How to keep Halloween safe for small children

The spooks and the goblins are busy this week getting ready for their big night.

Halloween is almost here again.

The ancient observance of All Hallow's Eve in modern times is turned over largely to the very small fry. The tots and toddlers take full advantage of the occasion to dress in scary costumes and mooch cookies and candies from the neighbors with the traditional call of "Trick or Treat!"

The rugged, rampant vandalism of a past generation is largely passe. But there still are some safety hards to the youngsters who roam the neighborhoods and ring doorbells.

• • •

MAKE YOUR small spooks' costumes of bright colors. You might even sew on some strips of reflective tape. In the excitement of the occasion, they might dart into the street. A full face mask can cause trouble, if there's a chance that it can slip and block vision or breathing. A painted false face, using eyebrow pencil, grease paint or burnt cork, serves admirably.

If the little goblin wants a light, give him a flashlight, not a candle or a flaming torch If you want to be extra safe, flameproof the costume by dipping in a simple solution of seven ounces of borax and three ounces of boric acid in three quarts of warm water.

• • •

ADULTS CAN help make Halloween safe, too.

If you're out in your auto, slow down and drive with extra caution. Keep your pets in the house, especially dogs. Leave porch lights burning, front and back. Put away lawn furniture, garden tools, trash cans.

Halloween "Trick or Treat" can be a memorable night for the small children. Help to make it a safe night.

Methodist women observe 'Call to Prayer, Self-Denial'

NEW YORK — More than 1,700,000 Methodist women throughout Amgrica will set aside special times for prayer, meditation, study and giving during October, when they will observe their annual "Call to Prayer and Self-Denial."

The call is sponsored by the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Board of Missions, the national body under which 36,000 local Woman's Societies of Christian Service and Wesleyan Service Guilds unction. Originally designated as the "Week of Prayer and Self-Denial," the name was changed last year.

The time suggested by the Woman's Division for the observance is Oct. 25-31, though local Societies and Guilds may set their own dates. The observance is one of the oldest for Methodist women and dates back to 1887.

• • •

DURING THE week of the Call to Prayer and Self-Denial, women will gather in thousands of Methodist churches for two events — a program meeting to interpret the projects to which money from the special offering will be given and a "Quiet Day" service, which includes personal prayer and meditation, hymns and a silent meal.

The theme for the Quiet day service is "Peace With God." Each day women will offer personal prayers for the mission projects to which they will give.

As the "Self-Denial" part of the title suggests, each woman is asked to give a sacrificial gift to designate mission projects in the United States and overseas. The offering is taken during the program meeting.

Offerings during the week of the Call to Prayer and Self-Denial have increased almost every year and in 1962 reached a new high of $624,306.

FASHION NOTE: Tailored leather shoes walk in comfort and style in town or country. At left, a high-riding boot-shoe in royal blue brushed leather steps out smartly on a crisp fall day. A smooth black calf strap and gold buckle crosses the instep. Right, a bone-colored shoe in soft pigskin leather strides along in easy fashion. The stacked leather mid-heel, moc inset on vamp and bow tie at throat set the style note while slight welt extension makes a comfortable walking base. Shoes, left to right, by Miles and Capezio.

NIBBLIN' TIME

Add a dash of nutmeg to hot chocolate or cocoa and flavor the whipped cream with cinnamon for a cold night's beverage with cookies or cake squares.

Blend together a 10-ounce package of frozen strawberries with 2 cups of canned applesauce and a cup of miniature marshmallows for a rosy dessert sauce for cake or ice cream.

If you make doughnuts for a party, frost with confectioners' sugar icing and sprinkle with chocolate short decorettes or tinted coconut for a festive air.

To glaze plain doughnuts, beat an egg white until frothy, then blend in 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar, drizzling the glaze over them.

Add a sharp cheese, grated, to biscuit mix and make small biscuits from that to use for a spread during cocktail time.

Make a shrimp dip by softening a 3 - ounce cake of cream cheese with salad dressing and add to it 1 can shrimp, cleaned and chopped with garlic salt, mustard, salt, pepper, chili sauce and Worcestershire Sauce for seasoning.
