Tomato sauce

While tomatoes are plentiful, both in the home garden and on the market, plan to make fresh spaghetti sauce. There's nothing like it. Make it in large quantity and freeze it for the days ahead when you don't feel like cooking.

• • •

SPAGHETTI SAUCE is made with one - half cup cubed salt pork, one - fourth cup olive or other oil, four onions, sliced, one clove garlic, chopped, one cup chopped celery, five pounds fresh tomatoes, one - half teaspoon dried basil, one teaspoon dried oregano,one teaspoon salt, and freshly ground pepper as desired.

In a large kettle, cook salt pork in oil until pieces are lightly browned. Add onions, garlic and celery and cook until soft. Cut tomatoes into quarters (do not peel, core or seed; the Food Mill takes care of it); add to kettle.

• • •

ADD BASIL, oregano, salt and pepper. Cover and cook slowly about one hour. Strain through a Foley Food Mill. Return to pan and continue cooking, uncovered, until sauce is thickened, about 1½ hours. Taste and add additional herbs, salt and pepper as desired.

Makes about 1 quart sauce. When doubling or tripling recipe for freezing, do not add additional herbs or other seasonings at the end. Wait until frozen sauce is thawed and heated, then taste and add seasoning if desired.
