BA-2521 PLITT-HEINRICH DUPLEX - Before 1877 - 5124-5126 South Rolling Road, Relay. Square frame duplex house with a cupola at the peak of its hip roof. Blue wood shingles. Just south of "New Rolling Road" (Md. 166). Possibly the J. Donald house of the 1877 Hopkins atlas. Restored in recent years by the related Plitt and Heinrich families, each branch having one of the two units.

BA-2522 GRIGGS-CHERRY HOUSE - Before 1877 - 5128 South Rolling Road, north of Forsythia Avenue. Plain, vernacular frame house with a front porch that has been filled in recent decades. Gable end to street; brown shingles. It was Thurston Griggs' house when the Sun reported that some years before (possibly the 1970s) a small frame workshop in the yard had been demolished, the former work shop of Samuel F. B. Morse, whose experimental telegraph was strung along the B. & O. tracks through Relay in 1844. Apparently the Habersham grounds in 1877 Hopkins atlas. House shown in 1915 Bromley atlas. Present owner: Ray F. Cherry and wife. See, "Relay: From Horses to Eight Lanes of Horse-power," Sun, October 23, 1981.

BA-2523 SWEET HOUSE - 1890 - 5132 South Rolling Road, Relay. Brown shingled cross-gabled house of frame with some bracketing, round-topped window in the gable peak, full-width front porch. Owners Stephen and Kathy Sweet can trace the house back to January of 1890. Recent two-car garage.

BA-2524 KESSLER HOUSE - ca. 1880 - 5131 South Rolling Road, Relay. Vernacular style frame house with artificial siding. Estimated to date from 1880s.

BA-2525 BUTLER HOUSE - 1910 - 5138 South Rolling Road. Built for the Butler family in 1910 and passed to their daughter Louise Butler who sold to the present owners, making only two families in 82 years of history. Plain cross-gabled house, with 1-over-1 windows, cream-yellow aluminum siding.

BA-2526 CROSBIE HOUSE - After 1877 - 5117 South Rolling Road, Relay. Small frame vernacular house, two stories, three bays wide, with its gable end to the street, set well back. Possibly a structure of the Poplar Grove estate shown in 1877 atlas. It was the "Cruse" house in 1915 atlas. Owner: Diana Crosbie.
