FOR THE NEW BRIDE:

'At Home' Fiesta

So you've just returned from a heavenly honeymoon in Mexico, aglow with memories of pearl-gray beaches, colorful adobe houses, fiery sunsets and authentic Mexican cuisine. Why not recall some of those moments at a fiesta right in your own dining room, along with your immediate family, new in-laws and members of your wedding party.

First on the agenda are sizzling beef brochettes. Fresh pineapple chunks, whole onions, green pepper squares and rare beef cubes get "South of the Border" flavor with spicy enchilada sauce. Tomatoes take on a Mexican accent when broiled with a sesame cheese topping and bedded in a fluff of Saffron Rice. The perfect accompaniment here is guacamole flavors translated into fresh-tasting Avocado Sour Cream Dressing for crisp salad greens. For variety, whip up a Cottage Cheese Dressing, too.

At dessert time, serve a luscious Blueberry Lemon Butter Cake swirled with Lemon Butter Frosting. And then, just for the fun and surprise of it, bring out the pinata . . . a whimsical paper-crafted beast just waiting to be "whacked away at." So have yourself a Mexican fiesta . . . a fine way to say "thank you" to your family and wedding attendants and "hello" to your husband's family.

Enchilada Brochette
(6 servings)

6 Skewers, 12-inch
Brochettes:
2 lbs. top round of beef, cut in 1½-inch cubes
Unseasoned meat tenderizer
Fresh pineapple chunks
1 jar (1 lb.) whole onions
1 green pepper cut in 1½-inch squares
Sauce:
¾ cup (1½ sticks) butter
1 package (1½ oz.) enchilada seasoning mix

In a 1-quart saucepan melt butter. Stir in enchilada mix. Moisten meat; sprinkle about 1 tablespoon tenderizer over all surfaces; pierce and let stand approximately 30 minutes. On skewers thread beef, pineapple, onions and green pepper squares. Place on broiler pan and spoon butter sauce over brochettes while broiling. Broil approximately 5 minutes on each side or to desired degree of doneness turning brochettes once. Serve over Saffron Rice.

Saffron Rice
(6 servings)

In a 2-quart saucepan cook 1 package (6 oz.) yellow rice mix according to package directions. During last five minutes of cooking stir in ½ cup chopped celery.

Sesame Cheese Tomatoes
(6 servings)

Cut 3 large tomatoes in half horizontally. Place in a shallow baking pan, cut side up. Salt and pepper. In a mixing bowl blend together 1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar Cheese, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons sesame seed and ¼ cup soft bread crumbs. Broil tomatoes about 5 minutes. Top each with about 1½ tablespoons cheese mixture. Broil 2-3 minutes.

Avocado Sour Cream Dressing
(Yield: 1½ cups)

In a mixing bowl beat together ½ cup chopped avocado, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon celery seed and a dash of pepper. Fold in 1 cup dairy sour cream. Cover and chill.

Cottage Cheese Dressing
(Yield: approx. 2 cups)

In a mixing bowl beat together 1 cup cottage cheese and ½ cup dairy sour cream until fairly smooth. Add ⅔ cup (about 8 slices) cooked, crumbled bacon, ¼ cup milk, 2 tablespoons sliced green onion and ¼ teaspoon salt. Cover and chill.

Blueberry Lemon Butter Cake

Square baking pan, 9-inch
1½ cups blueberries
2 tablespoons cake flour
½ cup (1 stick) butter

(Continued on Page 16)

Peace Safari

By Art Carter

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — With the picturesque Hotel Ivorie off the scenic banks of the Ivory Coast's lakefront as the headquarters, more than 3,000 judges and lawyers engaged in a six-day search for peace.

The late August conference which attracted the legal experts of the world along with other interested persons from 123 countries lasted for six exciting days.

The conference was billed as the Sixth World Conference on World Peace Through Law and the World Assembly of Judges, but it was much more, particularly for Africans.

For Africans, it had a deeper, more humane significance than a mere safari for peace.

Judge William S. Thompson (L) Discusses Program of World Peace Conference Through Law With Monsieur Camille Alliale, Minister of Justice of Abidjan, Ivory Coast.

The major thrust, without a doubt, was focused on the search for peace in the world, but underlying the hopeful quest for peace was a bold bid to help the developing African nations set a straight course in building for the future.

Face Tough Problem

Such giants of the legal profession as Judge Raymond Pace Alexander of Philadelphia, Pa., the Honorable Briant A. Doyle, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Zambia, Dean O. I. Odumosu of the University of Ille-Lfe, Nigeria; the Honorable Clarence Clyde Ferguson Jr., of the U. S. Department of State; the Honorable S. K. B. Asante, Solicitor-General of Ghana; the Honorable Roland Barnes, Ministry of Justice, Liberia; and Dr. Cleveland L. Dennard, president, Washington (D.C.) Technical Institute, weighed ways and means of providing unified legal education for African lawyers.

The effort is to put the teaching of law on a national basis for such nations as Ghana, Sierra Leone, Nigeria, Liberia, Ivory Coast, etc. so that trained barristers will be able to ply their profession in any African country.

It is a tough problem, in view of the various traditional backgrounds of colonial law, customs and tribal rights involved, but Africans have become aware that the need to develop international lawyers to compete in the world legal market involving inter-nation pacts and international trade agreements is urgent.

Thus the motivation has been established, and Africans are ready to make a move in this direction. As one veteran African jurist pointed out: "It is time to have less talk and more work if we are to solve our problems through law."

Urban Development

On another subject, "Urban Law and Development," the Africans were urged not to make the mistakes other countries, including the United States, have made and to build their nations on the "people-first approach.

Among those providing work papers on urban development were two distinguished American educators, Dr. Paul P. Cooke, president, District of Columbia Teachers College in Washington, and Dr. William Thomas Carter, of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, also in Washington. Also on the panel was Sterling Tucker, vice president of the City Council and executive director of the Washington (D.C.) Urban League.

Dr. Tucker advised the Africans that the "real problems can be solved only through the wise use of land for the whole society." He added that "there must be citizen participation in the building planning."

41 Resolutions

The six-day conference saw the conferees, meeting in the newly finished convention hall at Abidjan's Hotel Ivorie, adopt 41 resolutions growing out of the 23 workshops. Unfortunately the resolutions and discussions place no obligation on any nation or organization, as the delegates operated as individuals and had no governmental status.

The major hope of the legal authorities, however, is that their conclusions and opinions would sift down to their various governments and affect world attitudes on the numerous issues.

Charles S. Rhyne, president, World Peace Through Law Cen-

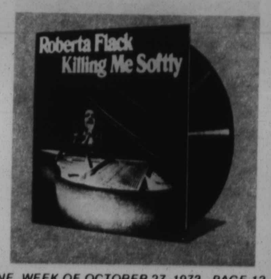
(Continued on Page 25)

Roberta Flack's new album, "Killing Me Softly"

It includes eight outstanding songs:

Jesse
No Tears (In the End)
I'm the Girl
River
Conversation Love
When You Smile
Suzanne

and her smash hit,

Killing Me Softly With His Song,


On Atlantic Records and Tapes