ANOTHER BLAST FROM THE "INDEPENDENT."

The Independent (Abolition) has another article against the Government, of which the following extracts are mild specimens:

THE DUTY OF TO-DAY.

In the beginning of this great struggle, the question among loyal men was, How shall we save this nation? One year of fighting and the question is, Whether we can save it? That is the question of to-day.

We do not write to blame, but to judge. Unless we are wiser than we have been, we have outlived our nation. Look at facts.

The South has had more than wisdom, civil and military; she has had sagacity.

After Mr. Lincoln's election, not one single State, except South Carolina, cast a popular majority for secession. Yet every State seceded except Delaware, Maryland, and Kentucky. There was a divided public mind, a large undertone Union feeling in the South, even after the war began.

It is absurd to talk of any such thing now.—There never was such a revolution of popular feeling on record. Dislike has become hatred. With insignificant exceptions, the South is a unit in intense and unchangeable hatred of the North. By volunteers, by drafting, and by conscription, she has placed in the field an extraordinary force.

With all her sea-ports sealed, with no important foundries, straitened for every single element in the manufacture of munitions and equipments, the South has armed her men so formidably that our generals would rather lie behind breastworks than meet them in the field. Accustomed to import from the North almost every article of living, the South has become in a day a manufacturer of iron, of cloth, of wood, of leather, of chemicals, enough, at least, for all military purposes. Cumbered with a dangerous population of four million slaves, whose instincts, interests, and secret wishes are wholly, or largely, adverse, the South has extracted from this element a double power, moral and physical. Playing upon the political superstition of the North, she has hindered its movements at every step, by interposing the slavery question—knowing that for two generations men had been educated to yield everything—principle, interest, patriotism—rather than meddle with "Southern rights" of slavery.

* * * * * * *

What has been the fruit of this year's conduct?

We are not so near a settlement as we were at the beginning. The South, with all her losses, and under difficulties that would have appalled and disheartened any common people, is more united, has a larger army in the field—more comfortably provided for, and better managed—than she had a year ago.

The South is more formidable to-day than she was when she beleagured Washington, held Tennessee, Missouri, and half of Kentucky. She is united; while every day the leaven of old malignant political parties is working disaffection, at the bottom, in the North.

The South has simplicity and unity of purpose. The North is uncertain which she wishes most—to subdue the rebellion, to leave slavery unharmed, or to have the right President at the next election!

The South adjurns every question and postpones every interest in favor of arms. The North is busy with conflicting schemes and interests—and is also mildly carrying on war.

Does anybody doubt the result of such a course? It is so certain, that it is not worth our while to waste another man or another dollar! Either the Administration policy should instantly change, or the war cease! It is not more vigor, so much as different internal ideas. If the Administration cannot be disenchanted of the traditional policy that has grown up during the heartless, timid, compromising era of the last half century, and adopt the simple and straightforward policy that becomes a people striving for liberty and free institutions upon the American continent—then we are doomed! It is war that we are making—war first, war second, war wholly! It is not politics. It is not constitution making. It is not the decision of legal niceties. These are not the business of Government as toward the South. It is war, absolute, terrible and immeasurable war.

The South has organized on the fact of slavery, and fights on that issue, pure and simple. The North must organize on the doctrine of liberty, and fight right through on that issue, pure and simple.

The South sacrifices everything that conflicts with her central idea. The North must do the same. The South is not ashamed of slavery. The

1. That it was unwise to call for 300,000 volunteers. The day has gone by for that. The Administration should have drafted half a million of men for instant service, and half a million more as reserves. It will waste months of time and spend millions of money, and encourage growing discontent, and expend precious popular enthusiasm—and then be obliged to draft. It was not prudent? The people might be discontented? To this is replied: It was, and is necessary. The people must consent to that or dismemberment! This call for volunteers is one more step in that just-behind-the-time policy which has marked the war. Volunteering would have sufficed early in the war, had the Administration been wise according to the exigency. They did not want the men that wanted to go. Now the men do not want to go. Drafting now will succeed. Wait four months and that will have become fourfold more difficult than now! Always behind!

THE FEELING AT THE NORTH.

From the New York Post, (Editorial,) July 24.

NOW STANDS THE CASE?

It is not to be concealed that a feeling of gloom and despondency pervades the public mind in reference to our national affairs. Unlike the temporary sombreness which followed the battle of Bull Run, the present depression seems to deepen with time. That was a great reverse, but it did not lessen our confidence in our rulers, or in the gallantry or endurance of our troops. We went to work immediately to repair the disaster, with a degree of alacrity and hope that won us the admiration of foreign nations. Nothing, remarks Mr. Trollope, in his late book of travels, could have been more honorable to the Northerners than the frankness with which they owned that they had been whipped, except the cheerfulness with which they bore their reverses and the energy with which they proceeded to repair them. Have we lost that spirit of self-reliance? Are our resources fewer than they were then? Is our military condition worse?

The repulses we have suffered on the peninsula, it must be admitted, have been very serious; our noble army, composed of the flower of the North, and led by the most experienced generals, has been driven from its positions, and is now cooped up on the James river, unable to move until it shall be reinforced or the observation of the enemy diverted by a counter-assault in some other quarter. It is a humiliating fact. The war has been greatly protracted by it, and our exhausted finances still further disturbed. But the worst effect has been that we have lost much of our reliance in our military chiefs and in our civic rulers. The most devoted friends of McClellan now pronounce him a failure, and even the sagacity and wisdom of Mr. Lincoln is questioned. There has been such an apparent want of foresight and energy in the Administration, and there is still such an apparent reluctance to strike earnest and decisive blows, that the most buoyant natures begin to despair and tremble.

But is not a great deal of this discouragement the mere reaction of our previous too highly wrought expectations? Our successes at New Orleans, and all along the Mississippi river, had produced the conviction that the war was pretty nearly at an end. All the newspapers told us so.—They told us, besides, that the army of McClellan was in splendid condition, and sure to march into Richmond whenever it should see fit to undertake the job. We grew jubilant over the prospect. The "conservatives" even, who hide their heads carefully when the sun is not shining, came forth to hold meetings, and to organize the political parties proper only to a time of peace. Everybody, indeed, supposed that we had reached the end of our difficulties, and that very soon the question would be—not how to crush the rebellion, but to resume the old Federal relations. But instead of the end we expected, while we were yet at the summit of our station, the awful wires flashed the sad rumors from the fields before Richmond. We were disappointed—fearfully disappointed—and we have allowed the revulsion to plunge us into an excess of despondency.

FROM KENTUCKY—A NEW ORDER FROM GEN. BOYLE.

HEADQUARTERS U. S. FORCES IN KENTUCKY, LOUISVILLE, July 21, 1862.

General Order No. 5.

The following General Order is issued, to be enforced by military commanders in the District of Kentucky:

No person hostile in opinion to the Government and desiring its overthrow will be allowed to stand for office in the District of Kentucky. The attempt of such a person to stand for office will be regarded as in itself sufficient evidence of his treasonable intent to warrant his arrest. He who desires the overthrow of the Government can seek office under the Government only to promote its overthrow. In seeking office he becomes an active traitor, if he has never become one otherwise, and is liable both in reason and in law to be treated accordingly.—All persons of this description who persist in offering themselves as candidates for office will be arrested and sent to these headquarters.

By command of Brig. Gen. Boyle.

JOHN BOYLE, Capt. and A. A. G.

WHAT MR. GREELEY WANTS.

From the New York Tribune, July 25.

What the Tribune wants is to assure the poor, ignorant, distrustful, oft-deceived slaves that they have only to reach the Union lines to be henceforth free. The mere fact that Congress has passed an act to that effect will not give them this assurance. Their Confederate masters tell them that we want to steal them and sell them in Cuba. All cannot be disabused and assured though we do our best.—But a brief, clear, energetic, whole-souled proclamation from the President, echoed in explicit orders from every command, would do very much to dispel distrust and apprehension. Then let every Colonel read both proclamation and order to his regiment, and instruct every man to carry out their policy to the letter, no longer shooting at or otherwise repelling the poor "contrabands" who flee to our lines, but making every one welcome.—This policy would soon undermine the citadel of Confederate power.

CIGAR AND TOBACCO STORE, Established in 1840.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of Smokers and Chewers to the well selected stock of CIGARS and TOBACCO of Mr. J. C. SMITH, 153½ Baltimore street, opposite the Museum. This gentleman has, by his thorough knowledge of his business, and personal attention thereto, obtained a well deserved reputation for the finest goods in his line, and we confidently recommend all who desire a really fine "imported" HAVANA CIGAR and superior CHEWING TOBACCO, SNUFF &c., &c., to give him a call. The fact of his having been twenty two years in his present place of business, we regard as the strongest evidence to what we have said in reference to his reliability in furnishing the best in his line of business. jy22 1m

SEVENTY MILES SAVED IN GOING TO CAPE MAY. We would say to persons visiting Cape May, that by laying over in Wilmington, instead of going on to the city of "Brotherly Love," they can save seventy miles of travel, and have their baggage taken care of by a responsible person, thereby securing a night's rest. After partaking of an excellent breakfast at the Indian Queen Hotel Fifth and Market streets, they can take the cars at 9.30 A. M. for Newcastle, and arrive there at 12 M. for the boat.

LATEST FROM KENTUCKY.

GEO. PEARSON, Esq. LOUISVILLE, KY., June 17, 1862.

Dear Sir—I feel it a duty to express to you my sincere acknowledgments of the benefit derived from the use of a package of your MESMERIC TAR DROPS.

I was suffering with a SEVERE COUGH and SORE THROAT, when a friend presented me with a package of your celebrated TAR DROPS, and when I used them, I was free to confess it was more to gratify my appetite for sweetmeats than the idea of deriving any good from them; but really, the rapid allaying of the irritation and subsequent entire cure of the cough, induces me to thank you, and I take great pleasure in recommending to the public so effective a compound. Respectfully yours, J. E. SMITH, M. D., Assistant Surgeon Artillery Brigade U. S. A.

PEARSON'S MEDICATED TAR DROPS are prepared and sold by GEO. PEARSON, No. 5 North Liberty street, Baltimore, at 10 cents per package. Sold also by all the principal Druggists. Je21-tf
