Deputies shot two students, report says

By RAFAEL BERMUDEZ

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — A biracial state commission created to find out how and why two students were killed at Southern University said Thursday the lethal shots "came from an area where sheriff's deputies were deployed."

The commission of six black and six white members said its findings should be turned over to the district attorney for possible criminal charges against the person who fired the shots.

"On the basis of this and other evidence, the commission has concluded the lethal shots came from an area where sheriff's deputies were deployed," the commission said in its report.

"It therefore is the conclusion of this commission that the evidence and statements accumulated by the commission be turned over immediately to the district attorney of East Baton Rouge Parish for further investigation by his office for possible criminal liability of any individual involved."

The panel, headed by Louisiana Attorney General William Guste, took grand jury-style testimony in secret from students and law officers familiar with the Nov. 16 shooting incident in front of the administration building during turmoil at the Baton Rouge campus of the college. The victims were Leonard Brown and Denver Smith, two students.

The commission said they were "among the students either in or in front of the building and were among the last to run from the area. As they passed near the southeast corner of the front of the administration building, in front of a ligustrum bush, they fell mortally wounded by shotgun pellets."

has indicated that the stu-

"Investigation thus far den's were killed by No. buckshot shells, containing approximately 26 pellets," the commission report said. "The students received 19 wounds and 10 pellets were recovered from their bodies."

Members of the commission of inquiry include Turner Catledge, former executive editor of the New York Times, Revius Ortique, a New Orleans attorney who served on the President's Commission on Campus Unrest; two southern university students; two educators; a black state judge; two legislators; the sheriff; and a former New Orleans police official.

Most members of the commission were present when the report was handed out to reporters in the building where Guste's office is located. Guste read the statement.

"In formulating this report, the commission has met for approximately 88 hours over the past three weeks and has personally interviewed 32 witnesses, including university officials, sheriff's deputies and state police officials and students," Guste said.

"In addition, it has carefully reviewed television film taken by cameramen who were on the scene during the confrontation and has interviewed those cameramen, viewed hundreds of still photographs taken by state police, as well as photo enlarrements of frames of motion picture film," he said.

The commission report begins with a sequence of events dating back to Oct. 17 when a group of students went to the home of Dr. Leon Netterville, the school president. They were protesting the resignation of Dr. Charles Waddell, chairman of the Psychology Department.

Militant students drew up a list of demands during a month of protests and demonstrations. One demand was that Netterville resign. Students also wanted a student-dominated council with authority to hire and fire faculty members.

Sheriff's deputies and state police were called to the Baton Rouge campus the morning of Nov. 16 after university administrators said militant black students had taken over the administration building.

The two students were killed during a 10-minute exchange of tear gas barrages.

Race pooh-poohed by Navy probe solon

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The October race riot aboard the carrier Kitty Hawk that left 46 men injured is a part of but not "the major problem" in the Navy's discipline troubles, according to the head of a House Armed Services Committee team.

Rep. Floyd V. Hicks, a D-Wash., who presided over six days of secret hearings that concluded Tuesday, said the focus of the probe was on the Navy's disciplinary problems as a whole.

"I think that basically the system is excellent all throughout the Navy," Hicks said without revealing the substance of testimony that ranged from top Navy officials to Kitty Hawk crewmen.

Hicks also criticized the news media for blowing up racial disorders on the Kitty Hawk and its sister carrier Constellation, which had been the subject of a congressional inquiry last month.

"You're tinkering with some little things alongt he way," Hicks said. "Too much is made of the racial problems, are taken up by you gentlemen because that's something you can stir on," he told newsmen.

The Kitty Hawk rioting among blacks, Marines and white crewmembers occurred Oct. 12-13 and apparently was prompted by a series of misunderstandings which were not detailed by the committee.

Hicks said the committee will carry its investigation into Navy problems back to Washington Friday and will hear testimony from top civilian and military leaders in the service including Navy Secretary John W. Warner and Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Elmo Zumwalt.

The congressmen spent their last day of closed sessions Tuesday touring the U.S. naval training center "boot camp" and hearing testimony from officials at the facility.

The six-day probe opened after 21 Kitty Hawk crewmen, all black, were flown to San Diego on charges stemming from the riot. Nineteen of them were subsequently ordered to face special court martial and the other two were held for pre-trial investigations that could lead to more serious general courts-martial.

Cab driver shot in robbery try

Police are searching for two unidentified youths in the shooting of a 50 year-old city cab driver in the 1300 block Woodyear Ave. Wednesday afternoon.

Herman F. Benton, 3200 block Ravenwood Ave. remains in the intensive care unit of the University Hospital with gunshot wounds of the forehead.

Police told the AFRO they suspect the shooting resulted in a struggle with the victim in an attempted robbery.

Neighborhood residents told police they saw two youths, both in their late teens, running away from the scene of the shooting.

Police state the driver picked up the youths from an unknown location and when they got to the 1300 block Woodyear Ave. a struggle began between the suspects and victim during which Mr. Benton was shot.
