3-judge court set up for Ark. hearing

LITTLE ROCK — Judges J. Smith Henley, Little Rock; John E. Miller, Fort Smith, and John B. Sanborn, St. Paul, Minn. have been designated as the three judge federal court to hear a suit challenging the constitutionality of Arkansas' four "Bennett Bills."

The NAACP, which instituted the suit, asserts that the four acts would "bar the plaintiff corporation from the state, would disbar lawyers who associate themselves with plaintiff, and would subject organizations to severe penalties."

One act would require the NAACP to furnish a list of its membership; another would authorize search of NAACP offices by the sheriff and state attorney general;

The other laws prohibit persons from contributing to lawsuits that they are not direct parties to and require attorneys to swear they have not solicited money to carry on court action.

No date has been set for a hearing.

Style and comfort both are found in new tapered shoes

It's healthy to be stylish. That's the verdict of America's podiatrists who have had ample opportunity to study the effects of the tapered toe on feminine foot health.

A recent nationwide survey of foot specialists by the American Foot Care Institute found evidence that well fitted, shoe tapered shoe cause their patients no discomfort, fatigue or Soft, supple leathers that foot ailments adapt to the shape of the foot allowing free movement of toes without stiffness or cramping, is the comfort secret built in to the new longer styles.

DR. BENJAMIN KAUTH, prominent podiatrist and director of the American Foot Care Institute, noted also that the normal bone structure of the foot is well adapted to the tapered shoes.

The longest bone — the second, running from the big toe — stretches its full length and fits nearly into the toe of elongated toe-wear.

It is this toe which blunter fashions tend to cramp and gall, — paving the way to a lifetime of nagging pain and complaint.

"As a nation we are better fed. Plenty of milk, vegetables and meat have added inches to our bone structure," Dr. Kauth pointed out. "I'm happy that women are taking better care of their longer feet. Styles that face facts are sane."

HE ADDED one note of caution, however. "The low-cut tapered toe is a fine for-dress wear. To carry a woman through the day's activities, from household chores and shopping to cleaning up after dinner, foot experts still recommend an all leather comfort shoe with sturdy but flexible leather soles and uppers."

But "the finest of leathers and the most elegant of styles can only bring foot happiness when teamed with proper, individualized fitting, Dr. Kauth parried.

"A well fitted shoe should be comfortable, even as you rise for a first glimpse in the shop mirror," he said. "Grandma's stiff high button shoes might have needed breaking in, but not today's footwear molded to the true shape of the foot."
