High schoolers earning college credits at CCB

By Dr. Sidney Kohre

Senior high school students are taking advantage of a program at Community College of Baltimore CCB which enables them to earn up to 15 college credits while they are still in high school.

The project has proved popular with high school seniors and has drawn more of them this year than in previous summers.

"The project permits academically-superior students, still in senior high school, but who will be seniors in the fall of 1973, to take courses on the collegiate level," said Paul W. Beckhan, director of the program in the Division of Continuing Education. "The high school seniors can 'bank' the credits earned for use at any future time. They may earn up to 15 credits in the summer."

This year's high school principals and guidance counselors from every section of the Baltimore metropolitan area, seeing the advantages of the program, recommended to their students that they enroll at CCB. High school administrators and guidance counselors found that in previous years students in the program have been stimulated by the challenge the college level work provides.

Grapefruit sell at $1.60 in Japan

By Orval Jackson

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The Japanese are so fond of grapefruit, which they don't produce, that they pay up to $1.60 a piece for it. And that's a lot of yen in the Bank for Seald-Sweet Growers, Inc., a Tampa co-operative which ships about 50 per cent of all fresh citrus moving from Florida into domestic and foreign markets.

There are two big problems, high tariffs and high shipping costs, according to Howard Baron, vice president and head of Seald-Sweet's International Division.

"There is a 40 per cent duty (in Japan) on our grapefruit and that certainly is a handicap," Baron said. "Florida also is at a disadvantage because we must use foreign flag vessels for shipping to European markets. Freight rates from the United States to Europe are much higher than those from the Mediterranean countries to Europe."

Many citrus producing countries use their own flagships, Baron noted. Since many of those lines are government-owned it amounts to subsidized shipping.

Seald-Sweet Exports 75 per cent of the fresh citrus shipped from Florida to Europe, the British Isles, Bermuda, Curacao, New Zealand, Australia, Singapore, Hong Kong and Japan.

Among the most productive export market is Japan, where grapefruit exports have grown rapidly in recent years.

"In spite of the penalty of the 40 per cent duty, the Japanese consumer likes the sweetness and juiciness of Florida grapefruit and prefers it to grapefruit of any other origin," Baron said.

Florida grapefruit, he said, is the only one with such a high tariff because of the time in which it is shipped. Tariffs on later grapefruit from other areas run about 20 per cent.

The Japanese have shown a liking for grapefruit as a desetrt or snack.

"The average price varies from 100 yen, or about 40 cents, to about 200 yen, per fruit," Baron said. "In some cases, in some shops, it is as high as 400 yen."
