...show how we may collect means for supporting the industries and enterprises now in existence and establishing new ones. If the Negro wishes his children to have preference in business houses and manufacturing establishments, the fathers and mothers of to-day must make the sacrifice, lay a foundation for themselves. If we do not do this for our own children, can we expect white men to build business houses and turn their children out and put theirs in? No political party will ever

We must learn a lesson of economy and protection from the other races with whom we come in contact.

You say you are educating your boy, and you want him some day to fill an office. What are you doing to make that office? Do you expect the office to grow out of the ground or descend from the skies?

Or would you have your son some day to occupy a well-furnished office, clerking for a successful business built up at the expense of others' lives, and looking back on your grave say, "My father never did anything to provide employment for his children; he did not even give his patronage to help the infant industries of his race."

The remedy always on hand should be carron oil (equal parts of lime water and linseed oil), common baking soda, arnica, a salve, anti-septic gauze, together with absorbent cotton, old linen, cheesecloth bandages and a pair of scissors. Carron oil is a sovereign remedy for burns and scalds, and should always be on hand; baking soda is another very good remedy, and in burns from hot lard will often give relief much sooner than the oil. It is used either dry, or made into a strong solution with water.

Anti-septic gauze is useful in case of cuts. After washing thoroughly to remove any foreign substance, draw the edges firmly together and cover neatly with the gauze. Salve is for slight burns, etc., and serves merely to exclude the air from the tender surface.

Absorbent cotton can be used for burns and scalds serious enough to need bandaging, and should be kept in place by cheesecloth bandages. Other simple remedies may also go in the drawer. Paregoric and peppermint for stomach ache, a never ending complaint among the smaller fry. Jamaica ginger for cramps, hartshorn liniment for sprains, etc. It can be duplicated with good effect in the nursery, and may have added croup medicine from a reliable doctor, flannel bands, a hot water bottle, small syringe and castile soap, good sweet oil for physic, bottle of soda mint and a small collection of the teas which old-fashioned nurses cling to. The small expenditure of time and money necessary to equip these emergency drawers will be repaid a hundred fold in many cases where time is a valuable factor in cures.

Suppose One Can't Sneeze.

Chinese dentists rub a secret powder on the gum over the affected tooth and after about five minutes the patient is told to sneeze. The tooth then falls out. Many attempts have been made by European dentists to secure this powder, but none have ever succeeded in doing so.

Lime.

For heavy land there are few better correctives or disintegrators than lime. It is also useful on light soils, but on clays and marls its effect is most marked. A moderate quantity sprinkled over the clods of clay in trenching will crumble them up as nothing else will do except frost.

The boy knew nothing of an elevator and did everything wrong. The first time Storey got into the elevator with the worthless boy he started the machine too soon, and almost caught the great editor in the door frame. Had he succeeded it would have ended Storey's career. Upon arrival at the top floor Storey ordered the dangerous youth discharged. It was done, and the old elevator boy was sent back until a fresh victim could be brought in.

The next morning a new and clumsy elevator boy was discovered by Storey and promptly told to go. The morning following Runnion fed the great editor another. Now and then a boy would last two days, but the rule was five a week.

Storey would immolate a quintet of elevator boys each week, and with that he would rest content. It was a good thing, and kept him off the regular force and restored tranquility among the hired men. But it was a bit rough on the boys.—Washington Star.

The Tourainers.

The Tourainers themselves are comforting to behold—a stalwart, brown-faced people, with contentment deep set in them. The women in their blue cotton gowns, white aprons and unwieldy wooden shoes are picturesque enough for anything, in their dark, sloelike eyes and ready smiles be also taken into account. One sees fair faces among the younger girls—Madonna-like faces. It were easy to fancy that Agnes Sorel, "the fairest of the fair," resembled the best of them when she too was young and had not yet caught the eye of a king. As for men, they are what one would expect them to be in such a natural garden—a hard-working class, prone to rejoice in all the festive leisure they can obtain.

They love their native province passionately; it is difficult to realize what they must have felt when, a quarter of a century ago, the Prussian soldiers trod their fields and vineyards under foot and burned their homesteads. "I do not believe," said one of them to me the other day, "there can be any other country in the world better to live in than Touraine. We have so much sun even in winter. The climate is so mild, and all things grow in it."—All the Year Round.

"Merely, sir? My poems, sir, have brought me fame."

"Yes, so I have been told. Fame, eh? And what amount of income does that fame represent?"

"Well, sir, I have paid my board bills as they came due, and I owe for only one suit of clothes, the one I have on."
