AMERICAN AFFAIRS IN EUROPE.

RENEWED RUMORS OF INTERVENTION.

Correspondence of the New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, May 20, 1862.

The surrender of New Orleans and the evacuation of Yorktown have fallen upon the British public like two very heavy claps of thunder. The first event is a mystery no one pretends to explain. We wait for further particulars. As it now appears, it is pregnant with alarm. If gunboats can pass shore batteries and harbor defences, what city in the world is safe? An iron-clad gunboat could ascend the Thames any day, and, lying in the Pool below London Bridge, reduce the great metropolis to submission or to ashes. But the same is true of New York, and of every city which lies upon the sea or a navigable river.

There is a general giving up here, so far as military operations are concerned. Mr. Spence holds out, but the Times surrenders. The power of the North is too great to be resisted—the South must sooner or later be conquered. The question now is, Will they be subdued? Will they give up a struggle so hopeless, and accept such terms as their conquerors may offer? If so, there will soon be peace, commerce and cotton. But what if the South still resist—burn cotton and tobacco—fall back into the interior, and carry on the war as the Colonists did in 1776-83? This is what Europe dreads, and must, if possible, take measures to prevent.

If Southern ports be opened, and the planters will sell their cotton and buy goods, they may do as they please about the restoration of the Union. There is sympathy with the South, but it is useless. There is hatred of the North, but it determines no action. Interest, and interest alone will govern.—And what is that interest? One-third of the cotton mills in England are idle, and more than another are working short handed or short time. Short time means two or three days in a week. The India cotton, which they are obliged to use, is so full of trash and waste, and so short in staple, that the extra time required to work it still further reduces the wages of the operatives. More than a hundred thousand people in Lancashire are paupers. Three times that number are on the verge of starvation. The distress extends to the colliers, the shopkeepers, and every branch of trade.—Some have died of starvation; others are too far gone for help. Insanity and horrible murder have begun their work in Manchester. A father, driven to despair, killed his three children last week, and then murdered the landlord's agent, who had stripped him of his household furniture. Meetings of workingmen begin to be held. A meeting of 6,000 at Ashton, a few days ago, demanded intervention. And this demand will grow louder and louder, unless there is a prospect of peace and cotton.

And cotton there must be. Every promise of supply has been deceptive. Less cotton is on the way from India than there was a year ago. China sends none. The supply from all other sources is but a drop in the bucket. Day by day the small stock diminishes. Day by day the want, the hunger, the wide spread misery increases. America feeds an army of more than half a million, but England has a still larger army, which the war has brought into conflict with a more terrible foe than the Southern Confederacy—hunger. England is rich, but she cannot long bear the burdens now thrown upon her. England has a wonderful power of almsgiving, but what alms are sufficient for such a calamity? Private benevolence is overtasked. The war in America is costing England more money and more suffering than many a war of her own. What can you expect then, when feeling and interest are alike against it? If it do not end in thirty days, there will be measures taken to bring it to a close. Your Washington correspondent, whose letter on the visit of M. Mercier to Richmond is copied in the Times, believes that France has called upon the Confederacy to surrender. It is not credited here that the Emperor would give such advice. It is very generally believed, and confidently stated, that his feelings would lead him to wish for a very different termination.

The English people look now with some hope for a speedy end of the war by a result they have all along declared impossible—the conquest of the South. They are also looking for a tremendous financial crisis in the North. The people of Europe cannot understand the manner in which a Government can go on month after month with the most lavish and enormous expenditures, without revenues or taxation. They predicted a failure of the war months ago for lack of means. They do not see how it can go on; and when stocks rise, and the public credit grows stronger, they compare it to the South Sea bubble and the railway mania, and are looking for the crash that they think must inevitably follow. But all calculations have failed and all expectations been disappointed.

I can make no claim to infallibility, but I have been to Lancashire and looked upon its suffering and distress. It is heartrending in its character and appalling in its extent. No one can tell what may be the result. The Government may be forced to action which it does not now contemplate. Half a million of people reduced to starvation is a volcano that may burst into eruption. The Irish starved peacefully, because, it was said, they were used to starvation. The operatives of Lancashire have not been accustomed to it. They know that the Government could give them relief—the only relief they desire—labor. It would not be strange if they should demand help in a manner that no Government could resist. The first sign of action will be a change of administration, unless the present Government chooses to avoid such a change, by a change of policy. But it cannot have escaped your observation that the only organs of public opinion here favorable to the North, have been the extreme liberal papers, while the entire moderate conservative and tory Press has been in sympathy with the South, and the more violently and decidedly tory the paper, the stronger has been its opposition to the Union.

Intervention on the American continent has commenced in Mexico. According to present appearances England and Spain have withdrawn from the field, and left the Emperor free to establish an Austrian monarchy on the Southern border of the United States. There is some jealousy and mortification here, but England puts the best face she can upon it, for it is useless to complain. But intervention, on the part of France, is becoming a habit. When a man places himself at the head of civilization, and believes that he has a mission to regulate the universe, what can you expect? It will be some days before this reaches you. I cannot tell what has happened in the ten days past, nor what will be done in the ten days to come, in America, before this comes to hand; but I shall be much surprised if the action of M. Mercier do not prove to be but the prelude to some further and more important action.

It is said that the Emperor has been very much annoyed at the consequence given to the young actors of the House of Orleans by our Government, and their positions on the Staff of the late Commander-in-Chief of the American armies. Perhaps it did not strike Mr. Lincoln as an indelicate proceeding; but if it had been done by any European Power it would have been an insult. How would Victor Emmanuel like to see the ex-King of Naples occupying a similar position in the French army? There is a story that the Emperor expressed his dissatisfaction in this matter to to Archbishop Hughes in no equivocal terms. It is to be hoped that the amiable prelate was able to make a satisfactory explanation.

The International Exhibition feels the pressure of the times. The receipts of last week were less than one-half those of the corresponding week of the Exhibition of 1851. It opens slowly, and will not be fully in order until the 1st of June, when the great body of the people will be invited to come for a shilling. In ordinary times there would be crowded excursions from the manufacturing districts. This year they cannot be looked for. They will have hard work in all the North to keep from dying of hunger.

All eyes are turned to America. The Pope, Victor Emmanuel, and all European interests are forgotten. Prosperity or adversity, peace or war, life or death, depend upon the events now taking place in Virginia and the Southwest. If the North is to conquer, it must be soon. England cannot bear a protracted struggle. There will be intervention if there is no peace.

NEW YORK SOCIETY.

"Burleigh," the New York correspondent of the Boston Journal, thus speaks of New York society:

"The affair of the shooting of Watrous by an avenging husband, creats but little stir here. Those who have a familiar acquaintance with the inside of New York life, know too well how much scandal there is afloat, and only wonder that a fatal termination is not more common. Few places exist this side of Mason and Dixon's line where the temptations of domestic life are as many as in New York. Most of the men live up town. Many families board. The head of the family leaves early in the morning, and nothing is seen of him till late at night. Loafers with luxuriant beards, exquisites out of employment, men of the town with fine clothes, hang round hotels and boarding-houses, and even homes, and make themselves agreeable. They visit, ride, roam up and down Broadway, go to the galleries of fine art, and in company with ladies whose lords are in the whirl of business. And this lonely life and so much neglect induce much company, and the criminal side of the Court tells the and, and often of the familiarity."

The same letter says:

Some of our most prominent clergymen are off to the war. Rev. Dr. Weston, of Trinity Church, has gone with the 7th; Rev. Mr. Wiley, of the Fifth Avenue Episcopal Church, has gone with the 71st; Rev. John Cotton Smith, late of Trinity Church, Boston, has gone with the new 22d.

No Trouble from War Yet.—A German woman in Westford, Connecticut, thinks that "we in this country don't know any thing about war yet. During the existence of a war in Germany, she was compelled to work in a blacksmith's shop for three years, so sure were men.

A sensible criticism was got off by the Japanese Ambassador at Paris, when visiting the Grand Opera. "The actors made great noise," said one of the Princes, "and made ugly faces all the same as the Princesses in Japan."

THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS PARTIALLY RESTORED.—After an involuntary absence of about three months, during which time we were made familiar with the classic and once hallowed grounds of Fort McHenry—we again resume, partially, our old vocation of "enlightening the world with lamp-black." Our Press, being deemed dangerous by the Government, has been kindly limited, and, for the future, instead of publishing "THE SOUTH, or any other paper, without consent of the Commanding General," we shall modestly labor in the humbler department of the "art preservative of all arts," by executing every description of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING, hoping through that medium to sustain ourselves and those dependent upon us, and would earnestly appeal to our friends to favor us with their patronage. We have prepared our Job PRINTING DEPARTMENT to execute all kinds of printing neatly, expeditiously and cheaply, and solicit a call at our old buildings.

STILL ANOTHER TRIUMPH.
BALTIMORE, May 1st, 1862.
I have experienced so much benefit by using PEARSON'S MEDICATED TAR DROPS, that I believe it not only a duty but a pleasure, to make it known to others. I was afflicted with a Sore Throat and Dry Cough, which debilitated me so that I could get no rest. My friends told me that I had the consumption. I am now happy to inform you that your MEDICATED TAR DROPS have cured me.
I find that your MEDICATED TAR DROPS are counterfeited, and I caution the afflicted to be on their guard. This is really a shame that so efficacious a remedy should be injured by unprincipled men. I am glad, however, to see that your signature is now on each package, and I advise those who purchase to bear that in mind.
Yours, truly,
HENRY FISHER,

NERVOUS DISEASES!
CONTROLLED AND CONQUERED.
DR. BRADSHAW'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL,
DR. BRADSHAW'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL,
DR. BRADSHAW'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL,
THE GREAT INVIGORANT,
THE GREAT NERVINE,
NERVOUSNESS AND WEAKNESS,
And all diseases arising from excesses and over exertion, whether physical or mental.
To persons of feeble muscular frame, or deficient in vital power, it is recommended as the only means of communicating that energy which is necessary to the enjoyment of all the natural appetites, as well as the higher mental attributes. Its beneficial effects are not confined to either sex or any age. The feeble girl, the ailing wife, the listless, enervated youth, the overworn man of business, the victim of nervous depression, the individual suffering from general debility, or from weakness, will find immediate and permanent relief from the use of this incomparable renovator.
A STIMULANT THAT ENTAILS NO REACTION.
Its force is never expended, as is the case with opium, alcoholic preparations, and all other excitants. The effect of these is brief, and it may well be said of him who takes them, "the last state of the man is worse than the first." But the Elixir is an exhilarant without a single drawback—safe in its operation, perpetual in its happy influence upon the nerves, the mind, and the entire organization. In cases of neuralgia, headache, loss of memory, hypochondriasis, dyspepsia, general prostration, irritability, nervousness, inability to sleep, liver complaint, and all diseases incident to females, hysteria, monomania, vague terrors, palpitation of the heart, barrenness, constipations, &c., &c., from whatever cause arising, it is, if there is any reliance to be placed on human testimony, absolutely infallible.
It is the only infallible remedy yet discovered for Nervous, Head and Mind Complaints; it is the mentaphysic, long sought for, and never before found, the only natural agent that can "administer to a mind diseased." In cases of Neuralgia, Headache, Vertigo, pain in the nerves of the face, and the various train of Nervous Affections, it will produce a cure in an astonishing short period of time; and it will also remove Depression, Excitement, a Tendency to Blush, Restlessness, Sleeplessness, Dislike of Society, Incapacity for Study or Business, Loss of Memory, Confusion, Giddiness, Blood to the Head, Melancholy, Mental Debility, Hysteria, Indecision, Wretchedness, Thoughts of Self-Destruction, Fear of Insanity, &c. It will increase and restore the appetite, strengthen the emaciated, renew the health of those who have destroyed it, induce continual cheerfulness and equanimity of spirits, and prolong life.

CAN CONSUMPTION BE CURED?
CAN CONSUMPTION BE CURED?
Public opinion for the most part, and a large proportion of the physicians of every civilized nation, would answer this question in the negative. But Dr. Schenck has proved the contrary of the proposition. Evidenced by the cures already effected by his system and medicines, and vouched for by certificates from many grateful patients.
That there is a stage in the disease beyond cure is undoubted; but the symptoms of this stage are too often mistaken, and all hope is lost when the mind of the patient has become convinced that his condition is incurable. One lung may be entirely gone, and the other diseased with tubercles, and yet a cure be not only possible, but, in many cases, probable, and in some even certain, if the advice and prescriptions of Dr. Schenck are implicitly followed.
In no case after an examination, will he give the promise, or even hold out the expectation of a cure, unless, in his heart, he is morally certain of success. But to accomplish it, he must be assisted by the patient.
Firstly.—The patient must have faith in the sincerity of his opinion, in his professional ability to form a correct opinion, in the judgment to be exercised by him in the treatment, and in the efficacy of his remedies.
Secondly.—The patient must rigidly obey his instructions in regard to diet and the regular taking of his medicines, both as to time and quantities.
If these conditions are performed, and if a cure be promised by Dr. Schenck, that cure will be effected. And even in cases beyond cure, while yet but a few days of life remain, he can palliate and soothe the most aggravated symptoms, giving comparative relief while life lasts, and soothing the downward pathway for the patient to the tomb. Next to cure this is the most wonderful feature of his treatment.
Those who have witnessed the last few days of the life of loved ones afflicted with this terrible disease, can appreciate how great would have been their consolation in the recollection that those weeks, instead of being weeks of agony and distress, had peacefully and tranquilly glided by. The loved one, conscious not of pain, but of the untiring solicitude of friends and relatives, able to appreciate their love, and sufficiently undisturbed to prepare, even in the hours of death, for an undying existence hereafter.
We make no assertions in regard to the cures effected by Dr. SCHENCK which cannot be substantiated by incontrovertible evidence. It needs only that those who have occasion for such aid as he can give, or their friends, should examine into his merits to be convinced of his ability to cure. They can see now, in almost every city of the Union, those who have been his patients, who justly and gratefully are ready to bear witness by word to his professional skill, and many of whom have presented him with certificates, properly attested of the particulars of their cures. There are, indeed, cases which disease had been suffered to progress until in the final and fatal stage, before application had been made to Dr. SCHENCK; and although in many of these instances there were apparently but a few days of life in the patient, he has almost invariably succeeded in prolonging life and palliating suffering for weeks, and sometimes even for months.
There, be it remembered, were hopeless cases, in which he had simply undertaken to palliate suffering, not to effect cures. And while resulting fatally, they may have been used and cited by rivals in the profession as a basis for prejudice against Dr. Schenck and his medicines, the friends and relatives of the deceased have been ever ready cheerfully to accord proper and grateful acknowledgment to his merits. But, as before stated, in no single instance where he has promised a cure has he failed to effect it.
To accomplish cures the ancient and track-worn system has been entirely repudiated and set aside, and a new, brilliant and original system adopted by Dr. Schenck. He having, after a long course of study, by professional astuteness, judgment and the most extensive practical experience, devoted his ingenuity and the energies of a comprehensive mind to the discovery of such remedies as would act, in combination with each other, on the entire human system, through those channels by which the health and vital energies are sustained and restored. We allude to the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the blood, through regular and healthy action of the digestive organs, the heart, the brain, and lastly, the all-important maintenance or restoration of the lungs to a healthful condition. In a word, these organs are all dependent on each other, and on the uniformly healthy condition of each doth the normal condition of the body and mind, and even the continuance of life itself depend, just as in any complicated and intricate machinery the disarrangement of the smallest wheel, pinion or pivot will impair or stop the action of the whole machine.
In pursuance of this theory, and in demonstration of its success in practice, Dr. Schenk has discovered and is using:
FIRST.—His Famous Mandrake Pills—acting as a gentle or powerful aperient, in proportion to the doses prescribed; regulating the stomach and liver, correcting the secretions, superseding calomel, and, while effecting every object for which the various preparations of mercury have been prescribed, are without that risk to the constitution which always follows, in a greater or less degree, the use of such preparations. A simple Vegetable Pill, but an efficient and infallible remedy for headache, piles, languor, costiveness, even if chronic, and a restorative of vital energy. Thus, through his Mandrake Pills, he is able to accomplish the first step towards the cure of Consumption in its earliest stage, or to correct any incipient tendency to the disease, by regulating the action of the bowels, altering the secretions through the action of the Pills on the liver and sustaining vital energy.
SECOND.—His Unequalled Sea Weed Tonic.—A stimulant and alterative, carefully distilled from Sea Weed and Kelp, mild and pleasant to the taste as wine. Not only harmless to the nervous system, but tending more than any other known medicine to restore and strengthen nervous action without any of that reactionary prostration after its use has been abandoned, infallibly attendant on the discontinuance of every other stimulant. Possessing, from the alkali it contains, the peculiar property of acting with and restoring the gastric juices, enabling them (even if the stomach is in an ulcerated condition) to convert the food into healthy chyme, thereby promoting digestion; the proper performance of which function is an absolutely essential to a healthful condition of the blood; reinvigorating the animal functions, restoring flesh and muscle, and in connection with the action of the Mandrake Pills, speedily getting the system into such vigorous condition as enables it to overpower, ripen and discharge all morbid matter and unhealthy secretions, and forcing to suppuration irritations and sores in the lungs, which, as they discharge, will necessarily afford relief to the patient; while, at the same time, the renovated and strengthened condition of the system, the healthful action of the stomach and liver, together with the purification of the blood, infallibly prevent the formation of other abscesses or any new irritation—effectually eradicating or dispersing such tubercles or scrofulous sores as may have formed on the lungs. This effect of these medicines is similar in its peculiar action to that effort of nature to relieve the system when in the normal condition of youth, which we have witnessed in persons in exuberant health afflicted, as they supposed, with boils—humors forced from the blood to the surface, rapidly healing, and proving that in health the natural recuperative powers are of themselves sufficient in their strength to purify, refine and cleanse the system. So with Dr. Schenck! When the system has become disordered, the blood impure, the functions torpid, he, by his remedies and treatment, extends and supplies that healing power which revives, renews and strengthens all the recuperative forces.
THIRD and last.—His PULMONIC SYRUP, which in connection with his MANDRAKE PILLS, and SEA WEED TONIC, will complete the cure of Consumption in any but its last and fatal stage. While, by the action of the Pills and Tonic, the liver, stomach, digestive organs and blood have been purified; until, as before stated, the system is prepared to force to suppuration either abscesses, tubercles or scrofulous sores in the lungs or other organs, the finishing and healing remedy to be relied on to complete the cure is the Pulmonic Syrup. By its agency abscesses and tubercles on the lungs are healed, and the patient restored to perfect health. It prevents the gathering of, or disperses the disgusting and unhealthy secretions of the bronchial tubes, and removes those accumulations of morbid matter which cause oppression of the heart and difficulty of breathing, and also those terrible sufferings, almost threatening strangulation, which are so peculiarly characteristic of the disease; at the same time that by soothing the irritation of the lungs, it eradicates the cause of the painful consumptive cough, and relieves it.
When the Pills and Tonic have purified the blood the Syrup will nourish it. If, however, as is sometimes the case, the stomach and liver are in a tolerable healthy condition, and the lungs are not too deeply diseased, the Pulmonic Syrup will, by itself, effect a cure. But where Consumption originates, as is frequently the case, from sympathy with a torpid liver, or a diseased stomach, or where the constitution of the patient is weak, either from hereditary causes or abuse, then it requires the Mandrake Pills and Sea Weed Tonic, in connection with the Syrup to effect a cure. And then the Syrup seems to incorporate itself with the blood, and thus purify it.
In this connection, after having defined and explained the merits, application and effects of Dr Schenck's three great medicines, and demonstrated how, through their agency, Consumption can be cured, it is but proper to mention that, invariably, before prescribing for a patient threatened with or suffering under Consumption, he insists on making a careful and scientific examination of the condition of the lungs. To accomplish which, he has invented an instrument (his celebrated Respirometer) by which he can, without pain or other inconvenience to the patient, make exact examination of their condition.
To the great superiority of this instrument over all others now used for medicinal auscultation, the medical faculty and other scientific men have testified.
In conclusion, we assert that most cases of illness of every kind acute or chronic, can be cured, or at least palliated, by the use of one or the other of DR. SCHENCK'S MEDICINES, under his advice. And to those suffering with consumption, scrofulous affections, nervousness, languor, disordered liver or stomach, piles, headache, whether from the nerves or stomach, rheumatism, night-sweats, sleepiness, restlessness or giddiness, influenza or palpitation of the heart, DR. SCHENCK can cure each and every one of you.
To gentlemen who keep late hours, eat late suppers, but who during the day must, with clear heads, attend to business, we would advise them after an excess and before going to bed, to take a dose of MANDRAKE PILLS; and to those suffering with colds on the breast, sore throat, or hoarseness, we would simply say, and in all sincerity, lose no time in applying to DR. SCHENCK for advice; or, at all events, get his medicines, as a safeguard against serious results from that which, in the morning at first but a trifle, is too often the surest symptom of an incipient stage of lung disease.
