PERSONNEL
LABOR RELATIONS
MANAGER

This unusual position offers exceptional scope for an energetic executive who can work from a base in another country and travel as necessary. Good broad training in personnel functions is essential. For the committed person "on the way up", this position will provide wide exposure and an opportunity to take on many responsibilities. Fluency in Spanish and English, written and spoken, is necessary, with familiarity with Latin American countries an asset.

Responsibilities will include shaping and implementing a range of personnel policies; labor relations; training and development programs; wage and salary schedules; benefits; and local business and government contacts. Ability to relate effectively to persons at all level is required, along with competence to take charge with minimal direct supervision.

This strongly established division of an international Fortune 500 company headquartered in San Francisco provides ample room for career growth. Please send resume in full confidence, with salary history to: Box. No. 691, c/o AFRO-AMERICAN Co., 628 N. Eutaw St. Baltimore, Md. 21201

Republic" just as Ma Jackson did her protest meetings.

Departing entirely from funeral tradition, the crowd was so moved by the spirit of the occasion, they lined up to shake hands with the distinguished family, marched around the church singing, "We Shall Overcome."

Still jubilant and inspired by Ma Jackson's memories, they went out the door humming her triumphant song.

Noteworthy was the thrilling music from the organ, piano and Sharp St. choirs who joined the City Temple Baptist Church choir to total 130 voices.

Literally setting the throng afire was Soloist Audrey Phillips' "May The Work I've Done Speak For Me," another Ma Jackson favorite.

For burial, the NAACP great lady was dressed in pale pink chiffon with matching lace and pearls at her neck and ears.

The full-cloth bronze coffin was lined with fluted antique satin.

A satin blanket was softly turned back just kneehigh to her hands was a huge pale pink orchid.

An illusion net covering the open casket was edged with pink lace.

Two large hearts fashioned in white roses stood at the head and foot of the casket, "from the family."

The closed casket bore a blanket of deep red roses with the Order of Eastern Star Trinity Chapter No. 1 (PHA) 5-point Star at the foot.

During services Grand Worthy Matron Lillie M. Askew, Grand Worthy Patron Vincent Dodson, Worthy Matron Chessie Brailey and Worthy Patron Julius McRae, all dressed in black, sat at the foot and head of the casket.

Although relatives requested donations go to the NAACP and her last love, Freedom House, many floral designs banked the altar and windows of the huge church.
