First Run Films

'King of Kings' has 7,500 lavish costumes

The wardrobe facilities of two of the largest studios in Madrid were utilized for the huge collection of costumes required for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "King of Kings" now playing at the Harlem.

The films costume supervisor was Eric Seelig, who was associated with Cecil B. DeMille on "Samson and Delilah" and "The Ten Commandments." He also was costume supervisor for "Solomon and Sheba."

"We had more than 7,500 costumes, including the 3,500 costumes for our Roman troops which involed handtooled metal and leather breastplates and leggings. Every one of these costumes was especially created for this film," Seelig said.

Nudist story tops bill at the Met

Zelda Suppiee, the nudist front woman from Lehighton, Pa., confesses that in the latest naked movie, she hypnotized some Florida models so they wouldn't mind posing with out clothes on.

Newspapermen will love the movie plot: An editor assigns his star reporter (a girl) to uncover a nudist colony, and expose it. The gal becomes a nudist convert. The editor rushes to the nudist colony to save the gal from nudism — and he becomes a convert.

Star reporter and editor walk through the sunet together — naked.

All-star cast set in Royal feature

Laurence Harvey, Capucine, Jane Fonda, Anne Baxter and Barbara Stanwyck are starred in "Walk on the Wild Side," now at the Royal.

Reportedly as turbulent and as daring as the best-selling novel a story of love and violence in New Orleans, in the depression-ridden '30s when rootless men and women shared, or fought to retain, their loneliness.

Harvey appears in "Walk on the Wild Side" as a dispossessed Texan. With nowhere to go, he takes to the road seeking a lost love, Capucine, and he finds her in New Orleans' notorious Doll House Cafe.

She is the most attractive of the place's various attractions and proprietor Barbara Stanwyck doesn't look to happily at Harvey's appearance on the scene.

Jane Fonda, a hoydenish young woman whom Harvey finds on the road and brings with him to New Orleans, is another of his feminine enlargements and so is Anne Baxter, playing a sultry widow who also developes a romantic interest in the wanderer.
