March 25.

The Subscribers

TAKE this public method of thanking their friends and the public generally, for the very liberal encouragement offered to them in their business of Auctioneers of Books, &c and beg leave to assure them that the shortness of the evenings, as well as the uncommon warmth of the weather at the present season, and not a lack of patronage, is their only reason for suspending their night sales for the present season.
They earnestly solicit those who have demands against them to make speedy application for payment. To those who are indebted to them, or who having purchased books for which they have not since called, they hope a mere hint is sufficient.
