WEDNESDAY, JULY 30, 1862.

THE LONDON TIMES ON AMERICA.

From the London Times, July 16.

We sadly want a Homer for this American Troy. The accounts we have of these battles before Richmond are still very hazy. All that we can safely extract from them is, that the Federals have suffered a severe defeat, and that they have attempted by frantic boasts and impudent falsehoods, to palm it upon the world as a victory. It is one of the most remarkable circumstances connected with this savage civil war that it seems to have destroyed, in a common ruin, all the finer feelings of those who have taken part in it. We judge only from the universal and uncontradicted testimony of the Government, the Congress, and the press, when we note that pecuniary honesty was the first quality to go. When General Butler became a popular hero, the Federal States finally renounced the reputation they had ostentatiously cultivated for gallantry towards women. After the letter from Gen. Beauregard, which we published yesterday, we are obliged to withdraw all confidence in the veracity of the highest military officers in the Federal service. There used to be pecuniary honor, manly gallantry, and candid veracity among Americans. What has become of them since this war commenced? Even previous to General Beauregard's letter there had been sufficient evidence of the carelessness or recklessness with which the Federal Generals made their official reports.

After General McClellan, for instance, had officially described several brilliant bayonet charges, it was tardily discovered that there was only one man on the field who had died of a bayonet thrust. But that two Generals should positively and officially announce in a despatch to their Government the capture of 10,000 prisoners and 15 000 stand of arms, and that the fact so solemnly announced should turn out to be an utter falsehood, is, we believe, altogether unprecedented in Europe, and even in America. General Beauregard not only denies the whole story, characterizing it as a lamentable disrespect for truth, but he asserts that the whole of the losses suffered in his masterly retreat were 500 damaged muskets, overlooked in the camp, or one or two hundred stragglers, and four sick soldiers, barbarously burned by Colonel Elliott in a railway station. That General Beauregard has given the correct version of the affair is evident from this, that Generals Halleck and Pope might have readily confuted him by producing the prisoners and the arms. But it is not suggested that any one has ever seen the one or the other. After the despatch had produced its effect no more was said about this exceeding important capture of a Confederate army. After this experience, we must have some testimony other than the official report of an American General before we can place confidence in the result, or even belief in the existence of any operation he may describe.

But if the Federal Generals sometimes boast of what they never did, the office of the Secretary of War seems to be nothing more than a workshop for falsifications of the clumsiest kind. Commanding all the telegraphic communications of the country, absolutely prohibiting the publication of any independent accounts of military events, Mr. Stanton seems to have adopted it as a rule of official routine, that no first report of a battle shall go forth to the American public which is not intrinsically false, and that even falsehood shall not pass, unless it be exactly cut to the official pattern — The condition of the men who are so mean and spiritless as to continue to conduct newspapers under such a thraldom is necessarily miserable and degrading. The public saw yesterday in our columns an account written by Mr. Charles C. Fulton, "agent of the Associated Press," and purporting to be a description of the events which had happened before Richmond. It bore its own character upon it. It was a romance written to order. Its text was, "We have the grandest military triumph over the enemy, and Richmond must fall." The dissertation was worthy of the text, and the whole performance bore an artificial and untruthful air. As we gather from the published correspondence, Mr. Fulton—who it seems was specially sent to Commodore Rodgers, our President and the Secretary of War, had had drawn up under their instructions this voluminous piece of false intelligence. He had, in fact, given to a sober fact a fictitious victory a little couleur locale, and had settled in consultation the only intelligence which was to be allowed to go forth. Forthwith, Mr. Fulton printed the victory in the Baltimore American, and, to his intense astonishment, he in a few hours afterwards found himself arrested and on his road to Fort McHenry.

Expostulating against this strange reward, for having published the Secretary of War's own romance of victory, Mr. Fulton is told that he is not punished for publishing the statement, but because he had been discovered in bet aying to a private friend, in a private telegram, that he had got his news from Washington. The President and the War Department had resented this as an outrageous breach of confidence, and sent Mr. Fulton to Fort McHenry accordingly. Perhaps they were right. If Mr. Fulton betrayed a confidence reposed, no one will pity him for his temporary incarceration. We mention the facts, however, not for Mr. Fulton's sake, but in order to show the condition of the American press under the iron hand of the American Government, and the systematic manner in which contemporary history is falsified by men whose conspicuous position ought to make them tenacious of truth.

Under these circumstances, it is reasonable to take every statement telegraphed from the Federal side as strongly as possible against the Federal interest. With this rule of interpretation, it is clear that up to the 7th of this month, General McClellan had made no successful effort to retrieve his fortunes, and that Richmond, which was to have fallen on the 4th, is still as far from being taken as ever. But, according to our reading of these telegrams, it is not clear that General McClellan has not met with a subsequent defeat; for when the Federals report "another skirmish, which has resulted in the confederates being forced to retreat," we have an admission which is quite as strong as that which described the terrible battles of the last week in June. It is possible that in a few days this "skirmish" also may assume a different complexion and a hostile importance.

Gradually, also, the facts of General McClellan's great strategic victories will ooze out, and gradually the facts of that victory of the 27th are now oozing out—for even the American Government cannot destroy truth for ever, and must be content with the advantages they can gain by putting out a first false impression. Somebody used to say that a lie had done its work if it could live for 48 hours. In this instance the falsehood has died a very gentle death. On the 24 of July, then, General McClellan was telegraphed by the American Government to have stated that he had lost but one gun and one wagon, and even this admission was eased off by a false report put about that General "Stonewall" Jackson had been killed before Richmond. Just, however, to prepare the way for the future, it was admitted that the Federal army had retreated 17 miles. On the 5th of July the old story is still repeated, and it is re-asserted with obstinate persistency that "the Federal forces were not beaten in any conflict." It is, however, on this date admitted, as a fact which it was impossible any longer to conceal, that General McClellan's division was at first overwhelmed, and that twenty-five pieces of artillery fell into the hands of the Confederates. Two days later a little more is permitted to creep into publicity in New York, and the newspapers are allowed to say, as a Southern version of the Richmond battles, that the Confederates had captured 12,000 prisoners, had got possession of all McClellan's siege guns, and had taken from him supplies sufficient to last the Confederate army three months. If we compare this last report with the first, we probably see the full effect of the official coloring.

This is a good example of the way in which a great defeat may be cleverly toned down, and the tidings so gently broken as not to shock an impatient people. It is plain now to the meanest comprehension that McClellan was so thoroughly beaten on the 27th, with loss of guns and baggage, that he would have been driven into the river if his gunboats had not been there to protect him. The Government succeeded in falsifying this fact for a short time, and by so doing hoisted the stupid populace over this difficulty into another fools' paradise. But it is only with the scum of the Atlantic cities these tricks can now avail. They could not avert the panic of the New York Stock Exchange, or stay the shiploads of dollars which took flight for Europe, or delay the departure of the Orleanist Princes, deserting a no longer victorious cause, or prevent the people who are running together to make demonstrations against the means by which the war is conducted, or check the increasing sentiment that there is neither plunder nor glory to be obtained by the invading army in the Federal service, and that all who go South are doomed to melt away through pestilence or to fall by the sword. Even in America—credulous and simple as we may there seem to be when we say so—truth and honesty would, we believe, be the best policy. It is coming rapidly to this, that the greater the victory announced, the more terrible will be the defeat believed in; and the President and his War Minister may succeed at last in so mystifying the American public, that if they really should gain a great victory, the announcement of it will put New York into mourning, and ruin all the speculators for a rise in Government stocks.

The Globe (Palmerston) treats it as a defeat, and says that McClellan, after seven days' fighting, and terrible loss, has achieved the great strategic advantage of establishing himself in a position which he might have reached without any fighting either by land or by sea, at any time he pleased before the attack of the 27th of June.

Gen. Houston appears to be dead. In a mass meeting in Boston on Thursday night, Hon. Charles H. Clark of Texas, son of the present rebel Governor, and son-in-law of Sam Houston, made a speech, in which he denied that Gen. Houston was ever a secessionist. He claimed to have been with him in his last moments, and that he died with the good old flag about him.

S.—T.—1860—X.

Thousands of persons in this city arise in the morning with headache, feeling languid unrefreshed, feverish, low spirited, weak, and incapacitated to perform any mental or physical duty. They sit down to their morning meal with little or no appetite, and from which they arise and go about their business only to pass a miserable and unhappy day.

DARBY'S PLANTATION BITTERS will positively overcome all of these effects, and a wine glass full taken three times a day will impart tone and cheerfulness to the whole system. These Bitters are prepared with pure St. Croix Rum, Calisaya Bark, &c. They are the most delicious and effectual Tonic in the world, and should be found upon the side-board of every family. Sold by all the principal Druggists and Grocers in Baltimore. Depot 202 Broadway, New York. Jy29-2t

CIGAR AND TOBACCO STORE,

Established in 1840.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of Smokers and Chewers to the well selected stock of CIGARS and Tobacco of Mr. J. C. SMITH, 153½ Baltimore street, opposite the Museum. This gentleman has, by his thorough knowledge of his business, and personal attention thereto, obtained a well deserved reputation for the finest goods in his line, and we confidently recommend all who desire a really fine "Imported" HAVANA CIGAR and superior CHEWING TOBACCO, SNUFF &c., &c., to give him a call. The fact of his having been twenty two years in his present place of business, we regard as the strongest evidence to what we have said in reference to his reliability in furnishing the best in his line of business. THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS PARTIALLY RESTORED.—After an involuntary absence of about three months, during which time we were made familiar with the classic and once hallowed grounds of Fort McHenry—we again resume, partially, our old vocation of "enlightening the world with lampblack." OUR PRESS, being deemed dangerous by the Government, has been kindly limited, and, for the future, instead of publishing "THE SOUTH, or any other paper, without consent of the Commanding General," we shall modestly labor in the humbler department of the "art preservative of all arts," by executing every description of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING, hoping through that medium to suit our ourselves and those dependent upon us, and would respectfully appeal to our friends to favor us with their patronage. We have prepared our Job PRINTING DEPARTMENT to execute all kinds of printing neatly, expeditiously and cheaply, and solicit a call at our old buildings. SAMUEL S. MILLS, BOOK AND JOB PRINTER, Office—122 Baltimore st., 2 doors from North.

GEO. PEARSON, Esq.

Dear Sir—I feel it a duty to express to you my sincere acknowledgments of the benefit derived from the use of a package of your MEDICATED TAR DROPS

I was suffering with a SEVERE COUGH and SORE THROAT, when a friend presented me with a package of your celebrated TAR DROPS, and when I used them, I was free to confess it was more to gratify my appetite for sweetmeats than the idea of deriving any good from them; but really, the rapid allaying of the irritation and subsequent entire cure of the cough, induces me to thank you, and I take great pleasure in recommending to the public so effective a compound. Respectfully yours, J. E. SMITH, M. D., Assistant Surgeon Artillery Brigade U. S. A.

GUANO WORKS COR. LANCASTER AND WOLF STS.

We are prepared to furnish to the farmers of Maryland and adjoining States our well KNOWN and ESTABLISHED

PHOSPHO PERUVIAN (or Manipulated) GUANO, WARRANTED ONE-HALF PERUVIAN GUANO.

Seven years' use of this Guano has rendered its staple fertilizer. Its quality has been maintained with rigid exactness for such a series of years, and it may be relied upon in the future, as in the past, for a uformity of effect. It contains more AMMONIA and PHOSPHATE OF LIME THAN ANY FERTILIZER SOLD IN THIS COUNTRY and is therefore of greater real value. Experience proves its great utility in improving the soil, whilst its immediate effects are fully equal to the best Peruvian Guano. It is the most convenient, economical and permanent fertilizer in use.

We also offer to consumers

HERES & CO'S SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME.

This article is tried and reliable. It is manufactured exclusively for our sales, under guarantee and forfeiture of $100, to be of given standard. We offer it to consumers for exactly what it is name imports, a REAL SUPER OIL SOLUBLE PHOSPHATE, rendered so by the liberal use of acid, in compliance with all the conditions required to insure complete solubility. We therefore recommend this article with confidence.

SOMBRERO GUANO,

Containing 75 to 80 per cent. Bone Phosphate of Lime.

This remarkable article is imported from SOMBRERO ISLAND, and is unquestionably the cheapest and richest source of Phosphate of Lime known. The whole Island is a bed of this rich material, and its value to agriculture cannot be over-estimated. It is sold in a perfectly fine powder, and is admirably adapted for combining with PERUVIAN GUANO. Jy23 tf10

CHESTNUT HILL SCHOOL FOR YOUNG GENTLEMEN, Three Miles North of Baltimore, Md.

This Institution has been in full operation since Nov. 1st, 1858. It is a classical School in a private family; offering, in the refining influence of home, the advantages of a substitute, so far as may be, of parental care and home association. Pupils are received at ten years of age and upwards and thoroughly prepared for College or for Business. The number of pupils is limited to thirty, which combines to the personal comfort of the boys, their moral and intellectual improvement, with the supervision and individual improvement. Chestnut Hill is a Country Seat of 150 acres, and is unsurpassed in natural beauty and entire healthfulness. The session consists of one year, beginning on the FIRST WEDNESDAY IN SEPTEMBER, and ending the last Wednesday in June.

For admission or for Circulars, address the Rector, REV. FREDERICK GARSON, M. A., Jy18-eotf Baltimore, Md.
