1989 National Urban League Conference

August 6—9 Washington, D.C.

President George Bush is scheduled to address the National Urban League Conference, August 8 at 2 p.m. at the Washington Convention Center in Washington, DC.

Educational reform, employment and training, America's housing crisis, the drug and crime epidemic, black on black crime, and improving the health status of African Americans will be among the major issues examined at the 1989 National Urban League Conference, "Working Together To Make a Difference: Towards Parity by the Year 2000."

The conference will take place in Washington, DC August 6-9 at the Washington Convention Center.

Sunday, August 6, at 6 p.m., President and Chief Executive Officer John E. Jacob will deliver the keynote address, which is the League's major annual policy statement.

Monday, August 7, Department of Labor Secretary Elizabeth H. Dole will address the morning conference plenary session on "Workforce 2000: Meeting The Challenge Of A New Era."

Also on that day, Congressman William H. Gray III will be the speaker at the Federal Resources Luncheon, and Department of Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan will address the afternoon plenary session on "A National Health Policy for Parity By The Year 2000."

Forum sessions, "African-American Family Preservation," "Building Stronger Historically Black Colleges and Universities," "Making Welfare Reform Work," "Public Policy and Youth Development," "Child Care: The Need Continues," "Improving the Health Status of African Americans," and "African American Youth: Prospects for the American Dreams."

Tuesday, August 8, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Jack F. Kemp will discuss "Housing America's Poor" at the morning plenary session.

The afternoon plenary session will be on "Educational Reform A Public Policy Agenda for Equity and Excellence and will feature Secretary of Education Lauro Cavazos. Congressman Charles B. Rangel will be the speaker at a special evening forum on "Drugs and Crime."

Forum issues scheduled for that day are: "Public and Private Partnerships in Providing Affordable Housing," "Economic Empowerment Through the Political Process," "Preventing Substance Abuse Among African-American Youth," "African-American Women Entrepreneurs," "Federal Education Programs: Policy Directions for the 1990's," and "Minority Teachers Short Supply - High Demand."

The final day of the conference Wednesday, August 9, will be highlighted by an address by The Rev. Dr. Joseph E. Lowery, President of the Southern Leadership Conference on "Liberty and Justice: The Civil Rights Agenda for the 1990's."

The last day of conference forums will end with "The Sandwich Generation: Rearing Children and Caring for Aging Parents, "Manhood and Fatherhood: The Male Role in The African-American Family," and "Twenty Years After the Kerner Commission Report: America, Still Separate and Unequal."

Over 16,000 conferees representing the public, private corporations, and the federal government sectors are expected to attend the 1989 annual conference.

The conference also features the work of local and national African-American artists in a colorful Art Expo. The Job Opportunity Showcase, a computerized job matching service and an exhibit hall with 400 exhibits, where private, public, and government agencies distribute products, literature, and services will be among other major highlights.

A special youth session is scheduled for Sunday, August 6, and a Gala Benefit Concert starring Ashford and Simpson, Lou Rawls, Levert, and the O'Jays is planned for Monday, August 7.

John E. Jacob, President and Chief Executive Office National Urban League.

The Urban League head, Whitney Young is shown in a meeting with President John F. Kennedy.

George Bush, then Vice President, addresses the 1981 Urban League Conference, as Vernon Jordon looks on.

MEETING WITH THE PRESIDENT is a standard of the Urban League, and has been since its inception. Whitney Young is shown with President Richard Nixon and Cabinet members and assistants.

Conferring on unemployment was President Lyndon Johnson and Whitney Young in a 50-minute meeting at the White House.
