By the way...

by Joe Black

"Be honest with everyone...especially yourself." That's a little saying I heard a long time ago: It's not very eloquent or clever, but I like it. It sums up in a phrase, the essence of a series of Greyhound Community Service ads entitled: BY THE WAY, by Joe Black.

The ads are placed in black newspapers. Adaptations of them are heard over black-oriented radio stations. They are written in an effort to shake people out of their complacency about subjects of great concern to the black community. In these ads, I say what I believe ...not necessarily what I think you want to hear.

So, when you hear my voice on the air, or read my words in the paper, remember that they are not merely to inform or impose my views upon you...but simply to make you think about things in a way you may not have thought about them before.

I am not a preacher or a teacher. I'm citizen Joe Black, fortunate enough to be able to talk to thousands of people and hopefully influence them to re-examine solutions to black problems in a new and constructive light. I still feel strongly that the things that unite people of good will are much more important than the things that divide them.

BY THE WAY, by Joe Black, is just one small voice asking humbly for a little more sanity, a little more honesty, and a lot more thinking through of what we are doing and the methods we are using to realistically solve the problems of our black community.

Vice President
The Greyhound Corporation

Here's program to reduce fuel costs

Here are some tips to help you get maximum performance from your heating system:

Have a qualified service man check heating equipment at least once a year, inspecting all operating parts and controls and making necessary adjustments.

If you have a forced warm air system, clean the filter regularly or replace it at the start of each heating season and again about halfway through. Dirty filters which block the flow of air through the system, cause more complaints of inadequate heating than any other part of the system.

If you have a hydronic heating system, vent the radiators periodically to remove excess air. A radiator half full of air is only half full of hot water and heating ability is reduced proportionately. Also, check the expansion tank to insure proper air-water balance.

Don't block registers or radiators with furniture. If they're not blocked they'll deliver more heat — and they won't harm furniture.

If you have cold rooms talk to your heating dealer about rebalancing the system. Serious unbalance is most likely to occur in homes with spread-out floor plans, large glass areas, finished basements and split levels. An additional thermostate could be necessary to help adjust the heat flow.

Make sure you have adequate insulation weather-stripping and storm windows to meet the needs of your climate. The finest heating system can't keep you warm if cold breezes are creeping in.

Keep the burner busy. You'll get smoother, more comfortable heating if the burner delivers heat at short, regular intervals — say five minutes on, five minutes off.

Keep draperies and shades drawn where possible, especially at night, to help cut down on heat loss through window areas, the source of greatest heat loss.

Close bedroom doors at night if you sleep with windows open.

If you have a fireplace, keep the damper closed except when you have a fire going. Otherwise, fuel dollars will go right up the chimney.

Close and weatherseal all doors leading to unheated attics and garages.

Reduce your thermostat setting five or 10 degrees at night. Clock-type thermostats can be adjusted automatically to turn down the heat at night and raise it again in the morning before you rise.

When you air the room where the thermostat is located, reduce the setting to its lowest point. If you don't you will be trying to accomplish the impossible — heating the great outdoors.

There's only one sure way to tell if you like Bourbon. And that's to try Old Fitzgerald.

Why? Because we season it with just a "whisper of wheat," instead of the rye commonly used in other Bourbons.

That's what gives Old Fitzgerald its mellow, nut-sweet taste. That's what makes it a Bourbon different from all the rest.

No wonder people who drink Old Fitzgerald say they don't know any better.

If you're not a Bourbon drinker, it's only because you haven't tasted Old Fitz.
