DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The house is a large, frame structure, built in several sections. The main block is a two story, three-bay structure with internal end chimneys. The central entrance has a Federal style scroll pediment supported by fluted pilasters. The cornice, which is returned into the gable ends, consists of a frieze band and architrave supported by modillion blocks.

To the south is a 1-1/2 story addition made by the present owners.

To the east is another 1-1/2 story addition with an external end chimney. This section, with shed roofed dormers, may be a re-building of an older house.

In plan, the house has a central hall with flanking parlors. The staircase rises along the north wall, with balusters resting on a stringer; the area under the staircase is open.
