Can't wait for spring? then force shrub blooms

If you're one of those impatient souls who can't wait for springtime—thhough winter is just beginning—you can rush the season a bit by forcing blooming shrubs inside your home.

Flowering quince, forsythia, spirea are easily forced into bloom in mid-winter. So are peach, apple, pear plum and cherry branches, reports the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

• • •

CUTTINGS from most of these may be made any time after January 1. For apples and pears, it's best to wait a little longer — probably until February.

Select branches which have many large flower buds. Cut the stems, remove bottom inch of bark and pound the base of the stem with a hammer to give good contact for water up take. Place stems in a warm (110o F) water bath and allow to cool naturally to room temperature and then remain in the water for 24 hours. Cover top with moistened burlap or with a plastic bag.
