By the way...

by Joe Black

As a businessman my job takes me to many different cities in many different parts of the country. I see and talk to a lot of people and I come into contact with a big cross section of the black community. What I see is a growing surge of a kind of super-pride. There's the Afro cut, the wearing of jewelry and clothing with a strong African-American influence, and many other material evidences of an identifying symbol. Racial pride is just busting out all over. And I don't knock it. But it does seem to me that material showings are not as important to the black people today as what I call Community Involvement.

Yelling words and mouthing phrases like "Black Power," "Soul," or "Black is beautiful," can't erase the problems in the ghettos. What can erase them are the things we can do to help our young people understand the true meaning of "intellectual power." If they learn it, they'll have a better chance to earn. Our youngsters must be encouraged in their school work. They must be made to feel that there is hope and their dreams can come true.

If you've got children, I say it's up to you to let them know you really care about them. Go to their schools. Talk with their teachers. Attend PTA meetings. Get involved in community projects and neighborhood events. Set the pace and the example for the children. There's just no getting around it . . . the future of black society is depending upon them. What you do and how you do it is serious business. Remember . . . some mighty important people are watching every move you make. They're our kids.
