GREAT SOUTHERN

UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,

DAILY TO THE SOUTH.

The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	" Washington	9 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	" Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	" Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	" Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	" Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	" Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Fogs! Rough Weather!! and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT RAIL-ROAD ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon; and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

☞ Passengers for the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road pay through to Petersburg, Va. For further information and Through Tickets, apply at the office of

DAILY SOUTHERN MAIL,

Via the Chesapeake Bay and Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road,

THE BALTIMORE STEAM-PACKET CO. announce to the public that the boats of their line consisting of the ALABAMA, Captain Eaton; GEORGIA, Captain Coffey; and JEWESS, Captain Holmes, having undergone a through overhaul during the past winter, are now in complete order; therefore the daily line to the South via NORFOLK and PORTSMOUTH will be resumed on Monday the 15th of March, and run in accordance with the following schedule until changed by the Post Office Department.

Leaving Baltimore	daily at 4 o'clock,	P. M.
Arrive at Portsmouth,	at 7	"	A. M.
Leaving Portsmouth,	at 8	"	A. M.
Arrive at Weldon,	at 4	"	P. M.

Wait there until 1 o'clock, A. M. for the Petersburg train.

Leave Weldon at 1 o'clock, A. M.
Arrive at Wilmington at 1 o'clock, P. M.
Leave Wilmington immediately and arrive in Charleston next morning to breakfast.

It will be seen by the above schedule that in order to render the connexion certain, it is only necessary for the Cars of the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road to arrive at Weldon prior to 1 o'clock, A. M. whereas they uniformly arrive before dark—if therefore a detention should take place at any point between Baltimore and Weldon, not occupying more than NINE HOURS, the traveller can by no possibility lay over at any point north of Wilmington. RETURNING, one of the above boats will leave Norfolk every night at 10 o'clock, and cross over to Portsmouth where she will wait the arrival of the Cars from Weldon, and depart for Baltimore as soon as the passengers and baggage are on board, arriving here in about 14 hours after departure from Portsmouth. The passengers having enjoyed all the comforts of a good nights rest, and partaken of as good fare as could be provided in the very best Hotel in the Country.

Travellers bound to Richmond or Petersburg by leaving Baltimore on Monday, Wednesday or Friday, sleep on board the bay boat, are transferred to the James River boat next morning, and arrive at their place of destination the same day by 3 or 4 o'clock, P. M.

ON THE DEATH OF AN INFANT.

Happy infant! Oh! how happy,
Short was thy probation here;
Ere the ills of life had touched thee,
Safely thou didst enter there.

There in Heaven's blissful bowers,
Where Love, Peace and Friendship dwell;
There sweet babe to pass thy hours,
When around us tempests swell.

Weep not parent, banish sorrow,
Let not grief thus rend thy breast,
There thine infant lives forever,
In the realms of endless rest.

He who looks thro' future ages
Saw perhaps some fatal snare,
Then sent forth the swift-wing'd angel
To convey it safely there.

When thou didst watch death's cold finger
As he closed its azure eyes,
Angels on their pinions bore it
To the mansions of the skies.

There they lodged it in the bosom
Of the high celestial king,
Midst the songs and loud hosannas,
Which thro' Heaven's halls did ring.

There it strikes its little lyre,
Waking sweet celestial strains;
There it floats on snowy pinions
Thro' high heaven's starry plains.

Though its little form doth slumber
In the chambers of the tomb,
There it lives freed from its fetters,
Smiling in immortal bloom.

There when worlds have sunk in ruins,
When entombed Creation lies,
There 'twill round the throne of glory
Swell the anthem of the skies.

RETROSPECTIONS

OF A BROKEN-HEARTED BELLE: AN 'OWER TRUE TALE.'

'Man's love is of man's life a thing apart—
'Tis woman's whole existence. " " "
Man has ALL resources, we but one—
To love again, and be again undone!'

What a master of the female heart was Byron! If men give Shakspeare the credit of a perfect knowledge of the heart of man, women must and do acknowledge, that Byron, by whatever means he obtained it, did possess the key to the labyrinth of woman's inmost soul. How reluctant was I to believe, while drinking passion from the deep, dark eyes of my first declared love, that I could ever again give away my heart, and recline on another's bosom with the same absorbing fervency and confidence! Yet have I proved that the heart, though baffled and driven from the shrine where it would fain worship, will seek another, at which to melt and adore!

Let me pass over in silence my childish fancies, my boarding-school sentimentalities. I would not dignify these ideal flurries with the name of love. I shall speak of the time when I had entered on my sixteenth year, and had become in all things a WOMAN. I was out of school, and my education 'finished.' At my last seminary, all the valuable learning I had acquired had been forgotten. Byron and Scott had usurped the thrones of Goldsmith and Euclid. I resided in one of the minor cities of New England, where an indulgent father pursued an honorable occupation, which yielded him a handsome income, but which he suffered his large family yearly to dissipate. I had also a kind mother—oh, very kind! She never permitted my white hands to venture over the edge of a kneading-dish, nor my little feet to be encased in any rougher substance than kid or satin: so that she attained one point of her ambition; she made my hands and feet the admiration of all male butterflies, and the envy of all female wasps. I was 'very beautiful'—every body said so! I had bright black eyes, and dark brown, glossy ringlets; a full, rosy, tempting mouth, and a round and graceful form. My looking glass told me all this—and so did my adorers. But I was too familiar with flattery. I despised them all.

But there was one who never flattered me, never wearied me with stale compliments; and although Horace Eastman was a silly, boyish, foppish youth, yet it was a satisfaction to be in his company; for I thought he despised me, and I was determined he should love me. I knew he was mortgaged to a fair, delicate girl in a distant city; I knew too that he was rich, while my own dowry would be little or nothing. In the absence of his betrothed, my arts succeeded in part. At length he loved me; yet his high sense of honor rendered the triumph of little avail to me. O, how fervently did I pray that she might die! As I sat with him in the shady grove, reclining in his arms; as I rode with him in his chaise, leaning on his breast, I cast my eyes upward toward his, and prayed aloud that heaven might be pleased to take her angelic spirit to brighter realms; while he, bending till his lips met mine, proved by his eloquent but cowardly silence, that his wish and mine were one and the same. And I was proud that he was my slave!

He was at last obliged to depart for a neighboring city, to accompany his betrothed on a sea voyage, for the recovery of her health. 'Will she die?' Will he ——' 'The wish was father to the thought.' In a few months I received a letter—the superscription in Eastman's handwriting. How my hand trembled as I broke the seal! It was some minutes before I found sufficient firmness to open the letter. She had recovered! Her beauty had revived! He loved her again with a passion only increased by a sense of his former faithlessness.

I must be spared a recital of the effects of this letter upon my heart and my actions. A short time, however, sufficed to restore vivacity to my elastic and buoyant spirit; and again I walked the sovereign of the evening party, and the queen of the ball-room; and now willingly, though with unbending haughtiness, received again the adoration of a crowd of enraptured lovers.

At the age of eighteen I visited a relative, an officer of the United States' army. This was my first opportunity of becoming intimate with professional soldiers, though with those quack soldiers who parade once a year through the streets and over the greens, I had been sufficiently familiar to despise their vanity and doubt their courage. I had attended what they called 'military balls'; and the ostrich-feathers, star-spangled coats of all colors, and all the other superfluities, constantly reminded me, when I thought of the every-day dresses and employments of the wearers, of those animals in a menagerie, which the keepers ornament with velvet frocks and gold laced trowsers, to excite the risibles of the spectators. But here I was thrown into the society of men—men whom I knew to be noble, from their bearing, their countenances, and their conversation. Our sex is accused of partiality for soldiers; and men who know us not ascribe this partiality to the fascination of a gaudy dress. 'Turkeys and women are fond of red rags,' said that surly great man, Dr. Johnson, and thousands of surly little men have since his day perpetuated the contemptible sarcasm. But those who know and love us better, will more justly ascribe our fondness for military men to the peculiar qualities which they possess for the fascination of the sex. They are generally noble and commanding in appearance and address: well educated, and acquainted with the world and with women; they understand well that airy kind of conversation which best suits our tastes and imaginations. It is moreover one great article of their creed to idolize woman; and for this too we very naturally give them our admiration.

I was supremely happy immediately on my arrival at my relative's station; for I was worshipped by men whose lofty and gallant bearing toward me and toward each other contrasted happily with that to which I had before been accustomed. Among those who were very attentive to me here, was an officer of southern birth, a proud and stately man, with 'an eye like Mars,' and a figure, the very beau-ideal of strength, agility, and elegance. His conversation was even more fascinating than his person; and I was at first mortified that he made me feel so sensibly my inferiority in intellect, in education, and in every thing. 'Can he see any thing in me worthy of admiration?' I asked myself. I felt him to be 'too dear for my possessing,' yet I thought him interested in my conversation; and the idea arose now and then: 'Will it not be possible to win his love?' I determined to devote my energies to the trial. An attempt to imitate him, I felt would not only be fruitless but ridiculous. I determined always to meet him with humble joy; to lead the conversation to some subject which would draw forth his stores of information, and then to listen in expressive silence. I appeared to know nothing, but to be desirous of learning every thing from his lips. He found me an apt pupil; and I soon discovered that he was as anxious to teach, as I was to learn. Our walks began to increase in length and frequency, and I found that I loved, with an ardor and devotion that no warning would have been able to diminish or impair.—How could I help loving him? He was the first man of genius I had ever known; the first of my acquaintance whose superiority to myself I had ever been obliged to feel; one whose exalted beauty was so striking, that never did man or woman obtain a single glance, without seeking a second and a longer gaze. As I listened to his eloquent language, while he commented on the affection of his favorite Shakspeare for the unknown and unworthy object who so grossly deceived him, tears of unrestrainable passion stole down my cheek, and he knew my soul was his. In silence he kissed my hand, and I inferred from that silence that his heart was full; and my eager fancy pictured the unspeakable happiness of days to come. Yet again we parted, without any definite or personal conversaiton upon the universal and to me all-absorbing theme. My uneasy and excited vision soon saw, that at the picnic and the dance he seemed to be as much delighted with others as with myself, while I desired his whole attention. He laughed, and jested, and danced with every body; and hence I took it upon myself to be very jealous. I did not reflect, that he had never breathed a syllable about love to me.

An opportunity soon presented itself, to discover the truth. He invited me to take a drive with him in his chaise. A ride in a chaise, in a solitary and romantic road, is not the most inconvenient circumstance in the world, when the discovery of a tender sentiment is hoped for; and I finally made him see as delicately, though as resolutely as possible, that a mutual understanding was desirable. He saw my object; stopped his horse, took, my hand, pressed it fervently; looked meltingly into my eyes for a moment, and in accents of deep and unavailing sorrow, said, as he turned away his head, 'Mary, Mary, my heart I left in the Highlands of Virginia!'

When I saw from his manner that he did indeed regard me with tenderness, I scarcely retained my self-command. But again I met his glance, and gazed, if happily I might discover a ray of hope. He understood my inquiring look, and answered it immediately by one of stern coldness. 'Let us return,' said he; and instantly the chaise was whirled around, and I sank back, while we proceeded homeward at a lively pace, without a single word from either. He knew not what bitter tears of shame and vexation I shed when I reached my pillow that night; and from that day I appeared to him, as to all, the most thoughtless and the gayest creature in existence. The change was observed, and I was complimented on my elastic spirits and cheerful looks. How incapable of judging the motives of actions are those best acquainted with human nature! It is solemnly true, that one day when I had been canvassing the easiest method of suicide, I was publicly envied for my utter disregard of worldly trouble!

I soon left the gay and intellectual society of this station, to return again to my native city. Two years more had elapsed in frivolities, and I had quite forgotten my unrequited passion, and also my regard for the many fine young officers, who did me the honor to regret that their duty would not allow them to escort me home; when my father, growing tired of the troubles of a life of business, purchased a farm and retired to the country. My leisure hours, instead of being passed in fashionable society, were obliged to be spent in reading novels, and I was compelled to love in imagination, since there was no reality near.

Every one knows how utterly destitute are our small villages at the North, of young men of gentility. The tide of emigration sets to the West and the South. Nearly every youth of education and enterprise, leaving hundreds of pretty damsels to bewail the roving habits of the rising generation, and to sigh in almost hopeless celibacy. It is only by accident that such villages are favored with the society of any young men.

I have resided in the place for nearly six months, with very few companions save my books, for the young ladies were not fashionable. I returned the calls of a few, and for these of course I was obliged to profess great friendship; to drink their tea, and be worried to death by their insipid conversation. At length a young theological student came to town to complete his studies with a divine of considerable eminence. All the young ladies were on the very toe-nail of curiosity. We could hear nothing of him, except that his name was Arnold M'Lellan. A pretty name is to me as good a letter of recommendation as a good face. We soon after learned, moreover, that he was a graduate of Yale, and a very promising young man. For many an evening our village belles sat in their parlors, glistering in the finest of finery, in anxious expectation of a knock at the door. Centre tables were loaded with all kinds of books that could be scraped together from musty garrets and dirty shelves; the leaves of Shakspeare, Milton, and Young, were run over with electric rapidity.—For days and weeks the ladies made no evening calls, but each remained at home, it being as yet a matter of doubt who would be honored with the first visit. But notwithstanding all these preparations, the student came not. He seemed quite indifferent to all their eagerly-exposed charms; and even in church never took more than a passing glance at any one of the fair damsels, although he could not but know that he was the cynosure of all the female eyes in the house, which were criticizing his person to the minutest particular. It was voted after church that he was very plain-featured, and in fact had no expression of great intelligence, unless a certain twinkle at the corner of his mouth might be so construed.

It was one day rumored that the student had requested Miss Diggins (a maiden lady, the walking newspaper of the village, who had some how or other scraped a street acquaintance with him,) to introduce him to the Misses Higgins, and that the said Miss Diggins had concluded to comply with his request that very evening. Can words describe the joy of the Misses Higgins!—And though the Misses Brown, Mason and Dobbs were secretly bursting with rage, they determined to stifle it all, and make one universal accidental call on the Misses Higgins that very evening. For myself, I was too proud to stoop to so low an artifice. I had in fact by this time concluded that if the student could discern nothing attractive in me, he must be a simpleton indeed, from whose acquaintance I could derive little advantage, I felt convinced also that a young man of two-and-twenty, who could take delight in nothing but cobwebbed and sheep-skin tomes, even though he was intending to become a minister, must be utterly incapable of love, or even respect for the sex.

Well, evening came, and the parlors of the Higgins' were crowded; yet 'he' came not; and though the ladies extended their call to the late hour of nine, at which time their staid old parents were all safely in bed, they were fain at last to go away disappointed and sick at heart. The next day it was rumored that Miss Diggins with the student had approached the house, entered the front gate, and even latched it; but that observing through the window the long line of physiognomies within, had at once beat a retreat.—On hearing this, I was immediately convinced that he was one of those unfortunate and always but half-bred beings, a bashful man; and imagined myself the person of all the world best calculated to relieve him of his load of diffidence, and place him at ease, in my company at least. I therefore wrote a note, with my compliments, informing him that I should be at home on Wednesday evening. By my messenger I received an answer of acceptance, written in terms of perfect etiquette. 'Why, he certainly is not a boor,' thought I, on reading his answer.

I was quite surprised at the easy air with which he entered the parlor, and saluted me; then offered his arm, with a request to be introduced to the ladies; and having made a sparkling remark to each, drew me toward the sofa, and seated himself between me and Miss Julia Higgins, a young lady considered the most beautiful in the town. 'Surely, a singular specimen of bashfulness!' thought I; and I immediately rallied him on his generalship in effecting a retreat the other evening.

[To be concluded in our next.]

MOUSE STORY. A Cincinnati paper tells the following: "A friend informs us that a mouse, which had several times been caught in the act of nibbling the nice things in his wife's pantry, was the other day traced to its nest, which was found to contain seven or eight cunning little 'responsibilities.' The parent rogue was arrested, and executed for larceny. On one side of the nest, a piece of an old bible was found, on which the following words were distinctly visible: 'Thou shalt not steal.' What a hypocrite!"

DROWNED. The body of a man named Stewart was found in the Susquehanna river, a short distance from Sunbury, a few days since. He had accidentally fallen into the river at Nanticoke.

DAVIES' FAMILY PILLS.

[From a very Respectable Farmer.]

STAFFORD COUNTY, Va. SEPT. 7th, 1840.

Dear Sir:—I write to let you know that the Lord has done great things for me, whereof I am glad. When I saw you in Fredericksburg, I think I said that I had been afflicted with a very acid (sour) stomach, and subject to a violent pain in my head for more than twenty years, for which I took rhubarb and soda three or four times every day for these many years, with little or no relief, and my legs and ankles were so much swelled that I was unable, at times, to attend to my business. But since you made me a present of a box of your Family Pills I have taken 1 or 2 of them at night in going to bed, and now my acid stomach is relieved, the swelling in my legs has nearly disappeared, and I do not think that I have been hindered one day with the pain in my head since I began to take your valuable medicine. I think the Lord directed you to Fredericksburg, to administer to my relief. (Blessed be his holy name, I am greatly relieved.) There is living in my neighborhood a poor old woman who had been sick for a long time and could not get relief; at length I purchased a box of your pills and gave them to her, after awhile I saw her out and about her business, and she said that the one box had cured her. I have spread the fame of your valuable medicine amongst my acquaintances, and many have purchased. Now, as it respects myself, my friend tell me when I go to town, that they have not seen me look so well for many years, and I say to them, 'I will tell you the secret why; a short time ago I met with a Dr. Davies in town, and he gave me a box of pills, and they have made me look as you now see me.' And now, my friend, I hope that the Lord will continue to be with you, and make you useful to your fellow-creatures, as he has hitherto done. I remain with respect, CHARLES BRUCE.

CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold; having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption, I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. Please publish this certificate, with my name in full, that others may know where to find the greatest blessing on earth.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 12, 1841.

STEAMSHIP PRESIDENT. We copy the following articles in relation to the steamship President, the first from the Patriot, and the second from the New York Herald, but confess that our hopes of the safety of that vessel are not strengthened by either statement. The first account is not sufficiently particular as to time and place to inspire confidence. The relation of Mr. Howell resides at Southampton, England, and as he saw the letter to Mrs. Power on the day it was received, she must also have been there. He must have written to Mr. Howell on the same day, the 19th, and his letter is said to have reached Liverpool on the next day in time for the steamer Britannia, which sailed at one o'clock, P. M.—The distance between Southampton and Liverpool is too great for this to have been accomplished, except by rail road conveyance. Besides, the vessel which brought the news of the safe arrival of the President at Madeira, and from which Mrs. Power's express received the information, would hardly have made it a confidential matter. The intelligence would have been transmitted from town to town, and others besides Mr. Howell's relative would have had the opportunity to convey the gratifying information to this country.—The letter does not even inform us at what time or place the vessel arrived from Madeira.

The second account has more plausibility. It is very likely (if there was no explosion) that the President was made a wreck by the ice and storms, and she may have been seen floating on the ocean in that condition. Nay it is possible that she has reached the island of Madeira. But the same storms which dismantled her, no doubt swept over other vessels, and left them in the condition described; and as the captain and mate, by whom this account is brought, differ in their belief, as to the vessel seen being the President, we have slight ground upon which to build hope. We pray that she may have made some point in safety, though we have little expectation of such an event.

Steamship President. We have information which leads us to hope that the steamship President is safe, having gone into Madeira. A letter has been received by Mr. HOWELL, of Cumberland, Md., whose father was on board the President, from a relation of his who resides at Southampton, England, stating the fact of the arrival of the steamship at Madeira, and detailing how the news reached him.

Mrs. Power, the wife of Mr. Tyrone Power, the actor, who was a passenger, had agents stationed at points where information of the steamship would likely be received, and from one of those agents she received, by express, a letter, on the 19th ult., in which it was stated that a vessel had just arrived there from Madeira, which reported that as she was leaving the latter port the President was going in, and spoke her.

This letter was received by Mrs. Power on the 19th ult. and being read by the relation of Mr. Howell, who was present at the moment it was received, he immediately sat down and wrote the letter, referred to above. He despatched it by the post, and it reached the steamship Britannia in time to be brought on by that vessel, which left England on the 20th ult.

These facts seem to justify a belief that the steamship is safe.—Patriot.

Steamship President—A ray of hope. From intelligence which we received yesterday, we are led to believe that the steamship president is safe at one of the Western Islands—or perhaps in England.

On the 27th of last month, a British bark called the Recovery, Capt. Bowman, arrived at this port, from Bristol, England, with a cargo of coal, to Richard Irvin, agent of the Great Western. She was sixty-eight days in coming, and took the Southern passage. Bawman reports that on the 28th of March, when off Corvo, one of the Western Islands, or in lat. about 42, long. about 2, he saw at a distance, a very large ship swept clear, masts, bowsprit and all gone, supposed her to be a man of war, but now thinks it was the steamship President. He saw on the day previous, several provision casks floating about, also wine baskets, broken spars, &c. He says that he saw only two stumps of the masts, but nothing more.

Per contra to this, the mate of the Recovery reports that he went aloft, and could just see in the horizon the hull of a vessel, but did not think her very large, nor suppose her to be a man of war. He does not think it was the hull of the President.—New York Herald.

ILLIBERALITY. We have been surprised at several paragraphs which have recently appeared in the Republican. The editor of that paper has a right to enjoy his partizan predilections, and we are pleased to see him maintain them with zeal—but we submit it to him, whether it is right to sport with the personal calamities of an opponent, and to attempt to ridicule a man for the severest misfortune which can befal him?—We confess that our feelings were shocked on reading the paragraphs to which we have allusion; and we think that they could have been well omitted. "He jests at scars who never felt a wound;" and he who is blessed with the possession of all his faculties, may mock at the deprivation in others, but it is illiberal and cruel. It is inconsistent with the precept which teaches us "to feel another's woe;" and it should always be recollected, that the misfortune at which we laugh to-day, may be visited on us to-morrow.—We beg the editor to confine himself to the political character of his opponents, and to leave their personal afflictions to themselves and their Creator.

ON DIT. There is a report in circulation in Philadelphia that the U. S. Bank is in treaty with a large monied institution in that city, for the sale of the Banking House and real estate, belonging to the concern.

MRS. GOVE'S LECTURE. We are informed that the audience (particularly the male part,) was very much amused by the lecture delivered by this lady on Monday evening last. She is said to have handled female fashions without mercy, particularly that destructive habit of tight-lacing; and as she said that she spoke from experience of the ill-effects of that fashion, her denunciation of it should have more effect. Had we been present we should have applauded her to the skies, for her efforts to release her sex from the tortures of the corsets is worthy of all commendation. But so long as fashion requires that the waist shall be screwed within the smallest possible compass, we are hopeless of any change. If the numerous instances of ruined health and of untimely death which have resulted from this abominable practice, have failed to effect its discontinuance, lectures on the subject will pass "as the idle wind, which they regard not." In some countries ladies cut a hole in the lower lip in which they insert a piece of wood, so as to force the lip to hang down in the most enticing manner, to give a fair view of the beautiful stained teeth. This is the fashion, and she whose lip hangs the lowest leads the ton. Our ladies would be shocked at the introduction here of so barbarous a fashion, and yet it might be preferable to that of tight-lacing, for it only disfigures without destroying life. And then there is another fashion, more harmless it is true, but little less ridiculous than that of the cut-lip just mentioned—we allude to the disfigurement of the shape by those odious bustles, or bags of bran, straw or feathers, or whatever they may be. It was no doubt the invention of some lady who desired to hide a defect; and now the most perfect shape is disfigured by a hump. We wish that ladies would reflect that "God never made his works for man to mend," and they would, perhaps, be content with the "form divine" which has been given them, and throw aside the bolsters with which they are encumbered, and slacken the laces of their corsets.

We wish success to Mrs. Gove, and hope that she may work a reformation in the fashions; for we almost hold our breath with anxiety when in the presence of a tightly-laced lady.

"CONCERTS AND CRITICS." We are not in the habit of noticing annonymous opponents either in questions of public importance or matters of taste, but there is something so supremely ludicrous in the general features of an article that appeared in the Patriot of last evening, signed by one "Sol. Sharp," (which every musician knows is the same as a flat,) that we cannot resist the desire of noticing the offspring of three weeks labor. If seems we have been cruizing in troubled waters, we have raised "a storm in a tea-pot" because we, in our notice of the performances of the "Harmonic Society," were candid enough to express our aversion to that species of singing or chaunting styled "recitativo," which the refined critic calls "musical declamation." The musical fraternity of our city are certainly much indebted to the learned writer in the Patriot for his tremendous essay to place them in the right path, and we regret extremely that our rough and unpolished nature should have entangled us in a dilemma which, turn which way we may, we see no chance of extricating ourselves. To be goaded thus sorely!—to be scourged by an invisible lash!—to be denounced, and our musical judgment and taste called in question by—the Lord knows who! Really, gentle reader, we are pricked all over by demmisemmiquavers, and feel as rabid as a "fretful porcupine."

We have over and over expressed our peculiar fondness for what we have termed the music of nature—that which, while it appeals to the soul, finds easy access to the understanding—such, we are bold to say, we do not consider the Italian school, or at least such part of it as we denounced as "wild and ranting." It may accord with the mock refinement which has existed in our country for years past, but it never can become popular, and it will be expelled as soon as a proper character is given to our own music. We are too young a people yet to require the polish of 'foreign airs,' and we would be glad to have our music assume the beauty and simplicity of our government, for, as an ancient writer says, "If you would have me know the character of the people, let me hear their melodies."

OUTRAGEOUS ASSAULT. Yesterday evening between the hours of three and four o'clock a mob of rowdies went to the cotton factory of Mr. Thomas H. Fulton, at the Northern extremity of Howard street, and after using very abusive language, commenced a violent assault on Mr. Fulton, who retreated into the yard and was followed by them, they threatening his life. A messenger was immediately despatched to the police office, and Mr. Mitchell, high constable, sent officers Allen, Schuck, Stewart and Kelley out, who arrived in time to save Mr. F. from further injury, and succeeded in arresting two of the ringleaders, Wm. Crew and Wm. alias Fox Bosley, who were brought in and after a hearing, were committed for want of security, by Squire Barnard, to answer the charge at the City Court on Saturday next. Some of this gang we understand, are just out of the Penitentiary. They are known to the officers, and it is to be hoped may be arrested and brought to justice.

NATIONAL THEATRE, North street. Last night drew together a crowded audience to witness the second representation of the "Burning of the Caroline." The managers have made a decided hit, and we understand will present the piece again to-night, notwithstanding the threatening anonymous letter which was received by them yesterday, of which the following is an extract:

"Your piece of the Burning of the Caroline is odious in the extreme to all Old Countrymen who have beheld it. Abandon its representation as you value your own safety and the prosperity of your concern."

CONGRESSIONAL ELECTION. It may not be amiss to apprize our readers that the election for members of congress in this state, will take place on Monday next, the 17th. So far there has been little or no stir among the politicians, and the time which will intervene between this and the day of election is so short, as to make it improbable that there will be much excitement. Nor is it necessary. A calm is always preferable to a storm; and we therefore hope that the political elements will be permitted to remain in tranquility. On the day of election we hope to see the same spirit of forbearance and friendship exhibited, that has characterized the more recent elections in our city—that Baltimore may continue to furnish a bright example to her sister cities. We had rather have a dozen jokes cracked than one head—and, as the election affords not the slightest ground for quarrelling, we hope that the day will pass over in good humor. It was Aristides, we believe, who, when rejected by the people, expressed his gratification that others were deemed more worthy than himself to serve the public.—We should rejoice to find this noble and patriotic feeling prevail in our competitions for public favor. But, if we cannot attain the disinterestedness of the honest Athenian, we can at least go into our controversies without feelings of exasperation and hostility. We like to see men zealous in the cause they espouse, because zeal is an evidence of sincerity—but it is not necessary that, in praying that God will bless me, I should ask that he will damn my neighbor. Charity should exist in political as in other concerns.

EXTRA SESSION. The National Intelligencer of yesterday, concludes a long editorial article on "the approaching session of Congress," by suggesting the following measures as likely to engage its attention:

1. The distribution of the proceeds of the sales of Public Lands among the several States.
2. A revision and augmentation of the duties on imports, for the purpose of securing from that source a revenue adequate to the wants of the Government.
3. The repeal of the Sub-Treasury law.
4. The establishment of a fiscal agent, central or other, to aid the Government in collecting and disbursing the revenue and equalizing the currency.
5. A temporary loan, if necessary, to supply the immediate necessities of the Treasury.

"These measures," say the editors, "would at once disperse the clouds that have so long overhung and yet obscure the prospect before us.—These measures, taken together, would, we feel entirely confident, suffice not only to restore to the country its wonted vigor, but carry it forward with a firmer step than it has ever taken."

With the first and second propositions we go heart and hand. We look to their adoption as necessary to insure the prosperity of the country; and we shall support them regardless whether they be approved or opposed by this or that party, for we would have them disconnected entirely from party controversy. They are measures of such general interest, that they would be universally assented to, if separated from considerations of party.

We presume that the fourth proposition contemplates the establishment of a national bank. This is a measure of doubtful expediency, and should not be hastily adopted. We doubt whether there will be sufficient time at the extra session to mature the plan of a national bank with such guards and restrictions as will render a safe, useful and harmless "fiscal agent."

For the Baltimore Clipper.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Next Friday, the 14th day of May, is set apart by the Chief Executive as a day to be devoted by the people of this country to fasting and prayer; and wherever the recommendation has been received it has met with an earnest response. It is therefore hoped that the people of Baltimore will devote themselves exclusively to the performance of those duties laid down in the recommendation. Not only do we owe it to our country, but we owe it to a mightier power. Then let ALL go to some place of worship on that day and offer up their humble supplications and prayers to him who holds the destinies of nations at his command, that he will forgive our many transgressions, and once more smile upon our chastened country. A.

[We entirely concur in the suggestion of our fair correspondent. We know that there are individuals who think that prayer is unnecessary—but we have always entertained a different opinion, and consequently, have been the advocates of the practice which prevails in some States, of having annually a day set apart for general thanksgiving and prayer. The observance of Friday next is recommended by the President of the United States under peculiar circumstances, and we hope that the day may be devoted in strict accordance with his recommendation.]

BEAUTIES OF LITIGATION. A case was tried last week, in the New York Circuit Court, in which an individual sought to recover heavy damages of the Harlem Railroad Company, for the loss of his son, who was killed on the track of the company, in the fall of 1839, through the alleged carelessness or negligence of their agents, but in fact the unfortunate lad's own stupidity. Before the case was decided the company offered to compromise the matter by paying $1500 and costs to the father. The latter was too fond of litigation however—he refused the offer, pressed the suit, and got six cents damages and costs.

TIDE WATER CANAL. Our marine list of the 10th, says the Pennsylvania Inquirer, announced the arrival of nine vessels laden with flour, wheat, lumber and coal, all brought through the Tide Water Canal. This single fact cannot but show the importance of this trade.

MR. BIDDLE. The correspondent of the Herald intimates that preparations are making in Philadelphia, for a criminal prosecution against Mr. Biddle, on the ground of a conspiracy to defraud.

BENJAMIN STEVENS. This gentleman, as is known, has been implicated by the New York and Philadelphia papers as having been connected with the late extensive Bank forgeries, has commenced some half a dozen suits for libel and scandal against the publishers and police of the two cities. The Tattler proffers the following gratuitous advice to Mr. Stevens, which we think sound, and applicable not only to those within the limits of the Empire State, but to the inhabitants of other regions.

"Never go to law in New York without first counting the cost. We do not ask you to suffer aggression without retaliating; but you should also consider that law properly administered, is justice and common sense. Do not think because a petty lawyer tells you that certain painted words are actionable, you can therefore make a speculation out of the printer. His motives and his authority for what he publishes, are always taken into consideration by the jury. During the last twelve years, the writer of this can count over twenty libel suits, where he has been either the defendant or a party interested in the defence. In only one case have we been cast in damages—and in barely two cases have we been obliged to pay costs. Nineteen times out of twenty the unfortunate plaintiff in a libel suit, flushed alternately with the hope of gain and revenge, is deluded into litigation by some individual of the host of small lawyers, who infest our city, and is obliged to bear the expense and mortification of a verdict of six cents damages in addition to the original wrong."

MAGISTRATE'S DECISION. The case reported yesterday as being tried before Justice Miltenberger, in which a certain Mary Smith against Messrs. Applegarth & Faulker were the parties, the plaintiff was non-suited on the ground that the note given was merely a single promissory bill or sealed note, and could not be transferred by simple endorsement. We give the decision for the benefit of the commercial community generally.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY. A Jamaica paper says that an ingenious physician and naturalist in this island, has discovered the practicability of using mosquitoes as a substitute for the leech, fifty of the large speckled kind being generally found equivalent to the leech; of the smallest breed, from sixty-five to seventy being required. The greater irritation produced by the new application has also been found advantageous.

ARREST OF THE EX-HON. CHARLES F. MITCHELL. The Montreal Herald of the 6th instant, states that Mitchell, the American forger and member of Congress, has at last been captured by Captain Comeau, of the Montreal police. Mitchell was taken at Longue Pointe, a few miles from that city, and was foolish enough to attempt to throw above twenty thousand dollars into the St. Lawrence—a circumstance which could not have benefitted him.

COUNTY COURT. The Lottery case occupied the whole day yesterday. R. Johnson, Esq. on the part of the appellee, resumed and closed his argument, when, about three o'clock, the Court adjourned. The case will be resumed today. Wm. Schley, Esq. will, it is expected, proceed with the argument on the other side.

A MAIL ROBBER CAUGHT. Harrington, who was connected with Holton in robbing the mail on board the packet boat last fall, was arrested by Fielding, near Presque Isle, U.C. and brought to Rochester on Thursday. He was committed for trial.

SUICIDE. A few evenings since a young lady named Laura Newbury, daughter of Mr. Dyer Newbury, of East Windsor, committed suicide by throwing herself into the Connecticut River. The family was absent at the time, and she took advantage of the circumstances to effect her purpose.

MORE OCEAN STEAMERS. It is said that Cunard's line of Atlantic steamers is to be increased, so that one will leave England every week—that half the line will run to New York, and that they will connect with the steamers now building, to run to the West Indies.

A FRENCH TRAGEDY. A law student in Paris, aged 20, finding his proposals of marriage to a young and beautiful Spaniard of sixteen, rejected by her parents, shot the young lady through the heart, and then blew out his own brains.

The Newark Advertiser says that fifteen years ago a farm in western New York, of 400 acres, exausted by bad husbandry, was bought by a Scotch farmer for $4,000. This farm has been so improved by good husbandry that the owner was last year offered for it $40,000.

The New Hampshire Bank, which has been in existence nearly fifty years, has advertised that the charter will expire on the third day of January next; and that any bill which is not presented on or before that day, will not be paid afterwards.

A CHANCE FOR SPECULATION. A Hoosier Candidate for Congress says he is one of twenty-nine sons and two daughters by the same father and mother, all now living; and that if any one can beat him on that score, he will withdraw from the course. His name, as might be expected, is Smith.

CURTIS' CHEMICAL INK. Our pen is now staining a small slip of editorial paper with the above superior article, a bottle of which has been handed us by N. Hickman, Esq. who has it for sale. We like it much, and would recommend it to the public.

COMFORTABLE PROSPECT. In allusion to the abundance of ice-bergs, which are voyaging off the coast: and which are supposed to occasion the cold weather, the Richmond Whig says, that in 1836, when similar masses invaded our latitudes, there was frost in every month of the year but one!

DR. DYOTT. It is stated in the Pennsylvania Inquirer that a pardon from Gov. Porter was received on Monday, in the case of Dr. Dyott.

TWO CHARMING PERIODICALS. 1st No. of a New Volume of the Ladies' Companion. Opinions of the Press, viz: New World.

The Knickerbocker for this month is out punctually on the first, and it is full to overflowing with good things. That capital story, the Country Doctor—far superior to the majority of the continuations in the English Magazines—goes on more amusingly than before. The number is embellished with a curious and appropriate engraving of "a Dutch Cottage in Beaver street, 1679."

The May number of the Ladies' Companion is embellished with a steel engraving that would do no discredit to Finden's Galleries. It is exceedingly beautiful, and is entitled "The Young Chief's First Ride." Such embellishments alone entitle this various and excellently edited magazine to the bountiful patronage with which it is favored. We notice certain typographical improvements in this number, which are indications of the good taste of the proprietor.

The literary merit of the Ladies' Companion seems to increase rather than diminish—and, with the editorial labors which are now bestowed upon it, it cannot fail to be pronounced highly creditable to the literature of the country.

TERMS—Knickerbocker, $5 per year, or $1.25 quarterly. Ladies' Companion, $3 per year, or 25 cts. each number. Single numbers for sale at

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS
AND VEGETABLE BITTERS.

THE perfectly safe, unerring and successful treatment of almost every species of disease by the use of MOFFAT'S LIFE MEDICINES, is no longer a matter of doubt, as a reference to the experience of many thousand patients will satisfactorily prove. During the present month alone, nearly one hundred cases have come to the knowledge of Mr. Moffat, where the patient has, to all appearance, effected a permanent cure by the exclusive and judicious use of the Life Medicines—some eight or ten of these had been considered beyond all hope by their medical attendants.—Such happy results are a source of great pleasure to Mr. M. and inspire him with new confidence to recommend the use of his medicines to his fellow citizens.

The Life Medicines are a purely VEGETABLE preparation. They are mild and pleasant in their operation, and at the same time thorough—acting rapidly upon the secretions of the system—carrying off all acrimonious humors, and assimilating with and purifying the blood. For this reason, in aggravated cases of dyspepsia, the Life Medicines will give relief in a shorter space of time than any other prescription; in Fever-and-ague, Inflammation, Fevers of every description, Sick headache, heartburn, dizziness in the head, pains in the chest, flatulency, impaired appetite, in every disease arising from an impurity of the blood, or a disordered state of the stomach, the use of these medicines has always proved to be beyond doubt greatly superior to any other mode of treatment.

All that Mr. Moffat asks of his patients is to be particular in taking them strictly according to the directions. It is not by a newspaper notice, or by any thing that he himself may say in their favor, that he hopes to gain credit, it is alone by the results of a fair trial. Is the reader an invalid, and does he wish to know whether the life medicines will suit his own case? If so let him call or send to Mr. Moffat's agent in this place, and procure a copy of the Medical Manual, designed as a domestic guide to health, published gratuitously. He will here find enumerated very many extraordinary cases of cure; and perhaps some exactly similar to his own. Moffat's medical office in New York, 175 Broadway, and for sale by the Agents. JAS. BOOZ,

CURIOSITIES. The Boston Transcript publishes a list of curiosities, any one of which, we think, would afford capital enough to "set up" a museum upon. The following is the inventory:

It is a curiosity to find a stump orator who will not praise himself, and will not abuse his opponent.

It is a curiosity to find a politician who will hold an argument with an opponent for half an hour without getting angry.

It is a curiosity to find a politician who will be convinced by his opponent's arguments.

It is a curiosity to find a person who does not think his own children possessed of more talents and accomplishments than those of his neighbors.

It is a curiosity to find an artist who does not think himself perfect in his profession.

It is a curiosity to find a candidate for an office who does not think he is fully entitled to the suffrages of his fellow citizens.

It is a curiosity to find a man who places too low an estimate on his own abilities.

It is a curiosity to find a Miss of fifteen who has not begun to thing of getting a husband.

It is a curiosity to find an old maid who does not wonder that she has not long been married.

It is a curiosity to find a fop who does not think he is the admiration of every one he meets in the street.

It is a curiosity to find a miser transformed into a generous man and a benefactor to society, so long as he can retain his riches in his own possession.

It is a curiosity to find a political editor who always tells the truth.

It is a curiosity to receive a letter from a lady which has not a P. S. attached to it.

It is a curiosity to meet with a woman who stammers in conversation.

It is a curiosity to find a lawyer who pleads a cause successfully for you, and then docks off a portion of his fees.

It is a curiosity to find a physician who, having restored you to health, does not wish you to think he has performed a wonderful cure.

It is a curiosity to find a dentist who will not tell you he can extract a tooth and cause less pain than any one else.

It is a curiosity to find a schoolmaster who does not wish it to be understood that he knows more than any body else.

It is a curiosity to find an editor who does not know everything, and more too; and

It is a curiosity to meet with a man who thinks less of himself than other people think of him.

WEBB'S PATENT BURNERS,
AND CAMPHINE OIL.

FOR SALE AT No. 102 E. BALTIMORE STREET, between South and Calvert streets, where Burners of every description can be obtained. Those who are sceptical as to its safety or economy, would, I trust be perfectly satisfied by examining the opinion of Professor Locx, of Ohio, on "WEBB'S CAMPHINE," or by referring to the Journals of the Franklin and American Institutes, of Philadelphia and New York. All those desirous of obtaining a clean, brilliant, and economical light, will find it greatly to their advantage by calling on the subscriber. The public may be assured of one fact, that we require no meters to ascertain the amount of Camphine consumed, as they register correctly and in plain English.

☞ ASTRAL LAMPS ALTERED.

N. B. We have appointed JOSHUA ATKINSON Agent, No. 22 Market street, F. P., where all orders will meet with immediate attention.

P. AUGUSTUS BAILEY, Agent
For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 22, 1840.

DEAR SIR—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,
mh10-1f Fifth Ward Hotel.

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, is its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist that this unequalled medicine may circulate far an wide for the benefit of the human race.

ODE TO NIGHT.

Come night! and thou bright evening star,
With trembling rays—
Thy voiceless hours are lovelier far
Than garish days.

Noctiferous hours! thy glorious reign
Doth silence bring—
And day-still'd fancy soars again
On painted wing.

Memory glides gently from her nook,
And by the rays
Of Cynthia pores upon her book
With earnest gaze.

Night! in thy softened lights and shades,
Love works his charms;
Thou bring'st the bashful, timid maids
To lovers' arms!

In thy still hours Hope loves to frame
Her castles airy—
Which quickly grow as first they came
At wand of fairy.

Music and mirth, with you unbound,
In hall and bower,
Join hands and gaily dance around;
They feel thy power.

Then quickly come star-spangled night
On raven wing—
To thee and to thy crescent bright,
I'll ever sing! ANNETTE.

RETROSPECTIONS

OF A BROKEN-HEARTED BELLE: AN 'OWER TRUE TALE.'

[Concluded from our last.]

'Really, Miss Manton, I hardly think you are justifiable in ascribing my retreat to bashfulness. I am an exceedingly modest man, and by consequence meritorious, and of course must have my share of the 'scoffs which patient merit of the unworthy takes.' Your pardon, Miss Manton; the truth is, I had carelessly started to make the call on the Misses Higgins in my red study-slippers, and in these circumstances, when I was dazzled by the view of the galaxy within doors, I could not muster impudence enough to enter, and so concluded to postpone the call to a more convenient season—much to my sorrow, Miss Julia, I assure you.'

Julia returned an answer so playful, and looked so fascinatingly into his eyes, that for my life, for the rest of the evening, I was quite unable to attract his attention, and was forced to amuse myself with the married men of the party. When the time for separation arrived, he requested the pleasure of attending Miss Julia home. Smothering my displeasure at this ominous circumstance, I requested him to call and see us often, to which he returned a gratified answer, and bade me good evening. The very next day he took tea with the Misses Higgins, and stayed the whole evening. Anticipating this, I called there myself in the evening, intending to exert all my charms to captivate him if possible: not that I was yet in love; it was to gratify my vanity. I talked too much—I was too anxious to please. I was ill, moreover, and did not look surpassingly pretty that evening. Julia was splendidly dressed, was full of animation and wit, and talked just enough. The rosy glow of health mantled her dark brown cheek, and the light of love sparkled in her eye. Against such odds I was unsuccessful, and was forced to yield the field at an early hour. I had been charmed with his wit, and my heart throbbed in sympathy with his sentiments. At parting, he professed to have passed in our company one of the most delightful evenings of his life.

I was now twenty years of age, a date at which women begin to think seriously of their prospects for life. The clear horizon begins now to be darkened by scattered clouds; we are now less presumptuous: the curling lip, the scornful gaze, are not so frequently brought into play. This is an age for the exercise of the greatest female cunning. If we lack this, we are undone. We must now play with men as with kittens; draw the gilded tassel gently before their eyes, and be careful lest we frighten or disgust them by hurling it into their faces.

Julia was but seventeen. An advantage of three years is no trifle, when the game is for a lover. I am obliged to confess, also, that at times she was very beautiful; but that was not the day time; for then she appeared almost as black as an Othello dahlia; but by candle light, her complexion was the richest I ever saw, in conjunction with her dress, which she well knew how appropriately to manage. Her black eye was perfectly enchanting; her manners too were calculated to please one who had seen much of the formalities of the world. She was so frank and forward, that in fashionable circles she would have been considered hoydenish; but M'Lellan thought her an artless, confiding girl, and tortured me greatly by recounting her virtues, to all which I was knowing enough to agree, and to add something more. I insisted that she would make an excellent wife—for a man with plenty of means; but I informed him of the fact that she was already engaged to a physician in New York.

At this intelligence he reddened with surprise and evident mortification; for Miss Julia, being in fact very much of a coquette, however artless she might seem, had taken pains to have this studiously concealed, so far as she was able; but he replied to my remark:

'I am greatly indebted to you for that information. I was very near being in love with her, I believe: in fact—heigho! But I might have reflected that she is too gay, thoughtless, and dashing, to make a good wife for a humble minister.'

And here the conversation turned very naturally upon religious subjects; and I interested him greatly by my very solemn demeanor, while he expatiated at large on his favorite theme. I also observed that he appeared highly gratified at my readiness in quoting Scripture, and with the feeling manner in which I recited a hyms of Dr. Watts. He however continued to manifest much partiality for Julia; insomuch that the slander-loving villagers whispered about that the match between her and the doctor was to be broken off. He rode and walked with her frequently, and they were familiar as brother and sister; and since they did not care for whispers, scandal did not stop here, but soon began to speak in louder tones. But Julia was too independent to notice any thing of the kind:

'An auld wife's tongue's a feckless matter
To gie me fash,'

said she to me one day, when I told her what was said about her connexion with M'Lellan; and truly she manifested the indifference of Robbie Burns himself to public opinion.

I sincerely believe that ambition, both in man and woman, is as great an inducement to conquest as love itself. You shall notice any belle, who is surrounded by a cloud of suitors; one or two perhaps are fascinated by her beauty and accomplishments, and really love her; others would win her merely because she is sought for by others: they seek her as they would the purse at a race. They would win her, because she is a contested prize; more to enjoy the honor, than for the value of the prize itself. A woman will desire to effect a conquest because the object is loved by others, or honored for his talents by the world at large. I was anxious to captivate M'Lellan, because I knew he had genius and energy, and I thought it very probable that he would one day become famous. I saw that he was more pleased with Julia than myself; and here, ambition to win what another possessed, urged me to greater effort. In short, I had thought so much of M'Lellan, and was so firmly determined on curing his indifference, for so I deemed it, that I again found myself absolutely and unequivocally in love; and now, as ever before, I had fixed my affections where contrary inclinations opposed barriers. But it was ever my nature to strive against fate. I should have been born a man!

I was uncertain how to manage M'Lellan. I was not quite sure that I understood his disposition. At times he seemed a miracle of frankness and simplicity; at others, directly the reverse. I thought him quite indifferent to me, but felt equally sure that were Julia married, or out of the way, I should stand a good chance of success. I could devise no good plan, and felt obliged to let matters take their own course, hoping the best as to the future.

Two or three months passed away, and I thought myself gaining, though slowly, in his estimation, when one day he invited Julia and myself to a long ride. We were gone the whole day, stopping to dine at a hotel, which was to be the end of our journey. During the ride thither, Julia was his idol. She was perfectly happy; I was equally unhappy. But after dinner he began all at once, without any cause that I could discern, to change his tone toward me, and to be less assiduous in his attention to Julia. She saw it, and like a little cur, whose jealousy has been excited by his master's notice of another, she redoubled her playfulness and her fawnings. But he perseveringly though gently repelled all her advances, and finally turned away from her, and asked of me some trifling favor, which Julia might have done, and which she expected always to do. It was impossible to understand fully the meaning of all this, until I saw her black eye flash with rage, her dark face grow ashen, and her lips pressed bloodless together; her bosom heave convulsively, and her foot beat quick upon the ottoman; then I was quite satisfied that something had occurred. From the suddenness of this strange yet petty incident, we were all for some time silent, Julia from sheer wrath and surprise, I from surprise and satisfaction, and he probably from embarrassment at the dilemma in which he found himself placed. I broke at length the painful silence, by recommending an immediate return home, at which we all started up; he to order the carriage and horses, and we to dress.

'What does it all mean, dear Julia?' inquired I, as soon as M'Lellan was out of hearing.

'I neither know nor care,' replied she, snappishly; 'some whim, I presume. He will repent of this before night.'

Observing my wicked, incredulous smile, she added sharply, 'I suppose, Miss Mary, you imagine that your beauty has at last entrapped him whom you have so long courted in vain.'

I was always too proud to scold or to quarrel; I merely gave Julia a Byronic look; and in an instant's reflection drove the really good-hearted girl to my arms, begging forgiveness. M'Lellan soon re-entered, offered his arm first to me, and then to Julia. She had forgotten something, and bade us go on, and she would follow. During the whole ride back, she opened not her lips: for my part, I had recovered the use of my tongue, and was very lively the whole way. In due time Julia was dropped at her door, and we rode on. M'Lellan then asked me to grant him the pleasure of a promenade with me the ensuing evening. So reasonable a request I could not refuse. I watched at my chamber window long after night-fall, feeling constant alarm and anxiety lest something might have happened to prevent his coming. At length I descried his figure under the window; and a few seconds only elapsed before I met him at the door. At the commencement of our walk, he began talking in a very abstracted way about the weather, and continued so long talking to himself, without noticing my remarks, that I was at length obliged to recall him to this world, by the vulgar inquiry, 'What is the matter?' He answered not a word, but I felt his sinewy frame tremble. I then expressed my fears that he was ill, and proposed returning to the house till another evening. He protested that he was perfectly well, and preferred not to return; and I thought it advisable to give him all the time he desired to arrange his ideas, and commence the subject which I was now sure was uppermost in his mind. Finally heaving half a dozen very heavy sighs, he seemed to erect and brace himself for the dreadful task. Had he known how perfectly delighted I felt, his mental agonies had doubtless been materially less.

He told me he loved me, and had loved me since first we met; that he had appeared indifferent to me, nay, deeply attached to Julia, only that he might have better opportunities to judge of my character; that he was fully satisfied, and now felt that the time had come to make a declaration of his affection. He concluded his harangue with the usual query whether it were possible that an angel like myself could reciprocate the affection of a mere mortal like him? According to prescribed rules, I declared it was the first time that actual, personal matrimony had ever entered my head; that I really felt so embarrassed——I liked Mr. McLellan——must ask father and mother—— In short, it was impossible to answer such a question so soon; he must wait a few weeks. He declared that a single week's suspense would be equivalent to a large dose of prussic acid, and insisted on an answer the very next day.

The next day we were engaged!

Of the delicious hours I enjoyed while he remained in town, I cannot speak in the same tone of levity in which I have encountered the proposal and acceptance; for I cannot even think of these, without shuddering at my wickedness and folly, and hating and despising myself a thousand, thousand times. Those days are gone, 'as a pleasant dream when one awaketh.' I have indeed awoke to wretchedness and remorse. O, the curse, the bitter curse of Memory! It crowds my chamber nightly with the spectres of my folly and hypocrisy.

McLellan completed his studies, and having received an invitation to become pastor of a flourishing church in the south, left me to think on what was past, and sigh alone. Thence he wrote me weekly. Such letters! How I worshipped them! How my friends admired! How proud was I to show them, as proofs of my own power! But soon the hand of disease laid him prostrate, and kept him very feeble through a long, long season; so that his letters to me became less frequent, and in consequence of his enfeebled state of mind and body, less ardent, though still sufficiently affectionate. But a year's separation had its usual effect on my volatile heart, and I found it convenient to pretend jealousy, and discover a want of due feeling in his letters; and being flattered again by attentions from young men of my native city and elsewhere, I had already been hasty enough to address McLellan in a tone of great peevishness, nay, almost with insolence, hoping to make him doubt my affection; to become disgusted, and propose a dissolution of the contract; for my conscience, seared as it was, hindered me for a time from making this proposal to him.

My scheme took effect in part. He answered with perfect coldness, but made no proposal to dissolve. I continued the same tone of impudent complaint, as I fancied the opportunity of speedy marriage becoming more apparent; and when I found myself really addressed by a wealthy widower, with an invitation to relinquish my southern possessions and take his instantly, I sat down and wrote a short and tender note of dismissal to McLellan, concluding with 'God bless you!"

The miserable ambition to ride in a gilded carriage was soon gratified; but my heart pants still for that which it has not, and alas! can never have again! I have a beautiful villa, and an indulgent husband; but I heed not his attentions. I cannot return the love he bears me. Who can bless the immediate cause of one's crimes and the utter and eternal ruin of one's peace?

Five years are gone, and the green laurel of fame freshens and blossoms daily upon the brow of him whose honors might have been mine!—Whether he knows what has become of me, I could never learn, and may never know; but O! could I see him but once again, my soul would spurn dictation from Duty or Prudence. I would fall on my knees, and beg his forgiveness, and ask his prayers; and my trembling lips should

Tell him I love him yet, as in that joyous time,
Tell him I ne'er forget, though memory now be crime!
Tell him when fades the light upon the earth and sea,
I dream of him by night—he must not dream of me!

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS
AND VEGETABLE BITTERS.

THE perfectly safe, unerring and successful treatment of almost every species of disease by the use of MOFFAT'S LIFE MEDICINES, is no longer a matter of doubt, as a reference to the experience of many thousand patients will satisfactorily prove. During the present month alone, nearly one hundred cases have come to the knowledge of Mr. Moffat, where the patient has, to all appearance, effected a permanent cure by the exclusive and judicious use of the Life Medicines—some eight or ten of these had been considered beyond all hope by their medical attendants.—Such happy results are a source of great pleasure to Mr. M. and inspire him with new confidence to recommend the use of his medicines to his fellow citizens.

The Life Medicines are a purely VEGETABLE preparation. They are mild and pleasant in their operation, and at the same time thorough—acting rapidly upon the secretions of the system—carrying off all acrimonious humors, and assimilating with and purifying the blood. For this reason, in aggravated cases of dyspepsia, the Life Medicines will give relief in a shorter space of time than any other prescription: in Fever-and-ague, Inflammation, Fevers of every description, Sick headache, heartburn, dizziness in the head, pains in the chest, flatulency, impaired appetite, in every disease arising from an impurity of the blood, or a disordered state of the stomach, the use of these medicines has always proved to be beyond doubt greatly superior to any other mode of treatment.

All that Mr. Moffat asks of his patients is to be particular in taking them strictly according to the directions. It is not by a newspaper no ice, or by any thing that he himself may say in their favor, that he hopes to gain credit, it is alone by the results of a fair trial. Is the reader an invalid, and does he wish to know whether the life medicines will suit his own case? If so let him call or send to Mr. Moffat's agent in this place, and procure a copy of the Medical Manual, designed as a domestic guide to health, published gratuitously. He will there find enumerated very many extraordinary cases of cure; and perhaps some exactly similar to his own. Moffat's medical office in New York, 375 Broadway, and for sale by the Agents. JAS. DAVIES' FAMILY PILLS.

STAFFORD COUNTY, VA. SEPT. 7th, 1840.

DEAR SIR:—I write to let you know that the Lord has done great things for me whereof I am glad. When I saw you in Fredericksburg, I think I said that I had been afflicted with a very acid (sour) stomach, and subject to a violent pain in my head for more than twenty years, for which I took rhubarb and soda three or four times every day for those many years, with little or no relief, and my legs and ankles were so much swelled that I was unable, at times, to attend to my business. But since you made me a present of a box of your Family Pills I have taken 1 or 2 of them at night in going to bed, and now my acid stomach is relieved, the swelling in my legs has nearly disappeared, and I do not think that I have been hindered one day with the pain in my head since I began to take your valuable medicine. I think the Lord directed you to Fredericksburg, to administer to my relief. (Blessed be his holy name, I am greatly relieved.) There is living in my neighborhood a poor old woman who had been sick for a long time and could not get relief; at length I purchased a box of your pills and gave them to her, after awhile I saw her out and about her business, and she said that the one box had cured her. I have spread the fame of your valuable medicine amongst my acquaintances, and many have purchased. Now, as it respects myself, my friend, tell me when I go to town, that they have not seen me look so well for many years, and I say to them, 'I will tell you the secret why; a short time ago I met with a Dr. Davies in town, and he gave me a box of pills, and they have made me look as you now see me.' And now, my friend, I hope that the Lord will continue to be with you, and make you useful to your fellow creatures, as he has hitherto done. I remain with respect, CHARLES BRUCE.

CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold; having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption, I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. Please publish this certificate, with my name in full, that others may know where to find the greatest blessing on earth.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 13, 1841.

TO-MORROW. The President of the United States, having recommended that to-morrow be observed as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer, we shall afford to those employed in this office the opportunity to engage in the religious services of the day, by publishing no paper on Saturday.

We hope that the day will be observed in strict compliance with the recommendation of the President, and that all persons will cease from their labors. We are taught to "pray without ceasing;" but, as the necessary business of life will divert our attention, and prevent that constant reflection which would seem to be a duty, one day in seven has been set apart for devotional purposes, when the mind can be abstracted from worldly concerns, and directed to objects of more serious contemplation. Independent, however, of this wise provision for rest and reflection, there would seem to be a propriety in appointing at least one day in the year when the whole people may "lift up their voice" in gratitude to their Creator.

It cannot be questioned that the American people have particular cause for thankfulness. They have prospered beyond precedent, and are peculiarly blessed in the full enjoyment of civil and religious liberty. It is right that they should not only appreciate the blessings of their social condition, but study to deserve the continued favor of Providence—and for this purpose days for national fasting and prayer are appropriate, and when appointed should be devoutly observed.

The national bereavement for which we are called upon by the President, to prostrate ourselves in humility to-morrow, was sudden and affecting, and impressed the whole people with feelings of deep affliction—let them, therefore, whilst they bow in humble submission to the dispensation, endeavor to conciliate the favor of Providence, that they may be blessed in their future destinies.

IMPROPER. A paper in New York publishes anonymous communications from correspondents in this city, which contain allusions to the private affairs of individuals. Intimations are sometimes given that this or that individual is likely to fail in business, and other matters equally exceptionable are mentioned. This is very improper, for it enables secret scribblers to injure the brightest reputation, and opens a vent for every effusion of malignity. The legitimate duty of the press is to restrain, instead of encouraging, slander and misrepresentation; and more particularly to preserve inviolable the scenes of the domestic fireside. If a man be paying his addresses to a lady, it is not a subject for newspaper animadversion; and no editor who is possessed of refined feeling or correct principles, will permit such matters to be dragged before the public through his columns.

Some editors exhibit a great disposition to make newspaper capital out of the most trivial events. Petty personal altercations are seized upon as the foundation for an important paragraph—and he who has the misfortune to be warranted for debt, may look for a report of his pecuniary difficulties in the paper. This is a vile practice, disgraceful to the press, and disgusting to all men of feeling. The New York editor ought to affix the names of his correspondents to their communications, that people may know the sources of the information which he publishes.

CRIME. The New York Sun, in an article on the police of that city, says: "Heavy larcenies, burglaries and robberies have gone entirely out of fashion here. Indeed, New York, once so riotous, so notorious for crimes of the darkest die, appears now to be the most peaceable city in the country." There was room for reformation, and we are glad that it has been effected. We wish that it could also be extended to Baltimore, and other cities. We have no great outbreaks it is true; but we have rogues in great abundance, who have probably deserted New York with the hopes of better success here. We calculate largely on the beneficial effects which are to result from the exertions of the temperance societies; for, if men will but become temperate, the disposition to commit crime will be diminished, if not entirely cease. The editor of the New York Sun praises the vigilance of the police of that city, no doubt with justice; but suggests that it can be improved so as to be rendered more useful. Improvements could be also advantageously made in the police of other cities and states. In Maryland there is a radical defect in the mode of appointing magistrates and in the term for which they are appointed. They are chosen exclusively upon party grounds, and their commissions hold for but one year. The consequence is, few men will take the trouble to qualify themselves for the duties of the office, and many of those who are qualified will not accept an office from which they can be dismissed at the expiration of the year.

DISTRESSING. A friend relates to us, says the Cincinnati Times, of the 7th, the particulars of a most unfortunate accident which happened in the neighborhood of the city yesterday. An old respectable and wealthy farmer, named John Ward, who resided about fourteen miles from town was out hunting and in crossing a fence, the gun he carried was accidentally discharged, blowing away the entire upper portion of the head of the unfortunate man. He left a large family to deplore this distressing occurrence.

JEFFERSON'S OPINIONS OF CONGRESS. "I served with General Washington in the Legislature of Virginia before the Revolution, and during it with Dr. Franklin in Congress. I never heard either of them speak ten minutes at a time, nor to any but to the main point which was to decide the question. They laid their shoulders to the great points, knowing that the little ones would follow of themselves. If the present Congress errs in too much talking, how can it be otherwise in a body to which the People send men who question every thing, yield nothing, and talk by the hour?"

It is certain that the most useful legislators are what are termed the business men—those who attend to their duties diligently, and say no more than is necessary to explain their views of the matter under consideration. Nine-tenths of the speaking in the House of Representatives might be spared with advantage; but this is the age of disputation and of "much talking," and no proposition can be submitted, however simple, that does not elicit a debate of almost interminable length—the necessary consequence is, that the same ideas are repeated over and over again, until listeners are sickened and disgusted, and the orators lose their labor. A man can generally say all that ought to be said upon a subject in one hour; and there are few matters which cannot be satisfactorily explained in much less time—but the misfortune is, that men branch off from the main subject, and consider themselves at liberty to discuss events from the creation of the world to the present day. A man should speak not to be heard only, but to be heeded; and to gain attention and carry conviction, he must confine himself to the question in issue, and express himself with becoming brevity. To have influence in a legislative body, a member must first establish a character for sound judgment and proper discretion. General Washington and Doctor Franklin were content to express what they had to say in a few words, which were more effectual than the frothy harangues of a dozen professed declaimers, because they spoke with good sense and sincerity of purpose.

We had rather have a member of Congress who would sit silent during the whole session, than an eternal babbler: but there is a medium. A member should have the capacity to assign reasons for the votes he gives, and the measures which he may introduce. This is not very difficult for a man of plain common sense. But members are not satisfied with doing this. They have some old political quarrel on hand, which they think can be better settled in Congress hall than at home—and thus the local disputes of every section of the country are recapitulated and commented on, to the retardation of the public business, and at a serious cost to the national treasury. This practice should be reformed, either by the people or by the house, and we incline to the opinion that it could be accomplished by a rigid enforcement of the rules of the house.

A PROSPEROUS STATE. Governor Ellsworth, in his late address to the legislature of Connecticut, alludes to the late Presidential election, and to the death of General Harrison—urges the necessity of a protective tariff—deplores the fluctuations of the currency—expresses himself in favor of a single term for the Presidency—gives a succinct and flattering account of the affairs of the State, financial, educational, and military, and urges renewed attention to the schools and charitable institutions of the State. Connecticut, he says, presents a republic which secures more good and avoids more evil than any other political community of ancient or modern times. All the public statutes, after two hundred years' legislation, are contained in a single volume; the annual expenses do not exceed $80,000; the State owes nothing, possesses a school fund of more than $2,000,000 well invested, yielding an annual income of $113,000, is without disbursements or superintendence of public works, employs but few offices, and yet enjoys the security of law and the administration of justice as economically as any other State in the Union. The militia consists of 40,000 men. The Governor advocates the extension of the law abolishing imprisonment for debt to persons not living in the State.

MITCHELL, THE FORGER. By the following from a New York paper, it would appear that there is yet a considerable chance for the above dishonored honorable to make his escape from justice:—"The rumor is, that the Governor of New York has declined making a requisition for the absconding forger, upon the ground that he has no power to do so, and that he has applied to the President of the United States, or the Secretary of State, to make it. It is added also that the Washington Government declines upon the ground that there is no precedent, or that the most it can do is to turn the case over to the British Minister, requesting his friendly interposition. It is supposed, after the refusal to deliver up Dr. Holmes, who fled to Vermont, the Canadian authorities will hardly feel the necessity of complying with any request to surrender Mitchell."

ADROIT ROBBERS. Some scamps entered the drug store of Mr. Holden, in Mt. Vernon street, Boston, on Saturday night; stole the clerk's watch from under his head as he slept, opened trunks, robbed the till, and decamped without being detected. The robbery was not discovered until daylight, though the clerk got up once in the night, as he heard a noise, and supposed somebody wanted medicine. Somebody did want and take mint drops, it appears.

THE CASE OF GEN. GAINES. The U. S. Circuit Court at New Orleans, has again disagreed in the arbitrated case of Gen. Gaines and wife, against Relf, Chew, and others, involving so much property. The case was argued some time since, on a demurrer. Judge McKinley overruled the demurrer on all points, and Judge Lawrence sustained it on all points. The case is, therefore, again certified to the Supreme Court of the United States for the judgment.

THE ORATORIO OF DAVID. The repetition of this splendid conception of Neukomm took place on Tuesday evening last, and the saloon of the Assembly Rooms, as was anticipated, was crowded with ladies and gentlemen. We are not so partial to domestics as to say that the Association did full justice to the compositions of the eminent master, but we are willing to accord the members praise for their exertions to give effect to the production; the material, though rough, is capable of a fine polish, and we hope the time is not far distant when our musical societies will rank with the first in the country. We are yet far behind Europe, and it will require time and perseverence to bring us on a level with other cities of the Union where music has been fostered not only by the public, but by the legislature. As it is, we are dependent on foreign aid, and will be, as long as music is excluded from our primary schools.

The execution of the Oratorio of David, generally speaking, was creditable to the Musical Association; the Chorusses in particular were sung with effect, if we except the apparent feebleness of the soprano voices, which in many instances were entirely overpowered by the bass and tenor. How is it that this department of the Chorus is not so full as heretofore? The Oratorio was got up under the direction of Mr. Dielman, a professor of acknowledged talents; he certainly must have been aware of the deficiency, and should have produced it perfect in all its parts, if talent was within his reach. The orchestra, mostly composed of members of the Harmonic Society, was ably conducted in all its parts, though several eminent professors were absent. The instrumental Introduction was highly effective, and from amongst the three Davids in the field we particularize the gentleman who sung the opening recitative as having an excellent tenor voice and a clear articulation. Let him discard the affectation so peculiar to his style of singing, and he will always be listened to with pleasure. In the choral hymn of the Shepherds, the soprano voices were perceptibly deficient and the bass entirely too powerful. The lady who sung the air of "Return, O David" has a fine flexible voice; there was much feeling evinced throughout, though an apparent want of confidence was evident in several attempts at shakes and cadenzas. The violencello accompaniment by Mr. Gilles was truly a rich treat. The fine chorus of "Behold the Giant" was well sung, as also the spirited duet between Goliath and David. In No. 9—"Come unto me," the trumpets were much at fault. The symphony to "He falls" was beautifully effective and the chorus highly creditable. Amongst the choice morceaux were the recitative and air commencing with "Our fears are o'er." These were executed by Miss St. Luke, who, we understand, volunteered to take the part at a very short notice. We never heard her to better advantage; her voice was clear, and her articulation perfectly distinct:—the audience evinced their delight by a burst of applause which could not be restrained. The beautiful chorus of "Daughters of Israel," was admirably sung, and the only fault we perceived was the want of attention to the pianos and fortes, expressive of the gradual approach and departure of the conquerers. The Quartette and accompanying chorus, "Thou art a God of wonders"—indifferently sung. Were we disposed to find fault, there would be plenty of room for us in the highly descriptive solo of Saul commencing with "Ah me! what cares oppress me;" the composition is of the highest order, and the orchestra throughout sustained their parts admirably. The solo of David, "I will lay me down," was sung with taste, though the succeeding duett with Saul, might be pronounced defective. The chorus of "Haste thee away," was finely sung, and the female voices swelled handsomely above the others. "Wretch that I am," and the following duett of "O Jonathan, thy father's heart," were beautifully sung by a rich bass and clear tenor voice The chorus of "O Israel mourn," was very effective, as also the exquisite solo of David, "Glory to God alone."

We have intentionally passed several of the pieces by, none of them were above mediocrity and some very defective. The oratorio appeared to give general satisfaction, and we hope to hear it again next winter with greater strength.

NATIONAL THEATRE, NORTH-ST. Amongst the curiosities to be exhibited at this establishment which, by the way, is well managed, and nightly draws large audiences, is that sable gem, Master Diamond, a youth who in a given space of time can do more shuffling than the veriest politician of the present day. Every body has heard of MASTER DIAMOND, of "Jim along Josey," memory—the unrivalled in his line; he is to make his first appearance to-night at the little National, and we only fear that he will not have room to shuffle his bones. Go and see him, he is really a queer 'un. In addition to the extraordinary attraction offered in the person of Master Diamond, the managers have engaged Mr. Jenkins, the vocalist and delineator of Yankee characters, and Mr. Butler, the extravaganza performer. There will consequently be a great sensation at the National to-night.

U. S. VESSELS GRAMPUS AND DOLPHIN.—The New York American says—By the arrival of Capt. Wm. H. Bull, from the Cape de Verd, we learn that this, the American squadron, sailed for the West Indies on the 23d March—crew all well. These vessels may be expected at New York in the course of ten days. Lieut. Haywood was well, and on duty on board the Grampus, the day the squadron sailed.

SALMON. The Providence, R. I. Journal of Monday says, that two Salmon were sold in that city on the Saturday previous for twenty-four dollars. One of them weighed eleven, and the other thirteen pounds.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN ST. LOUIS. The city of St. Louis seems of late to be ill-fated indeed. But a few days since we were informed of a destructive fire together with a most bloodthirsty and revolting murder. Now we have to record another destructive calamity by fire, which (as we are informed by a slip from the Evening Gazette) took place on the morning of the 3d inst. The fire was discovered in the seed and flower store of Mr. John Thorburn, which was not subdued before it had destroyed a two story brick building on Main street, a three story brick block containing three stores, on the corner of Main and Market streets. From Mr. Thorburn's the fire spread to the store on Main street, in front of it, occupied by Mr. Levison, as a clothing establishment. It then attacked the two story brick building north and adjoining Levison's, which was occupied by Dr. Penn, U. S. Receiver General, as sub-treasury. Its progress northwardly was checked at this point. Southwardly it communicated with the stores in the same block with Levison, occupied by Mr. S. W. Meech, bookseller; by Mr. T. G. Settle, dry goods dealer; and Mr. W. H. McKinstry, hat manufacturer. Westwardly the fire extended to the brick block on Market street, occupied by Messrs. Wolff & Hoppe, and by Messrs. Kimm & Tewes, dealers in French and German fancy wares. The interior of the independent treasury building was entirely consumed, but the books and papers of the office, besides some paper money, were rescued, and it is supposed that the money in the vault is safe. The interior of the stores on Main street are also quite destroyed.—The entire loss is estimated at between $80,000 and $100,000, upon which there was insurance to a large amount. The fire is supposed to have resulted from accident.

FUNERAL SERMON. We have been handed a funeral sermon, occasioned by the death of W. H. Harrison, late President of the United States, delivered in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Baltimore, on Sunday, the 25th April, 1841, by J. P. K. Henshaw, D. D., and published by D. Brunner, No. 1 N. Charles street. We have perused it carefully and with deep interest. It is a highly important and instructive lesson upon the weakness and perishability of all things pertaining to this transitory life, and shows, in language not to be misunderstood, the great importance of being ready at all times to meet the summons of death. In it are found no useless encomiums. It is enriched by giving a plain unvarnished history of his virtues, whom it is designed to commemorate. There may be found in it a rich vein of consolation, calculated to gladden the hearts, not only of those who mourn the departed as a national bereavement, but especially those who were more closely connected, and have wept his fall as a husband, a father and a friend.

INCENDIARISM. An infamous attempt to burn the Episcopal Church at Roxbury, Mass., was made last week. It appears that the sacrilegious villains made their ingress through a window of the cellar, on the easterly side of the house, and found their way into the Rector's room, where they made an examination of the service of communion plate, and set fire to the carpet and staircase. They next ascended the staircase, to the pulpit within the chancel, and fired the covering, which was consumed, together with the large and splendid Bible, several books of Common Prayer, cushions, and drapery on and about the pulpit and altar. So far as known, nothing was taken from the church. The damage done, is estimated from $100 to 250. The scoundrels were probably alarmed and decamped without accomplishing their design.

The Cincinnati Chronicle of the 7th states that Brown, the colored man arrested here on Wednesday, charged with being one of the St. Louis murderers, had his examination before the Mayor yesterday afternoon, and sufficient evidence appeared of his identity and guilt to induce the Mayor to order him to be returned to the authorities of St. Louis. He left last evening on the Montezuma, in charge of the officers from that city.

AN ACT TO PROMOTE AGRICULTURE, passed by the New York Legislature, became a law on the 5th inst. It appropriates $8000 per annum for the term of five years, for the promotion of agriculture and household manufactures in that State. The sum of $950 for New York county is given to the American Institute.

HEAVY DAMAGES. Capt. Harris, of the 24th Regt. has received damages to the amount of $30,000 of Mr. E. D. David, Esq., of Montreal, Barrister and Major in the Montreal Cavalry, for running off with the wife of the former, some time last year.

Capt. Hoskin, of the Great Western, refuses to take in a passenger at the Quarantine ground, unless an explanation could be given of the reasons for wishing to get on board there and not at the wharf. Capt. H. has resolved to take in no passengers after the ship has left the wharf.

CANADIAN FLOUR The Liverpool Journal states that the importation of wheat and flour from Canada into Great Britain last year was 278,761 barrels of flour and 141,931 minots of wheat, each minot being equal to three bushels. Those engaged in the trade expect that the importation of the present year will reach 700,000 barrels of flour, and wheat in proportion.

THE PRESIDENT. The New York papers state that Capt. Bowman, of the British ship Recovery, who reported that he saw the hull of a dismasted vessel off the Western Islands, which is supposed to be the President, was to be examined at the office of the British Consul, in relation to the matter.

INDIANA ELECTION. Returns from this state, so far, are favorable to the Whigs. But little interest, however, seems to have been manifested.

TO THE PUBLIC.

☞I feel that it is my duty to vindicate myself against the calumnies which Philip Price, James Loudon, and George Brown, three colored men, have, in their malignity, thought proper to publish against me in the Clipper of last Monday, over the signature of "Two of the Speakers." It is true, as these persons have stated, that I, in connection with a number of others, got up exhibitions for our mutual improvement and for the benefit and amusement of our acquaintances, and that the expenses of the exhibition were to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of tickets of admission. These proceeds came into my hands, and are truly stated by my accusers, to have amounted to $51 50. But the charge that I applied any portion of these receipts to my own use, or that I withheld it from its proper object, is utterly untrue, as I fortunately have the means of proving. So far is this from being the case, that I have actually advanced more money for the payment of the expenses of the exhibition than I have received. The following account of the disbursements made by me will show this, beyond all doubt.

Showing a balance in my favor of $1 12½

Besides this, I am responsible for other sums, which I will be compelled to pay.

This simple statement will show to all who may take the trouble to examine it, how fully I have been libelled by the above persons. They are my debtors for money loaned to them and I expected better treatment from them. In my humble position in society, I have ever maintained an unblemished character, and this is the first time my honesty has been called in question. As to the recommendation to me to leave Baltimore, I shall treat it with the contempt it deserves. I can always find the means of an honorable and respectable livelihood, whilst the loafers who have seen led me are living by their wits, casting a longing gaze at their last refuge, the Alms House—or, it may be, pursuing courses that may lead them to a place where the confinement is still more rigid.

TWO CHARMING PERIODICALS. 1st No. of a New Volume of the Ladies' Companion. Opinions of the Press, viz: New World.

The Knickerbocker for this month is out punctually on the first, and it is full to overflowing with good things. That capital story, the Country Doctor—far superior to the majority of the continuations in the English Magazines—goes on more amusingly than before. The number is embellished with a curious and appropriate engraving of "a Dutch Cottage in Beaver street, 1679."

The May number of the Ladies' Companion is embellished with a steel engraving that would do no discredit to Finden's Galleries. It is exceedingly beautiful, and is entitled "The Young Chief's First Ride." Such embellishments alone entitle this various and excellently edited magazine to the bountiful patronage with which it is favored. We notice certain typographical improvements in this number, which are indications of the good taste of the proprietor.

The literary merit of the Ladies' Companion seems to increase rather than diminish—and, with the editorial labors which are now bestowed upon it, it cannot fail to be pronounced highly creditable to the literature of the country.

THE U. S. FRIGATE BRANDYWINE arrived at New York, on Monday last, in thirty days from the Straits of Gibraltar. The return of this frigate from her station was occasioned by the threatening aspect some six or eight weeks ago, of war with Great Britain. Intelligence received at Port Mahon, at that time from the American Ambassador at London, under date of the 9th of March, and private letters to the 11th, advising the departure of the squadron from the Mediterranean, led to a council between Commodore Hull and his Captains, on board the Ohio 74, on the 24th, which resulted in the sailing of the ships at twelve hours' notice, on the succeeding day. The frigate, after ascertaining, by looking into the Bay of Gibraltar, that no naval reinforcement, as was reported, had assembled, hastened home, as the best point of learning the existing relations of the two countries, and the wishes of the Government in the case. The following is a list of her officers:

Captain—W. C. Bolton. Lieutenants—Mercer, Adams, Vail, Thatcher, Rowen, Marbury and Bradford. Lieut. of Marines—A. Garland. Surgeon—J. M. Foltz. Assist. Surgeons—J. M. Smith and W. B. Sinclair. Chaplain—Rev. C. S. Stewart. Acting Master—G. W. Chapman. Acting Prof. of Mathematics—W. Floyd. Passed Midshipmen—Adams, Cadwallader, Read and Stembel. Midshipmen—Abbot, Baldwin, Corbin, Dallas, Darald, Fairfax, Mason, Rogers, Van Hook, Wells, Welsh and Westcott. Captain's Clerk—C. S. Stewart. Boatswain—C. Mathews. Gunner—L. Parker. Carpenter—H. P. Leslie. Sailmaker—W. Bennett. Purser Cooder, and Surgeon Green remained at Port Mahon.

GALE AT THE SOUTH. The Savannah Republican of Wednesday says: we learn through a gentleman from the South that it blew almost a gale in Camden and Glynn counties, and that nearly all the fields of Sea Island Cotton in that vicinity were destroyed, the leaves being in some instances blown from the stalks. We apprehend that the damage has been rather serious in some places, but fortunately it is not too late to plant again. The violence of the wind was so great as to tear the potato vines from the ground.

At St. Mary's the gale was tremendous. Some houses were so much shaken that the inmates feared for their safety—and the sidewalks were covered to the depth of several inches by the drifting sand.

Capt. Pitcher of the steamer Isis, going up the St. Johns at the time, states that the air was full of dust, which glowing in the sun, produced the appearance of fire in the woods on both sides of the river.

MARINE NEWS. The N. O. Picayune of the 4th inst. states that the ship Saratoga arrived at that port on the day previous from New York—that she spoke the steam barque Clarion, from New York for Havana, on the 25th of April, off Salt Key Bank. The wind was light from the eastward: the Clarion passed very quickly, going at least seven miles an hour against a short head swell, with all her canvass furled.

The Clarion had fallen in the day previous with the wreck of the brig Corinthian, Captain Stone, of Gardiner, Maine, which was lost on the shoal grounds of the Great Bahama Banks. She took off the captain and crew and had them on board when she spoke the Saratoga. She also spoke the ship Amazon off the Double-headed Shot Keys, forty-five days from Havre for New Orleans, and the ship Suffolk, seventeen days from Boston, for this port.

THE NEW ORLEANS MINT. So far as we can learn, says the Bulletin, this institution in our city, is proving its adequacy to perform all that was originally contemplated in its establishment. It has had to contend with many difficulties which appeared for a long time insurmountable; but improvements in its management, the greater degree of science and economy now introduced into its laboratory, would lead us to hope that it may successfully vie with its rival in the North. In a day or two we shall probably be able to prove this.

NAVAL. Commodore T. Ap C. JONES, is appointed to the command of the Pacific Squadron, to relieve Commodore CLAXTON, who returns in the fall.

Commodore CHARLES W. MORGAN, is appointed to the command of the Brazil Station.

Commodores BIDDLE and READ and Captain CONNOR, compose a Board of Enquiry, now sitting in New York, on charges preferred against Com. RENSHAW.

PRETTY GOOD. The St. Louis Bulletin tells the following:

Last night when the congregation of one of the churches, were leaving the house of worship, it commenced raining. A lady said to the gentleman who accompanied her and her sister, "Why, it rains—send and get an umbrella." "Why my dear," said the gentleman, "you are neither sugar nor salt, and rain will not hurt you." "No," said the lady, "but we are lasses."

FOR SALE AT No. 109 E. BALTIMORE STREET, between South and Calvert streets, where Burners of every description can be obtained. Those who are sceptical as to its safety or economy, would, I trust be perfectly satisfied by examining the opinion of Professor Locx, of Ohio, on "WEBB'S CAMPHINE," or by referring to the Journals of the Franklin and American Institutes, of Philadelphia and New York. All those desirous of obtaining a clean, brilliant, and economical light, will find it, really to their advantage by calling on the subscriber. The public may be assured of one fact, that we require no meters to ascertain the amount of Camphine consumed, as they register correctly and in plain English.

P. AUGUSTUS BAILEY, Agent
For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

DEAR SIR—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, in its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

THE HAUNTED CASTLE.

A LEGEND OF THE RHINE.

On the brow of a lofty and rugged hill, which overlooks the Rhine, stand the ruins of the ancient Castle of Ehlendorf. The ivy has clambered over its crumbling towers, as if to shield them from the destructive hand of time, and bind with its creeping tendrils the wounds which he has made. Once its hall resounded with the mirth of the young and gay, of brave knights and ladies fair, while the songs of the minstrels, and tales of heroic enterprize, whiled away the hours of night, until the purple light of dawn appeared. Now it has fallen to decay: the race of its noble possessors has become extinct; and the ivy grows, and the owl hoots amid its deserted courts.

At the time when our tale commences, it was in the possession of Conrad, Baron of Ehlendorf, the remaining scion of that noble family. His brother had died in Palestine, leaving to him the title and all the vast estates of his ancestors. In early life he had wedded the beautiful Elfrida, of Aldenburg, and never was a purer gem more dearly valued than the young bride of Ehlendorf by her doting lord. Years of bright, unclouded happiness rolled over their heads; and if unalloyed pleasure has ever dwelt on earth, it was the portion of Conrad, of Ehlendorf, when he looked upon his angel bride and their little Katrine, scarcely knowing which was the loveliest, the mother or the child. Often as he saw their fair offspring, with bounding footsteps, dimpled cheeks and laughing eye, throwing back her golden curls, and rushing with playfulness and love into her mother's arms, he felt that without her his treasures were but glittering dust.

Like the other barons of ancient times, his retinue was composed of a vast number of armed retainers, and his power and wealth were unequalled by any other of equal rank in the country. His kindness and hospitality were every where proverbial, and the noblest of the land delighted to gather round his festive board.—Thus, love, wealth and beauty conspired to fill the heart of Ehlendorf with joy, and naught could dim his happiness till his loved Elfrida was called from earth to blossom in a fairer clime. Sad and afflictive was this bereavement to the young baron, overthrowing as it did the dreams that he had been weaving through eight bright years of wedded happiness. Still, as he turned in anguish from the lifeless form of the object of his heart's best affections, one ray of hope enlivened the surrounding gloom. His lovely Katrine grew more and more beautiful day by day, and in her he felt that he possessed a purer treasure than wealth could afford. In his constant watchful care over her helplessness, and the fond confiding affection with which she repaid his tenderness, he found forgetfulness of every sorrow.

As successive years rolled on she grew more and more lovely, and new charms in her unfolded daily. No opportunity had been neglected which would tend to her intellectual advancement; and at the age of sixteen she possessed the charms of beauty, and an intellect of the highest degree. Their castle was thronged with young cavaliers, eager to win so lovely a prize—and though her smiles were bestowed on all, yet no one of the noble train had received any evidence of her preference. Happy in the fondness, nay, almost adolatry of her father, she remained insensible to any other than paternal affection. The baron, though still in the pride of manhood, had never indulged serious thougnts of a second union, and when bright eyes beamed on him, and silvery voices fell in tones of melody upon his ear, he had only to look upon the face of Katrine, where every feature of her sainted mother was reflected as in a faithful mirror, and his heart was steeled against every attraction.

It was a beautiful morning in the month of June, when the baron and his daughter went forth for their accustomed ride. The air was balmy; the fragrance of the flowers was borne upon the breeze and the groves were vocal with the melody of the feathered songsters. Suddenly dark clouds obscured the sky, and foretold a coming tempest. They hurried on, but when they arrived at the castle, the storm-clouds hung darkly and fearfully over its rugged towers. Then loud thunders rent the sky; gleams of lightning darted from pole to pole. The rain fell in torrents from the darkened sky, hour after hour, incessantly; the swollen waves of the Rhine beat in fury upon their rugged banks. Katrine was seated at her chamber window, watching the raging billows as they rushed in wild commotion against the rocks. Suddenly her attention was attracted by the sight of a cavalier upon the opposite shore. The vision was transient, for scarcely had he appeared ere his fiery charger leaped from the towering height of the rock into the boiling waters below. The baron's sturdy vassals had witnessed his disaster, and rushed forth to rescue him if possible. Urged on by impassioned signs from Katrine, they put forth every effort. For awhile he struggled successfully against the foaming billows, but was at length thrown with violence against the rocks, and when the vassals of the castle had succeeded in bearing him to the shore, he was insensible.—Hour after hour the baron and Katrine hung anxiously over his couch, watching for signs of returning consciousness, but he remained pale and motionless as the work of a statuary; his faint breathing and a slight pulsation alone giving evidence that life was not extinct. At length a delicate flush overspread his marble countenance; his eyelids gently raised, and he gazed in bewildered astonishment on all around him.

"Fear not," said the baron, "you are with friends, who will watch over you carefully, until you have recovered from your late disaster."

The following morning he was able to relate the circumstances which had led him there.—He gave his name as Hildenrand, a young knight of Hanover. He had been engaged in the chase, the day before, and had followed the deer so far that he lost sight of his companions, and wandered through the intricate mazes of the forest, not knowing whither his way might lead. Soon the tempest arose, and as he reached the opening of the forest, ignorant of his proximity to the Rhine, until he was precipitated down the frightful chasm. He expressed his gratitude in the highest terms to his noble host for his kindness, and a wish to leave the castle as soon as possible. The extreme debility resulting from his late accident, however, precluded the possibility of his immediate departure. Besides, the ravages of the storm had rendered the highways impassable.

During this time the fair Katrine left no means untried to cheer the lingering hours.—Her harp beguiled those moments which would otherwise have been tedious, and her voice, whose melody was unrivalled, seemed even more sweet than it was wont to be, as she sung the wild and beautiful legends of their country. Charmed by her beauty, her accomplishments, and filial affection, young Hildebrand became daily more and more attached to Katrine, while she returned his affection with fond idolatry. Thus passed day after day in peace and happiness, and the only sorrow which dimmed Katrine's pleasures was the thought of parting, and his wish that their engagement should be concealed from her father, until he should return to claim his affianced bride. Sincere and trusting, she yielded to the conviction that he was urged to this wish by powerful motives, then unknown to her, nor allowed the slightest suspicion of his constancy to enter her mind.

One bright morning three weeks after his arrival at the castle, a courier alighted with despatches for Hildebrand. As he perused them, a cloud rested upon his brow, and he hastened to find Katrine. He told her that his presence was demanded at court, but with many promises of a speedy return, he bade her a fond farewell. Weeks, nay, even months passed away, and still Katrine received no tidings from her stranger lover. She had withdrawn herself from gay society, and her gladsome laugh no longer resounded through the silent halls. Her anxious parent saw with anguish the sorrow of his child, and finally won from her the tale of her love. In vain he used every endeavor to find the retreat of their guest. The name of Hildebrand was unknown to any of the barons of the vicinity, and he was forced to relinquish his fruitless inquiry. At length it was announced that a tournament was to be held at the capital, in honor of the nuptials of the Elector of Hanover, and the baron hoping that this scene of gaiety would dissipate her melancholy, won the consent of Katrine to accompany him. The morning of the day appointed dawned with unusual splendor, and the eye of Katrine beamed with the light of hope, as she took her place in a gallery commanding a full view of the field of action.—"Surely," she thought to herself, "when the bravest of the land are about to signalize themselves, Hildebrand will not desert the noble band."

The field was elegantly prepared; and the tents, glittering with all the splendor of martial panoply, added double richness to the scene. On either side of the lists were galleries of blue and red and purple silk, crowded with the beauty of the land. All was anxious expectation. Soon a shout of joy from the assembled multitude announced that the elector and his young bride were approaching.—Mounted on a fiery charger, which he managed with perfect skill, his noble form appeared to the best advantage. His bride rode a beautiful white palfrey, and though there was something noble in her flashing eye and masculine firmness, still her beauty could not be compared, without disparagement, to the angelic loveliness of Katrine. As they advanced near the place where Katrine was seated, an undefined horror thrilled through her frame, yet her eyes remained fixed upon the prince. Surely it was the same noble form. Could it be Hildebrand? He turned his dark eye upon her and met her anxious glance; the color receded from his cheek. She uttered a faint cry of agony, pronounced the name of Hildebrand, and fell senseless into the arms of her attendants.

The tale can be told in a few words. Her faithless lover had been summoned from his delightful retreat at Ehlendorf by the duties of state; and ambition had led him to form an alliance from which his heart revolted. In the cares of state and the hilarity of his nuptials he had in a measure drowned the memory of Katrine, but now she seemed to rise like a gentle spirit to reprove his falsehood. The arrows of remorse had entered his soul and poisoned his enjoyment. Though surrounded by all the honors and dignities of this world he found no peace. Katrine was borne by her afflicted parent to their once happy home, but the light of existence had fled forever, and the house of Ehlendorf was soon to be remembered as among the dead. A few sad years rolled on. The baron was borne to his last resting place. Katrine with her attendants alone remained in the walls. At length she yielded up her vast domains in favor of a distant relative, with this restriction, that the old castle should remain undisturbed, and as it was reported, retired to a convent in Switzerland. From this period the old fortress was left to the ravages of time, uninhabited by any mortal, though the superstitious inhabitants of the vicinity declared it to be the abode of supernatural beings. A tall form according to the neighboring villagers, robed in white, had been seen upon the battlements at midnight, while strains of wild unearthly melody were heard floating on the breeze; and when the storm was raging, the same spirit form was seen hovering over the yawning chasm and keeping its fearful vigils where no mortal foot durst approach. The benighted traveller turned away, choosing to wander through the mazes of the forest, rather than pass the fearful place, and even the adventurous mountain boy fled in terror from its lonely walls.

Years had rolled on, when the Elector of Hanover chanced in hunting to pass through the domains of Ehlendorf. One of his followers related to him the superstitions concerning the castle, and despite their entreaties he insisted upon exploring its recesses. He reached it just as its towers were gleaming in the pure moonlight; and the waters of the Rhine flowed gently on, while each tiny ripple wore its glittering coronet of moonbeams. How vividly bright the visions of the past rose in his memory, as he entered once more through the castle's lonely gates. Just as he passed the threshold the notes of an Æolian harp sent a thrill of superstitious terror through every vein. He opened the door which led to Katrine's boudoir, when a sight met his eye which caused him to recoil with terror. Extended on a couch, and guarded by an old attendant, was the form of the once beautiful heiress of Ehlendorf. The deep flush of agitation overspread her cheek as she recognised him and said.

"Why intrude upon the sanctity of one devoted to Heaven, or strive to bind a heart to this earth which its sorrows have broken?"

These words assured him that the true Katrine and not the spirit was before him, and he slowly approached her saying,

"I come, to crave the boon of pardon from one so deeply injured as you have been."

A sweet smile beamed on her placid countenance as she said,

"It is granted, and may kind Heaven forgive all your wanderings, as freely as I now forgive your falsehood. I have found the bitterness of earthly sorrow, and for awhile brooded sadly over disappointed love, but the deep dream now is past. For years my hopes have been fixed upon a brighter world, and not one lingering trace of earthly idolatry has mingled in my devotions. I would have secluded myself in the sacred walls of a monastery, but my heart clings with fondness to my father's halls. I have traced the Creator's power in the starry heavens and stolen abroad to view the glories of nature in the pure moonlight. This has given rise to the superstitions of the peasantry, and I have carefully avoided undeceiving them lest they should intrude upon my retirement. And now, farewell. My sands of life are well nigh spent, and I shall soon join my sainted parents in Heaven. Leave me in solitude, I entreat you, lest the lingering spell be thrown upon me. Once more farewell."

Thus saying she motioned to the door where he had entered, and he retured in sadness of spirit. A few weeks after, the form of Katrine was deposited in the family vault, and the castle remained untenanted. The peasantry still call it the Haunted Castle, asserting that the fair lady of Ehlendorf is seen to wander by moonlight over its crumbling towers.

CRIME IN IRELAND.

We find in the Liverpool Mercury the following statement, procured from an official source, which gives a return of the comparative state of crime in Ireland for the last four years, with the amount of reduction of duty on whiskey in 1840, and the number of persons who have signed the pledge of tee-totalism in that country up to January, 1841. It is well remarked that, when the state of crime for the last year is contrasted with that of the preceding ones, and it is remembered that the Temperance movement in Ireland became vigorous only in 1840, it is but just to recognise teetotalism as one of the most powerful agents which has yet appeared for the moral regeneration of the people, and to hope that, as the good work progresses, vice and misery will disappear with their prolific parent, drunkenness, and physical, moral and social, and political improvement mark the progress of the great peaceful revolution, which is one of the most extraordinary events of the present time.

Common assault	30,380	33,901	26,305	20,793

The increase of drunkenness in 1838 is not to be attributed to any actual increase, but to the greater diligence of the police, in consequence of a circular directing their greater attention to taking up drunkards. The falling off of the duty on whiskey in the year 1840 amounts to £500,000; add cost at £500,000; saving to the consumers £1,000,000.

The estimate of those who have taken the pledge, much pains having been taken to make it accurate, by parties bound to make a faithful return, unconnected with the system, is 3,500,000.

The editor of the Liverpool Mercury says with much justice that before Father Mathew, with his three million four hundred thousand followers, every public man sinks into the shade, and, when the results of his bloodless victory are contemplated, he well merits the appellation of the greatest benefactor his country ever knew.—Bos. Mer. Jour.

ANOTHER INDIAN MURDER. The Editor of the Savannah Georgian has received by the General Taylor, Capt. Peck, the following letter, from an esteemed correspondent:

PILATKA, (E. F.) May 5, 1841. Dear Sir:—The Western Mail, this afternoon, brings us the mortifying news that the war is not over yet. On the afternoon of the 3d inst. a citizen was shot near Fort Traver, by the Indians; he was penetrated by three balls; yesterday morning he was still alive, and said he saw two of the Indians when they fired. The troops at Micanopy, as soon as the news arrived, were instantly put in motion, to drive these daring marauders from their present haunts near the settlements. It is supposed this outrage was done by Alleckiustcenuggee's band, who has lately refused to come into Tampa Bay to negotiate—leaving it to be inferred he intends to be hostile.

T. M. Moore, late Cashier of the Philadelphia Loan Company, has been acquitted of the charges preferred against him, and released.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS
AND VEGETABLE BITTERS.

THE perfectly safe, unerring and successful treatment of almost every species of disease by the use of MOFFAT'S LIFE MEDICINES, is no longer a matter of doubt, as a reference to the experience of many thousand patients will satisfactorily prove. During the present month alone, nearly one hundred cases have come to the knowledge of Mr. Moffat, where the patient has, to all appearance, effected a permanent cure by the exclusive and judicious use of the Life Medicines—some eight or ten of these had been considered beyond all hope by their medical attendants.—Such happy results are a source of great pleasure to Mr. M. and inspire him with new confidence to recommend the use of his medicines to his fellow-citizens.

The Life Medicines are a purely VEGETABLE preparation. They are mild and pleasant in their operation, and at the same time thorough—acting rapidly upon the secretions of the system—carrying off all acrimonious humors, and assimilating with and purifying the blood. For this reason, in aggravated cases of dyspepsia, the Life Medicines will give relief in a shorter space of time than any other prescription; in Fever-and-ague, Inflammation, Fevers of every description, Sick headache, heartburn, dizziness in the head, pains in the chest, flatulency, impaired appetite, in every disease arising from an impurity of the blood, or a disordered state of the stomach, the use of these medicines has always proved to be beyond doubt greatly superior to any other mode of treatment.

All that Mr. Moffat asks of his patients is to be particular in taking them strictly according to the directions. It is not by a newspaper notice, or by any thing that he himself may say in their favor, that he hopes to gain credit, it is alone by the results of a fair trial. Is the reader an invalid, and does he wish to know whether the life medicines will suit his own case? If so let him call or send to Mr. Moffat's agent in this place, and procure a copy of the Medical Manual, designed as a domestic guide to health, published gratuitously. He will here find enumerated very many extraordinary cases of cure; and perhaps some exactly similar to his own. Moffat's medical office in New York, 175 Broadway, and for sale by the Agents. JAS. BOOZ, No. 9 Fleet street.

DAVIES' FAMILY PILLS.

(From a very Respectable Farmer.)

STAFFORD COUNTY, VA. SEPT. 7th, 1840.

Dear Sir:—I write to let you know that the Lord has done great things for me, whereof I am glad. When I saw you in Fredericksburg, I think I said that I had been afflicted with a very acid (sour) stomach, and subject to a violent pain in my head for more than twenty years, for which I took rhubarb and soda three or four times every day for these many years, with little or no relief, and my legs and ankles were so much swelled that I was unable, at times, to attend to my business. But since you made me a present of a box of your Family Pills I have taken 1 or 2 of them at night in going to bed, and now my acid stomach is relieved, the swelling in my legs has nearly disappeared, and I do not think that I have been hindered one day with the pain in my head since I began to take your valuable medicine. I think the Lord directed you to Fredericksburg, to administer to my relief. (Blessed be his holy name, I am greatly relieved.) There is living in my neighborhood a poor old woman who had been sick for a long time and could not get relief; at length I purchased a box of your pills and gave them to her, after awhile I saw her out and about her business, and she said that the one box had cured her. I have spread the fame of your valuable medicine amongst my acquaintances, and many have purchased. Now, as I suppose myself, my friends tell me when I go to town, that they have not seen me look so well for many years, and I say to them, 'I will tell you the secret why; about three ago I met with a Dr. Davies in town, and he gave me a box of pills, and they have made me look as you now see me.' And now, my friend, I hope that the Lord will continue to be with you, and make you useful to your fellow creatures, as he has hitherto done. I remain with respect, CHARLES BRUCE.

CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold; having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption, I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. Please publish this certificate, with my name in full, that others may know where to find the greatest blessing on earth.

It may be asked how such Hats can be sold (if as represented) at such very low prices; I answer in the first place, I manufacture very extensively, and am able to purchase materials by the quantity much lower than if I bought by the small; and secondly, I sell for cash, and do not have to charge those who pay a high price, to make up for those who do not pay, as the natural result of the credit system. I think my Hats the best as now offered ever sold in this market for the price. Persons will please call and look at my hats before purchasing elsewhere. BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 14, 1841.

THE OCEAN for this week, containing all the choice matter of the daily, latest intelligence from every quarter, tales, poetry, editorials, &c. can be had at the counter this morning, or any time during next week, done up in wrappers, or otherwise. Price 6¼ cts. per single copy; $1.50 in advance per annum.

☞ From what we have seen in the public journals, we have reason to believe, that, in compliance with the President's recommendation, to-day will be generally observed as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer. In the city of Baltimore, there will be religious exercises in the various churches, and a general cessation from labor.

In accordance with our announciation yesterday, we shall not issue a paper to-morrow—and the office will be closed after 9 o'clock this morning.

☞"He that refuseth instruction despiseth his own soul: but he that heareth reproof getteth understanding."—Proverbs.

When the Spectator was in a course of publication, Addison was repeatedly assailed by anonymous correspondents, who imagined that his general comments on vice and immorality were designed to have an individual application. They were conscious that the imaginary characters which he had drawn could be appropriated to themselves, and could not be persuaded that the author did not intend them as personal delineations. To these objectors Addison replied, that whenever a hundred individuals could not be found who would not apply his general censures to themselves, he would confess that he intended to be personal. The same sensitiveness exists at the present time. There is scarcely a sermon preached, or a moral essay published, that does not touch upon the weak point or controlling passion of some individual, who immediately supposes that the speaker or writer has a personal allusion. Such persons, instead of receiving instruction and correcting the errors of which they have been guilty, too frequently become irritated, and in their excitement, lose the opportunity of improvement. The man who thus acts, in the language above quoted, "despiseth his own soul." Few persons are so perfect as to have no failing or propensity which does not require correction—and those who do not wilfully cherish evil passions, and desire to continue in censurable practices, will listen to, and profit by, reproof, though administered in general terms, and without a view to their particular conditions. A miser will wince when the sinfulness of avarice is depicted, and charge upon the speaker or writer, the design to insult him; and thusit is with transgressors of every class. Conscience pricks them into the betrayal of offences which might have remained secluded from public view, but for the self-application of some remark which has carried conviction. "He that heareth reproof getteth understanding." It is immaterial whether this reproof be administered incidentally or with premeditation; it should cause self-examination, and, as a necessary consequence, a salutary restraint upon our passions in future life.

If all men were to refuse religious instruction because the minister denounced a sin of which they had been guilty, there would be little occasion for churches; for none are exempt from transgression—and yet men are displeased to have their errors pointed out. They can patiently listen where they suppose the censure to be pointed at their neighbor, but if it be directed towards their own faults, they writhe under the infliction, and charge upon the minister the injustice of intending to make public their offences.—Such is their inconsistency. We should be willing to receive instruction from every source, and submit to reproof whenever merited—for the next best thing to not committing an error, is the correction of it; as we are told that "the amended fault shall be forgiven."

RAIL ROAD NOTES. We contradicted a statement which appeared in a small morning paper some days since in relation to the above notes. We had then the very best authority for so doing, viz: the word of a responsible gentleman engaged in the office of the company. It would appear, however, from the Patriot of yesterday, that subsequent arrangements must have been made to refuse the redemption of all notes or orders issued by the company in case the acceptance by the commissioners holding the stock for the redemption of these orders happen to be torn off. That such notes were redeemed on the day we received our information is beyond doubt, but that they are now refused seems to be equally certain.

STEAMER PRESIDENT. We think it useless to publish the various versions of the same stories in relation to the probable safety of this vessel. We have no confidence in the reports which have been published, and must therefore wait the arrival of more authentic information. If the President reached Madeira in a dismantled state, a few days will bring us certain intelligence—at all events, the next steamer from England will settle the question of her safety or destruction. We have but slight hope of the former.

AN EARTHQUAKE. An earthquake occurred at Lima, South America, on the 22d Dec. last, which shock off the roof of a school-house, and buried twenty scholars and three masters beneath the ruins. All but one were taken out alive

THE REPUBLICAN. In the few remarks which we made in Wednesday's paper on what we thought to be an illiberal reference to the misfortune of a gentleman who has recently received an appointment, and whose high character and talents cannot be questioned, we did not design to ruffle the temper of our neighbor of the Republican—nor had our observations the slightest political cast. But the editor affects surprise that we should not have uttered a lament over some of the officers who have been removed. We have expressed no opinion as to the propriety or impropriety of the changes which have taken place, because, as neutrals, we have had nothing to do with the political movements of the day—but, had any of the Whig editors urged the removal of an opponent because of his having been wounded, or of any other affliction which he could not control, we should have rebuked them for their illiberality, with the same freedom that we have used towards the Republican. To speak contemptuously of an officer because he has a wooden leg, a broken arm, or a defective eye, might afford amusement to the unthinking and heartless; but the editor of the Republican will admit that such a mode of warfare is not legitimate. We do not doubt that he possesses the "milk of human kindness," but we thought that his milk had become a little soured in the case alluded to, and it was to restore it to its wonted purity that we gave him the jog of which he complains. We are glad that he disavows all intention to "sport with personal calamities," and we were sorry that he gave room to suspect that he had a different design—but when he spoke of converting the Post Office into an hospital for the blind, &c. we thought him guilty of unbecoming levity, and that he had permitted his political predilections to smother his better feelings.

We disavow all political bias in what we have said. We have in no instance done, or intended to do, injustice to Mr. Vansant; on the contrary, we have expressed our entire approbation of his conduct as a public officer. It is natural and right that the editor of the Republican should object to his removal; and we have urged nothing against his exercise of this right. It is only when he seizes upon an affliction with which his successor has been visited by Providence, (but which does not disqualify him for the office he holds,) and comments upon it in terms of seeming reproach, that we think ourselves at liberty to interfere, and to beg him to forbear.

We mean still to adhere to our neutral position, though our neighbor seems desirous to force us out of it. We shall preserve an "armed neutrality" for self-preservation in these times of party conflict, lest we receive a chance blow when in a defenceless state.

AN EXPERIMENT was recently made at New Orleans, by an English gentleman, on the notes of one of the city banks in the presence of the officers and of sundry citizens, by which he demonstrated his ability to efface totally, and without leaving a solitary trace, every ink mark existing on the face of the notes. The impressions made by the ink were removed by the feather point of a quill imbued with some chemical preparation compounded by the gentleman in question. He thus established with perfect ease that certificates of deposite and other bank documents in writing can be altered for purposes of counterfeiting. After this experiment, he wrote a few lines on a piece of ordinary writing paper, and sent it to an experienced chemist, declaring that it was impossible to remove it. He has offered to vend his secret to the various banking institutions at a reasonable rate. The same gentleman has made known his discovery to the Bank of England.

MORE POISONED CHEESE. Mention has heretofore been made in relation to this matter. The New Orleans Picayune of the 5th inst. says that eight of the Sisters of Charity attached to the Hospital in that city were badly poisoned on the Friday previous, by partaking of cheese purchased in market. They were taken with violent vomiting and cramps, but by the timely assistance of the physicians were relieved after much suffering, and are now doing well, although weak from the effects. On analyzing the cheese it was found to contain a large quantity of verdigris. Several of the Sisters who did not partake of it at supper were not in the least affected, proving that the cheese and nothing else could have occasioned the sickness of the others.

ANOTHER OF THE ST. LOUIS MURDERERS ARRESTED. We learn by the Cincinnati Chronicle of the 5th inst., that the mulatto SEWARD, alias SEWELL, charged with having been implicated in the late atrocious murders at St. Louis, was arrested a few days since at the mouth of the Ohio, on board the steamboat Atalanta, and made a confession corroborating the statement of Ennis in all respects. He was carried back on the Pre-emption to St. Louis; and from the violent excitement existing there, it was feared he would be sacrificed by the mob the moment he landed.

NATIONAL THEATRE. Master Diamond made his first appearance last night to a crowded audience, and although expectation was raised to the very highest pitch, the well-merited applause proved that none were disappointed. Master Diamond is the most extraordinary dancer we have ever witnessed, and the bare mention of his name to appear this evening and to-morrow also cannot fail to fill the little National to overflowing.

A DOUBLE-HEADED CHICKEN. The editor of the Norfolk Herald has been shown a strange phenomenon in the shape of a double-headed chicken. It has (says the Herald) two distinct heads, the bills projecting nearly at right angles to each other. It had three eyes, one on each side of the head, and one in the centre between the two bills. The formation of the other parts of its body appeared to be perfect.

A POLITICAL EXHORTATION. We clip from a political journal the following humorous exhortation to the people to go to the polls on Monday next. It is hardly surpassed by that of the witches in Macbeth to the spirits under their control. The writer has made an odd arrangement of professions. After coupling "lawyers and fiddlers" together, we would advise him to keep out of court, unless he has a fancy to dance without music. He must be a wag; and as we prefer merriment to moroseness, even in political matters, we will help to render his exhortation immortal by permitting it to sail down the stream of time on board of the Baltimore Clipper:

"Come out to the Polls, then, with a determination to succeed. Come in your highest and best array. Let the grey-beards come; those who voted in 1800; to strike another blow at the enemies of the Constitution. Let the young men come; they who have just thrown away their indentures; and signalize their first act of manhood in the good cause. Let the native and naturalized citizen come. Let the sweaty laborer wipe his brow and give the day to the cause; it is his own day. Let the idle man be industrious, and for once do his duty. Come out, Journeymen and Masters; Captains and Rank and File; Bos and Devil! Sons of Neptune, give a long pull, a strong pull, and pull all together. Sons of Vulcan, throw off your leather aprons. Down with your lapstones monks of St. Crispin. Away with your needles, you who straddle the camel. Come out Joiners and Masons, Merchants and Doctors; and Stock-jobbers, Saddlers, Coopers, Hatters, School-masters, and Dancing-masters. Turn out Glass-blowers, Nailers, Brazires, Railroad Men, Lawyers and Fiddlers, Tobacco Men, Shipwrights, Wheelrights, all sorts and kinds, TURN OUT.

Let those who are light of heart, and those who are heavy of spirit, Bachelors and Benedicts, get to the polls."

FRAUD ON THE BANK OF TENNESSEE. We purposely omitted last week, says the Nashville Banner of the 4th inst., mentioning the discovery of a fraud on the Bank of Tennessee, by means of forged notes which were discounted and the proceeds obtained thereon. The number of notes, we understand to be fourteen, amounting in all to $6,900. They principally purport to have been drawn and endorsed by citizens (fictitious) of Wilson and Rutherford counties, and were accompanied with recommendations, also forged, from the gentlemen, Directors, residing in those counties, pronouncing them "good." We understand this morning that a portion of them have been traced to a citizen of Rutherford county, who has been arrested, and several persons, accompanied by an officer and a clerk of the Bank, have proceeded to Murfreesborough to attend to his examination before a Magistrate.

BOSTON SPIRIT. We learn by the Boston Post, that a meeting of the citizens of the easterly section of Roxbury was held at the Town Hall, on Saturday evening, 8th May, when it was resolved "that the best tribute to the memory of Gen. Harrison, will be the voluntary assumption of his debts, and a suitable provision for his children by the whole people." A committee was appointed, at the head of which is Gen. H. A. S. Dearborne, to receive contributions for the purpose.

THE GIBRALTER EXAMINATION. The New York Courier alludes to the examination of Capt. Bowman by the British Consul, and says,—"The opinion of nearly every one present at the examination is, that the vessel seen was not the President. Capt. Merry, Port Warden, and Capt. Parkinson, master of a British ship, coincided with Capt. Bowman, in the opinion, that under the circumstances it would have been useless to make the attempt to reach the wreck.

DISEASE AMONG HORSES. The Philadelphia Ledger states that a disease called the blind distemper, is now prevailing to a considerable extent among horses in that city. Several very valuable animals have lately fallen a prey to it. One or two establishments have lost three or four each.

SAD OCCURRENCE. The Wilmington Republican of the 12th inst., states that yesterday afternoon Mr. James Donnelly, while engaged in grinding spindles at his factory on the Brandywine, was so severely injured by the bursting of a grindstone, that no hope is entertained of his recovery.

The New York Courier and Enquirer of Wednesday says—We learn from the Evening Journal, that an officer has been despatched with documents from Governor Seward to the Canadian authorities, requesting the delivery of Mitchell, the forger.

FOUR RAINBOWS. The New York Sun of Wednesday says—"At half past six o'clock last evening, there were no less than four rainbows in our eastern horizon. The lower one was the most intensely bright and beautiful we ever saw. The second was as strongly defined as is usual, and the two higher ones were less distinct."

U. S. SHIP CONSTELLATION. A letter from on board the U. S. ship Constellation dated at Rio Janeiro, March 2d, states that Com. Kearney, after he took command of the ship, gave the men permission to go on shore, and that an apprentice boy by the name of Moore, of Charlestown, Mass. stabbed a man by the name of Miller, who died of the wounds received.—Boston Ev. Gaz.

A CASHIER DECAMPED. Private letters, says the N. Y. Express, received in this city, state that Mr. Barker, cashier of the Branch Bank of the State of Georgia, had decamped, and that there is a deficiency of $73,000.

FLOUR AND WHEAT. During the first week in May, 23,161 barrels of flour, and 4241 bushels of wheat were delivered from the Erie Canal at tide water.

☞ We are requested to state that there will be no Chemical Lecture at the University of Maryland this afternoon.

Potatoes are selling in the Philadelphia markets at 87½ cents and a dollar a bushel.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—As a working man myself, and a friend to workingmen, and as one desirous to see the principles of the Whig party fully made known in the present canvass, I take the liberty to ask of you the publication of the subjoined letter written by Mr. John P. Kennedy to the writer of this in February last. This letter was not designed for publication, being written in a private correspondence on a question relating to the appointments, which it was supposed would be made by the new administration. As it shows not only what were Mr. Kennedy's sentiments in regard to the interests of the workingmen of Baltimore, but also points out the judicious and impartial course which he felt it his duty to pursue on the subject of applications for office; and as in both points of view, it does him credit as one who is placed before this district, in the character of the Whig candidate for Congress, I have ventured upon its publication. It will show that upon the important question of sustaining the industry and promoting the welfare of our mechanics, Mr. Kennedy's principles are such as entitle him to their warmest support. Very respectfully yours,

A MECHANIC.

Baltimore, May 8, 1841.

BALTIMORE, FEB. 13, 1841.

My Dear Sir:—I can assure you that if the Central Committee have determined to take a part in the matter of appointments to office, it is certainly without my knowledge, and wholly against my conception of their proper duty. I do not believe that they have done so or mean to do it, and am, indeed, so informed by one of that body. I have not attended their meetings for the last month, and therefore cannot speak from personal knowledge.

I agree with you that the highest consideration is due to the mechanics of Baltimore, and I hope the Government will lose no fitting opportunity to show them the esteem in which they are deservedly held. It has always been my opinion that the Whig party was the only true workingman's party; and that whilst the measures of our opponents were calculated to injure and empoverish that class of our fellow citizens, we have ever been, from the first, strenuously fighting in their defence. And I believe, moreover, that General HARRISON'S administration will be found to be emphatically the administration for the protection and defence of labor. The last twelve years have been the harvest of speculators, brokers, bankers, jobbers and money changers, of office holders, contractors and court favorites—but especially of the overgrown rich, and the enemies of the poor man. It has been the reign of demagogues, principally culled from the ranks of Old Federalism, who, under the name of Democracy, and with the pretence of friendship for labor, have been stealing something from the pot of every poor man in the country. Thank Heaven! that day has gone by, and the time has come to show the abused and misled workingman who are his true friends. As long as I shall have the means of expressing a sentiment in public, they shall be used to show the industrious classes of our country how foully they have been imposed upon by the men who have so long been pretending to be their friends; and I think in this resolve I but echo the feeling of every Whig in the country.—Indeed I am convinced that the great body of the Whigs are the workingmen themselves.

As regards your application, I am obliged to say to you what I have said to our other friends, that I could not write letters or sign petitions in favor of any—feeling, that in doing so I should be obliged to sign for all who called upon me, (which would render my interference useless) or to express preferences which I am anxious to avoid.

This has induced me from the first to keep aloof from these matters—but I will say to you, what I have said to others, that if I should be called to testify as to the character of the applicants, I will speak as favourably of those of my fellow-citizens who may be presented, as my acquaintance with their standing in this community may allow. I am sure you will see in the peculiar position which I hold to our friends at this time, the entire necessity and propriety of the course I have adopted.

With the kindest wishes towards yourself,

I am very truly yours,

m14-2t J. P. KENNEDY.

MECHANICS,
BEWARE OF THE TRAP, HEAR THE WORDS OF AN OLD FRIEND.

I am a Working man—a Mechanic—and earn my bread by my own labors; and I take a good deal of interest in what is going on.—There is one subject upon which I have made up my mind—and that is the value of the Protective system to all Mechanics in this country. I believe that that is the great American Question of this day, and I don't mean to be humbugged out of my support of it by names. I go for the protection of AMERICAN industry against the industry of all other nations. I say, if our workmen can make a hat, or a pair of boots, or a coat for our own people to wear, or an axe, a hatchet or a pair of hinges, or any thing else that we want, don't let them be run down by importing hats, boots, coats, and these other articles from other countries.—That's my motto; and that's the motto of the Working men of Baltimore:—our own labor in preference to all other nations' labor!

I see that those who call themselves the Democratic party in this city, have come out against the Tariff and Protection of American Industry, and I therefore think it is high time that the Mechanics should look to what is passing.

Every day, for some time past, there has been something published in the Republican of this city as well as in the Washington Globe, against the Tariff and the Protective System. Ever since John C. Calhoun has joined their party, they have changed their principles. Twelve years ago no Mechanic could be found against the Tariff. But things are altered now, and men who used to be democrats are going full tilt against all of my old notions as to what was right to be done for the benefit of the Mechanical interests. It is amazing to me to see Messrs. Gallager and Murray paraded before this city as the men who are to take care of the Working men. They are the candidates of this new fashioned democracy party, and every body is asked to vote for them because, as they say, nobody can take care of the interests of the Mechanics as well as they. Now, Messrs. Gallagher and Murray are against the Protective System, and pretend to believe that it is unconstitutional to lay a duty upon importations for the sake of protecting our own workmen in what they make. With these principles how can they serve the interests of the Mechanics? And is it not an insult to the understanding and good sense of the Mechanics to suppose that they are to be caught by the empty trick of calling a man a WORKING MAN; and that they will vote for such a man, for the sake of the name, when his principles are directly opposed to their interests? I don't care what trade Mr. Gallager and Mr. Murray follows; I say that unless they are in favor of protecting American Industry they cannot be friends to the Working men of this country. And as their party have come out in resolutions against the Tariff System, neither they nor their party are entitled to the support of the Mechanics of Baltimore.

The Whig candidates are open and avowed friends of protection. Mr. Kennedy, especially, is known all over the United States, as the firm, unflinching advocate of the rights and interests of the working classes. He has labored in this cause more than any man in this State, and has written several pamphlets in its defence, which have won for him a reputation amongst the working men of the nation of the most honorable character. It would be very unlike the mechanics of Baltimore if they could forget this, and if they did not regard it as a pledge that their interests would be much safer in his hands than in those of a man who, though a mechanic himself, is avowedly hostile to the principles of protection. If they are true to themselves, they will vote for that ticket which is known to be friendly in principle and practice to the interests of industry, and take good care not to be caught in the trap which Southern Nullifiers have set to catch the working men of the Northern and Middle States. It is not by crying out "I am a mechanic, look at my apron, look at my brow, look at my hands!"—that we mechanics are to be caught. We want principles as well as a hard hand—consistency, as well as sweat on the brow, before we can be enlisted in favor of any man. For one, I despise all cant about a man's business, and go for things, not words. I would advise my brother mechanics to beware of the trap!

☞ Mr. EDITOR—I will feel obliged if you will publish the following: Six years ago I embarked for New Orleans in search of employment in the capacity of carpenter, leaving in this city a large family. Soon after my arrival in New Orleans, I was induced, from the celebrity of "Carr's Bank for Prizes," to purchase a quarter ticket from him—the next day, what was my astonishment to find my ticket had drawn the quarter of the highest prize, $20,000! I returned to Baltimore a rich man, and have been residing here ever since. Passing accidentally along Pratt street yesterday, I was agreeably surprised to find my old friend "CARR" had hoisted his flag at No. 28 PRATT STREET, next door to Charles street—so I stepped in and bought a quarter ticket, which came out a prize of 500 Dollars! I take pleasure, in justice to this great Vender of Prizes, in thus recommending him to the patronage of the public. [m14-1t] "MECHANIC."

NOTICE TO TRAVELLERS.

WASHINGTON CITY, §
STEAMER AUGUSTA, May 12th, 1841.

We, the undersigned, passengers from Philadelphia to the South, hereby caution the public against the publications made by the Chesapeake Bay Line, and the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road.

On our arrival at Baltimore, on the 11th inst. we had our baggage taken to the steamboat. After walking down to the wharf, nearly a half mile, we had to go to the extra expense of retracing our steps back with our baggage to the depot, as there was no boat for the South that evening, although the Philadelphia Cars were flooded with bills stating that the boat left the wharf daily. Upon inquiry, we find that they had no boat out for the south on the 2d, 5th, or 8th of this month, making four failures in 11 days. Believing it to be an act of justice to all other travellers, we publish this to keep them from being placed in the same difficulty.

COUNTY COURT.

In the case of the commissioners of Lotteries in the name of the State of Maryland against Edward P. Roberts, to recover the sum of $30 fine for selling Town Hall Lottery tickets, as deemed by them, in violation of law, which has occupied the court for several days past, the court delivered its opinion yesterday morning, the substance of which we give below. This was an appeal case from a magistrate, where judgment was entered, by consent of parties, pro forma for defendant, for the purpose of taking it up to the County Court.

The court, after referring to the Act of Assembly making it unlawful for any person or persons to sell lottery tickets without license, and another prohibiting the opening of an office or putting out a sign announcing there were tickets for sale, &c., proceeded to its opinion on the points contended for by the counsel for the appellant in this case, and the act itself of 1838, creating the Town Hall Lottery. The first point was whether the Town Hall commissioners have the power to sell tickets without license. The act invests in them the power to raise the sum of $150,000 by disposing of schemes or tickets, and provides no compensation for them as commissioners, and the court cannot conceive that the Legislature meant these gentlemen should advance their own money to pay for a license; besides the 1st section of the act granting this lottery declares it shall be done free from all taxes whatever. The court held that the license laid on venders of lottery tickets is done, with all other taxes on lotteries, for the purpose of revenue, and is therefore a tax on their business or profession; that being for the sole purpose of revenue, it is totally different from a license imposed for a police restriction, and the court are decidedly of the opinion that the words of the act "without being subject to any tax whatsoever" comprehends this tax also. That it is a tax and nothing more there can be no doubt, for the very law creating the license calls it such. The second point is—"If so, can they confer the power to sell tickets to others without license." The court are of opinion they can, and it is not to be presumed that the Legislature meant the commissioners to advance several thousand dollars to buy licenses for some twenty or more agents necessary to carry out the intentions of the act. But this point had not been contended for by one of the counsel. The third is—can unlicensed dealers, acting as agents of the Town Hall commissioners, be compensated for their services by a proportion of the sales they make of tickets. The court are of opinion they can—that as agents they must be compensated, and as there is no other provisions for paying them, it is the only obvious way to let them make a profit on the tickets. If they are allowed to make too much, it does not affect the question, but may only be viewed as an indiscretion on the part of the commissinners. The court, however, are disposed to view it only as a reasonable compensation, for by the showing of the counsel, it may take some twenty years to raise the sum contemplated, which, divided among the number of agents, would not average more than about $400 per year to each.

The fourth is—can those having license sell tickets in this lottery without authority from the proper authorities. The court hold that the commissioners may appoint whom, in their discretion, they choose to sell tickets, and therefore could not be bound to appoint those already licensed to sell because that would put it in the power of them if they were so disposed, of defeating the object of the grant.

The counsel for the appellant urged that this grant may last more than twenty years, and is striking a death blow at the lottery system, by which the state derives a handsome revenue.

The court are still of opinion that the state was willing that so much as this would take from her revenue should be sacrificed to gain the object contemplated. The state wanted a building to be used as an Armory. The city of Baltimore a Town Hall; the state not deeming itself able to appropriate $150,000 for the purpose, proposed to raise it by lottery; the city had appropriated the ground, and had consented to pull down one of her market houses. Here is a compact. The state declare the lottery shall be exempt from all tax whatsoever. No tax on the lottery system previous to its creation could touch it. None has been imposed since, and the court are of the opinion could not be, for it would approach to a violation of a contract to which this city is a party. The court are therefore of the opinion the persons selling tickets in the Town Hall Lottery are not offending against the law prohibiting the sale of lottery tickets without a license.

The jury, without leaving their seats, found a verdict for the appellee.

Counsel for the state, Messrs. McMahon, Schley, Campbell and Steele.

For E. P. Roberts, R. Johnson and C. F. Mayer, Esqrs.

The actions against the others, viz: J. Bateman, W. G. Cook, T. R. Scott, J. Fishac, E. Lukens and Emory & Co., are all decided by this case.

Sylvester Coats, colored man, charged with assaulting Danl. Harmony. Released by Squire Stewart on giving security. Edward Harris, charged with assaulting Danl. Harmony. Committed.

Rowdy Boys. Complaint was made yesterday at the Police Office of the collection of boys who are in the habit every evening of meeting at the corner of Wilk and Exeter-sts., and having regular pitched battles, much to the annoyance of the neighbors and those who have to pass that way. Officers were yesterday despatched to quell them, and succeeded in arresting two of the party, Peter Johnson and Saml. Rockelor.—These scenes are disgraceful, and the boys had better be on the look-out, as those whose duty it is to see good behaviour observed are about, and will pounce down upon offenders before they are aware of it.

For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

DEAR SIR—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,

"NO CURE NO PAY."

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, is its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors, by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

Persons residing at any distance, can have medicine sent to them, packed secure from observation.

It was out of pure motives of philanthropy, that this medicine was first made public; the price always to remain $1 per Bottle, to be within the reach of the most unfortunate.

WONDER OF THE WORLD! AND GLORY OF THE AGE.

PELION UPON OSSA!
A double—double Yankee Nation—
Enough to double all creation.

THE Publishers of the Universal Yankee Nation, encouraged by the unprecedented success of the two Double Sheets which they have issued, are now preparing to issue a DOUBLE DOUBLE YANKEE NATION! on a scale of magnificence totally unapproachable by any other press in the WORLD; and although the enterprize will throw upon our shoulders

"Double, double, toil and trouble—
Fame is not an empty bubble!"—

and we are determined to make it emphatically "the glory of the age and wonder of the world." The sheet will measure EIGHT THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED AND FORTY SQUARE INCHES.

The list of contents for this magnificent publication will be on a scale with the paper itself. They will consist in part of FORTY COMPLETE TALES of various descriptions.

The publication day will be fixed as soon as we obtain the requisite quantity of paper for an edition of 50,000 COPIES!

It will probably be issued as early as the 25th of May if not earlier.

As our press is the largest ever yet built, so we are determined to PRINT THE LARGEST PAPER WHICH CAN BE PRINTED, cost what it may. We CAN do it—and we WILL do it.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.

GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	"	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	"	Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	"	Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	"	Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	"	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	"	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	"	Charleston at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection throughout, whilst it is evident that Fogs! Rough Weather!! and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon; and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

☞ Passengers for the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road pay through to Petersburg, Va. For further information and Through Tickets, apply at the office of STOCKTON, FALLS & CO.

Adjoining the Philadelphia Rail Road Office,
d12-tf PRATT STREET, Baltimore.

DAILY SOUTHERN MAIL,

Via the Chesapeake Bay and Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road,

THE BALTIMORE STEAM-PACKET CO. announce to the public that the boats of their line consisting of the ALABAMA, Captain Sutton; GEORGIA, Captain Coffey; and JEWESS, Captain Holmes, having undergone a through overhaul during the past winter, are now in complete order; therefore the daily line to the South via NORFOLK and PORTSMOUTH will be resumed on Monday the 15th of March, and run in accordance with the following schedule until changed by the Post Office Department.

Leaving Baltimore daily at 4 o'clock, P. M.
Arrive at Portsmouth, at 7 " A. M.
Leaving Portsmouth, at 8 " A. M.
Arrive at Weldon, at 4 " P. M.
Wait there until 1 o'clock, A. M. for the Petersburg train.
Leave Weldon at 1 o'clock, A. M.
Arrive at Wilmington at 1 o'clock, P. M.
Leave Wilmington immediately and arrive in Charleston next morning to breakfast.

It will be seen by the above schedule that in order to render the connexion certain, it is only necessary for the Cars of the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road to arrive at Weldon prior to 1 o'clock, A. M. whereas they uniformly arrive before dark—if therefore a detention should take place at any point between Baltimore and Weldon, not occupying more than NINE HOURS, the traveller can by no possibility lay over at any point north of Wilmington. RETURNING, one of the above boats will leave Norfolk every night at 10 o'clock, and cross over to Portsmouth where she will wait the arrival of the Cars from Weldon, and depart for Baltimore as soon as the passengers and baggage are on board, arriving here in about 14 hours after departure from Portsmouth. The passengers having enjoyed all the comforts of a good nights rest, and partaken of as good fare as could be provided in the very best Hotel in the Country.

Travellers bound to Richmond or Petersburg by leaving Baltimore on Monday, Wednesday or Friday, sleep on board the bay boat, are transferred to the James River boat next morning, and arrive at their place of destination the same day by 3 or 4 o'clock, P. M.

INVALUABLE

CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold; having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption, I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. Please publish this certificate, with my name in full, that others may know where to find the greatest blessing on earth.

WILLIAM SHEPPARD.

MONDAY MORNING, MAY 17, 1841.

THE "BALTIMORE CLIPPER" which spreads her sails above, and so gallantly bears the stripes and stars, was accidentally upset on Friday last, and appeared in a small portion of our publication keel upwards—but as she is water-tight she was soon righted, without the slightest injury to vessel, officers or crew, and is again breasting the waves in magnificent style. She moves through the waters with the ease and safety of the duck, and no mistake.

"A WELL-WISHER" lectures us for "publishing communications indiscriminately, come they from whatsoever source." Were he to see the junior poring over a pile of communications which almost encloses him from view, he would admit that his censure is unjust; and confess that the favours of correspondents are not indiscriminately published. It is no slight labor to peruse and decide on the admissibility or rejection of all the communications we receive; and "A well wisher" may rely that we generally make choice of the best of the materials furnished.

☞The suggestion of "An Old Fireman" is worthy the consideration of storekeepers. Iron bars would certainly afford as great protection to a store as close shutters, and would have the advantage of preventing the use of light by thieves, and insuring more speedy discovery in case of fire. We refer the reader to the communication in to-day's paper.

THE ELECTION. To-day four Congressional ponies take the field, and each will "put his best foot foremost." Every inch of the ground will be contested; and, as they are all prime nags, there will be no flagging. We shall keep an eye that there be no jockeying; and will "cry aloud and spare not," should there be foul play.

THE FAST DAY. As we anticipated, Friday last was observed in this city, as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer, with appropriate solemnity. In the various churches discourses, adapted to the occasion, were delivered; and, the full attendance at their places of worship gave evidence of the general disposition to participate in the religious exercises of the day.

In the afternoon, the Rev. Mr. Moriarty addressed a Temperance meeting at Mount Vernon Place, in an extemporaneous speech of great eloquence and power, and of more than two hours duration. We had not the pleasure of hearing the learned and reverend gentleman, but have heard his address spoken of by those present in terms of the highest commendation. May it be effectual in the furtherance of the great cause of which it is so distinguished an advocate.

NEW YORK STATE COLONIATION SOCIETY.—It is stated in the Signal that the ninth annual reports read at the anniversary of this society, presented a very favorable account of its condition and prospects. The Treasurer's report states the total receipts of the past year at $10,266. The following expenditures have been made: For goods, &c. sent to Liberia $6,156 51; balance due the Treasurer, $951 31; office expenses, &c. $453 36; printing, &c. $782 73; repairs of ship Saluda, $560 00; salary of Cor. Secretary, $2,000 00; travelling expenses of same, $196 60; amount due by the Society at the end of the year, $2,049 19.

The report of the Managers gave an encouraging account of the colony at Liberia, cheering the Society on to renewed exertions in its philanthropic cause.

EXPLOSION. A correspondent of the N. York Herald, writing from Charleston, S. C. on the 8th inst. states that an accidental explosion had occurred at Fort Moultrie, which was now a heap of ruins. The magazine was undergoing some necessary repairs, and by some means, now unaccountable, fire and powder came in contact, and the entire structure, with seven buildings in the vicinity, were torn to atoms by the explosion of some three hundred barrels of powder. At the time of the explosion, there were several workmen and some soldiers in or near the magazine, and about forty persons in the fort. The number of lives lost has not yet been ascertained.

DISAPPEARED. George H. son of the Rev. P. Bullions, of Albany, N. Y. disappeared from that city, on Friday, the 7th inst. and, notwithstanding the most rigid inquiry and search have been made, no traces of his whereabouts have as yet been discovered. He is described as about fifteen years old, not tall for his age, rather stout than slender, has fair complexion, blue eyes, light hair, tending to a natural curl, and is frank, cheerful and civil in his manner. He was dressed in a blue cloth roundabout, black vest, dark steel mixt pantaloons, and wore a blue cloth cap with a leather front.

THE DEATH OF THE HON. CHARLES OGLE.—We learn with deep regret, says the Pennsylvania Inquirer, that the Hon. Charles Ogle, the distinguished member of Congress from Somerset county, Pa., died at his residence on Monday last. He was yet in the prime of life.

A French paper states that there is living, in possession of her faculties, at the village of Larouffe, in the Caeaze, a woman, aged one hundred and eleven years, who daily attends to the care of her cows, and who on Sunday walks a league to hear mass.

THE TARIFF. Much of the prosperity of this country has arisen from the protective system. Previous to the adoption of this system, it was a prevalent opinion among some of our most distinguished statesmen, that our workshops should be in Europe; and for some time this principle was practically carried into effect; and boots, shoes, hats, ready made clothes, and various other articles of British manufacture, were imported and sold in this country to the exclusion of those made by our own citizens. It was soon discovered, however, that this policy was ruinous to the best interests of the country, as it not only paralyzed its industry, but rendered us completely tributary to a foreign power. With the imposition of an adequate duty upon foreign productions, American mechanics and manufacturers began to flourish, and with the improvement in their condition the interests of the agriculturalists were also advanced. In fact, a spirit of vitality was breathed into the body politic, which gave to it an elasticity of movement that impelled it forward to prosperity and greatness. Suddenly, however, our country was arrested in its brilliant career by local discontent and jealousy, and a system of reduction in duties was adopted, which, whilst it quieted for the time existing dissatisfaction, is leading us into embarrassment and debt, and opening the doors to the foreign mechanic to the exclusion of those of our own community. The full effects of this impolitic and unwise measure are not yet felt; but when the reduction shall have reached its minimum, we shall not be surprised to find men in this country having their tailors, hatters and bootmakers in England, and our own mechanics destitute of employment. It is known to be the policy of England to break down our manufacturing establishments and mechanics, even at an enormous present sacrifice; because a remmuneration for losses will speedily follow a monopoly of supply. We will venture the prediction, that, after the first of January next, ready made clothes, boots, hats, &c. will be imported into this country and sold as cheap or cheaper than those of domestic manufacture.—Should this be so, we need not dwell on the deep injury which it will inflict on domestic industry. And yet there appears to exist an extraordinary infatuation upon this subject; for we find amongst the most strenuous opponents of a protective tariff, manufacturers and mechanics who are to be saved from ruin by the measure. The idea of throwing our doors open to the indiscriminate admission of all foreign productions, at a low rate of duty, or by the payment of nothing, whilst American productions are subjected in foreign ports to the heaviest duties, and even to exclusion in some cases, appears to us to be in the highest degree ridiculous. It would be to render the American people completely subservient to the interests of others. We might sow the grain, but foreigners would reap the harvest: and, to add to the evils of a total prostration of American industry and enterprise, the necessary expenses of government would have to be defrayed by direct taxation. We know that many cannot believe that this condition of things will result from the adoption of the free trade system; but we apprehend that they have not given to the subject due consideration. Let every mechanic make an individual application of the principle. For instance, a bootmaker is dependent upon his customers for the means of supporting himself and family—in other words, he relies upon the product of his own industry. Suppose that, by the reduction of the tariff, his customers are enabled to wear English boots at a cheaper price, and give them the preference—is it not evident that he must discontinue his business and resort to something else, or continue it at a sacrifice?—And yet a bootmaker will not hesitate to advocate the free trade theory, regardless of its practically injurious bearing upon his own interests. The same principle applies to all mechanical branches; and it does appear to us to be little less than suicidal in persons of this description to thus provide a stick which assuredly will break their own heads. It is a subject worthy of the most mature reflection, and should not be disposed of as a matter of minor consideration.

But, whatever difference of opinion may exist as to the expediency of a protective tariff, the propriety of levying duties upon articles of luxury for the support of government, cannot be questioned by any one who will give the subject a fair and candid examination. Articles of luxury do not enter into the consumption of the generality of the people—they are used almost exclusively by those who can best afford to contribute to the support of government. But the adversaries of a protective tariff extend their opposition even to the levy of a duty on articles of luxury. They affect to be alarmed lest the duty upon such articles should prove but an introductory move to a protective tariff; and thus, in their zeal to promote foreign industry to the prejudice of their own, they would compel the imposition of a direct tax to maintain our institutions. If their policy prevail, we shall have but a gloomy prospective—for it will be as fatal to the prosperity of the country as the simoon of the desert is to human life.

TWO YOUNG MEN DROWNED. The Columbia Spy of the 15th states that on Monday night last, as two young men, named Joshua Flickinger and David Newcomer, were engaged in fishing below the Susquehanna dam, their boat, it is supposed, capsized, and they were drowned.

Search has been made for the bodies, but to no avail.

We learn from the Boston Mail that a man named James Ferguson, who, with his son, kept a store in Ann Street, Boston, has been arrested.—A portion of the goods stolen from the store of J. Lincoln, Jr. in Union Street, and from a store in Blackstone Street, were found on the premises. This will undoubtedly furnish a key to recent burglaries in Boston.

PROTECTION AGAINST BURGLARY AND INCENDIARISM. Recent occurrences have shown that our city is infested with a gang of burglars whose exploits prove them to be adepts in their vocation; and the citizens are anxiously enquiring what means are effectual to foil the attempts of these daring villains. With a view to protection, many persons commit the serious error of so effectually closing the front of their stores and warehouses, as to prevent the watchmen, or other persons passing along the streets, from seeing into them; by which they afford far more security to the robbers than themselves. Bolts, bars, vaults, and iron safes are but poor protection against the burglar, while he has time and opportunity to exercise his skill on them. But if the front windows were secured by iron bars, instead of close shutters he would be prevented from using a light, which must be absolutely necessary for the operation of forcing a vault door, or picking a well made lock. Many persons have already removed the close shutters and use the iron bars, in such stores a burglary has never been committed, for the simple reason that the robber cannot use a light without being discovered from the street. The same reason shews that in such stores a fire could not probably make such progress as to be beyond control, without being seen and extinguished. A small aperture cut in the shutter, will not answer the purpose, as it is easily covered on the inside—nothing short of leaving the whole window or door exposed will be effectual. If such had been the case at Thomas & Co's. warehouse, it can not be doubted that they would have been saved the loss they have sustained. The expense of bars is trifling, compared with the large amount of property they are intended to protect.

AN OLD FIREMAN.

LATEST FROM TEXAS. We have by way of New Orleans, Galveston dates to the 2d inst. from which we extract the following:

News had been received at Galveston from Austin that the French loan had been negotiated at 95 cents.

A company of Texan spies, under Capt. Hays, recently had an encounter with a superior number of Mexicans near Bexar, killing three and taking twenty-five of them prisoners without the loss of a man. One of the prisoners informed Capt. Hays that Arista was in the neighborhood of Matamora.

Major Ransom has been despatched from Austin to the East, to raise troops for the Santa Fe expedition.

It was generally reported at Austin that there would be called a session of Congress, to meet about the 18th June.

Not a word is said in the papers of the rumored Mexican invasion, and every thing appears to be quiet throughout the Republic.

ANOTHER IMPECUNIARILITY. The following we find the Easton Gazette, a paper published at Easton, Md. We cannot, however, give much credit to the statement.

"We are informed," says the Gazette, "that Mrs. Cookman, now in this county, received a letter, supposed from the hand writing of the superscription and initials on the seal, to be from her husband, the Rev. George G. Cookman, on Thursday last, through our post office. It will be recollected Mr. Cookman was one of the passengers on board the steam ship President, about whose fate so much anxiety has been felt. The letter bore the Hull post mark.

THE FAST IN PHILADELPHIA. We are informed by the Philadelphia papers that the national fast was strictly observed in that city on Friday last. All the principal places of business were closed, and religious services very generally attended. Some few of the daily papers, instigated by jealousy and mercenary motives, did not, we are sorry to perceive, suspend operations.

A PROMISING BOY. There is a youth 19 years of age in Portland, Me., who weighs 330 pounds, and stands seven feet and three inches high. He says he can lift 1500 pounds at once, and with the aid of a strap over his shoulders 2200 lbs. He has a sister who can take up with ease a barrel of pork, and carry it some distance.

SWARWOUTER TAKEN. The New York Sun says that Alfred Philips, who ran away from that city with $20,000 worth of property belonging to other people, has been arrested in N. Orleans and the property recovered.

MR. GEN. GAINES AND MRS. GEN. GAINES. We learn by the New Orleans Picayune of the 8th that the great trial of these distinguished personages is yet in progress. We are farther instructed by the report, that the attorney for the defendant very abruptly withdrew from the cause—that the other lawyers for the defence refused to appear, and that great excitement prevailed in Court. Gen. Gaines and his lady both made speeches in their own defence. The Judge was compelled to call her ladyship to order as well as the General. We extract the following from the Picayune.

Here General Gaines and Mrs. Gaines suddenly started from their seats.

Gen. G.—"May it please the Court, the lady will take charge of the case herself: she is prepared to do it."

Mrs. G.—(taking the book in her hand which Mr. Peyton had been prevented from reading)—"Yes, I will proceed with the case."

The Judge.—"Do you intend to offer the testimony in that book as evidence?"

Mrs. G.—"Yes; part of it."

The Judge.—"Well, then, I cannot permit you to proceed."

Mrs. G.—"Then I thank my God! I can go before the judges of the U. S. Supreme Court, where I will be heard, and where justice will be done me; which I cannot expect here, where I see such partiality."

The Judge.—"General Gaines, this is language which I shall not suffer. Decorum must be preserved in this Court; there are no privileged classes here."

Gen. G.—"It is not my intention to be indecorous to the Court. I know my rights and will maintain them in despite of my enemies, and in despite of New Orleans and its sixteen banks."

The Judge.—"Order must be preserved in this Court."

Gen. Gaines.—"Has not your Honor acted as counsel for the opposite parties in this case before you were raised to a seat on that bench?"

Mrs. G.—"Yes, he was; and he is now sitting in judgment against us."

The judge.—"Mrs. Gaines, I again repeat that I will not sit here and suffer such language as this to be made use of, even by a woman."

During this singular discussion, one of the officers of the court was sent for Messrs. Grymes or Chinn, the associates of Mr. Peyton for the defence, to take charge of the case, but neither of them was forthcoming, and Mr. Smith again addressed the Court, urging the right of the defendants to a liberal construction of the law of evidence.

General Gaines again rose and alluded to the controversy which closed previous to Mr. Smith's addressing the Court.

The Judge.—"I have said nothing Gen. Gaines against the lady. I am sure I acted with great forbearance. I did not prevent the argument of any question of law, but I interposed to prevent a scene of wrangling which, if permitted to go on, was calculated to bring the Court into contempt, and to weaken that authority which it is bound to exercise for the preservation of order."

Gen. Gaines.—"I have something to say for which I hold myself responsible to this Court and to the world. The counsel for the plaintiffs (Mr. Roselius) said yesterday that my remarks relative to one of the parties to this suit were impertinent. This I never suffered any person to tell me before, but coming from that gentleman I let the language pass from my ear as idle wind. Since my wife has been alluded to I insist upon her right to be heard."

The Judge.—"I do not deny her right to address the court, but is the evidence closed?"

Mr. Barton, for the plaintiffs, argued that from the nature of the pleadings put in by the defendants the evidence was necessarily closed.

The Judge then gave his decision on the points of law at issue between the parties. He first ruled that the evidence offered was inadmissible, except in as far as the representatives of Ellen O'Brien was concerned, in whose suit it was originally taken; that the authority of the plaintiffs to sue as the heirs of Daniel Clarke should have been denied by a special plea, and that a subsequent will to that under which the plaintiffs sue must be specially pleaded and proof of its being probated given before it can be entertained by the Court or offered as evidence.

Mr. Barton, for the plaintiffs, addressed some remarks to the Court, to show that from the position in which the case stood the defendants could offer no evidence, nor had they any which could be received by the Court.

Gen. Gaines then said, as the evidence was closed on him, and as he was deserted by his counsel, he would take the case into his own hands. If he appeared in the uniform of a United States officer it was more as a mark of respect to the Court than as a badge of privilege.

[Here the Judge explained what he meant by "privileged characters."]

The fact of his wife being in court, he said, was no subject for a sneer. She was deeply interested in the issue of this case, and he thought that she, or any well-educated lady, or indeed any woman of an intelligent mind, was capable of forming a correct opinion of its merits as one of the other sex, and that she could as well understand it as she could the proper furbelows and flounces of her gown.

With the permission of the Court, Mrs. Gaines then rose and read to the Court and jury several pages of manuscript, being an elaborate history of her own alleged wrongs and of the artifices and devices of Richard Relf, Beverly Chew and others, to keep her from possessing or enjoying the property of the late Daniel Clarke, bequeathed to her by him, whose legitimate daughter she was and not his natural child, as they have alleged.

It being now four o'clock, the Judge discharged the jury until Monday week—the first day on which a jury sits in that Court.

NEW WAY TO MAKE A RAISE. The Boston Courier states that a woman commenced operations on Saturday, by calling on several ladies in the different parts of the city, and saying to them that Mrs.———, or Mrs.———, their next door neighbor, would feel much obliged by the loan of ten dollars. In some instances she obtained the money, and in others, where she found there was any delay, she made her escape.

GREAT FIRE AT TORONTO. The Rochester Advocate of Monday says:—We learn from two gentlemen, passengers in the Transit from Toronto, U. C., that a most destructive fire had broken out in that city on Yonge street, extending to Fewgate street, and from thence to the Methodist church. Thirty buildings destroyed.

ILLINOIS DUEL. We learn from a friend, says a St. Louis paper, that a duel was recently fought in Stevenson, (Ill.) between a gentleman lately of Philadelphia, and a resident of Stephenson.—One of the parties was shot in the arm. Cause; a lady.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

☞The erroneous report which has been so industriously circulated by a certain Edward Larrance, who is a dealer in ardent spirits, for the purpose of injuring my own reputation, and likewise the great moral reform that has and is now going on in our monumeat city, on the authority of Hugh Porter, I pronounce to be a base falsehood, and if not contradicted, will tend to bring disgrace upon me and the Society to which I belong, in the estimation of those who credit the assertion of one who cares not what he says.

DAVID POLLARD.

The facts are these:—Mr. Larrance stated to Mr. Wm. Devier and Wm. P. Pentz, that Hugh Porter came into his cellar on Saturday, the 8th of May, and there stated that he (David Pollard) came into his house and asked for some paper, or pen, ink, and paper, and while he (Hugh Porter) was getting it, he (David Pollard) took some brandy from the shelf and drank it.

The following certificate will show the falsehood of the statement, and how much reliance can be placed upon the assertion of one who endeavors to put down this great and glorious reform.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—As a working man myself, and a friend to workingmen, and as one desirous to see the principles of the Whig party fully made known in the present canvass, I take the liberty to ask of you the publication of the subjoined letter written by Mr. John P. Kennedy to the writer of this in February last. This letter was not designed for publication, being written in a private correspondence on a question relating to the appointments, which it was supposed would be made by the new administration. As it shows not only what were Mr. Kennedy's sentiments in regard to the interests of the workingmen of Baltimore, but also points out the judicious and impartial course which he felt it his duty to pursue on the subject of applications for office; and as in both points of view, it does him credit as one who is placed before this district, in the character of the Whig candidate for Congress, I have ventured upon its publication. It will show that upon the important question of sustaining the industry and promoting the welfare of our mechanics, Mr. Kennedy's principles are such as entitle him to their warmest support. Very respectfully yours,

A MECHANIC.

Baltimore, May 8, 1841.

BALTIMORE, FEB. 13, 1841.

My Dear Sir:—I can assure you that if the Central Committee have determined to take a part in the matter of appointments to office, it is certainly without my knowledge, and wholly against my conception of their proper duty. I do not believe that they have done so or mean to do it, and am, indeed, so informed by one of that body. I have not attended their meetings for the last month, and therefore cannot speak from personal knowledge.

I agree with you that the highest consideration is due to the mechanics of Baltimore, and I hope the Government will lose no fitting opportunity to show them the esteem in which they are deservedly held. It has always been my opinion that the Whig party was the only true workingman's party; and that whilst the measures of our opponents were calculated to injure and empoverish that class of our fellow citizens, we have ever been, from the first, strenuously fighting in their defence. And I believe, moreover, that General HARRISON'S administration will be found to be emphatically the administration for the protection and defence of labor. The last twelve years have been the harvest of speculators, brokers, bankers, jobbers and money changers, of office holders, contractors and court favorites—but especially of the overgrown rich, and the enemies of the poor man. It has been the reign of demagogues, principally culled from the ranks of Old Federalism, who, under the name of Democracy, and with the pretence of friendship for labor, have been stealing something from the pot of every poor man in the country. Thank Heaven! that day has gone by, and the time has come to show the abused and misled workingman who are his true friends. As long as I shall have the means of expressing a sentiment in public, they shall be used to show the industrious classes of our country how foully they have been imposed upon by the men who have so long been pretending to be their friends; and I think in this resolve I but echo the feeling of every Whig in the country.—Indeed I am convinced that the great body of the Whigs are the workingmen themselves.

As regards your application, I am obliged to say to you what I have said to our other friends, that I could not write letters or sign petitions in favor of any—feeling, that in doing so I should be obliged to sign for all who called upon me, (which would render my interference useless) or to express preferences which I am anxious to avoid.

This has induced me from the first to keep aloof from these matters—but I will say to you, what I have said to others, that if I should be called to testify as to the character of the applicants, I will speak as favourably of those of my fellow-citizens who may be presented, as my acquaintance with their standing in this community may allow. I am sure you will see in the peculiar position which I hold to our friends at this time, the entire necessity and propriety of the course I have adopted.

With the kindest wishes towards yourself,
I am very truly yours,
J. P. KENNEDY.

MECHANICS,

BEWARE OF THE TRAP, HEAR THE WORDS OF AN OLD FRIEND.

I am a Working man—a Mechanic—and earn my bread by my own labors; and I take a good deal of interest in what is going on.—There is one subject upon which I have made up my mind—and that is the value of the Protective system to all Mechanics in this country. I believe that that is the great American Question of this day, and I don't mean to be humbugged out of my support of it by names. I go for the protection of AMERICAN industry against the industry of all other nations. I say, if our workmen can make a hat, or a pair of boots, or a coat for our own people to wear, or an axe, a hatchet or a pair of hinges, or any thing else that we want, don't let them be run down by importing hats, boots, coats, and these other articles from other countries.—That's my motto; and that's the motto of the Working men of Baltimore:—our own labor in preference to all other nations' labor!

I see that those who call themselves the Democratic party in this city, have come out against the Tariff and Protection of American Industry, and I therefore think it is high time that the Mechanics should look to what is passing.

Every day, for some time past, there has been something published in the Republican of this city as well as in the Washington Globe, against the Tariff and the Protective System. Ever since John C. Calhoun has joined their party, they have changed their principles. Twelve years ago no Mechanic could be found against the Tariff. But things are altered now, and men who used to be democrats are going full tilt against all of my old notions as to what was right to be done for the benefit of the Mechanical interests. It is amazing to me to see Messrs. Gallager and Murray paraded before this city as the men who are to take care of the Working men. They are the candidates of this new fashioned democracy party, and every body is asked to vote for them because, as they say, nobody can take care of the interests of the Mechanics as well as they. Now, Messrs. Gallagher and Murray are against the Protective System, and pretend to believe that it is unconstitutional to lay a duty upon importations for the sake of protecting our own workmen in what they make. With these principles how can they serve the interests of the Mechanics? And is it not an insult to the understanding and good sense of the Mechanics to suppose that they are to be caught by the empty trick of calling a man a WORKING MAN; and that they will vote for such a man, for the sake of the name, when his principles are directly opposed to their interests? I don't care what trade Mr. Gallager and Mr. Murray follows; I say that unless they are in favor of protecting American Industry they cannot be friends to the Working men of this country. And as their party have come out in resolutions against the Tariff System, neither they nor their party are entitled to the support of the Mechanics of Baltimore.

The Whig candidates are open and avowed friends of protection. Mr. Kennedy, especially, is known all over the United States, as the firm, unflinching advocate of the rights and interests of the working classes. He has labored in this cause more than any man in this State, and has written several pamphlets in its defence, which have won for him a reputation amongst the working men of the nation of the most honorable character. It would be very unlike the mechanics of Baltimore if they could forget this, and if they did not regard it as a pledge that their interests would be much safer in his hands than in those of a man who, though a mechanic himself, is avowedly hostile to the principles of protection. If they are true to themselves, they will vote for that ticket which is known to be friendly in principle and practice to the interests of industry, and take good care not to be caught in the trap which Southern Nullifiers have set to catch the working men of the Northern and Middle States. It is not by crying out "I am a mechanic, look at my apron, look at my brow, look at my hands!"—that we mechanics are to be caught. We want principles as well as a hard hand—consistency, as well as sweat on the brow, before we can be enlisted in favor of any man. For one, I despise all cant about a man's business, and go for things, not words. I would advise my brother mechanics to beware of the trap'

NOTICE TO TRAVELLERS.

WASHINGTON CITY, }
STEAMER AUGUSTA, May 12th, 1841. }

We, the undersigned, passengers from Philadelphia to the South, hereby caution the public against the publications made by the Chesapeake Bay Line, and the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road.

On our arrival at Baltimore, on the 11th inst. we had our baggage taken to the steamboat. After walking down to the wharf, nearly a half mile, we had to go to the extra expense of retracing our steps back with our baggage to the depot, as there was no boat for the South that evening, although the Philadelphia Cars were flooded with bills stating that the boat left the wharf daily. Upon inquiry, we find that they had no boat out for the south on the 2d, 5th, or 8th of this month, making four failures in 11 days. Believing it to be an act of justice to all other travellers, we publish this to keep them from being placed in the same difficulty.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

[Reported for the Baltimore Clipper.]

BALTIMORE CITY COURT.

SATURDAY, MAY 15, 1841.

Present—Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington.

Wm. Crew, Wm. alias Fox Bosley, and Elijah Peacock, were put upon trial, charged with committing a most outrageous assault on Thomas H. Fulton, on Saturday last. Mr. Fulton testified that Crew and Bosley came into his factory in North Howard street, and commenced meddling and using very abusive language; that he ordered them to leave the place, as it was a place of work, and he could not be interrupted; that he then went into the yard to give some order, and that these two men followed him, one had a club with which he struck him (Fulton) several times; that they then gave a whoop when Peacock made his appearance with a large club; struck at him (F.) with such violence as to break the stick against the wall which it struck, was much hurt, so much so as to be unable to turn in bed the next day, they brought the clubs with them and evidently came with the intention of beating him, never gave them any provocation, Peacock's sister lives on the opposite side of the alley to his factory, and keeps a house of ill-fame, supposes they wanted to get him out of the way.

The clubs were here shown to the court, each of which were large enough to knock an ox down with; and a large stone used by one of the party. Two other men testified to the assault as above. The mother and sister and two other women were brought on the stand, on the part of Bosley, to prove that he had been struck first by Mr. Hutton, but their evidence did not clear him. The court found them guilty, and fined each $20, and sentenced them to six months imprisonment, after which to stand committed until they each give security in the sum of $100 to keep the peace.

Thomas Brasus, for assaulting Joseph Lee, a colored man, was fined $10 and costs.

John Tarring, charged with entering the tavern of Mr. McElroy, near the Lexington market, during his absence, and frightening his wife, who is in a delicate situation, by firing a pistol, was fined $10 and costs.

Abram Howard, for assaulting Rossanna Hubbard. Rose stated that Abe had been drinking, and was drunk at the time he committed the assault; that he had on one or two occasions before when he was on a spree beaten her. She also admitted she too had been indulging in a little strong drink on the occasion complained of. The court fined Abe $1 and costs.

Leach Griffin, for an assault on John Maydwell and taking money away from him. It appears Maydwell, who is an officer, had an execution on which there was a bill due from Griffin; that Griffin paid him and wanted the execution, which M. did not deem right to give; G. then seized him and took the money, which he has since returned. It appearing there was no intention of felony on the part of Griffin, and that the assault originated in a misunderstanding as to what was law, the case was entered compromised, Griffin paying the costs.

James Peregoy entered into security to answer at the June term for an assault on Alexander Thompson.

TOMB OF GEN. HARRISON. The following paragraph, which we find in the Shelby (Ky.) News of the 8th ult. seems to settle the question as to where the remains of the late honored hero, now reposing in death's untroubled sleep at the capital, shall be eventually deposited:

"We learn, from Col. Todd, that on his way to his residence in this county last week, he, in performance of a sacred duty, called upon the venerable Widow of our lamented deceased President. Whilst there, he was invited by that lady to a consultation with herself and her only remaining son, as to the ultimate depository of the remains of her distinguished and beloved husband,—the Great and Good President. It was determined, at this consultation, to remove the remains immediately to North Bend, to be deposited upon a beautiful and elevated natural mound, where the monument may be seen for several miles up and down the Ohio river. * * * There, the traveller of distant ages will be refreshed by a visit to the tomb of the Warrior, who was never defeated; of the Patriot, who died poor; and of the Statesman, who, from the proud height of President, 'fell, like a star struck from its sphere, covered with glory and renown.'"

A woman named Elizabeth Pierce, lately came to a shocking death in Lowell, Mass., from taking a quantity of oil of tansey.

WEBB'S PATENT BURNERS,
AND CAMPHINE OIL.

FOR SALE AT No. 109 E. BALTIMORE STREET, between South and Calvert streets, where Burners of every description can be obtained. Those who are sceptical as to its safety or economy, would, I trust be perfectly satisfied by examining the opinion of Professor Locke, of Ohio, on "WEBB'S CAMPHINE," or by referring to the Journals of the Franklin and American Institutes, of Philadelphia and New York. All those desirous of obtaining a clean, brilliant, and economical light, will find it ready to their advantage by calling on the subscriber. The public may be assured of one fact, that we require no meters to ascertain the amount of Camphine consumed, as they register correctly and in plain English.

☞ ASTRAL LAMPS ALTERED.

N. B. We have appointed JOSHUA ATKINSON Agent, No. 92 Market street, F. P., where all orders will meet with immediate attention.

P. AUGUSTUS BAILEY, Agent
For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

DEAR SIR—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,
mh19-tf Fifth Ward Hotel.

BALTIMORE LOCK DISPENSARY,
No. 17 HARRISON ST.
"NO CURE NO PAY."

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and efficacious in action, yet harmless to the constitution, is its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors, by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

Persons residing at any distance, can have medicine sent to them, packed secure from observation.

It was out of pure motives of philanthropy, that this medicine was first made public; the price always to remain $1 per Bottle, to be within the reach of the most unfortunate.

☞ Letters addressed, (post paid) describing the case, mode of living, &c. will be promptly attended to. Direct No. 17 Harrison street.

N. B. All sold elsewhere under the name of Hunter is a base fraud. Call and read certificates. m1 tf

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach	Baltimore	2	P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	"	Washington	6	P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	"	Fredk'sburg	12	M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	"	Richmond	5	P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	"	Petersburg	7	P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	"	Weldon	1	A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	"	Wilmington	1	P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	"	Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection throughout, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads Weather and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

STOCKTON, FALLS & CO.
Adjoining the Philadelphia Rail Road Office,
d19-tf PRATT STREET, Baltimore.

DAILY SOUTHERN MAIL,
Via the Chesapeake Bay and Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road,

THE BALTIMORE STEAM-PACKET CO. announce to the public that the boats of their line consisting of the ALABAMA, Captain Sutton; GEORGIA, Captain Coffey; and JEWESS, Captain Holmes, having undergone a thorough overhaul during the past winter, are now in complete order; therefore the daily line to the South via NORFOLK and PORTSMOUTH will be resumed on Monday the 15th of March, and run in accordance with the following schedule until changed by the Post Office Department.

Leaving Baltimore daily at 4 o'clock, P. M.
Arrive at Portsmouth, at 7 " A. M.
Leaving Portsmouth, at 8 " A. M.
Arrive at Weldon, at 4 " P. M.
Wait there until 1 o'clock, A. M. for the Petersburg train.
Leave Weldon at 1 o'clock, A. M.
Arrive at Wilmington at 1 o'clock, P. M.
Leave Wilmington immediately and arrive in Charleston next morning to breakfast.

It will be seen by the above schedule that in order to render the connexion certain, it is only necessary for the Cars of the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road to arrive at Weldon prior to 1 o'clock, A. M. whereas they uniformly arrive before dark—if therefore a detention should take place at any point between Baltimore and Weldon, not occupying more than NINE HOURS, the traveller can by no possibility lay over at any point north of Wilmington. RETURNING, one of the above boats will leave Norfolk every night at 10 o'clock, and cross over to Portsmouth where she will wait the arrival of the Cars from Weldon, and depart for Baltimore as soon as the passengers and baggage are on board, arriving here in about 14 hours after departure from Portsmouth. The passengers having enjoyed all the comforts of a good night's rest, and partaken of as good fare as could be provided in the way best Hotel in the Country.

Travellers bound to Richmond or Petersburg by leaving Baltimore on Monday, Wednesday or Friday, sleep on board the bay boat, are transfered to the James River boat next morning, and arrive at their place of destination the same day by 5 or 6 o'clock, P. M.

THE MAIDEN'S PRAYER.

She rose from her untroubled sleep,
And put aside her soft brown hair,
And, in a tone as low and deep
As loves first whisper, breathed a prayer;
Her snow white hands together press'd—
Her blue eye sheltered in its lid—
The folded linen on her breast
Just swelling with the charms it hid;
As from her long and flowing dress
Escaped a bare and tender foot,
Whose fall upon the earth did press
Like a snow white flake, soft and mute,
And there from slumbers soft and warm,
Like a young spirit fresh from Heaven,
She bowed her light and graceful form,
And humbly prayed—to be forgiven.

Oh God! if souls unsoiled as these Need daily mercy at thy throne—
If she upon her bended knees,
Our loveliest and our purest one,
She, with a face so clear and bright
We deem her some stray child of light—
If she, with those soft eyes in tears,
Day after day, in her first years,
Must kneel and pray for grace from thee,
What far, far deeper need have we'
How hardly, if she win not heaven
Will our wild errors be forgiven.

CONCERTS AND CRITICS—No. 1.

MESSRS. EDITORS: I am rejoiced to perceive that the subject of music, as pertaining to our various vocal and instrumental societies, has been taken up and discussed with tact and dignity by an eminent foreign writer in the Patriot. There is a degree of candor and liberality about the remarks of "Sol Sharp" that pleases me much; it is seldom that the musical or any other world is blessed with so unbiassed a critic or so erudite an advocate for refinement in the arts and sciences. I too am a lover of music—the "unwritten music" of nature—to me the breeze is eloquent with sweet sounds—the solitary brook has a voice that speaks to the heart, and the leaves are melodious when they are shaken by the gentle zephyrs! I can interpret the braying of an ass or the croaking of a frog—creation is alive with harmony, and even the grit of a file and saw "discourseth most eloquent music." The soft tones of the æolian harp are to me fully as pleasing as the shrill yell of the steam whistle, and I have found by analysis that the periodical cry of the watchman is the original recitativo or "musical declamation" used by the Druids when they proclaimed the laws and incited the people to heroism. As a musical people we are far behind the Esquimaux and natives of New Zealand—and it is downright presumption for us to attempt to perfect ourselves in an art which does not belong to our nature. Our atmosphere is defective, and I have even gone so far as to investigate the cause of this defect, and I think it a duty I owe the cause of science to communicate the result of my inquiries. I find that the particles which compose our atmosphere are all of the repulsive nature, or negative, the positive being confined to the latitude of Italy. That such a thing should exist must be a matter of surprise to philosophers, but it is no less true. Air being the medium through which sound is conducted to the tympanum of the ear, and the repulsive particles acting on ours, it requires no great stretch of logic to prove that our ears are attuned to "repulsive" sounds from infancy. Hence the cause of our want of tune, time and conception of harmony. The learned Fiddleo-scratchibus, who existed and wrote several thousand years before the commencement of the Christian era, very justly remarks—

"X utkpf mzceeqsoffid rbeanp raynt—esotelfft aiy anhinae ethhynu teh, ahdeee nnyae rrkshugr ravehgvt gheioe hraat gse aeshh netaa."

The aptness of these remarks must be apparent to every scholar who has studied the mystic formula of the Scandinavian colleges given out at a more recent period.

( ) X ~~ O X ! P * ~~ P X ~ []

To the general reader, who is not versed in hieroglyphics, I will merely state that this formula was the basis of the theory of sounds, and was discovered by one of the Druids at that remote period when the choral service spread from the church of Antioch to the very huts and hovels of barbarians. It was caught from the various sounds produced by frogs, and after a number of modifications, reduced to a proper form and made the study of all such as were desirous of excelling in vocal music. To explain its meaning, Messrs. Editors, would be trespassing too much upon the time of the reader and your valuable columns; suffice it by saying that though not generally used by bipeds of the present day, (unless we term frogs bipeds,) it is an excellent method of intonation, and should be used in all cases where the ear is corrupted by the mal-influence of a repulsive atmosphere.

If we cannot, as a people, excel in the art and science of music, it is a consolation to know that we can in the music of nature. I was fully convinced of this a few evenings since, when, perchance, I was the sole auditory of a gratuitous concert given by the "Melo-Aquatic society," in the neighborhood of the Spring Gardens. This society is composed of respectable frogs, who rehearse every evening, in order that they may perfect themselves in vocal music. I cannot say that I was pleased with the exhibition, they did not hold to the Druidical formula, and seemed to abide too much by the new fangled fashion of the times. The "Italian recitativo" was all the go, and the beautiful composition of Bloodynouns, entitled "Kung-de-nung, bung-koon," was inhumanly butchered, on account of its having been sung in Q flat, the original key being Z sharp. How can vocalists ever expect to arrive at eminence, when they consult the compass of their own voices to the utter disregard of the intentions of the composer? Frogs! look to it, such attempts to humbug the public are libels upon our musical taste and judgment. An amphibious overture, composed by Croaker, was performed, though I must confess I was at a loss to know whether the frogs were only tuning their voices, or executing the conception of the master, which, hating the introduction of a popular air termed "Yankee doodle," might have been called passable. I reprobate in the strongest terms the introduction of national airs, they are vulgar, and consequently not legitimate or classic; besides, all men do not think alike, it is not an object of music to stir up the feelings of patriotism or awaken a thought of our home: I would advise the frogs to discard it altogether, it is unbecoming and undignified. The duett between a tree-toad and a bull-frog was classic in the extreme. The andante movement commencing with "Weet-weet-te-wee-de-weet" was followed by a brilliant cadenza, modulating by the flat seventh from X flat into &c. and entering into the brilliant allegro aria of "Bloodynouns! klung de wung!" This was sung with exquisite neatness, the "coda" was so soft that no one could hear it, and the grand finale died away "so soft that nothing lived 'twixt it and silence."

I have trespassed considerably on your patience, Messrs. Editors, but the cause of music requires that a watchful eye should be kept upon its professors, and those tyros who style themselves amateurs. With your permission, I will continue my critiques, as they will, no doubt, add much to the dignity of the cause, and give the world a faint idea of my profundity of knowledge.

LA FLAT.

From the National Intelligencer.

Our readers may remember an article, copied into this paper some days ago, said to be taken from a Journal of Science and Literature published at St. Petersburg, and purporting to be an extract from a narrative of an expedition to the arctic regions, under the command of an officer by the euphonious name of Nidjner Nitigoiwosnesenk, the marvellous contents of which must have astonished all readers, whether scientific or only sensible. We have, since the publication of that article, received the subjoined, which some readers, disposed to incredulity, may suppose to be of the same stamp as the article above referred to, said to be taken from a Russia paper. On that subject we say nothing. We give it to our readers for what it is worth, and no more.

Letter from an Officer on board the Exploring Expedition to his brother officer at home.

MY DEAR D.: It has been nearly three years since I have heard of or seen you. Supposing you have about terminated your cruise, and are now enjoying yourself with our old friends N. and T., I will endeavor to add to your many enjoyments by relating some of the wonders of the Antarctic zone, as we have termed it, the magnetic zone. At every step new wonders surprise us; science appears astonished, and reason almost doubts her existence. Where shall I begin? In the air, ocean, or land? All, all have yielded up their wonders! On the 25th, we stood in for the land, (a new continent;) about 4 P.M. the wind died away, and left us surrounded by masses of floating ice. Having obtained a cast of the lead, and getting bottom at 45 fathoms, we anchored. As it was intensely cold, we were compelled to shut in all the ports, which obliges us to burn candles at mid-day below. While at tea, (about 6 P.M.) the candles by which we were taking our tea began to flicker, and sank almost out. Finally, they left us in the dark. In a few moments more they shone out with a most beautiful light, and then died away entirely. We took the candles towards the light, and to our astonishment the spermaceti of which our candles are made appeared to stand out in beautiful crystal, like ice when first freezing. This singular phenomenon occurred every twenty-four hours, about 4 P. M. Our ingenuity was put to the test to ascertain the cause; when, after a fruitless search among the scientific corps for the why and wherefore, a mere accident disclosed the secret. I had stuffed a stormy petrel, and passed a wire through the body to hang it up by. By mere accident I bent the wire, and threw it across the clip which holds in the air port. About the usual hour of our being left in total obscurity, I discovered a light in my room; opening the door, we were all surprised to see a beautiful bright pencil of light, which appeared to proceed from this stormy petrel. On a close inspection, we soon discovered that it was caused by electro-magnetic influence or galvanism.—We then passed two or three turns of zinc around our tiller chain, radiating the ends; we obtained the same effect. As necessity is the mother of invention, this discovery led to very happy results. We were enabled, while in that latitude to obtain light at all times by a very simple contrivance—merely by having a rod of copper and zinc to pass down our hatch over the mess tables; steeping the ends of the rods in a ball of charcoal, a beautiful and brilliant light was produced. The most singular phenomena produced were the effects it had upon the crew. Six or seven of them would become highly charged with the magnetic fluid, and deep sleep would be the cause. They would answer many questions put to them, and tell most singular things, the moment they became in this state. Dr. —— would place them in a row, make them take each other by the hand, and place a steel rod in the hand of the one towards the south side of the ship, and in a few minutes the electric or magnetic fluid would pass off and relieve them from their somnambulic state.

The freaks of old dame Nature are not more singular in the water than the phenomena of the air. I will endeavor to describe a most singular fish. It has neither fins nor tail; a long spike of six inches, terminated by three prongs, radiating at an angle of 45° from a common centre, takes the place of the tail in a common fish; these points can be radiated or compressed at pleasure. In place of fins, it has on each side two spikes of two inches in length, terminating in a point.—Upon the back there are two spikes; one I will call the dorsal spike, the other the trigger spike, as the latter cannot be pressed down unless you touch a small bone behind it. This we have named the "magnetic radial spike fish." Its nose is also terminated with a spike of one inch in length. Quartermaster C—— was the first person who captured this singular inhabitant of the great deep. He brought it to me, and, on touching one of its spikes, I felt my arm as far up as the elbow become numb. We then placed it in a bucket of water to watch its movements. As we have taken several of these fish, and preserved them for the "National Institution," you will have an opportunity to see them. I regret that you will not be able to see the singular manner in which it propels itself—by accumulating a quantity of electricity, which it discharges with great rapidity from its tail radii. When it wishes to turn or move sideways, as it can move any way, a side spike is projected; if down, the spikes on its back are elevated; if up, the radii on the tail are depressed. When in the act of taking its prey, it remains stationary a few minutes, and then projects a stream of electricity from the spike in its head. It attacks the largest fish, and even seal. Yet this formidable fish does not exceed three feet in length.

I must now close; but as I promised to call air, water and earth to my assistance, I cannot refrain from describing a singular species of web-footed crane. We have also preserved a bird of this kind for the Institute. This bird is about the size of a flamingo, and we have called it the "rotary flamingo." It will stand for half an hour on one of the highest peaks of ice, and spin round like an opera dancer, until it looks like a tall icicle. We at first could not account for the gambols of this eccentric bird; but have, by careful watching and close attention, discovered that it takes in its mouth a large piece of ice, gives itself a violent rotary motion, and projects this lump of ice a great distance with unerring aim at its prey, as the fish on which it feeds appear at the surface. The vessel is about sailing, and I have only time to say adieu. Yours truly,

ACCIDENT. Mr. Chandler, formerly of the firm of Chandler Howard, says the Boston Times, fell through the scuttle of the store, 66 Granite Wharf, on Thursday last, and was quite seriously injured.

FIRE. The alarm of fire on Sunday evening about 9 o'clock was caused by the burning of the Washington Hose Company's building, in Lombard street. The upper part of the house was entirely destroyed.

The Rev. Thomas Stockton, of Philadelphia, is about to collect in a volume, the sermons recently delivered on the death of Gen. Harrison. A volume of no ordinary interest might be made from these discourses.

Fifty thousand barrels of flour have arrived in New York city, since the opening of the Canals, three weeks since.

NAVAL. U. S. sloop of war Preble, from Malta, bound West, was passed 5th ult. off Cape de Galt, by the Medora, at Boston.

DAVIES' FAMILY PILLS.

[From a very Respectable Farmer.]

STAFFORD COUNTY, VA. SEPT. 7th, 1840.

Dear Sir:—I write to let you know that the Lord has done great things for me whereof I am glad. When I saw you in Fredericksburg, I think I said that I had been afflicted with a very acid (sour) stomach, and subject to a violent pain in my head for more than twenty years, for which I took rhubarb and soda three or four times every day for these many years, with little or no relief, and my legs and ankles were so much swelled that I was unable, at times, to attend to my business. But since you made me a present of a box of your Family Pills I have taken 1 or 2 of them at night in going to bed, and now my acid stomach is relieved, the swelling in my legs has nearly disappeared, and I do not think that I have been hindered one day with the pain in my head since I began to take your valuable medicine. I think the Lord directed you to Fredericksburg, to administer to my relief. (Blessed be his holy name, I am greatly relieved.) There is living in my neighborhood a poor old woman who had been sick for a long time and could not get relief; at length I purchased a box of your pills and gave them to her, after awhile I saw her out and about her business, and she said that the one box had cured her. I have spread the fame of your valuable medicine amongst my acquaintances, and many have purchased. Now, as it respects myself, my friends tell me when I go to town, that they have not seen me look so well for many years, and I say to them, 'I will tell you the secret why; a short time ago I met with a Dr. Davies in town, and he gave me a box of pills, and they have made me look as you now see me.' And now, my friend, I hope that the Lord will continue to be with you, and make you useful to your fellow creatures, as he has hitherto done. I remain with respect, CHARLES BRUCE.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS

AND VEGETABLE BITTERS.

THE perfectly safe, unerring and successful treatment of almost every species of disease by the use of MOFFAT'S LIFE MEDICINES, is no longer a matter of doubt, as a reference to the experience of many thousand patients will satisfactorily prove. During the present month alone, nearly one hundred cases have come to the knowledge of Mr. Moffat, where the patient has, to all appearance, effected a permanent cure by the exclusive and judicious use of the Life Medicines—some eight or ten of these had been considered beyond all hope by their medical attendants.—Such happy results are a source of great pleasure to Mr. M., and inspire him with new confidence to recommend the use of his medicines to his fellow citizens.

The Life Medicines are a purely VEGETABLE preparation. They are mild and pleasant in their operation, and at the same time thorough—acting rapidly upon the secretions of the system—carrying off all acrimonious humors, and assimilating with and purifying the blood. For this reason, in aggravated cases of dyspepsia, the Life Medicines will give relief in a shorter space of time than any other prescription; in Fever and ague, Inflammation, Fevers of every description, Sick headache, heartburn dizziness in the head, pains in the chest, flatulency, impaired appetite, in every disease arising from an impurity of the blood, or a disordered state of the stomach, the use of these medicines has always proved to be beyond doubt greatly superior to any other mode of treatment.

All that Mr. Moffat asks of his patients is to be particular in taking them strictly according to the directions. It is not by a newspaper notice, or by any thing that he himself may say in their favor, that he hopes to gain credit, it is alone by the results of a fair trial. Is the reader an invalid, and does he wish to know whether the life medicines will suit his own case? If so let him call or send to Mr. Moffat's agent in this place, and procure a copy of the Medical Manual, designed as a domestic guide to health, published gratuitously. He will here find enumerated very many extraordinary cases of cure; and perhaps some exactly similar to his own. Moffat's medical office in New York, 375 Broadway, and for sale by the Agents. JAS. CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold; having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption, I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. Please publish this certificate, with my name in full, that others may know where to find the greatest blessing on earth.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 18, 1841.

THE ELECTION. If politicians did not throw dust in the eyes of the people yesterday, the wind did. During the greater part of the day the wind was high, and the atmosphere so loaded with dust and sand, as to make it painful to be in the streets; but the voters breasted all obstacles to deposite their ballots. The election was conducted with uncommon moderation. There was nothing of that bustle and strife which we have sometimes witnessed—on the contrary the most perfect quiet and good order prevailed throug-out the day, as far as we have heard.

We give the result of the election in this city, by which it will be seen that the Oppotition candidates have an average majority of thirty-seven votes. Anne Arundel county and Annapolis city are yet to be heard from It is probable that the Administratson candidates are elected by a majority of between one and two hundred votes.

THIRD DISTRICT.

Govge's Town.—James W. Williams, Dem. 140. John C. Orrick, Independent, 30.

MRS. GOVE'S LECTURES. This lady is delivering a course of lectures to the ladies on the means of promoting and preserving health, which is certainly a most important subject for female consideration. We understand that some of the fashionable ladies of New York have, at her suggestion, adopted a substitute for the corsets, which, whilst it preserves the shape, prevents injury to the health; and this substitute she either has exhibited, or intends to submit, to the class attending her lectures. There are few young ladies, we presume, who are not matrimonially disposed, and who would not wish to enjoy the connubial state healthily and happily; and yet the prevailing fashion of compressing the lungs by tight lacing, has the direct effect of debilitating the system, and rendering females unfit for the domestic duties. They can laugh at the tiny foot of the Chinese beauty, and marvel how so absurd a fashion could ever be tolerated; but it is not half so prejudicial to health as that of tight lacing. If, therefore, Mrs. Gove can change the fashion, and get the ladies to dress so that they may breathe with freedom, she will not only be a benefactor to the present but to future generations. We hope that her lectures will be well attended, and that she may successfully exert her eloquence and influence in procuring so desirable a reformation. We know that we interfere in ladies' affairs at the hazard of having our ears boxed, but we hold them in such high estimation and know that they exercise so great and deserved a control over human affairs, that we would sooner undergo their cuffs, than to be silent when we see them wilfully destroying their health. "What God makes crooked, man cannot make straight," says the good book; and the fair sex should remember, that what He makes straight, they should not make crooked; therefore corsets and bustles are both useless. The one destroys the health and the other deforms the person. Let both be abandoned, and nature resume her supremacy.

☞The Philadelphia Spirit of the Times is a political paper of talent and wit; but we regret that the editor sometimes uses his satire where it should be spared. In his last number he has a very exceptionable article on the Fast Day. We cannot see any necessary connection between a day set apart for fasting, humiliation and prayer, and the party politics of the day; and yet the editor has brought them together, and recommends that the day be hereafter called St. Tip. If this be wit it is misapplied. We like to read the articles in the Spirit of the Times, for they have originality and vigor; but we would advise the editor to "render unto Cæsar that which is Cæsar's; and unto God that which is God's:" in other words, never to mingle religious and political matters together.

A LAUNCH. We witnessed, yesterday evening, the launch of a clipper-built schooner from the yard of Mr. Mich'l Gardiner, called "Isabel."—She was built, we understand, by order, for a West India merchant. It is a perfect beauty in model, and will no doubt reflect much credit on her builder.

OUR NEW POSTMASTER. To-day, Thomas Finley, Esq. by virtue of his appointment, takes charge of the Baltimore Post Office.

POLITICAL DIFFERENCES. A contrariety of opinion as to public men and measures is the necessary result of free institutions; and this difference of sentiment, whilst confined within the limits of discretion, is not only salutary under a republican system of government, but the surest guarantee of liberty. It subjects the conduct of public men to a vigilant scrutiny, which will recall them when they go astray, and generally prevent their overstepping the limits of duty. Under such government parties must, of necessity, exist; and it is only when they lose sight of principles and degenerate into factions, that their existence is pernicious to the commonwealth. This was the case in the early days of the French Republic, where tyranny was exercised, and the most horrible butcheries perpetrated, in the sacred name of liberty. Factious combinations seized upon public enthusiasm, and directed it to the most terrible results. Reason, justice and mercy, were alike trampled under foot; and, with "liberty and equality" on the lips, these factions exercised the most cruel of all despotisms. Ambitious demagogues directed the popular phrenzy to their own interested views; and the best blood of France was poured out like water to satiate the vengeance of the lowest and most despicable of tyrants.

Fortunately for the United States parties here are more patriotic in intention; more sincere in their attachment to liberty; and more moderate in the promulgation of their political principles. However warmly and zealously party contests may be conducted, and however earnest the desire for victory; the excitement subsides with the termination of the election, and men settle down to their usual avocations and continue their amicable relations, as though nothing had occurred to ruffle their dispositions, or to disturb their social tranquillity. This happy spirit of toleration distinguishes our country above all others in existence; and exhibits the beauty and perfection of our republican system of government in the most exalted light. It is here that the true and genuine spirit of freedom exists; and it is here that it ought to be peculiarly cherished. There is no nation that has greater cause of gratitude to a benignant Providence than ours. Free as the air we breathe—untrammelled in the exercise of our civil, religious and political rights, we have all that could be asked with propriety, or granted with benefit—and, if we fall from this "high estate," it must be by the prostitution of our privileges, and the abandonment of our most sacred obligations. We must be careful, then, never to permit our political differences to exceed the limits of sound discretion. Each party may struggle ardently for the supremacy, and each be animated by the sincere desire to promote the general prosperity and happiness—this is a glorious contest for the public good—it is an emulation which deserves the highest commendation: the political battle over, the vanquished must yield with grace, and the victorious rule with justice and mercy. Nothing will have a greater tendency to generate implacable faction—nothing be more detrimental to the public interests, than indiscriminate proscription. It is contrary to sound policy and correct principle—to justice and morality; and should be avoided as a rock upon which the republic may be wrecked.

GREEN MOUNT CEMETERY. This delightful though solemn repository of the dead, we are happy to perceive, is fast improving, and will ere long become one of the most charming resorts in our country. It has already become the daily retreat of hundreds, who, tired of the city turmoil, repair thither to enjoy not only the sweets of a perambulation, but the silent and chastening reflections so natural when approaching the tombs, where sleep in death those of our kind. Spring has clad this hallowed spot with her verdant mantle. Flowers of variegated tints may be seen in all directions, which, while they charm the eye, enrich the atmosphere with a mingling of the most refreshing odors. Thus while these "angel alphabets," as they have been termed, teach the wisdom and goodness of a great first cause, from them may also be read the important truth, that beauty blooms to die. Upon the boughs of the giant oaks and trees of smaller growth which have been planted, some by the hand of Nature, and others by the hand of man, are many birds warbling their enchanting melodies. The eye is met in almost every direction by the tomb, the monument and the mausoleum, sacred to the memory of those whose earthly course has been forever closed. Through the deep avenues and winding pathways, the living are seen passing and repassing, each countenance bearing evidence of solemn reflection. We are glad to learn that the behaviour of all who visit the Cemetery is circumspect. No rudeness is admitted within its sacred limits. Of this place our city may be proud; it is an ornament which cannot but gain admiration from all, and to know it as our long home on earth, would seem almost to soothe the pains of death.

SENTENCE OF DEATH. Yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, sentence of death was passed upon Sarah Ann White, in the crimnal court at Philadelphia. Application was made for a new trial but refused. Her counsel, R. M. Lee, Esq. rose and stated to the Court that he held in his hand a paper in the hand-writing of the prisoner, which she had requested should be read aloud. It was as follows:—

"If such then is the decision of this Court, I now stand in the presence of my God, and say I am innocent of the charges preferred against me; but I will endeavor to forgive those who have so irreparably injured me.

SARAH ANN COLEMAN."

ANTIDOTE TO POISON. It is said that the deadliest poison may be counteracted, by simply making two ounces of magnesia in a quart of water, or the same quantity of common whitening, and forcing it into the stomach by the readiest means at hand—the stomach pump being the best.

BALTIMORE—PENNSYLVANIA AND THE WEST.

[CORRESPONDENCE.]

Baltimore, May 10th, 1841.

WM. BOSE, ESQ.

Dear Sir: The undersigned were among the number of your fellow citizens who were prevented from being present last week, at the delivery of your address on the subject of "the Resources of Pennsylvania and the West, and the Relations of Trade which Baltimore now occupies in reference to them." The testimony of those who heard it is unanimous in favor of its ability, and the great importance to this community of the facts detailed in it. May we ask of you, therefore, on behalf of ourselves as well as others of your fellow citizens, similarly circumstanced, the favor to repeat the address at such time and place as may best suit your own convenience.

Very respectfully, yours, &c.

LEO'D. JARVIS,	THOS. M. LOCKE,
WM. SCHLEY,	J. & A. H. HERR,
SAML. JONES, JR.	LOWRY & GILL,
SELLMAN & CROOK,	ENOCH PRATT
HUGH JENKINS,	KERNAN & STILLINGER.

BALTIMORE, May 15, 1841.

Gentlemen: I have deferred a reply to your very flattering note, until I should be able to designate a time and place for the repetition of the address which you have done me the honor to call for. I now beg leave respectfully to say that on THURSDAY EVENING NEXT, the 20th instant, at eight o'clock, at the Musical Saloon in the Assembly Rooms, it will afford me great pleasure to repeat my address on "the Resources of Pennsylvania and the West, and the Relations of Trade which Baltimore now occupies in reference to them."

With great respect, yours, &c.

WM. BOSE.

To L. Jarvis, Esq. Wm. Schley, Esq. and others.

WEATHERWISE. Among the various methods of making money, we know of none easier than that of telling fortunes or fortelling weather; for, to make fair promises in all cases takes no time, and is always most agreeable. Thomas Hague, Astrometeorologist, of Philadelphia, has, no doubt, a lucrative business, for he seems to be consulted on many occasions. The following prediction, as to the weather this day, appeared in the Spirit of the Times of yesterday. As usual he promises fair weather; and if it should rain, (and it looks and feels very like it at the time of writing this paragraph,) he has only to lay the fault on the clouds, and his prophetic character will be unimpeached. If men will seek to be humbugged, it had as well be done by this pretended astrologer, as by another person.

MR. EDITOR:—I have been called on this day, (Saturday,) by a well wisher to the Odd Fellows. His request was a knowledge of the weather that would be witnessed in our city on Tuesday, the 18th inst. We told him that the voice of the stars promised a fair day, cumulus clouds and brisk winds. We will see.

THOMAS HAGUE, Astometeorologist.

NEW MAIL ARRANGEMENT. The Nat. Intelligencer says the Postmaster General has effected an arrangement with the Philadelphia and Baltimore Rail Road Company to transport the Great Eastern Mail, agreeably to the schedules of the last spring and summer; so that it will leave Philadelphia for Baltimore about mid night, or upon its arrival from New York, arrive in Baltimore about 8 o'clock, A. M. and in this city in the train of cars which arrives about 11 o'clock, A. M. and thence depart for the South at noon on the same day. The arrangement will go into effect in a few days.

MORE OF THE MARVELLOUS. We copy from the National Intelligencer a letter said to have been written by an officer on board the Exploring Expedition to a brother officer in this country.—This letter is evidently of the Munchausen school, and is copied by us for the amusement of our readers.

We have no doubt that discoveries valuable to science have been or may be made in the antarctic regions, and we feel some curiosity to have a full and official report from the Exploring Expedition. Having ascertained the existence of a southern continent, every effort should be made to explore it, if for scientific purposes only.

IMPORTANT TO NAVIGATORS. We have been informed, says the U. S. Gazette, that the light on Carysford's Reef, on the eastern coast of Florida, is not correctly laid down on all the charts, some of them placing it eighteen miles out of the way. A gentleman recently arrived from Nassau, New Providence, procured from Mr. Bacon, the American Consul, at that port, a statement politely furnished to him by Commander Barret, of Her Britanic Majesty's surveying ship Thunder, the exact position of this light, as follows, viz: latitude 25.12.00 North, longitude 80.16.20 West.

A CHILD KICKED BY A HORSE. Edward Richardson, a son of MRS. Augustus Richardson, the actress, aged about four years, was very badly kicked by a horse on Wednesday last. The accident happened at Mr. Frost's, about five miles from the city. The boy was kicked on the forehead, and so severe were the wounds that four physicians were called in, all of whom for some time despaired of his life. We are happy to learn, however, that the child is now in a fair way of recovery.

THE BELL. The fine Oratorio of "the Bell," is to be performed this evening, at the Assembly Rooms, by the German Association and Leiderkrantz, there are also other entertainments, as may be perceived by referring to the programme. We hope our German friends will not have to rely entirely on their own countrymen for support—a rich treat is offered to the lovers of music, and it is but reasonable to expect that there will be an assemblage of natives, as well as foreigners.

WATCH RETURNS. Eastern District, May 15. Benjamin Fowler came in for lodging. Elizabeth Davis was brought in drunk. John Develin came in for lodging. 16th—John Develin brought in charged with being drunk and noisy. A Dutchman brought in at half-past 12 o'clock drunk and noisy.

Middle District, May 15th. One white man brought in before watch hours and left for the police. 16th—Felix McCann was brought in, charged with beating his wife:—no one appearing against him he was released in the morning. John Gorman, a boy, was found asleep in F. Murray's stable. A black man brought in for strolling the streets after hours. Two white men admitted to lodging.

Western District, May 15th. Wm. McClunk found drunk in the street. John Trustman brought in for lodging. Moses Faulk, negro, found drunk. Aquilla and Joseph Bandle, drunk and quarrelling to the disturbance of the neighborhood. Mary Antony, col'd, found lying in the street drunk. 16th—George Byal, Wm. Hardesty and Mathias Bussey, negroes, were brought in at half-past 10 o'clock, found rioting in Brandy alley. Wm. Briar, charged with abusing his mother. One white man came in for lodging.

COMMODORE STEWART. The friends of this gentleman are resolved, that if this veteran commander be not made the next president, it shall not be for want of putting forth his claims in time. He has been announced in Philadelphia, and Ironsides clubs are being formed to support his pretensions. To this we have no objection, as the field is open for all, and Commodore Stewart has the same right as another to enter the lists. He has "done the state some service," and if he could manage the ship of state with the same skill that he can manœuvre a line-of-battle ship, he would make a first rate president.

SUPPOSED MURDER. A Mrs. Bartel, of Richmond, died very suddenly a few days since. The circumstances attending the case are said to be very suspicious. It is rumored, says the Star, that her death was caused by blows from her husband, who was in the habit of beating her most cruelly. Both of them were in the habit of constant brawling and fighting. We do not learn, however, that he has been arrested, or any steps taken to investigate the affair.

TENNESSEE ELECTION. The election in Tennessee took place on the 6th inst. We have only accounts from Nashville, and a few precincts in Davidson county. Mr. CARUTHERS, (Whig) is elected to Congress from the District, by a considerable majority to succeed Mr. Bell. In Nashville the vote stood Caruthers 618 [illegible] (Democrat) 291. At the Presidential election Harrison's majority was only 211. Whig majority now 327.

A MONUMENT TO WASHINGTON. It is stated in the Phila. Daily Chronicle that a contract has been concluded with Messrs. Peittrich & Struthers, for the erection in that city of a pedestrian monument to the great and good Washington.—The cost will be $10,000. The monument is to be placed in Washington Square. The model from which it is to be executed is in an apartment of the Exchange.

THE CROPS. The Centreville (Md.) Times, of Saturday, says: "Here's the 15th of May, and our farmers are not yet done planting corn! More than one month behind the usual time! and what corn has been planted, has not yet come up, if it ever will. The greatest anxiety prevails amongst the farmers, some of whom have sown their corn fields down in oats. It will be utterly impossible to make fair crops of corn the present year."

IMPROVEMENT. We observe that Barnum's Hotel is undergoing a thorough and entire course of repairs both inside and out. This will not only add much to the comfort and convenience of the establishment, but also to the appearance of our city in that fashionable region. The business of the hotel is now under the entire control of Mr. David Barnum its former popular conductor and present proprietor.

DISGRACEFUL LYNCHING. We learn from the Little Rock Advocate, that on the 15th ult. about a mile from that city, a set of brutes in human form, unmercifully whipped and beat a man, by the name of Tabley H. Stewart, and it is said robbed him of a considerable sum of money. Stewart was charged with a crime on the day previous, and lawfully discharged; but this did not save him from the hands of his accusers.

☞The jury in the case of Ezra White in the N. Y. Oyer and Terminer, returned a verdict on Friday night at midnight of guilty of manslaughter in the 3d degree. The verdict was in these words—"Guilty of manslaughter in the third degree, and we unanimously recommend him to the mercy of the Court."

The Legislature of New York have passed the Appropriation Bill by an overwhelming majority. The bill appropriates $2,150,000 for the Erie Canal Enlargement, $300,000 for the Black River Canal, and $550,000 for the Genesee Valley Canal—total, $3,000,000. The vote for the passage of the bill stood 77, and against it 33.

It is stated that Mississippi will not be represented at the Extra Session of Congress. Gov. McNutt has declined calling an Extra Session of the Legislature for the purpose of appointing a period for the election, and does not consider himself authorised to order an election without the intervention of the Legislature.

LAKE ERIE. The editor of the Detroit Journal in a letter written while on his passage between Detroit and Buffalo, says—"At one time to-day there were seven steamboats in sight at once! The Rochester, North America, Cleveland, New England, Robert Fulton, Com. Perry and the Chesapeake. It was a majestic sight, and gave rich food for reflection."

VALUABLE BUILDING LOTS,
On Fleet and Washington-sts., Fell's Point.

IN PURSUANCE of a decree of Baltimore county Court, sitting as a Court of Equity, and by virtue of a special order of said Court, the subscriber, as trustee, will offer at public sale, on the premises hereinafter described, and to the highest bidder, on WEDNESDAY the second day of June, if fair, if not the next fair day thereafter, at the hour of half past four o'clock, P. M., the following described LOT or parcel of Ground, situated on Fell's Point, in the City of Baltimore.

Beginning for the same at the corner formed by the intersection of the north side of Fleet st. and the east side of Washington street, and running thence northwardly bounding on the east side of Washington st. one hundred and twenty feet, thence eastwardly parallel with Fleet st. eighty four feet, thence southwardly parallel with Washington st. one hundred and twenty feet to Fleet st., and thence westwardly bounding on the north side of Fleet st. eighty four feet to the place of beginning: it being the same property which by deed bearing date the seventeenth day of July in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and twenty-eight, and duly recorded among the land records of Baltimore County Court, in Liber W. G. No. 194, folio 152, &c was conveyed by John Glenn, trustee, to the late John Lee. To meet the views of small purchasers who may be disposed to buy, it is proposed to divide the property into, say six 14 feet lots on Fleet st., with a depth of say 60 feet to an alley, and four lots on Washington street of about fourteen feet each, with a depth of eighty four feet. The property is remarkably well located for improvement, being near several of the large ship yards, and the spacious wharf lately completed by the Canton Company. As the parties interested are anxious to sell, bargains may be expected. A plan of the property as proposed to be divided will be exhibited at the sale, and in the mean time may be examined at H. W. Bool's auction room, Baltimore street.

Terms of sale as prescribed by the order of the Court, are, one-third in cash, balance in six and nine months with interest, the cash payments to be secured by approved endorsed notes and bearing interest from the day of sale. ROBT. PURVIANCE, Jr.

NEW CABINET FURNITURE AT AUCTION. We shall sell, on FRIDAY MORNING, May 21st, at 10 o'clock, at No. 68 North Howard street, the Cabinet FURNITURE manufactured by the

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

To Correspondents. The incident related by J. P. is without any peculiar interest.

"The Seaman's Toast" shall be published.

"The Widow" by T. L. Wise is out of tune—we mean out of measure. This must cause its rejection.

"The Dream" by "Jumble" will do.

"The Orphan's Address," has some faults.

"A Spectator," seems to understand his subject. He is, we think, rather too severe. Those who form the subject of his remarks we have always looked upon as extremely inoffensive and harmless. We shall give place to his communication in a day or two.

So much has been written of late upon the death of Gen. Harrison, that we are compelled to refuse the production of "Wayne" upon that subject, although cleverly written.

Lines to Miss S. S., allowing ourself to judge for the sweet creature, would not please her taste.

G. W. M. shall have a place.

E. F. G. has been indefatigable. His lines have passed the ordeal.

"Gemil" has done very well.

"Atkinson" shall have a place.

We shall accede to "Emily's" suggestion.

"Eg" has been approved.

"Ellen" has been received and gained our approbation.

The song by "Avon" shall have a place in our columns.

We acknowledge Stanzas by "Tobias." Miss S. shall have the pleasure of seeing them in print.

A correspondent informs us that he is acquainted with the real name of "Romeo," the Baltimore letter writer of the New York Herald, and advises that same "Romeo" to be more cautious or his name will be made public.

"The Acrostic" is quite ingenious, though we are opposed to the publication of such communications. It is difficult enough to write good poetry without being circumscribed to certain letters.

From Rio de Janeiro. A correspondent dated March 29, 1841, remarks that it is difficult to give a statement of the flour in market. 42|| for Baltimore net $4 50 and 15|| for Richmond net $6 05, are as yet the highest prices talked of, and that for exportation. Should more soon follow, these prices, though low, may not be obtained. Our stock is now over 50,000 bbls.—indeed it is difficult to find store room for it.

In Exchange nothing is doing, and rumors of another suspension by the Banks in the United States, and of probable war, arising from the McLeod affair, just arrived from England, may again injure credits from the United States, and make it difficult to pass bills upon them.

Domestics, very dull, no improvement in prices last quoted.

Candles, sperm—640a700rs. net 26a29. 26 cts. per lb. dull and abundant.

Important decision on Slavery. The Supreme Court of Ohio, sitting at Lebanon, Warren County, Judges Lane and Hitchcock on the bench, Judge Lane delivered the opinion of the Court.

"That if the owner of a slave voluntarily bring him into this state, or permit him to come, although it should be only for the purpose of visiting or travelling through from one slave state to another, the slave in such case becomes a free man the moment he touches the soil of Ohio."

The Hagerstown Torchlight of Friday last says: "An active coal business is now being done on the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal. Between twenty and thirty descending boats and goudolas passed the canal basin at Mrs. Bevan's on Tuesday forenoon. Several boats passed up during the same time."

Kidnapping. The Wilmington (Del.) Journal says: "Jacob K. Griffin, lately tried before the Court, at Dover, was convicted of kidnapping, and sentenced to four years imprisonment, a fine of 1500 dollars, and to have sixty lashes on the bare back. He is to be tried at New Castle on a similar charge.

Suicide of a Bank robber. We learn by the Nashville Banner, that John Moore, who was arrested for having committed the late frauds on the Bank of Tennessee, in that place, committed suicide on the 7th inst. in a public house in Murfreesborough, by hanging himself to a bed post.

The Ohio river at Cincinnati, on the 12th inst. was higher than it has been known for many years past. The water had swollen into some of the lower streets, and filled a number of cellars.

☞The Hon. Mr. Cushing, we learn is at present seriously ill at his residence, in Newburyport, Mass.

WONDER OF THE WORLD!
AND GLORY OF THE AGE.
PELION UPON OSSA!

A double—double Yankee Nation—
Enough to double all creation.

THE Publishers of the Universal Yankee Nation, encouraged by the unprecedented success of the two Double Sheets which they have issued, are now preparing to issue a DOUBLE DOUBLE YANKEE NATION! on a scale of magnificence totally unapproachable by any other press in the world; and although the enterprize will throw upon our shoulders

"Double, double, toil and trouble—

and we are determined to make it emphatically "the glory of the age and wonder of the world." The sheet will measure EIGHT THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED AND FORTY SQUARE INCHES.

The list of contents for this magnificent publication will be on a scale with the paper itself. They will consist in part of FORTY COMPLETE TALES of various descriptions.

The publication day will be fixed as soon as we obtain the requisite quantity of paper for an edition of 50,000 COPIES!

It will probably be issued as early as the 25th of May if not earlier.

As our press is the largest ever yet built, so we are determined to print the largest paper which can be printed, cost what it may. We can do it—and we will do it.

WEBB'S PATENT BURNERS,
AND CAMPHINE OIL.

FOR SALE AT No. 109 E. BALTIMORE STREET, between South and Calvert streets, where burners of every description can be obtained. Those who are inclined as to its safety or economy, would, I trust be perfectly satisfied by examining the opinion of Professor Locx, of Ohio, on "Webb's Camphine," or by referring to the Journals of the Franklin and American Institutes, of Philadelphia and New York. All those desirous of obtaining a clean, brilliant, and economical light, will find it a reality to their advantage by calling on the subscriber. The public may be assured of one fact, that we require no meters to ascertain the amount of Camphine consumed, as they register correctly and in plain English.

☞ASTRAL LAMPS ALTERED.

N. B. We have appointed Joshua Atkinson Agent, No. 92 Market street, F. P., where all orders will meet with immediate attention.

F. AUGUSTUS BAILEY, Agent
For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

Dear Sir—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,
mh10-tf Fifth Ward Hotel.

BALTIMORE LOCK DISPENSARY,
No. 17 HARRISON ST.
"NO CURE NO PAY."

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, is its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors, by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

Persons residing at any distance, can have medicine sent to them, packed secure from observation.

It was out of pure motives of philanthropy, that this medicine was first made public; the price always to remain $1 per Bottle, to be within the reach of the most unfortunate.

☞Letters addressed, (post paid) describing the case, mode of living, &c. will be promptly attended to. Direct No. 17 Harrison street.

TWO CHARMING PERIODICALS. 1st No. of a New Volume of the Ladies' Companion. Opinions of the Press, viz: New World.

The Knickerbocker for this month is out punctually on the first, and it is full to overflowing with good things. That capital story, the Country Doctor—far superior to the majority of the continuations in the English Magazines—goes on more amusingly than before. The number is embellished with a curious and appropriate engraving of "a Dutch Cottage in Beaver street, 1679."

The May number of the Ladies' Companion is embellished with a steel engraving that would do no discredit to Finden's Galleries. It is exceedingly beautiful, and is entitled "The Young Chief's First Ride." Such embellishments alone entitle this various and excellently edited magazine to the bountiful patronage with which it is favored. We notice certain typographical improvements in this number, which are indications of the good taste of the proprietor.

The literary merit of the Ladies' Companion seems to increase rather than diminish—and, with the editorial labors which are now bestowed upon it, it cannot fail to be pronounced highly creditable to the literature of the country.

TERMS—Knickerbocker, $5 per year, or $1.25 quarterly. Ladies' Companion, $3 per year, or 25 cts. each number. Single numbers for sale at

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	"	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	"	Fred'ksburg	10 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	"	Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	"	Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	"	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	"	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	"	Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection throughout, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads, Head Winds, and Storms!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon; and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

STOCKTON, FALLS & CO.
Adjoining the Philadelphia Rail Road Office,

DAILY SOUTHERN MAIL,
Via the Chesapeake Bay and Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road,

THE BALTIMORE STEAM-PACKET CO. announce to the public that the boats of their line consisting of the ALABAMA, Captain Sutton; GEORGIA, Captain Coffey; and JEWESS, Captain Holmes, having undergone a through overhaul during the past winter, are now in complete order; therefore the daily line to the South via NORFOLK and PORTSMOUTH will be resumed on Monday the 15th of March, and run in accordance with the following schedule until changed by the Post Office Department.

Leaving Baltimore daily at 4 o'clock, P. M.
Arrive at Portsmouth, at 7 " A. M.
Leaving Portsmouth, at 8 " A. M.
Arrive at Weldon, at 4 " P. M.

Wait there until 1 o'clock, A. M. for the Petersburg train.

Leave Weldon at 1 o'clock, A. M.
Arrive at Wilmington at 1 o'clock, P. M.

Leave Wilmington immediately and arrive in Charleston next morning to breakfast.

It will be seen by the above schedule that in order to render the connexion certain, it is only necessary for the Cars of the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road to arrive at Weldon prior to 1 o'clock, A. M. whereas they uniformly arrive before dark—if therefore a detention should take place at any point between Baltimore and Weldon, not occupying more than NINE HOURS, the traveller can by no possibility lay over at any point north of Wilmington. RETURNING, one of the above boats will leave Norfolk every night at 10 o'clock, and cross over to Portsmouth where she will wait the arrival of the Cars from Weldon, and depart for Baltimore as soon as the passengers and baggage are on board, arriving here in about 14 hours after departure from Portsmouth. The passengers having enjoyed all the comforts of a good nights rest, and partaken of as good fare as could be provided in the very best Hotel in the Country.

Travellers bound to Richmond or Petersburg by leaving Baltimore on Monday, Wednesday or Friday, sleep on board the bay boat, are transferred to the James River boat next morning, and arrive at their place of destination the same day by 3 or 4 o'clock, P. M.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

To a dearly beloved pupil, whose mild deportment, and respectful conduct elicited the warm affections of the author, these lines, accompanied by a prayer book, are respectfully inscribed.

I thought, as a mark of love for thee,
I'd choose a gift—but what shall it be?
A jewel to deck thy glossy hair?
Or a gem on that artless breast to wear?
They'd dazzle awhile, but as time would fly,
And fashions change, thou wouldst throw them by,
And the giver would then forgotten be!
They are not the gifts I will choose for thee.
I thought me then of the varied store
That knowledge pens—of the ancient lore—
Of by-gone years—but thy youthful eye
Would pass these graver matters by—
And the fairy tales and the lighter themes
That glow in the bard's inspired dreams—
The beautiful annual with gilded leaves,
The splendid gift that love receives,
Would be read but once, and seldom again
Would giver or gift be remembered then!
And I'd wish in thy gentle dreams to dwell,
Nor forgotten be when I bid farewell;
For thy lovely form and thy sweeter face
Have found in my heart an abiding place,
And I love the girl who with gentle sway
Could be led where science points the way;
Then what shall the rare memento be,
That will lead thee still to think of me?
Of the many gifts before me thrown,
My judgment and heart selected one—
'Tis a Holy Book, to the pious given,
Whose precepts teach the way to Heav'n:
And I thought as her 'custom'd path was trod,
When the Sabbath dawns, to the House of God,
That Julia would think, as with pious look
She conn'd the leaves of her Prayer Book,
That I, who lov'd her as few will love,
Would lead her thoughts to things above,
And would wish, as she bow'd on bended knee
To pray for others, she would think of me.

THE SEMI-VIRI.

There is a large class of young men in this goodly city of Baltimore, to whom the above name may be said to belong. They are half men in every sense of the word, having neither put on any of that manliness of bearing or dignity of character which belongs to their age and sex, nor put off that passion for trifles which is the characteristic of childhood. They are a step beneath the genus "loafer," inasmuch as they are not only genteel vagabonds, but pretenders to the dignity of "leaders of the ton," which they certainly are, in one of its meanings, as they serve no useful purpose under the sun, except it be as walking signs for tailors and barbers to show off the fashions upon, in the shape of long hair, corsets, "close frocks" and "shad-bellies." And, though the reflecting portion of the ton are far from respecting them for this reason, there are large numbers of young ladies and gentlemen who are easily led by the sounding title of "gentlemen of fashion," to look upon all their peccadillos as excusable foibles.

The class who may be properly designated as semi-viri, are generally those who either pretend to no business at all, or if they have any, neglect to attend to it, and devote to visiting and walking that time which sensible men employ in the office or counting room. Hence the absurd fashion of ceremonious morning calls, during business hours, while the evenings, when both ladies and gentlemen are at leisure for social intercourse, are spent by these refined and favorite beaux in low oyster cellars. Hence the groups of swaggering, lounging fops, who are to be seen at the corners of the streets, passing judgment upon the ladies, and poking their ebony canes in the way of passers by. From this class too proceed the Mantalinis, the Titmice and the Counts des Whiskerandos, who, with strut of conscious importance, may be seen on Sundays parading up and down the streets leading to the fashionable churches, staring impudently into the faces of those ladies they meet, and dancing attendance upon all who have the reputation of being heiresses. Without any idea of making their way in the world by honest industry and perseverance, no men of honorable pride would desire to do, their plan is to humbug some wealthy lady into matrimony; and their conversation tends to set at naught every principle of morals and religion, though they have the faculty of glossing over their real characters, when necessary. The world is, in their opinion, made for them, and not they for it; and they live to eat, instead of eating to live. They are all men of honor towards each other, but of dishonor towards society, and are ever ready to resort to the duelling code.

This may seem rather a highly wrought picture; but those who have never mingled with such persons, except in the parlor, can have but little idea of their real character; though, for the honor of people's discernment, be it said, that they are seldom long known without being ridiculed by the more sensible ones. Nevertheless, people tolerate such characters, and it becomes the fashion to invite them in order to make up a party. This should not be—they should be expelled, like drones from a hive.

A SPECTATOR.

MOBILE ICE ISLANDS. The N. Y. Herald says: The packet ship England, Capt. Waite, who arrived yesterday, in 35 days from Liverpool, saw on his way many packet ships, but nothing of the President. In lat. 41° 33 N., lon. 49° 10 W. he saw two ice islands—nothing of the President.

☞The body of a man supposed to have been murdered was found floating in the Mississippi river, on the 9th inst. opposite New Orleans.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY. Last Friday Dr. Buchanan gave a lecture explanatory of a new discovery in the nervous system, by means of which he is able in some instances to control both the minds and bodies of his patients. The gentlemen and ladies who have been the subjects of his experiments declare that they feel the current of their thoughts and feelings changing from time to time, without having the power to prevent it. At one time they think of the past, at another time of the future. Their ideas are sometimes clear and sometimes confused beyond the power of recollecting themselves. At one time they are lulled into gentleness and good-humor—at another, they are transported beyond all self-control by feelings of a desperate and pugnacious character.

We have witnessed but few of the experiments ourselves, and consequently are rather skeptical as to the reality of the feelings produced. At the public lecture three gentlemen were experimented upon. The first attempt was to produce drowsiness and sleep. In a short time drowsiness became apparent. The eyelids of the gentleman fell and his head reclined. His hands became cold, clammy and benumbed; they were agitated by convulsive tremblings, of which he seemed to be unconscious, and he was unable to keep them still. The effect produced being considered rather too powerful, Dr. B. in a few moments revived him without going so far as to produce sleep.

The principal experiment upon the second gentleman was to cause the thoughts to wander and excite memory or reminiscences. In this the doctor succeeded remarkably well. At first the gentleman remarked that his thoughts were scattering and confused; then that they were upon his past life; and, finally, that he could think of nothing but his childish sports and the days of his infancy.

The experiment upon the third gentleman was to excite his passions and produce impatience, anger and resentment. In this the doctor was also successful, for in a few minutes his feet and legs began to work in a violent manner, and he remarked that he would like to stamp something. In a moment more he sprang to his feet, with a stern and determined expression of countenance, but shortly recovered his self-possession.—Ark. Times.

FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETY. The meeting in behalf of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions was held in New York on Saturday. A statement of the operations of the Board during the last year represents that they have been prosperous and successful. The Journal of Commerce gives the following abstract:

In the East, at Syria, the operations have been interrupted by political troubles, and the Missionaries compelled to retire; but they again returned, and the latest accounts are very favorable.

In Turkey, the persecution two years since has entirely ceased, and the spirit of religious inquiry has become more fearless than ever before. A seminary for youth has been opened near Constantinople.

In Nestoria, uninterrupted prosperity has attended the Mission. There are more than 300 pupils in the schools; and a printing press, the first in Northern Asia, was received last year. Several schools have also been opened among the tribes in the mountains.

Among the Indians, in this country, the results have been of a usual character. Considerable progress has been made in the arts of civilization.

In the Sandwich Islands the operations have been very much prospered. The whole number that has been added to the churches is 21,379.—The number of pupils in the schools is 15,000; the number in the seminaries is 250. 655,000 books have been printed, containing upwards of forty-five million pages. The number of seminaries is 9; the number of boarding schools is 16; having about 1000 pupils. The number of churches is 56.

In China the mission has been suspended.

In Siam the past has been a year of steady and successful toil.

In Ceylon the number of church members is 500. In the Seminary are 156 pupils of whom 105 are members of churches. In the female schools are 400 scholars. There are 75 native free schools, containing upwards of 25,000 pupils. This mission has been somewhat weakened during the past year.

In Southeastern Africa the mission has been returned.

In Western Africa a new station has been formed at Cape Palmas.

FROM HAVANA. The N. O. Bulletin says: "We have received our files of Havana papers to the 30th ult. The Clarion arrived there on the 26th, in 12 days from New York. She had on board the crew of the brig Corinthian, from Philadelphia bound to New Orleans, which vessel was wrecked on the 14th ult. on the Bahama Banks.

"The Maratime Insurance Company of Havana, have just declared a dividend of 6¼ per cent. on the capital stock for the last six months; which, with the dividend of the previous six months, amounts to a clear profit of 13 per cent. for the year.

"The experiment of the Havana Savings Bank is progressing successfully. During the last three months there have been deposited $110,987, a sum equal to the deposites of the five previous months. Calculating on this ratio, the bank will receive an annual deposite of $360,000, yielding the sum of $43,000 for the bank in interest."

WHALES CAPTURED. Two whales made their appearance at Westport a day or two back, and were in a few hours captured and towed alongside the wharf. One of them measured 50 feet in length, and the other 25 feet, and the joint product of oil will be probably 1500 gallons.

An adjourned meeting of the Stockholders of the United States Bank was to held at the banking house yesterday morning.

SYRIA AND PALESTINE. A Paris letter-writer for the New York Commercial, states that the Governments of Russia and Austria have requested the Sultan to take into consideration the expediency of the following measures in favour of the Christians of Syria and Palestine:—1. That a special governer should be appointed for Palestine and the Holy Cities, having his seat at Jerusalem, and the port of Jaffa as the means of communication with the Mediterranean. 2. A suppression of all the vexations to which the Christians have been hitherto subjected. 3. An impartial administration of justice. 4. Protection for the pilgrims visiting the Holy-land. 5. A settlement of all the differences between the Greek and Armenian churches. 6. The appointment of a commission to investigate that matter. 7. The restoration of convents and churches that have been destroyed.

The New Orleans Chamber of Commerce have addressed a circular to the chambers of commerce in all the cotton exporting states, recommending an alteration in the period of making up the annual statements of cotton, from the 1st of October to 31st of August. The advantage of this change in keeping the crop accounts of different years distinct, is obvious, and we learn it is to be adopted by the New Orleans Price current. The example will doubtless be followed universally.

THE RT. REV. BISHOP ENGLAND. This prelate delivered a discourse in the Church of the Holy Cross, Boston, on Fast Day, and on Sunday morning, previous to embarking on board the Britannia, for Liverpool, he officiated again in the same church. Of his fast day sermon, the Transcript speaks in the very highest terms.

THE COURTS. Harford County Court has commenced its regular May session, and will be opened this day, by Judges ARCHER and PURVIANCE. This will not interfere with the business of Baltimore County Court now in session, and which will be held by Judge MAGRUDER. The city jury trials we understand will still go on.—Amer.

THE NEW BANK. The bill chartering the Lancaster County Bank has become a law without the signature of the Governor—he having retained the bill in his possession over ten days. It will go into operation as soon as the shares of stock are subscribed for.

JOINING THE CHURCH. The Hartford Eagle of the 8th inst. says—"on Sunday last, there were admitted into the several churches in this city, 170 members, most of them young persons.

We doubt much, Mr. Signal, whether the above sentence is good logic.

The Eldridge case is still progressing, the prosecution not having yet closed the testimony.

The Britannia took out 83 passengers, and 29 more were unable to obtain berths. Only four will stop at Halifax.

The editor of the Boston Post says, he intends to be Postmaster of Boston, under Com. Stewart's Administration.

A police officer named Hatfield, has been arrested in New York for theft.

DAVIES' FAMILY PILLS.

[From a very Respectable Farm r.]

STAFFORD COUNTY, Va. SEPT. 7th, 1840.

Dear Sir:—I write to let you know that the Lord has done great things for me whereof I am glad. When I saw you in Fredericksburg, I think I said that I had been afflicted with a very acid (sour) stomach, and subject to a violent pain in my head for more than twenty years, for which I took rhubarb and soda three or four times every day for these many years, with little or no relief, and my legs and ankles were so much swelled that I was unable, at times, to attend to my business. But since you made me a present of a box of your Family Pills I have taken 1 or 2 of them at night in going to bed, and now my acid stomach is relieved, the swelling in my legs has nearly disappeared, and I do not think that I have been hindered one day with the pain in my head since I began to take your valuable medicine. I think the Lord directed you to Fredericksburg, to administer to my relief. (Blessed be his holy name, I am greatly relieved.) There is living in my neighborhood a poor old woman who had been sick for a long time and could not get relief; at length I purchased a box of your pills and gave them to her, after awhile I saw her out and about her business, and she said that the one box had cured her. I have spread the fame of your valuable medicine amongst my acquaintances, and many have purchased. Now, as it respects myself, my friends tell me when I go to town, that they have not seen me look so well for many years, and I say to them, 'I will tell you the secret why; a short time ago I met with a Dr. Davies in town, and he gave me a box of pills, and they have made me look as you now see me.' And now, my friend, I hope that the Lord will continue to be with you, and make you useful to your fellow-creatures, as he has hitherto done. I remain with respect. CHARLES BRUCE.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS AND VEGETABLE BITTERS.

THE perfectly safe, unerring and successful treatment of almost every species of disease by the use of MOFFAT'S LIFE MEDICINES, is no longer a matter of doubt, as a reference to the experience of many thousand patients will satisfactorily prove. During the present month alone, nearly one hundred cases have come to the knowledge of Mr. Moffat, where the patient has, to all appearance, effected a permanent cure by the exclusive and judicious use of the Life Medicines—some eight or ten of these had been considered beyond all hope by their medical attendants.—Such happy results are a source of great pleasure to Mr. M. and inspire him with new confidence to recommend the use of his medicines to his fellow citizens.

The Life Medicines are a purely VEGETABLE preparation. They are mild and pleasant in their operation, and at the same time thorough—acting rapidly upon the secretions of the system—carrying off all acrimonious humors, and assimilating with and purifying the blood. For this reason, in aggravated cases of dyspepsia, the Life Medicines will give relief in a shorter space of time than any other prescription; in Fever-and-ague, Inflammation, Fevers of every description, Sick headache, heartburn dizziness in the head, pains in the chest, flatulency, impaired appetite, in every disease arising from an impurity of the blood, or a disordered state of the stomach, the use of these medicines has always proved to be beyond doubt greatly superior to any other mode of treatment.

All that Mr. Moffat asks of his patients is to be particular in taking them strictly according to the directions. It is not by a newspaper notice, or by any thing that he himself may say in their favor, that he hopes to gain credit, it is alone by the results of a fair trial. Is the reader an invalid, and does he wish to know whether the life medicines will suit his own case? If so let him call or send to Mr. Moffat's agent in this place, and procure a copy of the Medical Manual, designed as a domestic guide to health, published gratuitously. He will here find enumerated very many extraordinary cases of cure; and perhaps some exactly similar to his own. Moffat's medicines for sale in New York, 375 Broadway, and for sale by the Agents. INVALUABLE

CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold; having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption, I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. Please publish this certificate, with my name in full, that others may know where to find the greatest blessing on earth.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 19, 1841.

☞The communication signed an "Old Baltimorean," having reference to the Baltimore City and County Alms House, cannot have a place in our columns, except as an advertisement. On a second perusal we find it to be altogether of a personal character.

ANNE ARUNDEL. By the steamboat Patuxent last evening we have returns from the 1st and 2d districts of Anne Arundel, which show an Administration majority of about 200 votes. In the 3d and 4th districts the majority for the Opposition is about 200 votes. In the 5th, 6th and 7th (Howard District) the Administration majority is 52 votes. In the 8th district the Administration majority is 14 votes.

☞We give an abstract of proceedings in the case of McLeod in to-day's paper. So far they possess little interest, as they consist principally of the reading of certain documents with which the public has been made acquainted. A few days will decide whether he is to go to trial upon the charge of murder, or be released under the habeas corpus; it is therefore useless to dwell in speculations.

NEW YORK CUSTOM HOUSE. Our readers are already apprized that a commission, consisting of ex-senator Poindexter, Alfred Kelley, esq. of Ohio, and hon. David Russell, of New York, has been appointed to investigate the concerns of the New York Custom House. If the statements made by a writer in the New York Express, who signs himself "A Custom House Officer," be correct, it was high time to have the affairs of the custom house overhauled. He charges some of the public officers with having appropriated goods forfeited to government to their own use—with plundering the public store, hauling away cloths and other valuable articles after night; and other serious offences. The writer has furnished to the editor the names of the parties implicated, with permission to publish them together with his own, which shows that he is confident of being able to sustain the charges made, either before the public or a jury. The commissioners will doubtless sift this nefarious business to the bottom, but it is not so certain that the culprits will be punished. They have no doubt influential friends, whose delicate feelings might be wounded by a public prosecution, and who will manage to have proceedings arrested. This has been the usual course, and will not, probably, be deviated from in the present instance. If, however, there should be one poor devil amongst them, "whose poverty and not his will consented" to the robbery, he may look out for the vials of wrath to be emptied upon his head. What monstrous perversion of justice—what a mockery is it to have laws professing to deal with all alike, and yet which bear lightly on the heads of the rich, whilst they crush the shoulders of the poor.

If the parties charged be actually guilty, we hope that they will be punished, if it be only for the novelty.

The truth is, appointments to office have been made with too little reference to moral character, which ought to be a matter of primary consideration. The man who has been dishonest in his private transactions, will not be reformed by being placed in public office; on the contrary, his propensity will be stimulated by having the opportunity afforded of gratifying it on a larger scale.

BANKING HOUSE FOR THE FRANKLIN BANK. A very neat brick building is being erected in North street, adjoining the Chesapeake Bank. Upon inquiry we were informed that it is designed as a banking establishment for the company of the old Franklin Bank, which institution will again go into operation so soon as the proper arrangements can be made. The object in building this new house is to reduce expenses and economise as much as possible. The old banking house on Baltimore street is to be disposed of.

ORGAN OF THE GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH. A trial of the powers of this splendid organ is to take place to-night, at the church, in North Gay street. A description of the organ will be found in another column.

CRIME. The New Orleans Bee has an excellent article on the increase of crime, from which we extract the following sentences:

"Every means of exciting public virtue should be resorted to. Our school systems should embrace moral as well as mental cultivation. In our common schools trades should be taught.—The youthful mind should be impressed with the necessity of earning a living by honest labor, and the knowledge of some useful avocation engrafted upon it. The administration of public affairs should furnish an example of economy, industry, and integrity to be followed by the people.—There should be no official drones, no exalted peculators, no impunity to official swindlers. The terrors of the law as well as the sanctions of religion should be invoked to quicken moral feeling. Virtue should be instilled into the mind both as a principle and a sentiment, and our youth should be taught that honesty is the best policy in a worldly sense, as well as an injunction of Divine authority."

Various causes have contributed to the increase of crime in the United States; amongst the most prominent of which is the impunity with which it has been practised by men in high places. If every offence had been promptly visited by the rigors of the law, there would have been few imitators, and consequently the number of criminal acts would have been greatly diminished. But the escape of one encouraged another, particularly among public officers, until it has become more remarkable to find an honest man than a rogue in any office where large sums of money are to be handled. Ministers of the Gospel may preach, and the press thunder its denunciations against peculators, without producing the slightest amendment, so long as they can escape the punishment of the law. It is a question of great interest, and should be of deep solicitude, what can be done to elevate the moral standard and repress crime?—and we know of no mode likely to be more effectual than to promote industry and restrain extravagance. The man who is busily engaged will have no leisure to plan schemes of villany; and, as his subsistence will be produced by "the sweat of his brow," he will not be disposed to squander his means upon superfluous show. "The hand of the diligent maketh rich"—industry is therefore the road to wealth as well as to contentment; and the parent is guilty of injustice to his offspring who indulges his son in idle habits, and fosters his false pride. The youth who has no useful employment in which to engage his attention, is an incumbrance to society and a burthen to himself. He is too often the embryo convict of the penitentiary—and for the severity of his destiny he is indebted to what is absurdly called parental affection. He is raised in idleness, pride and voluptuousness, and finishes his course in crime, contempt and punishment. From the gentleman who scorns to work, he descends to the swindler who defrauds the widow and the orphan.

The derangement in the monetary affairs of the country, and the consequent difficulty of meeting pecuniary engagements, may have tended to the increase of crime; but our pecuniary embarrassments can be mainly traced to idleness and imprudence. We have practised head-work instead of hand-work; and in substituting stock-jobbing and speculation for regular and ordinary business, have been elevated on the top of the wave to be plunged into the abyss, without the power of control. Grasping at any straw to save himself from destruction, the man thus situated has too often wrecked his honor in the desperate struggle to maintain his station. So long as the successful rogue can hold a higher rank in society than the honest poor man, so long will crime be on the increase, and the moral feeling of the community suffer deterioration.

THE ELECTION. Such was the perfect order that prevailed in this city on Monday last, that a visiter would not have known from the movements of the people that an important election was being held. There seemed to be a universal apathy; and a olittle stir was made that people appeared as if attending to their ordinary business alone, excepting in the immediate vicinity of the polls, where a few individuals were collected to supply the voters with tickets. The new division of the wards perplexed the guessers as to the result, and both parties appeared to await the issue with perfect resignation. They were not kept long in suspense, as there were few split tickets to be counted. Before nine o'clock, the vote of the city was known, and the administration candidates admitted to be elected. The result produced no excitement—no improper manifestation of feelings—and the people quietly retired to their homes. It was a pleasing spectacle, to see so large a body of freemen, exercising their important right of electing their law-makers, in perfect unity and good humor—and the example set on Monday last, is highly honorable to the character of the Monumental city. The victors enjoyed their success without insulting exultation, and the vanquished bowed with submission to the will of the people. So may it ever be with the freemen of this country.

NATIONAL THEATER. The sterling comedy of the Hypocrite will be performed this evening; and with Mr. Lennox as Mawworm, the audience cannot fail to be pleased. Miss Helen Matthews, a young actress of much ability, will also make her appearance. The admirable Scotch drama of the Warlock of the Glen will conclude the evening's performance. See advertisement.

HUDDART'S PERFUMERY. We have just received from Mr. Huddart, No. 57½ Baltimore-st. corner of Tripolett's alley, a bottle of "Eau de Lavande," and another of "Hair Oil," both of his own manufacture. They are excellent articles, and we do not hesitate to recommend them to ladies and gentlemen.

The National Intelligencer of yesterday says: "The frigate Brandywine, we hear, is to return forthwith to the Mediterranean. The residue of the squadron, it is possible, if not probable, has received such information, after the Brandywine parted company with it.

SUSPICION OF PIRACY. James Reed, master of a fishing schooner at Gloucester, Mass. (says the N. Y. Signal of the 17th,) has made oath to a statement of which the following is the substance: He swore that on the 12th inst., being at sea about fifteen miles from the New Jersey shore, he saw a small boat with three men in it, heading so as to land opposite Manahocking. At the same time he saw a schooner about six miles east of him, with her mainsail set, and "yawing" in the wind so strangely as to convince him that there was no one on board to steer. He immediately bore away for her, and on reaching her found that she was the schooner Mogul of that city. She was on her broad-side, nearly full of water. He saw an auger hole which had been lately bored through her starboard quarter with a two-inch auger. Some of his crew were with him, and they went together into the cabin, where they found two chests open and empty.—On the bed in the Captain's berth there was a number of clothes, and the appearance of a body in the berth; but the sea pressed the bed and clothes so hard against the carlins of the deck that they could not be removed. They left her about 4 o'clock, P. M., at which time she was fast sinking. In conclusion, the deponent does most solemnly swear that it is his belief, and it was the belief of all who saw the bed and bedding before referred to, that the dead body of some person was in the Captain's berth of said schooner Mogul.

Gen. Darcy, U. S. Marshal for New Jersey, in connection with several others, is engaged in efforts to discover the men who were going ashore in the small boat. The Mogul was owned by Nesmith & Leeds and Mitchell & Co. of this city. The owners believe that Capt. Snow and two others on board have been murdered. The crew consisted of Wm. F. Green, mate, James Cantine, cook, Lyman French, James D. Fox, and Thomas Smith, seamen.

AN EXQUISITE FALL OR THE FALL OF AN EXQUISITE. Yesterday about noon, while a young knight of the mustache, apparently a stranger in this city, was walking up Baltimore street for the purpose, no doubt, of exhibiting his well braced form and half artificial pedestrious members, he accidentally placed one of his high heeled boots upon an orange peeling which had been carelessly thrown on the pavement. This caused his foot to give way, and down came our hero, sprawling like a thing of life, at full length. "Monsieur Tonson," (we must give him this name in the absence of his real one,) although not hurt, appeared amazingly mortified. To make the matter still worse, he, in attempting to regain his position, shook off one of his long dark glossy whiskers, which, of course, was false. This, however, he did not discover, owing, perhaps, to the extreme nervous excitement caused by the sudden transition from so elevated to so humble a position. His promenade had not been extended very far until the bristly ornament of his downy cheek was missing. This caused Monsieur, as he was well aware, to look rather odd, and he quickly applied his delicate fingers to the other cheek, snatched off the remaining whisker and slipped it into his pocket. Thus was Sir Whiskerando deprived of a part at least of his false plumage, and rendered a living rebuke to those who are in the habit of wearing it.

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT. The New York Sun states that by the upsetting of a sail-boat in the Hudson river, opposite the village of Newburgh, on Wednesday afternoon, a lad named Hughes, aged about 17 years, one of the celebrated musical performers, known as the Masters Hughes, was drowned. The deceased, with his two younger brothers, were to have given a concert at the Orange Hotel, on Wednesday evening. The remainder of the party were picked up by the ferry and other boats, and brought to Newburgh in an almost exhausted state. It is a little remarkable that the deceased was the only one of the brothers who could swim.

LOSS OF THE SCHOONER CONVOY. The schooner Convoy, which cleared at Mobile on Tuesday, 4th inst. in ballast, for Attakapas, was struck by a sudden squall of wind on Friday, 7th inst., when about 43 miles southeast of Mobile Point Light House, and was immediately capsized and lost. There was but one passenger on board, Dr. Mitchell, of Louisiana, who, with the captain and crew, took the small boat, and arrived in safety at Mobile Point, on Saturday, 8th inst. at about 3 o'clock, P. M.

SLAVER CAPTURED. A letter received at New Bedford on Friday, from H. Carroll, Esq. U. S. Consul at St. Helena, dated March 26, 1841, states that five Portuguese slavers had just been brought in at St. Helena, having been captured on the west coast of Africa, by the British naval force on that station, with upwards of one thousand slaves on board. The slaves had been landed at St. Helena, and remained, of course, subject to the orders of the British Government.

A FRAGMENT OF A WRECK. The Philadelphia Inquirer of yesterday says, Captain Davis, of the ship Goodwin, from Liverpool, states that about 15 days ago he passed a piece of a wreck at sea, and the mate observing it remarked, that it evidently belonged to a steamer. He had no apprehension in relation to the President, or he would have picked the fragment up. Capt. D. arrived at that port on Sunday last.

A MURDER. The Poston Post of Friday says: "Yesterday morning the grand jury returned a bill for wilful murder against William Simmons, for killing Henry Reed, hackman, by stabbing him with a bowie-knife, on Friday night, the 23d April. He will probably be arraigned to-morrow morning."

EMIGRANTS. About 300 passengers from Bremen arrived at Philadelphia within the last two days.

CASE OF ALEXANDER M'LEOD. At the opening of the New York Supreme Court on Monday morning, Mr. Bradley, one of the counsel for the prisoner, proceeded to read his affidavit in support of the motion for his discharge.

The affidavit refers to, and adopts as parts thereof, a mass of published documents communicated in different messages by the President of the United States to Congress, in relation to the "patriot" outbreak, which were read by Mr. Bradley, and the principal of which were the following:

Letter from Mr. Scott to Mr. Fillemore, dated December 13, 1837.

From the Mayor of Buffalo to the President of the United States, dated Dec. 14. 1837.

From Mr. Barker, the collector, to Mr. Benton, the U. S. District Attorney, Dec. 15.

Mr. Benton to Mr. Forsyth, Dec. 26.

Mr. Garrow, the marshall, to Mr. Benton, December 21.

Mr. Garrow to the President, Dec. 28.

Mr. Fox to Mr. Forsyth, Jan. 4, 1838.

Mr. Forsyth to Mr. Fox, Jan. 5.

Mr. Fox to Mr. Forsyth, Feb. 6, 1838.

Mr. Stevenson to Mr. Forsyth, dated London, May 24, 1839.

Mr. Fox to Mr. Forsyth, Dec. 13, 1840.

Mr. Forsyth's reply.

And lastly, Mr. Fox to Mr. Webster, March 12, 1841.

After the reading of these documents, the District Attorney of Niagara, read the demurrer interposed on behalf of the people.

At the close of the demurrer, Mr. Hall, Attorney General, put some questions to the court, and a discussion ensued, which was closed by adjourning the case over until the following morning.

MORE OF IT. The New Orleans Crescent City of the 10th inst. states that the examination gone into, and "to be continued" at the Bank of Louisiana, resulted on Saturday last, in the discovery of an overdraft to the amount of 60,000! Previous to this, the book keeper having charge of the accounts had disappeared, but nothing was thought to be proven thereby, save a peculiar nervous temperament.

TEXAS LOAN. We have been shown, says the New Orleans Bulletin, a letter from Col. Bee, the Texian minister; dated Washington, April 25th, from which we make the following extract: "Gen. Hamilton will be in New York in June, and I will accompany him in November to Texas. The loan will be out in May, but will not be available before July. Gen. H. has met with unparalleled success"

FIRE AT ANNAPOLIS. The driver of the Mail carriage which left Annapolis yesterday morning brought news that the Rail Road depot, Engines, &c. at that place were destroyed by fire during the night. This, no doubt, was the cause of there being no connection with the Washington train yesterday morning.

A CHILD BURNT TO DEATH. A daughter of B. Newton, Esq. of Palmyra, Wayne county, N. Y. aged nine years, was burned to death on the 8th inst. While leaning her head upon a table on which was a lighted candle, she fell asleep, and her sleeve took fire from the blaize. Before she could be relieved from her burning clothes, she was past recovery.

AN ATTEMPT TO ANTICIPATE THE LAW'S PENALTY. A young man named Hamilton, of New Orleans, after having been sentenced by the Court to four years confinement in the State prison, when on his way thither, drew a knife from his pocket, stabbed himself twice in the breast and then jumped into the dock. His end, however, was not accomplished.

SUGAR. A little more than two hundred years ago, sugar was kept only in the shop of the apothecary. Now the annual consumption in the United States alone is estimated at eighty millions of pounds.

☞Mrs. FITZWILLIAM took her final farewell benefit at New Orleans on the 10th inst. Fanny Elsler had been on the 11th, and from all accounts it was a real smasher.

COMMUNICATION.

Description of the New Organ, in the German Lutheran Church, North Gay Street, built by H. KNAUFF, of Philadelphia.

This instrument has a great many modern improvements, varied composition of metals, &c. a great proportion of which is scarcely known or found, even in modern constructed organs; the result of which is aided by the peculiar care and adaptation of the builder to produce a power and brilliancy of tone of real volume and depth, whilst the variations by means of the soft stops, the accompaniment can be made ad lib. to suit the weakest solo voice, contrasting magnificently with the full peal, and particularly the thunder of the Bass and Trombone, joined by the voices of a whole congregation. Those who were present last Sunday, on the occasion of consecrating the instrument, can alone appreciate its effect.

COUNTY COURT. A case came up yesterday, in which Tilghman Compton and others were plaintiffs, and the Baltimore and Susquehanna Rail Road defendants. This is an action brought by plaintiffs, the heirs of the late Thomas Compton, to recover damages. It appears the road passing through these lands is that of the old location; that subsequent to the change of location a jury had awarded only nominal damages, in consideration of, as they then supposed, the value of the lands being enhanced by the rail road passing through. The location being changed so as not to pass through this place at all, the present action is for damages sustained in the excavation through a considerable portion of arable land and the filling an embankment through a tract of meadow land, which has been left ever since. The case was not gotten through with when the court adjourned, and will be resumed this morning. Counsel for the plaintiffs, R. Johnson and John Scott; for defendants, John Mason Campbell.

The Rev. Lorenzo Dow, Jr. in one of his sermons, exclaims to his hearers—"Eternity! why you don't know the meaning of that word, nor I either, hardly. It is for ever and ever and five or six everlastings a top of that. You might place a row of figures from here to sunset, and cipher them all up, and it would'at begin to tell how many ages long eternity is!" "Why, my friends, after millions, billions and trillions of years have rolled away in eternity, it would then be a hundred thousand years to breakfast time."

WEBB'S PATENT BURNERS, AND CAMPHINE OIL.

FOR SALE AT No. 109 E. BALTIMORE STREET, between South and Calvert streets, where Burners of every description can be obtained. Those who are sceptical as to its safety or economy, would, I trust be perfectly satisfied by examining the opinion of Professor LOCK, of Ohio, on "WEBB'S CAMPHINE," or by referring to the Journals of the Franklin and American Institutes, of Philadelphia and New York. All those desirous of obtaining a clean, brilliant, and economical light, will find it ready to their advantage by calling on the subscriber. The public may be assured of one fact, that we require no meters to ascertain the amount of Camphine consumed, as they register correctly and in plain English.

☞ ASTRAL LAMPS ALTERED.

N. B. We have appointed JOSHUA ATKINSON Agent, No. 92 Market street, F. P., where all orders will meet with immediate attention.

P. AUGUSTUS BAILEY, Agent
For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

DEAR SIR—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have turned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,

"NO CURE NO PAY."

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, is its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

Persons residing at any distance, can have medicine sent to them, packed secure from observation.

It was out of pure motives of philanthropy, that this medicine was first made public; the price always to remain $1 per Bottle, to be within the reach of the most unfortunate.

☞ Letters addressed, (post paid) describing the case, mode of living, &c. will be promptly attended to. Direct No. 17 Harrison street.

TWO CHARMING PERIODICALS. 1st No. of a New Volume of the Ladies' Companion. Opinions of the Press, viz: New World.

The Knickerbocker for this month is out punctually on the first, and it is full to overflowing with good things. That capital story, the Country Doctor—far superior to the majority of the continuations in the English Magazines—goes on more amusingly than before. The number is embellished with a curious and appropriate engraving of "a Dutch Cottage in Beaver street, 1679."

The May number of the Ladies' Companion is embellished with a steel engraving that would do no discredit to Finden's Galleries. It is exceedingly beautiful, and is entitled "The Young Chief's First Ride." Such embellishments alone entitle this various and excellently edited magazine to the bountiful patronage with which it is favored. We notice certain typographical improvements in this number, which are indications of the good taste of the proprietor.

The literary merit of the Ladies' Companion seems to increase rather than diminish—and, with the editorial labors which are now bestowed upon it, it cannot fail to be pronounced highly creditable to the literature of the country.

TERMS—Knickerbocker, $5 per year, or $1.25 quarterly. Ladies' Companion, $3 per year, or 25 cts. each number. Single numbers for sale at

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.

GREAT SOUTHERN

UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,

DAILY TO THE SOUTH.

The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmasters General to make the following quick Schedules:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M. reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M. "	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M. "	Fred'ksburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M. "	Richmond	5 P.M.

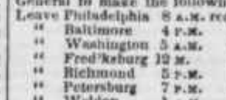
" Petersburg	7 P.M. "	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M. "	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M. "	Charleston	at 5 the next day.



As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection throughout, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads, Weather, and Storms, must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon; and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

Leave Weldon at 1 o'clock, A. M.
Arrive at Wilmington at 1 o'clock, P. M.
Leave Wilmington immediately and arrive in Charleston next morning to breakfast.

It will be seen by the above schedule that in order to render the connexion certain, it is only necessary for the Cars of the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road to arrive at Weldon prior to 1 o'clock, A. M. whereas they uniformly arrive before dark—if therefore a detention should take place at any point between Baltimore and Weldon, not occupying more than NINE HOURS, the traveller can by no possibility lay over at any point north of Wilmington. RETURNING, one of the above boats will leave Norfolk every night at 10 o'clock, and cross over to Portsmouth where she will wait the arrival of the Cars from Weldon, and the passengers and baggage are on board, arriving here in about 14 hours after departing from Portsmouth. ADDRESS TO THE SOUL.

——Immortal Soul!
Being made to outlast you blazing sun,
And bloom in youth when Nature lies entomb'd;
Thou who wast made to stand unmov'd, unhurt,
Is that great day, the final close of all,
When Heaven's great artillery shall roll,
And shake the pillars of Creation down,
When worlds shall from their various orbits fly,
And blazing suns drop from their lofty spheres,
And system upon system sink to nought;
When thunders bellow thro' the shatter'd arch,
And flaming lightnings wrap the flying worlds,
And all Creation into atoms crush.
O Soul immortal, when this scene shall be,
Triumphant thou shalt stand amid the wreck,
And wave thy banner o'er the ruined worlds.
O Soul, it seems as if I heard thee speak,
And ask "How can such wond'rous things be so?
That worlds shall sink beneath the weight of years,
And systems crumble at the touch of Time,
That I shall live uninjured and untouch'd,
And smile in youth when all have sunk to nought?"
Yes—yes—'tis so; this Universe shall fall,
And Time shall sink her to chaotic night,
But thou shalt live, beyond the reach of Time,
And bloom forever in immortal youth.
O Soul, when on the wings of thought I soar
From world to world, and pass Creation's bounds,
And there behold the place of thy abode,
There on the blessed plains of Paradise,
To strike thy harp while endless ages roll:
Canst thou, O Soul, be rivetted to earth,
And grasp at things which perish at the touch?
No—as I speak I feel thee stir within,
And try thy bars, impatient to be off
To spread thy wings beyond the rolling spheres,
And fix thy feet on immortality.
Be not impatient, thou shalt be released,
A few more days, or months, or years may roll,
When Death shall break thy chains, drive back the bolts,
Unbar the doors, and bid thee reach the skies.
Exalted being! formed for purer climes,
Shall I, O Soul, now load thee down with guilt,
And sink thee to the caverns of the damned,
There to remain, deep in the gloom of hell,
Where horrid howls and sounds of clanking chains,
Like rumbling thunder, fill her dismal depths,
Instead of dwelling there in endless bliss,
To measure an eternity of woe?
No, no; I shudder at the awful thought—
O, may this be my greatest business here,
To fit thee, Soul, for immortality.

ATKINSON.

MY GRANDFATHER'S STORY.

BY LYDIA JANE PIERSON.

"Well, well," said my grandfather, "sit down, girls, and I will tell you all about it."

Cousin Sarah and myself accordingly got our work, and sitting down at a proper distance, assumed the attitude of earnest listeners.

"If you had ever been in France," he commenced, "I could make you understand my story much better, but your little rustic American imaginations can never conceive any thing like the refinement, and yet freedom of society in that polished country; the softness and beauty of the earth and sky; or the striking magnificence of the old ruinous chateaux; but as it is I shall be very brief in my sketches of these things."

"Oh, no, no, grandfather," we both exclaimed at once, "you must be the more particular in your description; for being strange to us they are the more interesting."

"Well," he replied, "I will as much as I can, without making a long story of it; but do not interrupt me, for that will utterly break the chain of my recollections.

"First, you must consider that although I am an old American citizen, I was once a young French nobleman; and your grandmother whom you see busied in household duties is a Stuart, of the royal blood of Scotland. The estate of my ancestors lies in view of the ancient and noble city of Lyons, stretching from the beautiful Rhone west to the Cervennes mountains. A fine chateau near the river is the modern residence of our family; but its ancient stronghold is a rude and magnificent old castle, built on the rocky summit of a mountain which stands alone in its majesty, looking down with seeming scorn on the proud city, and the river which can never more than kiss its feet. My noble grandsire had two sons, of whom my father was the younger. My uncle, of course, inherited the title and estate, and was sole lord of the old castle; although my father occupied magnificent apartments in the chateau. I remember when quite a child accompanying my father in his visits to my uncle, at such seasons as he chose to reside on the mountain. My awe and admiration of the dark, old structure were boundless. There it sat, firm as the eternal rock to which it was secured, utterly inaccessible on the side toward the river; and scarcely approachable in any direction, save by an expensively constructed road, dug or built along the margin of a brook which flows at the bottom of a ravine, down the mountain, toward the river. This traversed ravine presented to my eyes a thousand wild, beautiful and romantic spots. I had not then seen the forests, and mountains, and wild glens, of this panorama of nature's most grand and beautiful works; this land of the majestic and the terrible; the lovely and the sweet; from the savage chieftain beside the soul-stunning Niagara, to the enameled humming bird kissing the blossoms that overhang the silver fountain. Oh! this is a glorious country; but it is not my native France.

"In that dear land every perpendicular rock, every bubbling cataract, every gnarled tree, or ragged shrub was a picturesque and wonderful object to my young imagination; and to be allowed to visit my uncle at the castle was the highest reward at which my efforts were aimed. My uncle was a widower. At thirty years of age he married a beautiful child of seventeen, whom he fervently idolized: but in less than two years the fair creature began to fade. He carried her to balmy Italy, but he returned alone. From that time he was sad and gloomy, almost morose. He never left the castle, except to ramble over the mountains, among the wild recesses of which he often spent whole nights, and I sometimes shuddered as I heard the domestics hint that he was or would be utterly crazed. Such was my uncle's condition, when on a beautiful summer morning, my father set out with me towards the castle. I was eight years of age, and had just been made master of a fine slick mule, which I was permitted to ride by the side of my father's noble Arabian horse. That was a proud day to me. Never since have I felt myself of as much consequence as then. My uncle's steward, who saw in me the future lord of the estate, always paid me great deference, and I was an idol in his family. Of course I spent the time of my visits with them, after paying my respects to my uncle, who always saluted me with grave courtesy, and then turned sorowfully away. I was an especial pet of the steward's daughter, a pretty girl of about seventeen, who always treated me with choice cakes and delicious fruits. On this day she spread a table in a garden arbor, with her choicest viands, adding rich cream and sweetmeats, to which we sat down joyfully. But she soon made me sad by saying that in all probability I should not dine with her again. She was about to be married and go far away. But she wished to tell me something of great importance, only she feared I was too young to have discretion to manage so strange an affair. This mysterious prelude wrought my curiosity to the highest pitch. I protested and promised every thing she required of me, and she began:

"'You see the square tower all covered with ivy that stands on the angle of that perpendicular rock. Did you ever notice how lonely it is; how small and high the windows are, and that there is no way of getting to it from without? Well, you see it is only connected with the rest of the building by one long, dark gallery; the other sides being closed up with strong walls. This tower has been called the Haunted Tower these hundred years. I used to be afraid to go near it. You were a very little baby when your beautiful aunt died abroad, and your uncle came home a mourner to this place. I was then about as old as you are now. I cried bitterly for the loss of my young lady, and pitied my lord exceedingly. I observed that he went frequently to that tower, and remained for hours within it. Once I ventured to follow him. I know not what impelled me; but I was surprised when I entered the hall. It was tastefully furnished, and adorned with the most beautiful and fragrant exotic and native plants and shrubs. I stood a moment lost in admiration, when I thought I heard low voices in conversation. I listened; I distinctly heard my lord speaking, and detected the murmur of a soft female voice. A door on one side the hall stood partly open. I approached it stealthily, and saw my lord kneeling before a most beautiful woman, who sat upon a low seat, resting her face upon her hand, seemingly in deep sorrow. She was dressed in black, and her hair was of the same dark hue, while her hands, face, and shoulders were as white as alabaster. I did not look long, but I saw my lord press her hand to his lips, when she suddenly withdrew it with a shudder, and bending down placed both her hands over her face and wept. I stole away; but whether I was observed or my intrusion suspected, or from some other cause, my lord ever after secured the door behind him, so that I entered there no more. Yet often in the mellow twilight I have heard strains of solemn music, so soft and sorrowful that I have sat down and wept until the melody ceased. But I never saw the lady since that time. I have heard others assert that they have seen an apparition, which they say is like our deceased lady, and that while they gazed it vanished away. But the person whom I saw was as unlike my lady as possible, and as to the vanishing, as these sights were always seen in the evening, I suppose she wore a white dress and a black mantle, which on being alarmed she drew around her, and so became invisible. Now who she is, or how she came here, or why she keeps herself so concealed I cannot guess. I have kept it secret out of respect to your uncle, but I thought as you will be lord here after his death, and he is slowly wasting away, I would tell you, and when you come to the estate you will examine into it. But do not mention it until then; for I am sure that any discovery or investigation would greatly afflict your poor uncle, whose melancholy I am sure is connected with this mystery.'

"Now, girls," said my grandfather, if you can tell me how such a piece of information would make you feel, I shall have no need of telling you the wonder, the terror, the curiosity and anxiety which it awakened in my mind. Sleeping or waking my thoughts were full of Annette's story. Once I ventured to ask my mother why people thought my uncle's castle haunted? 'It is a common thing,' she replied, 'for the vulgar to tell marvellous tales of old buildings, castles in particular; but I hope that you will show your superior breeding, by never giving heed to such tales. Your father has been there much by day and night, and he never saw any thing wonderful; and it would grieve him if he knew that you had been listening to stories of supernatural agency.' I assured her that I did not believe in ghosts; and I never again ventured to propose the subject. As years past on, the impression became less vivid, until Annette's tale of wonder seemed to me like some old familiar legend. I was about eighteen when I was suddenly summoned from the University to attend my uncle's death-bed. When I found myself again in that old familiar place, although the old steward had died, and his place was filled by a stranger, the story of the old tower came first among the recollections of the past. My uncle was so wan and wasted that I should not have known him, yet he seemed exceedingly glad to see me. In the night as I sat beside his bed, he dismissed the nurse, saying that she must need rest and sleep. He then said that as I was his kinsman and successor, he hoped that he might confide to me something which nearly concerned his honor. I remarked that as his honor was mine he need be under no apprehension. So he commenced.

"I was, according to custom, betrothed in my boyhood to a sweet little babe almost as soon as she saw the day. Our fathers were sworn friends and I saw the little Adela frequently, and loved her as a dear sister. But when I began to consider myself a man, I sometimes felt as if I could not wait for her, for she was much younger than I. Being fond of reading, and naturally romantic, I drank in with avidity, every wild and passionate legend, and longed for some thrilling adventure. My alliance was tasteless, because it lacked the excitement of adventure or opposition. And yet, when weary of noise and pleasure, I found it sweet to pass an hour in her society; she was so gentle, unassuming and affectionate. At the age of twenty-five I departed on my travels, with a soul thirsting for adventure. I pass over all, however, until I arrived at Constantinople. Here among the licentious, I felt that all the passions of man's nature had full license. I shall not carry you by my details into scenes by which I pray God you may never be polluted. Suffice it that a young and lovely creature, whose innocence and fond confiding I should have respected, forgot her alliance to her nominal lord, and became mine with a fervor of affection, which is never equalled or even understood in these cold climes. I thought only of dallying with her a while when I first sought to win her; but there was an enchantment about her which I often fancied to be in reality the magic of which I had often read. At length the time of my sojourn in that unequalled city was expiring. I sought to tear myself away, for I never dreamed of taking Alma with me. But she would not leave me. I felt embarrassed as to the manner I should dispose of her if she accompanied me to France. But my hackneyed heart felt no compunction for the deceit I had practised upon her; and I resolved formally to retain her, keeping her, if possible, in ignorance of our laws and customs, and of christianity of course, and marry Adela according to contract. So I gave myself up to the pleasure of her society; and she dreamed not of the workings of the heart which she fondly considered all her own.

"Arrived at home, I placed her in an elegant mansion, furnished her with attendants, and every elegance and luxury of life; and while preparations were going forward for my union with Adela, found my highest enjoyment in the society of the ardent Alma. She was a perfect contrast to Adela in every particular. I loved them both, just as may we admire the lilly and the rose. The wedding day arrived, and I pledged to Adela a perjured vow.

"I had been married one year when my wife enquired of me who the beautiful girl was whom I was in the habit of attending to places of public amusement. I was prepared for this, and told her that it was a Turkish lady, the wife of a sea captain, a particular friend of mine, who was absent at sea. Adela insisted on being introduced to her, for she said she felt a great curiosity to look on the woman whose beauty had become the theme of every tongue. Here was a dilemma for which I was utterly unprepared. I could make no reasonable excuse, and the hesitancy and embarrassment of my manner excited or confirmed suspicion. It seemed that Adela was completely a woman, and determined to gratify her curiosity, although by so doing she made herself wholly miserable. When I next visited Alma I found her sorrowful and pale. She had been visited by a lady, whom, from her description, I knew to be my wife, who had drawn from her artless tongue her whole history, and then set before her the ignominy and sinfulness of her present situation.—These were strange words for the poor girl's ear, yet I succeeded in calming her mind, and left her with emotions of such sorrow as I never felt before. I fully comprehended the wrong I had done her, and the anguish that must from this time be her portion. I felt angry at Adela, and yet how could I blame her. She discovered a coldness and restraint in my manner, and became herself cold and restrained; in short, we were all three wretched. Adela in her zeal employed her confessor to teach Alma the mysteries of religion. Alma was ever in tears; and Adela began to pine and waste away. At length she became so ill that her physician declared that nothing could help her unless it were a journey to, and a short residence in Italy. But before I set forward I conveyed Alma to this castle, and placed her in the tower, which superstition had cast a spell around; entrusting her to the sole care of an aged female domestic, lest during my absence he persuaded her to enter a convent.

"I came home widowed, but not in heart. I flew to Alma, and told her there was no drawback on our happiness now; that she should now possess both hand and heart. She wept long and agonisingly upon my bosom, and then told me that the magic glass of life was broken. That the clear cold light of reality now lay upon all the ways of love. That earth to her was no longer a blissful paradise. And finally, that she had resolved to enter a nunnery. Oh! the agony of that hour. I sought by every argument to divert her from her purpose, but she was unyielding. For a long time I refused to let her go, and kept her prisoner in the tower. But when I could by no means move her, when she turned ever weeping from me, or kneeling besought me no longer to keep her from the court of heaven, I gave her the keys of her prison, and left the castle. I returned after a few days. She was gone. I was desolate; and from that hour I have been dying.

"'Last week my confessor put a letter into my hand, observing that it was given him by one who said that it required no answer, as the writer was dead. It was from Alma. She said she must be brief, for her minutes on earth were few. She bade me reproach myself on her account no more, as she was passing away to heaven, leaving me her prayers and blessings. She had loved me ever and alone. She begged that I would freely pardon her if she had done me wrong. But her chief object in writing was to entreat my protection for our child. Oh! my God, how that word thrilled me. I had not dreamed of such a thing. Yet she said that during my absence with my injured wife she had borne a female child. That she had concealed the circumstances from me, lest it should be made an impediment to her becoming a nun. That the child was named Adela, was now in the convent, and was ignorant of her parents. She desired me to suffer her to continue, if she should prefer to remain and take the veil, but if she should leave her sanctuary, she besought me to be her guardian. I visited the convent; I knelt on the cold marble that lies above my Alma's colder bosom—I saw my daughter; she told me that she would take the veil. I passed as her mother's uncle; told her that she was an orphan, and offered her protection if she would leave the convent. She replied that as she had no earthly parents she would never leave her present place of refuge. I came home and lay down to die.

"'I have now, my dear nephew, told you that which I had thought would never pass my lips; but it is for the sake of my poor child. My heart bleeds for her, orphan, and penniless as she is. I could not speak of her to your father; but you are young, and your heart is as yet uncalloused. You will eventually succeed to these estates. Albert, I do not wish my child to become a nun; I will give you a letter and casket; you will find them in that bureau; take them to her when I am no more. Say I bade you deliver them only to her. You will thus obtain an interview with her. I am sure you will love her, for she is the image of her mother. If so, take her from the convent, and make her your wife. Promise to do this and I will die content. Your relationship need be no obstacle, for it is known only to yourself. Will you promise?, 'I swear to do all you ask, provided Adela is willing.' 'Thank you, my son. Now I can depart in peace.'

"My uncle died, and was laid in the stately mausoleum of the family. I went to execute his commission to my cousin. As I looked upon her face and figure I no longer wondered that my uncle loved her mother. She was beautiful beyond all description. No eye could scan her features, for her face was like a pellucid fountain, in which all lovely objects of earth and heaven were constantly and changeably reflected.

"As she was not of the sisterhood I was allowed to see her daily, and converse with her thro' the grate, and I need not tell you that I loved her madly. She confessed that her heart was mine, and promised to leave the convent and become my wife. I was now obliged to go on business into Germany. I told Adela that I would be back in eight weeks.

"I wrote to her frequently, and at length despatched a letter naming a day for our meeting.—Soon after I had mailed it, I fell on the ice and broke my leg, beside injuring my head so severely that I was unconscious of my own existence for nearly three weeks. As soon as I was sufficiently recovered I wrote an account of the accident to Adela, and continued to write at short intervals until I was able to travel.

"I arrived at home after an absence of four months, and flew to the convent to see my soul's delight once more. Judge of my agony when I was told that I could not see her, and that she had taken the veil. I felt as if the whole beautiful world had become a miserable chaos, amid the horrors of which I was eternally lost. At length I began to hope. I got a letter conveyed to her, in which I pictured as forcibly as language could, the distraction of my mind, and besought her to give me some consolation. She sent me an agonizing reply. She had ever been taught that men were false, and that love was sin.—When I failed in my return these precepts were enforced, and she gave them renewed credence. She saw no letter from me afterward, and being urged to join the sisterhood, in her despair and agony consented, and was now lost to me forever. But I could not so resign her. I plead with her that her promise to me being prior made her monastic vows null; and I urged her to elope with me to America.

"She at length gave a reluctant consent. I gathered up a large sum of money, and we soon found ourselves on ship-board, and plying from our native land. Think you that I was then happy? Alas for human hopes and passions! I was in possession of my adored and beautiful Adela, but I was a fugitive from my country, I was fleeing like a felon from my father's house, and I felt that I had left mourning and bitterness in the places where I should have been diffusing peace and joy. Of the rank and wealth that I had relinquished I thought little, for poverty and contempt had not then taught me to value them. But I was sad even in the hour in which I had attained that for which I would freely have given life itself. Adela and I were united by the chaplain of the ship, on board of which we sailed, but he was a Protestant. Poor Adela scrupled at the validity of a ceremony thus performed; and the prejudices of her education, with the vows she had broken, were persecuting spirits ever torturing her heart, and mixing gall and venom forever with the cup of joy. Her eyes lost their lustre, and her smile was sorrowful; I saw it, and my heart grew sad. I had one hope left, that she would regain her spirits when we should arrive amid the novel and beautiful scenes of the New World; and then I hoped that she would become a Protestant, in which case she would cease to agonise over her monastic vows. The chaplain, at my request, used every argument with her in vain; her distress augmented, and ere we had been one month at sea she was attacked by a violent fever.

"Oh! the bitter, dreadful agony with which I watched beside her couch. Her pains of body were intense, but her distress of mind was more terrible still. At length her reason failed her, and her death-bed scene was indeed agony. But as death approached more nearly, her pains remitted, and her phrenzy passed away. She said that she was forgiven, and ready to appear before God, leaning on the mercy of her Redeemer. She besought me to seek His consolations, and bidding me a fond farewell, her young spirit passed away.

"And now what remained to me of all my treasures? I had bartered every thing for her, and a cold and rigid form was all that I had left. Terrible and hideous as death had come upon her, I longed to feel his hand upon me also. But he turned from me. I was obliged to live and see my poor Adela cast into the deep sea, almost as soon as her spirit had departed. My misery was now overflowing. I was bereft and alone in the world. I dared not return to France, for I feared the power of the religion whose sanctuaries I had feloniously invaded. I assumed the name which I and all my descendants bear, and landed in Philadelphia a broken-hearted and sorrowing stranger.—I was greatly disappointed; for I had been taught to believe America a beautiful paradise, in which wealth and happiness awaited every adventurer, who was so fortunate as to set his foot upon its shores. But I learned in time to procure a decent livelihood; the romance of youth was dissipated; I became a reasonable creature; I married your good grand mother with rational expectations, and now I am an old man surrounded by a numerous progeny, and almost ready to depart in peace.—And, now girls, that I have told you the story of my life, which you have entreated of me so often, I hope you will find instruction in it, and learn to value the frail and evanescent things of time, less than the peace of others, and the approbation of your own mind. Now go, and leave me to seek the repose, which agitation of mind occasioned by retracing the scenes of my youth, renders so necessary for me."

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 20, 1841.

PUBLIC MEETING. The reader will be glad to see that the Address heretofore delivered by William Bose, Esq. "on the resources of Pennsylvania and the West, and the relations of trade which Baltimore now occupies in reference to them," will be repeated, by request, this evening, at the Musical Saloon of the Assembly Rooms. The important interests connected with this subject are not sufficiently understood by the citizens of Baltimore—for very few persons have had either the leisure or opportunity to give them a thorough investigation. Those who had the pleasure of hearing this address at its first delivery, have given it their unqualified approbation—and the call now made for its repetition is evidence of a general desire to become acquainted with the information which the industry of Mr. Bose has accumulated.

BANK OF THE UNITED STATES. By the proceedings published to-day it will be seen, that, at a meeting of the stockholders of this Institution it was resolved to accept the law lately passed by the Legislature of Pennsylvania in relation to the Banks of that State. Other resolutions were also adopted, among which those submitted by Mr. Duane will arrest attention.—If a portion of the funds of the Bank has been employed for political purposes, or in rewards for editorial labors, or otherwise improperly, we hope that the whole facts will be disclosed to the public. We never believed that the money of the Bank had been so appropriated; yet the adoption of the resolution condemning the application of funds in that way, would seem to give confidence to the impression which has prevailed with some, that corruption has been practised in some shape.

A long report, in reply to Mr. Biddle's publications, was submitted by the investigating committee. It is drawn up with temper and skill; and, unless Mr. Biddle can remove the impressions which it cannot fail to make, he will be likely to suffer in public estimation. This report states that there are upwards of one million of dollars in the expense account, without any designated object, and for which no vouchers have been produced.

The expositions daily made strengthen the conviction upon our mind, that the whole banking system of the country is corrupt and corrupting; and that, unless it be purged of its impurities and regulated upon different principles, the whole fabric must fall into ruin.

THE ELECTION. We erroneously stated yesterday, that two friends of the administration were elected in the first congressional district.—We intended to have said were candidates—there being no opposition. We have not received full returns from any district; but there can be no doubt that the next representatives in congress will consist of six administration and two opposition, being an administration gain of three.

The following are the names of those elected:

District 1—ISAAC D. JONES, (adm.)
2—J. A. PEARCE, (adm.)
3—J. W. WILLIAMS, (oppo.)
4—ALEX. RANDALL, (adm.)
J. P. KENNEDY, (adm.)
5—W. COST JOHNSON, (adm.)
6—J. T. MASON, (oppo.)
7—A. R. SOLLERS, (adm.)

GIVE US THE NAMES. The Philadelphia Spirit of the Times states, that many of the publishers of newspapers in that city and county are indebted to the Bank of the United States in large sums, varying from $18,000 to $52,000; and that "to editors and publishers in New York and Baltimore, similarly large sums have been loaned." In respect to the editors and publishers in Philadelphia and New York, we have nothing to say, as we know nothing of their concerns; but in regard to those of Baltimore we ask for the names; and we invite the editor of the Spirit of the Times, to publish them, with the amount of indebtedness. He has made the charge and we ask him to recall or prove it. We have no knowledge of such loans, and must believe that the editor has been misinformed unless he publishes names and amounts.

A SHOOTING FRACAS. An altercation took place last evening, about 8 o'clock, at the grocery and liquor store of James Clifford, in Columbia street above Cove, between him and a Mr. James Cheston, which resulted in the latter being shot in the face with a pistol loaded with common shot, by the former. Three shot entered different parts of the face of Cheston, one penetrating the right eye, another the left cheek, and one through the lip, shattering the teeth and perforating the tongue. A physician was called in, who dressed the wounds, though he was fearful that the shot entering the eye had touched the brain, and if so, that the wound might prove fatal.

GRAND COMIC OLIO. To-night a grand comic olio and entertainment is to be given at the Fell's Point Assembly Rooms, corner of Bond and Thames streets, by the celebrated Master Diamond, Miss S. G. Shaw, Mr. Edwin, Mr. Jenkins, Master Jenkins, Signor Marriatti, and Mr. Butler. The performances are to consist of a variety of singing, dancing, &c. which will no doubt afford considerable amusement to the aficionados of the Point. Master Diamond, we can assure the reader, is no common boy.

YOUNG MEN. It is natural that the attention of the elder portion of the community should be directed, with intense interest, to the manners, habits and principles of the younger members of society, on whom is shortly to devolve the high and responsible duty of maintaining the republican institutions of the country. When the lately emancipated American people resolved upon the establishment of a republican system of government, they were regarded by many of the statesmen of the old world as visionary theorists, who were about to make an experiment which would result in abortion and confusion—and some even of the most enlightened and patriotic on this side of the Atlantic had their misgivings as to the success of the undertaking. It was foreseen, that, from the extent of territory, the variety of climate, the difference in production and the peculiar local circumstances connected with some of the states, there would necessarily arise a contrariety of views and conflict of interests. Happily these obstacles to a perfect union were overcome by the spirit of patriotism and of compromise. The adversaries of republican institutions have seen with surprise their evil prognostications frustrated, whilst the friends of freedom throughout the world have been filled with exultation at the successful establishment of a free government. So far the anticipations of the most sanguine have been fully realized. But are we destined to tread in the footsteps of other republics? To worship at the shrine of liberty for a time; then to relax our fervor, and finally to fall into the arms of despotism? All men of reflection will agree with the celebrated author of the Spirit of Laws, that intelligence is essential in a republican system of government: the ignorant cannot appreciate its blessings, and will not be solicitous to preserve its supremacy; it must, therefore, depend for its existence upon the intellectual and moral cultivations of its citizens. And this brings us to the consideration of a question of the utmost importance, in regard to the future destinies of this country, viz: are the young men of this nation devoting themselves to that course of mental improvement which will make them safe depositories of the liberties which will be transmitted to them? It opens a wide field for investigation; but its extensive range should not prevent examination. It must be evident to every one who has given to the subject the least consideration, that the inclinations and pursuits of the American people have undergone considerable change within a few years past—that there is a relaxation in the moral condition of society; and a falling off from the simplicity and purity of manners which prevailed in former days. We have unfortunately exchanged our plain republican garb for one more showy and extravagant, but less useful; and relinquished the courses of industry and frugality, and taken to those of speculation and waste. It can hardly be expected that these changes will not exert an injurious influence upon those who are rising into manhood, and to whom the country must look for its future statesmen and preservers—but we have no feelings of despondency, for we believe that the principle of patriotism is so firmly rooted in the bosoms of the American people, old and young, as not to be eradicated by the perverse dispositions which may be engendered by a temporary misdirection of the public mind. Fortunately too, the organization of numerous literary and scientific associations, and the cheapness of publications of general interest, afford to the young the opportunity of study and improvement; and we are happy to observe an increasing disposition to profit by these favorable sources of information. It cannot be too frequently and earnestly enforced upon the minds of young men, that they are to be the future guardians of the liberties of the country; and that the great responsibility of the duty which will be thus imposed, should be constantly impressed by parental instruction. It is of superior importance to the accumulation of wealth or the foppery of fashion. Our republic is yet in its infancy, but it is a Hercules in might, and if the energies of the people be not paralyzed by effeminate pursuits, or luxurious indulgences, it must continue to acquire strength and permanency with age, until it shall convince the world that a free people are competent to self-government, and are the only legitimate source of power.

FEMALE SPEAKERS. Persons have written and spoken elaborately on the rights of women; and we would willingly yield all the rights and privileges to which the softer sex are entitled, or in the enjoyment of which they could find pleasure. Custom has debarred them from participation in state concerns, and Dr. Johnson has ridiculed the idea of their becoming public speakers—but the "march of mind" is likely to disperse these prejudices, and to place the female upon a perfect intellectual and social equality with man. Mrs. Gove, we understand, has undertaken to effect this desirable reform, by teaching the ladies how to address a public assemblage for four hours at a stretch, without loss of breath or injury to lungs! and we may look out to have petticoat legislators who will be able to cope with the long-winded members who kill time in Congress at the rate of eight dollars a day. And why not? if four-hour speeches are to be made, we had rather have them in the mellow-toned voice of a female orator, than in the rough, boisterous, "you lie" style of our modern speakers. We go for the rights of ladies, and hope that after Mrs. Gove shall have untied their tongues and taught them to preserve their lungs, they will boldly put forth their pretensions to an equality of political privileges, and we promise to use our arms for their protection.

TENNESSEE ELECTION. Six Whigs and five Democrats, so far as heard from, have been elected to Congress. Two districts to be heard from. Nothing decisive has been heard from North Carolina.

WATCH RETURNS—May 18. Eastern District. Mary Ann Sterrett was brought in at half past 9 o'clock, charged with stealing sundry articles of clothing from Mary Peacock. No evidence appearing against her, she was released in the morning. Wm. Myers and William Sullivan were brought in at near 12 o'clock, found rioting in a house in Spring Street. One black man brought in for street walking after hours, Joseph Oldham brought in at past 1 o'clock, charged with assaulting and threatening the life of Mary Hall.

Middle District. Ellen Donovan, white, and Julia A. Jackson, black, were brought in for being drunk and disturbing the peace. Bartholomew Donevan brought in at 44 o'clock, charged with being drunk, disturbing the peace and endangering the property in the neighborhood of Slimmer Alley by fire. Ann Copper brought in for strolling the streets and being drunk, reprimanded and released. John Gooft charged with assaulting George M. Finn was brought in at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Western District. All quiet, only one occupant and he came in for lodgings.

THE ODD FELLOWS. It is stated in the Philadelphia papers that the "Odd Fellows" made a most splendid and brilliant display at their great procession on Tuesday last. The greatest order and decorum was observed. Every lodge in the city was fully represented. The Chronicle says that "at three o'clock the procession reached the Theatre, and took possession of the pit, which had been expressly reserved for their accommodation. The boxes were completely filled with ladies, who had been admitted at an early hour, and we are informed, that numbers sought entrance, but could find no room. The officers, in their glittering regalia, were seated on the stage. The whole spectacle was magnificent in the extreme, and spoke forcibly of the effect that charitable institutions exert upon the minds as well as the bodies of the populace. The oration by Mr. Kneass, was a finished production; full of enthusiasm, and abounding in brilliant flashes of the imagination, that enchanted the attention of the audience.

LATE AND IMPORTANT FROM TEXAS. By the brig Caroline, which vessel returned to this city yesterday from Vera Cruz, (says the N. O. Picayune of the 11th inst.) the following news has been reported. The items relative to the marching of troops to Vera Cruz, and the taking of the fort at the bar of Tampico, should be received as doubtful.

Gen. Samana, at the head of 1500 men, from Tobasco and Yucatan, has advanced within forty miles of Vera Cruz.

A united force of Texans and Campeachians had taken the fort and bar of Tampico.

A Texan man of war schooner was wrecked thirty miles to leeward of Vera Cruz, and all hands lost.

The New York packet ship Uria is also said to be cast away near Vera Cruz.

A Spanish man of war also suffered in the same storm.

On the 29th of April a conducta of $1,200,000 arrived at Vera Cruz from the interior.

Trade was very dull at Vera Cruz. No confidence existed among the people as to the stability of the government.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

THE LIEDERKRANTZ. The concert of this German Singing Association, which came off on Tuesday night, was attended by a large and fashionable audience. Romberg's great production, The Bell, was performed admirably, though some defect might have been observable to the critic. I notice particularly the admirable performance of Herz's Variation for the Piano, by Miss Schmidt, whose exquisite touch and splendid execution was most rapturously applauded. I was also much pleased with Mr. Wagner's brilliant performance on the Clarionet. There is no doubt that success would attend an early repetition of the concert. H. W.

BATHING. Nothing is more conducive to health than the frequent and regular habit of bathing. For this assertion, we have the opinion of the most learned and experienced physicians. A well regulated and properly conducted bath house is of more importance to the health of a city, than a thousand drug shops, or as many physicians. We look upon a bathing establishment as a public accommodation, fraught with benevolent ends, for which our citizens should be thankful. The name of Mr. Milhau is so blended with the above subject, that we cannot forbear mentioning it, and referring the reader to his Colonnade Bath House, which is now in elegant order.

MITCHELL, THE FORGER, ARRESTED. The great forger Mitchell, member of Congress from western New York, arrived in the city of New York, on Monday evening, in the custody of Constable Bowyer, the same officer that traced him, as he thought, to Cincinnati, but after arriving home, started for Montreal, Canada, where he proceeded in catching the fugitive. Mitchell is said to be in good health, and appears reckless as to his fate; avowing his determination to plead guilty of the crime with which he is charged.

SUPER-SUPERLATIVE. Yesterday some choice articles in the way of Cigars and "Bridge's Mellow Ridge" Tobacco, were sent us by Messrs. Edwards & Frailey, corner of Baltimore and Gay streets. The Cigars comprised four different kinds, viz: "Regalias," "Bayonets," "Pimentoes," and "Ladies' Ever Pointers." We can speak for the above articles—they are of a very superior order—well worthy of puffing.

CAUTION. A rail road note of the denomination of one dollar was shown us yesterday, so altered as to pass for three dollars. The alteration was made by taking the figure three from a real three dollar note and placing it very neatly over the figure one at each end of the one dollar note—and also by changing the word one so as to read three. The deception can be easily detected, though might pass unnoticed in the hurry of business. Persons should therefore be on their guard.

BALTIMORE—PENNSYLVANIA AND THE WEST.

[CORRESPONDENCE.]

Baltimore, May 10th, 1841.

WM. BOSE, Esq.

Dear Sir: The undersigned were among the number of your fellow citizens who were prevented from being present last week, at the delivery of your address on the subject of "the Resources of Pennsylvania and the West, and the Relations of Trade which Baltimore now occupies in reference to them." The testimony of those who heard it is unanimous in favor of its ability, and the great importance to this community of the facts detailed in it. May we ask of you, therefore, on behalf of ourselves as well as others of your fellow citizens, similarly circumstanced, the favor to repeat the address at such time and place as may best suit your own convenience.

Very respectfully, yours, &c.

LEO'D. JARVIS,	THOS. M. LOCKE,
WM. SCHLEY,	J. & A. H. HERR,
SAML. JONES, JR.	LOWRY & GILL,
SELLMAN & CROOK,	ENOCH PRATT
HUGH JENKINS,	KERNAN & STILLINGER.

BALTIMORE, May 15, 1841.

Gentlemen: I have deferred a reply to your very flattering note, until I should be able to designate a time and place for the repetition of the address which you have done me the honor to call for. I now beg leave respectfully to say that on THIS (THURSDAY) EVENING the 20th instant, at eight o'clock, at the Musical Saloon in the Assembly Rooms, it will afford me great pleasure to repeat my address on "the Resources of Pennsylvania and the West, and the Relations of Trade which Baltimore now occupies in reference to them."

With great respect, yours, &c.

WM. BOSE.

To L. Jarvis, Esq. Wm. Schley, Esq. and others.

POLICE. John Saucer was yesterday brought before Justice Pechin on a charge of assaulting and beating Emeline Gold. He is quite a valorous fellow, for besides striking a woman, he swore no single officer should take him. Committed for want of security to answer the charge.

Sam'l Allen, a sailor, was arrested and brought before Justice Jones, on a charge of stealing a pair of boots from Mr. Armstrong. He had sold the boots to a colored man for $2. The only evidence against him was his own confession of having had the boots—but he said a man gave them to him to take into the colored man's shop to sell, and that the man waited at the door until he came out with the money. The boots were recognized as the property of Mr. Armstrong, but there being no proof that Allen had stolen them, or to contradict his statement, he was released. His pockets were searched, and contained quite a "curiosity shop," such as a ball of cotton, thread, enough nuts to last a squirrel a whole winter, 38 coppers, &c.

Wm. Godman, an apprentice, charged with striking his master, Mr. Christopher Hergershammer, with an iron rod, was committed to jail by Justice Jones.

Maria Alexander and child, suspected of being the runaway slaves of Mr. John H. Keene, were committed to jail by Justice Barnard.

Wm. H. Long, charged with being a fugitive from justice from Somerset county, Md. where he was confined for murder, but broke jail, was committed by Justice Barnard. He was arrested by John Mitchell, high constable.

CASE OF ALEXANDER M'LEOD. At a few minutes after 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning, the New York Supreme Court was opened, and Mr. Wood, the District Attorney of Niagara began reading the documents deemed necessary by the counsel for the people.

The first read was the enrollment of the Caroline, dated 1st of December, 1837, and describing her as a steamboat of 45 tons, 71 feet long, and belonging to William Wells, of Buffalo.

Next her license, of the same date, authorising her to navigate the Niagara river.

Next a deposition of Captain Gilman Appleby, taken before Judge Bowen, December 12, 1840, when McLeod was brought before him on habeas corpus, after committal by a magistrate.

The deposition described the attack upon the boat on the night of December 29, or morning of December 30.

The case was continued by the examination of witnesses, &c. Mr. Hall then interfered, and said no farther evidence would be offered in behalf of the people.

Mr. Bradley followed, and addressed the Court at great length, contending, that the burning of the Caroline was a National act, and must have national recourse, &c. &c.

Mr. Woods, District Attorney for Niagara, then followed as counsel for the people, and when we left the Court, says the Evening Star, he was still speaking.

A BLACKGUARD. On Tuesday evening, as a lady was passing down Lexington Street, and when near the Court House, she was accosted by a gentleman, who continued to annoy her with his impertinent attentions, for more than a square distant. He is a tall good-looking fellow, and wears a cap. It would be well for him to mind how he carries on these gallantries in future, as he may on some "charming evening," ere long, bring down upon those "fine shoulders" of his a trifling annoyance, from some friend of the ladies.

CARELESSNESS. The watch found last night, on Market Street, no less than two store windows and one store door left open. Persons should be careful to see that they leave their doors and windows properly secured in these times of robbery and incendiaries. No doubt many of the robberies that are committed, are effected through some neglect or carelessness of those leaving an easy temptation in the way.

☞ ERRATA. In the advertisement signed Hugh Porter, in Monday's Clipper, the name of "Edward Lavance" should be read Edward Levancey. it*

A VOLCANIC ERUPTION. A subterraneous tornado has shook the deep strong foundation of fortune's enchanted temple, casting up mines of gold and silver upon adventurers, plenteous as the melted lava from Etna's foaming, boiling crater. For an explanation of the above circumlocutive concatenation see HEISLER & CO's advertisement in another column.

SIXTH WARD.

☞ The Whigs of the Sixth Ward, (Spartan Band,) are requested to meet on FRIDAY EVENING, 21st inst. at 8 o'clock, at the house of Mr. Daniel Steever, corner of Hillen and Potter streets, on business of importance. m20 2*

TEMPERANCE MEETING.

UNITED STATES BANK MEETING.

At an adjourned meeting of the stockholders of the United States Bank, held in the banking house on Tuesday, May 18th, 1841, Samuel Breck, Esq. took the chair at 10 o'clock, and called the meeting to order.

The journal of the previous meeting was read, and approved by the meeting.

Mr. Lippincott, from a committee, presented the following report, which, after much discussion and explanation of the act of assembly, was accepted, and the resolutions adopted by the meeting.

The Committee appointed at an adjourned meeting of the Stockholders of the Bank of the United States, held on the 5th of April last, and which was instructed by a resolution adopted at an adjourned meeting, held on the 4th of May, instant, to take into consideration the condition and prospects of the Bank, and also any laws passed by the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, touching its interests, and to report such measures as the Committee might deem expedient, respectfully report:

That an act of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, at the last session of that body, was passed, entitled "an act to provide revenue to meet the demands of the treasury, and for other purposes," which presents two distinct propositions for consideration.

The first proposition is under the seventeenth section, which contemplates the continued corporate existence of the Bank, and provides for its relief from the penalty of twelve per cent. and from the liability of forfeiture of its charter, for the non-payment of its circulation and deposites in gold or silver on demand, upon the condition that the stockholders shall consent to be subject to any general laws hereafter to be passed for the regulation of the Banks of the Commonwealth.

The second proposition is under the eighteenth, and subsequent sections, which provide for a general assignment of the property of the Bank, with a view to the final settlement of its affairs.

After taking into consideration the condition and prospects of the Bank, which requires time only to render its ample means available, the Committee do not hesitate to recommend the adoption of the first proposition. They, therefore, respectfully report the following resolution:—

Whereas, by the seventeenth section of an act of the General Assembly of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, passed at the last session of the Assembly, one thousand eight hundred and forty-one, entitled "An Act to provide Revenue to meet the demands of the Treasury, and for other purposes," it is provided, "that before the Bank of the United States shall be entitled to the benefits of that section, the stockholders of the said Bank shall, by a resolution adopted at any general or adjourned meeting, held in pursuance of the charter, and duly certified to the Governor under their corporate seal, consent to be subject to any general laws to be hereafter passed for the regulation of the Banks of the Commonwealth;" and whereas, it is deemed expedient by the stockholders of the Bank of the United States, duly convened at an adjourned meeting, held in pursuance of the charter, to avail themselves of the benefits of the said seventeenth section; therefore,

Be it resolved, and it is hereby Resolved by the Stockholders of the Bank of the United States, convened at an adjourned meeting held in pursuance of the charter, that, for the purpose of obtaining the benefits of the seventeenth section of the act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, entitled "an act to provide revenue to meet the demands on the treasury and for other purposes," passed at the last session of the General Assembly; the said Stockholders do hereby consent to be subject to any general law to be hereafter passed by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the regulation of the Banks of this Commonwealth; and that the President of the Bank be, and he is hereby authorized and requested to make known this resolution to the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, according to the provision of the said section.

JOSHUA LIPPINCOTT, Chairman.

Bank United States, May 18, 1841.

JOSIAH RANDALL, Esq. then called up for consideration the following resolution, which he presented to the former meeting with a request that it should lie upon the table for future action.

After some discussion upon the nature of the resolution, but chiefly upon irrelevant matters, the resolution was adopted, with little or no opposition, as follows:

Resolved, That the Board be directed to give public notice, agreeably to the constitution and laws of the commonwealth, of an intended application to the next Legislature, to alter the name and reduce the capital of the Bank, together with such other alterations as may be deemed expedient.

Mr. DRAYTON, the President of the Bank, then, in reply to some remarks from Mr. Finch, made reference to the state of the institution, remarking that it was a subject definitively referred to a Committee, who were actively engaged in the duties devolved upon them.

Mr. Drayton added, that the Directors had found it difficult to carry into effect a resolution of the Stockholders, authorizing an assignment in favor of bill holders and depositors, as trustees could not be found to labor without compensation, which had not been provided for.

After some explanation, Mr. RANDALL offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Board of Directors be, and they are hereby authorized to exercise their own discretion as to the expediency, as well as to the time and manner of carrying into effect the resolution adopted at the last meeting, for pledging certain assets in trust for the payment of the circulation of and deposits in the Bank.

Mr. J. B. English proposed the following as a substitute:

Resolved, That the Directors be hereby requested to sell either at public or private sale, sufficient of the assets of the Bank to pay the circulation and deposites.

Mr. E. sustained his resolution with some remarks. It was, however, lost; and on the question being put Mr. Randall's resolution was carried.

Mr Lippincott presented to the meeting a report from the Committee of Investigation, which he requested should be read.

Mr. Dunae, prefaced with some remarks, the following preamble and resolutions, which, with the exception of the last resolution, was adopted, after much discussion and some modification.

Whereas, the stockholders of the United States Bank of Pennsylvania, at their meeting in January last, referred to a committee, the reports then made to them, and the committee have reported that large sums of money belonging to the Stockholders, had been expended by their agents for purposes which the committee could not ascertain the nature of; and whereas, no explanation on this subject has been subsequently obtained, and color is thus given to imputations cast upon the late and existing Bank of the United States that its funds had been used corruptly; and whereas, under such circumstances, entire silence on the part of the Stockholders would be inconsistent with their regard for the reputation of their country, and with their own self-respect—Therefore,

Resolved, That the stake which we have in the honor and welfare of our country, now and hereafter, is far more precious than any personal interest which we can have in any chartered institution.

Resolved, That we denounce and condemn as hostile to liberty and subversive of virtue, any expenditure or loan, if any such has been made by the late or existing Bank of the United States, under a former administration, for the purpose of influencing the public press, operating upon the public suffrage, or securing the aid of legislators or other public agents for any object whatever.

Resolved, That for the sake of the public example, we regret that the Committee appointed by the Stockholders in January last, failed to obtain a knowledge of the particulars of the expenditures to which they have referred in their report, and that public thanks will be merited by those who, possessing the knowledge shall disclose it.

Resolved, That in such an inquiry as that which was instituted in January, affecting the fame of the country and the safety of its institutions, a full development of truth was a higher consideration than the ephemeral interests of individuals or stockholders, and that for this and other reasons we do not concur with the majority of the investigating committee in suppressing the particulars of the active and suspended debt.

On motion the meeting adjourned.

SAMUEL BRECK, Chairman.

JOSEPH GRATZ, CHARLES GILPIN, JOS. R. CHANDLER, } Secretaries.

RAIL ROAD NOTES AGAIN. We copy the following from the American. As it is a matter of very considerable interest to the company as well as to the community, we think it but justice that its circulation should be general.

"Regarding the successful circulation of these rail road orders, now issued in fact under the auspices of the state and city authorities, as of the utmost importance to the people of Baltimore, as well in their tendency to complete the great work of internal improvement in which they have so deep an interest, as in lightening the heavy rate of taxation, we made some inquiry into the subject and are authorized to state that the cautions relative to them proceed from misapprehension.

"That an exchange of some few scraps of 'orders' wanting the acceptance, may have been refused, is not improbable, but in such cases, if there be any such, it was not that the part presented wanted the 'acceptance,' but that it comprised too inconsiderable a part of the original order; and we are authorized to deny in the fullest manner that the officers of the company have, in any instance, refused to exchange or redeem an order because it did not contain the acceptance.

STEALING A SADDLE. David Ogle, a colored man, who was a few days ago committed by Justice Schaeffer, on a charge of stealing a saddle, was yesterday brought before him for further hearing. It appeared in evidence that some time in July last, a saddle, belonging to Mr. James Norris, was missing from the livery stables of Mr. Owens, and was recognised a few days since, by Mr. Shipley, who is superintendant of the stables, in the possession of a Mr. Newkirk, who lives a short distance from the city. Mr. Newkirk stated in evidence that he had bought the saddle from Ogle, for which he paid $3. Mr. Norris stated the saddle was an imported one, and cost $35, and when stolen was nearly new. Ogle was fully committed, to answer the charge at the June term of the Baltimore City Court.

THE ST. LOUIS MURDERS. All the murderers, four in number, who perpetrated the late dreadful tragedy at St. Louis, have been taken, and are now in confinement, awaiting their trial.—The last one of the party taken was a colored man, named Madison, slave of Mr. Blanchard, of New Orleans. Captain Littleton, who was instrumental in arresting him, declined receiving any reward, stating that he was abundantly satisfied with the consciousness of having done his duty to society.

SUMMER STOCKS.

THE subscriber is now manufacturing a STOCK weighing only 13 dwt. (troy weight) buckle inclusive. His terms on this occasion, as upon all others, will be found the most reasonable, and the quality of the work and material to challenge competition with any manufactory in the city.

For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

DEAR SIR.—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,

BALTIMORE LOCK DISPENSARY,

"NO CURE NO PAY."

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, is its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors, by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

Persons residing at any distance, can have medicine sent to them, packed secure from observation.

It was out of pure motive of philanthropy, that this medicine was first made public; the price always to remain $1 per Bottle, to be within the reach of the most unfortunate.

☞ Letters addressed, (post paid) describing the case, mode of living, &c. will be promptly attended to. Direct No. 17 Harrison street.

TWO CHARMING PERIODICALS. 1st No. of a New Volume of the Ladies' Companion. Opinions of the Press, viz: New World.

The Knickerbocker for this month is out punctually on the first, and it is full to overflowing with good things. That capital story, the Country Doctor—far superior to the majority of the continuations in the English Magazines—goes on more amusingly than before. The number is embellished with a curious and appropriate engraving of "a Dutch Cottage in Beaver street, 1679."

The May number of the Ladies' Companion is embellished with a steel engraving that would do no discredit to Finden's Gallerie. It is exceedingly beautiful, and is entitled "The Young Chief's First Ride." Such embellishments alone entitle this various and excellently edited magazine to the bountiful patronage with which it is favored. We notice certain typographical improvements in this number, which are indications of the good taste of the proprietor.

The literary merit of the Ladies' Companion seems to increase rather than diminish—and, with the editorial labors which are now bestowed upon it, it cannot fail to be pronounced highly creditable to the literature of the country.

TERMS—Knickerbocker, $5 per year, or $1.25 quarterly. Ladies' Companion, $3 per year, or 25 cts. each number. Single numbers for sale at

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave	Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
"	Baltimore	4 P.M.	"	Washington	6 P.M.
"	Washington	5 A.M.	"	Fredk'sburg	12 M.
"	Fred'ksburg	12 M.	"	Richmond	5 P.M.
"	Richmond	5 P.M.	"	Petersburg	7 P.M.
"	Petersburg	7 P.M.	"	Weldon	1 A.M.
"	Weldon	1 A.M.	"	Wilmington	7 P.M.
"	Wilmington	1 P.M.	"	Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Foul Rocus Weather and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

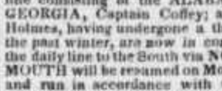
DAILY SOUTHERN MAIL,
Via the Chesapeake Bay and Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road,



THE BALTIMORE STEAM-PACKET CO. announce to the public that the boats of their line consisting of the ALABAMA, Captain Sutton; GEORGIA, Captain Coffey; and JEWESS, Captain Holmes, having undergone a through overhaul during the past winter, are now in complete order; therefore the daily line to the South via NORFOLK and PORTSMOUTH will be resumed on Monday the 15th of March, and run in accordance with the following schedule until changed by the Post Office Department.

Leaving Baltimore daily at 4 o'clock, P. M.
Arrive at Portsmouth, at 7 " A. M.
Leaving Portsmouth, at 8 " A. M.
Arrive at Weldon, at 4 " P. M.

Wait there until 1 o'clock, A. M. for the Petersburg train.

Leave Weldon at 1 o'clock, A. M.
Arrive at Wilmington at 1 o'clock, P. M.
Leave Wilmington immediately and arrive in Charleston next morning to breakfast.

It will be seen by the above schedule that in order to render the connexion certain, it is only necessary for the Cars of the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road to arrive at Weldon prior to 1 o'clock, A. M. whereas they uniformly arrive before dark—if therefore a detention should take place at any point between Baltimore and Weldon, not occupying more than NINE HOURS, the traveller can by no possibility lay over at any point north of Wilmington. RETURNING, one of the above boats will leave Norfolk every night at 10 o'clock, and cross over to Portsmouth where she will wait the arrival of the Cars from Weldon, and depart for Baltimore as soon as the passengers and baggage are on board, arriving here in about 14 hours after departure from Portsmouth. The passengers having enjoyed all the comforts of a good night's rest, and partaken of as good fare as could be provided in the very best Hotel in the Country.

Travellers bound to Richmond or Petersburg by leaving Baltimore on Monday, Wednesday or Friday, sleep on board the bay boat, are transferred to the James River boat next morning, and arrive at their place of destination the same day by 3 or 4 o'clock, P. M.

THE PARTING INTERVIEW

WITH HER WHO WILL UNDERSTAND.

Let me lean on thy bosom, be loved of my heart,
Let me gaze on thy dark dreamy eye till we part;
Let me kneel at thy feet, tho' it all is in vain,
For I never, no never, shall see thee again.

I have loved thee, yes loved thee from childhood's young years,
Oh! weep not my dearest why shed you these tears;
'Gainst the fiat of fate now to struggle is vain,
For I never, no never shall see thee again.

To the land of the stranger I go, and no more
Shall I gaze on my fatherland's green shady shore;
Oh! weep not my loved one, thy tears are in vain,
For I never, no never, shall see thee again.

In thy bright blooming bowers no more shall I kneel,
The emotions of love at thy fair feet to feel;
Yet deep in my heart shall thy image remain,
For I never, no never, shall see thee again.

Recollection shall linger around the green spot,
Where I woo'd thee, and won thee, and ne'er is forgot;
Oh! in memory's mirror it long shall remain,
For I never, no never, shall see thee again.

When death shall appear, and his dusky dread wing
To my soul the last solace of sorrow shall bring;
To my heart thy fair image I'll press, tho' in vain,
For I never, no never shall see thee again.

Let me lean on thy bosom, thou lov'd of my heart,
Let me gaze on thy dark dreamy eye till we part;
Let me kneel at thy feet, tho' it all is in vain,
For I never, no never, shall see thee again.

MILFORD BARD.

Baltimore May 20th 1841.

IN ADVANCE OF MAIL.

From the Boston Times Extra, Boston Mail, and Bay State Democrat.

14 DAYS LATER FROM ENGLAND.

ARRIVAL OF THE CALEDONIA.

Non-arrival of the President—Meeting of Americans at Liverpool on account of the death of President Harrison—Parliamentary Proceedings—Disturbances in Ireland—France—Spain—Egypt—The East—Syria, &c.

The royal steamship Caledonia, Capt. McKellar, from Liverpool, whence she sailed on the 4th instant, arrived at her wharf, at East Boston, on the 19th inst. at 5 o'clock, A. M. She arrived at Halifax at 4 o'clock, P. M. on the 16th, and left on the following morning at 9 o'clock, making the passage to Boston from Liverpool in about 14½ ds. She brought 44 passengers to Halifax from Liverpool, 23 from Liverpool to Boston, and 6 from Halifax to Boston.

No intelligence of the steam ship President had been received in England, and all hope of her safety had been abandoned.

We observe nothing new in relation to the China difficulties, or the McLeod affair. Teas had advanced a trifle from last quotations.

The cotton market was inactive.

The Acadia arrived at Liverpool on the 2d inst. in 14 days. She was detained four hours in crossing the bar near Liverpool.

ENGLAND. The British ministry received a signal defeat in the House of Commons on the 29th ult. in the striking out of the vital clause in Lord Morpeth's bill, which would have created a Parliamentary franchise for the counties of Ireland, founded on a leasehold occupation rated at £8 per annum, without beneficial interest. The numbers were—

For the pauper franchise	339
Against it	300
Majority against ministers	——11

The English journals are full of speculations upon the subject of the defeat of the ministers. Some express the opinion that they would resign, others that they would hold on.

Queen Victoria and Prince Albert passed thro' Windsor on the 1st inst. "Her Majesty appeared in pretty good health, but Prince Albert looked extremely ill."

A large meeting of American residents was held in Liverpool on the 30th ult. in relation to the death of President Harrison. Francis B. Ogden, of New York, presided, and a series of appropriate resolutions were passed, expressing the respect of the meeting for the memory of the late President.

The St. George's Hotel, one of the most spacious and splendid hotels in London, was consumed by fire on the evening of the 30th ult.

THE SEASON. The London Morning Herald of the 3d inst. in the Horticultural notice for May, says:

"April has recovered its character, and the genial fertilizing showers, which formerly conferred on it the title of the showery month, have, after a period of nearly nine years been abundantly accorded. The effects are astonishing—sea kale is over, asparagus has been cut in the open beds for a fortnight, peas of early sowing are in blossom, and even podded; and as to the berry bearing shrubs, currants are formed, and gooseberries nearly ready for tarts; herbs and trees, as we have seen reported from a northern county, are a full month in advance of last year; yet April has been cold and cloudy."

Rev. Dr. Reid has been appointed to the chair of Ecclesiastical History, in the University of Glasgow, vacant by the death of the Rev. Dr. M'Turk.

The St. Petersburg journals state that the quantity of gold obtained during the last year by private companies in Siberia, and the steppes of the Kigris amounts to upwards of 8600 lbs. net.

Some curious Roman coins, illustrative of the early history of London, have been found in the bed of the River Thames.

General Sir Rufane Shawe Coakin, M. P. terminated his existence on the 1st May, at Southampton, by hanging himself.

TERMS OF PEACE WITH CHINA. It is very generally reported and believed that Lord Palmerston is wholly dissatisfied with the preliminary articles, signed by Captain Elliott, for the settlement of the quarrel with China; and it is even added, that the Government is likely to increase the strength of the Chinese expedition.

☞ The cession of Hong Kong had at first the appearance of being a great point gained; but further consideration has brought the well informed very generally to the question that the advantges likely to be derived from the possession of that island have been over estimated. Canton, it is said, will still remain the seat of the tea trade; and yet, by Captain Elliott's preliminary articles, the British merchant will be debarred from commercial intercourse with that city. Not so however, the Americans, the French, the Dutch, and the Danes; so that, on this point, all nations trading with China will have a superiority in the principal tea market over the English. Besides, the driving the English trade to Hong Kong will give the celestial authorities the means of making us pay, by export duties, or river dues, the very contemptible amount of indemnity which has satisfied Captain Elliott's moderation.—London Journal of Commerce.

We understand, that in acknowledgment of the eminent public services rendered by Major-General SirGeorge Arthur, during his administration of the government of Upper Canada, he is about to be raised to the dignity of a baronet.

Mr. Hamlet, the celebrated jeweller, of Princes street, Leicester-square, who at one time had amassed a large fortune, has become a bankrupt. His debts are said to exceed 150,000*l.*; it is thought sufficient property will be forthcoming to discharge the whole.

A destructive fire occurred at the terminus of the Great Western Railway on the 28th ult. It broke out in the timber yard of the company. The destruction of timber was large, about £20,000. The fire covered about two acres of ground, and made a terrific appearance.

FRANCE. The news from France is up to the 1st of April, and possesses little interest. A report prevailed in Paris on the 30th ult. that the Duke D'Aumale had been either seriously wounded or killed in an action near Algiers; but the rumor was not credited.

[illegible] by one of the courts, without the intervention of a jury, of having published a false report of the late trial of La France, and condemned to pay a fine of 5,000 francs. The prosecution has excited no little sensation at Paris.

The defeat of the English Ministry is a prominent subject of comment in the Paris papers.—They do not appear to attribute to it much importance, considering it rather as a check than an incident leading to any decisive result. The Debats, however, takes a different view of the question, and considers it one of the greatest checks that the career of the Ministry has encountered.

From the new Budget it appears the deficiency unprovided for of the year 1840, amounts to 170,193,780f. That of 1841, to 242,603,288f.—The Budget of 1842, after the reductions made by the committee, amounting to 41,139,564f., would be calculated 1,275,453,340f., and the revenue being calculated at 1,160,000,000f., the deficiency would amount to 114,836,208f. To these deficiencies of the three years must be added a sum of 534,260,000f. demanded for extraordinary works of various kinds.

The King has extended the royal clemency to 530 soldiers under various sentences from courts martial.

His majesty has signed a royal ordonnance for 404 creations or promotions in the Legion of Honor.

The Debats states that the termination of the difference between France and Morocco has been obtained by mutual concessions; and adds, that the Sultan of Morocco has agreed to acknowledge as French subjects all Algerians, whether Jews or Mussulmen, and to allow them the same privileges in his dominions as natives of France.

INUNDATIONS IN FRANCE. The Semaphore of Marseilles, 26th ult., states that the Rhone has again overflowed all the low land between Tarascon and Arles, being the fourth time that such a calamity has happened within six months. The cause is attributed to the exceedingly heavy rains which have fallen for many days successively in the south of France. This inundation is thus noticed by the ministerial evening journal:—"The department of the Bouches du Rhone was on the 24th ult. subject to a fresh inundation. The dykes at Boulbon and Tarascon have been destroyed, and the lands in these communes, as well as in that of Arles, are almost entirely covered with water, only the most elevated parts being left dry." The Courrier, of Nismes, 27th ult., in confirming the account of the new overflowing of the Rhone, says that it has inundated all the plain between Beaucaire, St. Giles, and Aigues-mortes, destroying the whole of the crops.

M. Charles Francis Oudot, formerly member of the National Convention, who, having voted the King's death, was exiled in 1815, and only returned to France in 1830, died at Paris on Wednesday, 14th ult., in the 86th year of his age.

The intelligence from Spain, Austria, Prussia, &c. and other Foreign Powers, is of no sort of consequence to any body on this side of the Atlantic.

On the 19th ult., being the anniversary of the birth of the Emperor of Austria, when his Majesty entered his 49th year, the usual ceremonies in honor of the day were observed.

SYRIA. Syria is now finally evacuated by the Egyptian army, the last division, under Menekli Pacha, having embarked for Alexandria at Gaza, on board a Turkish frigate, on the 27th February. Gaza is now occupied by two battalions of Turkish infantry, and 500 cavalry. Jaffa is entirely evacuated by the British.

LIEGE, April 29. This morning a deplorable accident took place in the coal-mine of Ougree. At nine o'clock there was an explosion of gas.—The workmen were all at work, and the cause of the explosion is not known, the work having been examined in the morning before the men went down, when every thing appeared to be safe. Messengers were immediately sent in all directions to obtain assistance. From inquiry made on the spot we hear that twenty workmen are missing.

IRELAND. Serious disturbances had broken out in various parts of Ireland, and the courts were busily engaged in the trials of the offenders.

The Tipperary papers contain accounts of outrages at Borrisokane, Kilruane, Bourna, Broka, Crimlin, Arderony, Lisahill, and other districts of the county; such as threatning notices, intimidation, destroying property, assaults and incendiarism; but in that quarter nothing more serious had occurred. A troop of the 6th carbineers arrived at Nenagh to-day to relieve the troops of the 17th lancers, which had been for some time quartered there.

A novel procession had taken place in Cork. The members of 32 trades, amounting to upwards of 3,000 persons, accompanied by bands, marched through the streets, the object being to promote a feeling in the city in favor of Irish manufacture.

The provincial papers contain accounts of one or two processions of teetotalers in Tipperary, Kilkenny, and Waterford, and it appears that the temperance reform in all parts of Ireland, is still progressing.

The steamship President cost £80,000, and was insured on leaving Liverpool for $60,000.

The St. George Hotel, in London, was destroyed by fire on the 20th ult. The loss is estimated at £10,000.

Major General Sir John Harvey has been appointed Governor of Newfoundland.

FATAL ACCIDENT. The Caledonia lost one of her men coming out. He fell overboard, forward of the wheel, and was struck by the paddle and killed.

DR. JAMES ROBERT CAKE, Bishop of Worcester, died on the 24th ult.

JAMES JOHNSON, Esq., a native of Pennsylvania, who had resided many years in Italy, where he was highly esteemed for intelligence and liberality, died in Rome on the 3d of April, aged sixty-seven years.

The marriage of the Grand Duke Alexander, of Russia, took place on the 25th of April.

LONDON MONEY MARKET, May 1st. Since the commencement of the week the prices of stock have ranged as follows—

Consols for money have fluctuated between 99¼.—Consols for account between 99 3-8 and 99, the reduced three and a half per cents. between 98¾ and 98¾, Exchequer Bills between 12s. a 16s. premium, India Bonds between 2s. a 4s. premium, India Stock between 253½ a 253, and Bank Stock between a 171½ a 168.

On Saturday Consols were 98 7-8 to 99 1-8, and for time 99 to 99¼. The market left off steadily. Exchequer Bills were 12s. to 14s. premium, India Bonds 2s. to 4s. premium, India Stock 254, and the reduced three and a half per cents. 97 3-8.

LONDON COMMERCIAL REPORT. Saturday evening, May 1st. Being quite a holiday in the city there was very little business done in any article.

The accounts this afternoon, from Liverpool, notice a very flat market, Cotton at 1-8 per lb. decline during the week on mid. and inferior sorts. The sales were 11,340 bales. The stock at the outport is 421,209 bales against 259,000 at this time last year. There having been taken on speculation this year 119,580 bales, and by the trade, 34,690 bales. Up to May, 1840, the respective quantities were 22,450 and 41,090 bales.

Indigo, since the quarterly sales, has been in more demand for exportation, but there has been no inquiry for home consumption.

Dye woods are dull of sale, and most articles of dry-saltery go off but slowly.

LIVERPOOL CORN EXCHANGE. MONDAY, May 3. We may continue to report, upon the whole a favorable prospect for our future harvest. The Grain and Flour trade has remained in a dull state with declining prices for free Wheat and Flour.

The duty of 22s 8d per quarter upon Wheat has been paid here more freely than in other English ports, holders being anxious to realize; but that on Flour has been paid only upon those descriptions which are the most liable to turn sour immediately.

The present nominal value of the best States Flour in bond is 23s. per bbl. and no disposition is shown to speculate in the article unless it were to come down to 21s. to 22. New Orleans brands are offered at 20s. per barrel.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET, May 3 Saturday, May 1. To-day there has been a limited demand for Cotton, and the sales of all kinds do not exceed 2000 bags, of which 500 American have been taken for export, and the rest by the trade. Prices are without alteration.

Monday, May 3. To day there has been a little more inquiry for Cotton, and the sales which are chiefly American, amount to 2500 bags. The market has not been so freely supplied, but prices are without alteration. The trade have been the sole buyers.

LONDON TRADE REPORT. Saturday evening. Tea. The market remains quiet. Company's congou, 1s 5½d per lb money.

Tallow—Prices much the same as yesterday; the market, if any thing rather firmer.

TWO CHARMING PERIODICALS. 1st No of a New Volume of the Ladies' Companion. Opinions of the Press, viz: New World.

The Knickerbocker for this month is out punctually on the first, and it is full to overflowing with good things. That capital story, the Country Doctor—far superior to the majority of the continuations in the English Magazines—goes on more amusingly than before. The number is embellished with a curious and appropriate engraving of "a Dutch Cottage in Beaver street, 1679."

The May number of the Ladies' Companion is embellished with a steel engraving that would do no discredit to Finden's Galleries. It is exceedingly beautiful, and is entitled "The Young Chief's First Ride." Such embellishments alone entitle this various and excellently edited magazine to the bountiful patronage with which it is favored. We notice certain typographical improvements in this number, which are indications of the good taste of the proprietor.

The literary merit of the Ladies' Companion seems to increase rather than diminish—and, with the editorial labors which are now bestowed upon it, it cannot fail to be pronounced highly creditable to the literature of the country.

TERMS—Knickerbocker, $5 per year, or $1.25 quarterly. Ladies' Companion, $3 per year, or 25 cts. each number. Single numbers for sale at

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 21, 1841.

14 DAYS LATER FROM ENGLAND.

ARRIVAL OF THE CALEDONIA. We are indebted to the Boston Times Extra, Boston Mail and Bay State Democrat, forwarded in advance of the mail, by Harnden's express, for highly important European intelligence, which will be found on our first page, fifteen days later than that received by the Britannia, and fourteen days later than that by the packet ship Rochester, to be seen on our fourth page. The news is of a highly interesting character. No tidings were had in Liverpool on the 4th inst. from the steamer President. It is generally supposed that she has been lost, though but little is said regarding her fate. A meeting was held in Liverpool, by American residents, on the 30th ult. relative to the death of president Harrison, at which Mr. Francis B. Ogden, of New York, presided. Appropriate resolutions were adopted. We have no room at present for comment, and in consequence of the crowded state of our columns, shall postpone publishing the fashions for May, and names of passengers until to-morrow.

NATIONAL BANK. The National Intelligencer of yesterday contains several communications favorable to the establishment of a National Bank. The impression evidently prevails with numbers, that the only remedy for the present disordered and ruinous condition of the currency is a National Bank, and various plans for its organization have been published. It is universally admitted that some expedient must be adopted to relieve the community from existing difficulties, and to restore confidence among individuals and in public institutions; or that there will be a general prostration of business. Some suppose a National Bank to be the grand Panacea which is to heal every thing; whilst others believe it to be a Pandora's box, which will scatter pestilence and ruin over the country. The present Bank of the United States, whilst it was a national institution and the fiscal agent of government, appeared to work admirably for the interests of all—but, being forced to become a state bank from its suspected interference in political concerns, it lost its character and its usefulness, and is now an unwieldy and miserable wreck. We never credited the charge of its political operations, and therefore were favorable to its continuance as a national agent; but the startling developments which have been recently made are calculated to excite be so organized as to prevent fraud and corruption, or keep its officers, if so disposed, from exerting an improper influence in the political concerns of the country. The strongest safeguards would prove but a feeble barrier to unscrupulous officers; and unless it were rendered impossible for the Bank to exert any influence in political affairs, we would prefer that it should not be established. But, if we must have a National Bank—if it be deemed indispensable to have such an institution as the fiscal agent of government—no care can be too great in the arrangement of its details, so as to prevent its being wielded at any future time for partizan purposes.

CONVICT LABOR. The mechanics of New York have memorialized the legislature against the employment of the convicts of the State Prison in mechanical labor. Governor Seward, in a message transmitting this memorial, suggests that the reeling of silk from cocoons be substituted for the labor now performed. It has been a subject of frequent complaint with the mechanics of Baltimore city as well as of New York, that their honest industry was deprived of its just reward by the competition of convict labor; and besides, it is introducing into mechanical branches a set of abandoned wretches, to corrupt the young and degrade the business in which they may have been employed. The Penitentiary system has been long felt as an evil; but the difficulty of finding a proper substitute for the mechanical branches usually followed by convicts, has prevented a change. We think it probable that the suggestion of Governor Seward can be adopted with advantage, as there can be no danger of coming into competition with free labor by the reeling of silk. We have heard the opinion advanced, that it would be better to place the convicts in solitary confinement for the whole term of their punishment; but this would be cruel—for not one in ten, who had a long period to serve, would be able to earn a livelihood after leaving the prison. It would destroy their health, if it did not deprive them of their reason. They must have exercise; and the only question is, how they can be permitted to enjoy it with least injury to the public. They ought to be employed in such way as to compensate the public for their support; and if this can be done in the mode proposed by Governor Seward, we can see no objection to its adoption.

BEEF. The present price of Beef in the Baltimore market, is, for choice pieces 15 cents—for inferior 12½. This may be considered an extraordinary price considering the depreciation in the value of other articles of consumption. We hope that no monopolists are at work; but if they be, the same remedy which checked imposition before, will correct the evil again. At the present rates, persons in ordinary circumstances cannot afford to supply their tables with beef—but fortunately there are other articles just as wholesome, which can be had at a more moderate price.

THE STORMS AND THE CROPS. The New Orleans Bulletin of the 12th says: "We have seen letters of the date of the 8th and the 9th of the present month, from several points in Mississippi, which concur in stating that the recent storms of rain and hail, with high winds, have done great damage to the young crops. One letter says—'On the hills the soil and the cotton are both washed off to a great extent: and on the lowlands the crops are mostly drowned out or covered with mud. Such a rain I have never before witnessed. It has extended over the whole country, and materially affected the prospects of the planters.' Another writer says—'I have lost ⅓ to 1-3 of my crops.' Previous to the storm the drought had prevented the growth of the cotton plants, and there was a general complaint of 'bad stands.' In addition to the news from Mississippi, we have been informed by a gentleman resident at Alexandria, that the storm in that section was furious and very destructive—large quantities of hail driven by the strong wind, occasioned immense injury to the fields of corn and cotton."

FINANCES OF PENNSYLVANIA. From a letter published by W. B. Reed, Esq. in the National Gazette, we learn, that the interest upon the public debt of Pennsylvania is about $1,950,000 annually. It became necessary at the late session of the Legislature to impose additional taxes to the amount of about $1,400,000, which, with the former taxes, will make the gross amount of $2,246,800. This will leave a surplus over the interest account of about $300,000. It is thus seen that Pennsylvania has made ample and permanent provision to sustain her credit, which will give confidence to the holders of her stocks, and render her securities less liable to fluctuation.—This is the proper spirit in which to meet public engagements, and we hope that every State in the Union will proceed, in like manner, to raise the funds necessary to meet existing obligations.

nature we were witness to, it took place opposite our office yesterday. A genuine son of the sod stepped up to one of the furniture car drivers, and asked him if Mr. Von-Something was now on this station, which question was answered in the affirmative, at the same time offering his services in his capacity, to do any job he might want to have done, the Irishman said that no one else than the real Mr. Von would answer, as he owed him for moving his furniture last year, and he was anxious to give him the job this year also.

FIRE. The fire last night about 9 o'clock, proceeded from the partial burning of a house in Fayette street, at the corner of Park St. opposite the Liberty Engine house, and adjoinining the coach maker establishment, formerly under the management of Mr. Selvage. By the timely arrival of the fire companies, the flames were happily extinguished before much damage was sustained.

FIRE. We regret to state (says the Hagerstown Democrat, 19th inst.) that the dwelling of Mr. Crushong, who lately came to this county from Frederick, and resided near Middleburg, was on Monday last entirely destroyed by fire, including all the furniture and fifteen hundred dollars in money. The whole loss estimated at $4000.

THE ROGUES. The Plaquemine Gazette says that two rogues, supposed by some to be the two runaway bank clerks from New Orleans, spent a day or two in retirement last week, near St. Gabriel Church in that parish. They were flush with bank notes, but as these notes were large, and looked rather suspicious, the planters to whom they were offered did not like to change any of them.

IMPORTANT TO PRINTERS. Judge Johnson has decided in Felicisna, that the printer's profession is a manual one, and as such his types, press and paper are exempted from seizure, under the provision of Art. 644 of the Code of Practice, which exempts the tools and instruments necessary for the exercise of a trade or profession by which the debtor gains his livelihood.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE. The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America were to hold their annual meeting in the 7th Presbyterian Church, Randall's Court, in Fourth street, between Chesnut and Market, Philadelphia, yesterday, the services commencing at 11 o'clock.

THE ABOLITIONISTS have again nominated James G. Birney for the Presidency of the U. States, and Thomas Morgan for the Vice Presidency. This ticket, the Journal of Commerce says, will probably get 9000 to 10,000 votes. It got 8000 at the late election.

☞The address of Wm. Bose, Esq. delivered at the Assembly Rooms, last evening, on the subject of internal improvements, was very numerously attended, and enthusiastically received.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Since the notice in your very excellent paper the other day of the habits, dress and conduct of certain young men, (not rares aves in terris,) in the daily habit of infesting the corners of our most frequented streets, impertinently "staring modesty out of countenance," those exquisites have disappeared; there is not a shad-belly to be seen; and with them I hope "id omne genus," who stand about places of public worship on the Sabbath. For this let all good men thank you, and the dear ladies too, who may now walk our streets, without having their modesty shocked at every corner by bears in the shape of men—and they do thank you. I accidently heard a lady, an angel of loveliness, on laying down your paper, exclaim, "The editor of the Clipper, God bless him:" Upon asking why? she pointed to the remarks on the whiskerandos, shad-bellies, &c. and, smiling, said—"when we ladies walk out hereafter we can do so with some satisfaction." Messrs. Editors, you have deserved much from this community—and convinced, in the language of Washington, that "there is an indissoluble union between virtue and happiness, duty and advantage," you have, together with the thanks of all good men, (for the editorial course you have taken,) and the blessings of the ladies, the approbation of a good conscience. And now, Messrs. Editors, as I know you are patriots in the most extended sense, I would enlist your talents for the removal of a far greater evil. I allude to the removal of the colored population from our state. This population is an evil far greater than any other; whoever removes it will deserve more of posterity than any other man—he will have done God and man service. Can it be accomplished through the Colonization Society? Unless this society does more than it has yet done, it will never accomplish it. Some legislative enactment of our state legislature, compelling and providing for the annual shipment over and above the increase of the free colored persons to Liberia, until those now free are all sent out of the state, and then to provide for the purchase and shipment annually of the slaves a certain number above the increase. This is the only way. All parties would be benefitted. If our legislature should pursue this course, it would bring upon us the blessing of heaven and the gratitude of posterity. The members of that session which shall pass such a law as will provide for the accomplishment of the removal of this evil, will enrol their names on the temple of Fame. My attention was called to this subject by the communication of Grattan, in the American of yesterday. Give this a place, with any alterations or remarks of your own, for the benefit of POSTERITY.

We make room for "Posterity," but must transfer the compliments of the writer and of the ladies to our correspondent who wrote on the subject of street-loungers. We are glad to hear that the nuisance complained of has been abated. If young men will spend their time in idleness and impertinence, instead of seeking honorable and profitable employment, they must expect to be rebuked; and where we cannot put sense into their heads we shall strive to put shovels into their hands.

"Posterity" has invoked our aid in a matter that has engaged the minds and pens of abler men than ourselves. The Maryland Colonization Society has not been deficient in its labors for the promotion of the object in view, and has made considerable progress; not in the actual but in opening the way for its future egress from our state. We entertain the hope that the free colored people of Maryland will discover such advantages to themselves and their posterity in coming into the views of the Colonization Society, as to induce their voluntary emigration. The experiment is in a course of trial, and should it fail, other means may be then adopted to remove the growing evil. In the present financial condition of Maryland, "Posterity" must see the impossibility of adopting that portion of his suggestion which relates to the appropriation of money, &c. nor will it be necessary until the more important object which he contemplates, (the removal of free persons,) be effected. The subject is surrounded with difficulties—and, although we may all clearly see that the wart is growing, it will require skill to take it out by the roots without injury.

FORTUNATE RESCUE AND APPROPRIATE MEMENTO. As Miss Catharine Woodward was in the act of getting on board a brig, lying at the foot of Wall street, N. York, her foot slipped, and she was precipitated into the water, and she would inevitably have drowned, but for the heroic conduct of a Mr. Madison, who plunged in and rescued her at the peril of his own life. As a testimonial of her gratitude, Miss W. took from her finger a valuable ring, and pressed the acceptance upon her preserver.

THE GREAT SOUTHERN AND WESTERN MAILS. ESCAPED. Jacob R Griffin, who was convicted of the crime of kidnapping, at the late Court of Oyer and Terminer, held at Dover, Del. and who was sentenced to four years imprisonment, to pay a fine of $1500, and to have sixty lashes on his bare back—effected his escape on Friday night last, and had not been found on Sunday.—He was to have been whipt on Friday.

WIDOW STREET. There is a street in the city of Alleghany, opposite Pittsburg, known by the title of Widow street, from the fact of there being twenty-eight widows residing in it. The street is quite short, though the ladies think they have remained in their present situation rather long.

POST OFFICE ROBBER. A boy aged about 15 years, was detected in Boston, on Wednesday last, attempting to rob the Post Office. He succeeded in securing two letters, one of which contained a check of $24 payable to order of Jos. Filden, Esq. He was committed to jail.

A MINISTER DEAD. The Rev. J. Van Sweevelt, president of the St. Louis University, died in that city, on the 10th inst. of apoplexy.

THE MCLEOD CASE. This important case is still progressing in New York. The Tattler of the 19th has the following:

Tuesday, May 18.—On this day, it will be noticed by the Legislative proceedings, the McLeod affair came up in this Assembly, and the resolution calling for correspondence, &c. was passed. In the Supreme Court, in session in this city, the proceedings were continued, but no decision was had.

Mr. Woods, for the people, read several affidavits and depositions, in relation to the Caroline affair. They contain no facts not already before the public. The only ones implicating McLeod were those of Norman Barnum, and Leonard Anson, who lived in Canada until after the burning of the Caroline. The latter saw McLeod at Chippewa on the day after. The men were talking about who did most, and McLeod boasted that he had killed a d——d Yankee on board the Caroline, and there is his blood, producing a pistol; he had also a sword by his side.

Barnum was at Chippewa when the expedition started. Among the expedition were Ronald McDonald, Capt. Mosier, and Alexander McLeod—he said his sword had drunk the blood of a person on board. From what he heard at Chippewa during the day and night, he had no doubt Col. McNab was acquainted with and approved of the expedition.

Mr. Bradley then opened for the prisoner. He contended that in recognizing the existence of Great Britain we recognized the right of her subjects to obey—that while a subject is under duress of his allegiance, the nation is accountable. He held the attack on the Caroline to be an aggression on the part of Great Britain—a war in fact, and denied that a municipal tribunal could have jurisdiction over it. Great Britain alone was responsible.

Mr. Woods, for the people, said that our countrymen who invaded Canada were dealt with according to the law in that country. The offenders took the consequences, and it afforded no justification for that Government to come here and murder our peaceable citizens—they might as well come and murder the Governor as Durfee. When our citizens were arrested and condemned in Canada, there was no complaint on our part, because we felt that they were executing the laws in their own way, and so we supposed Canada would now believe that we were executing our laws in our own way.

It was said the courts had no jurisdiction, but supposing they had under the Statute of Habeas Corpus—here McLeod was indicted for the murder of Durfee, to that he pleaded not guilty, or in other words demanded a trial by jury—having pleaded, he joined issue which could only be tried by a jury. If he desired to avoid that trial, he might demur to the indictment, or interpose a special bar to the prosecution, then the question might come up, but he denied that the Court had any right to discharge the prisoner.

He proceeded to quote the revised statutes. He contended that the Court could go behind the indictment to prove any matter. The finding of the grand jury was conclusive on the question, and, if not what case was there in which a man might not come into Court, and ask to be discharged on his affidavit?

Mr. Attorney General Hall then rose and addressed the Court in behalf of the people. He argued the question strictly on points of law, and maintained that the court could only take such facts into consideration as went to the legality or illegality of the prisoner's detention—but not his guilt or innocence; for the words of the statute, "entitled to his discharge," were not equivalent to "not guilty." The distinction was broad and would only [illegible] every murderer to that tribunal.

After citing various other points upon which he intended to rest his arguments,

Mr. Spencer then commenced the closing argument for the prisoner, and spoke till nine o'clock, when he asked to be indulged until the next day to conclude, and the court adjourned.

ST. LOUIS CRIMINAL COURT.—The murderers arraigned. Yesterday morning about 11 o'clock, says the Bulletin of the 11th, the prisoners were brought into the Criminal Court, for the purpose of answering to the indictments found against them by the Grand Jury, which has been in session since Monday week. To the first indictment, charging Madison with the murder of Jesse Baker, and the others as accessaries, Madison was the first to plead, and answered, "I am not guilty, sir," Seward made the same reply; and Warrick answered, "I assure you I am not guilty sir."

The second indictment, charging Brown as the murderer of Jacob Weaver, and the others as accessaries, was then read, and the same response given—"I am not guilty." To a question from the court, whether they had counsel or were able to employ counsel, Madison said, "I expect my master to protect me"—adding some explanations, which were interrupted by the Court.

Judge Bowlin then assigned counsel for the prisoners—remarking that he selected the oldest members of the bar.

Mr. Geyer was assigned to the defence of Madison; Mr. H. R. Gamble to the defence of Seward; and Mr. Spalding to the defence of Warrick.

Warrick and Seward were then remanded to jail, and Madison was taken before the Grand Jury. The deportment of each of them was respectful, except that Madison, directly after leaving the box, put on his hat in the presence of the Court, and wore it until out of the room. He professes entire ignorance of all transactions in which he is implicated.

This is not the first time that we have received similar favors from the same express, and for which we tender our thanks.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

ONE DAY LATER FROM ENGLAND AND THE CONTINENT.

From the New York American.
[By Harnden's Ex.,ress.]

Hearing at an early hour this morning that the fine packet ship Rochester, was telegraphed below, and knowing the anxiety of the public for later news, we despatched the steamboat Wave, to the lower bay, where the ship is now at anchor, and have pleasure of laying the news before the readers of the New York American exclusively. We have files of papers from Liverpool of the 21st, and London of the 20th, the Rochester having sailed on the 21st, thus making her passage in twenty-seven days, and anticipating the advices by the Boston steamer, now due.

From Paris the dates are of the 18th.

The Ministerial revolution which took place in Constantinople on the 29th was considered at Paris as a triumph of the French government, which at home and abroad, says the London Times, appears to be desirous to form a close alliance with the partisans of retrograde ideas. Rifant Bey, the successor of Reschid Pasha, was formerly ambassador of the porte at Vienna, where he acted but an insignificant part. He is described as a man of no capacity, addicted to intrigue, and a deadly enemy to those liberal institutions with which Rheschid was laboring to endow his country.—The elevation of Rifant, it is said, deprives the friends of Turkey of all hopes of saving the Ottoman Empire from destruction, and the revolution of the 29th ult. was deemed so well calculated to the catastrophe, that Russia herself was astounded at her success, because the stride was too great for her temporizing policy, and that she was afraid not to be prepared in time to reap all the fruit of her ambitious doing.

It was believed that Reschid Pasha had reserved to himself the embassy to London, in which case Chekib Effendi would succeed Nori Effendi, the present Ambassador to the Porte in Paris.—The recall of Lord Ponsonby was also considered certain.

According to the Journal des Debats, the works of the fortifications of Paris, were to have commenced simultaneously on every point on Monday last. Upwards of 10,000 hands were engaged on Friday and Saturday last, and the contractors were enjoined to prosecute the works with all possible activity, and to apply for military laborers, if they could not procure a sufficient number of civilians.

The same journal adds, that M. Debelleyme, the President of the Tribunal of the Seine, would on Monday the 19th inst. proceed, accompanied by his officers, to the communes Batignolles, Clichy and Auberrilliers, to commence valuing the ground about to be occupied for the fortifications of Paris. The same operation will be continued in the other communes in the neighborhood of Paris in the course of the month.

The Moniteur announces that on 5th of May, the anniversary of the death of Napoleon, a grand funeral service would be celebrated in his honor in the church of the Invalides.

The "Moniteur Parisien" announces that M Caillie, Marshal Soult's aid-de-camp, had arrived in Paris from Algiers, bringing most important despatches from Gen. Bugeaud to the Minister of War.

The Constitutionnel quotes a letter from Mostaganem of the 5th inst. stating that the cavalry of Abd-el-Kader, which had united in the valleys of the Sig and Habrah, for the purpose of covering Tekedempt, had suddenly marched for Medea or Miliana, under the command of Mustapha Ben Thami. The regular infantry of the Emir, consisting of six battalions, each about 900 strong, had also left its cantonments, with orders to form a junction with the cavalry on the frontiers of Algiers and Tittery, with a view, no doubt, of opposing the advance of General Bugeaud upon this last province.

The infantry was well armed, drilled, and brave, and was commanded by two chiefs, one of whom was a Frenchman, named Rose, former sergeant of the Coast Guards, and the other an Arab, of the tribe of Hachiens Greris. The French were making preparations at Mostaganem, for the approaching campaign. Gen. Changarnier was to head the expeditionary column, which was to march from that place, and to combine his operations with those of General Lamoriciere, who was to advance from Oran with a force of 12,000 men.

The 3 per Cents were done at Tortoni's at 78f 5c., a shade lower than the closing price on Saturday.

Massacre of British Seamen. Saturday intelligence of a mournful nature reached London, by which many families in the eastern district of the metropolis will have to lament the loss of relatives and friends. The pilot South-seaman, a large ship belonging to Thomas Ward, Esq. which left the London Docks six months ago on a whaling voyage, was attacked by Malay pirates in the Straits of Timor, who surrounded the vessel in their prows. The ship was gallantly defended by her captain and crew, but they were overpowered by superior numbers, and the savages boarded the ship, plundered it of all the provisions, and killed and wounded a majority of the Crew. The captain, the first and second mates, and twenty-five seamen fell victims to the barbarity of the Malays; the third mate, the surgeon, and eight seamen escaped, and afterwards navigated the ship to Singapore. These are the only particulars that transpired relating to this disastrous event. The pilot had only three tuns of oil in her when she was attacked.

The Malays are a savage and treacherous race, and a terror to mariners navigating the Straits of Timor. A few years ago Captain Aaron Smith, of the Mary Ann, inflicted a signal chastisement upon them. They attacked his ship, and he defeated them, with the loss of three hundred men, and twenty prows, which he sunk.—[Globe.]

The President. The London Times of the 20th April has various speculations as to the fate of the steamer President. The Azores, it is remarked, having been mentioned as likely to be her destination, if in want of coals, disabled, or otherwise driven out of her course, the books at Lloyd's have been consulted, for the last dates thence, and it appears that the accounts are of the 6th inst. from St. Michael; the 3d from Terceira; and the 27th ult. from Fayal. These dates almost preclude the hope of this vessel having obtained shelter there, though it is still not wholly impossible that she may have done so, and in that case a supply of coals at all events could be readily obtained, a large depot having been formed at Fayal for the use of the "Transatlantic Company," by their agent, Mr. William Lanes, agent to Lloyd's and to the Liverpool Association.

The excitement and anxiety in London was very great. It is the opinion of some that she has become disabled and is yet floating upon the ocean.—This slender chance is thought by many so important as to lead to the expression of a wish that a steam vessel might be expressly engaged to go in search of the President, since, if driven out of the course usually sailed between New York and England, there is no saying how long she might remain in this helpless state, and the consumption of all the provisions on board in the time that has already elapsed would be a matter almost of absolute certainty. The suggestion, [illegible] the quarter whence it comes, and the [illegible] hazard, may not be deemed unworthy, perhaps, of the attention of Government. Lloyd's, it should be remarked, as affording some hope, that the President is still insurable, and at the rate of 60 guineas per cent., though it has happened to-day that no parties have offered themselves who are willing to pay at that rate.

The London Money market was firm, though not much business doing.

London, April 19.

Trade Report.—There was very little business done in the commercial market to day, and prices were much the same as previously quoted.

The Tea market continues very firm, and a fair demand was experienced from the trade.—Sales made in low and middling free trade Congou, at 1s 5d to 1s 7d per lb. cash; and in Company's Congou, at 1s 5½d per lb. cash. The deliveries continue good.

Tallow remains 47s 9d to 48s for immediate delivery, but for forward shipment the article can be obtained on easier terms.

The Cotton market is still firm, and a fair business is doing in East India, for export.

The Tea Trade, Monday, 26th. The deliveries of tea last week for home consumption increased to the extent of 60,000 lbs. over what they were in the preceding week, being 443,400 lbs. This augmentation arises, probably, from the circumstance of the market having settled down more, so that buyers are induced to make those purchases they had previously delayed. There is at present no speculations going on, but a steady bona fide business is being transacted.

Liverpool, April 19.

Cotton Market. There was an improved demand from the trade and exporters in the early part of the week, consequent upon the more pacific aspect of our affairs with China, but as this feeling has not been followed by any favorable change in the Manchester trade, the demand since Tuesday has been very moderate, and prices close without any improvement. The sales of the week amount to 26,260 bales of which 1500 American have been on speculation, with 3,200 American and 200 Pernambuco for shipment, and 130 Sea Island at 16d to 22d, with 40 stained at 11d to 12d; 7,370 Bowed, 7 3-8 to 7 5-8; 5,200 Mobile, Alabama and Tennessee, 7¼ to 7¼d; 9,850 Orleans, 6 to 8⅛d; 250 Bahia and Marcelo, 8d to 8¼d; 380 Maranham 6 7-8 to 8 7-8d; 30 Laguayra 7¼d; 40 Carthagena 5 to 5 5-8d; 510 Egyptian 9d to 11¼d, and 1,960 Surat at 4¼d to 5¼d per lb.—There is no change in the market to day. The total sales about 2,500 bags, at the same rates as the business at the close of last week. On Saturday 2,500 bags were sold, including 500 American for export.

FOR SALE AT No. 109 E. BALTIMORE STREET, between South and Calvert streets, where Burners of every description can be obtained. Those who are scythed as to its safety or economy, would, I trust be perfectly satisfied by examining the opinion of Professor Locke, of Ohio, on "Webb's Campaine," or by referring to the Journals of the Franklin and American Institutes, of Philadelphia and New York. All those desirous of obtaining a clean, brilliant, and economical light, will find it greatly to their advantage by calling on the subscriber. The public may be assured of one fact, that we require no meters to ascertain the amount of Camphine consumed, as they register correctly and in plain English.

P. AUGUSTUS BAILEY, Agent
For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

Dear Sir—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 30 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,

BALTIMORE LOCK DISPENSARY,
No. 17 HARRISON ST.
"NO CURE NO PAY."

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, is its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the phi anthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors, by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

Persons residing at any distance, can have medicine sent to them, packed secure from observation.

It was out of pure motives of philanthropy, that this medicine was first made public; the price always to remain $1 per Bottle, to be within the reach of the most unfortunate.

☞ Letters addressed, (post paid) describing the case, mode of living, &c. will be promptly attended to. Direct No. 17 Harrison street.

DAVIES' FAMILY PILLS.
[From a very Respectable Farm r.]

Stafford County, Va. Sept. 7th, 1840.

Dear Sir:—I write to let you know that the Lord has done great things for me whereof I am glad. When I saw you in Fredericksburg, I think I said that I had been afflicted with a very acid (sour) stomach, and subject to a violent pain in my head for more than twenty years, for which I took rhubarb and soda three or four times every day for these many years, with little or no relief, and my legs and ankles were so much swelled that I was unable, at times, to attend to my business. But since you made me a present of a box of your Family Pills I have taken 1 or 2 of them at night in going to bed, and now my acid stomach is relieved, the swelling in my legs has nearly disappeared, and I do not think that I have been hindered one day with the pain in my head since I began to take your valuable medicine. I think the Lord directed you to Fredericksburg, to administer to my relief. (Blessed be his holy name, I am greatly relieved.) There is living in my neighborhood a poor old woman who had been sick for a long time and could not get relief; at length I purchased a box of your pills and gave them to her, after awhile I saw her out and about her business, and she said that the one box had cured her. I have spread the fame of your valuable medicine amongst my acquaintances, and many have purchased. Now, as it respects myself, my friends tell me when I go to town, that they have not seen me look so well for many years, and I say to them, 'I will tell you the secret why; a short time ago I met with a Dr. Davies in town, and he gave me a box of pills, and they have made me look as you now see me.' And now, my friend, I hope that the Lord will continue to be with you, and make you useful to your fellow creatures, as he has hitherto done. I remain with respect. CHARLES BRUCE.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS
AND VEGETABLE BITTERS.

THE perfectly safe, unerring and successful treatment of almost every species of disease by the use of MOFFAT'S LIFE MEDICINES, is no longer a matter of doubt, as a reference to the experience of many thousand patients will satisfactorily prove. During the present month alone, nearly one hundred cases have come to the knowledge of Mr Moffat, where the patient has, to all appearance, effected a permanent cure by the exclusive and judicious use of the Life Medicines—some eight or ten of these had been considered beyond all hope by their medical attendants.—Such happy results are a source of great pleasure to Mr. M. and inspire him with new confidence to recommend the use of his medicines to his fellow citizens.

The Life Medicines are a purely VEGETABLE preparations. They are mild and pleasant in their operation, and at the same time thorough—acting rapidly upon the secretions of the system—carrying off all acrimonious humors, and assimilating with and purifying the blood. For this reason, in phlagmatic cases of dyspepsia, the Life Medicines will give relief in a shorter space of time than any other prescription; in Fever-and-ague, Inflammation, Fevers of every description, Sick headache, heartburn dizziness in the head, pains in the chest, flatulency, impaired appetite, in every disease arising from an impurity of the blood, or a disordered state of the stomach, the use of these medicines has always proved to be beyond doubt greatly superior to any other mode of treatment.

All that Mr. Moffat asks of his patients is to be particular in taking them strictly according to the directions. It is not by a newspaper puff, or by any thing that he himself may say in their favor, that he hopes to gain credit, it is alone by the results of a fair trial. Is the reader an invalid, and does he wish to know whether the life medicines will suit his own case? If so let him call or send to Mr. Moffat's agent in this place, and procure a copy of the Medical Manual, designed as a domestic guide to health, published gratuitously. He will here find enumerated very many extraordinary cases of cure; and perhaps some exactly similar to his own. Moffat's medical office in New York, 175 Broadway, and for sale by the Agents.

INVALUABLE

CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold; having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption, I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. Please publish this certificate, with my name in full, that others may know where to find the greatest blessing on earth.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, the only DAILY LINE

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	"	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	"	Fred'ksburg	12 M.

" Petersburg	7 P.M.	"	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	"	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	"	Charleston	At 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection throughout, while it is evident that Frost Rough Weather and Storms must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT Island Route.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon, and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

DAILY SOUTHERN MAIL,
Via the Chesapeake Bay and Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road,

THE BALTIMORE STEAM-PACKET CO. announce to the public that the boats of their line consisting of the ALABAMA, Captain Sutton; GEORGIA, Captain Coffey; and JEWESS, Captain Holmes, having undergone a through overhaul during the past winter, are now in complete order; therefore the daily line to the South via NORFOLK and PORTSMOUTH will be resumed on Monday the 15th of March, and run in accordance with the following schedule until changed by the Post Office Department.

Arrive at Portsmouth, at	7	"	A. M.
Leaving Portsmouth, at	8	"	A. M.
Arrive at Weldon, at	4	"	P. M.

Wait there until 1 o'clock, A. M. for the Petersburg train.

Leave Weldon at 1 o'clock, A. M.
Arrive at Wilmington at 1 o'clock, P. M.
Leave Wilmington immediately and arrive in Charleston next morning to breakfast.

It will be seen by the above schedule that in order to render the connexion certain, it is only necessary for the Cars of the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road to arrive at Weldon prior to 1 o'clock, A. M. whereas they uniformly arrive before dark—if therefore a detention should take place at any point between Baltimore and Weldon, not occupying more than NINE HOURS, the traveller can by no possibility lay over at any point north of Wilmington. RETURNING, one of the above boats will leave Norfolk every night at 10 o'clock, and cross over to Portsmouth where she will wait the arrival of the Cars from Weldon, and depart for Baltimore as soon as the passengers and baggage are on board, arriving here in about 14 hours after departure from Portsmouth. The passengers having enjoyed all the comforts of a good night's rest, and partaken of as good fare as could be provided in the very best Hotel in the Country.

Travellers bound to Richmond or Petersburg by leaving Baltimore on Monday, Wednesday or Friday, sleep on board the bay boat, are transferred to the James River boat next morning, and arrive at their place of destination the same day by 3 or 4 o'clock, P. M.

Albeit, I trust there is within your realm,
A gentle demoiselle, to whom 'tis none."
OLD PLAY.

A shadowy form flits constantly before my eager eye,
In city and in solitude it ever lurketh nigh;
Yet I may not paint its loveliness, for still it looks to be
As restless & as changing; as the wild waves of the sea

A voice of pleasant melody sounds ever in mine ear,
Whose whispered tone, so sweet and low, I hush my heart to hear;
Yet I may not catch its import, for dim and vague it seems,
Like distant music, stealing in upon our midnight dreams.

We well might deem the fragrant flowers in brighter spheres had birth,
Yet the parent of the gentle band hath still its root in earth,
And I fain would think the vision fair, that smiles around my way,
Hath lot, and home, and heritage, among the things of clay.

But shall my soul be always mocked with UNREAL SHAPES like this?
Shall treacherous hope forever thus betray me with a kiss?
My false and fickle meteors led, I wander wide and far,
Oh! when shall rise upon my path, a fixed and steadfast star?
GERALD.

EGYPT AND MOHAMMED ALI.

There are things to admire in the character, the anomalous character, of Mohammed Ali. In his legal tribunals he discountenances venality, is disposed to have justice impartially administered, and leans towards mercy in all judicial proceeding; and capital punishments are seldom or never carried into effect. He is tolerant, moreover, in religious matters. This man was intended for better things than the circumstances in which he has been placed, and the people by whom he is surrounded have allowed him to attain to. Though his intellectual powers have been greatly overrated, he has qualities that ought to have made him, if not the founder of an empire, at least a prince whose power was not destined to be shaken in his latter years.

His bodily vigor is now, however, beginning to break down, but his mental energy is still unimpaired. The resources of his country have long been embarrassed, and yet his ambitious views are more extensive than ever. He has wasted his treasure in foreign wars, and none of his conquests have any appearance of permanency. During the five-and-thirty years he has reigned over Egypt, he has wonderfully augmented the produce of the soil, and the people of his country are not only diminished in numbers, but impoverished and deteriorated in their condition. When he took possession of the government, the people were oppressed by their improvident rulers; but the removal of the Beys only paved the way for an organized system of well-regulated rapacity, such as the people of Egypt, in all the periods of their misery and slavery, had never groaned under; and the government of the Beys, even when the country, by the badness of their rule, was most insecure for strangers, was a mild one for the people when compared by them, as it now is, with that of Mohammed Ali. It is impossible to consider these things, and to know the rude character and debilitated constitution of the person who it is supposed will be his successor, and not to conclude that the power of Mohammed Ali in Egypt will die with him, and all the efforts he has made to establish manufactures, and to make a great military power of Egypt, will prove abortive the moment he ceases to exist.

It was the misfortune of the Pacha, from the beginning of his career, to have been surrounded by bad advisers, by European counsellors, who had other purposes to serve than those of Mohammed Ali, and to whom the real prosperity of his country or the condition of his people was of no other importance than as their own political views were influenced by them.

Mohammed Ali had sufficient sagacity to see the glaring defects of Turkish government, and to perceive in the hostility of the Mahommedan religion to all innovation and reformation of abuses the cause of that ruin which seems impending over the Turkish Empire. He was bent on opposing this spirit of inertion, and on introducing all modern improvement in mechanics and manufacturing processes into his country. He knew not how to set to work, and consequently most of the improvements he attempted to introduce were not adapted to the capabilities of the country, or the genius of the people, and, with few exceptions, he was obliged to have recourse to Franks of no great reputation to carry his desired object into effect. These foreigners generally professed liberal opinions on all subjects, both of politics and of religion, so far as theory went; and on the latter subject there was some practical liberality too, or liberation rather from all fixed principles of received opinions; that is to say, they carried them from their own country no feelings of ment to any particular forms of religion, but upon all in the spirit of Volney and Du- ld as the Pacha derived his ideas of Euro- ilization from these men, he in all proba- eived also a portion of his freedom of u religious subjects from the same source; me indifferent to his own creed, and towards every other. His own saga- have led him to perceive the defects in mmedan religion, but it is more than t without the counsel and example of these men, his policy would have led to his imposing himself on his people for a sincere believer in their faith, and he would have been a strict observer of the outward rites and forms of his religion for that reason alone. As it is, he makes no pretensions to devotion. On two occasions recently, when I have had interviews with him in company with Sir Moses Montefiore, at the Magreb or hour of evening prayer, all the soldiers, officers, servants, and attendants of the palace were assembled at their devotion, in the large ante-chamber leading into his reception room, with all the pomp and state of oriental devotion. The devout Musselmen were ranged in rows in front of the Imam, and a person duly appointed to perform the service chanted certain passages of the Koran and forms of prayer, in a full sonorous voice, that echoed through the spacious rooms of the palace. The various prostrations of those assembled, their simultaneous movements and scenes, and the deep solemnity of the look and manner of every individual engaged in prayer had a very touching effect; but in the midst of all this solemnity on one occasion, the Pacha made his appearance from his own apartment, walked across the hall, took no notice whatever of those assembled at prayer; but, seeing Sir Montefiore, and myself, and two other gentlemen, standing in a corner, he said, in a loud, good-humored tone, beckoning with his hand, "Guel, guel," (come in, come in,) and we had to follow him into his grand saloon, to the manifest disturbance of all those employed in prayer. On another occasion, at the same time of the evening service, while the prayers were chanting outside, we were engaged in conversation with His Highness in the inner room. I trust I shall not be understood as censuring Mohammed Ali for not observing forms, the efficacy of which there is reason to believe he has no faith in.—What I feel on this subject is, that the advantage is a very doubtful one, of unsettling men's convictions in the truth of any religion, without leading them to the knowledge of a another and a better creed, or at least inspiring them with respect for any other.

A Mussulman of high distinction in the service of the Sultan, who was my travelling companion on my return to Europe, in speaking of the great reforms undertaken by his late master, said, "If he had lived ten years longer, it was the opinion of the Ulemas, even of those who were in most matters favorable to his views, that he would have ended by destroying the religion, so great were the inroads he was making on its doctrines."

That such is the tendency of all those reforms which have taken place, and are daily progressing, there can be little doubt. This religion was established by the sword, and civilization must prove fatal to it.

The tide of civilization has set in both on Turkey and Egypt, and, as fanaticism must be overborne by it, the empire which was founded on it must fall. Its fall may be deferred, and the confusion that its fall might occasion may be obviated by such interference as will repress the violence or cupidity of those who are waiting for the spoil of Turkey and its dependencies; but the downfall is certain, and they are tending towards it by an invincible necessity.

The old adage, aut deus aut demon, is proverbially true in the estimate we find made of Mohammed Ali by those in Egypt, who, fortunately for them, are not the subjects of his highness, and those who, most unfortunately for themselves, are his subjects. This observation does not apply to his official agents and the members of his family. His conduct towards them must be considered apart. He is a good master to the former, and in his domestic relations he is an amiable and even an estimable man. The foreigners in Egypt have much to be grateful to him for. The free exercise of every religion is tolerated by him, and the different sects whose members hate one another in proportion to the approximation of their tenets, and whose animosity, I might says is in a ratio with the slightness of the shades of difference in the doctrines which separate their creeds, are prevented in Egypt by the vigorous hand of Mohammed Ali from persecuting one another; and it is only in the great strongholds of fanaticism, such as Damascus, in which his power is too weak to keep the separate sects from publicly harrassing, anathematizing, and even killing one another, where their hatred is suffered to lead to very glaring acts of injustice and persecution.

Travellers, so far as their personal safety is concerned, have reason to speak in the highest terms of the security afforded them by the measures of Mohammed Ali, for their protection in every part of Egypt. I do not know any European country where one may travel with greater safety than in Egypt. Robberies and murders for the sake of plunder are almost unknown. In this respect Mohammed Ali has certainly effected much; but the means by which he has effected so much, and the terrible acts of indiscriminate vengeance inflicted on the innocent as well as the guilty, whenever any village or district is the scene of an outrage which is brought to his notice, are of so Turkish a character, that it may be as unjustifiable for a European to form a notion of their merits or demerits by any European standard, as it would be unfair to draw inferences of an enlightened policy, according to our ideas of it, from the security that is obtained by means that in our eyes are barbarous and unjust.

ST. AUGUSTINE, MAY 11, 1841.

FROM THE SOUTH. The steamer Wm. Gaston arrived here on Saturday last from Southern Posts. We learn by this arrival that Wild Cat (Coacochee,) had been at Fort Pierce (Indian River,) with fifteen warriors, and went out again on the morning of the 5th inst. He was, as usual, very insulting to the officers, and demanded of them powder and lead, and other things, which were refused. He acted in his usual pompous manner, as though he did not care for any of them.—News.

☞Capt. Jeremiah N. Sawyer, of the schr. Hero, died on the 8th inst. about 40 miles from the Balize, on the passage from Havana to New Orleans.

STABBED. A Mr. Simon Richards, of Donaldsonville, was some time since so severely stabbed by a slave of his father's as to preclude the hope of his recovery.

THE BOWERY THEATRE CLOSED. The Manager of the Bowery Theatre, New York, has issued the following Card:

To my Fellow Citizens:—It is with the most painful feelings my duty compels me to announce to you that the Bowery Theatre is closed, in obedience to a Mandate from the Court of Chancery, sued out and issued, at the instigation of the Managers of the Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents. Some nine years since, the Legislature of this State inflicted a yearly tax of $500, on the performance of the Legitimate Drama, represented in the New York Theatres only; and on this law I have already paid upwards of $4000, which has been applied to the support and maintenance of Juvenile Thieves and other offenders. It will not surprise the public to be informed, that in these times of universal depression, I am unable to meet this demand on the instant; nor that I should solicit the indulgence usually granted in the payment of other taxes. Last week I addressed a respectful letter to the gentlemen above designated, soliciting a delay; to my astonishment, this reasonable request has been answered by a suit at law, and an Injunction commanding me to close my doors!—Harsh and hasty as the measure is, I feel it nevertheless to be my duty to obey it. Like a good citizen, I shall bow to the majesty of the law, although "I cannot kiss the rod that smites me."

I trust without offence I may be permitted to regret the act, and question the necessity that may be thought to exist, for proceeding to such harsh legal measures for the recovery of the tax due but on the 1st instant—more particularly when the complainants were aware that their proceedings would deprive, most unexpectedly, upwards of 100 persons, employed in this establishment, of all means of obtaining bread, in these times of universal distress. Armed, for the present, with a little brief authority, the Managers of the Juvenile Delinquents have struck a blow which must be severely felt by the honest laborious persons in my employ, their wives and families; a blow which, I think, every feeling and manly heart will designate as uncalled for, unprovoked, impolitic and oppressive.

THOMAS S. HAMBLIN.

Bowery Theatre, May 18, 1841.

FASHIONS FOR MAY. [From the London and Paris Ladies Magazine of Fashion.] Silk is much in favor for every description of toillette, from the morning peignoir to the evening dress. Gros de Naples, checked striped chine broches, foulards, pekinets, are seen in every variety; but the novelty of the season is the satin boreale, borrowing its name from its imitation of the tints of the Aurora Borealis, which is also introduced in a variety of materials, orange, bistre, rouilles, mahogany, and all shades of yellow being fashionable. In carriage dresses, the colors are each as lait, flame de punch, green, pomegranate, and cerise. Redingotes are trimmed with chicoree, braudenbourgs, gimp trimmings and fancy buttons; three rows are placed on the corsage and skirt; the skirts are made very full and almost training; bias are also much used on silk dresses, edged with fringe, and tucks are expected to be in favor. Sleeves are made of every style; the tight ones have many admirers; they are varied by bouillons placed lengthways or across; the tight sleeve will not be used in light materials; in muslins the sleeve bouillonnee has been preferred. Scarfs the same as the dress are fashionable, and others in every variety.

Satin dressel of pale colors are worn with tunics of black lace; wreaths of flowers, creves, and broad lace ornament the skirts of ball dresses.—Trimmings on the tops of long gloves are less worn; a band of velvet is preferred. Bracelets are fashionable; the Turkish and Roman style being the most admired.

Inlets of lace are much used for cannezous, manchettes, &c.; some are entirely composed of muslin and Valenciennes. The little caps a la paysanne and a la Norma are in much favor.

Summer bournous are made of white or blue cachemire embroidered in tambour, white on blue and blue on white, with cordelie of the two colours: they are not lined. Mantelets of embroidered muslin are trimmed with three biass, headed by a narrow embroidery, and occasionally a riband is passed through the bias, of the colour of the lining. Scarfs are in great variety; black silk, satin, velvet, or lace, and cachemire ones of blue, black, or green, embroidered all round; foulards, &c. Many shawls will be worn of silk or cashemire, embroidered in the same colour.

Bonnets are almost exclusively of the close capote form; so general are they, that even Leghorns and pailles de riz are made so. Open straws are much worn in Paris; and capotes of crape have already appeared there in pink, blue, jonquil, ornamented with delicate flowers: feathers are preferred for Leghorns, and voilettes are universal.

The pretty capotes of poult de soie of light colours are covered with tulle or lace intermixed with flowers. Riband is used more abundantly on bonnets this season. A new and very rich style has been introduced, termed the prismatic riband; the flowers used are of the simplest kind, lilies of the valley mixed with grass, elder flower with roses, blue bells, &c.; the wreath Pompadour is of small roses, encircled with white field daises, united by a small cordon of feuillage.

TIDE WATER CANAL. It is probable that there never was a work constructed of so limited an extent, so well calculated to produce important results to the trading community as this canal. From the address delivered by William Bose, Esq. to a meeting of citizens some time since, and repeated at the solicitation of gentlemen who had not previously heard it, on Thursday evening last, it appears, that this short canal connects with all the important works of internal improvement in Pennsylvania and Ohio, and affords a shorter, more direct and cheaper mode of conveyance for the productions of those states to the city of Baltimore, than to any other seaport in the union. The statistical information submitted by Mr. Bosé demonstrated the immense value of the articles which will seek a market through the medium of the Tide Water Canal, and the importance of endeavors to secure this trade to the city of Baltimore. So conscious are the citizens of Philadelphia that the tendency of this trade is to Baltimore, that they have employed steamboats to tow canal boats from Have-de-Grace to Philadelphia at the lowest rates; and to aid this object, the tolls on the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal have been considerably reduced. Mr. Bose urged with emphasis upon the meeting, the necessity of promptly adopting measures to counteract this exertion on the part of Philadelphia, and to insure a fair competition on the part of Baltimore. A committee for this purpose has been appointed, and we presume, will be successful. The employment of a steamboat to ply between Baltimore and Havre-de-grace, is regarded as a temporary expedient, and a continuous canal was warmly recommended by the speaker. There can be no doubt that this is the proper measure, and that if carried into effect, it will add greatly to the wealth and prosperity of Baltimore. Mr. Bose gave a brief and satisfactory statement of the mineral, agricultural and other resources of Pennsylvania, Ohio and other states, and proved, conclusively, that they might be rendered tributary to this city, if the energies of our citizens were put forth. He occupied the floor about two hours; and, on his concluding, a vote of thanks was unanimously passed.

We have before expressed the hope that this address will be printed—and, as we are fully persuaded that the subject upon which it treats is of the very first importance to the welfare of Baltimore, we cannot forbear reiterating the expression of our desire that it may be submitted to the public in printed form.

FANNY ELSLER. The "Divine Fanny," as she has been impiously called, has been for some time exhibiting her person to the citizens of New Orleans, whom she appears to have completely bewildered. On every night of performance the theatre was crowded to excess, the tickets usually, we believe, bringing more than the customary price. The receipts of her benefit were about $4,000. She has taken her departure from that city, and we presume, that her worshippers in Baltimore will again have the opportunity of paying their adoration.

This German danseuse has accumulated a large fortune. In every place where she has appeared money has been profusely lavished upon her. Men who could not do common acts of charity, nor even pay their honest debts, have found means to purchase Elsler tickets at double price, and have not missed a single representation of her agility. Whilst such infatuation exists, it is not extraordinary that the unhappy wife should pine in neglect and want, or the children go supperless to bed—nor that public taste should be vitiated, and the decencies of life go unobserved. It would seem as if men acted under enchantment the moment this woman makes her appearance; for they rush into her presence, regardless of self-respect, and of the deep wound which they may inflict upon public morals. It is notorious that this woman does not possess an irreproachable character; and yet she is followed as a Deity; gold is showered into her lap; her praises are chaunted with exultation; and flowers are scattered in her path. What an example. It may be said that she is rewarded for her professional excellence, without reference to her moral character—but should not that be taken into consideration? If a nimble pair of heels are to compensate for a deviation from moral rectitude, female virtue will soon be of little value; and young ladies will have no need of other accomplishments than those of dancing and attitudinizing. We make no pretensions to extraordinary austerity upon this subject; but we do think that the great eclat given to Fanny Elsler is calculated to have a demoralizing influence. She makes her tens of thousands by her exceptionable exhibitions, whilst the modest and meretorious female finds it difficult to procure by industry the means of subsistence.

McLEOD. The pleadings in the case of this individual have been closed, and the decision of the Court is looked for with anxiety. We copy from the New York Tatler, a statement of the points made by the prisoner's counsel; but confess that they do not to our minds contain much force. It is evident that the doctrine maintained by Mr. Spencer, can be carried so far as to subject our citizens to murderous assaults, without the power of legal redress. A British officer on the Canada lines, has but to plan a plundering expedition to our shores, obtain volunteers, and after robbing and killing our citizens, to get the British government to "assume the responsibility," and the affair is settled. The violation of State authority is nothing; and the law becomes powerless by the omnipotence of British interference. In a time of peace between the two nations—when our people had no right to anticipate an act of wanton aggression; in the the dead hour of night; a British banditti attack and burn a vessel in our harbor, and shoot down a man upon our soil. Subsequently a man is arrested, charged with having participated in this outrage, and who is said to have boasted that he perpetrated the murder—he is indicted for the offence under the State laws—when all proceedings are to be arrested, because the British government has been induced to approve the act; and the whole affair is to assume the shape of a negotiation. This is the ground taken by McLeod's counsel. But he goes farther, and states, as an additional reason why the prisoner should be released, that the refusal to liberate him will bring down upon us the indignation and vengeance of Great Britain; so that, for fear of giving offence to this mistress of the Ocean, as Mr. Spencer seems to consider her, we are to suspend our laws, and yield the culprit, who is within their grasp. Let the case "take any shape but that," for we would not have our country give way an inch "upon compulsion."

We do not censure Mr. Spencer, for exerting his ingenuity in defence of his client, it is his duty—but we hope that the Court will not partake of his fears, and yield to policy, what should be denied by justice. If McLeod be innocent, as he has sworn he is, he will no doubt be acquitted, If his guilt be even doubtful, he will have the benefit of the doubt and be cleared; but, if his guilt be established beyond the possibility of doubt, he should suffer the penalty of the violated law, even though the whole navy of England were thundering at our doors.

MORE ROBBERY. We are sick of recording bank robberies, or "defalcations;" but it is necessary that they should be given to the public, to guard the people, if possible, against future impositions. The details of the various acts by which stockholders and the public have been recently robbed by bank officers and speculators, would fill a good sized volume; and yet, probably not more than one-half has been developed. We add one more instance, and in this case it appears, that perjury was added to robbery. This adds, however, little to the criminality—for the man who violates his honor and the confidence reposed in him, as an officer of a bank, by appropriating its funds to his own use, is guilty of moral perjury, and is as criminal as though he had committed it contrary to legal restrictions.

More Bank Defalcations. The following account of a deficiency in the Branch Bank of the State of Georgia, at Macon, has been communicated to the editor of the Savannah Georgian, by a subscriber.

The amount of deficit at the Branch Bank, at Macon, as reported by Mr. Porter, the cashier of the Bank of the State of Georgia, who was sent there by the Board of the Principal Bank here, is, as we understand about $60,000. Nathaniel Barker, Cashier, Isaac G. Seymour, President, and Levi Eckley, H. K. Carter and F. Sims, Directors, are the persons implicated. These frauds upon the institution have been committed under the obligations of an oath taken by the president and cashier of that office, on the 3d of April ult.; after a certificate signed, saying, the cash on that day had been counted and was found all correct. We further understand that the directors of the Principal Bank have taken energetic measures to prosecute and bring to justice all the persons implicated, and the efficient character of the security bonds and other sources of indemnity, induce the hope that the pecuniary loss to the bank will not be very heavy—but what an awful wreck of character with regard to the parties involved.—We believe, however, there will be a publication of particulars upon the subject in due time.

THROAT CUT WITH A BOWIE KNIFE. An occurrence took place at "Church Hill," Queen Anne's county, Md. on Sunday last, between John Cox and John Roberts, which resulted in the former having his throat cut from ear to ear. Death ensued in a few minutes afterwards. The murderer was committed to jail. Cox has left a young wife to mourn his untimely and melancholy end. Here is another salutary lesson upon the practice of carrying deadly weapons. It is clear that a man of circumspect habits, good sense and good character, needs no such protecting instruments. A fool is not to be entrused with them, he has not the judgment when to use them, and by their use is certain to bring misery upon himself, and very frequently the rope to his neck.—When will our high authorities take some effectual action upon the subject of suppressing this insufferable practice.

SUDDEN DEATH. On Thursday evening last, about eight o'clock, Dr. Samuel Dickenson, one of the Lottery Commissioners, having heard the alarm of fire, left his boarding house, (Mr. Hugo's Pratt Street,) to ascertain where the fire was. In about two hours afterwards a colored man was passing across the commons in the South Western part of the city, and discovered the body of Dr. Dickenson; he immediately communicated the fact, and the coroner proceeded to the spot, and held an inquest on the body. Professor Smith was present, examined the body, and stated the cause of his sudden death to be "disease of the brain." The deceased was 70 years of age. It is supposed he crossed the commons, it being the nearest route to his boarding house.

A CLERGYMAN IN DIFFICULTY. It is stated in the Philadelphia Chronicle of yesterday that the Grand Jury on the day previous found a true bill against an individual residing in the Northern Liberties, and connected with, or having charge of a small religious German congregation, known by name as the Rev. Frederick Bagans, for the larceny of the goods of Nicholas Burr. The return, from which the Attorney General framed the bill, it seems was sent in by Alderman Potts, of the Seventh Ward, N. L., before whom Bagans was brought on Saturday last, charged with larceny on the oaths of Burr and his wife. The amount of which they stated he had robbed them at sundry times, was upwards of $100. The alderman required him to give bail for his appearance at Court in the sum of $400.

In the hearing of this case before the Alderman, it came out in the testimony of the woman, that Bagans had induced her to take money from her husband and give it to him, persuading her to believe that her husband was a devil, and that there was no harm in stealing from him. She stated further, that he had indulged in a criminal intercourse with her, she having been influenced by his declarations, that he was an angel, and that in such connections she was in the service of her Creator. This is the statement of the woman herself.

FLOWER POTS—CAUTION. Yesterday afternoon, while an interesting little girl named McKeevan, about eight years old, was playing under the window of a house in Aisquith street, a flower pot, which had been placed on the window of the second story, accidentally fell down and struck her on the head, producing a very severe wound. A physician was called, who at first thought the skull was fractured, but subsequently altered his opinion. The wound is not supposed to be dangerous.

POLICE. Arthur Anderson, colored, charged with threatening to kill William Smith, was arrested yesterday morning and taken before Justice Barnard. In default of security he was committed to prison. Sarah McDonald, charged with keeping a house of ill fame, was released on security, by Justice Gorsuch. Mirad Wilson, colored, for assaulting and threatening Maria Wilson, was released by Justice Barnard, on security to keep the peace. Margaret Ann Johnson and Mary Stevens were committed by Justice Jones to the Alms-house, as vagrants.

LOSS OF THE STEAMBOAT BRAZIL. The St. Louis Bulletin of the 12th states that a passenger in the steamboat Brazil, who arrived the day previous in the Rosalie, reports the loss of the Brazil, on the Upper Rapids, on Friday morning, 7th. She struck a ledge of rocks, forward of the boilers, injured her timbers very badly, and sunk in deep water, and will be an entire loss. She had a full cargo of lead, bound for and owned at Pittsburg, which may be saved. The amount of insurance is not stated.

INFAMOUS PLOT. Our Borough was thrown into quite a state of excitement on Friday afternoon, (says the Harrisburg Telegraph of the 10th) by the apprehension of a young man about 15 years of age, who had been endeavoring to induce some of his associates to join him in a plot to shoot the keeper of the State Treasury, rifle his pockets of the keys and then rob the department.—The young man was committed on the testimony of those to whom he had communicated his design.

NATIONAL THEATRE. This evening Mr. Lennox, the indefatigable manager of this establishment, takes a benefit. Mr. L. is a capital actor and an honest man, we therefore on his behalf bespeak a bumper. The pieces selected are of the first order, being the drama of "The Rent Day" and the farce of "Come to my Benefit," which we would advise all his friends to do.

MRS. GOVE'S LECTURE. This talented and philanthropic lady gives another Lecture to the ladies and gentlemen of our city this evening at the Universalist Church, Calvert-st. Subject, Spinal Diseases and "The Management of Schools." Admission free—lecture to commence at 8 o'clock.

ANOTHER RAY OF HOPE. The New York Sun of Thursday 20th inst. says—The ship Scotland, from Liverpool, arrived yesterday, on the night of the 5th May saw a steamer standing east, lat. 42.19, long. 54.30. On the preceding day saw large icebergs all around her, extending from about lat. 42.20 to 42.50, and long. 49.40 to 50.40.

A JUST VERDICT. A man was recently tried in Illinois for stealing Brandon Bank money. The jury found him guilty of the heighth of meanness, but as the offence was not punishable by either statute or criminal law the prisoner was discharged.

POLICE. Rosanna Hubbard, who kept an improper house in this city, and has been charged with the murder of Danl. Bosley, had a hearing before Justice Snyder on Thursday last, and was recommitted for further examination. No tangible evidence has yet been elicited.

A MURDER. The grand jury of St. Louis has found a true bill for murder against Vaulier, accused of killing a widow lady in that county about four weeks since.

MAIL ROBBER CAUGHT. A stage driver who had been engaged in driving the second team west of Shelbyville, Ill. between that and Springfield, was last week committed to Shelbyville jail for robbing the mail.

☞ Young Semmes, charged with the murder of Professor Davis, it is said, is sinking into a consumption, and doubts are felt whether he will ever be brought to trial.

Judge Conrad's new tragedy is to be produced at the Park theatre on Monday evening next.

THE McLEOD CASE.

WEDNESDAY, May 19.—The argument in the McLeod case was concluded by Mr. Spencer for the prisoner. The decision of the Court will not be announced for some days, the Judge having taken time to consider the questions involved. We present a very brief abstract of the able argument of Mr. Spencer.—N. Y. Tattler.

He argued on the 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th propositions made on behalf of the prisoner, which are in brief as follows:—That the State of New York cannot discreetly or lawfully interpose its jurisdiction and take cognizance of this public offence against the entire American nation; that the power to declare war belongs to the General Government, and that the act in which McLeod stands charged with participation, becomes the subject of reclamation, reprisal and war on the part of the Government of the United States as it shall see fit; that if the alleged offence were cognizable by the Courts of the United States, the trial of the individual would be wholly incompatible with pending negociations; and that had the attack been made on a fort or arsenal in the jurisdiction of the United States, the ground of the discharge of the prisoner would have been then the same as now, and if then the United States ought to forbear the prosecution of the individuals, so ought now the State of New York.

Mr. Spencer proceeded in a very clear manner to defend these positions. He defined the statutes and province of the general and state governments, and of the different branches of the former, and said that such must be kept in its proper place. He particularly insisted upon the necessity that the federal government be left untrammeled in relation to its duties toward foreign nations, and considered the case at the bar one in which the interference would be particularly mischievous. The burning of the Caroline was a national act, no part of it can be separated from the rest—the invaders came for a specific object—the killing of Durfee was a mere incident to that object, and cannot be separated so as to become the subject of municipal jurisdiction. The Government of the United States cannot take cognizance of a part and leave the rest to the State of New York.

The invasion and its circumstances altogether form the subject of our demand for satisfaction. Suppose satisfaction given, could the state of New York, after the government of the United States were content, come forward with an additional demand? The right and duty of this court to declare such a demand unfounded, would be unquestionable, and they are unquestionable now. The demand has been made, and will be persisted in until satisfaction is obtained one way or the other. The trial is going on in the court of nations. Were it ended, Great Britain would have a right to demand that this prosecution be abandoned. She has the same right now, measures being taken to ensure justice. She has the right to demand before giving satisfaction, that her subject be released from the responsibility that she has assumed.

He said that the denial of the right of the United States to demand the release of McLeod does not interfere with this view. The federal government does not come with a mandate for the release of McLeod, but trusted to the sense of justice of the State authorities. He supposed a case in illustration: the robbing of an United States arsenal by citizens of the United States, the interposition of British soldiers, and the death of a sentry. He said the power to enforce redress would not, in that case, be in the Federal courts, for it is not the province of the Judiciary to repel attacks. It would be the duty of the Executive. The present case is a national outrage, and to seek reparation belongs to the Federal Executive.

He proceeded to take up the cases cited by the District Attorney, and said that they were not analagous. They are English cases, and if England has done wrong, it does not follow that we should. The Attorney General asked if McLeod could not be tried here, where could he be? Mr. Spencer had no hesitation in answering no where! Not in the United States' Courts, for they have no jurisdiction over crimes not committed in their exclusive limits—not in the State Courts, for the McLeod offence, if he was guilty, was against the United States, and they are seeking redress in another way. The Attorney General had asked how we could with safety neglect to try these bandits. Bandits might be exterminated without trial, but it does not follow that they may be tried.

In answer to Mr. Hall's opinion that the doctrine of McLeod's counsel would lead to perpetual war, Mr. Spencer said the reverse was the case. The federal government has means of redress without war, and this trial, if persisted in, would more surely lead to war than any other course. Great Britain has taken her position.—Whether right or wrong, it is not for this court to decide, but for the federal government. Great Britain will not remain indifferent if the trial proceeds. Our coast may be lined with her men of war and our border bristle with bayonets.—The government of the United States was anxiously watching the procedure in this case. He would not say that it desired the release of McLeod—but it had afforded every facility, and granted every information to his counsel.

He had no hesitation in saying that the federal government watched for the result—anxiously indeed, but in full confidence that New York would do right. To do right would be to set the prisoner at large. He alluded to the points of difficulty between the two nations—spoke of this last as the most vexatious—cited a number of cases and authorities, and concluded by expressing his conviction that the court would sustain the ground taken by him and his associate.

STEAMER PRESIDENT. We extract the following from the London correspondence of the New York Signal, dated May 1st.

The President steamer is still missing, and nearly all hope of her safety is now extinguished. It is possible, certainly, that she may yet be afloat, but there is but little reasonable probability that she could be so, and yet be out till this time—50 days—unseen and unheard of. Her fate will perhaps remain a melancholy mystery.

I was one of the passengers on her last trip to New York, in which her sea-going qualities were amply tested in a severe gale of eight or ten days. She was slow, but all on board were amply satisfied that no ship afloat was better able to encounter rough weather; and I feel confident that nothing but some sudden and unexpected disaster, such as striking an iceberg, would endanger her ultimate safety. It would be indeed an awful calamity if this noble ship has perished at sea, with more than one hundred human beings, and none left to tell the tale.

Capt. Roberts, as in duty bound, did his best during the late trip to inspire confidence in this unfortunate vessel, and I have no doubt he believed all he said. Poor fellow!—We can but hope against hope, that the catastrophe has not been so fearful as there is now too much reason to suppose. The dates from Bermuda are to the 1st of April, when the President had been out 20 days; from the Azores much later: and the only thread of a chance left is that she might have missed Bermuda and reached Antigua, or some West India island, or is yet at sea disabled. Her fate is yet the topic of interest and anxiety.

GREEN MOUNT CEMETERY.

LOT HOLDERS desirous of enclosing their Lots are respectfully informed, that by calling at the shop of the subscriber, (CORNER OF BALTIMORE AND NORTH STS. UP STAIRS,) they will see a greater variety of designs and patterns, for that purpose, than are yet put up.—Also, now preparing, a series of patterns in the decorated or perfect Gothic style, combining ELEGANCE, DURABILITY, AND ECONOMY. In future the patterns will not be loaned or hired to any founder or blacksmith whatever. As the subscriber is determined that their prices shall not retard the progress of his designs, and instead of the cost being as heretofore 9, 9½, 10, and even 12½ cts. per lb. contended for, the subscriber will have it "well and quickly done" at 8 cts. per lb. or less, if possible—and charge as heretofore, for drawing ground plan and superintendence, but $5 for a single lot; $7 a double, and $10 for a quadruple—and if lot holders encourage the undertaking, no effort will be spared to create a pleasing variety of patterns, in Egyptian, Grecian, Gothic, and other styles, in keeping with the beauty of the place. The railings weigh about 30 lbs. to be running foot, some more, others less.

Designs for monuments, tombs, entrance to vaults, &c. made to please, or no charge.

FROM TEXAS. The steam packet New York arrived on the 12th inst. at New Orleans, bringing Galveston dates to the 9th.

The principal item of intelligence by this arrival is the total loss of the English bark Sarah, with a cargo of cotton, inside the bar at Galveston. While being towed out by the New York on the 8th inst. she parted her hawser before reaching the bar, and drifted until she struck.

During a heavy storm which came on afterwards she bilged, and the next day sunk in three fathoms water. She had 900 bales of cotton on board, belonging to Mr. Powers and McKinney & Williams. The sails and rigging were saved. The Sarah was described as an old vessel.

Several vessels were much injured during the same storm, among them the brig Reaper, and a sloop, name unknown, was totally lost.

General Rusk has publicly declined becoming a candidate for the Presidency.

The cultivation of wheat has been undertaken in Travis county with every prospect of success.

FIRE. The alarm yesterday morning, a little before twelve o'clock, was caused by the slight burning of a house on Painter's Court, near the corner of Pitt and Exeter streets.

WEBB'S PATENT BURNERS,
AND CAMPHINE OIL.

FOR SALE AT No. 109 E. BALTIMORE STREET, between South and Calvert streets, where Burners of every description can be obtained. Those who are sceptical as to its safety or economy, would, I trust be perfectly satisfied by examining the opinion of Professor Locke, of Ohio, on "WEBB'S CAMPHINE," or by referring to the Journals of the Franklin and American Institutes, of Philadelphia and New York. All those desirous of obtaining a clean, brilliant, and economical light, will find it greatly to their advantage by calling on the subscriber. The public may be assured of one fact, that we require no meters to ascertain the amount of Camphine consumed, as they register correctly and in plain English.

☞ ASTRAL LAMPS ALTERED.

N. B. We have appointed JOSHUA ATKINSON Agent, No. 22 Market street, F. P., where all orders will meet with immediate attention.

P. AUGUSTUS BAILEY, Agent
For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

DEAR SIR—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,
mh10-tf Fifth Ward Hotel.

BALTIMORE LOCK DISPENSARY,
No. 17 HARRISON ST.
"NO CURE NO PAY."

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, is its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

Persons residing at any distance, can have medicine sent to them, packed secure from observation.

It was out of pure motives of philanthropy, that this medicine was first made public; the price always to remain $1 per Bottle, to be within the reach of the most unfortunate.

☞ Letters addressed, (post paid) describing the case, mode of living, &c. will be promptly attended to. Direct No. 17 Harrison street.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS
AND VEGETABLE BITTERS.

THE perfectly safe, unerring and successful treatment of almost every species of disease by the use of MOFFAT'S LIFE MEDICINES, is no longer a matter of doubt, as a reference to the experience of many thousand patients will satisfactorily prove. During the present month alone, nearly one hundred cases have come to the knowledge of Mr. Moffat, where the patient has, to all appearance, effected a permanent cure by the excessive and judicious use of the Life Medicines—some eight or ten of these had been considered beyond all hope by their medical attendants.—Such happy results are a source of great pleasure to Mr. M. and inspire him with new confidence to recommend the use of his medicines to his fellow citizens.

The Life Medicines are a purely VEGETABLE preparation. They are mild and pleasant in their operation, and at the same time thorough—acting rapidly upon the secretions of the system—carrying off all acrimonious humors, and assimilating with and purifying the blood. For this reason, in aggravated cases of dyspepsia, the Life Medicines will give relief in a shorter space of time than any other prescription; in Fever and ague, Inflammation, Fevers of every description, Sick headache, heartburn dizziness in the head, pains in the chest, flatulency, impaired appetite, in every disease arising from an impurity of the blood, or a disordered state of the stomach, the use of these medicines has always proved to be beyond doubt greatly superior to any other mode of treatment.

All that Mr. Moffat asks of his patients is to be particular in taking them strictly according to the directions. It is not by a newspaper no less, or by any thing that he himself may say in their favor, that he hopes to gain credit, it is alone by the results of a fair trial. Is the reader an invalid, and does he wish to know whether the life medicines will suit his own case? If so let him call or send to Mr. Moffat's agent in this place, and procure a copy of the Medical Manual, designed as a domestic guide to health, published gratuitously. He will here find enumerated very many extraordinary cases of cure; and perhaps some exactly similar to his own. Moffat's medical office in New York, 375 Broadway, and for sale by the Agents. JAS. BOOZ,

INVALUABLE

CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold, having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption, I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. Please publish this certificate, with my name in full, that others may know where to find the greatest blessing on earth.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE.

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave	Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach Baltimore	2 P.M.
"	Baltimore	4 P.M.	" Washington	6 P.M.
"	Washington	5 A.M.	" Fredk'sburg	12 M.
"	Fred'kburg	12 M.	" Richmond	5 P.M.

"	Petersburg	7 P.M.	" Weldon	1 A.M.
"	Weldon	1 A.M.	" Wilmington	1 P.M.
"	Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through out, whilst it is evident that FOUL ROCUS WEATHER!! and STORMS!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon; and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

THE BALTIMORE STEAM-PACKET CO. announce to the public that the boats of their line consisting of the ALABAMA, Captain Sutton; GEORGIA, Captain Coffey; and JEWESS, Captain Holmes, having undergone a through overhaul during the past winter, are now in complete order; therefore the daily line to the South via NORFOLK and PORTSMOUTH will be resumed on Monday the 15th of March, and run in accordance with the following schedule until changed by the Post Office Departments.

Leaving Baltimore daily at 4 o'clock, P. M.
Arrive at Portsmouth, at 7 " A. M.
Leaving Portsmouth, at 8 " A. M.
Arrive at Weldon, at 4 " P. M.

Wait there until 1 o'clock, A. M. for the Petersburg train.

Leave Weldon at 1 o'clock, A. M.
Arrive at Wilmington at 1 o'clock, P. M.
Leave Wilmington immediately and arrive in Charleston next morning to breakfast.

It will be seen by the above schedule that in order to render the connexion certain, it is only necessary for the Cars of the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road to arrive at Weldon prior to 1 o'clock, A. M. whereas they uniformly arrive before dark—if therefore a detention should take place at any point between Baltimore and Weldon, not occupying more than NINE HOURS, the traveller can by no possibility lay over at any point north of Wilmington. RETURNING, one of the above boats will leave Norfolk every night at 10 o'clock, and cross over to Portsmouth where she will wait the arrival of the Cars from Weldon, and depart for Baltimore as soon as the passengers and baggage are on board, arriving here in about 14 hours after departure from Portsmouth. The passengers having enjoyed all the comforts of a good nights rest, and partaken of as good fare as could be provided in the very best Hotel in the Country.

Travellers bound to Richmond or Petersburg by leaving Baltimore on Monday, Wednesday or Friday, sleep on board the bay boat, are transferred to the James River boat next morning, and arrive at their place of destination the same day by 3 or 4 o'clock, P. M.

DUST TO DUST.

Dust to dust! the tolling bell
Peals the mournful "Fare thee well!"
Dust to dust! the solemn drum
Warns again of time to come.
Dust to dust! the good and brave,
Great and lowly, lord and slave,
Wrinkled age with silver hair,
Youth and strength and beauty rare,
Both the venal and the just,
Own the doom of Dust to Dust!

Pass the solemn pageant by,
Who shall be the next to die?
Who shall read his neighbor's face,
And the mystic dooming trace?
He of firmest heart and limb,
Death may soonest call for him,
While the victim lingering ill,
Breathes the air of Heaven still,
While there's life there's hope and trust,
Till the hour of Dust to Dust!

Honored ashes, noble clay,
Mingle with the dust to day.
Drooping round the sable urn,
See a mighty nation mourn.
Glorious in memory's breath,
Now the soldier sleeps in death.
In the earth he loved to plough,
Lowly dwells the farmer now.
Lifted by the nation's trust,
Falls the Ruler, Dust to Dust!

Dust to dust! The story's told,
O'er the dust the stone is roll'd,
And where darts the spirit then,
That must fill the thoughts of men.
Dust to dust! what power may save,
Mortal dust from earthly grave?
Dust to dust! the chant of doom,
While we hasten to the tomb.
Man is feeble, God is just,
Requiescat! Dust to Dust!

THE UNFINISHED MONUMENT.

An American Tale of the Old Dominion.

BY MRS. M. ST. LEON LOUD.

About four years ago, it was my fortune to spend a summer at one of the gold mines which abound in Stafford county, Virginia, and which, however dazzling its promises of wealth, proved anything but an Eldorado in possession. Like some clever people, whose minds are rich in the sterling ore of genius, the spot presented an exceedingly unprepossessing exterior. Imagine a landscape of broken ridges and ravines, composed of reddish sand and rocks, almost as destitute of verdure as the sand hills of Sabarre, interspersed with yawning pits from sixty to two hundred feet in depth, with the stagnant water standing deep and black at the bottom, and you will have some idea of the far-famed Rappahannock Gold Mines. The principal shaft, or opening, and the only one in operation, is situated in one of the deepest of the little valleys, where a large building was erected, and a mighty engine puffed and panted like a thing of life, in the laborious employment of draining the mines and stamping the solid rock to powder, for a few shining particles. My ears were soon wearied with its unceasing din, and the monotonous "Yo! heave ho!" of the negroes at the windlass; and my eyes with gazing on the vast heaps of rocks raised from the depths of the earth, and piled on every side, their dark surfaces relieved by a plentiful sprinkling of mica, which would have seemed to inexperienced eyes the real Simon Pure, but proving too truly that "all's not gold that glitters." At first I endeavored to relieve the ennui of my existence by calling into active operation all my sympathies in behalf of the poor slaves, thirty of whom were employed at the mine. I rallied to my aid a host of northern feelings and prejudices, and by dwelling on the degraded and forlorn condition of these human beings, contrived to make myself superlatively and delightfully miserable. But when I found that after all the toils and hardships of the day their nights were invariably more than half spent in singing, dancing, and the wildest merriment, produced by excess of animal spirits, and the remaining half stretched upon the bare floor and benches of their cabin, enjoying a rest more peaceful and profound than many whose heads repose on pillows of down, I concluded not to permit my fine feelings to "run to waste" on those who neither needed nor appreciated them. Deprived of this source of interest, I commenced a series of pedestrian excursions, which led me into many a sylvan retreat, where rare and beautiful wild flowers bloomed thick and fresh; into forests of tall trees, whose stately stems were wreathed with the magnificent trumpet creeper, its large crimson blossoms gleaming from among the dark green leaves like tropic birds at rest; and into many a tangled brake, where the luscious blackberry afforded a feast for the gathering which an epicure might have coveted. But at last every woodland path was explored; I had crossed the romantic Rappahannock, rowed by a grey headed negro, till it ceased to amuse me. I therefore accompanied my husband on more distant tours.

On one of these occasions, passing through Falmouth, a small dirty village on the Rappahannock, celebrated only for its herring fisheries, and crossing the river on a high wooden bridge that seemed "tottering to its fall," we ascended the opposite bank and pursued our way through a beautiful and picturesque country, clothed with the luxuriant vegetation of June. About a mile from Fredericksburg, our attention was arrested by a pedestal of white marble, evidently intended to support a column, which stood in a field at a short distance from the road. It had apparently remained in its present unfinished state for a length of time, as the broken fragments and blocks which strewed the ground were discolored by the weather, and no recent marks betrayed the chisel of the workman. No tree or shrub intercepted the rays of the sun which beat upon it fiercely enough to have warmed the very recesses of the grave; no kind hand had planted the sacred spot with flowers, the touching memorials of affection from the living to the dead; all seemed lonely and deserted.

"Is it possible," thought I, "that the memory of the departed faded away before the completion of the perishing monument which ostentation would have reared?" Alas! I little dreamed that the dust below had rested forgotten, unhonoured, till the generation who knew her had passed away from the earth. A train of melancholy reflections were awakened, and in silence we reached Fredericksburg.

The hotel afforded but few attractions either in situations or accommodations, and while dinner was preparing, I formed a social acquaintance with a lively, intelligent French lady, whose husband was pursuing scientific researches in the neighbourhood. I soon found that she was au fait to all the little histories of the place, and the subject of the unfinished monument being uppermost in my mind, it occurred that she could perhaps satisfy my curiosity. It was with intense interest, therefore, that I listened to the following story, given with a sprightliness and humour to which my pen must fail to do justice.

Constantia Benton was the only child of a gentleman of great wealth, who resided in a splendid mansion a little below Falmouth. An heiress, and beautiful, she was flattered and indulged from her birth; no wish was ever thwarted, no gratification withheld, while the troop of servants, whose sole business it was to wait upon her, were taught to yield implicit obedience to her slightest commands. It is no wonder that she grew up vain, selfish, and so effeminate that her mother once gravely assured me, Constantia had caught a severe cold by imprudently sleeping without her gloves! At the age of sixteen she was moreover a finished coquette, and the most capricious of human beings. The fame of her wealth and beauty drew around her a train of admirers, over whom she tyrannized most unmercifully, and could she have revived the days of chivalry, no one would have been permitted to appear in her presence who had not proved himself her champion by breaking a lance in her cause. As it was, she exerted her power by requiring the most ridiculous and whimsical services of her devoted knights, who, completely dazzled by her surpassing fascinations, to say nothing of more substantial considerations, obeyed her behests, though frequently at the expense of their own dignity. Constantia Benton was in truth a creature of rare loveliness and grace. Her figure was slight, but of the most exquisite proportions; her dark hazel eyes flashed with queenly lustre from beneath the pencilled arches of a brow that would have graced a coronet; and there was a spell in the tones of her voice like the rich musical ringing of fine gold, that charmed every ear. Yet what availed it all? Constantia Benton had no heart—at least it lay in an undiscovered region, so entrusted with the polar ice of vanity and self love, that the humble devotion of the noblest and best among the highest sons of the Old Dominion had failed to warm it into life. A wandering gale from the South may at last soften the iceberg which has for ages resisted the full rays of the sun, and the haughty coldness of the spoiled beauty yielded possibly to the influence of a love of which she was altogether unworthy.

A gay party was strolling among the winding paths of the pleasure ground wich extended from the mansion of Mr. Benton to the river's brink, their forms now hidden by the thick clusters of flowering shrubs, now emerging into the open plats, where their feet roved among flowers of every form and hue, while bursts of merry laughter echoed far and wide. Gayest of the gay was Constantia Benton, as well as loveliest of the group surrounding her, although many there might have vied with queens and princesses in their regal beauty. Never before had her voice sounded so thrilling in its cadences, or her eyes seemed so deeply brilliant, or her step so light and graceful, for she felt that the eyes of the elegant and gifted Charles Lorelle were bent upon her in unequivocal admiration, and she knew that he waited but an opportunity to utter the feelings that quivered on his lips. As they drew near the river they were accidentally separated from their company. A tall althea concealed them from observation; a few hurried, impassioned words, such as fall from man's lips but once, and the love, the hopes, the wishes of Charles Lorelle were laid open before her.

"Constantia," he concluded, "do not trifle with me. Will you grant my request?"

For a moment she was softened, for she really loved him; she knew at least that he had not sought her hand for mercenary motives, and believed that he alone of all who had bowed at her shrine could make her happy. She hesitated, and her evil genius triumphed. Vanity prompted her to make one last glorious display of the power of her charms, before she yielded the empire forever. With a light laugh, she stepped out into full view of the party, and replied, "When you restore my ring!"—And taking a diamond of value from her finger, threw it out into the deepest part of the stream.

A small skiff was fastened to the bank—without a moment's hesitation, Charles Lorelle sprang into it and pushed out into the rapid current, rowing vigorously, till he saw the diamond glittering like a star, among the pebbles many feet below the surface. Dropping his oar, he plunged into the water, and the skiff drifted swiftly away. The whole had been so sudden that the party on the bank stood paralyzed with astonishment; but when they saw the noble young man, who was a general favorite, struggling fearfully with the powerful stream, which threatened to carry him beyond the reach of assistance, all was confusion and terror. The young ladies screamed, "Save him! save him!" while the gentleman ran wildly up and down the bank, in search of succour.

One alone stood as if rooted to the spot. With a face blanched to the hue of marble, Constantia Benton uttered no cry; every faculty seemed to have deserted her, and not till Charles Lorelle, bewildered and nearly exhausted, had gained the bank, did she betray a consciousness of what was passing by clasping her hands closely over her face.

Putting aside the agitated group that pressed round him, he advanced to Constantia, and holding out the ring, said in a low, but strangely altered voice, "I restore the bauble for which you recklessly risked the life I would most gladly have devoted to your happiness—but I claim not the reward. Farewell, Constantia!"

He left the spot, and Constantia Benton was conveyed to the house insensible.

After many weeks of suffering and delirium, she rose from her bed with a heart and disposition unchanged by the severe chastisement she had received, and looking upon the past only as an unmerited disappointment and mortification, determined thenceforth to play the coquette for revenge. She emerged from her temporary seclusion more touchingly beautiful than ever, and was soon again surrounded by heartless flatterers. But the charm was gone which drew round her the truly noble and refined. She possessed too much penetration to be deceived in the motives which actuated the class of admirers who now sued for her favor; she knew they were fortune hunters, and despising their pretensions, would yet listen to their flatteries with an air of pleased attention, calculated to lead the unsuspicious dupe to utter all manner of extravagances, and then turn upon her with the scorn of her proud nature flashing from her eyes, and send him abashed and quailing from her presence.

About this time a star of more than ordinary attraction, made its appearance in the shape of Mr. Edward Harley. He was, of course, soon introduced to the heiress and reigning beauty of Stafford county; and if the wisest head has been turned by the power of beauty, it is not surprizing that the head of Mr. Edward Harley, which was none of the wisest, should be thrown into a complete whirl by the bewitching smiles of the fair Constantia. His fine person, prepossessing manners, and the reputation of being the most flourishing and enterprizing merchant on 'Change in the great commercial city, rendered him a "shining mark" for the display of Constantia Beaton's ruling passion. Although he had not "told his love," his attentions were so pointed and constant, that others stood aloof, and her dear five hundred friends, with whom her marriage was a "consummation devoutly to be wished," predicted that this would certainly be a match.

"Not without a trial," thought the person most interested; "and I will enjoin him a task that shall equal those imposed by the fair dames of old on their devoted knights."

A few days afterwards she was riding with Mr. Harley, and with a tact peculiarly her own, managed that his susceptible feelings should arrive at a crisis just as they were passing that lonely grave which attracted your attention. The result was, that as a proof of the undying love which he professed, Edward Harley was to immortalize his mistress, by erecting a handsome marble monument over the neglected and almost forgotten resting place of——

"Of whom, I exclaimed eagerly, "surely it is but a common grave."

"But not filled with common dust," returned the amiable narrator. "Is it possible that you know not the illustrious occupant of that tomb? But pardon me if I do not inform you until I have finished my story; it would spoil the denouement."

Orders were despatched for the necessary materials, and the work commenced. Immense blocks of marble were transported to the spot at a great expense; but this was of minor importance as Mr. Harley wisely considered that the amount would never be missed from the coffers of his bride elect. That spot covered with the short brown moss of nearly a century, upon which the sun had shone in quiet splendor, till the memory of the dead had well nigh passed into oblivion, was trodden by rude feet, and its silence broken by the sharp chipping of the workman's chisel. Mr. Harley seemed aware of the importance of expedition, and in a very short time the monument had reached its present state. Unluckily he was summoned away, and several vexatious delays occurring in his business, two months passed before he was at liberty to return.

At length all was arranged, and he was intending to set out in a few days, when his eyes fell on a newspaper paragraph which blasted all his hopes and left him deep in the Slough of Despond, burthened with a debt which it would be quite inconvenient to pay out of his own purse.

"Married, at F——, Ferdinand Featherwell, Esq. of Wisconsin Territory, to Miss Constantia Benton, of the former place. The happy couple immediately set out for the residence of the bridegroom in the 'Far West.'"

Mr. Edward Harley threw down the paper in a fit of disgust, and wrote to his agent to stop the proceedings.

If any thing could have mitigated the bitterness of heart with which the new bride departed from the scene of former triumphs, or consoled her for the loss of future conquests, it was the feeling of gratified vanity with which her last look rested on the Unfinished Monument.

As it now is, it has remained for years, the monument of man's folly, and a Nation's shame."

"And now pray tell me," said I, "who sleeps below."

"Can you believe"—and her voice took a tone of solemnity that chilled me—"can you believe that there repose the ashes of the Mother of Washington."

"It cannot be," I exclaimed with that agony of insulted feeling which every American must experience when he feels that a ray of his country's glory is stricken from her starry banner. "Does she not slumber with her honored descendents amid the hallowed shades of Mount Vernon? Does the Mother of the Mighty—she who instilled into the youthful bosom of our Washington those high and holy principles which rendered him the God-like—does she occupy a nameless corner of the soil won by the blood of her son?"

"It is even so," returned my friend. "Nor do I wonder at your enthusiasm. I own that I blush for my adopted country, when I behold the sums squandered on the worthless seekers of self aggrandisement; and see lofty columns rising to the clouds in memory of some hero of a day, or event not worth remembering, while she who gave birth to the Father of his Country, owes her only memorial to the caprice of a coquette."

Remember, indulgent reader, that I do not avouch the foregoing tale to be "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth." I do but "tell the tale as 'twas told to me;" but it is no fiction that the Mother of Washington lies alone in a field near Fredericksburg, and that, until within a few years, "no stone or pillar," marked the place of her repose.

I have often passed the spot, but never without a sigh, and a blush of shame, that the grave of one more illustrious than the matrons of Rome, should be disgraced by an Unfinished Monument.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

MONDAY MORNING, MAY 24, 1841.

CHANGE OF HOUR. We refer the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company, to be found in another column.

PUBLIC LANDS AND TARIFF. Among the resolutions passed at a meeting of the citizens of Abbeville District, S. C. is the following:

Resolved, That we look upon the projected measure of distributing the proceeds of the public lands among the States as one of the most comprehensive schemes of bribery and corruption ever devised, and as tending at the same time to produce the twofold calamity of degrading the sovereign States of the Union into servile pensioners, dependent on the bounty of the Federal Government, and of creating the necessity for a permanent increase of the duties on imports, thus laying the foundation of a new tariff, burdensome to the whole Union and unjust and oppressive to the planting and exporting States.

A strange delusion seems to exist with many of the citizens of South Carolina, and they cannot hear the word tariff mentioned without becoming excited. They appear to think that the federal government was organized and should be conducted for the exclusive benefit of their state—and so far they have certainly managed to exercise a great influence in national affairs. The compromise act was passed to soothe them into good behaviour, and their success in that instance has emboldened them to take a higher stand. They seem resolved that no measure shall be adopted by the general government, which has not previously received their sanction—and the misfortune is, that their opinions of public policy vascillate as their great leader may dictate. They denounce the distribution of the land fund among the states on the ground that it would be "bribery and corruption," and yet they are willing to bribe and corrupt the people of the new states by a transfer to them of the public domain within their limits, at a nominal price. The idea is perfectly ridiculous that the distribution bill would degrade the states into the condition of "servile pensioners." The states do not come to the general government in the posture of petitioners for favor; but, on the contrary, to demand their rights. They maintain that the public lands are common property, which the government has no right to give away, and they ask that each state may receive its distributive share of the proceeds of their sale. There is no humiliation, no degradation in this position. It is the demand of the rightful owner that the trustee shall make a proper application of the trust funds. But then, the jealous and sensitive citizens of Abbeville District think that they can perceive injury to their grasping avarice in the further measure which they suppose will follow the passage of the land bill. They apprehend that an alteration in the tariff of duties will take place. We do not consider the latter at all dependent upon the former measure. It will be adopted let the fate of the distribution bill be what it may. The financial condition of the country will imperatively require that duties on particular articles be laid, and augmented on others; and the denunciations of the Abbeville meeting or of SouthCarolina will be ineffectual to prevent this change of the tariff. These "indignation meetings" may afford the opportunity to blow off steam, but they cannot control the operations of government.

There is no doubt that three great measures will be brought before Congress at the approaching extra session, to all of which South Carolina will be in opposition, viz: the distribution bill; the levying a duty upon foreign articles of luxury; and the establishment of a national bank, or other fiscal agent. We believe that a large majority of the people of the United States are earnest in their approbation of the two first, and it may be of the last. The distribution bill will be strenuously urged by a majority of the old states, and we have reason to think will be adopted by a large majority of Congress; and so of the Tariff question. To a National Bank there may be greater opposition—and, as it is a matter which will require mature consideration, in order to be as guarded as possible in its details, it is possible that it will be laid over to the regular session.

Some of the Abbeville District resolutions censure Senator Preston in severe terms, to which he has made a reply showing the inconsistency of condemning him now for doing that which they formerly approved.

INDIAN MURDERS. The Milwaukie Sentinel of the 27th ult. states that Capt. Trenor, with a company of the first dragoons, arrived at Fort Leavenworth on the 14th ult. from the Kanzas county. Nearly all the Pawnee women and children had been massacred by the Kanzas, while the warriors were out on a hunt. Sixty were butchered and ten taken captive. The prisoners were, however, returned, through the interference of Capt. Trenor.

THE LATE POSTMASTER. The Republican of Saturday contains a letter from sundry officers attached to the Post Office, addressed to Joshua Vansant, Esq. late postmaster of this city, in which they speak in terms of deserved commendation of his official and private department—to which letter Mr. Vansant made a neat and appropriate reply. It is generally conceded, that Mr. Vansant was a most efficient, attentive and accommodating public officer.

☞We learn that the reports of the loss of the steamer Agnes, near St. Louis was false.

HORRORS OF INTEMPERANCE. Yesterday about noon, a man dressed in black, entered the bar-room of the Adelphi house, and asked the bar-keeper to give him some liquor. His looks at the time were wild and haggard, and the bar-keeper for a moment doubted the propriety of indulging him, when he seized the decanter and filled a tumbler to the brim with brandy. He then seated himself by a table and with a gulp swallowed the "fire-water." He had no sooner drank the last drop than he uttered a wild yell, and springing two or three feet from the floor fell in a violent fit, at the same time cutting his head severely. He continued in violent spasms for some time, when Doctor Hintze arrived and by bleeding restored him. Every attention was extended to him by the family.

This man was once a highly respectable and wealthy citizen—he is related to a very worthy family of this city, but has ben cast-off by all as as being an incorrigible inebriate. What a waring to young men who think themselves secure in following up the homoepathic system of drinking.

FIRE. The fire on Saturday night about half past 11 o'clock, proceeded from the burning of the extensive stabling, attached to the barn, on the property of the late George Winchester, near the outer depot of the Susquehanna Rail Road.

After the fire was over, and the engines were returning home, a dispute took place between several persons, members of different fire companies. Pistols were fired and stones were thrown. The High Constable, his deputies and all the police were on the ground, and succeeded in arresting a young man, by the name of Wright, who, after giving security for his appearance at the Saturday Court, was discharged. While he was in the custody of the officers, an attempt was made by a number of the turbulent party to rescue him. This resistance to officers, while in the discharge of their duty is unpardonable, and should bring punishment on the aggressors.

FLORIDA INDIANS. We find it stated in the N. Orleans Bulletin, that about 200 Florida Indians, including Wild Cat and his followers, have arrived there on their way to Arkansas. From this movement we are induced to hope that the Florida war is about to be brought to a termination. It has been the most expensive conflict, for the effect produced, that ever this country was engaged in; and has had a most extraordinary duration when the relative strength of the contending parties is taken into consideration. This has been owing in part to the nature of the country and climate, and partly to mismanagement. We have heard of the greatest abuses having been practised by persons employed on this service; and there can be no doubt that speculators have accumulated large fortunes at the expense of the public.

ENGLISH ACCURACY. The London Morning Chronicle, one of the leading British journals, and an organ of the government, on the 29th of April, announced the arrival of the British Queen, with papers from New York, and says—"It will be seen that the President, General Harrison, died at Boston, on the 4th." It also gives a letter from its correspondent, dated at Philadelphia, which says:—"Since I last addressed you, an event has occurred in this country, which may be truly termed a national calamity. General Harrison, President of the United States, died at his national residence in Boston, early on the morning of Sunday, the 4th inst. in the 69th year of his age."

ANOTHER GLEAM OF HOPE. The following we find in the Boston Transcript of the 21st inst: "We learn from the Salem Gazette of this morning, that the schr. John George, Capt. Roundy, of Salem, arrived at Marblehead on Wednesday from Grand Bank—returned on account of loss of cables and anchors, to avoid coming in contact with ice islands. Capt. R. reports that a schooner spoken on the Banks (no date given) had SEEN A BOAT APPARENTLY FULL OF PERSONS, but failed in all attempts to get to her on account of a fog arising. The John George has only about 600 fish. The captain of the schooner who saw the boat mentioned above, judged there were 12 or 14 persons in her."

RAIL ROAD ORDERS. There having existed some misunderstanding in relation to the renewal of these orders when a portion had been torn off, the President of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company, in reply to a letter addressed to him on the subject, states, that, "in all cases of the presentation of a moiety and less than two-thirds of a mutilated order, it is the practice to give a new order of fifty cents in exchange, which sum is marked with red ink on the defaced part; and when two-thirds or more of an order is presented, a new order of like denomination with the old is uniformly given."

THE NEW YORK EVENING SIGNAL. On Saturday last this spirited, chaste, highly literary and very popular paper was to be united with the New York Tribune, a paper which has already attained a high reputation. We are sorry that the Signal has been discontinued, but shall hope to see it flourish with still greater prosperity in its united character. The New World, which was made up principally from the matter of the Signal is to be enlarged. It will contain the combined force and talent of both papers.

FARMERS' PROSPECTS. The Easton Gazette states: that the favorable weather which has prevailed for the last ten days has enabled our farmers to make considerable progress in their work. We have now clear warm days; and nature no longer shackled by frosts and chilling rains, is fast arraying herself in the rich garniture of spring. The gloom of the husbandman has given place to hope, and his eye kindles with delight as he surveys the rich prospect of an abundant return for his labors.

☞WONDERFUL INSTANCE. The following taken from the Easton Gazette of Saturday last is certainly astonishing. We heard the following particulars, a few days since, of an almost miraculous transition from disease and infirmity to health and vigor, in the person of Mr. Isaac Newman, of Somerset County, Md. Mr. N. for several years had been confined to his house by severe affliction which disabled him from walking, and from the free use of his arms and neck. On Saturday night last he was expected to die, but in a few hours became better; and, on Monday evening, during the prevalence of a thunder storm, he fell asleep, and to his utter amazement, found, when he awoke, that he had the entire use of all his limbs.—He arose from his bed, dressed himself and walked about the house. Mr. N. remembers to have experienced a peculiar sensation in his whole system during his sleep, and from all the circumstances no other conclusion can be arrived at, but that the agent of this wonderful cure was electricity. It at least furnishes a subject for much scientific speculation.

FRIGHTFUL COLLISION AT SEA. The packet ship Susquehanna, Capt. J. W. Miercken, from Liverpool, arrived at Philadelphia, on Friday in a disabled condition. It appears, says the Inquirer, that on the 8th inst. during a strong gale from the N. W., and while she was going at the rate of eight knots an hour, under reefed topsail, a vessel was observed immediately on the larboard bow. The helm was brought up in order to avoid a crash, which took place under circumstances truly alarming. The stranger vessel, after the first shock, slewed round, passed immediately by the side of the Susquehanna and Captain Miercken states that he was unable to discover any person on board. He cannot say whether she went down or not. One of the hands says that he saw her masts fall. The Susquehanna was considerably injured. Capt. M. reports having seen several islands of ice, and having passed between two at the distance of about three hundred yards.

CHARLES F. MITCHELL. This man, says the N. Y. Tattler, has retained Messrs. David Graham and J. B. La Forge, as counsel. The former gentleman has commenced his usual course of tactics with a motion to quash the indictment against the prisoner, on the ground that the Court of Sessions before which it was found was not legally constituted, for that Aldermen then on the bench had no right to sit as judges. He was replied to by the District Attorney, who required the usual notice as to time of such motions, and in this was sustained by the Court, who requested Mr. Graham to conform to the rule. The motion was then set down for argument at a day of this week. The prisoner was then recommitted to prison.

If Mr. Graham should get this man off, court and counsel should be indicted as accessary to the felony, after the fact. Crime enjoys too much immunity.

☞We are indebted, says the N. O. Bulletin, to the politeness of Capt. Alcina, of the fast sailing schooner Venture, in 60 hours from Sisal, for Campeachy papers of the 2d inst., and Merida of the 24th ult. The Venture left Campeachy on the 2d inst., touched at Sisal, and sailed thence on the 6th. The American schooner Wm. S. Barr, whose loss was noticed in the Havana papers, was cast away on the Alacrans, on the 7th day out from Havana for Tobasco, with a valuable cargo. The day after she struck the captain and crew abandoned her, and reached Sisal in safety, reporting the schooner full of water when they left her. The vessel and cargo were insured in Havana. The brig Wisconsin, Captain Hopkins, was loading in Sisal for New York. Every thing was quiet in the country, and the people apparently well satisfied with the present government.

TIDE WATER CANAL. We learn from the Patriot that the steamer Gov. Wolcott left our harbor on Saturday morning having in tow the canal boats Philadelphia and Fame, destined for the interior of Pennsylvania. Both boats were ladened with full and valuable cargoes of merchandise, consisting of Groceries, Dry Goods, Drugs, Hardware, Domestics, Fish, Salt, Queensware, Hats, Boots and Shoes, Rope, Paper, Cedar ware, Brushes, manufactured Tobacco, Iron and Steel, Looking Glasses, Saddlery, Oils, Domestic Liquors, Cheese, and a Carriage.

ACCIDENT TO VOLUNTEERS. On Friday afternoon, says the Ledger, the company of Roxborough volunteers, who were on a visit to Philadelphia, returned home in an omnibus; when the vehicle reached Robin Hood hill, it was capsized, caused, as we are informed, by the unmanageable conduct of the horses. Several of the volunteers had their shoulders dislocated, and others sustained very severe bruises.

A HUGE PIECE OF STEAMBOAT MACHINERY. The Wave, at the foot of Pine street, says the N. Y. Sun, yesterday had on board one of the shafts for the United States war steamer now building at the Navy Yard. It was of polished wrought iron, 25 feet in length, and 20 inches in diameter at the largest place, and weighs 12 tons. It is from the Cold Spring works.

POLICE. May 22. Celestia Morgan, colored, was brought in charged with stealing a pair of shoes from Daniel Brueckner. Committed by Justice Barnard. Mary Gaut, colored, was committed as a witness to appear in the above case. Curtis Matthews was sent to the Almshouse.

LOSSES BY SEA. The Philadelphia Gazette states that the Marine Insurance Offices of that city have lost since the 1st of April last, near $100,000, of which near $50,000 was by the brig Swan, foundered at sea on her passage to Gibraltar, and upwards of $40,000 by the brig Corinthian, lost on the Bahama banks on her way to New Orleans.

BALTIMORE—PENNSYLVANIA AND THE WEST.

A numerous and respectable assemblage of citizens was present at the Assembly Rooms, on Thursday evening, to hear the address of WILLIAM BOSE, Esq. on the subject of "the resources of Pennsylvania and the West, and the relations of Trade which Baltimore now occupies in reference to them." The meeting was called to order by O. C. TIFFANY, on whose motion THOMAS WILSON, Esq. was appointed Chairman, and JAS. BARROLL, Secretary.

The address of Mr. BOSE occupied the attention of the meeting for nearly two hours—and at its conclusion, on motion of WM. SCHLEY, Esq. seconded by GEO. BROWN, Esq. the following resolution was unanimously adopted.

Resolved, That the thanks of this meeting be tendered to our enlightened fellow citizen, WM. BOSE, Esq. for the able and interesting exposition with which he has favored us, of the resources of Pennsylvania and the West, in connection with the trade of this city;—as also our thanks for the very courteous manner in which he responded to the call of a portion of his fellow citizens, (who were prevented from attending the former meeting,) for a repetition of his address on this important subject.

THOMAS WILSON, Chairman.
JAS. W. BARROLL, Secretary.

CASE OF MCLEOD. The Supreme Court of N. York, on Thursday, made the following order in regard to this case.

The People vs. Alexander McLeod. The defendant, who stands charged by indictment with the crime of murder, having been brought into Court by the Sheriff of the county of Niagara, by virtue of a writ of habeas corpus, and a motion having been made for his discharge, and it being improbable that the Court will be able to render its judgment in the premises, at the present term, it is therefore ordered that the defendant be committed to the custody of the Sheriff of the City and County of New York, until the further order of the Court. When the transfer has been made the Sheriff of Niagara, will be no longer chargeable with the custody of the defendant.

Subsequent intelligence states that the Sheriff of New York refuses to receive the prisonor, and that he still remains in the custody of the Sheriff of Niagara county.

ANOTHER INDIAN MURDER. A correspondent of the Savannah Georgian, dated Florida, May 15th, writes as follows:

"Dear Sir: On the 26th ult. about twenty-six miles from Tampa Bay, the mail rider and horse were killed. A friendly Indian gave the news at Tampa soon after the deed was done. The Commanding General ordered out a command of Dragoons, under Capt. B. Beall, 2d Dragoons, who as soon as possible, proceeded to the place of the murder, buried the express rider, and pursued on the track of the murderers. After several hours pursuit, he came upon a camp regularly fixed and comfortably situated, occupied by one Indian, who was leisurely opening the mail and burning the letters. Capt. Beall shot him in his occupation, but saved but one entire letter of the mail. This Indian proved to be Maxy Hajo, of famous memory in these parts. Capt. Beall has been complimented in orders for his long and arduous pursuit after this savage murderer, and for bringing him to condign punishment. Yours, truly."

ANOTHER HONORABLE FORGER. The Honorable Asa Child, of Norwich, lately President of the Norwich and Worcester Railroad Company, has absconded with about $40,000, obtained from that institution by peculation and forgery. He was last seen in Philadelphia en route it was supposed for Texas.

HORRIBLE. The following accident is given in the New Haven Palladium of Wednesday:

Mr. Nathan was at work on the roof of a house in Broad street, and while in the act of passing the chimney, on the roof, the rope by which he supported himself parted, and he fell backwards, sliding down the roof, over the eaves, and on to the pavement, head foremost, breaking his neck, cracking his skull, and mashing his hands and wrists in such a manner as to leave the arteries and cords dangling, the flesh and bones being scattered in all directions.

CLOSE VOTING. In the first Congressional district, Mr. Jones has been elected by a majority of four Votes, as will be seen by the following returns of the polls.

	Jones.	Cottman.
Dorchester	398	727
Worchester	665	482
Somerset	844	694
	1907	1903

Mr. R. H. Winder, (also adm.) was a candidate until within a few days of the election, when he withdrew.

A FAILURE. Mr. Hamlet, the celebrated jeweller, of Princess street, Leicester square, London, who at one time had amassed a large fortune, has become a bankrupt. His debts are said to exceed £150,000; it is thought sufficient property will be forthcoming to discharge the whole.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church is in session at Philadelphia. The Rev. Robert J. Breckenridge, D. D. of Baltimore, was elected Moderator, and the Rev. Jas. C. Barnes, of Ohio, temporary Clerk.

ANOTHER MAIL ROBBERY. The eastern Mail, from Albany for Hartford, was stolen from the stage, on Monday night, soon after it left Greenbush ferry. It was found next Morning in a barn near the village, cut open and robbed of its contents.

WHOLESALE PARDONS. The King of France pardoned 150 convicts and 520 soldiers under various sentences of courts martial, on occasion of the christening of the Count of Paris. A number of promotions were made in the army and navy. The frigate Erigone had sailed from Brest to the India Seas.

☞See HEISLER & CO'S advertisement in to-day's Clipper. They have been supplying more splendid prizes to their patrons. TO-DAY, May 24th, they say there is a splendid Lottery drawn in Baltimore, with the capital of $30,000, and 29 prizes of $1000, and the risk on a combination package, containing all the numbers, and may draw over $30,000, they will sell for $18 50. Tickets at $5, shares in proportion. For further particulars see HEISLER & CO. No. 1 N. Calvert treet. m24-1t*

Great Sensation among the Ladies.

☞A great sensation was produced among the Ladies of this city on Saturday last, by the opening of "THE PHILADELPHIA SHOE STORE," No. 42½ Baltimore st. near Gay. The crowds of ladies who visited the Store during the day were all supplied with the most beautiful SHOES of every description ever offered for sale in this market. m24-1t*

NEW RIFLE CORPS.

☞Those gentlemen who have associated themselves for the purpose of forming a new Rifle corps, to be uniformed with domestic cloth, are requested to meet at 8 o'clock, on TUESDAY EVENING, at the room on the first floor of the Assembly Building, entrance on Fayette street.

☞A general invitation is given to young men who are desirous of joining a rifle company. m24 2t

O. I. O. F. The members of Jefferson Lodge, No. 9, will assemble at the Hall in Gay street, THIS (Monday) AFTERNOON, 24th inst. at 3 o'clock, to attend the funeral of Brother CHARLES F. TENSFIELD, who departed this life on Sabbath morning, 23d inst at 4 o'clock, in the 40th year of his age. The members of sister lodges are invited to attend.

The friends of the deceased are invited to attend at his late residence in Pleasant street, west of Calvert, without further notice. The funeral will leave at 4 o'clock. m24 1t

GOOD LUCK FOR THE LADIES.

☞A lady stepped in at our office on Saturday and purchased from us two half tickets in the Virginia Lottery, at the same time stating that she had often tried the lotteries, but without any success, that she had now come to give HEISLER & CO a trial, which she did by purchasing two half tickets. We now congratulate the lady on her good success, and have the cash ready on the presentation of the ticket, which is entitled to the half of $1500, and worth, clear of all discount, $657.50. This is another additional proof that it only needs a trial with Heisler & Co. to secure a fortune, or at least a good prize. UNITED STATES MAIL LINE,

DAILY TO THE SOUTH, Sunday's excepted.
Via the Chesapeake Bay and Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road,

THE BALTIMORE STEAM-PACKET CO. announce to the public that in accordance with the New Mail Arrangement, the Boats composing their line, viz: ALABAMA, Captain Sutton; GEORGIA, Captain Coffey; and JEWESS, Captain Holmes, will, on and after WEDNESDAY, the 26th of May, cave the lower end of Spear's wharf daily, (Sunday's excepted,) at nine o'clock, A. M. for Norfolk and Portsmouth, Va.

Passengers for Charleston will find the cars of the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road Company, on the wharf, on their arrival at Portsmouth, ready to convey them to Weldon, N. C., where they will always arrive in time to take the cars for Wilmington, from which point to Charleston is by the steamboat, which leaves Wilmington immediately after the Passengers are delivered from the cars.

Passengers for Richmond, Petersburg, or intermediate points on James River, by leaving Baltimore on Monday, Wednesday, or Friday, will sleep on board the Bay Boat and be transferred to the James River Boat next morning.

The Steamboat Fox leaves the Black Water station on the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road, every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, on the arrival of the cars from Portsmouth, for Edenton and Plymouth, N. C., and returns every Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, delivering her passengers to the cars as they pass down from Weldon, enabling them to arrive in Baltimore next day, (Sundays excepted.)

RETURNING, one of the above Boats will leave Norfolk every night (Saturday being excepted) at 10 o'clock, and cross over to Portsmouth where she will wait the arrival of the Cars from Weldon, and depart for Baltimore as soon as the passengers and luggage are on board, arriving here in about 14 hours after departing from Portsmouth.

Should the Boat get an early start from Portsmouth, Passengers for Philadelphia and New York will have the opportunity of being placed on board the Philadelphia Steamboat in the Patapsco River, and will arrive in Philadelphia the same night by 11 o'clock, after having travelled 300 miles in 20 hours, without as much fatigue as would be incurred in walking from the Hotel to the wharf.

☞ No freight will be forwarded on the day it is left, unless it is alongside, prior to 8 o'clock, A. M.

JNO. C. MOALE, General Agent,
m24-d Baltimore Steam-Packet Company.

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT.

GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE.
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.

☞ Bear in mind, that Passengers who go by the Chesapeake Bay and Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road, have 43 miles of Rail Road traveling through the DISMAL SWAMP at midnight, over one of the worst Rail Roads in America, and then are often compelled to lay over 17 hours at Weldon, one of the most unhealthy places in the whole Southern country.

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 9 A. M., they proceed, without one moment's delay, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and often one day in advance of any other Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave	Philadelphia	12 P.M.	reach	Baltimore	8 A.M.
"	Baltimore	9 A.M.	"	Washington	11 A.M.
"	Washington	11½ A.M.	"	Fredk'sburg	6 P.M.
"	Fred'ksburg	6½ P.M.	"	Richmond	11 P.M.
"	Richmond	11½ P.M.	"	Petersburg	1 A.M.
"	Petersburg	1½ A.M.	"	Weldon	6½ A.M.
"	Weldon	7 A.M.	"	Charleston	on the next morning

☞ 54 hours in advance of any other Line.

Passengers by this Line not only reach Charleston ONE DAY SOONER than by the Bay boats but they avoid being compelled to remain all night at Weldon, on the Roanoke, one of the most unhealthy places in the whole southern country, where, by the Bay Line, they are often delayed seventeen hours.

Passengers for Richmond and Petersburg will find this Line far the most expeditious, arriving at Richmond to lodge, (as will be seen from the above Schedule,) on the evening of the day on which they leave Baltimore, being from 16 to 18 hours in advance of those taking the Bay Steam Boats.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

☞ Passengers for the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road pay through to Petersburg, Va. Fare lower than any other line. For further information and Through Tickets, apply at the office of

TWO CHARMING PERIODICALS. Jst No. of a New Volume of the Ladies' Companion. Opinions of the Press, viz: New World.

The Knickerbocker for this month is out punctually on the first, and it is full to overflowing with good things. That capital story, the Country Doctor—far superior to the majority of the continuations in the English Magazines—goes on more amusingly than before. The number is embellished with a curious and appropriate engraving of "a Dutch Correge in Beaver street, 1679."

The May number of the Ladies' Companion is embellished with a steel engraving that would do no discredit to Finden's Galleries. It is exceedingly beautiful, and is entitled "The Young Chief's First Ride." Such embellishments alone entitle this various and excellently edited magazine to the bountiful patronage with which it is favored. We notice certain typographical improvements in this number, which are additions of the good taste of the proprietor.

The literary merit of the Ladies' Companion seems to increase rather than diminish—and, with the editorial labors which are now bestowed upon it, it cannot fail to be pronounced highly creditable to the literature of the country.

TERMS—Knickerbocker, $5 per year, or $1.25 quarterly. Ladies' Companion, $3 per year, or 25 cts. each number. Single numbers for sale at

W. N. HARRISON'S Agency Office, No. 28 N. Gay street—and at JOHN MOORE'S Bookstore, m19 No. 74 Market-st. 1 door below Holliday.

WEBB'S PATENT BURNERS,
AND CAMPHINE OIL.

FOR SALE AT No. 109 E. BALTIMORE STREET, between South and Calvert streets, where Burners of every description can be obtained. Those who are sceptical as to its safety or economy, would, I trust be perfectly satisfied by examining the opinion of Professor LOCK, of Ohio, on "WEBB'S CAMPHINE," or by referring to the Journals of the Franklin and American Institutes, of Philadelphia and New York. All those desirous of obtaining a clean, brilliant, and economical light, will find it ready to their advantage by calling on the subscriber. The public may be assured of one fact, that we require no meters to ascertain the amount of Camphine consumed, as they register correctly and in plain English.

P. AUGUSTUS BAILEY, Agent
For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

DEAR SIR—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,
mh30-tf Fifth Ward Hotel.

BALTIMORE LOCK DISPENSARY,
No. 17 HARRISON ST.
"NO CURE NO PAY."

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, is its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors, by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

Persons residing at any distance, can have medicine sent to them, packed secure from observation.

It was out of pure motives of philanthropy, that this medicine was first made public; the price always to remain $1 per Bottle, to be within the reach of the most unfortunate.

☞ Letters addressed, (post paid) describing the case, mode of living, &c. will be promptly attended to. Direct No. 17 Harrison street.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS
AND VEGETABLE BITTERS.

THE perfectly safe, unerring and successful treatment of almost every species of disease by the use of MOFFAT'S LIFE MEDICINES, is no longer a matter of doubt, as a reference to the experience of many thousand patients will satisfactorily prove. During the present month alone, nearly one hundred cases have come to the knowledge of Mr Moffat, where the patient has, to all appearance, effected a permanent cure by the exclusive and judicious use of the Life Medicines—some eight or ten of these had been considered beyond all hope by their medical attendants.—Such happy results are a source of great pleasure to Mr. M. and inspire him with new confidence to recommend the use of his medicines to his fellow citizens.

The Life Medicines are a purely VEGETABLE preparation. They are mild and pleasant in their operation, and at the same time thorough—acting rapidly upon the secretions of the system—carrying off all acrimonious humours, and assimilating with and purifying the blood. For this reason, in aggravated cases of dyspepsia, the Life Medicines will give relief in a shorter space of time than any other prescription; in Fever-and-ague, Inflammation, Fevers of every description, Sick headache, heartburn dizziness in the head, pains in the chest, flatulency, impaired appetite, in every disease arising from an impurity of the blood, or a disordered state of the stomach, the use of these medicines has always proved to be beyond doubt greatly superior to any other mode of treatment.

All that Mr. Moffat asks of his patients is to be particular in taking them strictly according to the directions. It is not by a newspaper notice, or by any thing that he himself may say in their favor, that he hopes to gain credit, it is alone by the results of a fair trial. Is the reader an invalid, and does he wish to know whether the life medicines will suit his own case? If so let him call or send to Mr. Moffat's agent in this place, and procure a copy of the Medical Manual, designed as a domestic guide to health, published gratis onely. He will here find enumerated very many extraordinary cases of cure; and perhaps some exactly similar to his own. Moffat's medical office in New York, 175 Broadway, and for sale by the Agents. JAS. INVALUABLE

CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold; having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption. I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. Please publish this certificate, with my name in full, that others may know where to find the greatest blessing on earth.

THE LOST HEIR.

BY H. J. VERNON.

"Well flown, falcon—see how it mounts into the clouds—the heron has it—on, on knights and ladies fair, or we shall not be in at the death."

As the speaker ceased, the falcon which had been mounting in gyrations growing narrower and narrower as it ascended above its prey, suddenly stooped from its height, and shooting upon the heron, like a thunderbolt, bore the huge bird in its talons to the earth. The swoop and the descent passed with the rapidity of lightning, and in a moment after the gallant train were galloping to the assistance of the falcon.

Their way lay along the high bank of the river, from whose reedy margin the heron had been roused. The path was often broken and difficult to traverse; but so eager were all to reach the desired point that no one appeared to mind these inequalities. Suddenly the path made an almost precipitous descent, and while a portion of the train dashed recklessly down the steep, the more prudent checked their course, and sought a less dangerous road. By this means the party became divided, that which remained on the brow of the hill being by far the more numerous. The other group consisted, indeed, of but three individuals—a falconer, a page, and the neice of their master, the Earl of Torston. The palfrey of the latter was one of rare speed, and it was with difficulty that the two servitors could keep up with their beautiful and high-spirited mistress.

"On Ralph—ay, Lesline, you are falling behind," she said, glancing around at her companions as the distance between them rapidly increased.

"To the right—to the right," shouted the falconer, "the heron has fallen in the marsh."

The maiden suddenly drew her rein in, to follow this direction; but as she did so a half a score of men, attired as Scottish borderers, started from the thickets around, and seizing her bridle, and that of her attendants, vanished with them into the recesses of the forest. All efforts at resistance were precluded by the numbers of the assailants, and lest the two servitors should alarm their now rapidly approaching companions, they were hastily gagged. The whole party then set forward at a brisk pace toward the Scottish border.

The lady Eleanor was one of the most beautiful maidens of the north of England, and her expectations from her childless uncle were equalled only by her charms. Already had many a gallant knight broken a lance in defence of her beauty, or sought even more openly to win her for his bride. But to all alike she bore the same demeanor. Her heart was as yet untouched. Gay, sportive, full of wit, and not altogether unconscious of her exalted station, the heiress of three baronies continued to be the idol of her uncle, and the admiration of the English chivalry. It was while engaged in hawking with her train that she had been surprised, as we have related, by a band of Scottish marauders, with the intention of profiting by her ransom.

For some hours the party continued their flight with unabated speed, concealing themselves in the depths of the forests, until they had left the possessions of Lord Torston, and gained the range of barren and desolate hills, where there was little likelihood of meeting with interruption. The object of the capturers was obviously to bear off their prize across the border, so rapidly as to defeat all measures to be taken for her rescue.

The lady Eleanor was not, however, without considerable energy of character, arising in part no doubt from the stormy times in which she lived, for she had listened so often to the tales of her ancestor's deeds that she felt it would derogate from her, even though a maiden, not to show a portion of the same spirit in disaster. As they were hurried along, therefore, she busied herself in revolving a plan for her escape. But she could think of no feasible scheme, without the co-operation of her servitors, and they were kept so far in the rear, and guarded so carefully, that any communication with them she saw would be impossible. In this perplexity she breathed a silent prayer to the virgin, and was about resigning herself to her fate when the wail of a bugle broke upon her ear, and looking up she beheld three horsemen crossing the brow of a hill, a few yards distant. At the same moment the marauders recognised the new comers as enemies, and hurrying their captives in the rear, prepared for the fray.

"Ah! what have we here?" exclaimed the leader of the men-at-arms, a bold stalwart youth, just verging into manhood, turning to his companions, "by St. George, a pack of Scottish thieves—and there is a lady among them a prisoner I trow, for she is dressed like a maiden of rank. What say you, comrades? we are three good men against you dozen varlets, shall we attempt a rescue?"

"Ay—ay—Harry Bowbent, lead on," exclaimed the leader of his companions, "for though your blood is often over-hot, yet who could refuse to charge you Scottish knaves in such a cause?"

The marauders had, meanwhile, drawn themselves up across the road, and when the three men-at-arms spurred their horses to the charge, the foes received them by stepping briskly aside, and striking at the animals with their huge swords. Two of the assailants were thus brought to the ground at the first onset; but the one called Bowbent, and his elder companion, bore each a Scotsman to the earth with his long lance, and then taking to their swords, struck about them with such fury as to finish the contest in a space of time almost as short as that which it takes to narrate it. They did not, however, gain this victory without cost. Both the youth and his elder comrade were wounded, while the man-at-arms, who had been unhorsed, was killed. Several of the marauders fell on the field, and the others took to flight.

"Poor Jasper," said the youth looking mournfully at his slain follower, "your life was soon ended. God help me! misfortunes seem to attend on all who espouse my fortunes." And after regarding the dead man a moment longer, the youth turned away with a sigh to fulfil his remaining duty, by inquiring whom he had rescued, and offering to conduct her to a place of safety.

Meanwhile the lady Eleanor had been an anxious though admiring spectator of the contest, and many a prayer did she breathe for the success of her gallant rescuers. The boldness of the youth especially aroused her interest, and her heart beat faster and her breath came quicker whenever he seemed on the point of being overpowered. As he now moved toward her, she felt, she knew not why, the color rising in her cheeks,—and as he raised his visor, she could not but acknowledge that the countenance beneath, vied with, and even excelled in manly beauty and frankness of expression, any she had ever seen. The youth, however, had just began to express in the courtly language of the day, his delight at having come up so opportunely, when a sudden paleness shot over his countenance, and after endeavoring vainly to speak, he sank, fainting to the ground.

"It is only this ugly wound in his side," said his older comrade, noticing the alarm in the maiden's countenance, "he has fainted from loss of blood."

"Can he not be borne to the castle?—here Ralph, Lesline, a litter for the wounded man—but see, he revives."

The wounded youth opened his eyes faintly, and gazed upon the maiden as she spoke, and then closed them again, as if in pain.

"He has fainted again," said the lady Eleanor, "cannot the blood be staunched? I have some slight skill in the healing art, let me at least bind up his wounds."

Taking a scarf from her neck as she spoke, the maiden proceeded to examine the hurts of the young man-at-arms, and having carefully bound them up, during which operation the reviving sufferer testified his mute gratitude by his looks, she allowed him to be placed on the rude litter her servitors had hastily prepared for him, and then the whole party set out to return to the castle.

It was a fortnight after the above event, and the wounded youth was now convalescent. The room in which he sat, was a large old gothic apartment, but the mild breath of summer stealing through the open window, and bearing the odor of flowers upon its bosom, gave a freshness to the old chamber, which banished, for the time, its gloominess. The invalid was sitting up, and by his side was the lady Eleanor, gazing up into his eyes with a look which a woman bestows only upon the one she loves.

On reaching the castle, the lady Eleanor, in the absence of her uncle, ordered the utmost attention to be paid to the wounded young man. In consequence, the best room in the castle was alloted to him, and in the absence of a better leech, and in compliance with the custom of the times, the lady Eleanor herself became his physician. Opportunities were thus presented for their being together, which, as he grew more convalescent, became dangerous to the peace of both. Perhaps it was his dependence on her skill; perhaps it was the wound he had received in her cause; perhaps it was that she had expected no refinement whatever in one apparently of such questionable rank, perhaps—but no matter—like many a one before and since, it was not long before the lady Eleanor found that in attending her patient, she had lost her heart.

Nor was the wounded youth less inspired by affection for his fair physician. Gratitude for her kindness, to say nothing of her sweetness and beauty, had long since won his most devoted love. And now, as they sat together, one might perceive, the heightened color on the cheek of the maiden, and the unresisting manner in which her hand lay in that of the youth, that their mutual affections had just been revealed to each other in words.

"Yes—sweet one," said the youth, as if continuing a conversation, "we have much to overcome before we triumph, if indeed we ever may; and I almost wish that we never had met." His companion looked at him chidingly. "No, not that either, dearest. But yet I would I could remove this uncertainty that hangs around my birth. I am at least a gentleman born—of that I have always been assured—I am, morever a knight; but whether the son of a peer, or of one with only a single fee I know not. Until this uncertainty can be removed, I cannot pretend openly to aspire to your hand. I almost fear me that my honor may be questioned, thus to plight my vows with you, dear Eleanora; yet fate, which has thrown us thus together, has some meaning in her freak."

"May it prove indeed so," said the maiden.—"But you say you were always told you were noble born. Who assured you of this? Indeed, I must hear your story, for who knows," continued she archly, "but I may unravel your riddle!"

"Of my early life I know little, for though I remember events as far back even as infancy, yet it is but faintly, as we often remember incidents in a dream. Indeed I have often thought that these memories may be nothing more than vague recollections of dreams themselves happening so far back in my childhood as to seem like realities. Be that as it may, I have these shadowy impressions of living when very young in a large old castle, with hosts of retainers, and being served as if I was the owner of all. I remember also a fine noble looking man, and a lovely lady who used to take me in her arms and smile upon me. One day—it seems but yesterday, and I remember this more distinctly than any thing else—I was taken out by my attendants, who were, I suspect, attacked and overpowered, for I found myself rudely seized by a rough soldier, at whom I cried, and by whom I was carried off. I never saw any of my attendants more. Every face around me was new, and for days I thought that my heart would break. I think I must have been carried into Scotland, for as I grew up the country around looked barren like it, and my protecters were continually returning from forays over the border on the Southron as they call us. Besides even yet I have somewhat of their accent in my speech.

"I could not have been but a very young child, however, when I changed my protectors, and went beyond sea. For two or three years we travelled much, but finally settled in France. Those with whom I resided were of the better sort of peasants, and consisted of an old woman and her daughter. We were often visited by a stern, dark man, whom I was told was a knight. He indeed must have been the person who was my real protector, for after a while, my habitation was again changed, and I became the resident of an old decayed fortalice, where a warden and one or two servants constituted the whole household. Here I remained for many years, and until I was past my boyhood. I saw no more of my imagined protector, but I have every reason to believe he owned the old castle, where, bye-the-bye, I picked up some knowledge of warlike exercises; sufficient indeed to fit me, at the age of eighteen, to be sent to the army as a man-at-arms. I served a campaign under the banner of the Sieur de Lorenge, to whom I had been recommended by, I suppose, my unknown protector. His secret agency I have no doubt was exerted in procuring me to be knighted. Since then I have been thrown upon my own resources, and for a couple of years have served in Flanders, but wishing to discover, if possible, my real birth, I left the continent, and reaching England, set out on this apparently insane search. I have been engaged in it more than a half a year, and have yet obtained no clue to my parentage. I judge it, however, to be English, from my having been brought up in Scotland, for I was certainly taken prisoner in a foray. And now dearest, you have my history—and what, alas! do you know of me, except that I am a penniless unknown knight, hunting through this broad realm for a parentage?"

The maiden did not answer the question of her lover directly, but seemed lost in thought. She gazed wonderingly upon the speaker, and said—

"Strange!—if it should prove to be so."

Wondering at her inexplicable question, her lover said—

"What is strange, dearest?" But scarcely had this inquiry been made, when a servant appeared, informing the lovers, that the uncle of the lady Eleanor had arrived unexpectedly from court, and begged at once to be allowed to pay his thanks to the brave knight who had rescued his neice.

It was a fortnight later in our history. A small cavalcade was winding along a romantic road, late in the afternoon. At its front rode two knights, completely armed, except as to their heads, which were covered with light caps instead of helmets. A palfrey, upon which rode a lady, and the numerous handmaidens in the group, showed the cavalcade to be that of a woman of rank.

Suddenly the procession reached the brow of a hill, overlooking a wide reach of forest and woodland. An extensive valley stretched below, through which meandered a stream, that now glittered in the sunlight, and was now lost to sight as it entered the mazes of the forest. In the very centre of the valley, and on a gentle elevation, stood a large and extensive castle, its defences reaching completely around the low hill upon which it stood. As the prospect broke upon the sight, the two knights drew in their reins, and the elder turning to the younger one, whom the reader will instantly recognise as the hero of our tale, said—

"Yonder is Torston castle, and in less than an hour we shall be within its walls."

"And a noble fortress it is, my lord. I have seen many both in this fair realm and in France, but few to equal you proud castle."

"The landscape is itself a fine one," said Lord Torston, "though few of our profession of arms have an eye for beauty."

"The rudest boor, my lord, could not fail to admire this scene. And yet it does not seem wholly new to me. I have an indistinct impression of having beheld something like it before."

"Perhaps in some fair valley of France.—But we must push on, or we shall not reach the castle until nightfall."

A brisker pace, however, soon brought the cavalcade to the outskirts of the domain.—Descending the hill, they passed amid verdant woods and open lawns, and villages scattered here and there, until they reached the immediate vicinity of the castle, and in a few minutes more they entered the large gateway, and drew up in the court-yard. Every thing around seemed to recall to the mind of the young knight some long-forgotten dream—and when alighting, they entered the hall, with its raised table at the upper end and the large antlers surmounting the dais, it appeared to him as if he had returned to some favorite place on which he had been wont to gaze in days long gone by. Suddenly he paused, looked eagerly around, placed his hand to his brow, and said—

"My lord, this is strange. It seems to me as if I knew this place, and every step only reveals some old-remembered feature to me. It cannot be that I have dreamed of it."

"No, Sir Henry, you have not. You have seen it, but long ago. I have suspected this for some days, but I am now convinced."

"My lord," said the young knight with a bewildered air, "what mean you? It cannot be, and yet your words, your looks, your gestures, imply it—am I to find in this castle my birth-place?"

"Yes! my son," exclaimed the baron, unable longer to control the emotions which had been swelling for days in his bosom, "and in me you find a father," and opening his arms, his long-lost son fell into his arms.

"I no sooner saw your face," said the father, when these emotions had subsided sufficiently to permit an explanation, "than I felt a yearning towards you, for it reminded me of your mother. But when I heard your story," he continued, "it tallied so completely with the loss of my only son, that I suspected at once that you were my child. Your age, too, agreed with what mine should have been. Unwilling, however, to make known my belief, I enjoined silence on my niece, determining to bring you here in order to see if the sight of your birth-place would awaken old recollections in your bosom. I have succeeded. I do not doubt but that you are my son,—and now let me lead you to your cousin, who by this time will have changed her apparel, and be ready to receive us."

"One moment, only," said Sir Henry, "I have that here, which as yet I have shewn to no one. It is a ring I wore on my neck when a child. Here it is."

"God be praised, my son," said the old baron, "for removing every doubt. This is your mother's wedding ring, which, after her death, you wore around your neck," and the long-separated father and son again embraced, while tears of joy and thankfulness stole down the old man's face.

It is to be supposed that the lady Eleanor looked more coldly on her lover, now that every difficulty in the way of their union was removed: or that the young heir was less eager to possess himself of his bride, because, by wedding her, he would preserve to her the possessions which otherwise she would lose?—Truth compels us to answer both questions in the negative. Scarcely a month had elapsed before the young knight led his blooming cousin to the altar, while his new-found father looked on with a joy which he had thought, as a childless man, he could never more have experienced. And in the proud array of England's proudest chivalry, which met at Torston castle to celebrate the nuptials, no one demeaned himself more gallantly, or won more triumphs in the lists, than the young knight, now no longer Harry Bowbent, the soldier of fortune, but the heir of the richest earldom in the realm.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 25, 1841.

PLEASING CONTEMPLATION. A correspondent of the National Intelligencer has furnished that paper with a variety of interesting facts, extracted from the "Polynesian," a weekly paper, published at Honolulu, in the Island of Oahu, one of the Sandwich Islands. When we look back at the discovery of these Islands, and compare the then condition of their inhabitants, with their present improved situation, we are astonished and gratified at the progress which has been made in civilization and its attendant enjoyments. This improvement is mainly attributable to the indefatigable labors of the missionaries, principally, we believe, from the United States. In the Island of Oahu, and no doubt in most of the other Islands of the group, regular and just laws have been substituted for the arbitrary customs which previously prevailed; and a man cannot now be punished, unless upon conviction on a fair trial by jury. A considerable trade is carried on with the port of Honolulu, from the United States and other places; and the exports from the Island in sandal wood, hides, goat skins, salt, tobacco, sugar, molasses, &c. &c. are on the increase. The Sandwich Islands seems destined to rise into importance.

The revolution in the religon and morals of the inhabitants of Australia, has been still more rapid and extensive; chiefly effected by missionaries from England. They were idolators of the grossest character, some of them cannibals, and the sacrifice of infants by mothers, prevailed to a great extent. All this has been reformed, and the Christian religion has been generally adopted. Parts of the scriptures, prayers, &c. have been printed in the native languages; churches and missionary houses have been erected, and Divine service is regularly performed, by European and native preachers. The inhuman custom of putting prisoners to death and other barbarous practices are abolished, and law and order prevail. In short, in most of the Islands where the missionaries have operated, the whole character of the people has undergone a radical change for the better. European animals have been introduced, manufactures encouraged, and industry rewarded. The conversion from barbarism is thorough, for the superiority of the condition of the people, under their changed circumstances, has left no disposition to relapse into their former unhappy and degraded state.

Few persons are fully aware of the mighty moral effects which have resulted from missionary labors; for few take the trouble to read publications on the subject. We acknowledge that we had no conception of the extent of their services, until recently, when curiosity prompted us to look into the matter. They have effected wonders, not in the propagation of the Christian religion alone, but in civilizing hundreds of thousands of human beings, who were little superior to the most ferocious of wild beasts. They have spread light over the darkened intellect of the savage; and, by the introduction of printing will increase and perpetuate the knowledge of arts, science and the blessings of civilization.

CORRUPTION. In the reply made by the committee of stockholders who were appointed to investigate the affairs of the Bank of the United States, to the letters of Mr. Biddle, it is stated that upwards of one million of dollars has been expended for purposes which do not appear; and upon this fact various conjectures have been based. By some it is supposed that the money was applied as compensation for secret services performed by legislators, &c.; by others, that it was bestowed on political partizans—and it is broadly asserted in the Philadelphia Spirit of the Times, that large amounts went into the pockets of editors. Now the fact that a man is the editor or proprietor of a political journal, should not deprive him of the privileges enjoyed by others. He has the same right to borrow from a bank as another person; and is frequently more excusable, as a large portion of his pecuniary means lie scattered so as to prevent their being made immediately available. If then, editors or proprietors be found among the list of borrowers on the books of the Bank of the United States, that isolated fact should not be quoted to their prejudice. But, if it be discovered that they have been accommodated without responsible security—or have unfairly or corruptly obtained aid from the bank, the transaction would be highly censurable, and should be exposed. The paper above mentioned asserts that editors in Baltimore have obtained large discounts from the bank, and states the fact in such a way as to lead to the inference that said editors have been guilty of impropriety. Now, as we feel somewhat interested in having the public mind disabused on this subject, and desire to relieve the editors of this city from the odium of the transaction charged against them, we have asked for the publication of the names of those editors in Baltimore to whom allusion is made; and we now reiterate the request that the Spirit of the Times will give the names, amounts, and every particular which he may think proper to publish. We ask this as an act of justice to those who are innocent. We know that our skirts are clear, and therefore challenge investigation. No person connected with this office ever had a transaction with the Bank of the United States of any description—and we hope that the editors of all the Baltimore papers will relieve themselves from the imputation attempted to be cast upon their characters.

REPORTED ACCIDENT TO THE BRITANNIA. A rumor prevailed in Boston, on Saturday, that the Britannia, which left Boston on the 15th inst. had struck on Sombro Ledge, at the entrance of Halifax harbor, on the 16th inst. in a thick fog, and was so much injured, as to be deemed unsafe to proceed on her voyage. The report came from St. Johns, and was brought by General Swift, of New York. Mr. Stewart, a merchant, had just arrived at St. John's from Halifax, informed Gen. Swift, on board the North America, previous to her starting, that such a report was in general circulation at Halifax and not contradicted. It was said she struck on the Sombro Rocks, which caused her to leak, that she arrived safely at the wharf with difficulty, and it was thought it would be necessary to heave her down and examine her bottom. The Caledonia, it was said, was sent for to take her place. No letters or information of an authentic character have been received at the agency in Boston, nor any, so far as known, from any of the passengers, notwithstanding the regular mail for St. John did not leave Halifax until the morning after the Britannia is said to have arrived there.

RECEIPTS OF THE CATHEDRAL FAIR. We were informed last evening, upon the very best authority, that the receipts of the late Cathedral Fair, held at the Assembly Rooms, by the ladies of the Catholic church, amounted to SEVEN THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS, clear of all expenses. For this benevolent enterprise our fair friends cannot but merit golden encomiums. It clearly demonstrates what can be done when the angels of charity apply their lilly hands to the furtherance of a good cause.

We are further authorised to say that there are yet a number of choice articles left from the splendid collection exhibited at the fair, which the ladies will be happy in disposing of. We have no doubt but the proverbial liberality of our young gentlemen will prompt them to future deeds of generosity. We shall obey the injunction.

NEW ARRANGEMENT OF THE MAILS. The Eastern Mail arrived promptly yesterday morning at 7 o'clock. We welcome this arrangement with pleasure, and hope it will continue regularly.

The mail leaves New York at 5 p. m. of each day, reaches Philadelphia at about 11 p. m. and starts for Baltimore at 12. It reaches here say at 7, and is then despatched for the South by the 9 o'clock train of cars for Washington, and to the West, on and after Wednesday next, by the 5½ o'clock train of cars for Frederick.

PERILOUS FALL. A young gentleman in the employ of Mr. Lambert Gittings, while engaged in the discharge of his duty, accidentally fell through the hatchway from the third story to the basement floor, and, strange to relate, was not so severely injured as might have been expected. Dr. Hintze was immediately called in, who upon examination found that a concussion of the spine had been produced. Although this may disable him for a long time, yet it is thought his wounds are not dangerous.

SUMMER COSTUME. Since Sunday last, white pants, thin dresses, and summer costume has become peculiarly fashionable. Spring has in reality taken her throne, and seems already to have midsummer lingering upon her lap of glowing verdure. Yesterday was unquestionably and without dispute a melting day. We cannot close this paragraph without informing our various contemporaries at a distance, that the ladies as they promenaded Baltimore street looked irresistibly charming.

UGLY BEHAVIOR. Gerad Smith, a German, residing on Fell's Point, was arrested on Saturday night and imprisoned in the watch-house, charged with assaulting and beating his wife. In the morning the offender was brought before Justice Jones, and in default of security for his appearance at the City Court, committed to jail.

Another individual, named Zebulon Mitchell, was carried on Sunday night to the western lock-up, on a similar charge, but he was lucky enough to get off yesterday morning.

ARRESTS ON SUSPICION. Two colored men, Edward Canot and Alfred Johnson, were arrested late on Saturday evening, having in their possession four cloth coats, supposed to have been stolen, and which they were endeavoring to sell. They were both detained in the watch-house until morning, when they were discharged by Justice King.

CAUTION. Gerald was executed for murder at Estaw, Alabama, on the 7th inst. He was calm, penitent, and resigned to his fate, saying that intoxication had caused his ruin.

James Egan and Andrew Duffy had a drinking match at Juliet, Illinois, on the 4th inst—he who got drunk first to pay the bill. Egan soon after went to bed, and left it a corpse.

VELOCITY OF LIGHTNING. Until within a few years it is said the velocity of the electric fluid has been a matter of conjecture merely. Late and ingenious experiments, however, have proved conclusively that electricity travels with a velocity nearly four times as great as that of light, being at the rate of 400,000 miles a second.

☞ The steamboat Fox, a short time since, says the Louisville Gazette, met with an accident in Green river, by running across a dam at the mouth of Muddy river. The chambermaid in endeavoring to jump ashore, fell in, was drawn under the boat and drowned.

CONGRESSMEN. The National Intelligencer of yesterday informs us that a number of members of Congress have arrived in the city of Washington, preparatory to the session which will commence on next Monday. Among them are Mr. Calhoun, of Massachusetts; Mr. Trumbull, Mr. Boardman, and Mr. Osborne, of Connecticut; and Mr. Barton, of Virginia.

SUN-SHADES. Of all abominable contrivances with which the world has been pestered, we hold "sun-shades," as they are now used by the ladies, to be the most abominable.

Boston Times.

Friend Times, we are astonished at your taste! Why, nothing can be more convenient and beautiful. Is there any thing so poetical as to see a pair of bright eyes peeping from underneath one of those dear, sweet, silken, charming little sun-flowers, or if you please, sun-shades. While they protect the fair creatures from the tanning influence of the sun, they also serve another purpose, viz: to hide ugly faces. Again—you can tell when a damsel is three squares off whether she is pretty or not. If handsome, the dear little sun-shade is elevated so that the rosy cheek, the alabaster neck, the smiling countenance, &c. can be seen; if the reverse, it is held directly in front of the face, to hide (if allowed the expression) what nature has refused to paint with such delicate tints, and mould in such winning symmetry.

ACCIDENT AT QUEBEC. A dreadful accident happened at Quebec on the morning of the 17th inst. A large mass of Cape Diamond, with the wall from the Governor's garden gave way, to the base of the citadel, and buried under masses of stone and earth the houses in Champlain street, opposite the Custom House. About eight houses were destroyed, it is supposed. Thirteen dead bodies were taken from the ruins, and it is estimated that between twenty and thirty persons were in the houses.

SHIPS LOST AT SEA. The undermentioned ships have been lost at sea, and never since been heard of:—Dominica schooner, on passage to the West Indies, 1816. Arab, coast of Ireland, 1823. Delight, off the Mauritius, 1824. Alegerine, in the Mediterranean, 1826. Hearty packet, West Indies, 1827. Readwing, coast of Africa, 1827. Acorn, coast of North America, 1828. Contest, coast of North America, 1828. Redpole packet, returning to England from the Brazils, 1828.—Ariel packet, coast of North America, in 1828 or 1829. Recruit packet, on passage from Halifax to England, 1832. Blenheim, 74 guns, in 1801, and Steamship President, on her passage from New York to Liverpool, 1841.—Boston Times.

THE BOSTON ATLAS. The property in this valuable establisment, established and owned, until his death, by Richard Haughton, Esq., has been purchased by Wm. Hayden and Thomas M. Brewer, by whom the paper will be hereafter conducted. Mr. Hayden is well known to us as a gentleman of high personal character and literary qualifications. Dr. Brewer had been assistant editor of the Atlas for two years, and in that capacity is very advantageously known.

DROWNED. It is stated in the Mobile Journal of the 17th inst. that the brig Miles Standish, Capt. Gorham, which cleared at that port on Friday last, for Norfolk, when about to discharge her pilot, lost a passenger overboard, (Mr. A. W. Carpenter,) who was drowned. The body was recovered and buried on shore, by the crew of the pilot boat Robert Bruce.

A SWINDLER CAUGHT. The rogue who forged a letter in the name of Captain Nichols, of the schooner Henry, at Philadelphia, the Boston Transcript says, has been caught in his endeavor to get the draft paid. He gave his name as John Gair, said he was the mate of the vessel, and was requested by Captain Nichols to call for the money. He failed of his object, and got himself into prison for his pains.

MYSTERIOUS. Some persons were cleaning out a cellar in Albany not long since, and discovered, buried two or three feet under the ground, the bones of two human beings. From the fact of one of the jaw bones having been broken, it was thought that the murderer's hands had been about.

LITTLE RESPONSIBILITIES. We are instructed to say upon authority extraordinary that His Imperial Majesty's Minster has been presented by his fair consort, Madame de Bodiska, (late Miss Williams, of Washington city,) with two "little responsibilities"—noble specimens of love and union.

STATE CONVENTIONS. The friends of the administration will hold a convention in this city, on Thursday, the third of June, to nominate a candidate for Governor.

The opposition convention for the same purpose will be held on Thursday, the tenth of June.

DISTURBANCE IN CHURCH. Cato Harris, a colored man, entered a meeting house on Sunday night last, and behaved very rudely, for which he was taken to the watch house and properly reprimanded.

FOUND DROWNED. The body of a colored man was found on Sunday night floating in the water at the foot of Frederick street dock, by watchman Hiser, of the Middle District. An inquest was held over the body by Wm. T. Rice—verdict as per the facts.

ARRESTED. Nimrod Cromwell was arrested on Sunday evening by two of the Middle district watchmen, charged with attempting to rescue some prisoners from them which they had in charge. He was released by Justice King by giving security to appear at the Saturday court.

CHILD FOUND. The body of a white child, supposed to be about a week old, was found dead, yesterday morning, in the neighborhood of Keller's mill, near the Belvidiere Bridge. An inquest was held by Mr. Greenfield, the coroner, and verdict of the jury, death from some unknown cause.

A SUNDAY SCHOOL CELEBRATION took place in New York on Friday. In the procession were between three and four thousand scholars and teachers.

A STRONG EXPRESSION. A marine on board of one of our men-of-war, having been sentenced to three dozen lashes by a Court Martial, was asked after the punishment had been inflicted, how he felt upon receiving the first lash. His reply was, "he felt as if a cart load of lightning had been dumped on his bare back." We defy the English language to furnish a stronger expression.

ALLEGED ROBBERY. A man calling himself George Dunning, charged with breaking open a trunk and stealing therefrom $61, the property of Eliza Eberts, was on Sunday evening arrested and confined in the Western District Watch-house. He was brought before Justice Stuart yesterday morning, and committed to jail for further examination.

A YANKEE MINT. There is in Connecticut a cent factory, where the real copper mint drops, bearing the stamp of the United States, in exact imitation to the legal coin, are made and sold 105 for a dollar; and if desired they will be casked up and delivered to any part of the Union, freight and casking free. Red banks taken for the same at par.

ASSAULT. Barney Manly, was yesterday arrested, by officers Duvall and Myers, charged with assaulting and beating Isabella Devon. He was released on giving security to appear at Saturday's Court.

"Barney, leave the girls alone,
And let them quiet be."

EXTRAORDINARY LONGEVITY. There is in the City of New York, a family composed of a father and eleven children, all of whom are now living. The father is 89 years of age, the oldest son 68, the youngest 46, and the aggregate ages of the whole is 728 years.

STEAMBOAT. The following particulars, says the New Orleans Picayune, are copied from memoranda, by the steamer Joan of Arc: "The steamer Ganges on Thursday last, at one 1 o'clock, when opposite to Palmyra, took fire, and burnt to the water's edge. No lives lost, but boat and cargo entirely lost."

THE CROPS. The Charleston Courier of Friday says—We learn that the late cool weather and chilling winds have done very great injury to both the cotton and corn crops in St. Johns Berkley. Some planters have had to plant cotton seed the fourth time.

☞ A paper published in a town in Maine where there is but one house and a tavern besides the printing office, advertises for an apprentice, and very particularly observes that a lad from the country would be preferred. We should like to know that editor's idea of a big city.

☞ A young girl, name unknown, was burned to death in the woods near Cleaveland, Ohio, lately. She was an entire stranger, and had no doubt made a fire to warm herself by. Near her crisped body was found a tea spoon, marked L. W.

THE BRITISH QUEEN, which was to leave England on the 10th inst. as advertised, did not do so it appears. Advices by the Caledonia, say that her day of departure had not been fixed when the Caledonia left.

WHISPERINGS IN HIGH LIFE. Various whisperings have been in circulation for some time past relative to an affair which transpired up town, in which that very repulsive instrument, the ———, was used to some considerable effect.

To take Ink out of Linen. Take a piece of mould candle, or common candle will do nearly as well, melt it, and dip the spotted part of the linen into the melted tallow. It may then be washed, and the spots will disappear without injuring the linen.

GENIUS OF POETRY. The Milford Bard has again left the almshouse, whither he had repaired from necessity caused by his own unfortunate improvidence, and is about to take up his abode at the home of his fathers, in Milford, Delaware.

GALENA, (ILL.) APRIL 30.

The Chippewa arrived here from St. Peter's yesterday. Contrary to the many rumors, all was quiet with the Indians. A Sioux had been killed by a soldier; but the latter was in irons and would be regularly tried. The troops at Fort Crawford (Prairie du Chien) had formed an encampment seventy miles above on Black river. We again express the conviction that with the present force and arrangements at the north, there is scarce a possibility that any serious difficulties can occur with the Indians. —Gazette.

THE RULING PASSION. A lady in one of our villages was lately thrown from a wagon and carried home senseless, with an ugly cut on one of her pretty cheeks. No sooner had the surgeon commenced his operation than animation returned, and opening her eyes she lisped beseechingly, "Do, Doctor, sew it neatly." Of course the gallant operator ran the stiches as close as a milliner working a waistband.

NOTHING NEW UNDER THE SUN. Alcibiades one day observed Pericles in a very pensive and melancholy mood, demanded the reason of it—Pericles told him that great sums of money had passed through his hands, and he knew not how to make up his account. "Continue, then," said Alcibiades, "to give no account at all."

BLUE. There is a lady in Connecticut so very pious, that, when detained from church, she makes it a regular practice to send her card.

ANOTHER MURDER. We learn that William Keyton, a citizen of Wilkinson county, Ga., was shot with a pistol, by one Samuel M. Pitman, in Irwinton, on the night of the 4th inst. and died on the 10th. The murderer has escaped.

☞ A meeting has been held at Toronto, U. C., to memorialize Lord Sydenham, to make Toronto the seat of government.

☞ A man by the name of John Nelson was drowned in the Lafayette River, near New Orleans, on the 6th inst.

TO THE PUBLIC.

☞ Several editorial notices which have recently made their appearance in the Sun, in reference to certain affrays between the members of several fire companies, having led many persons to believe that the members of the Independent Fire Company were the aggressors, inasmuch as the name of that Company is always mentioned in connection with the notices in that paper of riots, where its members happen to be implicated, whether in fault or not, while the names of other Companies are studiously withheld, has induced me to make a public statement of the fact in an impartial and independent print, that the riots in which that Company have participated, have not occurred from THEIR seeking, but have been provoked, by cowardly and uncalled for attacks on them, and that, in ALL CASES, they have not only acted altogether on the DEFENSIVE, but have, as much as possible, avoided all unpleasant collisions with the members of those Companies, who have always evinced a desire to quarrel and create disturbances, and whose very names are synonymous with backguardism and insepurably associated with the word "Rowdy."

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

A PRAYER

FOR THOSE WHO HAVE FRIENDS IN "THE PRESIDENT."

[From the Liverpool Standard.]

Come she not! The ship was wont to glide
With bird like speed athwart the ocean-foam
Floats not her flag upon the distant tide!
Gleam not her white sails through the grey mist's gloom!
In hushed suspense, weeks heavily pass o'er:
She comes not yet—alas! If she should come no more!

How many hearts with sick misgiving faint,
Worn with long watching, pine in lone distress,
Whose tears, held prisoned by love's fond restraint,
Gush forth unchecked in midnight's silentness,
As to their wistful gaze hope's trembling ray
Grows dim and dimmer yet—is fading fast away!

Oh! Lord of sovereign might! before thy throne
They fall, imploring thy protecting power!
O God of truth and love! to thee alone
They turn for strength in this their trial hour,
How deep, how keen their anguish, only Thou,
Who knowest all, can tell: support, sustain them now.

Thou know'st the shrinking agony of fear,
That mocks the smiles the lip assumes in vain;
Affection's art would hide the stealing tear,
With words of hope disown its writhing pain;
But Thine behold'st the spirit's deep despair,
When in its solitude it pours its wild, impassioned prayer.

Alas! their homes are desolate! Some face
Beloved hath vanished from the social hearth—
Some form that charmed it with familiar grace—
Some tones that gladdened it with music mirth;
O Lord of might! pity their helpless pain,
Bring back their wanderers safely to their arms again!

Our times are in thy hand; in perfect rest
Thou wilt keep him whose mind is stayed on thee:
Calm thou the conflict in each tortured breast;
Their hope, their trust, their consolation be.
Shed thy deep peace upon each care-worn brow:
Be with them, God of love! strengthen, sustain them now!

OFFICIAL.

Extract of a letter addressed to the Secretary of the Navy, by Lieut. John S. Paine, commanding the United State schooner Grampus, dated Porto Praya, March 12, 1841.

"Sir: I feel it my duty to mention to the Department, the feeling of obligation with which I am impressed towards the authorities here, for their very obliging and liberal course towards us, in admitting our sick to their hospital and barracks, on our arrival from the coast of Africa.

"This was first the act of Captain Don Jose Paulo Machado, on the representation of the Surgeon General of the Hospital, Senor Joaquim Martins Franco.

"The same liberal course has been continued towards us, by his Excellency the Governor General of the Cape de Verd Islands, since his arrival here."

MORE INHUMANITY. On Saturday last, an affair took place in Southwark, which speaks volumes upon the subject of "man's inhumanity to man." A man by the name of Bradley, a tailor, took out a capias against an individual by the name of John Dungan, for the recovery of a debt of $35. The officer to whom the writ was given, proceeded to the residence of Dungan, and found him in an apartment with his wife a lifeless corpse, she having died suddenly the night previous. Under these circumstances, the officer with that humanity and magnanimity which characterises every man of good feeling, declined to execute the writ, but the creditor insisted upon the performance of his duty at once, under pain of a prosecution for the non-performance of his duty. The officer did execute his duty against the strong and affecting appeals of the debtor, and his assurance that he would appear and enter bail as soon as he had placed in the earth the remains of his wife. The creditor was inexorable, and the poor and heart-broken man was taken before Alderman Palmer. The Alderman after hearing the circumstances of the case, expressed his indignation at such a course, and stated that had he been aware of Mr. Dungan's situation, he would not upon any consideration have granted the writ, and recommended the matter should be postponed. To prevent this the plaintiff would not give easy bail that the law should take its effect. Byrne, who had the process, was credited with another person to give the required bail, and the case rested upon the surety of the two. It would be difficult to find a parallel to a spirit so inexorable and inhuman.—Philadelphia Ledger.

TRIBUTE TO WASHINGTON.

BY WM. H. HARRISON.

"Hard indeed, was the contest for freedom and the struggle for independence. The golden sun of liberty had nearly set in the gloom of an eternal night, ere its radiant beams illumined our western horizon. Had not the tutelar saint of Columbia hovered around the American camp, and presided over her destinies, freedom must have met with an untimely grave. Never can we sufficiently admire the wisdom of those Statesmen, and the skill and bravery of those unconquerable warriors, who, by their unwearied exertions in the Cabinet and in the Field, achieved for us our glorious revolution. Never can we duly appreciate the memory of a Washington, who, with but a handful of undisciplined yeomanry, triumphed over a royal army, and prostrated the Lion of England at the feet of the American Eagle. His name—so terrible to his foes, so welcome to his friends—shall live forever upon the brightest page of the historian, and be remembered with the warmest emotions of gratitude and pleasure by those whom he has contributed to make happy, and by all mankind, when Kings, and Princes, and Nobles, for ages, shall have sunk into their merited oblivion. Unlike them, he needs not the assistance of the sculptor or the architect to perpetuate his memory. He needs no princely dome, no monumental pile, no stately pyramid, whose towering height shall pierce the stormy clouds, and rear its lofty head to heaven, to tell posterity his fame. His deeds, his worthy deeds, alone have rendered him immortal! When oblivion shall have swept away Thrones, Kingdoms, and Principalities—when every vestige of human greatness, and grandeur, and glory shall have mouldered into dust, and the last period of time become extinct—Eternity itself shall catch the glowing theme, and dwell with increasing rapture on his name!"

G. No. 194, folio 153, &c. was conveyed by John Glenn, trustee, to the late John Lee. To meet the views of small purchasers who may be disposed to bar, it is proposed to divide the property into, say six 14 feet lots on Fleet-st., with a depth of say 60 feet to an alley, and four lots on Washington street of about fourteen feet each, with a depth of eighty four feet. The property is remarkably well located for improvement, being near several of the large ship yards, and the spacious wharf lately completed by the Canton Company. As the parties interested are anxious to sell, bargains may be expected. A plan of the property as proposed to be divided will be exhibited at the sale, and in the mean time may be examined at H. W. Beck's auction room, Baltimore street.

Terms of sale as prescribed by the order of the Court, are, one-third in cash, balance in six and nine months with interest, the cash payments to be secured by approved endorsed notes and bearing interest from the day of sale. ROBT. PURVIANCE, Jr.

DAVIES' FAMILY PILLS.

[From Captain PARRISH, who commenced to use them when diseased in August, 1839.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 2, 1840.

DR. DAVIES: Dear Sir—I have had experience in the virtue of your Pills, sufficient to recommend them as a superior cathartic and excellent carminative, and also as a family medicine that every one should be in possession of. There is no doubt that if persons and families generally were acquainted with their efficacy, they might save many a dollar now paid for doctor's bills. Yours respectfully,
E. PARRISH.

HARPER'S FERRY, August 11, 1840.

DR. WM. DAVIES: Dear Sir—I am happy to inform you and the public, that I have been cured of that dreadful disease the Rheumatism, by taking your Family Pills. I had been laboring under that disease for more than a year, during which time I tried the skill of our best physicians without effect; at length I was induced to try your medicine—I found relief after taking half a box, I continued to take them until I had taken five boxes; my age is 71 years, and I consider that none but the old and rheumatic persons know how grateful I feel to the medicine that has restored me to health. Yours, respectfully, JOHN DYE.

We, the undersigned, are agents at Harper's Ferry for the sale of Dr. Davies' Family Pills, know our neighbour, Mr. Dye, sold him the pills of which he speaks so highly, and believe his statement to be substantially true. Respectfully,
W. & S. B ANDERSON.

TWO CHARMING PERIODICALS, 1st No. of a New Volume of the Ladies' Companion. Opinions of the Press, viz: New World.

The Knickerbocker for this month is out puncually on the first, and it is full to overflowing with good things. That capital story, the Country Doctor—far superior to the majority of the continuations in the English Magazines—goes on more amusingly than before. The number is embellished with a curious and appropriate engraving of "a Dutch Cottage in Beaver street, 1679."

The May number of the Ladies' Companion is embellished with a steel engraving that would do no discredit to Finden's Galleries. It is exceedingly beautiful, and is entitled "The Young Chief's First Ride." Such embellishments alone entitle this various and excellently edited magazine to the bountiful patronage with which it is favored. We notice certain typographical improvements in this number, which are indications of the good taste of the proprietor.

The literary merit of the Ladies' Companion seems to increase rather than diminish—and, with the editorial labors which are now bestowed upon it, it cannot fail to be pronounced highly creditable to the literature of the country.

TERMS—Knickerbocker, $5 per year, or $1.25 quarterly. Ladies' Companion, $3 per year, or 25 cts. each number. Single numbers for sale at

WEBB'S PATENT BURNERS,
AND CAMPHINE OIL.

FOR SALE AT No. 109 S. BALTIMORE STREET, between South and Calvert streets, where Burners of every description can be obtained. Those who are sceptical as to its safety or economy, would, I trust be perfectly satisfied by examining the opinion of Professor Locke, of Ohio, on "Webb's Camphine," or by referring to the Journals of the Franklin and American Institutes, of Philadelphia and New York. All those desirous of obtaining a clean, brilliant, and economical light, will find it greatly to their advantage by calling on the subscriber. The public may be assured of one fact, that we require no meters to ascertain the amount of Camphine consumed, as they register correctly and in plain English.

☞ASTRAL LAMPS ALTERED.

N. B. We have appointed JOSHUA ATKINSON Agent, No. 92 Market street, F. P., where all orders will meet with immediate attention.

F. AUGUSTUS BAILEY, Agent
For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

DEAR SIR—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,

BALTIMORE LOCK DISPENSARY,
No. 17 HARRISON ST.
"NO CURE NO PAY."

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, is its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors, by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

Persons residing at any distance, can have medicine sent to them, packed secure from observation.

It was out of pure motives of philanthropy, that this medicine was first made public; the price always to remain $1 per Bottle, to be within the reach of the most unfortunate.

☞Letters addressed, (post paid) describing the case, mode of living, &c. will be promptly attended to. Direct No. 17 Harrison street.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS
AND VEGETABLE BITTERS.

THE perfectly safe, unerring and successful treatment of almost every species of disease by the use of MOFFAT'S LIFE MEDICINES, is no longer a matter of doubt, as a reference to the experience of many thousand patients will satisfactorily prove. During the present month alone, nearly one hundred cases have come to the knowledge of Mr. Moffat, where the patient has, to all appearance, effected a permanent cure by the exclusive and judicious use of the Life Medicines—some eight or ten of these had been considered beyond all hope by their medical attendants—Such happy results are a source of great pleasure to Mr. M. and inspire him with new confidence to recommend the use of his medicines to his fellow citizens.

The Life Medicines are a purely VEGETABLE preparation. They are mild and pleasant in their operation, and at the same time thorough—acting rapidly upon the secretions of the system—carrying off all acrimonious humours, and assimilating with and purifying the blood. For this reason, in aggravated cases of dyspepsia, the Life Medicines will give relief in a shorter space of time than any other prescription; in Fever-and-ague, Inflammation, Fevers of every description, Sick headache, heartburn dizziness in the head, pains in the chest, flatulency, impaired appetite, in every disease arising from an impurity of the blood, or a disordered state of the stomach, the use of these medicines has always proved to be beyond doubt greatly superior to any other mode of treatment.

All that Mr. Moffat asks of his patients is to be particular in taking them strictly according to the directions. It is not by a newspaper notice, or by any thing that he himself may say in their favor, that he hopes to gain credit, it is alone by the results of a fair trial. Is the reader an invalid, and does he wish to know whether the life medicines will suit his own case? If so let him call or send to Mr. Moffat's agent in this place, and procure a copy of the Medical Manual, designed as a domestic guide to health, published gratuitously. He will here find enumerated very many extraordinary cases of cure; and perhaps some exactly similar to his own. Moffat's medical office in New York, 375 Broadway, and for sale by the Agents. JAS. CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold; having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption. I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. Please publish this certificate, with my name in full, that others may know where to find the greatest blessing on earth.

A PIECE OF A HUNDRED SOUS.

AN INTERESTING FRENCH TALE.

A young and handsome pair had just returned from the altar, where their destinies were irrevocably united. They were about to start for the country, and they had bidden a temporary farewell to the friends who were present at the ceremony. For a short time, while the equipage was preparing, they found themselves alone.

The newly wedded husband took one of his bride's hands in his own.

"Allow me," said he, "thus to hold your hand, for I dread lest you should quit me—I tremble lest all this be an illusion. It seems to me that I am the hero of one of those fairy tales which amused my boyhood, and in which, in the hour of happiness some malignant fairy steps in to throw the victim into grief and despair!"

"Re-assure yourself, my dear Frederick," said the lady. "I was yesterday the widow of Sir James Melton and to-day I am Madame de la Tour, your wife. Banish from your mind the idea of the fairy. This is not a victim but a history.

Frederick de la Tour had some reason to suppose that his fortunes were the work of a fairy's wand; for in the course of two short months, by a seemingly inexplicable stroke of fortune he had been raised to happiness and to wealth beyond desires. A friendless orphan, twenty-five years old, he had been the holder of a clerkship, which brought him a scanty livelihood, when, one day, as he passed along the Rue St. Honore a rich equipage stopped suddenly before him, and a young and elegant woman called from it to him. "Monsieur, Monsieur," said she. At the same time, on a given signal, the footman leapt down, opened the carriage door, and invited Frederick to enter. He did so, though with some hesitation and surprise, and the carriage started off at full speed. "I have received your note, sir," said the lady to M. de la Tour, in a very soft and sweet voice; "and spite of your refusal, I hope yet to see you to-morrow evening at my party."

"To see me, madame!" cried Frederick.

"Yes, sir, you———Ah! a thousand pardons," continued she, with an air of confusion; "I see my mistake. Forgive me, sir; you are so much like a particular friend of mine! What can you think of me! Yet the resemblance is so striking, that it would have deceived any one."

Of course, Frederick replied politely to these apologies. Just as they were terminated the carriage stopped at the door of a splendid mansion, and the young man could do no less than offer his arm to Lady Melton, as the fair stranger announced herself to be. Though English in name, the lady, nevertheless, was evidently of French origin. Her extreme beauty charmed M. de la Tour, and he congratulated himself upon this happy accident which had gained him such an acquaintance. Lady Melton loaded him with civilities, and he received and accepted an invitation for the party spoken of. Invitations to other parties followed; and to be brief, the young man soon found himself an established visitant at the house of Lady Melton. She a rich and youthful widow was encircled by admirers. One by one, however, disappeared, giving way to the poor clerk, who seemed to engross the lady's whole thoughts. Finally, almost by her own asking, they were betrothed. Frederick used to look sometimes at the little glass which hung in his humble lodging, and wonder to what circumstance he owed his happy fortune. He was not ill looking certainly, but he had not vanity to think his appearance magnificent; and his plain and scanty wardrobe prevented him from giving the credit to his tailor. He used to conclude his meditations by the reflection that assuredly the lovely widow was fulfilling some unavoidable award of destiny. As for his own feeling, the lady was lovely, young, rich, accomplished, and noted for her sensibility and virtue. Could he hesitate?

When the marriage contract was signed, his astonishment was redoubled, for he found himself through the lady's love, the virtual possessor of a large property both in England and France. The presence of friends had certified and sanctioned the union, yet, as has been stated, Frederick felt some strange fears, in spite of himself, lest all should prove an illusion, and he grasped his bride's hand, as if to prevent her from being spirited away from his view.

"My dear Frederick," said the lady smilingly, "sit down beside me, and let me say something to you."

The young husband obeyed, but still did not quit her hand. She began,—

"Once on a time"——

Frederick started, and half seriously exclaimed, "Heavens! it is a fairy tale!"

"Listen to me, foolish boy!" resumed the lady. "There was once a young girl, the daughter of parents well born, and at one time rich, but who had declined sadly in circumstances. Until her fifteenth year, the family lived in Lyons, depending entirely for subsistence upon the labor of her father. Some better hopes sprang up, and induced them to come to Paris, but it is difficult to stop in the descent down the path of misfortune. For three years the father struggled against poverty, but at last died in an hospital.

"The mother soon followed, and the young girl was left alone, the occupant of a garret of which the rent was not paid. If there were any fairy connected with this story, this was the moment of her appearance; but none came. The young girl remained alone, without friends or protectors, harrassed by debts which she could not pay, and seeking in vain for some species of employment. She found none. Still it was necessary for her to have food. One day passed, on which she tasted nothing. The night that followed was sleepless. Next day was again without food, and the poor girl was forced into the resolution of begging. She covered her face with her mother's veil, the only heritage she had received, and stooping so as to imitate age, she went out into the streets. When there, she held out her hand. Alas! that hand was white, and youthful, and delicate! She felt the necessity of covering it up in the folds of the veil as if it had been leprosied. Thus concealed, the poor girl held out the hand to a young woman who passed—one more happy than herself—and asked, 'A sous, a single sous to get bread!' The petition was unheeded. An old man passed. The mendicant thought that experience of distresses of life might have softened one like him; but she was in error. Experience had only hardened, not softened his heart.

"The night was cold and rainy, and the hour had come when the police appeared to keep the streets clear of all mendicants and suspicious characters. At this period, the shrinking girl took courage once more to hold out her hand to a passer-by. It was a young man. He stopped at the silent appeal, and diving into his pockets, pulled out a piece of money, which he threw to her, being apparently afraid to touch a thing so miserable. Just as he did this, one of the police came to the spot, and placing his hand on the girl's shoulder, exclaimed, 'Ah, I have caught you, have I'—You are begging. To the office with you!—come along!'

"The young man here interposed. He took hold hastily of the mendicant, of whom he had before seemed afraid to touch, and addressing himself to the policeman, said reprovingly, "This woman is not a beggar. No, she is—she is one whom I know." "But, sir," said the officer. "I tell you she is an acquaintance of mine," said the young stranger. Then turning to the girl, whom he took for an old woman, he continued, "Come along my good dame, and permit me to see you safely to the end of the street," giving his arm to the unfortunate girl, he then led her away, saying, "here is a piece of a hundred sous. It is all I have, take it, poor woman."

"The crown of a hundred sous passed from your hand into mine," continued the lady, "and as you walked along supporting my steps, I then, through my veil, distinctly saw your face and figure."

"My figure!" said Frederick, in amazement.

"Yes, my friend, your figure," returned his wife, "it was to me you gave alms on that night! It was my life, my honor, perhaps, that you then saved!"

"You a mendicant; you so young, so beautiful and now so rich!" cried Frederick.

"Yes, my dearest husband," replied the lady, "I have in my life received alms, once only, and from you, and those alms have decided my fate for life. On the day following that miserable night, an old woman, in whom I had inspired some sentiments of pity, enabled me to enter as a seamstress into a respectable house. Cheerfulness returned to me with labor. I had the good fortune to become a favorite with my mistress, whom I served, and indeed I did my best, by unwearied diligence and care, to merit her favor She was often visited by people in high life. One day, Sir James Melton, an English gentleman, of great property, came to the establishment along with a party of ladies. He noticed me. He returned again. He spoke with my mistress, and learnt my history. The result was that he sat down by my side, one day, and asked me plainly if I would marry him."

"Marry you!" cried I, in surprise.

"Sir James Melton was a man of sixty, tall, pale and feeble looking. In answer to my exclamation of astonishment, he said, "Yes, I ask if you will be my wife? I am rich, but have no comfort, no happiness. My relatives seem to yearn to see me in the grave. I have ailments which require a deep degree of kindly care, that is not to be bought from servants. I have heard your story, and believe you to be one who will support prosperity as well as you have done adversity. I made my proposal sincerely, and hope you may agree to it."

"At that time, Frederick," continued the lady, "I loved you. I had seen you but once, but that occasion was too memorable for me ever to forget it, and something always insinuated to me that we were to pass through life together. At the bottom of my soul, I believe this. Yet every one around me pressed me to accept the offer made to me, and the thought struck me that I might one day make you wealthy. At length my only objection to Sir James Melton's proposal, lay in a disinclination to make myself the instrument of vengeance in Sir James' hands against relatives, whom he might dislike without good grounds. The objection when started only increased his anxiety for my consent, and finally, it would be carrying romance the length of folly to reject the advantageous settlement offered to me, I consented to Sir James' proposal.

"This part of my story, Frederick, is really like a fairy tale. I, a poor orphan, penniless and friendless, became the wife of one of the richest baronets of England. Dressed in silks, and sparkling with jewels, I could now pass in my carriage through the streets where a few months before, I had stood in the rain and darkness; a mendicant!"

"Happy Sir James," cried M. de la Tour, at this part of the story; "he could prove his love by enriching you!"

"He was happy," resumed the lady. "Our marriage, so strangely assorted, proved much more conducive it is probable, to his comfort, than if he had wedded one with whom all the parade of settlements and pin money would have been necessary. Never, I believe, did he for an instant repent of our union. I, on my part conceived myself bound to do my best for the solace of his declining years; and he, on his part, thought it incumbent on him to provide for my future welfare. He died leaving me a large part of his substance—as much, indeed as I could prevail upon myself to accept.

"I was a widow, and, from the hour in which I became so, I vowed never again to give my hand to man, except to him who had succoured me in my hour of distress, and whose remembrance had ever been preserved in the recesses of my heart. But how to discover that man! Ah unconscious ingrate! to make no endeavor to come in the way of one who sought to love, to enrich you. I knew not your name.—In vain I looked for you at balls, assemblies, and theatres. You went not there. As the lady spoke she took from her neck a riband, to which was attached a piece of a hundred sous. "It is the same, the very same which you gave me," said she presenting it to Frederick; "by pledging it, I got credit for a little bread from a neighbor, and I earned enough afterwards in time to permit me to recover it. I vowed never to part with it.

"Ah how happy I was, Frederick, when I saw you in the street! The excuse which I made for stopping you was the first that rose to my mind.—But what tremors I felt even afterwards lest you should have been already married. In that case, you would never have heard aught of this fairy tale, though I would have taken some means or other to serve and enrich you. I would have gone to England and there passed my days in regret perhaps, but still in peace But happy it was to be otherwise. You were single."

Frederick de la Tour was now awakened as it were, to the full certainty of his happiness. What he could not but before look upon as a sort of freak and fancy in a young and wealthy woman was now proved to be the result of deep kindly feeling, most honorable to her who entertained it. The heart of the young husband overflowed with gratitude and affection to the lovely and noble hearted being who had given herself to him. He was too happy to speak. His wife first broke silence.

"So, Frederick," said she, gaily, "you see that if I am a fairy, it is you who have given me the wand—the talisman, that has effected all."

ST. AUGUSTINE, May 15.

We extract from the News the following:

"THE WAR. Extract of a letter from an officer of the army, received in this city, dated Fort Armistead, April 27, 1841.

"The only news is this, that a runner has just arrived who was sent out to Hospatahki Mauxy, Hadjo and Sam Jones, who reports that they have all run off, and will not come in; consequently, the treaty is probably at an end in this section, and fight will soon be the word. The 1st Regiment of Infantry is at present very sickly, and about one-third being on the sick list."

LAMENTABLE MISTAKE. The following is extracted from a letter, dated Port Prince, May 1st, 1841.

"A sad mistake took place on Sunday night last, the 23rd inst. at the house of a Mr. McCormick, about 8 miles from Jacksonville. This residence has been attacked more than once by Indians; and near night a man was observed in the field, apparently approaching with great caution. Mrs. McC. and her two sons only being at home, concluded it was an Indian, and the boys took their guns, and awaited his near approach. He had something in his hand which seemed a gun, and as it appeared that he was about using it, the boys fired, and the object fell. On approaching the spot, it was found to be a poor deaf and dumb man, named Gordon, who was thus accidentally killed. His appearance there created an alarm, that it was the enemy, and under the circumstances of the case, the jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

FROM RIO JANEIRO. The brig Gen. Marion left at Rio Janeiro, April 1st, the U. S. ship Decatur, to sail next day on a cruise to the Northward; U. S. Ship Marion; U. S. ship Concord, to sail soon for the river Plate; and the U. S. frigate Potomac uncertain.

A new President for the Provence of Rio Grande, who was to take command of the Brazilian forces in that quarter, was to leave Rio on the 1st of April.

We have Rio Janeiro papers to the 27th of March. On the 24th, Commodore Ridgely received official intelligence of the death of Commodore Stevens at Washington, and on the following day all the American vessels had their colors at half mast, and minute guns were fired by the vessels of war. The Brazilian, English and French vessels of war also set their colors at half mast.—Jour. of Com.

LOSS OF CHARACTER. The following anecdote which we give, says the Inverness Courier, exactly as the fact occurred, may be considered as an illustration of simplicity and integrity. A respectable farmer of Roshire, travelling a short distance on horseback, having occasion to cross the river Conan, found on the bank of the stream, a young woman also desirous of getting across. She informed the farmer that she was in quest of a situation, and had an excellent character from her last place. As the river was high the good-natured farmer took the girl up behind him, on his horse, and conveyed her across the water. Unfortunately, however, the written certificate of character fell out of the young woman's bosom, where she had put it for safety, and was carried away by the stream. She was in great distress at this mishap, till her kind conductor assured her that he would give her a character, and this pledge he redeemed on their arrival at a house on the opposite side in the following brief but pithy words: 'Tenth September, 1833. These certify that the bearer, Peggy Mackensie, lost her character this day, while crossing the river Conan, with me, Andrew Munroe.' This very equivocal statement was given in perfect good faith and sincerity. The girl accepted it with many thanks, but was soon convinced that the honest farmer's words did not correspond with his intentions and that she required—what is generally difficult to obtain—a new character.

LOOK OUT!!

"Caution" is the Parent of Safety.

AN ATTACK of the "PILES" may be positively prevented by using (when the premonitory symptoms are felt) the celebrated HAYS' LINIMENT. There are more than one thousand people in this city, and in the United States an immense number, who have suffered beyond endurance by this dreadful complaint, who keep themselves wholly free from attacks by applying this Liniment when they feel any symptoms of its approach—of this there is the most perfect proof.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 26, 1841.

☞As we are not disposed to lend the use of our columns to the discussion of the exciting subject embraced in the communication of "Ancestry," we must decline its publication. We are neither abolitionists nor amalgamationists, but on the contrary support the views and objects of the colonization society. We think them founded on policy and humanity, and that the society may finally succeed in making it the interest and the desire of free persons of color to emigrate to the African colony. It must be obvious that there can be little amelioration in their condition whilst residents of this state; whilst it is known that those who are sober, honest and industrious would be much more advantageously situated in the colony to which their attention is directed. "Ancestry" speaks of Africa as though it contained nothing but a sandy soil, upon which the emigrant must starve. He understands very little of the soil of that continent if this be his impression. It is true there are parts of it sandy deserts, but other portions are as rich and productive as the lands of any other section of the globe; and the part selected for the Maryland is any thing but a "sandy soil."

We would not willingly do injustice to any human being. We wish, on the contrary, to contribute, as far as in our power, to their happiness; and, as the colored race in this country must, of necessity, remain in a state of debasement and degradation, we should be glad to see them settled where they can enjoy freedom and equality, and placed in a condition of progressive improvement.

☞A Baltimore correspondent of the National Intelligencer represents the commercial business of Baltimore as being very dull, and money scarce. We presume that the business of Baltimore is in pretty much the same condition as that of other cities. There is a general pause, and an anxious looking forward, as the writer observes, to the extra session of Congress, for some action in relation to the currency. Men in business, here as elsewhere, have their trials and difficulties, but we believe that the merchants of Baltimore stand in as high credit for punctuality and honesty, as those of any other section of the globe.

The writer notices, in just terms of praise, the lectures delivered by Rev. Mr. Burnap, but doubts the propriety or delicacy of having a female lecturer on anatomy. Now we have heard the lectures of Mrs. Gove highly extolled by ladies; and, as her object is to promote the comfort and health of the female sex, by pointing out the injurious consequences of the prevailing fashions, we think her well deserving of patronage by the ladies.

The writer has made a sad mistake in respect to our theatres. He says "there are three theatres now in operation." That in Front street and the National, he states, are well encouraged—which is partly correct; but Holliday street Theatre he says is not so well supported. He cannot be a play-going man or he would have known that Holliday street theatre has been closed for more than a month.

BANK ROBBERY. The robbery of the Frederick county Bank on Saturday night last, of specie, notes, bonds, stocks, &c. amounting in the whole to the enormous sum of $185,976, is an extraordinary event. The Banking house is situated at the corner of Patrick and Market streets, in a central location, within a short distance of the principal hotel, and so much exposed that the robbers must have run a great risk of detection. The president and directors have offered a reward of ten thousand dollars for the apprehension of the thief and return of the effects stolen.

The robber is no doubt an expert hand and an old practitioner; but we think it next to impossible that he can escape detection, as he must have been in Frederick some days to make observations, lay his plans, &c. If so, he was known at some of the hotels, and his sudden departure after the robbery would excite attention. Besides, he cannot make the property he has stolen available without laying himself open to suspicion.—The large reward offered will induce police officers throughout the country to be more than ordinarily vigilant.

The Frederick county Bank was ably and faithfully managed—doing a legitimate and safe business, and yielding a good interest to the stockholders.

THE PENNSYLVANIA BANKS AND THE RELIEF BILL. Bicknel's Reporter says:—"The impression now prevails that most of the banks of this state, including a majority of those in the city and county of Philadelphia, will ACCEPT the Relief Bill. The only two, however, in this city that have yet acted formally upon the subject are the 'Philadelphia Bank,' which has rejected, and the 'Farmers & Mechanics, Bank,' which has accepted the Bill. The others will act in the course of a few days, after the stockholders meet and discuss the subject. It will be remembered that we last week gave it as the sentiment of the community that the banks of Philadelphia would reject the bill; this was the opinion at the time, but public sentiment has changed to a considerable extent, and the feeling at the time we write is more favorable to the bill. The only banks that have issued small notes, are the 'Harrisburg Bank' and the 'Exchange Bank of Pittsburg.' Very few of them have as yet reached Philadelphia."

MILITARY PRESIDENTS. The Republican of yesterday condemns certain proceedings in Philadelphia, designed to promote the election of Commodore Stewart to the presidency of the United States. The editor thinks that it is time to pause in the selection of military men for that important office, lest we come in time to consider military talents as alone necessary to render a man eligible. We perfectly agree with the editor that, unless a candidate possess other qualifications, the fact of his having successfully fought in defence of his country should not entitle him to the highest civil office in the gift of the people. If, however, he be qualified in other respects, the circumstance of his being a military man should not exclude him from consideration. It would be contrary to the principles of our government to proscribe any profession; but there is some danger of running into the extreme of preferring military men. There is something so attractive in military fame that enthusiasm is more readily kindled in behalf of men of that than of any other profession. History is full of examples of the destructive consequences of this proneness to elevate mere military men; and it is important that the people of this country should not fall into this lamentable error.

SYMPTOMS OF WAR. The New York Herald states there is a British surveying bark, called the Thunder, engaged in surveying the Chesapeake and Delaware bays, and the editor presumes will visit the several American ports, with the view of ascertaining their channels, to enable British steam vessels of war to attack us without impediment. The editor of the Herald thinks that we ought to prepare forthwith for the apprehended contest.

It is right and proper that the country should be put in a state of defence; but we doubt whether the British government is very eager for a war with the United States. She can have no object in seeking such a contest; on the contrary she has the deepest interest in maintaining peace between the two countries. War with this country would be ruinous to her best interests, and would inevitably bring her in collision with France also. But, if war were to take place, her steam vessels would find it a troublesome business to blow up our towns in succession. Some of them would be "snag'd" before they had accomplished the job. We do not believe that the disposition exists to make the trial.

WASHING THE BATTLE MONUMENT. Yesterday afternoon some of the members belonging to the Patapsco Fire Company took their apparatus, and gave that beautiful classic marble pile, (of which our city is justly proud, the Battle Monument,) a handsome washing down, from the goddess of liberty upon its top to the land of freedom at its base. This act was certainly highly commendable and praiseworthy. We have often observed, and as frequently heard it remarked, that this monumental column was becoming defaced with dust and dirt, and that it stood much in need of what the Patapsco Fire Company so timely bestowed upon it yesterday. Strange to say, we have just been handed some wild grass resembling the timothy stem, about twenty-two inches in length, which grew upon the second platform by the side of one of the griffins, on the smooth, solid marble.

The members of the different fire companies have expressed a willingness to wash the monument frequently; but as some other labor is necessary in order to make this structure perfectly clean, and this cannot be accomplished without knowing who has the control of it, and the particular person or persons cannot be found out, it is desirable that those having the management should make the fact known, which can be done by communication with this office.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

MONUMENT TO GENERAL HARRISON. As it has been proposed in some of the wards in this city, and collections are about to be made for the object of erecting a monument to the memory of our late President, we heartily concur in this noble purpose, and would respectfully suggest to the enterprising and patriotic gentlemen who have this matter in charge, that a most beautiful and appropriate site for its erection would be on the summit of the hill in front of the mansion house at Green Mount Cemetery, and for this object the company would present the ground, if applied to for that purpose. G.

[The above would certainly be a peculiarly appropriate location for the contemplated monument to General Harrison, if the ground could be had; as the Cemetery will become a place of great resort for citizens and strangers.]

THE CUSTOM HOUSE INVESTIGATION. The New York Courier says, that the committee of investigation into the affairs of the custom house, during the terms of preceding collectors, have closed their labors, and found more than ample grounds for the various reports which have been in circulation, for some time past in connection with the subject. What they have found the Courier does not say. Time will probably disclose it.

THE LOST MAIL. The mail which was lost on the 3d inst. near Montgomery, Ala. was found and taken into New Orleans on the 16th inst. The superscriptions of most of the letters were so mashed as to be rendered illegible. Measures have been taken to dry and assort them as speedily as possible.

THE LOST FOUND. The dead body of a man was found a few days since in a swamp near Rochester, N. Y. Upon examination it was found to be the body of a butcher, called Little Dick, who mysteriously disappeared some time last fall.

☞The trial of Mr. Flagg at Vicksburg came off on the 13th. He was indicted upon two counts, first for duelling and second for shooting with intent to kill. In both cases, the jury after retiring for a few moments returned a verdict of not guilty.

CORRESPONDENCE IN THE CASE OF MCLEOD. It may not be uninteresting to the reader to know the views entertained by the Governor of New York in relation to McLeod's case; and to place this information in their possession, we copy the following condensed statement of his sentiments as expressed in official letters, from the New York Sun—expressing our hearty concurrence in the correctness of the positions he has assumed.

The Governor's letter to Mr. Forsyth, the then Secretary of State, acknowledges the receipt of a communication accompanied by the correspondence that had taken place at Washington between the Department of State and the British Minister. It then runs over the history of the whole case—the arrest of McLeod—the attempt to bail him—its failure and the reason therefor—his indictment by the grand jury—the preparations for his trial—the importance of his having a fair and impartial trial, &c. It shows that the British Government had no cause of complaint against either the Federal or State governments. Every thing was done that could be done to prevent our citizens from engaging in the Canadian disturbances. Those who were guilty of engaging in them were abandoned to their fate and to the justice of the British Governmens without remonstrance, though not without sympathy. The people of this State have not complained or asked the interposition of their Government, although many of their fellow-citizens were tried and condemned, in some instances to death and in others to banishment to an island in the South Seas, under special laws and by extraordinary courts, proceeding without the intervention of a jury and the forms of the common law. But they exact the same measure of justice and respect that they concede to others. It is certainly a matter of regret that the arrest, detention and trial of one of her majesty's subjects charged with the crime of arson, committed within this State, should be regarded by her majesty's representative as persecution and molestation. But such proceedings are necessary for the preservation of the public peace, and of the dignity of the State, whether the offenders be our own citizens or the subjects of other countries, and the supremacy of the laws must therefore be maintained.

The Governor declares that the views of the President, as exhibited in the correspondence before him are fully concurred in, and his action in accordance with those views will be duly supported by the public authorities of this State.—He repels the assertion of the British Minister in reference to the vexatious annoyance which McLeod was alleged to have suffered in his preliminary examination—denies that McLeod was ever admitted to bail at all, the sureties having withdrawn their names before he was discharged, and alleges that both the executive and judicial officers of the State have endeavored faithfully to discharge their duty according to law, and with a view of procuring for the prisoner a speedy, fair, and impartial trial. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court had been directed to preside at the trial, and the Attorney General to conduct the prosecution. The whole matter is concisely summed up as follows:

"Upon the principles assumed by the Federal Government, the aggression at Fort Schlosser was a forcible, unlawful violation of the laws of this state, resulting in arson and murder. The prisoner was arrested in due form of law, upon a charge of having been concerned in the proceeding. He was properly committed after a preliminary examination. The grand jury to whom the evidence was submitted has affirmed the charge. No one will contend that under such circumstances the prisoner ought to be allowed to go at large. The justice of the country requires that the case should be fairly and impartially tried, and that the accused should not avoid a trial by being admitted to bail. The national honor requires that the plea interposed in the prisoner's behalf by the representatives of Her Majesty, should be submitted, together with all the facts of the case, to a court and jury, that the prisoner may have a legal deliverance, if innocent, and punished according to his deserts, if guilty."

In a subsequent letter to Mr. Webster, the Governor alludes to his communication to Mr. Forsyth, and declares that his views have undergone no change. He reiterates and insists upon the positions therein taken.

OFFICIAL.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, Washington, May 24, 1841.

The following has been transmitted to this Department, by Thomas Aspinwell, Esq. Consul of the United States at London:

Notice to Mariners.—Light House at Gibraltar.

Trinity House, London, April 24, 1841.

The Light House which for some time past has been in the course of erection at Gibraltar, being now nearly completed, notice is hereby given, that the light therein will be exhibited for the first time, on the evening of the first of August next, and thenceforth continued every night from sunset to sunrise.

Mariners are to observe that this light house is situate upon Europa point, and that a powerful fixed light will be exhibited therein, and will burn at an elevation of 159 feet, or thereabouts, above the level of the sea. By order,

MORE INDIAN MURDERS. The Charleston Transcript of the 22d inst. extracts the following from a Savannah paper.

"We yesterday received intelligence, by the steamer Gen. Clinch, that the Indians have again been at their work of death in our state. On the 12th inst. two men were murdered at or near Trader's Hill, in the vicinity of the Okefenokee. There was also a report which needs confirmation, that one or two more individuals met a like fate at the hands of the faithless Seminoles. One of the murdered men we learn, was killed in his own house, in which there were two or three children, who fortunately made their escape to their mother, she happening at the moment to be a short distance from the house in the woods, where they concealed themselves till the departure of the savages."

WILDCAT is not among the Indians of his tribe that have arrived at the Barracks, New Orleans, but was left at Tampa Bay.

Our city, says the Mobile Journal of the 18th, was shocked yesterday morning, about breakfast time, by the discovery of the dead body of one of our most esteemed citizens, hanging dead in his own store. The immediate cause is not known, but pecuniary embarrassments, working upon a mind very delicately constituted, are supposed to be the origin of the distress of mind which led to this catastrophe. His name is not given. This unfortunate person it is said has been a man of most unexceptionable character. His immediate relatives reside some considerable distance from Mobile.

BALTIMORE CITY CONVENTION. At a meeting of the Whig Convention, held on Monday evening, the following gentlemen were elected delegates to represent this city in the Whig State Gubernatorial Convention:

The State Convention will meet in this city, on Thursday, the 3d June.

By order of the Convention,

THE ASPECT OF ENGLAND. A London writer says:—"The general position of affairs in this country is prosperous and pacific. The appearance of the crops is favoralbe—the bullion accounts continue good. The falling off in the revenue will perhaps increase the taxes, but there is abundant means to replace it, and their relations with all the world are pacific or approaching to it."

In another part of his letter the writer excepts the Manufacturers, who are said to be in a deplorable condition.

MEMBERS OF CONGRESS. Among the members arrived at the Capitol, besides those already mentioned, are Mr. Barrow, Senator from Louisiana, and the following representatives, Mr. White, of Kentucky; Mr. Russell, of Ohio; Mr. Warren and Mr. Merriwether, of Georgia; Mr. Slade, of Vermont; Mr. Cushing, of Massachusetts; and Mr. Lawrence, of Pennsylvania.

COMMERCE OF HAVANA. The total amount of exports from Havana, during 1840, was $11,184,928; and of imports $14,556,138. The whole amount of commercial revenue was $5,075,957; of internal taxes $1,415,448. The commerce of '40 exceeded that of '39 nearly a million and a half. The import of flour was 128,801 barrels, of which 79,198 were from Spain, and 39,701 from the U. States.

ALARMS. The alarm of fire yesterday afternoon about half-past one o'clock, proceeded from the burning of a chimney in Mulberry street, between Eutaw and Paca streets.

The alarm about half-past four, was caused by the burning of a chimney in Lombard street, near the Custom House.

RIOTING. David Spriggs, John Brown, Lewis Dublin, Richard Parker, John Johnson, and Louisa Wilson, negroes, were arrested yesterday morning at one o'clock, at a house in Potter-st., by a party of watchmen, and carried to the watch house. They were severally brought up and made to undergo the operation of a "reprimand."

BROOKLYN NAVY YARD. The investigation into the conduct of the commandant of this station, Com. Renshaw, is still in progress. Mr. Pattison, of Ohio, upon whose representation the charges were preferred, arrived at the station on Friday. The result of the investigation is not yet known.

SUSQUEHANNA TRADE. The canal boats John Boggs and Industry, both laden with cargoes of groceries, dry goods, fish, &c. &c., left the harbor yesterday morning, in tow of the Wolcott, for Havre-de-Grace and the interior of Pennsylvania.

EFFECT OF CARD PLAYING. We learn from the Fall River Archetype, that in a quarrel between two of the men employed in the American Print Works, in that town, one of them named Braynon, was killed. The quarrel originated from a dispute that arose while playing cards.

SENTENCE OF EZRA WHITE. Ezra White, who was convicted of murder on his first trial, on a new trial was convicted of manslaughter in the third degree and has been sentenced to four years imprisonment in the New York State Prison, at hard labor.

A HANDSOME ARTICLE. We were shown, yesterday afternoon, a beautiful Neckband for gentlemen, manufactured by Mr. Warren, No. 4, North Stteet. They are really a very neat article. See advertisement in another column.

FOUND DROWNED. The body of a young man was found floating in the river Delaware, on Sunday morning, by the hands on board the steamboat Robert Wharton.

FIRE. A fire broke out in Detroit on the 17th which burnt a house owned by Mr. Charles Bristol and also the Central Railroad House, a hotel, which was levelled to the ground.

The steam tow boat "John Jay" left Philadelphia on Monday afternoon, having in tow five Tide Water boats, all fully laden with merchandize for Have-de-Grace.

WHISKEY.—We quote Whiskey in bbls, at 22½a23c. There have been no sales of hogsheads. The wagon price for barrels is 18c., exclusive of the barrel.

☞We learn from the Bangor Democrat that the President of the Frankfort Bank has been arrested on a charge of swindling, and bound over for trial. The substance of the charge against him is that he took the funds of the Bank, purchased stock of various persons at fifty per cent. sold it at par, kept the profits, and paid the Bank in wild land at $2 50 per acre that was worthless.

"BREVITY THE SOUL OF WIT." The celebrated Doctor Abernethy was a man of uncommon brevity of expression. A lady who was acquainted with this peculiarity of the Doctor, once called upon him, with one of her arms badly burnt, for advice, when the following dialogue took place:

Mrs. B. [Exposing her arm.] "A burn."

Doctor. "I see it is; poultice it." [Here he wrote a prescription for a poultice and handed her.]

Second visit.—Mrs. B. [Exposing her arm as before.] "Better."

Doctor. "Glad of it; continue the poultice."

Third visit.—Mrs. B. [Showing her arm.]—"Well."

Doctor. "Very glad."

Mrs. B. "What's the fee?"

Doctor. "Nothing; you are the most sensible woman I have ever seen."

The Portland (Me.) Advertiser says—On one day last week, in the usual hours of working, there were produced from one loom, at the mill of the Brunswick Co., in Brunswick, eighty yards of the best quality of No. 14 sheeting, 37 inches wide.

This is said to be the greatest quantity of cloth ever manufactured by one loom in the same space of time.

THE JEWS. A society, the members of which are all Christians, has been formed at Brockville, in Canada, to assist in facilitating the return of the Jews to the Holy Land.

LOVE AND LAW. A young lawyer, who had long paid his court to a young lady, without much advancing his suit, accused her one day of "being insensible to the power of love."

"It does not follow," she archly replied, "that I am so, because I am not to be won by the power of attorney."

"Forgive me," replied the suitor, "but you should remember that all the votaries of Cupid are solicitors."

He might have added that lawyers in good practice are always courting.

TWO CHARMING PERIODICALS. 1st No. of a New Volume of the Ladies' Companion. Opinions of the Press, viz: New World.

The Knickerbocker for this month is out punctually on the first, and it is full to overflowing with good things. That capital story, the Country Doctor—far superior to the majority of the continuations in the English Magazines—goes on more amusingly than before. The number is embellished with a curious and appropriate engraving of "a Dutch Cottage in Beaver street, 1679."

The May number of the Ladies' Companion is embellished with a steel engraving that would do no discredit to Finden's Galleries. It is exceedingly beautiful, and is entitled "The Young Chief's First Ride." Such embellishments alone entitle this various and excellently edited magazine to the bountiful patronage with which it is favored. We notice certain typographical improvements in this number, which are indications of the good taste of the proprietor.

The literary merit of the Ladies' Companion seems to increase rather than diminish—and, with the editorial labors which are now bestowed upon it, it cannot fail to be pronounced highly creditable to the literature of the country.

TERMS—Knickerbocker, $5 per year, or $1.25 quarterly. Ladies' Companion, $3 per year, or 25 cts. each number. Single numbers for sale at

WEBB'S PATENT BURNERS,

AND CAMPHINE OIL.

FOR SALE AT No. 109 E. BALTIMORE STREET, between South and Calvert streets, where Burners of every description can be obtained. Those who are sceptical as to its safety or economy, would, I trust be perfectly satisfied by examining the opinion of Professor LOCK, of Ohio, on "WEBB'S CAMPHINE," or by referring to the Journals of the Franklin and American Institutes, of Philadelphia and New York. All those desirous of obtaining a clean, brilliant, and economical light, will find it a ready to their advantage by calling on the subscriber. The public may be assured of one fact, that we require no meters to ascertain the amount of Camphine consumed, as they register correctly and in plain English.

☞ASTRAL LAMPS ALTERED.

N. B. We have appointed JOSHUA ATKINSON Agent, No. 22 Market street, F. P., where all orders will meet with immediate attention.

P. AUGUSTUS BAILEY, Agent For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

DEAR SIR—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,

BALTIMORE LOCK DISPENSARY,

"NO CURE NO PAY."

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, is its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors, by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

Persons residing at any distance, can have medicine sent to them, packed secure from observation.

It was out of pure motives of philanthropy, that this medicine was first made public; the price always to remain $1 per Bottle, to be within the reach of the most unfortunate.

☞Letters addressed, (post paid) describing the case, mode of living, &c. will be promptly attended to. Direct No. 17 Harrison street.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS

AND VEGETABLE BITTERS.

THE perfectly safe, unerring and successful treatment of almost every species of disease by the use of MOFFAT'S LIFE MEDICINES, is no longer a matter of doubt, as a reference to the experience of many thousand patients will satisfactorily prove. During the present month alone, nearly one hundred cases have come to the knowledge of Mr. Moffat, where the patient has, to all appearance, effected a permanent cure by the exclusive and judicious use of the Life Medicines—some eight or ten of these had been considered beyond all hope by their medical attendants.—Such happy results are a source of great pleasure to Mr. M. and inspire him with new confidence to recommend the use of his medicines to his fellow citizens.

The Life Medicines are a purely VEGETABLE preparation. They are mild and pleasant in their operation, and at the same time thorough—acting rapidly upon the secretions of the system—carrying off all acrimonious humors, and assimilating with and purifying the blood. For this reason, in aggravated cases of dyspepsia, the Life Medicines will give relief in a shorter space of time than any other prescription; in Fever-and-ague, Inflammation, Fevers of every description, Sick headache, heartburn dizziness in the head, pains in the chest, flatulency, impaired appetite, or every disease arising from an impurity of the blood, or a disordered state of the stomach, the use of these medicines has always proved to be beyond doubt greatly superior to any other mode of treatment.

All that Mr. Moffat asks of his patients is to be particular in taking them strictly according to the directions. It is not by a newspaper puff, or by any thing that he himself may say in their favor, that he hopes to gain credit, it is alone by the results of a fair trial. Is the reader an invalid, and does he wish to know whether the life medicines will suit his own case? If so let him call or send to Mr. Moffat's agent in this place, and procure a copy of the Medical Manual, designed as a domestic guide to health, published gratuitously. He will here find enumerated very many extraordinary cases of cure; and perhaps some exactly similar to his own. Moffat's medical office in New York, 175 Broadway, and for sale by the Agents. JAS. BOOZ, No. 9 Fleet street.

DAVIES' FAMILY PILLS.

[From Captain PARRISH, who commenced to use them when diseased in August, 1839.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 9, 1840.

☞To DR. DAVIES: Dear Sir—I have had experience in the virtue of your Pills, sufficient to recommend them as a superior cathartic and excellent carminative, and also as a family medicine that every one should be in possession of. There is no doubt that if persons and families generally were acquainted with their efficacy, they might save many a dollar now paid for doctor's bills. Yours respectfully,

E. PARRISH.

HARPER'S FERRY, August 11, 1840.

DR. WM. DAVIES: Dear Sir—I am happy to inform you and the public, that I have been cured of that dreadful disease the Rheumatism, by taking your Family Pills. I had been laboring under that disease for more than a year, during which time I tried the skill of our best physicians without effect; at length I was induced to try your medicine—I found relief after taking half a box, I continued to take them until I had taken five boxes; my age is 71 years, and I consider that none but the old and rheumatic persons know how grateful I feel to the medicine that has restored me to health. Yours, respectfully, JOHN DYE.

We, the undersigned, are agents at Harper's Ferry for the sale of Dr. Davies' Family Pills, know our neighbour, Mr. Dye, sold him the pills of which he speaks so highly, and believe his statement to be substantially true. Respectfully,

CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold; having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption, I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. EIGHTEEN AND GREY HAIR!

OR, LOVE'S LABOR LOST—A PETITE HISTOIRE.

After an absence of two years spent in travelling, I saw her again at the theatre. She was the attraction of the whole house; all eyes in the pit were fixed upon her; and I, after one, could scarcely venture on a second glance; at length, I summoned resolution; obtained a full view of her; but how was I horror-struck! The reason of the general observation her entrance caused was now apparent; a cold shivering came over me; my knees trembled!

Poor, unhappy Henrietta! I sighed, as I convulsively bit my lips. One of my neighbors perceiving my emotion, touched my elbow, and said, "Do you observe that young lady in the centre box—the first row? Is it not surprising that so young a creature should have white hair?"—"And with such sparkling black eyes, too!" remarked another; "what a thousand pities!" "If a writer of romance were here," said a third, "this beautiful monster would furnish materials for an excellent ballad, something a la Heine, at which we know not whether to laugh or cry. Black eyes and white locks, our attraction and abhorrence; a true and lively picture of the literature of the day!" I could have annihilated the impertinent puppies.

At last the curtain rose; what was acted God knows. The audience laughed. I ground my teeth in agony. I several times thought of making a bolt for the door, but an irresistible power chained me to the spot where my devoted victim presented herself. Cold drops stood upon my brow; but I remained. The play was over, and my tormentors recommenced talking of the young girl with the grey hair.

"For my part," said one, "I think it not unlikely that this poor thing, in some lonely walk at night, stumbled upon a ghost. Have you read the 'Scherin von Prevorst,' by Komer?"

"He is a poet and a Swabian," interrupted a person at my back. "Trust me, there are no such creations as ghosts and sorcerers; I am a physician, and can explain to you how it happens that nature produces on certain qualities of hair certain effects."

"Ah! you are a doctor, are you?" remarked a new speaker: "come, come, expound it all to us ex cathedra. The hair of a young girl cannot change its color without some extraordinary cause. She must have been subject to some terrible calamity—some shock. Perhaps her husband was murdered in her arms, or she dropped her child as she was dancing it at the window, and dashed its brains out on the pavement."

"Excuse me, gentlemen, your conjectures all fall to the ground," said the doctor, with an authoritative tone; "can't you at once perceive that this charming creature is not a mother—perhaps unmarried?"

"How old may the poor thing be?" inquired one.

"Sixteen," replied another.

"Eighteen!" exclaimed I, scarce knowing what I was saying.

"What! you are acquainted with her then?" exclaimed all in a breath.

I made no reply.

"He surely must be able to tell us something about her," doggedly remarked one of the party.—"I shrewdly guessed that this young maiden owes her white hair to some cross in love, to some—"

In a paroxysm of despair I seized the hand of the last speaker. "Hold, sir; spare me; I am a wretch—a perjured villain."

What effect this outburst of my anguish, this involuntary confession of my wrongs to Henrietta—wrung from me by a guilty conscience—produced on my auditors, may well be imagined; but luckily for me, at this moment the orchestra let loose its thunder; all that noise and fury signifying nothing, that characterises modern music; and the curtain rose again. But what fictitious sorrows; what love, treachery, despair, could vie with mine? My remorseless memory pictured and in colors too true and faithful, how she had vowed to me her innocent weak heart, and its dawning affections; how I had sworn to be eternally hers; to adore her whom I had so shamefully forgotten and forsaken. Alas! I now, too late, perceived that I had poisoned all the springs of life and happiness; that the Henrietta whom I had left so blooming, so confiding and happy, was now, with white hair and a broken heart, sinking fast into the grave. "Miserable wretch!" I ejaculated, "is it too late to redeem the past?" A thought flashed across the darkness of my mind—too late—no, perhaps your repentance may make all well again. The mighty power of love—I will throw myself at her feet—well—

My resolve was made—the performance was nearly at an end—I rushed out of the pit. Some one seized me by the hand. "Gustavus!"

"Felix! you here! you have seen her?" I abruptly inquired.

"Her? who?"

"Henrietta."

"I left her only a few minutes ago. You find her much altered, eh?"

"Felix, I am a monster of iniquity!"

"What!" said he, laughing, "were you the sly rogue, the Charlatan?"

"Charlatan! what mean you?"

"You must know that Henrietta, scarcely a month since, bought of an itinerant vender of pomatum, a substance for making the hair grow.—She had scarcely used it twice before her hair became as gray as you now see it."

"Pomatum! it was not love, then?"—the word died on my lips.

"Love!" replied Felix with surprise. "No, we have been married eighteen months, and are the happiest couple in the universe. Whether my wife's hair be black or grey is to me a matter of indifference."

"Eighteen months!—your wife!—! and ."

Alas! 'twas but the penalty that my inconstancy so well merited. Take heed, ye of both sexes who possess that inestimable gift—another's love. Never trifle with it as I have done!

A STRANGE STORY.

In the year 1818, a ship, having on board a large monkey, who was much prized by the sailors for his dexterous tricks, embarked on the homeward voyage, and among other passengers, carried a lady, who had a child, who was only a few weeks old. When the weather permitted, the lady took regular exercise on the deck, sometimes with her infant charge in her arms. One beautiful afternoon, when the vessel was ploughing the watery waste, with clusters of sea fowl disporting in her wake, the sun looked forth in all his majesty and next to himself illuminating the two sublimest objects in nature—the expanded ocean and the expanded sky—the captain perceived a distant sail—a sight that is always welcome at sea; and which, amidst the vast solitudes of the Atlantic, may be compared to the meeting of the pilgrims in the desert. The discovery attracted the attention of all on board, and after the captain had gratified his curiosity, he politely offered his glass to the lady, that she might obtain a clear view of an object which the naked eye was unable to distinguish, from the fleecy clouds which every where fringed the horizon's verge. At this time Mrs. B. had the babe in her arms, but being aware that it could not harm itself by rolling, she wrapped her shawl about the little innocent, and placed it on a sofa, on which she had been sitting. Capt. C. assisted her to steady the glass, but scarcely had she applied her eye to the instrument, when the helmsman exclaimed, in a tone that indicated the deepest emotion, "Good God! see what the mischievous monkey has done." A mother's fears are easily excited, and the reader may judge of the lady's feelings, when on turning round, she beheld the animal in the act of carrying her beloved child to the very top of the mast. And here it may be necessary to explain that the monkey was nearly four feet high, and so strong and active, that while it grasped the infant firmly in one arm, it climbed the shroud by the aid of the other, with astonishing haste, and seemingly unembarrassed by the weight of its burden. One look was sufficient for the mother, and that look had well nigh been her last.' Though she attempted to speak, the words died away on her lips, or were rendered inarticulate by her sobs and groans; and had it not been for the prompt humanity of those around her, she would have fallen prostrate on the deck, where she was afterwards stretched, to all appearance a lifeless corpse. Situated as he was the captain knew not what to do: when he looked at his passenger, speechless, motionless and deadly pale, he almost fancied that life had fled; and when he thought of her child, that was swimming aloft under the care of so strange a nurse, he expected every minute that the capricious monkey would become tired of his toy, and drop it in the ocean, or throw it upon the deck.—Often as he had crossed the wide Atlantic, and braved the perils of the winter's storm—often as he had been placed in circumstances in which he would have given the wealth of nations, if they had been his, for the privilege of treading the earth in safety, never amid all the changes of a seaman's life, had his feelings been exposed to so severe a trial. The sailors could climb as well as the monkey, but the latter watched their motions narrowly, and as it ascended up the mast, the moment one of them put his foot upon the shrouds, the captain became afraid he would drop the child, and endeavor to escape, by leaping from one mast to another. In the mean time the little innocent was heard to cry; and though many thought it was suffering pain, their fears on this point were soon dissipated, when they observed the animal imitating exactly the motions of a nurse, by dangling, soothing and caressing its charge, and even endeavoring to hush it to sleep. From the deck the lady was removed to the cabin, and gradually restored to the use of her senses; but then her cries were most distressing, and though she was kindly assured all would soon be well, it required the utmost exertion of two men, to prevent her from rushing on deck with a view of ascending herself. In the mean time, many plans were tried to lure the culprit from his berth above; but finding all to fail, the captain as a dernier resort, ordered every man to conceal himself below. The order was promptly obeyed, and Captain C. himself quietly took his station in the cabin chair, where he could see all that passed, without being seen. This plan happily succeeded, for the monkey on perceiving that the coast was clear, cautiously descended from his lofty perch, and replaced the infant on the sofa, cold and fretful; and frightened indeed, but in every other respect as free from harm as when he took it up.—The humane seamen had now a most grateful task to perform; the babe was restored to its mother's arms, amidst tears and thanks, and prayers and blessings, thanks to man for his sympathy and aid, and deep gratitude to that Divine Being, whose arm, though unseen, had shielded the innocent, amidst pains and perils, such as perhaps never before impended over the head of a creature so young.

[From the New Orleans Crescent City, 18th inst.]

THE GAINES CASE.

This interesting action commenced yesterday morning, with the Judge remarking that he did not see any of the plaintiff's counsel. General Gaines rose and observed that he and his lady would undertake to argue their own cause. The judge then wished to know if they were anxious that their counsel should be sent for, remarking that the General's observation led him to believe that he (the General) deemed the attendance of his legal advisers as a matter quite unimportant.

Gen. Gaines replied that he was not anxious that his counsel should be sent for, alleging as a reason the set of Col. Peyton having been compelled to withdraw from the case, owing to the refusal of the court to allow him to proceed.

Mrs. Gaines then rose, and said she had not concluded her argument—but the judge informed her that the court was in session for the purpose of hearing the evidence, and the evidence only, which could be brought to bear directly upon the case then—argument. He objected to hearing Mrs. G., on the plea that her attempt at justification was entirely foreign to the question then in debate.

Gen. Gaines then objected to his honor, Judge Buchanan sitting to judge this case.

Judge—"You certainly have a right to raise the objection, but it being customary that all such objections should be made in writing, you will please conform to the rules. If you are not aware of the form of the document, I shall be happy, in the absence of your counsel, to afford you any information on the subject." The General thanked his honor, and said he would take the liberty of requesting the clerk to write his objections.

His honor immediately assented, and the General commenced dictating his objections to the clerk. At this moment, Mr. Roselius, the attorney, made some remarks, at which particular juncture of affairs the General very gallantly desired Mr. R. to "attend to his own business."

Judge Buchanan then asked if he had any further evidence to offer in the matter. Gen. Gaines consulted his lady, and addressing the court, said that "she also objected on the grounds that our counsel have been compelled to abandon the suit, because you denied them a hearing, and object to hearing her." The General was greatly surprised at the conduct of Major Barton, but (pointing to Mr. Roselius,) said "he was not surprised at any thing that"—

The judge here interrupted him, and said that no personal allusion would be allowed in court.

Judge B. now requested an officer to desire Mr. Chinn to appear in Court as a witness, stating that he intended to prove by that gentleman that he (Mr. Chinn,) was aware of his (Judge B.) having presented a demurrer to the U. S. District Court, upon which the objection was raised, at the time of Mr. C's presenting his answer for the defendants, Gen. Gaines and his wife in the suit.

After some bandying which was useless on both sides, Gen. Gaines remarked that he hoped the time would shortly come, when his wife's example would be followed by thousands of her sex—that he hoped to see the grand moral revolution through which women would be allowed to argue and transact their civil affairs, and men to attend to more important duties.

Mrs. Gaines now commenced reading her statement. After reading for some time, the judge said that he could not allow so much time to be occupied in the recital of arguments entirely foreign to the case at issue, which was, whether he was competent to judge the suit, upon the grounds expressed in the first place, viz: "his having been connected with the defendants' counsel in 1837." There was an explosion of small artillery between the parties, and the jury were then discharged, with the following substance of a remark from the judge. "He would employ himself during the remainder of the day in consulting legal authorities as to his competency, &c.

If he found himself justified in pursuing his present course, the case would be terminated to-morrow; and if not, the jury would be discharged, and the suit removed to another court."

Three of the drivers, Kingsley, King, and Kingsbury, are in custody at Detroit, on suspicion of being concerned in robbing the mail at different places in Michigan during last winter. They have been committed for further examination, but whether any thing has been elicited to implicate them, we have not as yet heard.

The assistant Post Master at Cambridge, says the Detroit Free Press, has also been arrested and recognized to appear before the Dist. Judge at the next ensuing term. We also learn that the driver now in prison has acknowledged to Mr. McHatton, Mr. Brown and the District Attorney that he did rob the mail, and was assisted to do so by the said Assistant P. M. at Cambridge, who, it is believed, was in reality the greatest offender.

ALUMINOUS SALTS. It is stated in the Cincinnati Times that "the body of Gen. Wayne, who died 30 or 40 years ago, at Erie, Pa. and was buried near the Lake, was recently disinterred and removed by his son, and was found to be in a very perfect state of preservation. Those who had known the General recognized his features at once. This extraordinary preservation is accounted for in Silliman's Journal, by the fact that the body had been buried in argilalcious soil, strongly impregnated with a solution of alum."

In relation to the late rumored accident to the Britannia the Boston Mail of the 24th, says:

It is remarkable that no letters or information of an authentic character have been received at the Agency in Boston, notwithstanding the regular mail for St. John's did not leave Halifax until the morning after the Britannia is said to have arrived there.

We are convinced that if she did run on the rocks, the damage was slight; had it been otherwise, the Agent, S. S. Lewis of this city, would have received information of the circumstances. The report may have arisen from her grounding at the time she left.

DISTRESSING INTELLIGENCE FROM CANADA. The Montreal Herald of the 20th inst. mentions the report of a severe gale having occurred at the Cedars, about fifty miles from that city, which destroyed a number of rafts, and it is also said about fifty lives. The Quebec Gazette also states that the accident which occurred in Champlain, by the falling of a portion of Cape Diamond, was more disastrous than at first supposed. Twenty six persons were killed, twenty-one were saved, and six have not yet been found. A funeral procession with seventeen of the bodies proceeded on the morning of the 19th to the Roman Catholic Cathedral. The names of the unfortunate persons are published in the Gazette of that city.

TO THE PUBLIC.—The price of HATS again lowered. TOWSON is now selling in Eutaw street, one door north of Lexington street, his superior Hats at the following low prices—fine short Nap Mole Skin Hats at $2.50, fine Brush Hats $2.50; Fur Hats from $1.50 upwards. It may be asked how such Hats can be sold (if as represented) at such very low prices; I answer in the first place, I manufacture very extensively, and am able to purchase materials by the quantity much lower than if I bought by the small; and secondly, I sell for cash, and do not have to charge those who pay a high price, to make up for those who do not pay, as the natural result of the credit system. I think my Hats the best as now offered ever sold in this market for the prices. Persons will please call and look at my hats before purchasing elsewhere. Remember TOWSON, one door from Lexington street.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 27, 1841.

NEW YORK CUSTOM HOUSE. It is said that the committee appointed to investigate the concerns of the New York Custom House, have discovered frauds and other dishonest practices to an enormous amount. Corruption appears to be the order of the day, especially among banks and public officers. These acts of villany are so frequent, and the escape of the offenders so general, that they have ceased to create a sensation in the community. We may see the wealthy widow of to-day stripped of her last dollar to-morrow by the plunderer, without its arresting more than a momentary attention. The quick succession of crime appears to have paralyzed our faculties; we can hardly raise the finger to point after one villain, before we have to change its position in the direction of another. And are these things to continue? Shall the criminals still be permitted to escape? have we laws to punish the offenders? Where are the numerous government officers who have robbed the public? Gone to Texas or walking at liberty! Where are the plunderers of the Banks? Following at the heels of the public officers. They snap their fingers at justice and defy its power. And now we are probably about to add new recruits to the population of Texas from the Custom House at New York. There must be laws to punish men who violate their trusts, and thus rob the public and institutions. Why are they not enforced? The petty scoundrel is pursued from state to state, and when caught is punished with severity. The wholesale robber goes unmolested. If criminal acts be established against any of the Custom House officers of New York, we hope that Government will not be content with an exposure of their villany, but will have them punished with the utmost severity of the law. An example is absolutely necessary to check the onward progress of crime. In every instance where a public officer appropriates the government funds to his own use, or where he fails to make punctual settlements, he should be promptly dismissed and punished. No pretext should be admitted as a sufficient apology for neglecting regular settlements. If the new administration will insist on a rigid adherence to duty in every particular on the part of public officers, and dismiss them from service when negligent, and punish them when dishonest, they will deserve well of the country, and have the country well served. The examinations now going on in New York, would seem to indicate such to be their intention, and we hope that such will prove to be the fact.

We have spoken repeatedly of the causes of the great increase of crime; but we must repeat, that if the disposition to extravagance and speculation be not restrained, offences must continue to multiply. The man who risks thousands when he is not worth hundreds—or who spends a shilling where he earns only a penny, is not likely to be careful of the mode of supplying the deficiency; and will sometimes descend to become a rogue sooner than relinquish the false position he has assumed in society. The gentleman will act honestly and labor to pay his debts—and such a man in a threadbare coat is preferable to the knave in embroidery. We should distrust the honesty of any man whose style of living was beyond his means; and whenever public or bank officers, or others having the custody of funds not their own, are seen thus exceeding their proper limits, those interested cannot be too quick in having an investigation.

FRONT STREET THEATRE STRUCK BY LIGHTNING. During the thunder storm on Tuesday afternoon, about five o'clock, the conductor attached to the Front Street Theatre was struck by lightning. The fluid passed down the spout, shattered a number of windows and shook the whole building to its foundation. Several of the actors, musicians, and those engaged otherwise, were in and about the house at the time, three or four of whom were very seriously stunned, and knocked down by the shock. The cupola was somewhat injured. A little child which had been playing in Low street, was so affected by the concussion of the elements as to drop down upon the pavement. Many of the neighbors, in the immediate vicinity of the establishment, we learn, felt the shock very sensibly. We are happy in stating, however, that no serious injury was sustained by any one. This was certainly a miraculous escape, and adds another proof of the benefits resulting from the use of lightning conductors.

MONEY MARKET—May 25, 1841. The stock of the United states Bank has advanced (says the Philadelphia Chronicle,) and the closing sales at the Board were 21¼. Our citizens seem to be pleased at once more having a currency of small bills circulated throughout the community, and which emanate from Banks located in the State. We have too long been delayed with a mass of worthless trash from neighbouring States and the issue of bills, under the new Relief Law passed by our Legislature appears to give satisfaction to all classes of the community.

TAKEN ON SUSPICION. Yesterday a fellow named Edward Hogan, was arrested by Michael Shunk, and taken before Squire McDonald, charged with stealing a coat and two breastpins, the property of Chas. F. Wescot, at Canton. A hearing of the case was had, and the prisoner committed for farther examination.

CONGRESS. Monday next is the day appointed for the commencement of the extra session of Congress. It is hoped and expected that members will set to work and despatch whatever business may require their attention—and that they will spare their long speeches for a colder season. The friends of the administration having a majority in both branches of the national legislature, will be held responsible by the people for waste of time as well as for measures passed.

The President's message will be eagerly looked for. It is expected that it will contain some recommendation on the subject of the currency; or at least express a willingness to sanction any measure in relation to it which may be adopted by Congress. We have no doubt that he will be explicit in his approval of the distribution bill and revision of the tariff, two measures of great importance.

The strength of parties in Congress is supposed to be as follows:

Senate—Administration,		29
Opposition,		22
One vacancy.
House—Administration,		135
Opposition,		98
Uncertain,		4

RULES OF THE HOUSE. We unite with a Washington letter writer in the hope that there will be an alteration in the rules of the House. Those which have been in operation for some sessions greatly retarded the progress of business, and gave rise to scenes which excited disgust. A few plain rules would be sufficient if properly enforced; but by complicating the machinery it never can be made to work well. A great portion of the time of the House is usually wasted in the endeavors to get business before the House. It would be easy to so simplify the rules as to permit business to proceed on smoothly, and we are sure that members, as well as the nation, would find their advantage in it. All that is wanted in the formation of rules to govern a deliberative body is the application of common sense.

SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE. Among those who have been named for this important station is the Hon. William Cost Johnson, from this state. Mr. Johnson's course in Congress has been brilliant and distinguished, and the fact of his being named for the office of Speaker of the House of Representatives, proves that he possesses talents of a high order. It would be gratifying not only to his immediate constituents, but, we are convinced, to the people of Maryland generally, to see him chosen the presiding officer of the House. We are sure that he would discharge the duties of the station with dignity, ability and impartiality.

SHAMEFUL. A young and very pretty girl about 14 years of age, named Lara Ridgley, the daughter of one, who no doubt is able to support her genteelly, was yesterday brought before Squire McDonald and by him committed to the Almshouse. She was found in the street by officer Zigler, in a most destitute and pitiable condition—had in her hand a small pistol, which from the manner of her actions it was supposed she intended to use for the purpose of destroying her life. Is this not a heart rending picture? To think that a young innocent girl—one just bursting into the bloom of womanhood, shall be thus prostrated and disgraced forever—and that too in a christian land? Is the pure spotless temple of female virtue of so little account as to be thus suffered to sink in oblivion's night? Shall the flower be trampled upon by relentless humanity ere it has had time to unfold its tender leaves. Gracious heavens, is there not a breast with sympathy and a hand to save?

NEW RIFLE COMPANY. Active measures have been taken by a number of gentlemen for the formation of a new Rifle Corps, to be uniformed altogether with domestic cloth. A meeting was held at the Assembly Building on Tuesday evening, and there is every reason for believing that a full and efficient company will be organized. The object is a good one, and we recommend it to the attention of young men who are "innoculated with military ardour."

CUT IN THE FACE. A colored man named George Watkins got into a quarrel last night at the Front st. Theatre, and before the altercation closed had his face cut half off by a razor, or some sharp instrument similar to it. The knife entered above the eye and passed down the left cheek to the lower part of the chin, making a passage large enough to lay two fingers in. He was also stabbed in the side. The dispute arose about a colored woman. He was taken out to a doctor. The wounds were thought very dangerous.

THE LADY'S BOOK. We have received from Wm. N. Harrison, No. 28 North Gay Street, the June number, of this highly popular monthly. It is handsomely embellished with a steel engraving, and a plate of the fashions. We commend it to every tasteful reader.

We have also received a copy of the above work, from N. Hickman, Baltimore street.

THE PHŒNIX & BUDGET. We have received the June number of this monthly from the publishers. We have not had time to give it a careful perusal, but recommend it to the reader.

SLEWED AND VOCIFEROUS. In the Eastern District, on Tuesday night, two seamen, Daniel Ferguson and James Williams, were apprehended and locked up in the watch house, charged with being in the unpleasant condition above named. It is sincerely hoped that the gallant and indefatigable "Neptunes," who know how to do "good works," will render such assistance in the premises as will redound to the honor of all concerned.

The thermometer was 84 degrees above zero, in Hartford, Conn. on the 22d inst.

THE AMISTAD AFRICANS. These sable sons and daughters of Africa, says the Philadelphia Daily Chronicle of Wednesday, continue to excite the curiosity and attention of our citizens, especially the religious portion of them, and ladies particularly. There was another meeting of the Africans yesterday afternoon, at the Nazareth Church, in Thirteenth street, and another last evening, at the colored Presbyterian Church, in Seventh street, below Shippen. The exercises they go through with, consist of singing and spelling—Kinua addresses the audience, and holds conversations in English, and Cinque speaks in the Mendi tongue, the language of his native land. The Africans are to return shortly to their homes, accompanied by some one, or perhaps, two or more, missionaries. In appearance, they are the real bona fide African, but with countenances much more intelligent than Africans, usually have.

The Rockingham Va. Register contains an account of a horrid murder, recently committed in Rockingham, a father was murdered by his own son. This fearful crime, says the Register, "was the result of a drunken frolic, in which father, mother and son were all engaged." The murderer has been brought before an examining court, and discharged, it appearing that the father made an attack upon the son, in repelling which the fatal wound was inflicted. The son defended himself with a hoe, "a blow with which stove in the parent's skull, and laid him dead at his feet."

POLICE. Three negroes, Edw'd Hogan, Coales Aisken and John Reed, were apprehended, on on Tuesday evening, by the Police, and confined in the Middle District watch house. Yesterday morning Reed and Aisken were discharged, and Hogan committed to prison by Justice McDonald, to answer an alleged charge of felony.

Two colored vagrants were committed to the Almshouse by Justice Pennington.

An insane man, named Jeremiah Crean, was found wandering the streets yesterday morning, at 1 o'clock, in a destitute condition, and taken to the watch house. He was afterwards taken to Calverton.

GREEN MOUNT CEMETERY. We learn from a pargraph in the American of yesterday, that "the Managers have acted with most liberal spirit in granting tickets of admission to the large number of persons who daily visit the Cemetery, that they have resolved hereafter not to admit any but Lotholders, and those accompanying them, on Sundays. A due respect for the Sabbath, and the sacred character of the place, would appear to justify this course."

RAIL ROAD ACCIDENT. The cars of the Frederick city train, run off the track about two miles beyond the Relay House, coming in contact with a cow, which caused immediate death. No other accident occurred. The cars reached the city about half an hour after the usual time. We learn from one of the passengers, that sundry implements were found in the vicinity of Frederick, belonging, no doubt, to the gentlemen who helped themselves to the funds of the Bank of that city.

DISGRACEFUL. A disgraceful scene occurred on Light Street wharf, yesterday afternoon, which proved a new way to us of settling a debt. A youth was engaged to do some hauling, which, when done, was paid by the commandant by sundry kicks and blows, in the shape of Pugilism, for which the gentleman is likely to get himself into difficulty.

ACCIDENT. From the Richmond Star of the 24th we learn that on the Thursday previous, two gentlemen, Mr. Caldwell, of the White Sulphur Springs, and Mr. E. G. Davis, were thrown out of their carriage, together with the driver, and very seriously injured. To the editor of the same paper some stalks of rye have been shown measuring six feet, ten inches and a half in length.

A young man who was lately arrested by the police of New Orleans for some misdemeanor, on being made prisoner asked permission to go into his room for a moment, which was granted him. He at once opened his razor and cut his throat in a manner which leaves little hope of his recovery.—His friends are respectable.

REPORTS. Capt. Ferris, of the Westchester, arrived at New York, on Monday morning, reports that on the 15th inst. when in lat. 41, lon. 61, passed the wreck of a vessel from 500 to 600 tons, full of water—all her masts gone—had a poop deck. It being dark did not board her. Captain Flanders, of the Silas Richards, arrived on Sunday from Liverpool. On the 20th April lat. 29, 22. lon. 72. saw the wreck of a large vessel, with jib-boom and bowsprit standing.

The election in Indiana, has resulted in the choice of eight administration members of Congress and one Opposition. A Van Buren man has been elected in the district last represented by Rariden, Whig.

FANNY IS COMING. The Elssler her own self was among the passengers who arrived at Louisville, by the steamer Queen of the West on the 20th inst. She immediately left for Philadelphia.

A servant girl in the employ of Dr. Welch at Wethersfield, has confessed the crime of setting fire to his out buildings, last week, and been committed to jail.

NEW YORK AND HARLEM RAIL ROAD. We learn that this road carried on the 23d inst. upwards of five thousand passengers.

☞It is said that measles and varioloid are quite prevalent in Philadelphia at present, especially among children.

BREAKING JAIL. All the prisoners, five in number, broke jail at Amherst, N. H. on Wednesday night, and made their escape.

[COMMUNICATION.]

☞MESSRS. EDITORS—What with the confinement incident to a sedentary occupation, and the inclemency of the weather, I have been house bound for the last few months until Sunday afternoon last, when the weather having relaxed its austere character, I availed myself of its balmy influence to take a stroll around the wharves, and in my course fell in with a few friends, who were wending their way to the Steamboat Chesapeake, Capt. KENNEY, then on the eve of departing on a pleasure excursion to Dr. HOUCK'S Pavillion, at the North Point Battle Ground, head of Bear Creek. At their solicitation I joined the party, and I must confess I felt gratified that I had fallen in with my friends, for in truth I can say, I never participated in an excursion which afforded me more pleasure, or returned from one with more renovated or elastic spirits. The trip itself, after being shut up as I had been for months amidst dirty streets and brick walls, was calculated to impart new life and vigor to both body and mind. Almost every point on the beautiful Patapsco, as we moved along on its waters, brought fresh to recollection some reminiscence of the late war. On the right, as we glided onward, was Fort McHenry, which so nobly defied the enemy's bombs—on the left, we could see the remains of the Lazaretto Battery, which, under Commodore Rutter, had done our country service in the hour of its need. In looking on these two posts, so famed in the defence of Baltimore, the mind instinctively inquired, where now is the gallant Col. STEUART, who so nobly headed his men on the Beach at Fort McHenry—where the brave ARMISTEAD, its dauntless commander—where those chivalric spirits, NICHOLSON and PENNINGTON, who, at the head of their respective volunteer companies, stood out the siege, sustaining the star spangled banner with the firmness of veterans? And when the answer told they were gathered to their fathers, a patriot tear was dropt over their memories—for who could dwell upon the history of their patriot deeds, without feeling the founts of sympathy offering up tributes of gratitude to the memory of men, whose deeds of arms had endeared them to their countrymen by ties no less endearing than they will be enduring.

As the steamer entered the mouth of Bear Creek, we beheld North Point, and there too we recollected that that was the point at which the enemy debarked its main force—that it was thence he marshalled the hostile force with which he made his "demonstration" upon Baltimore, the home of the free and the brave. And, as she neared the landing at Houck's Pavilion, we beheld the point at which a force of some fifteen hundred mariners and sailors had landed on the day of battle—a force which, but for the accidental grounding of their boats, would have been in our rear long before the action had ended; and who, as it was, fired upon a portion of our troops as they retreated. All these circumstances came fresh to my mind on the occasion, and as I stepped on shore at the Pavilion, I was enabled to realize how different were my feelings then, engaged in a visit of pleasure and peace, to what they were twenty-seven years ago, when I had gone there as a citizen soldier, to defend my loved home and all that I held dear. But these reflections, and the sensations they excited, were promptly dispelled by the courteous reception which we received from the host of the Pavilion, Mr. HENRY HOUCK, whose best efforts, as well as those of his amiable and accomplished lady, were exerted to render our sojourn pleasant and agreeable, and as a mere matter of justice, I will say that, although the company on board the Chesapeake was large, embracing many of both sexes, of all ages, and of great respectability, and that there were many there when we arrived, who had availed themselves of the beautiful drive to reach there in carriages of various kinds and on horseback, none left there who were not delighted with the beauties of the place, and the bland and winning attentions of its excellent Proprietor. The Pavilion itself, as well as its appliances, are of the most convenient and tasteful character. Fancy to yourself a commodious house, situated on the margin of a bold and picturesque sheet of water, surrounded by a lovely grove of native trees, interspersed with exotics of the most ornamental varieties; boats in abundance, provided with all the implements necessary in a piscatory expedition—an agreeable landlord, a well stored bar and larder; a Creek at hand in whose bosom swims the most choice of the finny tribe, and you may conclude with me, that Isaak Walton might indulge his passion there to his heart's content.

For myself I can avouch, that I never spent an equal number of hours with more pleasurable emotions, and there was but one sentiment—it was that of delight when we heard that Capt. Kinney means to ply the Chesapeake twice a day between Baltimore and the Pavilion, every Sunday during the season; for all acknowledged that the decorum, good fare and hospitality of the place were such as merited patronage.

There was but one circumstance during the evening that cast a gloom upon the minds of any of the numerous company. It was this:—A small party of us visited the site of the intended Monument, whose foundation was laid some twenty months ago, and we were filled with regret and shame, when we learned, that although the patriotic proprietor of the ground had, at the time, given a deed to the State of Maryland of an acre of land to be appropriated to the monument, nothing more had been done towards its completion than the consigning of a granite block to the earth, and that from present prospects, there was no reason to believe that the patriotic fervor of our people would not subside there. Can such things be, and not excite our special wonder? Can it be possible that the people of Baltimore will permit such a blot to remain upon their escutcheons? I will not harbor the thought, that after commencing a monument to the memory of those who stood between them and desolation—who risked their lives and all they held dear, in defence of our firesides, our wives and daughters—that the citizens of Baltimore will permit its foundation stone to remain unimproved, to tell the inglorious tale, that patriotism has fled to some more congenial clime.

m27-1t* A DEFENDER OF BALTIMORE.

☞Mr. EDITOR—Having been an old traveller, I think it a duty I owe to the public and an enterprizing Landlord, to inform them where they can be handsomely accommodated, when they, like myself, arrive in a strange city. I left Vicksburg for this city about two months ago, and being an entire stranger, I by accident put up at the Eagle Hotel, opposite the Rail Road Depot, kept by WM. WHITMAN, and I must say the gentlemanly deportment of the Proprietor, his most excellent table, and politeness of the servants, are above all praise. I therefore take pleasure in recommending him to the public, particularly to my friends in Vicksburg and the Mississippi.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

THE ROBBERY OF THE FREDERICK COUNTY BANK. The Frederick Examiner of yesterday contains the following particulars in relation to this extensive and extraordinary robbery:

"The Bank was entered, it is thought, on Saturday night last. A key was found in the creek, near the City Mill, on Sunday morning. A dark lantern of rude construction was also found. The key was filed off and filled up till it was made to fit the lock of the exterior door of the bank quite as well as the key which belonged to it. The lamp does not seem as if it had been the production of a workman, and looks as if it had been in service before. We understand that two men were seen taking a box to the corner of the bank and seating themselves upon it for the purpose, doubtless, of keeping watch while the robbers were progressing with their work. A spur, with the strap broken, was found in the vault.

"The progress of the robbers was obstructed by seven locks, some of them of the most complex construction. The street door must have been entered some time since, and the villains have been at work, doubtless, in discovering the secret springs of the three locks in the outer door of the vault, and in taking impressions for the purpose of making suitable keys.

"All the contents of the iron chest, in the vault, were taken without any discrimination—including some of the issues of the Frederick corporation, notes that were laid aside as unfit for use in consequence of being worn out, &c. Of the silver, none of which was in the chest, they took but ten dollars.

"This is one of the boldest and largest robberies that we have ever heard of, and the excitement and commotion which it has caused in our quiet town is such as we have never seen here before.

"Persons and handbills have been despatched in various directions for the purpose of effecting the apprehension of the robbers.

"Many persons suspect, and there are circumstances which justify the suspicion, that the robbers have gone to the South West. It would be well that the police in that and in all directions should keep a careful look out.

"The doors of the bank were immediately closed upon the detection of the robbery. The capital paid in was $175,000, and the amount of funds of every description taken is a few thousand dollars more than the capital paid in."

TO THE PUBLIC.

To afford all the information in my power, in reference to the robbery committed on the Frederick county Bank, I have thought it proper to submit the following statement on oath, as to the manner in which I have kept the keys to the bank. HENRY DOYLE, Cashier.

I have been engaged in the Frederick County Bank as Teller and Cashier ever since its establishment, which was in the year 1818. I have always had charge of the keys of the Banking room, and the vaults of the Bank, since I have become Cashier, which was in 1833. It has been my invariable custom to conceal in private places in the Bank and vaults, all the keys except my key to the outer door of the house and two of the keys of the door of the outer vault, which commands the entrance to the vault, in which all the funds and valuable books, papers and deposits are kept, and on which outer vault door the greatest reliance for security is placed. These two keys to the outer vault I always took home, immediately after closing the Bank at the usual hour in the evening, and locked them up in a small drawer in the family sitting room of my residence. The key of that drawer I kept myself, and the room was always carefully secured at night. The key to the outer door of the Banking House, I at all times, kept about me in my pocket. On last Saturday evening after closing the Bank, the keys were disposed of by me as usual. On Monday morning I unlocked the drawer in which I had deposited the keys, and found them there, and as I had put them. I went to the Bank according to custom, and when I entered every thing, to outward appearance was as I had left it, on closing the previous Saturday: the keys to the Bank were where I had put them and I was not made sensible that a robbery had been committed until I opened the iron chest in the inner vault, and found that its whole contents were gone. I would also mention that the Bookkeeper and the porter to the Bank, each keep a key to the outer or front door of the Banking House, as well as myself. I will further add that I have never missed out of my own possession, or from the places in which I have deposited them, any of the keys of the Bank under my charge. HENRY DOYLE, Cashier.

On this 25th day of May, 1841, Henry Doyle, the cashier of the Frederick County Bank, appeared before the subscriber, one of the Associate Judges of the Fifth Judicial District of the State of Maryland, and made oath on the Holy Evangely of Almighty God that the aforegoing statement is true. AB'M SHRIVER.

FROM HAVANA. A letter says:—I have seen letters from Havana to the 8th. They notice the arrival of four thousand troops from Spain, sent for the purpose of protecting the island from the movements of the abolitionists. They are doubtless intended as a safeguard against the rumored invasion of British troops, and black bands from Jamaica.

CAUTION TO MOTHERS. A little girl living at No. 20 Chambers street, New York, was thrown into severe convulsions, produced by fright, on being shut up in a dark room as punishment.—Doubts were entertained for some time of her recovery.

FANNY WRIGHT. This lady has arrived at New York from London, but whether on a special political mission, or for religious purposes we have not ascertained.

☞Green, the mate of the Mogul, has been held to bail in $3000, which he had given.—Capt. Snow had not yet been taken.

CITY MORTALITY. There were 122 interments in New York last week. In Philadelphia there were 111.

We are gratified in being able to state that the Hon. Caleb Cushing, has recovered from his late severe indisposition.

TWO CHARMING PERIODICALS. 1st No. of a New Volume of the Ladies' Companion. Opinions of the Press, viz: New World.

The Knickerbocker for this month is out punctually on the first, and it is full to overflowing with good things. That capital story, the Country Doctor—far superior to the majority of the continuations in the English Magazines—goes on more amusingly than before. The number is embellished with a curious and appropriate engraving of "a Dutch Cottage in Beaver street, 1679."

The May number of the Ladies' Companion is embellished with a steel engraving that would do no discredit to Finden's Galleries. It is exceedingly beautiful, and is entitled "The Young Chief's First Ride." Such embellishments alone entitle this various and excellently edited magazine to the bountiful patronage with which it is favored. We notice certain typographical improvements in this number, which are indications of the good taste of the proprietor.

The literary merit of the Ladies' Companion seems to increase rather than diminish—and, with the editorial labors which are now bestowed upon it, it cannot fail to be pronounced highly creditable to the literature of the country.

TERMS—Knickerbocker, $5 per year, or $1.25 quarterly. Ladies' Companion, $3 per year, or 25 cts. each number. Single numbers for sale at

WEBB'S PATENT BURNERS, AND CAMPHINE OIL.

FOR SALE AT No. 109 E. BALTIMORE STREET, between South and Calvert streets, where Burners of every description can be obtained. Those who are sceptical as to its safety or economy, would, I trust be perfectly satisfied by examining the opinion of Professor LOCK, of Ohio, on "WEBB'S CAMPHINE," or by referring to the Journals of the Franklin and American Institutes, of Philadelphia and New York. All those desirous of obtaining a clean, brilliant, and economical light, will find it really to their advantage by calling on the subscriber. The public may be assured of one fact, that we require no meters to ascertain the amount of Camphine consumed, as they register correctly and in plain English.

P. AUGUSTUS BAILEY, Agent
For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

DEAR SIR—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILBY,
mh19-tf Fifth Ward Hotel.

BALTIMORE LOCK DISPENSARY,

"NO CURE NO PAY."

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, is its well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors, by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

Persons residing at any distance, can have medicine sent to them, packed secure from observation.

It was out of pure motives of philanthropy, that this medicine was first made public; the price always to remain $1 per Bottle, to be within the reach of the most unfortunate.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS AND VEGETABLE BITTERS.

THE perfectly safe, unerring and successful treatment of almost every species of disease by the use of MOFFAT'S LIFE MEDICINES, is no longer a matter of doubt, as a reference to the experience of many thousand patients will satisfactorily prove. During the present month alone, nearly one hundred cures have come to the knowledge of Mr. Moffat, where the patient has, to all appearance, effected a permanent cure by the extensive and judicious use of the Life Medicines—some eight or ten of these had been considered beyond all hope by their medical attendants.—Such happy results are a source of great pleasure to Mr. M. and inspire him with new confidence to recommend the use of his medicines to his fellow citizens.

The Life Medicines are a purely VEGETABLE preparation. They are mild and pleasant in their operation, and at the same time thorough—acting rapidly upon the secretions of the system—carrying off all acrimonious humors, and assimilating with and purifying the blood. For this reason, in aggravated cases of dyspepsia, the Life Medicines will give relief in a shorter space of time than any other prescription; in Fever-and-ague, Inflammation, Fevers of every description, Sick headache, heartburn dizziness in the head, pains in the chest, flatulency, impaired appetite, in every disease arising from an impurity of the blood, or a disordered state of the stomach, the use of these medicines has always proved to be beyond doubt greatly superior to any other mode of treatment.

All that Mr. Moffat asks of his patients is to be particular in taking them strictly according to the directions. It is not by a newspaper notice, or by any thing that he himself may say in their favor, that he hopes to gain credit, it is alone by the results of a fair trial. Is the reader an invalid, and does he wish to know whether the life medicines will suit his own case? If so let him call or send to Mr. Moffat's agent in this place, and procure a copy of the Medical Manual, designed as a domestic guide to health, published gratuitously. He will here find enumerated very many extraordinary cases of cure; and perhaps some exactly similar to his own. Moffat's medical office in New York, 375 Broadway, and for sale by the Agents. JAS. DAVIES' FAMILY PILLS.

[From Captain PARRISH, who commenced to use them when diseased in August, 1839.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 2, 1840.

☞To DR. DAVIES: Dear Sir—I have had experience in the virtue of your Pills, sufficient to recommend them as a superior cathartic and excellent carminative, and also as a family medicine that every one should be in possession of. There is no doubt that if persons and families generally were acquainted with their efficacy, they might save many a dollar now paid for doctor's bills. Yours respectfully,
E. PARRISH.

HARPER'S FERRY, August 11, 1840.

DR. WM. DAVIES: Dear Sir—I am happy to inform you and the public, that I have been cured of that dreadful disease the Rheumatism, by taking your Family Pills. I had been laboring under that disease for more than a year, during which time I tried the skill of our best physicians without effect; at length I was induced to try your medicine—I found relief after taking half a box, I continued to take them until I had taken five boxes; my age is 71 years, and I consider that none but the old and rheumatic persons know how grateful I feel to the medicine that has restored me to health. Yours, respectfully, JOHN DYE.

We, the undersigned, are agents at Harper's Ferry for the sale of Dr. Davies' Family Pills, know our neighbour, Mr. Dye, said him the pills of which he speaks so highly, and believe his statement to be substantially true. Respectfully,

CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold; having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption, I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. Please publish this certificate, with my name in full, that others may know where to find the greatest blessing on earth.

THE SEAMAN'S TOAST.

Come messmates, sit 'round and we'll taste jolly glee-
a-bit,
Our ship flies along—how her canvass-wings glow!
I'm a true Yankee tar, that has roved the wild sea-a-bit,
And I never let care press a shipmate, you know,
Then tilt up the can, 'tis the hour for mirth,
While the blue curling billows are lashing our lee—
While each tar toasts his lass and the land of his birth,
I'll give you "COLUMBIA, THE LAND OF THE FREE."

Where sprang Hull, Decatur & Lawrence, whose souls,
Were as tough as the timbers they steer'd o'er the main—
Where the rod of a despot no mortal controls,
Where freedom and valor warm every vein,
Then tilt up the can, tho' we're far on the wave,
Thro' fancy's bri,ht spy-glass our lov'd land we see;
Then a rope's end to tyrants let's drink—"may God save
The Green home of true hearts—the land of the free."

When nature saw man prove to Freedom untrue,
And blast her fair earth with the sceptre and chain,
This fair little world she concealed from his view,
Till she form'd a band worthy her favourite plain,
From the great port aleft, then in glory's bright flood,
To christen this spot, came a heavenly she—
Who sprinkl'd its soil with a patriot's blood,
And nam'd it in rapture "The land of the Free."
Then tilt up the can, boys, and here's to each soul
That's resolved to a mortal he'll ne'er bend a knee—
Come, drink, the loud ocean shall to our toast roll,
"God pro.per Columbia the land of the free."

MARK MERIDEN.

BY MRS. H. E. E. STOWE.

"Come, Mark Meriden! don't settle down into an old grandfather before your time—a pretty wife's a pretty thing, Mark, and a pretty house is a pretty thing—but hang it!—one must have a little of life."

Mark Meriden stood at his desk, giving a last look at his books, while Ben Sanford—the roguish—the merry—the song singing—the Ben of all Bens, was thus urging on him the claims of a projected frolic that evening. Now Ben was precisely the messenger for such an embassy—there was fun in the twinkle of his blue eye, and a world of waggery in the turn of his head, and in a pair of broad roguish dimples that went merrily dodging in and out of his cheeks every time he spoke, and he had laid hold of Mark's arm to drag him away. But Mark shook off his hand, and finished summing up a column of figures—put the blotting paper into the book, and the book into the place, wiped his pen—all with an air of great thoughtfulness—and, at last, turning to Ben, said—"I think I won't go this time."

"Now why not," said Ben, eagerly.

"Because—because," said Mark, smiling; "because I have an odd fancy that I should like Mrs. Meriden's company better this evening."

"Hang Mrs. Meriden—beg pardon, Mark—hang myself for saying so—but one don't like to see a fine fellow buried alive!—come, take a real wake up with us."

"Thank you Ben, but I havn't been asleep and don't need it. So I'll go home and see my wife;" and thereat Mark turned a resolute footstep homeward as a well trained husband ought.

"Now," says one of our readers, "who was Mark Meriden?" You would not have asked, good reader, if you had lived in the town of ——, when his name first appeared on the outside of one of its most fashionable shops "Mark Meriden" surrounded by those waving insignia of grace and fashion that young belles need to have their eyes turned off from beholding. Every thing in the tasteful establishment told of well arranged business, and Mark himself, the mirror of fashion, faultless in every article of costume, quick, attentive, polite, was every day to be seen there winning "golden opinions from all sorts of people." Mark's shop became the resort of high ton—the fashionable exchange, the promenade of beauty and wealth, who came there to be enlightened as to the ways and means of disposing of their surplus revenue—to see and to be seen. So attentive, polite and considerate was Mark, so profound his bows, so bright his eyes, so unexceptionable his whiskers, that it might have proved a dangerous resort for the ladies, had not a neat, tasteful house, going up in the neighborhood, been currently reported as the future residence of an already elected Mrs. Meriden; and in a few months, the house neatly finished, and tastefully furnished, received a very pretty lady, who called herself to that effect. She was as truly refined and lovely a woman as ever formed the centre flower in a domestic bouquet, and Mark might justly be pardoned for having as good again an opinion of himself for having been fortunate enough to secure her.

Mark had an extensive circle of business and pleasure acquaintances, for he had been one of the social, companionable sort, whose money generally found its way out of his pocket in very fair proportion to the rate it came in. In short, he was given to clubs, oyster suppers, and now and then a wine party, and various other social privileges for elevating one's spirits and depressing one's cash, that abound among enlightened communities.

But nevertheless, at the bottom of Mark's head, there was a very substantial stratum of a certain quality called common sense, a trait, which though it was never set down in any chart of phrenology, may very justly be called a faculty, and one too which makes a very striking difference among people as the world goes. In consequence of being thus constituted, Mark, when he found himself in love with, and engaged to a very pretty girl, began to reflect with more than ordinary seriousness on his habits, ways, and manners of life. He also took an accurate survey of his business, formed an average estimate of his future income on the soberest probabilities, and determined to live a little even within that. He also provided himself with a small account book, with which he intended to live in habits of very close acquaintance, and in this book he designed to note down all the savings consequent upon the retrenching of certain little extras, before alluded to, in which he had been in the habit of pretty freely indulging himself.

Upon the present occasion, it had cost him something of an effort to say "no," for Mark was one of your easy "clever fellows," to whom the enunciation of this little syllable causes as much trouble as all the gutturals of the German. However, when he came in sight of his parlour windows through which the bright fire was shining—when he entered and found the clean glowing hearth, the easy chair drawn up in front, and a pair of embroidered slippers waiting for him quite at their leisure, and above all, when he read the quick glance of welcome in a pair of very bright eyes, Mark forgot all about Ben Sanford, and all bachelor friends and allurements whatsoever, and thought himself the happiest fellow on earth.

The evening past off rapidly by the help of music, reading, and the little small talk of which newly married people generally find a supply, and the next morning saw Mark at early business hours with as steady a hand and as cool a head as if there had been no such thing as bachelor frolicks in existence.

Late in the forenoon, Ben Sanford lounged in to ogle a few of the ladies, and above all, to rally Mark on losing the glorious fun of the evening before.

"Upon my word, Mark," he began, "we must have you put up for Selectman, you are becoming so extremely ancient and venerable in your ways, however, you are to be excused," he added, "circumstances considered—female influence!—ah!—well! it's a fine affair this marriage!"

"Better try it, Mr. Sanford," said a bright saucy girl, who, with her laughing companions, was standing by while Ben was speaking.

"Ah, madam! the wherewithal!" said Ben, rolling up his eyes with a tragic expression. "If some clever old fellow would be so obliging as to die now, and leave me a few thousands—then ladies! you should see!"

"But speaking of money," said Mark, when he saw the ladies busy over some laces he had just thrown on to the counter—"what did your 'glorious fun' cost you?"

"Pooh!—nothing!—only a ten dollar bill—nothing in my purse, you know?"

"Nothing in your purse?—not an uncommon incident after these occasions," said Mark, laughing.

"Oh, hang it all!" said Ben—"too true!—I can get no remedy for this consumption of the purse, as old Falstaff says; however, the world owes me a living, and so good morning!"

Ben Sanford was just one of that class of young men of whom common report goes, that they can do any thing they please, and who consider this point as so well established, that they do not think it necessary to illustrate it by doing any thing at all. He was a lawyer of talents, and would have had an extensive run of business, had he not been one of the class of people never to be found when wanted. His law books and law office saw far less of him than certain fashionable places of resort, where his handsome person and various social accomplishments always secured to him a welcome reception. Ben had some little property left him by his father, just enough, as he used laughingly to quote, "to keep him in gloves and cologne water," and for the rest, he seemed vastly contented with his old maxim, "the world owes me a living," forgetting that the world can sometimes prove as poor a paymaster as the most fashionable young gentleman going.

But to return to Mark. When he had settled his accounts at night, he took from a pigeon-hole in his desk, the little book aforenamed, and entered as follows: "To one real wake up, $10," which being done, he locked his desk, and returned once more to Mrs. Meriden.

Days flew on, and the shop of Mark became increasingly popular, and still from time to time he was assailed by the kind of temptation we have described. Now it was, "Mark, my dear fellow, do join us in a trip to G—'s;" and now, "Come, my old boy, let us have a spree at F—'s;"—now it was the club, now the oyster supper—but still Mark was invincible, and still as one or another gaily recounted the history of the scene, he silently committed the account of the expense to his little book. Yet was not Mark cynical or unsocial. His refusals, though so firm, were invariably good-natured, and though he could not be drawn abroad, yet he was unquestionably open-handed and free in his own home. No house had so warm a welcome—no dinner table could be more bountiful or more freely open for the behoof of all gentlemen of the dining-out order—no tea-table presented more unexceptionable toast, and no evening lounge was more easy, home-like and cheerful, than on the warm sofas in the snug parlors of Mark Meriden. They also gave evening parties, where all was brilliant, tasteful, and well ordered; and, in fine, notwithstanding his short comings, Mark was set down as a fine open-handed fellow after all.

At the end of the year, Mark cast up the account in his little book, and was mightily astonished at it, for with all his ideas of the power of numbers, he had no idea that the twos, and fives, and tens, and ones, which on greater or smaller occasions, had found their way into his columns, would mount up to a sum so considerable. Mark looked about him—the world was going well—his business machinery moving in exact touch and time—his house—where was there a prettier one?—where a place more replete with every home-drawing comfort? Had he lost any thing in pleasure the year past? Mark thought not, and therefore as he walked homeward, he stepped into a bookseller's and ordered some books of superb engravings for Mrs. Meriden, and spoke to a gardener to send some elegant flowering exotics for which he had heard her express an admiration some evenings before.

That same evening came in Ben Sanford, as he expressed it, "in the very depths of indigo," for young gentlemen whose worldly matters invariably go on a wrong end foremost, will sometimes be found in this condition, however exuberant may be their stock of animal spirits.

"Pray, Ben, what is the matter?" said Mark kindly, as the latter stretched himself at length, in an armchair, groaning audibly.

"Oh, a bilious attack—Mark!—shoemakers' bills!—tailors' bills!—boarding house bills!—all sent in for new year's presents!—hang 'em all!"

Mark was silent for a few moments, and Ben continued, "Confound it, Mark! what's the use of living, if a fellow is to be so cursedly poor!—Here you, Mark, born in the same town with me, and younger than I am by some two years—you, have a house, as snug, as cosy, and comfortable as man need ask—a wife like an angel—peace and plenty by the bushel, and all comes of having a good run of luck in the money line"—and Ben kicked his slippers against the andirons most energetically.

"What has become of Emily P——?" asked Mark, after a pause.

"Poor soul!" said Ben, "there she is yet, with all sweetness and patience, waiting till such a luckless scapegrace as I can give her a home and a husband. I wish to my soul, for her sake, I could afford to be married, and have a home of my own; besides, to tell you the truth, I am tired of this rambling, scrambling, out-at-elbow, slipshod life."

"Why don't you get married?" said Mark.

"Why don't I? to be sure—are my tailor's bills for fuel, and my board bill for house rent, and my shoe bill for bread and butter—hey? Would you recommend a poor girl to try me, Mark—all things considered?" said Ben, bitterly.

Mark reflected awhile in silence, and then drew out his book—his little book, to which we have before alluded.

"Just look at this account, Ben," said he, "I know you hate figures, but just for once."

Ben glanced at it impatiently—laughed when he read over the two or three first items, but his face lengthened as he proceeded, and Mark detected a sort of whistle of astonishment as he read the sum total.

"Well, Mark," he exclaimed, "what a very old gentlemanly, considerate trick is this of yours—to sit behind your curtain so coolly noting down the 'cost and come to' of all our little frolics—really it is most edifying! How much you must have enjoyed your superior discretion and forethought, and Ben laughed, but not with his usual glee.

"Nay, you mistake," said Mark. "I kept this account merely to see what I had been in the habit of spending myself, and as you and I have been always hand and glove in every thing, it answers equally for you. It was only yesterday that I summed up the account, and I assure you the result suprised myself; and now Ben, the sum here set down, and as much more as you please, is freely at your disposal, to clear off old scores for the year, provided you will accept with it this little book as a new year's gift, and use it one twelve-month as I have done; and if at the end of that time you are not ready to introduce me to Mrs. Sanford, I am much mistaken."

Ben grasped his friend's hand—but just then the entrance of Mrs. Meriden prevented his reply—Mark however saw with satisfaction that he put the book carefully in his vest pocket, and buttoned up his coat with the air of a man who is buttoning up a new resolution.

When they parted for the night, Mark said with a smile, "In case of bilious attacks, you know where to send for medicine." Ben answered only by a fervent grasp of the hand, for his throat felt too full for him to answer.

Mark Meriden's book answered the purpose admirably. In less than two years Ben Sanford was the most popular lawyer in ——, and as steady a householder as you might wish to see, and, in conclusion, as this is a Lady's Book, we will just ask our lady readers their opinion on one point, and it is this:

If Mrs. Meriden had been a woman who understood what is called "catching a beau," better than securing a husband—if she had never curled her hair except for company, and thought it a degradation to know how to keep a house comfortable, would all these things have happened?

THE METHODIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF NEW YORK. The number of missionaries in the Society's service abroad is 62—the number of members in their churches 5106, and 2000 children in the Mission Schools. In the Domestic Mission service are 302 missionaries, with 42,104 church members and 6040 children. The total is thus: 364 missionaries in the employ of the Society, 47,210 members of their churches, and 8040 children attending their schools. Of the church members at these Domestic Missionary Stations, 3341 are Indians, 12,490 colored, and 31,379 whites. The report of the treasurer at the commencement of the fiscal year was $4098.18; the amount received during the year, $151,507.69, making a total of receipts of $155,605.87. The amount paid foreign missionaries $48,743.26; paid domestic missionaries $68,740.10; Incidental expenses $8,954.66; Notes, Drafts, &c. $32,271.63; making the total disbursements $158,698.05, thus leaving a balance against the treasury of $3,029.18. Adding to this, $21,454.19 borrowed by the treasurer, the whole amount of the Society's indebtedness will be $24,483.37. The report urged renewed and vigorous exertions to free the Society from this load of debt.

A CHINESE MUSICIAN. But I may mention one musician who, for simplicity of apparatus, could not be surpassed. He ate his rice with a modicum of meat, fish, &c. when he could get them, out of a blue and white saucer, by the help of two chop-sticks, which were two pieces of wood squared and colored. These, as the reader knows, are but a wooden knife and fork in their original simplicity; and on this occasion served the purpose of a musical instrument of dining utensils at pleasure. He held the saucer in his left hand, and placing one stick between the ring and middle finger, was enabled to move and strike it upon the bottom of the vessel as the rythm required. With the right hand he held the other stick, and rolled it upon the edge of the saucer, or beat it with a springing stroke in a fantastic and playful manner. This formed the accompaniment to a song with a quivering and plaintive air, which seemed to afford the auditors great pleasure, who listened with that help from association which the poor foreigner lacked, and which, after all, is one of the main ingredients of all our pleasurable feelings.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 28, 1841.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. Difference of opinion exists, as to whether the president pro-tem. of the Senate shall be considered as merely the acting vice-president, without assuming the title, or is entitled to take the appellation and discharge all the duties of vice-president. A very able letter appears in yesterday's National Intelligencer addressed by the hon. George Poindexter, late U. S. Senator, to the hon. Samuel L. Southard, president pro-tem. of the Senate—in which the writer goes into a long, lucid, and to our minds, convincing argument, to show that Mr. Southard, as president pro-tem. of the Senate, must succeed to the office, duties and title of vice-president, in the same manner as Mr. Tyler succeeded General Harrison in the office of president of the United States. Common sense would dictate this construction of the constitution, and Mr. Poindexter has clearly pointed out the inconsistencies and inconveniences which would arise from a different interpretation. The vice-president of the United States is the presiding officer of the Senate, but has no vote, excepting in case of a tie—and he receives an annual salary for his services. The president pro-tem. has a vote upon all questions, and receives per diem pay. Now, if Mr. Southard has to act in both capacities, will he be permitted to vote as president pro-tem. of the Senate, or be excluded as acting vice-president? and will he receive the pay of each office, or of which? It could not have been designed by the constitution to impose duplicate duties upon one officer, nor to give him a double salary. It seems to us very plain, that the object of the constitution in requiring the Senate to appoint a president pro-tem. was to provide a successor to the vice-president in case of his elevation to the presidency; and who, upon thus succeeding to the office of vice-president, should cease to hold his station as Senator. Every state is entitled to two Senators, and, in no contingency, can be deprived of this right. If then, Mr. Southard retain his seat in the Senate as president pro-tem. he must have his vote upon all questions—but as the constitution does not give this right to the vice-president, and, as Mr. Southard discharges all the duties of that office, we do not see how he can exceed its powers. He cannot give one vote as president pro-tem. and a casting vote as vice-president. This would be giving him a greater power than was contemplated by the constitution—nor can he choose in which capacity he will act. He cannot preside as vice-president, vote as a member of the Senate, and decline to vote on a tie as presiding officer. On an equality of votes the vice-president must vote.

From the best consideration which we have been able to give to the subject, we are of opinion that the seat of Mr. Southard in the Senate, as a member, was vacated from the moment of his succeeding to the office of vice-president; and that, at the ensuing session he will take his seat as presiding officer of that body not as president pro-tem. but in virtue of his office as vice-president of the United States; and that his state will have to fill the vacancy which has been thus created.

As this is a novel case, being the first which has occurred under our constitution, it is important that the decision should be such as to settle the question for all future practice. We presume that the Supreme Court would be the proper tribunal to fix the interpretation of the constitution; and we think that it would be well to have the decision of that department of government. It is probable that the subject will undergo immediate examination in the Senate; but the determination of that body would not be considered so satisfactory, nor, perhaps, so binding as that of the Supreme Court. We are about to set a precedent, and should be careful to leave no room for deviation from it in future time. But, to obviate all difficulty hereafter, it would be well to amend the constitution so as to prevent the possibility of misconstruction.

RELIEF BILL. The opinions of Messrs. G. M. Dallas, C. J. Ingersoll and W. L. Hirst, attorneys of Philadelphia, have been taken as to the constitutionality of the relief bill, lately passed by the legislature of Pennsylvania. They all concur in pronouncing the law to be unconstitutional.

The decision of this matter may be of importance to the citizens of Baltimore, inasmuch as the notes issued by the banks of Philadelphia in accordance with the provisions of the bill, may be extensively circulated here. The question submitted to the attorneys, was, whether the bills (bank bills) authorised by said act to be issued, are the kind of "bills of credit" prohibited by the constitution of the United States? and the reply of the attorneys, as above stated, is in the affirmative. We presume that measures will be immediately adopted to have the question submitted to judicial decision. In the mean time it would be well for banks and individuals in Maryland to decline receiving the bills thus issued.

THE SCIRE FACIAS AGAINST THE BANKS. His honor judge Earle, now holding the Court of General Sessions and Common Pleas, in Charleston, has declined hearing the argument in this case, on the very sufficient ground, that as a holder of bank stock, he is personally interested in the question. The Courier says, it is thought that Judge Butler will take cognizance of the cause.

THE ANNUAL CONVENTION of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Maryland, was opened on Wednesday, in St. Paul's Church—the Right Rev. Bishop Whittingham presiding. The Patriot of yesterday says: "The Convention re-assembled, according to adjournment, at St. Paul's Church this morning, when among other proceedings, Bishop Whittingham's annual address was made. It occupied two hours in the delivery, but was heard throughout with marked attention. It gave a full and interesting detail of the churches in his diocese, and indulged in occasional reflections in a strain of eloquence, which went to the hearts of all who heard it—particularly in that part of it in which he alluded to the death of the Rev. Dr. M'Ilhaney, formerly of Annapolis, whilst employed in the special service of the Church. The death of Gen. Harrison was also appropriately and beautifully alluded to. The number of the clergy and lay delegates in attendance is numerous. We learn from Bishop Whittingham's address, that the Fountain Rock, in Washington county, the beautiful and extensive mansion of the late General Ringgold, has been secured by the Church, and that it is in contemplation soon to open it as a Seminary for the instruction of youth."

FOREIGN PAUPERS. Europe is said to be pouring her pauper population upon our shores; and we may therefore expect a great accession of numbers to our almshouses, jails and penitentiaries. It is estimated that about five thousand emigrants will have arrived at New York alone, during the months of May and June, a large portion of whom are paupers. This is a great evil, and for which a remedy should be applied; for if the poorhouses of Europe are to be permitted to send their inmates to our country, we shall have a moral leprosy in the nation. If the general government do not act in this matter, it will become indispensible that the states shall have rigid prohibitory laws. Those at present in existence on this subject, in some of the states, appear to be evaded with great facility. We have vagrants enough in the country, native and foreign, without fresh importations. To the poor, industrious and moral emigrant the door should be kept open, but we would close it to the idle and the worthless.

A NEW AND BEAUTIFUL SUCTION ENGINE. We were shown yesterday a new and beautiful Suction Engine, built by Godfrey Meyer & Son of this city. It is beyond question a finished piece of workmanship. It comprises a number of improvements upon those of the kind heretofore constructed. Its great superiority consists in its convenience, its chasteness, and its uncommon strength. It was built, we learn, for an experiment, and therefore, neither expense nor extra pains have been spared to render it complete in every department. A short time since it underwent a trial and was found to work admirably, throwing a strong stream for the distance of one hundred and eighty feet. We would respectfully direct the attention of the different fire companies to this suction. They will find it at the Thomsonian establishment of Mr. Meyer.

THE MILFORD BARD. A few days since we stated upon authority received from the Milford Bard himself, that he was about to leave the city of Baltimore, and return to the home of his fathers. But his word then proved faithless, as it did when he signed the temperance pledge; for yesterday he informed us that he had abandoned the idea—determined to continue in this city and write poetry, either love-sick, sentimental or sublime, for all who would pay him at the rate of five cents per line. We believe the Bard to have a good heart, and hope that a day not far distant, may find him possessed of sufficient moral courage to triumph over all his misgivings.

> Let him think of the damning bowl—
> Yes, let him spurn its mad control!
> If not, its wild consuming fire
> Will hush the music of his lyre.

☞We have received from Mr. Wm. N. Harrison, No. 28, North Gay street, the following periodicals:

American Repertory of Arts, Sciences and Manufactures, No. 3, vol. 3; a valuable work, containing much useful information.

Lady's Amaranth, No. 4, vol. 4, a cheap and amusing publication, filled with light and entertaining reading.

Merry's Museum, for May. This work blends instruction with amusement. The articles appear to be well chosen, and are illustratrated by plates.

☞Our correspondent with a Greek name (Outis) has occupied four closely written foolscap pages to convey to our readers the important information, that a bed-bug is a disagreeable companion! Had he prescribed the method of getting rid of them he would have performed better service. Our respected correspondent will pardon us for suspecting that he designs more than meets the eye.

THE NATIONAL THEATRE, IN WASHINGTON CITY. We are informed that the above establishment is to be opened on the first Monday in June, under the management of Miss VIRGINIA MONIER. This announcement, we have no doubt, will be highly gratifying to the numerous citizens of the District. Miss Monier is a great favorite with them, and will therefore secure their liberal support. See advertisment in another column.

VALUABLE WRECKS. There are two valuable wrecks at Key West: the ship Mississippi, from New York for New Orleans, cargo worth 50 to $60,000; and ship Ganges, from New Orleans for Havre, cargo 1100 bales cotton, and 50 hhds. tobacco.

KILLED. In a frolic at the races, near St. Louis, a man named Brady, was killed, on the 17th inst.

A STRANGE AFFAIR. The New York Courier says—The Adirondack, Capt. Hagstaff, arrived off the Hook on Saturday, with 373 souls on board, and was boarded by a New York Pilot named Thomas Johnson, belonging to the Pilot Boat New York. During her absence, the Adirondack had been repainted, and instead of painting bright sides has white ports. The Pilot on getting on board inquired the name of the ship, when the Captain informed him that she was the Adirondack, and he Captain Hagstaff. "What," said the Pilot, "the Adirondack, and you Capt. Hagstaff? I can't take you up, Sir." The Captain replied that it was his duty to do so, and immediately placed the ship under his command; but it was of no avail, and the pilot left the ship and all on board to her fate.

A NEW NEWSPAPER MOVE. The Norfolk Herald, a daily paper, has adopted the mode of issuing its Monday's paper every Saturday afternoon. The object of this is to pay proper respect to the Sabbath, and give those employed in the office an opportunity of resting like other men. Printers, during the week days, have unquestionably a hard time of it, and are most certainly entitled to rest one day out of seven. If all the daily papers throughout the Union would come into the measure of the Herald, we should have no objection, and are willing to vouch that those actively engaged in setting type will not object to coming into the arrangement.

INJUSTICE. The Philadelphia Spirit of the Times insinuates that the Frederick County Bank may have been robbed by some of its officers. This is illiberal and unjust. We have known the President and Cashier for nearly twenty years, and unhesitatingly assert, that their honest and upright conduct places them beyond suspicion. Their integrity cannot be impeached.—The affairs of the Bank were managed with discretion and fidelity—and the event will shew that neither the President nor Cashier had the least agency in abstracting the funds of the Bank. We have no doubt that the thief will be arrested.

RIOTERS. James Brooks and Robert Fisher, colored, were taken in charge by officer Wilcox, at the Front Street Theatre, on Wednesday night at 10 o'clock, charged with rioting and fighting. They were secured in the watch house, and yesterday morning brought up and reprimanded for their delinquencies.

Two females, Margaret Welsh and Frances H. Connonly, were arrested by a watchman, on Wednesday night, and carried to the "lock-up," charged with rioting and disturbing the peace of Slemmer's Alley. Yesterday morning they were set at liberty.

☞Since the suggestion of our correspondent in reference to erecting a monument in Green Mount in honor of Gen. Harrison, various remarks have been made in other papers commending the idea. We shall be pleased to see this work progress, it will not only reflect credit upon those who have undertaken it, but add much to the beauty of the Cemetery.

MORE INDIAN MURDERS. The following is an extract of a letter dated Florida, May 18, 1841: "I have just learned that a party of eight Indians attacked the settlements on Brandy Branch, about 12 miles from Fort Moniac, on the 14th inst. and killed a Mr. Daniel Greer, and a Mr. William Brown." [This last name Capt. McNully reports as Barber.]

WOMAN'S FAITH. A correspondent of the Journal of Commerce, in reference to Dr. Eldridge, says—"It is beyond question true, I believe, that the young lady to whom he was to have been married at the time of his arrest, persists in her determination to marry him on his acquittal, should that good fortune attend him. This, however, is woman."

MAD DOG. A large rabid dog was seen in the upper part of the city yesterday. It ran through Mulberry, and several other streets, foaming at the mouth and in a state of terrific madness.—We were unable to learn whether or not it was killd.

HEAVY SENTENCE. A man named Frederick Fisher has been sentenced at Philadelphia to ten years imprisonment in the penitentiary, for embezzling a letter containing money, while employed as a carrier in the Kensington Post Office.

DEAD. We mentioned a few days since, that an accident happened to General Glascock, near Decatur, DeKalb county, by which his head was badly fractured. We learn by an endorsement on the Augusta way-bill, that he died on the 20th inst. in consequence of the injuries received.

DUEL. The New Orleans Crescent City of the 19th inst. says, "we understand that a duel was fought yesterday afternoon, at the lower end of the Bayou Road, between two musicians attached to the French Theatre."

COMPLIMENTARY. The Boston Post states that several horse dealers, who are unable to flog their beasts enough to satisfy themselves, have sent them to the Farm School.

It is stated in the Boston Mail that from four to six deaths a week take place in that city from small pox, besides there are a number who have the disease and recover.

MISS HORN, a young lady, well known in the city theatres, died in New York last week of typhus fever, under which disease she has been laboring for some weeks.

The editor of the N. O. Picayune was recently compelled by a newsboy to buy a copy of his own paper; and admits it was the hardest bargain he ever made.

U. S. SEAMEN. A draft of 60 seamen, under command of Lieut. Bruce, for the U. S. ship Delaware, arrived at Norfolk, on the 26th inst. in the brig Sun, from Boston.

HORRIBLE TRAGEDY. A young man, by the name of William Sanford, in a fit of insanity, cut his mother's throat, in New York, on Thursday last, killing her almost instantly. The circumstances are thus related in the New York Sun:

"It appears that the deceased, who was 63 years of age, and totally blind, had 2 sons and a daughter, and that one of the sons named William was insane, though his conduct had never been so violent or extraordinary as to induce his friends to place him under any restraint. About 8 o'clock, on Yesterday morning, this young man came into his mother's room, and conversed with her a short time. He then went to Mrs. Sanford, and asked the loan of her husband's razor, which was given to him. He then returned to his mother, and leaning over her, as described by Mrs. Sanford, as if about to embrace her, he drew the razor across her throat, inflicting a terrible gash, which was followed almost immediately by the death of the ill-fated old lady. The unfortunate young man stood aghast after the commission of the awful deed, and exclaimed, "I shall never see her again!" Several respectable witnesses were examined, as also the brother of the lunatic, and the jury, after hearing the testimony, returned a verdict according to the melancholy circumstances."

We copy the following from one of our exchange papers:

MARRIAGE. With all its ills and evils, man knows no happiness until he marries; let him possess a woman of sense and virtue, and of whom he himself is worthy, and he will feel a solid and permanent joy, of which he never was before sensible. For, as somebody says, the happiness of marriage, like the interest of money, arises from a regular and established fund; while unmarried libertines live upon the principal, and become bankrupt in character and respectability. To be sure, (as the same authority tells us,) uninterrupted happiness no man can or ought to expect. Life is no sinecure; fruits do not spring spontaneously from the earth, as they did in the garden of Eden, nor does manna drop from the clouds as it did in the wilderness. But as a scheme of solid comfort, matrimony affords to well regulated minds a double share of pleasure in prosperity, and a solace in sorrow and adversity.

The following elegant specimen of wit and modesty, in the shape of an acrostic on the name of Pickens, who made the report on our relations with Great Britain, during the last session of Congress, is copied from a late London paper:

AN ACROSTIC,
Written upon the name of Pickens, upon reading his genuine ragmarole in Congress.

Play the dickens! go it Pickens!
I know who'll get all the lickings!
Cant and rant the States cry "Thankyee,"
Keep their steam up, go it, Yankee!
England cares not if you're crankey,
Not one bit; but rouse her passion
She'll give you, sure as fate, a thrashing.
U WILL KATCHATARTER.

An exchange paper thus discourses upon the subject of Painting and Lightning rods:

Lightning rods should not be painted. All the metals are good conductors of electricity. Oil is a non-conductor. The electric fluid, in passing along a conductor, is confined almost entirely to its surface. Where that surface is covered with oil paint, or any non-conducting substance, the passage of the fluid is obstructed—it accumulates upon the rod, and is very liable to leave it and strike into the building or to some other object which may present a better conducting surface.

SCANDAL. The editor of the Natchez Cutter very justly remarks, while speaking of scandal, that "of all the shapes which this mean, cowardly and assassin-like vice takes, none is more disgustingly vile, than to publish some villainous story of a person, then remark that if it should not happen to be true, no doubt the injured one can prove that it is not, and that you will most readily admit his defence into your paper, provided he pays you for it."

THE CROPS. The Reading Press says, "the crops in Berks county present a very thriving appearance. The grain looks remarkably well, and being free from the fly, promises a valuable harvest. The crops in general promise to repay the farmer well for his labor, although the season has been three weeks later than usual."

A COPPER ROCK. The Michigan Geologist states that there is a rock, near the Ontongon river, in that state, weighing from three to four tons, called the Copper Rock, a part of which has been analyzed, and yielded 98 per cent. of pure metal.

ACCIDENT. The New Orleans Bulletin of the 19th says, "we are extremely sorry to learn that Judge Buchanan, while taking an airing on the Shell Road, on Sunday evening, was precipitated from his carriage, and considerably injured, having one of his arms broken.

PARDONED. On Saturday last, the Governor and Council of Massachusetts, granted a full pardon to Martin T. Draper, sentenced to the State Prison, last August, upon a charge of perjury preferred against him by one Samuel A. Way.

STORM. Quite a severe storm was experienced at Vicksburg, a short time since, though no material damage was sustained.

BALTIMORE LYCEUM. We call attention to the meeting of the Baltimore Lyceum, to-night. The exercises will be highly interesting.

TWO HORSES DROWNED. Two horses attached to a carriage in Boston, ran off last week, plunged into the dock and were drowned.

The New York Commercial states, by authority, that the cruise of the "Thunder," has been solely for scientific purposes.

The Boston Journal states that steps have been taken to contest the seat of Mr. Lowell, a member of Congress from Maine.

A Westmoreland paper states that the wheat crops in that region are very backward.

The French packet from New York took out about $80,000 in specie.

A man named Samuel Oaks, aged 73, hung himself, in Erie county, N. Y. a few days ago.

MRS. GOVE'S LECTURE.

The Lecture delivered by Mrs. Gove, in the basement of the Universalist Church on Tuesday evening, was attended by a very fashionable and intellectual audience. The number of ladies present was as large as could be expected, but we were sorry that no more gentlemen were present to listen to her remarks "on the laws of life and the influence of poisonous substances on the vital economy." We have had the pleasure of attending several of Mrs. G.'s lectures since her visit to this city, and have always been instructed; but we think the lecture delivered on Tuesday evening was decidedly one of the most important which she has delivered here.

We have time to note only a few of the particulars of the discourse. Would the reader learn more, I advise him or her, go and hear for thyself.

She spoke of the necessity of Anatomical and Physiological Knowledge, and adduced the evils that cluster around us on every hand—the diseases of body and mind that are the legitimate consequences of ignorance, as proof positive of this necessity. She said she would by no means convey the idea that knowledge carried out in all its bearings would save the present generation—because many have been born with predisposition to disease, and if the course of such be ever so correct, they cannot reasonably expect to attain a state of perfect health; still their lives may be lengthened, and rendered vastly more comfortable, if they know the laws of life and act in accordance with them.

The wholesale destruction of infants by the ignorance and wrong habits of the mother, was commented on with just severity. She alluded to the time when it was fashionable for mothers to drink wine and strong drink—the deadly draught passing almost unaltered to the lips of the little innocent who hung at its mother's breast! "But," said the lecturer, "alcohol is not the only deadly substance, and if the mother is ill, her nursing infant will be ill." Mrs. G. objected to the term cross infant, and said we should call things by their right names, and say a diseased infant.

The rage for quack medicines, and the dosing and drugging of ignorant mothers, received merited condemnation. Mrs. G. spoke in very severe terms of those ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge who would fain persuade people that they have cut across lots, and found a shorter road to the healing art than rational and laborious study. She spoke of the half conscience so common among us. We have heard of people having India rubber consciences, but never heard of half consciences before! Her term, however, was perfectly appropriate. People have conscience, perhaps, in dress, but they are like the minister who said he "had no conscience in matters of eating, or drinking, or taking tobacco." They would not commit suicide by hanging, or drowning, or severing the jugular vein, but they will procure death as surely, though more slowly, by the use of narcotics, tea, coffee, and tobacco, by compression, by breathing day after day and week after week a life-destroying atmosphere in dwellings, crowded churches, schools, &c. The destruction of animals by tea, coffee and tobacco were adduced as evidence of the poisonous nature of these substances. The extract of tea given to dogs, cats, rabbits, &c. in quantities less than ten drops, caused death in less than ten minutes. The extract of coffee caused death as surely, though more slowly.

Several cases of death from tobacco were also given. The lecturer spoke of it as a deadly poison, and also as a filthy weed. Mrs. G. seemed to think that clothes saturated with tobacco smoke, hats converted into "sub-treasuries" for the deposite of cigars, and the filthy, unmentionable chewing and snuffing of the weed, entitled any person who is addicted to any of these practices to the name of fellow—man or gentleman being altogether mis-applied when applied to such. The gentlemen need reproof, and we hope Mrs. G. will give them their just deserts, but spare the ladies! They are our peculiar favorites, and when they pass round their neat little pearl snuff box, how can we withstand the temptation?

The whole lecture was listened to with deep attention. Mrs. G. is very modest and unassuming, easy and graceful in her manner, and if the delicate state of her health would allow her to speak with a little more energy, she would be one of the most powerful and effective female speakers we ever heard.

We shall attend incog. and report the next lecture. FRIEND OF MAN.

A CLINCHER OF ARMOR. Philip de Comines has recorded that at the battle of Fournoue, under Charles the Eighth, a number of Italian knights, who were overthrown, and unable to rise on account of the weight of their armor, could not be killed until they were broken up, like huge lobsters, with woodcutter's axes, by the servants and followers of the army, which fully justified the observation of James the First, who, speaking in praise of armor, said, "that it not only protected the wearer, but prevented him from doing any injury to others." In fact, we find in several battles about the time referred to, that not a single knight was slain. An anecdote in point is also related by George the Fourth. After the battle of Waterloo, it was proposed to make some change in the dress of the life guards; the King ordered one of the soldiers to be sent for, who had greatly distinguished himself, and was said to have slain six or seven French cuirassiers in single combat. He was asked a variety of questions, to each of which he assented; until the king, perceiving, that he was biased by the presence of royalty and his own officers, said to him, "well, if you were going to have such another day's work as you had at Waterloo, how would you like to be dressed?" "Please your majesty," he replied, "in that case I had rather be in my shirt sleeves." —Wilkinson on Engines of War.

WEBB'S PATENT BURNERS,

AND CAMPHINE OIL.

FOR SALE AT No. 109 E. BALTIMORE STREET, between South and Calvert streets, where Burners of every description can be obtained. Those who are sceptical as to its safety or economy, would, I trust be perfectly satisfied by examining the opinion of Professor Locke, of Ohio, on "Webb's Camphine," or by referring to the Journals of the Franklin and American Institutes, of Philadelphia and New York. All those desirous of obtaining a clear, brilliant, and economical light, will find it greatly to their advantage by calling on the subscriber. The public may be assured of one fact, that we require no meters to ascertain the amount of Camphine consumed, as they register correctly and in plain English.

☞ASTRAL LAMPS ALTERED.

N. B. We have appointed Joshua Atkinson Agent, No. 22 Market street, F. P., where all orders will meet with immediate attention.

F. AUGUSTUS BAILEY, Agent

For the Proprietors.

The following letter to the Agent, exhibits the superiority of the Camphine over Gas or Oil light, in brilliancy and cheapness:

New York, March 23, 1840.

DEAR SIR—I received yours of the 19th instant, and proceed, as you request, to inform you that WEBB'S PATENT LAMP, in my opinion, is much superior to any Lamp now in use—the Camphine produces better light than Gas or Oil. I have burned Oil for five years, Gas for eleven, and Webb's Camphine for 20 months. I have a better light in my bar-room with five of Webb's burners than I had in the same room with eleven gas lights. In fact, I light my whole house at less expense with the Camphine than it cost me to light my bar-room alone with gas. I recommend it as being the cheapest and best light now in use.

Yours respectfully, THOMAS RILEY,

BALTIMORE LOCK DISPENSARY,

"NO CURE NO PAY."

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP. This long established and highly valuable medicine is now no novelty. It has been before the public for a long time, and by its merits alone, has it risen to a degree of estimation not enjoyed by any other medicine, for the certain cure of the Syphilitic disease. Prompt and effectual in action, yet harmless to the constitution, it is well established character, having never failed to give entire satisfaction in all the many thousand cases, where it has been used as directed.—These absolute and undeniable facts speak trumpet-tongued to the afflicted, and are the basis of a well founded hope of the philanthropist, that this unequalled medicine may circulate far and wide for the benefit of the human race.

This medicine gives the prodigal a chance to repent. Thousands have been saved and radically cured, after suffering under the hands of impostors by this medicine, and who with grateful hearts are ready to attest to its value, and have allowed themselves to be referred to.

Persons residing at any distance, can have medicine sent to them, packed secure from observation.

It was out of pure motives of philanthropy, that this medicine was first made public; the price always to remain $1 per bottle, to be within the reach of the most unfortunate.

☞Letters addressed, (post paid) describing the case, mode of living, &c. will be promptly attended to Direct No. 17 Harrison street.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS

AND VEGETABLE BITTERS.

THE perfectly safe, unerring and successful treatment of almost every species of disease by the use of MOFFAT'S LIFE MEDICINES, is no longer a matter of doubt, as a reference to the experience of many thousand patients will satisfactorily prove. During the present month alone, not only one hundred cases have come to the knowledge of Mr. Moffat, where the patient has, to all appearance, effected a permanent cure by the exclusive and judicious use of the Life Medicines—some eight or ten of these had been considered beyond all hope by their medical attendants—Such happy results are a source of great pleasure to Mr. M. and inspire him with new confidence to recommend the use of his medicines to his fellow-citizens.

The Life Medicines are a purely VEGETABLE preparation. They are mild and pleasant in their operation, and at the same time thorough—acting rapidly upon the secretions of the system—carrying off all pernicious humors, and assimilating with and purifying the blood. For this reason, in aggravated cases of dyspepsia, the Life Medicines will give relief in a shorter space of time than any other prescription; in Fever and ague, Inflammation, Fevers of every description, Sick Headache, heartburn dizziness in the head, pains in the chest, flatulency, impaired appetite, in every disease arising from an impurity of the blood, or a disordered state of the stomach, the use of these medicines has always proved to be beyond doubt greatly superior to any other mode of treatment.

All that Mr. Moffat asks of his patients is to be particular in taking them strictly according to the directions. It is not by a newspaper notice, or by any thing that he himself may say in their favor, that he hopes to gain credit, it is alone by the results of a fair trial. Is the reader an invalid, and does he wish to know whether the Life medicines will suit his own case? If so let him call or send to Mr. Moffat's agent in this place, and procure a copy of the Medical Manual, designed as a domestic guide to health, published gratuitously. He will here find enumerated very many extraordinary cases of cures and perhaps some exactly similar to his own. Moffat's medical office in New York, 375 Broadway, and for sale by the Agents.

DAVIES' FAMILY PILLS.

[From Captain Parrish, who commenced to use them when diseased in August, 1839.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 2, 1840.

☞To Dr. Davies: Dear Sir—I have had experience in the virtue of your Pills, sufficient to recommend them as a superior cathartic and excellent carminative, and also as a family medicine that every one should be in possession of. There is no doubt that if persons and families generally were acquainted with their efficacy, they might save many a dollar now paid for doctor's bills. Yours respectfully,

E. PARRISH.

HARPER'S FERRY, August 11, 1840.

Dr. Wm. Davies: Dear Sir—I am happy to inform you and the public, that I have been cured of that dreadful disease the Rheumatism, by taking your Family Pills. I had been laboring under that disease for more than a year, during which time I tried the skill of our best physicians without effect; at length I was induced to try your medicine—I found relief after taking half a box, I continued to take them until I had taken five boxes; my age is 71 years, and I consider that none but the old and rheumatic persons know how grateful I feel to the medicine that has restored me to health. Yours, respectfully. J. HIN DYE.

We, the undersigned, are agents at Harper's Ferry for the sale of Dr. Davies' Family Pills, know our neighbour, Mr. Dye, sold him the pills of which he speaks so highly, and believe his statement to be substantially true. Respectfully,

CONSUMPTION AND BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS CURED. Mr. Wm. Sheppard, residing in Beaver county, Pa. near the state line, relates as follows: "In the month of May last my wife was taken with Bleeding from the Lungs, coughing, night sweats, hectic fever, &c. She had taken a violent cold; having previously given symptoms of the approach of Consumption, I felt much alarmed and made immediate application to a physician. Under his treatment she became worse, instead of better, until the first of June, when I heard from an intelligent man of DR. SWAYNE'S SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, and from his earnestness in recommending it I was induced to try one bottle. The effect exceeded my utmost expectations—she felt immediate relief. I then mounted my horse and rode to the office, No. 41 St. Clair street, Pittsburg, where it is kept for sale, and procured six bottles more, which I am happy to say has effected a perfect cure. Please publish this certificate, with my name in full, that others may know where to find the greatest blessing on earth.

Oh, ye whose days as yet are few,
Let not the chosen moments fly,
But Wisdom's happy path pursue,
And learning grasp, ere age is nigh.

Thy labors here no fame shall win,
Nor thou respect with men obtain,
Unless with youth thou shalt begin
The treasures of the mind to gain.

The days are past, when strength and skill,
Or courage in the ranks of war,
Manhood's meed of praise would fill,
Or spread his glories from afar.

The days are gone, when heaps of gold,
And garments of a thousand dies,
A mortal's name would leave enroll'd
Upon his nation's histories.

Now the feeblest hand can sway
A mightier wand than that of kings;
The sceptre bade the form obey—
The pen the mind obedient brings.

And learning is not hard to find,
If sought with true and heartfelt zeal;
Then seek her, and thy opening mind
Her power and peace shall early feel.

WHAT MAKES A BEAUTY?

BY SKETCHER.

"And so, Frank, you will have none other than a beauty for your wife?"

"A woman of common personal appearance shall never call me husband. No! she to whom I give my hand must possess something more than that —a good deal more."

"[illegible]ed. She must have features the most re[illegible]ucture ever cut; a skin as white as the driv[illegible]es as dark and sparkling as the Gazelle's; [illegible]k as the raven's wing; lips finely chiselled [illegible]by red; and a form, tall, and stately as that [illegible]Gazelle."

"Ha, ha, ha! Me[illegible], my good friend Frank that you will have t[illegible]arch in the world of romance for your[illegible]e! life,' you will find it somewhat hard[illegible]come across such a one in the sphere of real[illegible]."

"If I do not, then I [illegible]never marry."

"Pshaw! you will [illegible]t, eh?"

"No, I will not."

"Then you do not believe that a woman can be charming, and not possess Gazelle eyes, ruby lips, and so forth!—that an intelligent and cultivated mind can beautify, and light up the common place features until they become bewitching—that an amiable temper and good heart, can surround her with a loveliness more irresistable than the most exquisite personal charms!"

"I do not."

"I once believed so myself, Frank, and yet you know my wife's beauty is not of the most glaring description. I would wager almost any thing that, like your humble servant, you will marry a woman of ordinary personal attractions, after all your assertions to the contrary."

"Never, Ned."

"Well, we'll see in time. I was going to ask you to go with me to-night, that I might introduce you to a witching little fairy, whom I had set my heart upon getting you to marry. But it's of no use now. You would'nt look at her. Alas! for my first attempt at match making! Good bye!"

The above was a conversation between two young men, Frank Chesterton and Edward Carrol, bosom friends. They were both men of fortune. The latter was, as we have seen, married; his wife, as he expressed it, did not possess personal "beauty of the most glaring description," yet was he rich in her, for she possessed that higher merit, beauty of mind. The former was single. Many a young lady of his acquaintance —and some of them too, who were accounted lovely—would have been glad to have called the handsome Frank Chesterton, husband. But none of them, however dazzling, approached his exalted notions of beauty. They all alike appeared to him common-place. Why was this? It was a question he had never fully considered, and therefore, answering himself at random, concluded that it was want of more perfect contour of features, instead of a more beautiful expression—a more pleasing countenance—the loveliness of which seems to depend upon the sweetness of the mind.

A few evenings after the foregoing conversation Frank went to a party at the house of a lady of the first circle in society, named Mrs. Roland.—Many were the bright glances shot from sparkling eyes toward him, but he gave no more attention than what politeness required. He was not cold, or uncivil, for urbanity was natural to him, but he paid his attentions in such a manner, that they could not be mistaken for aught more than those of friendship. Having a kind word and a warm smile for each, he glided from one to the other, until at last he found himself beside a group of beaux at the upper apartment. He could not see who it was they surrounded, but just then he heard a merry peal of laughter ring out from within the circle. The tone was of silvery sweetness, and he involuntarily stopped to listen. At that instant his hostess approached him, and perceiving his curious look, asked if wished an introduction to the lady, who, as she termed it, the bevy of gentlemen was "monopolising." He assented, and at a word from Mrs. Roland the circle opened, and disclosed to Frank's view a vision of loveliness, such as he had never beheld, in the shape of a young girl, apparently about nineteen years of age. She appeared to be rather under the middle height, and her form though slight, was full of grace, her hair of golden hue fell in rich clusters down her snowy neck, and her eyes were of a clear deep blue, and played and sparkled incessantly. Her features were not regular, but when gazing on her bewitching countenance, one lost all recollection of their defects, so laughing and Hebe like was its expression.

"Miss Stanley, allow me to present to you Mr. Chesterton," said Mrs. Roland—and after a moment's conversation, she retired to another part of the room.

She was followed by a portion of the beaux who had surrounded Miss Stanley, and soon after the others dropped off, one by one—so that eventually Frank was left alone with the fascinating stranger.

Frank was soon deep in a conversation with her; and he found that under her apparent light-hearted gayety, flowed a strong current of that rare article in fashionable life, excellent common sense. She had, moreover, a heart alive to every warm and delicate emotion. There was no giddy trifling, no affectation in her words—but what she said she seemed to feel, whether it excited her joyous laughter, or caused the crystal tear to dim her clear blue eye.

What was the matter with Frank Chesterton that evening? Why did he follow the fascinating stranger whithersoever she moved? Why did he dwell upon her every look, and drink in each tone of her silvery voice? Why did he show attention to her, such as he never showed to mortal woman before? Could it have been that Cupid's arrow had found a sheath at last in his hitherto impenetrable heart? Alas! poor Frank!

When the party broke up, he accompanied her to the carriage in waiting—and as he handed her into the vehicle, he asked,

"When shall I have the pleasure of seeing Miss Stanley again?"

"I shall be happy to have you call upon me at No. — W—— street, any time after to-morrow—as I expect to be out of town then," was her answer.

Frank bowed.

"Good evening," he responded, as the carriage drove away.

"No. — W—— street!" he muttered, "Why that is the residence of Ned Carrol's father-in-law. She must either have made a mistake or else I heard her wrong. Yet it may be so, for she told me, she had been in the city but a week, and that she was from Baltimore. She told me she was staying at her uncle's: can Mr. Norton be her uncle? However, I will ask Ned about it, though if it were Leon, I should have thought he would have informed me of it before. Yet, I will see him to-morrow about it, for she is the most beautiful being I ever beheld."

Next day, according to his determination, Frank Chesterton called at his friend's house to make the intended inquiry,—but Mr. and Mrs. Carrol, were both out for the day. He had, therefore, to content himself for the present, with leaving his card, and wondering when he should again see the fair Baltimorean.

It was about noon on the following day, when he met his friend Carrol in one of the principal streets. They had hardly walked the distance of half a square together, and Frank was about to ask him respecting Miss Stanley, when she herself, accompanied by a middle aged lady, who appeared to be her mother, was seen approaching on the opposite side of the way.

"By heavens! is she not beautiful?" said Frank, with his eyes rivetted upon her.

"Where?—who?" asked his friend.

"There—there," said Frank, still keeping his eyes upon her.

"That pretty actress, with the velvet bonnet!"

"No, no! A fig for the actress! The younger of those two ladies just behind her."

"Oh! I see."

"Is she not lovely?"

"You cannot, certainly, think so."

"I certainly do think so, Mr. Ned Carrol, and if you do not, why all I've got to say is that you're an——"

"What!" said his friend interrupting him, "that rather plain looking young lady."

"I say she is not plain, sir. She's a sylph—an angel—a queen of beauty."

"Why that's Miss Stanley. She hasn't got the most regular features that ever nature cut," said his friend, with a most provoking smile.

"They're charming for all that."

"Her eyes are not dark and gazelle-like," continued Carrol.

"They're heavenly blue," said Frank.

"Her hair is not black as the raven's wing."

"It is of the most beautiful auburn."

"Her lips are not as finely chiselled as those of a Grecian statue."

"They are like torn rose leaves, though."

"Besides, she hasn't a tall and stately form."

"But she has a graceful one."

"You must admit that many of your female acquaintances are more perfect models," continued his friend.

"Ah! yes, but then there is something winning about her that they have not. Her mind is beauteous, and imparts a sweetness to her less furnished person."

"Yes, yes, man, but then you know a woman cannot be charming without she possesses the most perfect contour of face and form."

"P-haw!"

"Well, well, Frank, since I find 'you're becoming somewhat of a sensible fellow, why I'll even venture to introduce you as my friend, to my wife's little cuz. So come on: we will attend them home if you please."

The ladies had just arrived opposite, and the gentlemen crossing over, they were soon escorting them homeward.

Reader! I am not going to tire you with a long recital of love scenes—for if you have ever been in love you will know all about them, and if you have not you have no business whatever to know any thing about it—so with your permission, I will briefly say that in a twelvemonth or so, subsequent to the events I have related, Mr. Frank Chesterton and Miss Ellen Stanley were united in "the silken bond that binds two willing hearts," this same Mr. Frank Chesterton having become thoroughly convinced that it is not perfect contour of features only that makes a beauty; but a pleasing countenance, in whose every lineament one can read an intelligent and amiable mind.

☞ Two boys yesterday morning in the Lexington market thought they had a better right to some marketing than the old lady who brought it to town, so they commenced operations by removing, when they were checked in their career by the old lady lustily calling for protection, which was soon given by one or two of the butchers, but without success, the boy outrunning their pursuers and doing other damage by running over every thing that came in their way. Oh, ye whose days as yet are few,
Let not the chosen moments fly,
But Wisdom's happy path pursue,
And learning grasp, ere age is nigh.

Thy labors here no fame shall win,
Nor thou respect with men obtain,
Unless with youth thou shalt begin
The treasures of the mind to gain.

The days are past, when strength and skill,
Or courage in the ranks of war,
Manhood's meed of praise would fill,
Or spread his glories from afar.

The days are gone, when heaps of gold,
And garments of a thousand dies,
A mortal's name would leave enroll'd
Upon his nation's histories.

Now the feeblest hand can sway
A mightier wand than that of kings;
The sceptre bade the form obey—
The pen the mind obedient brings.

And learning is not hard to find,
If sought with true and heartfelt zeal;
Then seek her, and thy opening mind
Her power and peace shall early feel.

From the Saturday Evening Post.

WHAT MAKES A BEAUTY?

BY SKETCHER.

"And so, Frank, you will have none other than a beauty for your wife?"

"A woman of common personal appearance shall never call me husband. No! she to whom I give my hand must possess something more than that—nay, a good deal more."

"Indeed!"

"Yes—indeed. She must have features the most regular that nature ever cut; a skin as white as the driven snow; eyes as dark and sparkling as the Gazelle's; hair black as the raven's wing; lips finely chiselled and ruby red; and a form, tall, and stately as that of the Gazelle."

"Ha, ha, ha! Methinks, my good friend Frank that you will have to search in the world of romance for your 'sweetest of life,' you will find it a somewhat hard matter to come across such a one in the sphere of realities."

"If I do not, then I will never marry."

"Pshaw! you will not, eh?"

"No, I will not."

"Then you do not believe that a woman can be charming, and not possess Gazelle eyes, ruby lips, and so forth!—that an intelligent and cultivated mind can beautify, and light up the common place features until they become bewitching—that an amiable temper and good heart, can surround her with a loveliness more irresistable than the most exquisite personal charms?"

"I do not."

"I once believed so myself, Frank, and yet you know my wife's beauty is not of the most glaring description. I would wager almost any thing that, like your humble servant, you will marry a woman of ordinary personal attractions, after all your assertions to the contrary."

"Never, Ned."

"Well, we'll see in time. I was going to ask you to go with me to-night, that I might introduce you to a witching little fairy, whom I had set my heart upon getting you to marry. But it's of no use now. You would'nt look at her. Alas! for my first attempt at match making! Good bye!"

The above was a conversation between two young men, Frank Chesterton and Edward Carrol, bosom friends. They were both men of fortune The latter was, as we have seen, married; his wife, as he expressed it, did not possess personal "beauty of the most glaring description," yet was he rich in her, for she possessed that higher merit, beauty of mind. The former was single. Many a young lady of his acquaintance—and some of them too, who were accounted lovely—would have been glad to have called the handsome Frank Chesterton, husband. But none of them, however dazzling, approached his exalted notions of beauty. They all alike appeared to him common-place. Why was this? It was a question he had never fully considered, and therefore, answering himself at random, concluded that it was want of more perfect contour of features, instead of a more beautiful expression—a more pleasing countenance—the loveliness of which seems to depend upon the sweetness of the mind.

A few evenings after the foregoing conversation Frank went to a party at the house of a lady of the first circle in society, named Mrs. Roland.—Many were the bright glances shot from sparkling eyes toward him, but he gave no more attention than what politeness required He was not cold, or uncivil, for urbanity was natural to him, but he paid his attentions in such a manner, that they could not be mistaken for aught more than those of friendship. Having a kind word and a warm smile for each, he glided from one to the other, until at last he found himself beside a group of beaux at the upper apartment. He could not see who it was they surrounded, but just then he heard a merry peal of laughter ring out from within the circle. The tone was of silvery sweetness, and he involuntarily stopped to listen. At that instant his hostess approached him, and perceiving his curious look, asked if wished an introduction to the lady, who, as she termed it, the bevy of gentlemen was "monopolizing." He assented, and at a word from Mrs. Roland the circle opened, and disclosed to Frank's view a vision of loveliness, such as he had never beheld, in the shape of a young girl, apparently about nineteen years of age. She appeared to be rather under the middle height, and her form though slight, was full of grace, her hair of golden hue fell in rich clusters down her snowy neck, and her eyes were of a clear deep blue, and played and sparkled incessantly. Her features were not regular, but when gazing on her bewitching countenance, one lost all recollection of their defects, so laughing and Hebe like was its expression.

"Miss Stanley, allow me to present to you Mr. Chesterton," said Mrs. Roland—and after a moment's conversation, she retired to another part of the room.

She was followed by a portion of the beaux who had surrounded Miss Stanley, and soon after the others dropped off, one by one—so that eventually Frank was left alone with the fascinating stranger.

Frank was soon deep in a conversation with her; and he found that under her apparent light-hearted gayety, flowed a strong current of that rare article in fashionable life, excellent common sense. She had, moreover, a heart alive to every warm and delicate emotion. There was no giddy trifling, no affectation in her words—but what she said she seemed to feel, whether it excited her joyous laughter, or caused the crystal tear to dim her clear blue eye.

What was the matter with Frank Chesterton that evening? Why did he follow the fascinating stranger whithersoever she moved? Why did he dwell upon her every look, and drink in each tone of her silvery voice? Why did he show attention to her, such as he never showed to mortal woman before? Could it have been that Cupid's arrow had found a sheath at last in his hitherto impenetrable heart? Alas! poor Frank!

When the party broke up, he accompanied her to the carriage in waiting—and as he handed her into the vehicle, he asked,

"When shall I have the pleasure of seeing Miss Stanley again?"

"I shall be happy to have you call upon me at No. — W—— street, any time after to-morrow—as I expect to be out of town then," was her answer.

Frank bowed.

"Good evening," she said, smiling sweetly.

"Good evening," he responded, as the carriage drove away

"No. — W—— street!" he muttered, "Why that is the residence of Ned Carrol's father-in-law. She must either have made a mistake or else I heard her wrong. Yet it may be so, for she told me, she had been in the city but a week, and that she was from Baltimore. She told me she was staying at her uncle's: can Mr. Norton be her uncle? However, I will ask Ned about it, though if it were Leon, I should have thought he would have informed me of it before. Yet, I will see him to morrow about it, for she is the most beautiful being I ever beheld."

Next day, according to his determination, Frank Chesterton called at his friend's house to make the intended inquiry,—but Mr. and Mrs. Carrol, were both out for the day. He had, therefore, to content himself for the present, with leaving his card, and wondering when he should again see the fair Baltimorean.

It was about noon on the following day, when he met his friend Carrol in one of the principal streets. They had hardly walked the distance of half a square together, and Frank was about to ask him respecting Miss Stanley, when she herself, accompanied by a middle aged lady, who appeared to be her mother, was seen approaching on the opposite side of the way.

"By heavens! is she not beautiful?" said Frank, with his eyes rivetted upon her.

"Where?—who?" asked his friend.

"There—there," said Frank, still keeping his eyes upon her.

"That pretty actress, with the velvet bonnet!"

"No, no! A fig for the actress! The younger of those two ladies just behind her."

"Oh! I see."

"Is she not lovely?"

"You cannot, certainly, think so."

"I certainly do think so, Mr. Ned Carrol, and if you do not, why all I've got to say is that you're an——"

"What!" said his friend interrupting him, "that rather plain looking young lady."

"I say she is not plain, sir. She's a sylph—an angel—a queen of beauty."

"Why that's Miss Stanley. She hasn't got the most regular features that ever nature cut," said his friend, with a most provoking smile.

"They're charming for all that."

"Her eyes are not dark and gazelle-like," continued Carrol.

"They're heavenly blue," said Frank.

"Her hair is not black as the raven's wing."

"It is of the most beautiful auburn."

"Her lips are not as finely chiselled as those of a Grecian statue."

"They are like torn rose leaves, though."

"Besides, she hasn't a tall and stately form."

"But she has a graceful one."

"You must admit that many of your female acquaintances are more perfect models," continued his friend.

"Ah! yes, but then there is something winning about her that they have not. Her mind is beauteous, and imparts a sweetness to her less furnished person."

"Yes, yes, man, but then you know a woman cannot be charming without she possesses the most perfect contour of face and form."

"P-shaw!"

"Well, well, Frank, since I find 'you're becoming somewhat of a sensible fellow, why I'll even venture to introduce you as my friend, to my wife's little coz. So come on: we will attend them home if you please."

The ladies had just arrived opposite, and the gentlemen crossing over, they were soon escorting them homeward.

Reader! I am not going to tire you with a long recital of love scenes—for if you have ever been in love you will know all about them, and if you have not you have no business whatever to know any thing about it—so with your permission, I will briefly say that in a twelvemonth or so, subsequent to the events I have related, Mr. Frank Chesterton and Miss Ellen Stanley were united in "the silken bond that binds two willing hearts," this same Mr. Frank Chesterton having become thoroughly convinced that it is not perfect contour of features only that makes a beauty; but a pleasing countenance, in whose every lineament one can read an intelligent and amiable mind.

☞ Two boys yesterday morning in the Lexington market thought they had a better right to some marketing than the old lady who brought it to town, so they commenced operations by removing, when they were checked in their career by the old lady lustily calling for protection, which was soon given by one or two of the butchers, but without success, the boy outrunning their pursuers and doing other damage by running over every thing that came in their way. BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 29, 1841.

☞The Ocean for this week will be found particularly interesting. It is useless to enumerate the variety of its contents. Persons desirous of obtaining single copies done up in wrappers or otherwise, can be accommodated at the counter.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. We will add a few words in addition to the views which we expressed yesterday on this subject. It was obviously not the intention of the framers of the constitution that the office of vice-president should be vacant; and hence they required that the Senate should appoint a president pro-tem. to take the station of vice-president in case that officer should be elevated to the presidency, as has recently happened. Now Mr. Southard must take his seat as presiding officer of the Senate, either as the actual vice-president, entitled to preside in virtue of that office, and exercising no other power than is conferred upon it by the constitution; or in consequence of his election as the president of the Senate pro-tem. Suppose him to possess the latter authority only, and that he should die or resign his seat after the termination of the next session of Congress; the country would then be destitute of even an acting vice-president—for the Senate cannot have two pro-tem. presidents at the same time; and, as Mr. Southard presides in that capacity throughout the session, no other can be appointed. This would put it in the power of Mr. Southard to leave the country without a vice-president until the succeeding session of Congress, should he feel so disposed. It is evidently the intention to guard against casualties; and yet, if Mr. Southard be not the vice-president, the constitution has not only failed of its purpose in this respect, but has placed it within the caprice or whim of an individual to dispense with the second officer of the union for a time. Suppose that Mr. Tyler were to die, who would succeed him? The constitution provides that on the death of the president the vice-president shall become president. If Mr. Southard would be entitled, under the circumstances, to the office of president, his claim must rest upon the fact of his being the vice-president, and not because of his being president pro-tem. of the Senate discharging the extra duties of vice-president. Would he not succeed Mr. Tyler? Unquestionably—for, if he did not, no one else could, and we should be left without a president or vice-president. This extraordinary condition of things might result, if Mr. Southard be not the vice-president.

The words of the constitution are not sufficiently precise, but we think that the intention cannot be mistaken; and it will no doubt be so construed as to prevent the possibility of leaving our government without its first or second officer.

ADDRESS OF THE REPEAL ASSOCIATION OF BALTIMORE. This eloquent and powerful Address is the production of a master hand. We know not who is the author, but the feeling, force and eloquence with which he pourtrays the enormities of the English government and the sufferings of Ireland; his accuracy of detail, and familiarity with events connected with his subject, would seem to indicate that he is a native of the land which he seeks to liberate from English oppression. No man who has attentively read the history of Ireland, can fail to sympathise with her abused, proscribed and persecuted people. They have been the victims of English fraud, corruption and violence. Laboring under disabilities of an oppressive character—taxed without equal representation—taunted with their degraded condition by those who have effected it—is it to be wondered at that they should make an effort to recover a portion of their lost rights, and that their fellow countrymen in other climes should feel disposed to cheer them on in the struggle? Most fervently do we hope that they will succeed in the attempt to dissolve the political union by which they are connected with England, and be governed in future by an Irish, instead of an English parliament.

The Association in Baltimore numbers about two hundred members, and we do not doubt that the list will be greatly increased by this patriotic and energetic Address.

Extract of a letter received per barque Sirene, from Rio de Janeiro, dated April 21, 1841.

"Our Flour market continues to decline, and we have recently received 7555 bbls. from the United States, and 2460 bbls. from the Mediterranean. The sales have been 5350 Richmond City Mills, at Rs. 14$000 to 14$250; Baltimore at about 12$500; and 1232 bbls. Philadelphia at 11$500. The stock in first hands is about 45,000 bbls., and the market is exceedingly dull. The other markets on the coast are heavily supplied, and prices are declining. Coffee is lower; we quote superior 3$750a3$900; good firsts 3$600a 3$700. Exchange on England 30½d to 31d.—Doubloons 26$600. Freights—to United States 80f per bag and 5½ primage; to Europe, last rates, 40a45s sterling—dull."

The above rates are very late.

ROBBERY. A colored girl named Kitty Stevens was arrested on Thursday evening, charged with stealing some goods from the store of Mrs. H. A. Taylor, corner of Baltimore and Frederick streets. The accused was committed by Justice King.

VALUABLE BOOKS. We have received from Messrs. Cushing & Brother, an excellent copy of Anthon's Classical Dictionary. The value of this volume will be properly appreciated by every one who is familiar with ancient literature; and it would be serviceable to readers of every class. It is intended to elucidate all the important points connected with the Geography, History, Biography, and Fine Arts of the Greeks and Romans, together with an account of coins, weights and measures. It also contains the principal proper names mentioned by ancient authors. Every one who aspires to become a literary or well-informed man should have a copy of this work in his library. As a book of reference in regard to ancient history, it is indispensible.

From the same firm we have also received the following works:

Hallam's Literature, 2 vols. 8vo. These volumes contain an account of the progress of literature during the fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, with the general state of literature in the middle ages to the end of the fourteenth century. We have not had time to read these volumes through, but the subject is highly interesting, and appears to be treated with talent and judgment as far as we have progressed, and the work cannot be otherwise than extremely useful to those who would acquire a knowledge of the progress of the human mind from its most depressed to its most brilliant period.

The Nestorians; or the Lost tribe, by Doctor Grant—the author was a missionary physician, and engaged in that service among the Nestorian Christians of Persia. He gives a variety of facts connected with the history of this people which tend to sustain his conviction that they are descendants of the lost tribes of Israel. It is an interesting enquiry, and the subject has given rise to much speculation. We would advise all who are curious to know what became of the lost tribes, to read this work—as, if they be not convinced that Dr. Grant has discovered their abiding place, they will at least obtain much interesting information.

A Discourse, delivered on Fast Day, by the Rev. John M. Duncan. Published by request. We have read this discourse with great delight, and mean to re-peruse it more carefully. It is an admirable production, and very appropriate to the occasion of its delivery and to the present condition of society. We have taken occasion to make an extract from it, and recommend that every family be provided with a copy of the pamphlet. The reverend gentleman touches some of the prevailing vices and follies in a masterly manner: but we fear that his admonitions will be like "a voice in the wilderness," disregarded, although it would be otherwise if men would consult their own honor and happiness.—Let the discourse be read carefully and attentively by every one, male and female; for, if it applies a stick to one, it has a switch for the other.

RATIO OF REPRESENTATION. The appointment of representatives under the new census will produce 249 members of the house of representatives, being an increase of seven over the present number.

At the ratio of one member for every 60,000 inhabitants, Maine, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware, will each retain the same number of members.

New Hampshire will lose 1 member, Vermont 1, Connecticut 1, Maryland 1, Virginia 4, North Carolina 2, South Carolina 2, Georgia 1, Tennessee 1, and Kentucky 1, making together a loss of 16 members.

Ohio will gain 6 members, Indiana 4, Illinois 4, Michigan 2, Alabama 1, Mississippi 2, Louisiana 1, Missouri 3, making together a net gain of 23, or a net addition to the House of 7 representatives.

The free states in the aggregate will gain 16 members and lose 4; and the slave states will gain 7 and lose 12; making a net aggregate gain of 7 representatives from the free states.

MR. H. RUSSELL. On Monday night next this celebrated vocalist contemplates giving the citizens of Baltimore a musical treat at the saloon of the assembly rooms. The bill offered is a rich one and a full and fashionable audience will doubtless attend to listen to a choice selection of some of Mr. Russell's descriptive ballads.—Though we have been seriously afflicted with concerts and musical criticisms recently, yet, we believe that Mr. R. can draw a few around him who may have good ears for music, though not attuned to the refinement of the Italian school. The ballads of Mr. R. are generally simple and effective, appealing to the understanding through the medium of the heart.

PERFORMANCES AT FAIRMOUNT. The lovers of fun are informed that a number of oddities may be seen to-night at the above place. If the evening be pleasant we would recommend the walk.

☞The HON. HENRY CLAY, of Kentucky, arrived in this city last evening, and took lodgings at Barnum's City Hotel.

REV. MR. DUNCAN'S DISCOURSE. From this discourse, which was delivered in the church of the Associate Reformed Congregation, of Baltimore, on the Fast Day appointed by the President of the United States, we make the following extracts, which we commend to the sincere consideration of every reader.

"Your money concerns, if I may presume to touch them, has become, it matters not to me by what means, most awfully deranged. Your circulating medium is somehow most fearfully involved; and common honesty is every where drooping over the secondary, yet absorbing and ensnaring question of dollars and cents. A new fiscal agent had been summoned to the field of mammonic enterprise. A brief season passed, affording you an opportunity to look at the moral loveliness of his patriotic heart: and to listen to a few moral tones from lips which the inspiring glow of office had touched. When lo! the pen which was tracing his views and emotions, was quickly snatched from his fingers by the angel of death; and he has gone to that Being, whose "Godhead is not to silver and gold, graven by art and man's device." The perplexing question is thus returned upon you; and the reasonings and measures and failures of a few months may throw you into still deeper perplexity. Who can tell? There has been such reckless waste of moral character in this direction—so many men, who amazed us by their speculative projects, have fallen—so many of the children of guilty extravagance have worked out their own ruin—so many orphans weep over a crust—so many widows drop their burning tear upon a crumb—domestic discretion has been so thoughtlessly disregarded—political forecast is so much at fault—who, who can predict the next disaster? or forestall it by an appropriate and efficient remedy?

"But the evil is not yet fully felt, or there would not be so many unqualified and conceited office hunters, to court the fearful responsibility; nor so many partizan writers and orators ready, from mere party views, to urge them on to breast the storm—though they should perish under the first rolling surge. The times are portentous; and the remedial measures call for the deliberations of our wisest men. And what can they do? The laws of the nation's God have been broken; and, as he told us in his own expressive terms, we have 'set our eyes on that which is not; for riches make themselves wings, and they fly away as an eagle toward heaven.'

"The primary law of society, under the government of God, calls for labor; and turns our first thoughts to the agriculturists, whose privilege it is to meet the God of Nature in the well furrowed field. As society advances, the law of labor may modify its demands; but it cannot be repealed. The objects it embraces may be diversified; but the agency is still the same. You must not blame me for this general view; I cannot help it, and you cannot alter it. He who has enacted the law has distinctly noticed the consequences of its violation, and told us beforehand,—they who hasten to be rich, pierce themselves through with many sorrows. The dangerous experiment has been tried, and the sorrows have come. Individuals have hasted to be rich, and you know in a thousand instances, what pecuniary and moral and domestic evils have followed. States have hasted to be rich, draining Europe to sustain their speculations; and how fearful the pressure! Labor has been thought disgraceful; and young men have desired to be gentlemen—rich, tawdry and overbearing—as though the law of God was too oppressive for them. Lands have been bought and sold, not for cultivation, but to enable lovers of money to speculate to the disadvantge of their neighbors. Idlers have crowded our cities, and are helpless in the hour of trouble. Gamblers have decoyed and ruined the affectionate husbands; gamblers have spoiled the glory of families, in seducing and demoralising their first born son; and even on THIS DAY, are dishonoring their country, and their God amid the vulgarities of the race course.

"It seems to me that, the diversified labor of our citizens, graced by a sufficient measure of common honesty to meet the demands of our creditors abroad and at home, would go far to relieve our difficulties; and, if persevered in, would make us an honorable and happy people, forever afterwards.

"The employment of all will bring happiness to all. A nation's labor will bring a nation's prosperity. Financial gambling will, conducted by any administration, and whatever may be its party title, bring ruin, sure and dreadful. This is political economy in all its length and breadth, which any politician might have discovered by reading the ten commandments.

"But political economy has given place to the love of money;—the philosophy of thought has been superseded by the excitement of passion;—party projects have trifled with the majesty of moral principle;—the love of show and of dress, have called for the sacrifice of the domestic virtues;—and benevolence, imaginative and ingenious, leaving her churches in debt for thousands, and those who minister at her altar in penury or vexatious want, has created a race of paupers, whom, though foreigners in every well regulated society, she has naturalized with amazing promptness; and, by her poor rates and alms houses, her societies and her fairs, her ministerial beggars coming from all denominations, and her immature projects of evangelic enterprise, has converted church and state into a public charity pageant.—Money has been abased in all directions, and under every variety of form, without any regard to scriptural precedent or law. The fair demands of labor have been witheld; hundreds have been denied to the claims of justice; while thousands have been expended in the magnificent shows of eleemosynary folly.

"Marriage contracts are often sought and made on mere pecuniary calculations; young men and young women with parents thus immorally to advise them, at the expense of pure affection, seek after wealth,—that senseless god of the sensual, the ignorant, the indolent and the proud.—Unfitness of temper and discordance of view, bringing extravagance, discord and domestic ruin, while moral worth seldom calls for a thought—ah! me, what is any noble purpose of an intellectual and immortal Being, compared with money? Money, money, is every thing in this land of liberty, liberality and thought. Justice has been dishonored and enfeebled, when the wealthy transgressor of her laws has escaped her penalties; and she has sought to recover and assert her control, by exaggerated charges against impoverished criminals—in ermined pomp betraying her unrighteous 'respect of persons,' while charity, in gaudy attire and whining tone, has even graced the gallows with triumphs of faith and the joys of salvation."

REPEAL ASSOCIATION.

☞The June meeting of the Baltimore Repeal Association will be held on WEDNESDAY EVENING, NEXT, June 2d, in the ASSEMBLY ROOMS, first floor, at 8 o'clock. The National Repeal Association of Ireland having accepted in the most grateful manner the encouragement tendered to them by our sister cities, Philadelphia and Boston; and O'Connell having in such eloquent, and complimentary terms acknowledged the patriotic efforts of Americans in behalf of his unfortunate country, it will be proper that the steps we have taken to send similar assurances of sympathy to Ireland should be speedily accomplished. Let there be then a patriotic rally for Old Ireland and Repeal!

The Address printed in pamphlet form, with the Constitution, By-Laws and names of members will be ready for distribution at the meeting.

CONCERT.

MR. H. RUSSELL will give a GRAND CONCERT at the Assembly Rooms, Fayette street, on MONDAY EVENING, 31st inst. at 8 o'clock, on which occasion Mr. R. will sing some of his latest compositions, that have met with great applause in New York, Boston, and Philadelphia.

PROGRAMME.—PART I.

Song—"Some love to roam, o'er the dark sea foam," Russell.

Song—"The Old Farm Gate," Russell.

"Where, where is that gate that used to divide,
The old shaded lane from the grassy road side."

Sea Song—"I'm afloat! I'm afloat on the fierce rolling tide!" Russell.

Song—"The Old Sexton,"—Words by P. Benjamin, Russell.

"Nigh to a grave that was newly made,
Leaned a Sexton old, on his earth worn spade;
His work was done and he paused to wait
The funeral train through the open gate;
A relic of bye-gone days was he,
And his locks were white as the foamy sea;
And these words came from his lips so thin,
'I gather them in! I gather them in!'" &c.

National Refrain—Our Native Song, Russell.

"Self-exiled from our place of birth,
To climes more fragrant bright and gay,
The memory of our own fair earth
May chance awhile and fade away;
But should some minstrel echo fall,
On chords that breathe Columbia's fame,
Our soul's will burn, our spirits yearn,
True to the land we love and claim.
The high—the low—in weal or woe,
Be sure there's something coldly wrong
About the heart that does not glow
To hear its own—its Native Song."

New Ballad—My Mother's Bible, founded on a passage in every day life, (words by G. P. Morris,) Russell.

This book is all that's left me now!
Tears will unbidden start;
With faltering lip and throbbing brow,
I press it to my heart!
For many generations passed,
Here is our family tree!
My mother's hand this bible clasped—
She, dying, gave it me.
Ah! well do I remember those Whose names these records bear!
Who round the hearth-stone used to close
After the evening prayer;
And speak of what this volume said,
In tones my heart would thrill—
Though they are with the silent dead,
Here they are living still!

Song—"The Ivy Green," by desire—words by Box, Russell.

Song—"The Maniac"—words partly by Monk Lewis, Russell.

The above description of a Scene in a Mad House is founded on fact. "Some years since, a gentleman of large fortune was taken to a Mad House, and there confined seven feet under ground. The persons that accompanied him took oath to those entrusted with the care of the establishment to the fact of his being a maniac. The more the poor fellow implored for his release, the more forcibly were the keepers convinced of his madness. The treatment he received while thus confined, affected his reason and he became frantic, and shortly died from the effect. The strangers that carried him to the Mad House were supposed to have been hired by some brutal relatives, who, at his death, were to come in possession of his property.

PART II.

Song—Come brothers, arouse, arouse, Russell.

Song—The Old Arm Chair—(words by Eliza Cook,) Russell.

"I love it, I love it, and who shall dare
To chide me for loving that old Arm Chair."

Song Descriptive—The Gambler's Wife—(The words written expressly for Mr. Russell, by Dr. Reynold Coates,) Russell.

Dark is the night! How dark! No light! No fire!
Cold on the hearth the last faint sparks expire!
Shivering she watches by the cradle side,
For him who pledged her love! Last year a Bride.
Hark! 'Tis his footsteps! No! 'tis gone!
Tic! Tic! How wearily the time rolls on!
Why should he leave me thus! He once was kind,
And I believed 'twould last! How mad! how blind!
Rest thee, my babe! rest on!—'tis hunger's cry!
Sleep! for there is no food!—the fount is dry!
Famine and cold their wearying work have done!
My heart must break!—and thou, my child—hush!—
The clock strikes one!—&c.

This song is designed to represent the feelings of a young wife and mother, under circumstances sufficiently common to warrant the assertion that it is founded on fact, without exaggeration. It represents the Gambler's Wife and Child, deserted by their natural protector, in the extreme of poverty and starvation, for the pleasures of play. The fire expires—the energies of life sink from want of food, and the mother vainly strives to hope in the midst of despair, appealing to the past with the memory of the bride, while vainly endeavoring to sooth her child with the energy of a mother's love, until the infant dies in her arms, and her heart is broken. The current of her feelings is interrupted only by the peal of the clock, and at the third hour the scene closes; while Time strides onward in its monotonous march, regardless as the world of the issue.

Song—I love my dear old Wife—(A song written after the olden time,) Russell.

Ballad—We were boys together—(The words written by G. P. Morris,) Russell.

Song—Arm, brothers! arm! I've lost my child! the wolf is out—(A description of a Wolf Hunt) Russell.

Ballad—Woodman, spare that tree—(Words by G. P. Morris,) Russell.

Comic Italian Song—Largo al Factotum, Rossini.
