BA-2290 HERNWOOD SCHOOL - 1860 - 2803 Hernwood Road, Granite. Former school for black pupils, converted to a home by addition of porches, stucco, and formstone. Standard Dixon school house design. Lot was originally bought by school commissioners in 1860 to build a whites-only school. The building was shown in Hopkins atlas of 1877. Sold in 1950(?) to the Archdiocese of Baltimore. (Md. Journal, July 3, 1897)

BA-2291 MARTIN'S NEST - Before 1840 - 2916 Offutt Road, Randallstown. Small, one-story cottage with a dormer level, originally log. The home of Edward Spencer from 1857 to 1877. Spencer wrote prolifically for national magazines and Baltimore papers. He also ghost-wrote much of Scharf's History of Baltimore City and County. Age of the house is unknown, but can be found in 1840 transfer book when Eli Lilly (not the only who moved to Indiana) sold to Jacob Wolf. The name Martin's Nest is that of the land grant.

BA-2292 DOUBLEDAY HOUSE - after 1869 - 21133(?) Marriottsville Road, Randallstown. Large, almost-square two-story house possibly built by Samuel Doubleday after 1869. The classical portico was salvaged from the mill-owner's mansion at Oakland Mills, after its demolition in 1954. Frame and shingle rear wing was added by the _____ family.
