and Virginia Keefer.

B4-872 DOUBLE FRAME HOUSE - Before 1850 - 514-516 Rolling Road, west side, second structure north of Old Frederick Road, south of Geipe Road. A 2-½ story frame and clapboard house with gambrel roof, shingle roof covering, dormers. Isolated by shopping center developments. Possibly the J. Kaiser Tavern on 1850 map and the "Hotel" in 1877 atlas. It was J. Hoffman's in 1915 atlas. Also known locally as Mudd Tavern. Owner: Lighthouse Enterprises, Inc.

B4-873 GARVEY HOUSE (SITE) - c. 1900 - 511 Rolling Road, on private drive opposite terminus of Old Frederick Road. Large Queen Anne or suburban style house now standing vacant (January, 1978) amid shopping centers. Frame and clapboard, hip roof. This seems to be a replacement or an elaboration of the Mrs. Macklin house of 1850 map and/or the Torrence house of 1877 atlas. Shown as S.P. Carr house in 1915 atlas. House was probably built between 1896, when assessment was only $250, and 1911, when the house was worth $6000. Acquired by James F. Garvey in 1940. Owner: Baltimore County (since 197_). Burned by fire department, June 8, 1980.

B4-874 CALLAHAN HOUSE - After 1876 - 2030 Old Frederick Road, at northwest corner with Rockwell Avenue. Frame Victorian house with cross-gable roof; three bays, two stories; rounded window in gable peak; built as tenant house on an estate that was developed into Colonial Gardens. Also known as "Mary's Dream", it seems to have been J. Brown's on 1877 atlas and the "Mrs. Thomey" house of 1915 atlas. Owners at time of 1970 Sun Magazine feature article were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Callahan. Present owner: Ellis G. Knox.

B4-875 OLD NEEPIER PLACE - Before 1896 - 2209 Rockwell Avenue, north side, well back from road. Survival of a larger estate, this is a three-story house with mansard roof in red composition shingles. Built of rusticated concrete block in high Victorian style. A fragment of the Hampson's "Rockwell Farm", this house was Walter Molesworth's in 1896 tax ledger. It was shown in Bromley's 1915 atlas as "Idemham", property of Clarence Hampson. Owner: Isabelle D. Corwin.

B4-876 ROCKWELL FARM - Before 1876 - 2200 Pleasant Villa Avenue, a dead-end street off north side of the 2400 block of Rockwell Avenue. This house, at the end of an avenue of pine trees, is set upon a remnant of the Rockwell Farm shown in 1877 atlas as property of Joseph Hampson, who is charged with a frame dwelling worth $2500 in the 1876 tax ledger. In 1882, it was purchased by Jane Sarah Wedderburn, who lost it in an auction sale of 1888; at that time, the house was advertised as a three-story frame dwelling of 15 rooms; mansard roof; stone cellar with furnance. Charles T. Neepier bought the place in 1891 and appeared as owner of an L-shaped house in 1915 atlas. House remained in that family until 1973. Rest of farm subdivided. Owner: John R. Devitt, EHKOR. 6211/420. The house is white, the mansard roofing material, green, 1978.
