'One evening's time from a few and money from many'

"All we ask is one evening's time from a few and a little money from many," Harry F. Bowers, chairman of the Muscular Dystrophy campaign declared recently.

The Muscular Dystrophy campaign hopes to raise $100,000 in November. Its immediate objective, however, is to obtain volunteers for Signal Night, Tuesday, November 20.

Nine-year-old Gordon Klingmeyer of Parkville, a fourth-grade pupil, will be this year's Poster Boy for the campaign. In spite of being confined to a wheelchair, Gordon admits 'a love of drums.'

ESCAPED FROM FIRE—When a fire broke out at 1836 Ashland St., last Monday morning, these persons were forced to flee the burning building. Left to right: Delores Scott, 15, holding Jeffrey Matthews, 3; Peggy Dozier, 10, holding George Matthews, 2; Mrs. Josephine McCants, 39; Harriett Dozier, 12; and Mrs. Inez Scott, 45, holding Linette Dozier, 1.

tored this church, for 18 months.

Attending the meeting Monday night, Thomas W. Cox, chairman of the deacon board said "Our former pastor seemed to have an obsession on the subject. We tried to get him to compromise with us, but he wouldn't do it."

For almost a year now, colored persons have been attending services at New Berean Church. They have been warmly welcomed.

During the Vacation Bible School some 150 colored children participated with about 15 white youngsters. They got along nicely together.

ACCORDING TO the Rev. Rudolph Boone of 5755 Larch wood Ave. he probably got the integration ball rolling. He was formerly assistant pastor at Greater St. Matthew Independent Church.

When he moved to the Larchwood Ave. community a year ago, he started a small church in his home. Needing a piano, he went around the corner to New Berean Church and struck up a friendship with the Rev. Mr. Gregory.

They talked about integration in worship services. Some of the colored children were attending New Berean's Sunday School.

The Rev. Mr. Boone encouraged others to do so. They did so. His wife and daughter were frequent visitors.

"During the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott and strike, we held a joint prayer service at the church. It was then I felt that those people in New Berean were really sincere," said the Rev. Mr. Boone.

"And today, many of those people are upset and unhappy about this turn of events. They want the membership open to everyone."

The Rev. Mr. Boone said, that during the Vacation Bible School, the children had worship services in the upstairs church while the 15 white children were downstairs. On Thursdays in the month, he and the pastor alternated in conducting the services.

"When I was in charge, I extended the invitation to the children to accept the Lord, Jesus Christ. There were several moving decisions. We are the children of parents who voted against integration of the church," said the Rev. Mr. Boone.

The Bible School program was a great success. On commencement night, the parents were amazed at they turned out in great numbers.

Colored families outnumbered the white. This called attention to the integrated set-up.

Pleased that his small independent church in the slum ghetto needed the Rev. Mr. Boone discontinued services at his home in July.

"But then," the minister went out to Chicago for a convention. Then he took his vacation. And while he was away, we lost a great deal of the progress we had made."

But during one Sunday night roundtable discussion, the spirit of brotherhood prevailed. One white member of the congregation commented that "I wish some of the colored members had the guts to join this church."

The Rev. Mr. Boone said he replied "I wish you had had the guts to invite them in." The member explained that there is no racial restriction in the church constitution.

THIS IS the point emphasized by the pastor. The Rev. Mr. Gregory quotes the church constitution as this:

"Any person professing faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and giving evidence of a change of heart in adopting the views of faith and practice held by this church as set forth in the New Testament upon Baptism, be received into membership."

A questionnaire was circulated among the congregation to feel them out on the subject. But many of the opposition group threatened to withdraw from the church.

To bring the matter to a head, a special congregation-meeting was held last Wednesday.

In the meantime, the board of deacons with Mr. Cox as acting chairman and H. L. Mann as secretary, had drawn up a report against integration. This was presented at the church meeting.

The pastor wanted the congregation to vote on the question of whether to admit colored members.

But he was overruled as the congregation decided to vote on whether to support or reject the deacons' report. Their decision upheld the deacons.

SO THE Rev. Mr. Gregory resigned on Sunday. He intends to continue his graduate studies at Temple University Theological School" but has no other immediate plans.

He came to Philadelphia three years ago, having pastored in his native Virginia and in Prince Georges County, Md.

He is acting president of the new "Central West Philadelphia Community Council; also co-chairman of the West Philadelphia Referral Committee which is concerned with crime prevention among juveniles.

New Berean Church, founded in 1907, has in the neighborhood of 150 members.

The Rev. Mr. Boone said Monday, that he will most likely conduct services at his home now.

But there are any number of New Berean's members who regret this situation," he regretted. "There are a few churches in this area which are integrated."

The Rev. Mr. Gregory lives with his wife, and 14-year-old daughter Rhoda Lee at 3908 Belvedere Drive, Clifton Heights.

The Rev. Mr. Gregory has accepted the invitation of the Rev. R. A. Cromwell, pastor of Chilis Memorial Baptist Church, 10th St. and Girard Ave., to preach there Sunday morning.
