Parham settles into office

By Alisa Samuels
AFRO Staff Writer

New delegate Samuel M. Parham spent his first day in office getting accustomed to the ins and outs of the Maryland General Assembly.

Parham, who was chosen unanimously Feb. 7 by the 41st District State Central Committee to replace ousted Nathaniel Oaks, was sworn in Tuesday morning before friends and family in the State House.

The 59-year-old delegate later attended House committee meetings.

"Being new on the block I have a lot to learn," Parham said Tuesday in his new office, which he shares with his 41st District colleagues-delegates Margaret H. Murphy and Frank D. Boston, Jr.

"Within a week I hope to have the routine down and to know where everything is."

The quiet and reserved man, assigned to the House Constitutional Law Committee, already has the support of political heavy weights.

"He'll fit right in," Sen. Clarence W. Blount, 41st District, said last week about Parham, his longtime friend.

Parham and Blount's relationship goes back to the days when Parham was president of Blount's political club called the Five Democratic Club.

State sources said Parham and Blount's friendship caused the senator to prepick Parham, ignoring other candidates, including former delegate Rev. Wendell Phillips, to fill Oaks' seat after Oaks was convicted for theft, perjury and misconduct in office charges.

The senator denied favoritism was involved.

Parham said other members of the Baltimore City Delegation, delegates Ruth M. Kirk, 39 District, Hattie N. Harrison, 45 District, and Tony E. Fulton, 40 District have offered the former Dunbar Senior High School teacher support, too.

PRESIDENT
UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND AT BALTIMORE

The Regents of the University of Maryland System invite applications and nominations for the position of President of the University of Maryland at Baltimore.

The University of Maryland at Baltimore, established in 1807, is the "founding institution" and principal professional center of the University of Maryland System. The campus is located on 34 acres near Baltimore's Inner Harbor and includes presently six professional schools — medicine, dentistry, law, nursing, pharmacy, and social work and community planning — an interdisciplinary graduate school and a major medical center which includes the RA Cowley Shock Trauma Center. The University, with an enrollment of 4,528 and a full-time faculty of 955, offers programs at the bachelor's, master's, specialist, and doctoral levels. Current research grants and contracts total annually approximately $61 million and the institution's budget is $250 million. The affiliated medical system has an additional budget of more than $200 million.

The President is the chief executive officer of the institution, and is responsible for the direction of all operations. The President also serves as a senior administrator in the University of Maryland System and reports to the Chancellor and the Regents of the eleven-institution System.

Candidates should have earned a doctoral or equivalent professional degree from an accredited institution; be able to demonstrate outstanding accomplishments in their managerial and scholarly endeavors; have a strong history of leadership and possess a sound philosophy in educational policy.

Salary is competitive and commensurate with experience and qualifications.

Nominations and applications are currently being considered. If possible, nominations should include the current resume of the nominee, the names of three references, and any other supporting material, and should be sent to:
