BALTIMORE.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 1, 1862.

From the Boston Courier, July 30.

The following communication from a wounded officer, just released from prison at Richmond:

RICHMOND OR WASHINGTON.

To the Editor of the Boston Courier:

Whatever difference of opinion recent events may have given birth to, the North yet remains a unit in the admission that Richmond, the hot-bed of rebellion, ought to be and shall be taken. On this point all parties who have any patriotism and pride must agree. Not only can no people be called conquered who retain possession of their Capital, but the glory of Northern arms, now fading somewhat in prestige, demands it; their purple steel has been clouded by the breath of envy, which must be wiped away.

But how shall that city be made to fall, which has so long resisted us successfully—which is this day stronger than ever before, through additional fortifications and larger numbers of a desperate foe, flushed with victory? "Oh, let the Government exert itself, and send down half a million of men to drive the traitors into the Gulf." Thus answer all.

"But will you be one of the number to go?" "Why, certainly not, I am a man of family;" or "I have friends with whom I cannot part;" or "My business will not admit of neglect, but I will pay towards the expenses."

Each man has an excuse, but all are patriotic enough to contribute money. Will money buy men?

A few, I grant you, but not enough, and in time to save our country.

It is not money that she asks you to expend, but blood—warm heart's blood it need be, to be poured out in her defence. Who is willing to offer himself a sacrifice upon the altar of Freedom? Who is not, is a traitor already.

We have no child's play before us, no war which can be carried on by hirelings. Go to the South, walk the streets of Richmond; there is no business there but the business of war. Shops and warehouses are closed, or if open, it is for military purposes only. This is a wretched state of affairs, but the people glory in it—they live but for one object, to fight those whom they call the invaders of their homes. The men are all soldiers, and the women cheer them on.

Whether the despotism of Jeff. Davis keeps the Union sentiment out of sight, I know not; but there is none of the latter to be seen, and on the other hand death would be considered light, to the chivalry, compared with entering into a new Union with the hated Yankees. Our blockade has deprived them of all the luxuries and most of the comforts of life, but their spirit is unbroken.

Can such a people be subjugated? If we avail of our strength, yes! as surely as twenty is more than eight.

But the work cannot be done by dollars, nor by talk. "Poor white trash" may be ignorant and ragged, but they have muscle, and we shall soon feel it, nearer home than we have done, unless the torpid blood of Lexington and Bunker Hill arouses itself. I walk the streets of Northern cities and find their very respectable inhabitants engaged in the usual avocations of peaceful life, as unconcernedly and with as much apathy as though there were no such thing as war in the land—as though a volcano were not about to burst over them; with no more apparent conception of "the situation" and their disgrace before the world, than a child unborn.

They continue to indulge the strange fatality of overestimating themselves and underestimating the South. A soldiery that has been unpaid for months, has lived on half rations of coarse food for two months, and continues to do so; that never had any clothes, and doesn't want any now; that has only one idea; I say such an army is not to be lightly esteemed, and is not to be crushed by appealing to Government, and offering it dollars, to shower at traitors. The Government, on the contrary, appeals to you, and as you do not possess virtue to answer that appeal it should show its power, and compel you to save your country, if you will not do it voluntarily.

We are already threatened. It is almost too late to save our armies and border cities, but by prompt measures something may be done.

The great question before the world is this—Shall the United States of America stand or fall? If the latter, then may the South ask, Washington fall? If the latter, then may the United States of America stand, tion to resist all the world? I trow not, if we have not the strength and virtue to suppress an internal revolt. What then? Let us ask the President of the United States to draft a quarter of a million of men, drive back the traitorous hordes now threatening our capital, march upon and capture theirs. This will sever the head from the body of the monster Secession, when we can dictate terms to all the world.

A fortnight's delay will disgrace us, and make us the contempt of mankind.

To the Editor of the Boston Courier:

NEW ORLEANS, July 19, 1862.

We have been laboring under certain grave errors in respect to this rebellion, which it is high time were corrected.

We have supposed there was a Union party in the South. There is none.

We have supposed the rebellion could be quelled in this campaign. I must last for years.

We have supposed half a million of troops were sufficient to subjugate the revolted States. It will require at least a million and a half.

This is the most serious of all our errors—this constantly undervaluing the strength of the enemy and overestimating our own strength. The time has arrived when we must come up to the strength of our endeavor. Not a man less than a million and a half will be necessary. We must at once take measures to raise this number of troops, or the contest will be prolonged indefinitely.

We have supposed that after subduing the Confederates, a small force would suffice to enforce obedience to the law. Such may be the case twenty years hence; but for the present, say for the next ten years, we shall want a standing army of not less than three hundred thousand men to preserve order in the South. The people literally hate us. The women teach hatred to their children. The clergy preach hatred from the pulpit. The growing generation will be even more embittered against us than the present. Nothing but force can keep the country. For this purpose my estimate of three hundred thousand men is moderate.

One great source of the fatal errors we have committed is the delusive statements furnished to the press. Here we are compelled to suppress the truth, to prevent its injurious influence on our troops. At home it is otherwise.

If the people were apprised of all the facts of the case their patriotism would be equal to the emergency, and we could take the field next fall with the million and a half, without which we cannot expect success.

It is most important they should know the truth, and the whole truth. THIRTEENTH.

RAISING THE NEW LEVY—THE NEWS FROM EUROPE.

Special Correspondence of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

NEW YORK, July 30.—"Must come to drafting, sir, and the sooner the better for all concerned," said a prominent and popular recruiting officer to me this morning. He continued:—"You see, sir, there are men enough all ready to enlist, waiting, and holding back, expecting that the bounty already offered will be increased as the season advances, and as long as that expectation is indulged we shall get but few men. We shall get a few from day to day, as now—to be sure—but they are not the right kind of men to make good soldiers of. Once let it be known, however, that a draft is decided upon, and there would be such a rush to the recruiting offices as would enable the city and State to furnish their quota of men in less than sixty days from date. As to the objections of the people at large to that mode of raising recruits, sir, I hear a great deal of it, but don't see it. A week after Governor Morgan has issued the order to draft, mark me, the result will be such as to make him and everybody else wonder why the thing was so long delayed."

The man who said all this seemed to be honest, he certainly was intelligent, and, so far as I can ascertain, from a pretty free intercourse with the people, I am constrained to say that his judgment is entirely in accord with theirs. The Governor ought to see these things in their right light. The fifteen or twenty self-appointed "committees," which interpose their "Toms," "Dicks" and "Harrys" between the recruits and the "bounty," must all be brushed away, and everything must be made to stand on its own bottom.

The meeting to organize the much talk-of "Merchants' Brigade," in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, turned out a failure. Only half a dozen people were present, exclusive of the newspaper reporters. The chairman said he thought the merchants must all be out of town, and an adjournment was accordingly ordered until such times as it may please the said merchants to return.

The ignominious fate which has overtaken the House of Commons' motion to recognize the Jeff. Davis Confederacy, is the subject of general congratulation. The London and Paris correspondents, writing in the Confederate interest, had confidently predicted a contrary result, and the public here had begun to believe that upon the motion in question a division at least would have been had. As it is, the result is accepted as showing that, so far as the House of Commons is concerned, the Confederate game is up—for the present.

In regard to Lord Palmerston's speech, in favor of non-action, there are different opinions. Many detected its cold blooded abstention from anything approaching a word of sympathy for the cause of the Union, a secret desire to see our republic finally divided; and in his appeals to Parliament to leave the question of mediation to the Government, a desire only to defer "recognition" until some other of the crowned heads can be brought to act in concert with England.

The Somerset (Me.) Farmer states that Mr. Nathaniel Wells, aged ninety-nine years, and his wife, aged ninety-seven years, died recently at Cornville. They had travelled life's journey together about seventy years, and were buried in one grave.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of Smokers and Chewers to the well selected stock of CIGARS and TOBACCO of Mr. J. C. SMITH, 183½ Baltimore street, opposite the Museum. THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS PARTIALLY RESTORED.—After an involuntary absence of about three months, during which time we were made familiar with the classic and once hallowed grounds of Fort McHenry—we again resume, partially, our old voice in defending the world with lamp-black." Our Press, being deemed dangerous by the Government, has been kindly limited, and, for the future, instead of publishing "Free views, on any other paper, without consent of the Commanding General," we shall modestly labor in the humbler department of the "art preservative of all arts," by executing every description of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING, hoping thereby that medium to sustain ourselves and those dependent upon us, and would earnestly appeal to our friends to favor us with their patronage. We have prepared our Job PRINTING DEPARTMENT to execute all kinds of printing neatly, expeditiously and cheaply, and solicit a call at our old buildings. SAMUEL S. MILLS,

Dear Sir—I feel it a duty to express to you my sincere acknowledgments of the benefit derived from the use of a package of your MEDICATED TAR DROPS.

I was suffering with a SEVERE COUGH and SORE THROAT, when a friend presented me with a package of your celebrated TAR DROPS, and when I used them, I was free to confess it was more to gratify my appetite for sweetmeats than the idea of deriving any good from them; but really, the rapid allaying of the irritation and subsequent entire cure of the cough, induces me to thank you, and I take great pleasure in recommending to the public so effective a compound. Respectfully yours, J. E. SMITH, M. D., Assistant Surgeon Artillery Brigade U. S. A.

CHESTNUT HILL SCHOOL FOR YOUNG GENTLEMEN, Three Miles North of Baltimore, Md. This Institution has been in full operation since November, 1848. It is a classical school in a private family; offering, in the refining influence of domestic intercourse, a substitute, so far as may be, for parental care and home associations. Pupils are received at ten years of age and upwards, and thoroughly prepared for College or for Business. The number of pupils is limited to thirty, which ensures to the pupils comfort of the boys, their sound intellectual and moral training, faithful supervision, and individual improvement. Chestnut Hill is a country seat of 130 acres, and is unsurpassed in natural beauty and entire healthfulness. There is but one session in the year, beginning on the FIRST WEDNESDAY IN SEPTEMBER, and ending the last Wednesday in June. For admission or for Circulars, address the Rector, Rev.
