps were waked.

Then piece by piece the flesh did fall
From every comely form;
The brightest of the glittering hall,
With snowy shroud and sable pall,
Did hide the grave-yard worm!

The eyes, which erst were sparkling bright,
Ane spoke when tongue dared not,
Had left their sockets dark as night,
As if no soul were there to light
Its former resting spot.

And lips that tempted man to sin,
That once would smile and bless;
Now, fleshless, grinn'd a g astly grin,
And, chattering, join'd the music's din,
Mocking its fearfulness.

The hum of instruments kept on,
And rattling bones kept time;
Round in the giddy waltz they spun,
The pirouette and flirt were done,
All in right merry chime.

And some did bow with deathlike grace,
And others coursed 'round;
Some drew their shrouds before their face
And seem'd to blush, while keeping pace
To the doll viol's sound.

Then came the reel—and quicker flew
The fiddler's bony arm;
The walls turn'd black, the lights burn'd blue,
And wildly leap'd the ghastly crew,
And shook each fleshless form.

A hollow moan came from each skull,
Bright blazed each socket deep;
When some one gave my nose a pull,
And said I snored too loud and full—
For I had been asleep!

THE WANDERING MINSTREL.

Who, that has perambulated the streets of London has not heard Bill Raven advertising his 'three yards of new and pop'lar songs for a hap'ny' and who that has once heard, can ever forget him—and his voice—for, as with Mr. Braham, the man and his voice must ever be associated! Thoughts of Braham naturally inspire recollections of a voice and mind soft as an Æolian harp on a summer's eve; and, in like manner, reminiscences of Bill Raven inevitably bring to mind a voice shrill and hoarse as a penny trumpet with a sore throat.—Through the street he goes, struggling to raise a shout, but unable to give vent to any sound above a wheeze, with what may be called his nightmare voice. His throat seems to be lined with a worsted stocking. There is evidently something out of order in his vocal organ, or rather his vocal hurdygurdy. His windpipe appears as if it wanted oiling. Even now we fancy we can hear him in the tones of a knife grinding machine, g nating forth his well known cry—'Ere you 'as 'em, 'ere; one hundred and fifty new and pop'lar hairs for a hap'ny. 'Ere'e

"Mary, I believed thee true"—'Hookey Walker.'

'Why did I love'—Miss Bailey.'

'Giles Scroggins courted Molly Brown'—'Hon the banks of the blue Moselle.'

'Hif I had a donkey vot vould'at go'—'Hover the ills and far avay.'

'My love is like the red rose'—D'ye call that nothing.'

'The Merry Swiss Boy'—'Vot a shocking bad hat.'

'Nancy Dawson'—'I met her at the fancy fair.'

'His there a art vot never loved'—'Miss Rose the pretty shroudmaker.'

'Barclay and Perkin's drayman'—'He was famed for deeds of arms.'

'That lovely girl'—'Judy Callaghan.'

'Do you ever think of me'—'Alice Gray.'

'The Fireman Vaterman'—Billy Taylor'—and the Dandy Dog's-meat man' 'with Sally in our Alley.'

'Poor Marian'—'Flare up,' and 'Say not woman's love is bought,' all for the charge of one hap'ny.'

But Bill Raven not only deals in the ballads of the young Bailey, but also those of the Old. Never does the law take its course on a miserable individual, but the sympathetic Bill is to be seen crying about the melancholy occurrence for weeks afterward.

'Ere you 'as it, 'ere's the true and particular account of the unfort'nate individ'al wot was hexecuted this morning at the Old Billey, for the small charge of one hap'ny.'

One day as Bill was bawling through the streets, he met a friend, when the following curious conversation took place:—

'I say, Bill,' exclaimed his friend, 'why doesn't you take to the singin line?'

'Why,' said Bill, 'why, cos I sings worser nor an old tin tea-kettle.'

'Vorser! so much the better,' replied the acquaintance. 'Oh, yurn's a helagent voice for a ballad-singing; a sartin fortin to any von blow me.'

'Jist show a light,' says Bill.

'Vell then,' returns his friend, 'I means to say, if von vith a voice like yourn was only to strike up afore a house, and especiallily then with the knockers tied up, the'y villing give six-pence to get rid on you.'

'I twigg,' exclaimed Bill; 'but I say, Jim, if my voice is a sartin fortin, vot'd the bagpipes be?'

'You're right,' replied Jim, 'vot a jolly row they would kick up to be sure. La, bless you, in a quiet village they'd give any thing to get rid on you.'

'Ah, cried Bill, 'directly I started, up 'ud come the sarvants vith twopence or three pence, and order me to move, move on for that, says I; what, do you think, that I'm hintirely hignorant of the walley of peace and quietness—I never moves on under a sixpence.'

'And you'd get it, too, precious quick,' said Jim.

'I believe you.'

I have heard it said that Bill Raven is now the well known Wandering Minstrel.

LATEST FROM FLORIDA. The southern mail of yesterday brought us news from Florida, a few days later than that published in yesterday's paper. Accounts state that the Indians are coming in fast, and signify their willingness to emigrate. About one hundred have come in. Other accounts state that many murders and depredations have recently taken place.

The St. Augustine News of the 29th ult. says Col. Harney and his command reached the camp of Sam Jones, but the warriors had all fled. The camp was a very large—it is supposed they have retreated to Wahoo Swamp. Lieut. M'Laughlin captured, on the expedition, three Indians; losing one man Sergeant Surls. The whole of the Indian prisoners are to be sent to Tampa in the steamer T. Salmond—no doubt to be again let loose, with passes from the commanding General.

On Monday the 18th inst. a party of Indians visited the corn field of Col. F. R. Sanchez, of Newnansville, about three miles from town, carrying off a quantity of plunder.

On the following day, Henry Lindsey, a citizen of Alachua was shot between Newnansville and Fort Clark, about two miles from the former place. At about 9 o'clock, same evening, the dwelling house of Capt. E. Bird, situated on the outskirts, of the town, was burnt; fortunately, however, the building was unoccupied. From thence they proceeded to the house of Gideon Hague, situated but a short distance, which they attempted to enter, but, being alarmed, fled before doing any further mischief. There were from ten to fifteen Indians.

They were pursued by the Volunteer force stationed at that place, who, together with the citizens, succeeded in trailing them into the San Felasco hammock, and came upon their fire, yet smoking, it having been left but a short time before. As usual, the Indians eluded the vigilance of their pursuers.

Another murder. Mr. Turner, proceeding from Micanopy to Fort Traver with his wagon and negro driver, was fired upon by Indians and wounded. He fell, and being unable to move, they believed him dead; cutting open his clothes, they cut his pocket, from which they took near $700 in gold. At that moment a yell was heard, and the party left him to assist in the butchery at the negro. The negro had a small knife, defending himself as long as possible, but he was overpowered and cut into small pieces. The mules were then killed. Mr. Turner, it is supposed, will recover.

WIDOWS. Who ever wrote the following, must be related, in some shape or other, to that distinguished personage, Mr. Samivel Veller, Sen.:—

Coal that has been half burnt, kindles more easily than fresh coal. So a widow falls in love and jumps into the noose of matrimony more readily than a virgin. Widows always think that they will never marry again, while their husbands lie dead in the house; but when the good man is comfortably covered up in his grave, they then get married for fear that perpetual thinking on their dear, dear husband will drive them to distraction.

MORE DISGRACEFUL RIOTS AT DAYTON! The abolitionists in Ohio are protecting the negroes with a vengeance. The Dayton Journal of the 5th gives an account of another shameful and cowardly assault made by some forty or fifty citizens of that place upon peaceable and inoffensive negroes, by which their houses were burnt!

About 2 o'clock yesterday morning, says the Journal, the houses of several blacks in the outskirts of the town, were fired, and burnt to the ground with all their contents. The houses were three in number, and were the property of the occupiers.

It is stated that those who were engaged in the riot actually refused to permit one poor fellow to return to his burning dwelling for a pair of shoes to put on! Others, who had money, were prevented from getting it. They were only allowed clothing sufficient to cover their nakedness, although the night was extremely cold.

Another ran into his house for his money, which he had left in his coat pocket, the door was fastened after him, and he was compelled to make his escape from a window to avoid being burnt to death.

The blacks were threatened with death, if they gave any alarm, and we believe but few persons knew of the outrage till after daylight.

Of the three houses burnt, two were occupied and one vacant. The incendiaries were kind enough to wake the sleeping blacks, and while they were getting up, the houses were fired. They being forbidden, as before stated, to take even clothing to cover them, from their blazing homes.

Upwards of 300 persons took the total abstinence pledge at West Troy, on Sunday week.

THREE DAYS LATER. Two packet ships arrived at New York on Sunday—the Sampson, from London, and the Emerald, from Havre.—Dates from the former to the 8th, and from the latter to the 9th ult.

They, however, bring no important news, except another reported outbreak of the Exaltados in Spain. But internal commotions, civil wars and revolutions are of such common occurrence in that ill-fated nation as not to be regarded as news, but the usual and natural habits of the people.

In France everything was quiet.

The danger of a war in Europe is admitted to have passed away. The fortifications of Paris are still slowly continued, but the understanding appears to be that a general disarming of the European powers will soon take place.

From Egypt the intelligence is confirmatory of the adjustment of difficulties. Mehemet Ali has submitted unconditionally. It appears that the Druses sought to harass Ibrahim on his return into Egypt from Syria, (with his army of 70,000 men) but he turned upon them and cut them into pieces, (killing it is said from 3000 to 5000 of them) and then resumed his march homewards. The affair is over, however, and for better or for worse, Mehemit Ali's power is but a tale.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

Mr. E. A. Lynch presented the petition of sundry citizens on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio rail road, praying some Legislation to protect their dwellings and stack yards by day and night, occasioned by the engines of said Company—referred to the Committee on Grievances and Courts of Justice.

Mr. Frazier reported a bill to divorce "John Gill of Baltimore City from his wife Elsey Gill, a mess et thore;" read and passed.
