MESSRS. EDITORS: As we are again visited with another suspension of specie payments, and as no one can with any certainty predict how long it may continue, I would suggest for the consideration of our city authorities the expediency of procuring an emission of rail road orders of denominations less than a dollar. If such an issue be made, the city will derive the benefit of it, and the community will have a currency that may be confided in with perfect safety. Q. S.

[Right: we want something better than individual shinplasters; and corporation or rail road issues of the denominations spoken of by our correspondent would, no doubt, be acceptable to the community. Let our wise men of the Councils look to this matter in time, if they would do their constituents a service, and avoid the nuisance of another irresponsible shinplaster flood. We have received other communications of like tenor with the above, but think it unnecessary to publish them.]

FOLLY. Henry Gordon, a man about 45 years of age, took a dose of laudanum, in New York, on Saturday last, and died in consequence. John Waugh, keeper of a victualling house at Albany, on Thursday, hung himself. Another, named James Dart, on the same day, swallowed laudanum for the purpose of destroying life, but did not succeed in his object.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	"	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	"	Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	"	Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	"	Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	"	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	"	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	"	Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads, Weather and Storms!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

☞ Passengers for the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road pay through to Petersburg, Va. For further information and Through Tickets, apply at the office of

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, Feb. 19, 1841.

The cause. Politicians seek in the movements of parties for the cause of the pecuniary distress which has pervaded the country for years past, and each party traces it to the action of its opponent. However either party may have contributed by its measures to increase or perpetuate difficulties, we think that the true origin of our monetary embarrassments may be found in our own folly. The excessive importations of foreign goods have given rise to speculation, extravagance and bankruptcy. Every thing has been expanded and distended beyond its natural limit. The importer goes in debt to the foreign producer—the retail merchant to the importer—the country trader to the merchant—and all depend, more or less, upon bank accommodations to sustain their credit. Thus banks have been multiplied, until every clique has its own paper manufacturing establishment. The credit system, (which is excellent when used in moderation,) is stretched to its utmost limit, and the least shock to any part vibrates through the whole. The facility of obtaining bank accommodations has induced imprudence in speculation and extravagance in all things; and men no longer look to the slow but secure gains of care and industry as the foundation of their future independence, but boldly grasp at the golden prize through hazardous adventure, though ruin is to be the certain result of failure. Every thing moves on the high-pressure principle, and economy is a word unknown in the modern vocabulary. This is the reason why a man may be seen one day figuring in a spendid equipage, and the next in the alms-house or penitentiary. The ambition of moving in style—of exciting the envy of others—is too prevalent a passion, and too frequently induces acts from which honesty would shrink. No man of common prudence, or of true honor, will contract a debt, unless he has confidence in his ability to pay; and yet how many hundreds become insolvent who can exhibit no evidence of misfortune.

Through the agency of importations and stock-jobbing, London controls New York, and New York controls the balance of the union. The pulse of the American people is regulated by that of the English stock-jobbers. We are tributary to this nation. As we are the debtors of England, we occupy a dependent position, which cannot be changed until common sense compels us to restrict importations, or Congress lays a duty commensurate with the protection of domestic industry. It would be far better to do as Franklin said in his examination before the House of Commons, "turn your old coats," than to purchase new ones for which we cannot pay—but this policy would be inconsistent with the extravagant notions of the day—and hence we shall continue the round of expansion, contraction and explosion, until experience shall have taught us wisdom, if that day ever arrives.

If we would free ourselves from embarrassment we must work more and spend less; and not strive for the uppermost spoke of the ladder at the risk of breaking our necks by a fall; for, however temporary prosperity may result from overstepping the limits of discretion, we may safely confide in the truth of the adage, in all situations of life, that "honesty is the best policy."

We consider excessive importations as the gas which inflates the community—if reduced, affairs would soon resume their natural order, and honest industry might again become creditable—and we should no longer hear children lisp of thousands where their parents had to count units.

Temperance Hall. A correspondent informs us that the Washington Temperance Society contemplate erecting, on the lot where Christ Church formerly stood, a plain and substantial building, having four large rooms, the main one large enough to seat 2,500 persons, the other rooms from 10 to 1500 each; also, six stores fronting on Baltimore street. The several rooms will be rented to the various Temperance Societies, as also other institutions and societies that may locate there permanently or casually. They purpose raising the money to build the Hall by stock, (see advertisement by executive committee), bearing six per cent. interest, redeemable at the pleasure of the society. They further contemplate establishing a reading room and library, also a tower with a clock and an alarm bell. It will be observed that the books for subscription for stock will be opened at Union Hall this morning, when individuals and societies, in their corporate and incorporate capacities, may have an opportunity of participating in the noble cause, and thereby assisting in erecting a building which will not only be an ornament to the city, but one so much needed by the various institutions and societies that are now prevented from associating in large numbers for want of a comfortable Hall, particularly for ladies.

Murder. The Cumberland Civilian states that a deliberate murder was committed on the body of Mr. Wm. Dudley, from Cornwall, England, who for the last two years has had charge of the works in the tunnel of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal. He was shot down on the night of the 23d ult. while on his way home from work, and was afterwards severely beaten with clubs. It is suspected that the murder was committed by three laborers whom he had discharged from employment some weeks before.

Shocking Accident. On Friday morning last, Mrs. Kirk, the housekeeper of the Blue Ball Tavern, on the Easton road, Montgomery county, (Pa.) was found burnt to death in her bed. It was supposed that while the deceased was preparing supper, her clothes caught fire and that she threw herself on the bed in the hope of extinguishing the flames.

President elect. General Harrison left Baltimore yesterday morning in the cars, accompanied by a committee appointed to escort him.—Although the weather was disagreeable, we have no doubt that he was received in the latter city with every demonstration of respect and by a large concourse of citizens, as extensive preparations had been made for the purpose.

"Some men are born great; some achieve greatness; and some have greatness thrust upon them." Let it come through either avenue, it has its attendant cares. The great man in public life has no privacy—no leisure moments for reflection.—At home or abroad—sitting or standing—he is surrounded by those who are anxious to "do him reverence." A great man thus encompassed and pressed almost to death, is more the object of pity than envy. He is caressed and fawned upon by interested persons, who would persuade him, like the flatterers of Canute, that he can command the waves; and he breathes in an artificial atmosphere. It is the curse of greatness to be thus hunted and pestered by parasites.

The President elect is now the great "lion" of the day. We believe him to be perfectly sound in head and heart; but it is impossible that these excellent qualities can guard him against the wiles and artifices of the ambitious. He has the opportunity to set a great and glorious example; but he will be beset by those who have an interest in making him swerve from the noble path of duty, to take the narrow and unpatriotic track of party. We know that the necessity of an indiscriminate sweep of the public officers will be urged upon him—for we see "Tray, Blanch and Sweetheart—little dogs and all," yelping at his heels for office; and nothing can satisfy them but the dismissal of every political opponent, good, bad and indifferent, from office. And this is called republicanism! When General Jackson determined to "reward his friends, and to punish his enemies," the sentiment was denounced in the bitterest terms of reproach—and where was there the tongue amongst the present office-seekers, which would have dared to wag in approbation of the measure? Does a change of position alter the principle? Can it be praiseworthy to do now, what was censurable then? Is freedom of thought a punishable offence?

We know that there must necessarily be removals from office, and it is right that there should be. Some of the present incumbents are incompetent or have neglected their business, and some have abused the trust reposed in them. In such cases, and in all cases where officers have not confined their attention to their duties, it may be just and proper to substitute others—but a mere difference in political sentiment is not a substantial ground for dismissal. The dominant party should not descend to persecution, whatever may have been the conduct of their opponents. The officer who has discharged his duty and quietly deposited his ballot, without attempting to influence or control the votes of others, has committed no offence; has been guilty of no misconduct; and is entitled to the confidence of an executive of different politics—much more so than the man who avows that his vote has been cast with the hope of reward.

It has been too much the habit to confer office on clamorous, brawling politicians; and hence competency and character have been too little regarded. We hope that General Harrison will not fall into this error. He has had sufficient experience to know, that recommendatory signatures are given without reflection, and sometimes to get rid of troublesome solicitation; and it is, therefore, confidently anticipated, that he will rigidly scrutinize the pretensions of applicants, and appoint none to office of whom the questions, "is he honest? is he capable?" cannot be answered in the affirmative. There will be many who will desire to "push men from their stools," who are unworthy to be seated themselves, and against the importunities of such will require the utmost vigilance to guard.

House of Representatives. "Mr. Reynolds, of Illinois, followed in a long speech, and though a bill to issue Treasury notes was the subject under consideration, the speech was confined to the subject of alien voters. Mr. R. contended that any body called people have a right to vote, if the state in which they reside gives them leave to do so, regardless of naturalization. The provision in the constitution referring to naturalization he heeds not, and believes that the states have a power, independent of the constitution, which may authorize aliens to vote."

Thus it is that the time of the house is occupied with nonsense, and members are permitted to trifle with the people, their masters. For what are men sent to congress? to give utterance to every ridiculous notion they may happen to entertain? It would seem so, from the course of proceeding—and yet the voters who sent them had no such view. When will there be an end of this folly and impertinence? If there be rules, why does the speaker permit the time of the house to be taken up by irrelevant matter? If there be no rules to confine members to the subject under consideration, it is full time that some were adopted. It is trifling—it is contemptible to proceed on as at present. Here is a member who rises to discuss the treasury note bill, and who never once touches the subject; and yet he is not called to order. If school-boys were to conduct themselves in so disorderly a manner, they would deserve the ferule—but our grave legislators pass unreproved. If we condemn Mr. Reynolds for not discussing the treasury note bill, we censure him no less for the matter he substituted. If he believes that the American people will ever consent that unnaturalized foreigners shall be entitled to vote in any state, he must be as destitute of common sense as he appears to be of patriotism. No one with a particle of American feeling would advocate so monstrous a proposition—and did we not know that all madmen are not confined, we could not believe that such an idea was seriously broached in either house of congress. The time was when even insanity could scarcely save the man who would dare to give utterance to such vile sentiments.

We wish that we could, in justice, speak with less harshness of congressional proceedings; but the shameful waste of time and of money, and the outrageous violation of duty, are too palpable to be overlooked. Members consult their own pleasures and passions, any thing and every thing, but the public interests. Business is neglected. Many members sit up late—get up late—are unfit for business—and, to "put off to a more fitting opportunity," what ought to have been promptly considered, make a speech upon "this and that," no matter what—and thus those who desire to discharge their duties are prevented by the dissipated and idle. These matters should be known, and things called by their right names. Constituents should know how their representatives are occupied—whether in the gratification of their own pleasures, or in the discharge of their legitimate business—and we marvel that persons upon the spot do not give sketches of character, that each may be exhibited in his true "form and pressure."

Washington, Feb. 9, 1841.

This morning, long before the arrival of the cars, the rail road depot was surrounded by a dense mass of people, awaiting with eager looks the arrival of the President elect. The snow was falling very fast, and the weather was the very worst that could have happened.

When the General alighted from the car, the rush of the crowd was terrific, and I thought at one time he must have been borne down by the dense mass that hemmed him in.

Notwithstanding the snow was falling in heavy flakes, the General walked up the avenue bare headed, preceded by a band of music and flanked by the Tippecanoe Club, and others. The side walk from the rail road depot to Gadsby's was lined with people on either side, forming a living wall on the right hand and on the left, through which the General passed.

In the House of Representatives, on motion of Mr. Jones, the consideration of the revolutionary pension bill was resumed in committee of the whole.

The question pending was on the amendment of Mr. Thompson, asking an appropriation of $100,000 for the removal of such Indians as may surrender themselves in Florida.

Mr. Cooper, of Georgia, having the floor, resumed his remarks from yesterday in reply to the speech of Mr. Geddings.

Mr. Black followed, and as the abolition subject had been incidentally introduced, Mr. Adams is taking long notes. So he is expected next to take the floor.

The Senate is engaged on the bankrupt bill, the question being on the amendment of Mr. Hubbard to include corporations.

Brandy and murder. A couple of weeks since, says the New York Sun, Thomas Cliff, the landlord of the 6th Ward Hotel, struck a man by the name of John Hand, an Irishman, over the head with a pistol, and on Thursday he died.—After Cliff had struck him with a pistol, and otherwise whipped him to his satisfaction, he compromised the matter by paying Hand thirty dollars and a bottle of brandy. It is said that Hand partook rather freely of the latter part of the hush money, the effect of which, together with the blow received, probably caused the inflammation upon the brain, with which he died. On the second day after the affray took place, Cliff perceiving that Hand was in a dangerous situation, and that the thirty dollars and brandy would not exactly square the account, in case of death, he absconded.

Fires. At Richmond (Va.) on Sunday, a fire broke out in the dying establishment of John W. Hynes, on the south side of Main street, below the old market, which building was destroyed and several other frames and a back building.—Loss by furniture and goods $2000 to $3000.

The large and very complete dairy establishment at Christiandale, near Washington city, belonging to Mr. S. D. Langtree, was destroyed by fire on Sunday last.

A little girl's notion. While an arch little Miss of North Charles street was teasing her papa for permission to visit General Harrison, it was inquired of her what she would ask of him. "Why, pa," said she, "a piece of bread and butter. They say he keeps 'loaves and fishes,' but so many hungry people have been to see him that I fear they have taken them all away."

Political Libels. Four gentlemen at Pontiac, Michigan, who were charged during a violent political campaign of having robbed the ballot box, brought sixteen suits against the leaders of the party who made the charge, the first of which resulted in damages for the plaintiffs in $333. The Supreme Court has just confirmed the verdict.

☞An individual named William Woollen was on Monday arrested on suspicion of setting fire to the counting house attached to the lumber yard of Messrs. F. G. Waters & Co. He was taken before Justice Blair, who, from the evidence adduced, committed him to prison for further examination.

Bentley's Miscellany. We have received from N. Hickman the January number of Bentley's Miscellany. It is an unusually interesting number—contains a continuation of Guy Fawkes and Stanley Thorn.

Inquest. A coroner's inquest was held on Saturday evening last, by John McWilliams, Esq. over the body of a colored man named Jacob Cornish. The jury returned a verdict of death by apoplexy.

Sale of Bank Stock. Forty shares of Union Bank Stock, were on Monday sold at public auction at the Exchange, by H. W. Bool, auctioneer, at $47 per share.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

Gen. Harrison and music. We presume the people have no objections to become enlightened as to the character and disposition of the man whom they have chosen to steer the ship of government in these trying times. There is one trait that speaks well for him—he is remarkably fond of music—and the immortal Shakspeare says:

The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treason, stratagems, and spoils;
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus:
Let no such man be trusted.

On Monday night, quite a pleasant soiree took place at the City Hotel, when Deilman performed his grand "Inauguration March" on the piano forte, much to the pleasure of the old farmer of North Bend, who expressed his delight in terms highly flattering to the composer. We are glad that Mr. Deilman took our hint when we expressed an opinion that the President elect would rather hear his march than see it. The old man is not so entirely wrapped up in the interests of the country, but what he can turn a pleased ear to the eloquence of soft sounds—

"Age itself is cheer'd with music:
It arouses a glad remembrance of our youth, calls back past joys, and warms us into transport.

Meeting of the friends of Ireland. A large meeting of the friends of Ireland desirous of repealing the union between that country and Great Britain, took place at the Saloon of the Assembly Rooms last night. The meeting was animated, and a number of speeches were made appropriate to the occasion. W. P. Preston, Esq. was speaking when we entered—he appeared to be enthusiastic in the cause, and his flashy eloquence drew down thunders of applause. The cause is a righteous one, and an appeal will be made from this country which cannot but have weight with the British Parliament. The proceedings of the meeting, we presume, will be published.

Western Bank. Quite an exciting election for Directors of this Bank took place yesterday. The public looked with anxiety on the result, on account of the newspaper exposures that have recently been made.

The following stockholders were elected:

Comfort Tiffany,	Jacob Baltzell,
Chauncey Brooks,	E. P. Barrows,
C. A. Schaeffer,	Edward Green,
Alonzo Lilly,	Robert Taylor,
Robert Garrett,	Wm. M. Medcalfe,
Lot Easey,	Jacob Reese,
Samuel Jones, Jr.	A. G. Cole,
Francis Burns,	Thos. Burchenal,
Wm. Harden,	Frederick Konig.

☞We attended on Monday evening last an adjourned meeting of the Maryland State Bible Society, held in the Rev. Dr. Duncan's church, Fayette street. The meeting was well attended. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Jones, Rev. Mr. E. N. Sawtell, and the Rev. Mr. Sweet, financial agent of the Society. At the close of the meeting a liberal collection was taken up.—This great cause is progressing rapidly, though there is yet much to be done, and it is to be hoped the good of all denominations will not be backward in doing.

Ha! Yesterday we were honored with a call which made us feel rather sheepish at first—but our restraint wore off on better acquaintance with our visiters, who were no less personages than some of the celebrated sheep advertised by Messrs. Sterling and Turner. Had we felt disposed to go "a wool-gathering," we should have laid violent hands on at least one of them, for they were sterling—and as fat as a London Alderman could wish. They will be dressed (or rather undressed) for Saturday next, and those who wish choice morceaux would do well to give either Mr. Sterling or Mr. Turner a call at the Centre Market.

City Court, Feb. 9—Present, Judges Brice, Nesbit and Worthington. Wm. Downs was brought up, charged by the state with stealing sundry articles from Thos. Mitchell. Not being ready for trial, he was remanded.

State vs. S. Griffin.—This young man was arraigned on the charge of stealing a saddle from a gentleman named Keefer. The evidence not being sufficient as to the identity of Griffin, he was therefore pronounced not guilty.

Henry Ginter, who shot Ferdinand Plain on the 12th of last November, at the Rolla House in Hanover-st., was put upon trial under the indictment of manslaughter. He plead not guilty. His counsel, Jas. M. Buchanan, Esq., stated to the court that the witnesses were not all present, and asked a postponement of the trial until next Tuesday, which was granted.

John Smith was put upon trial for stealing boots, shoes, &c., the property of T. G. Gaither. His case was removed to Anne Arundel County Court.

State vs. Chas. Norris.—The prisoner, a lad about 16 years of age, was indited for stealing a saddle, the property of a Mr. Towman. The boy, it seemed, had offered the saddle for sale to a Mr. McGee, and not being able to show how he obtained it, was arrested. Evidence was given to prove that the saddle was the property of Mr. Towman. The boy was identified as the one who had offered it for sale. He was found guilty, though recommended by the jury to mercy. It seemed that he had been, like many others, an unfortunate orphan, thrown upon the world to struggle for himself. Having no one to advise or counsel with, he unfortunately made a mis-step. When pronounced guilty, he wept bitterly, and seemed to excite much sympathy. The attorney for the state entered in his behalf a nolle prosequi.

Assault. Margaret Huddleston was put upon trial for assaulting Lucinda Moore. Both parties were of the cyprian order. The aggressor was fined $1 and costs.

TO SPECTATOR.

☞I perceive by the Sun paper of Monday morning that you are equally as skilful in writing lies, as you are in swearing to them. Squire Bell's judgment seems to make you wrathy and desperate. I think you ought to keep cool—don't throw yourself away entirely—the loss of your fee or commission ought not to agonize you quite so much—before long, an opportunity may offer that will enable you to swindle some one out of double the amount. Dr. Yeates testified before Squire Bell that he knew that I had recently attended patients, and that I had not abandoned the practice of medicine; and also that Dr Smith had presented a claim of twenty-five dollars, and received the same, for professional services to a medical friend, to whom, without being requested, he offered his services as a courtesy—his medical friend thought it very ungenerous, as much so as I know you to be an insidious liar. LOTTERIES.

STATE ARMORY
AND TOWN HALL LOTTERY.

☞It is due to the citizens of Baltimore that they should be fully apprized of the combination openly at work to crush this project; and that the means and agents employed in the accomplishment of so illiberal a purpose may be nakedly exposed, a brief narrative of the facts are respectfully submitted to a discerning public. The want of a spacious Town Hall in our city suggested to some of our spirited fellow-citizens the feasibility of supplying so great a desideratum by the aid of the lottery system. It was thought that, inasmuch as the universally admitted evil of that system was forced upon the people of the State, that it was but just that some benefit should be made to result to our own community from it—so that if the law to license lotteries could not be repealed, that the city of Baltimore, whose people were subjected to the system, were at least entitled to, and ought to enjoy from its avails, the benefit of some public improvement.

The Town Hall Lottery was accordingly projected, a grant from the General Assembly obtained, and authority had from the corporation to use the site of the present Hanover market place, as a suitable location of the contemplated spacious edifice. In obedience to the law, the individuals appointed to manage the lottery submitted their schemes to the State Lottery Commissioners, which were approved; and unwilling to await the tedious delay of the sale of the tickets themselves, the commissioners effected a sale of twelve schemes to D. S. Gregory & Co. large lottery contractors to the eastward, for which they received several thousands of dollars. These being all drawn, to the surprise of the Town Hall Lottery Commissioners, no further admissible proposition would be made for the further purchase of schemes, and the broad ground was openly taken by these foreign monopolists of Maryland Lotteries, that the Town Hall Commissioners should neither sell to any body else, nor draw themselves, their Lottery, authorized by the General Assembly of Maryland—and to consummate this outrage upon the rights of the Town Hall Lottery Commissioners, and in this way to crush the purpose of erecting a spacious Town Hall in the city of Baltimore, an edict was issued through their agents in this city, forbidding all the Lottery Brokers, licensed by the State of Maryland, to sell the Town Hall Lottery Tickets, under pain of cutting off their supply of tickets in other Lotteries—hoping, by this lever, to effect the entire overthrow of the Town Hall Lottery, or coerce its Commissioners to put its schemes into their hands at their own price, and upon their own terms, or give up the project. In this aspect of affairs, nothing has been left to the Town Hall Lottery Commissioners, but to open an office, and sell their own tickets, and to appoint their own agents since the regular Lottery dealers, whom they would gladly have employed, are, under pain of being broken up, prohibited from selling Town Hall tickets. These are the facts, and in view of them, an indignant and enlightened community, will not be in vain, it is confidently believed, invoked to crush so iniquitous a combination. Agents are appointed by the Commissioners in every part of the city, and the public are earnestly recommended, when they buy Lottery Tickets, to ask for Town Hall Tickets—and to buy none other.

Published by order of the Commissioners.

J. M'S H. COX.

☞The next Town Hall Lottery will be drawn on THURSDAY, 11th inst. Capitals—1 of $12,000; 100 of $1,000. Tickets $5—Halves $2.50—Quarters $1.25.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

CITY COUNCIL. First Branch, February 9. Present, H. Snyder, Esq. President, and all the members except Mr. Peregoy.

The Council proceeded to business through the presentation of a petition by Mr. Fenby, signed Henry McElderry and others, relative to the condition of property on Caroline, Eutaw and other streets. Referred to committee on streets.

Mr. Pinkney presented the petition of Thomas Lambden relative to the Eastern Fountain, which was referred to committee on water.

Mr. Reader presented the petition of James Wilson, for a refund of money erroneously paid the city collector by him in reference to a mistake made in the inspection of flour. Referred to committee on claims.

Mr. J. T. Brown moved a reconsideration of the vote upon the report of the joint committee on police relative to the petition of high constable Mitchell, asking for an extra partition in the watch house. Upon this all-important subject there was much discussion, many sharp sallies and logical arguments. The motion to reconsider was carried—yeas 12, nays 9. The subject was laid on the table, in order to afford Mr. Mitchell time to report upon the matter himself.

A message was received from the Mayor, signifying his assent to and signing of resolutions relative to the stock orders of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company. Also, an ordinance relative to changing the name of Chamberlain alley.

Mr. Gorsuch called up bill No. 9, being a supplement to an ordinance, entitled an ordinance relative to the shipment of flaxseed. Mr. Keyser moved an amendment, which was agreed to. Mr. Pinkney afterwards moved to strike out the whole original bill, which was not agreed to. Mr. Gorsuch moved an amendment, which was agreed to. Mr. Cole moved that the blank of the bill be filled with $5, which was carried. Mr. Dallam moved that fifty cents per bushel be inserted in the place of $5 per bag as a fine. The bill, with the amendment, was passed.

Mr. Cole, of the joint committee on markets, to whom was referred the petition of Solomon W. Wilson, presented an unfavorable report. The committee was discharged.

The reports of the joint committee on health and the joint committee on streets relative to the petition of Samuel Jones and Wm. F. Pentz; also, in reference to the petition relating to Cove street, were returned from the Second Branch concurred in.

Mr. Pinkney, of the joint committee on claims, to whom was referred the petition of James Wilson, reported unfavorably. The subject was laid on the table.

Mr. Dallam presented the report of the joint committee on streets relating to the petition of William Minifie, for the opening of Henry street, which was favorable.

Mr. Donovan presented the report of the joint committee on water relative to repairing of the Eastern fountain, which was favorable.

On motion of Mr. Donovan, the Councils adjourned until to-morrow at half past 3 o'clock.

NEWS FROM THE SOUTH. The southern editors having nothing else to speculate on, are writing about the weather. Nearly all agree that thus far it has been a very wet season—this we believe, as they have not sent us a dry sheet for a long while. The town of Wetumpka, (there's poetry in the name) however, has proved an exception—it is a region of sunshine. Hear what the Wetumpka Argus says:

Weather. The weather for several days past has been beautiful. Now is the time to commence gardening. Enrich and spade your ground well. Plant good seed, and work them well. A little care and attention to one's garden, will save many a dollar's expense, and add largely to the comfort of a family.

Thrice blessed Wetumpka! Thou beauty-spot on the face of nature!

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one, that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and be worthy of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1.50 each.

AGENCY. HOUSES, FARMS, VACANT LOTS, GROUND RENTS, LANDS, &c. bought and sold on commission. SLAVES, for life or a term of years, bought or sold on commission, and the highest prices obtained. Persons having slaves, which they wish to dispose of, will do well to apply at this office before selling.

N. B. All letters addressed to this office (post paid) thankfully received and promptly attended to.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains ex aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

CONSUMPTION.

☞ Consumption, that fell Destroyer! More Proofs of the efficacy of Doctor SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP or WILD CHERRY, in relieving afflicted Man. To Dr. SWAYNE.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

SEASON OF LOVE.

(BY SAMUEL H. ELLIS.)

Old winter is going, and spring's drawing near,
The warbling of birds I am longing to hear;
The robin's soft lay, and the coo of the dove,
Will announce the return of the season of love.

The trees that are bare, will be deck'd in array,
And streams that are still will run glad on their way,
When birds will make vocal each meadow and grove;
Oh! this is indeed the sweet season of love.

The rose and the lilac are blooming so gay,
And the sunflower bends to the bright God of day;
Ere autumn shall come and these emblems remove,
Let's enjoy, while we may, the sweet season of love.

The spring time of youth is pleasant to all,
But it soon is succeeded by summer and fall;
Then let's us improve our time, as it flies,
That, when winter comes on, we may bloom in the skies.

BUONAPARTE AND THE MYSTERIOUS BEAUTY.

WARNING THE FIRST.

When Buonaparte was created First Consul for life, his court was similar to that of a king. Ancient customs were revived, and the code of etiquette was as rigid as a hundred years before.—As the Consul found that the Palace of the Tuileries was but a dull sojourn, he spent most of his leisure time at Malmaison, although it was somewhat too small for the etalage of power. Seeing this, he took possession of the Palace of St. Cloud, which he had refused to accept, when previously offered to him, saying—"I shall take nothing from the people"—a promise, which he forgot as soon as he had overcome the first difficulties of his career.

M. Gaudin, prime minister, was, it is said, the first who presented himself at a levee in a coat trimmed with lace. The example was soon followed, and the lace and silk stockings replaced the sword and the boots. Buonaparte himself, at an assembly at Lyons, was remarked wearing a coat trimmed with red silk; and all the Englishmen attending an audience had their hair powdered. Some courtier also wore powder. 'Trifles,' says a grave historian, 'had become state affairs.' The old ladies of the court of Louis XV. were at the head of the anti-revolution party; the young ones were afraid that the old costume would be again introduced; but Madame Buonaparte belonged to the opposition, and perhaps it is to her that the French ladies owe the advantage of not having had their hair powdered as of yore. Analogous to the court of Versailles, a great attraction to those coming to the levee was the mass preceding it. Many had lost the habit of going to church; some had helped to overthrow the state religion; however, nothing could be more brilliant than this ceremony; the actresses of the opera sang there; and those who could not find room near the window, facing the choir, walked and talked in the gallery. The Consul attended the chapel more regularly than Madame Buonaparte liked. Josephine passionately loved her husband, who was already too much the victim of those ambitious views which afterwards drove him to divorce. She dreaded any rival that might by possibility have made Buonaparte do without her. Now it happened that during mass the emperor's eyes were constantly fixed on one of the gallery windows opposite; which was occupied by a young girl of great beauty, whose sparkling orbs seemed to glide over a little prayer-book, in order to meeting the piercing looks of the Consul.

'Who is that young person?' asked Josephine of one of her ladies; 'she has, I think, some intentions on Buonaparte, for I saw her drop a note, which he—picked up.'

No one could satisfy Josephine. The young lady was said to be English, but nothing more was known respecting her. On the day of the billet, and after the levee, Buonaparte had a fancy for a drive in the park, four in hand. He had, however, scarcely taken the reins, when he fell from the seat. He tried to get up, but fell again, and fainted. The horses were frightened, and ran off. Duroc, however, contrived to stop them, and the First Consul was carried to his apartment. Once recovered, he remembered the billet dropped in the chapel; and Josephine, leaning over his shoulder, read,

'Do not ride out to-day!'

'How could an accident of the kind be foretold?' exclaimed Napoleon. 'Duroc, my friend, examine the carriage.'

Duroc obeyed, and entered soon after, pale and terrified; and taking the Consul into an adjoining room, he said:

'Consul, had you not met with this accident, we should all have been destroyed! There was in the carriage, and under your seat, a shell loaded with small shot. A few minutes more and the match would have communicated to the gunpowder.—Fouche must be told of this.'

'Don't say a word about it,' answered the Consul; 'one attempt always brings on more. Let not Josephine know what danger she has been in; nothing must be said to Hortense, Joseph, or Cambaceres; publicity must be avoided. Here, Duroc,' he added, 'read this. 'Tis a parallel passage.'

Duroc took the book from Buonaparte and read the following sentence:—

'Cromwell had received from a German Prince six horses, very remarkable for their speed and beauty. Through Hyde Park, in a light carriage drawn by these horses, he himself drove, having Thurlow inside. He did not deem it more difficult to manage six horses than three nations; but the steeds, being of a fiery nature, set off at their greatest speed and turned the carriage over. In his fall a pistol, which he carried with him, went off, without wounding him; the protector was taken up, bruised by his fall, but less hurt than Thurlow.'

'I don't wish to be compared to Cromwell,' said Buonaparte, shutting the book. 'Am I, like the protector, a hypocrite, a fanatic, the murderer of a monarch? But truce to this; come to mass on Sunday next and you shall see a beautiful creature; I will point her out to you; she will sit at the fourth gallery window on the right. You must follow her to her abode and tell me afterwards where it is.—Idem.'

WARNING THE SECOND.

The next Sunday the mysterious beauty did not appear at mass. Josephine sought in vain—and Napoleon also. In the winter season St. Cloud was too cold to be inhabited; the month so appropriately called Nivose was approaching, and the First Consul returned to Paris and the vast apartments of the Tuileries. One night he entered his carriage, accompanied by his aid-de-camp Lauriston, and by the Generals Lannes and Berthier, and it was just on the point of starting, when a female, whose head was wrapped in a black cloak, approached, with a note in her hand.

'Citoyen Consul!' exclaimed she, extending her hands, 'for God's sake do not ——!'

The carriage started, and Napoleon said—'I should think by the sound of her voice that she must be a pretty woman; I could not see her face.'

On they drove, and had arrived at the opera, when a terrific explosion was heard, mingled with the cries of the victims, and that of the glass falling from all the windows of the neighborhood. Buonaparte entered his box with a serene aspect, and the kind yet firm look which distinguished him. He bowed to the terrified assembly, and, crossing his arms, seemed to pay the greatest attention to the oratorio of Haydn—the Creation—which was given on that day. All at once he remembered the note he had previously received, opened it, and read—

'FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, CONSUL CITOYEN, DO NOT GO TO THE OPERA TO-NIGHT, OR IF YOU DO, DO NOT PASS BY THE RUE NICAISE!'

The Consul then raised his eyes, and in the upper tier saw the young girl from the chapel of St. Cloud, who was gazing on him, and seemed thankful for his preservation. Her head had no other ornament than the long curls which floated down over her beautiful breast; and on her shoulders was the little black cloak which she had worn on approaching the Consul's carriage.

'Go,' said Buonaparte to Lannes, 'to the upper tier; you will find there a young lady to whom I must speak—there; do you see?—opposite. She wears a black cloak.'

Lannes went up, but the vision had fled!

WARNING THE THIRD.

Years went on; victory succeeded victory. At last the moment arrived when France was invaded, and Napoleon was obliged to abandon the sceptre which, to use his own words, he had 'picked up.' The Island of Elba became, for a time, the most dazzling point in the universe.—The Emperor made but one step from the Gulf of Juan to Paris; after which the empire was again thrown into confusion by the battle of Waterloo. The Emperor, whose eagle was not thenceforth to take flight, threw himself under the protection of England. Before entering the boat which was to conduct him to the British ship, his friends placed themselves around him to take a last farewell. In the middle of the crowd a female of dazzling beauty was seen, trying to approach the Emperor. Her eyes were filled with tears, which rendered her still more interesting.

'Read this!' said she, handing a note to Buonaparte; 'it is still time!'

Napoleon read the note, and, looking up, thought himself once more in the parks of St. Cloud, or at the Opera, listening to Haydn's Oratorio. The delusion was brief; he shook his head, tore the note, and threw the separate parts over to the advancing wave.

'This is not the time!' said the Emperor. 'I cannot withdraw!' and then taking from his finger an ornamented ruby—a memento of his campaign in Egypt—offered it to the mysterious fair one, who kissed his hand and sobbed aloud. He then entered the English boat.

Of three warnings, two came too late; and the third, which might have been serviceable, was rejected.

The beautiful prophetess died in 1837; and her history was much better known to the Duke of Otranto (Fouche) than he chose to avow. The little we have said on this subject is all we are permitted to reveal.

ONE OF THE CORPS DIPLOMATIQUE.

CHINESE POETRY. From "Wang Keaou Lwan Pih Neen Chang Han: or, The lasting Resentment of Miss Keaou Lwan Wang," we take the following specimens of Chinese poetry. Here's a poetical assignation:

"In secret I take these words and send them to my lord,
But do not inconsiderately open your lips to other people!
This night the door of the fragrant apartment will not be locked,
And when the moon changes the shadows of the flowers, let my lover come."

And here is a Chinese lady in a passion, because her lover has deceived her:

"As I lean against my door-post, and in grief and silence meditate on bygone scenes,
I sigh; alas! my dream of wedded bliss has now vanished like a smile!
Love in early life stirred up the rambling fibres of passion, and dragged the green and tender buds of my heart astray,—
Rage now follows like a torrent, and shrinks these green buds to the withered red of resentment!
Then, I said, my lord will return true to his promise, as spring to her revolving period;—
But now, alas! full well I know that 'all is vanity!'
I turn my head, and lean against the railing, the painful spot of our long farewell—
And all my sorrows, for ten thousand years, I lay at the door of the false and cruel east wind!"

Correspondence of the New York American.

BUENOS AYRES, Nov. 28, 1840.

Alfred M. Slade, the American Consul here, died on the 25th. His funeral was attended by most of the principal officers of the Argentine Confederation, and by the British and American naval officers at Buenos Ayres. Commodore Ridgely has appointed Amory Edwards, Esq. of New York, to act as Consul until Mr. Slade's successor shall arrive here. The flags of the "Decatur" and of the American ships in port were hoisted half-mast, as a mark of respect to his memory.

We suspect that Dr. John F. Braddie, the reputed robber of the mail, on so large a scale, at Uniontown, Penn., expects to slip clear. He has been bailed out of jail in $120,000; Hon John Irwin being bail for half that amount, and twenty-two of the Dr.'s neighbors for the other half. He is a man of large property.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

DISTINCTIONS IN SOCIETY. There are many persons who affect to hold mechanics, and indeed operatives generally, without regard to their moral or intellectual characters, in superlative contempt. These persons, too, call themselves republicans and democrats, and profess to acknowledge no other distinction but merit and morality, yet we find them creating the same distinctions in society, and upholding the same causes which characterize the society of the most aristocratic governments, where no such professions are made, and instead of merit, intellect, good breeding and decency being the standard qualities which ought to elevate a man to the best society in the land, we find ignorance, dandyism and idleness, generally combined with money, predominating, and the man who can boast of the largest share of these "very desirable" accomplishments, usurps the place which virtue, morality and intellect should occupy.

We find many of our young men generally known by the term "fashionable," who have sprung from honest and industrious ancestors, who by their economy and industry have acquired a competency, spending the earnings of their forefathers in idleness and dissipation, and boasting of their illustrious ancestry, who were perhaps plain farmers or tradesmen, and applying epithets as "vulgar mechanics," "low people," and such like, to persons whose abilities and merits are equal if not superior to their own; and affecting to despise those very employments which their ancestors were glad to cherish, and but for the profits arising therefrom, they would have remained in that obscurity which their birth alone would place them.

This perverted notion of the respectability of occupations, which has been derived from the false distinctions of monarchies, where mechanical professions are menial, pervades the whole land, and is becoming an evil of the first magnitude. It is mischievous in the highest degree—inconsistent with the spirit of our institutions, and the only way to cure the evil is to go to the root of it, and show such persons as imagine they will increase the respectability of their families by making their sons lawyers, doctors or merchants, that it is sheer delusion, for "the highest point of respectability is honest industry," and that mechanics, as a profession, is as "respectable" as law, physic or commerce. JOHN SPYGLASS.

THE EXPLORING EXPEDITION.—Murder of two of the Officers by Cannibals.—Letters and papers from the Sandwich Islands to the 24th October have been received at New York. The Exploring Expedition had arrived there.

The papers contain the particulars of the murder on the 24th of July last of Lieut. J. A. Underwood, and Midshipman Wilkes Henry, a nephew of Captain Wilkes, in the most treacherous manner, by the natives of Malolo, one of the Fijii group. These unfortunate officers having gone ashore with but a few men, were attacked and killed almost instantly, but not until they had shot four of their assailants, who were the very men that but a few minutes before they had employed in tracking boats over the reef.—The men with them were wounded, but escaped.

The Squadron's boats being near, immediately pulled in and commenced a well directed fire upon the savages, under cover of which, Lieut. Alden landed and brought off the bodies, which were entirely strip. Had not the natives been fully occupied in carrying off their own dead, the bodies would have been taken away and devoured. Capt. W. immediately made preparations for attacking their town and fort, which the savages considered impregnable. The seamen were landed and a fire was opened upon it, but without much effect, until a rocket, or "flying spirit," as they called it, set fire to their town, and created great consternation. It was finally carried by assault. The natives fought well, and even stood a charge of bayonet, but were finally beaten at 'all points, seventy or more were killed, the fort and town burnt, their plantations destroyed, and the island laid waste. These islanders have always been noted for their ferocity and treachery, and cannibalism, characteristics which it seems they fully retain.

A letter to the New York Commercial says:.. "Lieut. Underwood and Wilkes Henry were killed as they were endeavoring to secure the retreat of the men, in which they succeeded, but at the cost of their own lives. They were buried on a small uninhabited island of Underwood's Group, which was named Henry's Island, in memory of that gallant and ill-fated young officer. The whole island, on which the massacre took place, was severely punished two days afterwards—when the brig and schooner arrived. Nothing was spared but the women and children, and these, I am sorry to say, are by this time slaves to some chief of the neighboring group."

A chief was captured and taken on board the Vincennes, who seven years since killed ten of the crew of an American vessel.

The Porpoise visited one of the Fejee Islands to protect or take away, as occasion might require, a family of Wesleyan missionaries settled there, whose lives were supposed to be endangered by the savages. But they preferred remaining, having been promised protection by the old king.

A DUEL. We are informed that a duel with small swords, took place on Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, in a room at the corner of Bourbon and Orleans street. The combatants were two young creoles of this city, who have had a meeting with pistols once before, about the same matter. Very early in the contest one was severely wounded, the sword of his opponent passing into his right breast just under the nipple. It is not known that his wound is mortal, and supposed not to be, the sword having come in contact with some bone. The guard of his antagonist's weapon was broken by the point of the wounded gentleman's sword. It was a furious affair all round. We hope the matter is settled now, for these constant combats are any thing but pleasant to their friends.—N. O. Crecent City, 1st.

☞ There is a rumor in town that two gentlemen went over from Canada to hail McLeod, and the people turned out and would not allow him to be given up, and tarred and feathered the two who offered to bail him.—Detroit Free Press, 5th.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M. reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	" Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	" Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	" Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	" Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	" Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	" Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through out, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads Weather!! and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

THURSDAY MORNING, FEB. 11, 1841.

CONGRESSIONAL TRIFLING. Only twenty days remain for the present Congress to continue in session, and yet members trifle away their time in silly discussions and personal altercations. The house of representatives is the bear-garden of the country, where low jests, scaramouch tricks and contemptible buffoonery are exhibited to perfection. One might as well expect to find good sense in the cross-readings from newspapers, as consistency or propriety in the proceedings of the house of representatives. The French chamber of deputies has been considered a disorderly body; but our uproarious house eclipses it entirely. We had rather listen to the song, "All round my hat," than to speeches about matters and things all round the globe, without coming near the particular subject before the house. We observe that a Mr. Black made a very diverting speech on Tuesday, which amused the children of the house exceedingly; and as they receive eight dollars per day whilst listening to jokes, they of course care not how many may be cracked. In the mean time, however, public business suffers and private claimants go unsatisfied. Were men in private life thus to neglect the business of their employers and still pocket the pay for doing it, they would be apt to be designated—swindlers; but our congressional worthies, who desire to be considered "all honorable men," escape the epithet whilst they incur the guilt. They not only take what they have not earned, but prevent the efforts of the honest portion of the house from being effectual for the public interests. Against this monstrous abuse, this gross disregard of honor and justice, we shall not cease to "cry aloud and spare not;" and that we hope every press in the union will assist to cudgel the disorderly into better manners. The attention of the people must be directed to the subject, for it is with them to apply the remedy in the rejection of garrulous fools, who have not the discretion to select the proper place to exhibit their folly.

If there is no business which demands the attention of Congress, there should be an immediate adjournment; but if something is to be done in which the people have an interest, it should be done quickly, as there is no time to be lost. Since the first Monday in December last Congress has been in session, and as much business has not been transacted as could have been performed by ten men of common sense in as many days. Their action on the bill to pay their own per diem shews that they can be prompt where their own interests are concerned; if they would only proceed with like energy with the business of their constituents, there would be less cause of complaint. But then they would have no chance to "blow off their steam," and, as they come well charged, they must be eased, though the nation suffer in the delivery. Each of these high-pressure gentlemen has the vanity of the eastern prince, who, on dining, gave the command, "Attention, the world; you may now eat as the king has dined." Each thinks the eyes of the universe directed to his important self; and, puffed up by this imaginary greatness, deems it unjust to mankind that the tongue should be silent, the lightest lispings of which are to charm the world. We have seen such coxcombs, and listened to their ridiculous conceits with the regret, that nothing less than the strait-jacket and water gruel could restore them to reason.

We are in favor of free discussion, and consequently would not restrain the liberty of speech, except so far as to compel every speaker to confine himself to the question under consideration. The rule on this head should be rigidly enforced.

EXPLORING EXPEDITION. The latest accounts from the exploring squadron will be found in to-day's paper.

The discovery of a southern continent opens a wide field for conjecture—and we hope that our government will not rest content with the knowledge of its existence. The presence of ice-bergs in high southern latitudes, and other indications, led Cook and other navigators to believe that there must be a southern continent, though they were unable to discover it. Having found land, we must endeavor to explore it as a matter of scientific interest, if not otherwise of national advantage. We have various theories as to the progenitors of the aborigines of the American continent, and of the numerous islands of the Pacific ocean; but none of these would apply to the inhabitants of the southern continent, should such be discovered; for we do not think it possible that they could have reached the shores of the continent from Asia, or any of the islands, in the small vessels in use in ancient times. The same difficulty will exist as to beasts, if they be found, particularly those of the larger kind. We think it very desirable that discovery should be pushed, as the exploration of the southern continent may enlighten us on many subjects of interest, and rectify existing errors in our system of natural philosophy. The expense incurred in these researches will be nothing in comparison of the object to be attained.

☞We will state, for the information of the members of the City Council, and other city officers, that they are requested to meet at the City Hall on Friday afternoon next at two o'clock, for the purpose of proceeding from thence to the funeral of Mr. Harden, a lately deceased member of the Second Branch of the City Council. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock, P. M.

THE PARTY PRESS. It seems to be deemed necessary by the conductors of the party press, that, in order to sustain their own principles, they must speak in terms of disparagement of all who differ with them, and more particularly of the most distinguished amongst their opponents. We have no allusion to those editorial personalities which sometimes disgrace the party press; for they are unworthy of notice. We speak of a systematic detraction from the merits of statesmen who, but for this obliquity of party, would be universally admired for their talents and virtues. This is a great error—it is a double error—for it neither injures the one side nor benefits the other. It may exhibit zeal in the partizan writer, but it is in bad taste, and entirely inconsistent with the duty of an American citizen. It may lessen our distinguished men in the estimation of foreigners; for, if half that is said be true, we have scarcely a leading statesman in the country of mediocre intellect or common honesty.—Instead of thus indulging in vituperation, partizan editors would render a much more effectual service to their country by inculcating a national feeling that would uphold the reputation of American citizens, whatever might be the difference in sentiment as to particular measures. There is an unbecoming vanity in underrating the talents of our opponents, which is discreditable to the conductor of a public press, for ridicule of the opinions of an adversary, implies superiority in ourselves. We wish that partizan editors could become convinced of the injustice and impolicy of indiscriminate denunciation, and the practice would be abandoned. To call a man an ass does not make him one—and before an editor undertakes to pronounce upon the capacity of a public man, he should be sure that he himself is qualified to give an authoritative opinion. We have witnessed deviations in both political parties from the high and honorable stand which the press ought to occupy. By one side Mr. Van Buren has been insulted by abusive epithets, and by the other General Harrison is represented as a superannuated idiot. Each picture is alike untrue. Both gentlemen have filled various public stations with distinguished ability, and neither should be deprived of the smallest tittle of their merits. Ill-judged harshness may irritate and influence the passions of the ignorant, but is looked upon with disgust by the more discerning—We wish it were less indulged in—indeed it should be "reformed altogether," for the credit of the press and the honor and interests of the country.

LIMITATION OF LEGISLATIVE SESSIONS. An effort is about to be made to abolish the constitutional limitation to the sessions of the legislature, so that they may be continued to an indefinite period. We are against the proposed change. The time allowed by the constitution is sufficient if members attend to their duties; if they do not, the sooner they are compelled to return home the better. There is too much legislation—doing and undoing, until it would puzzle a "Philadelphia lawyer" to tell what is the law of the land. The public business requiring legislative action could be despatched in a month or less time; and as for divorce cases and many other matters, they should be sent to other tribunals. But the misfortune is, that the first two or three weeks of the session are spent in idleness, and the accumulated bills have, in consequence, to be disposed of in a summary way on the last day of the session.

We hope the House of Delegates will forthwith proceed with the important business of the session, the tax bills necessary to enable the state to meet her engagements. We believe that the necessity of the measure is universally admitted; and, as the saddle must be put on the public back, the sooner the better. We see that Mr. Bowie is very properly pressing this matter, and his urgency is commendable. We hope that no farther obstacle will be interposed; and we have no doubt that the committee of ways and means is prepared to act with promptitude in the matter.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT ON BOARD THE STEAM-BOAT POCAHONTAS. Yesterday afternoon, when the steamer Pocahontas, Captain Holmes, was on her way to Norfolk, the chief engineer, Jesse Schaeffer, was instantly killed by coming in contact with some part of the machinery of the engine. It is supposed when at work and stooping, his head was struck first by a large crank, which felled him into the lower pit, where he was found dead. His left ear was entirely cut off, and his head otherwise much bruised.

Mr. Schaeffer was about 22 years of age, and has left to mourn his premature death a young wife, to whom he had been lately married. The accident happened at two o'clock, P. M. off Thomas' Point, about 40 miles from Baltimore. Immediately upon this sad occurrence, Capt. Holmes put back to this city with the deceased, where he arrived about 7 o'clock last evening.

An inquest was held over the body by Mr. W. T. Rice, coroner, and a verdict given by the jury of accidental death.

MR. RANGER. This chaste comedian and sterling actor has just concluded an engagement at N. Orleans, and commenced at Mobile. If we are to judge from the tone of the papers he has not been successful in drawing full houses at the former place, where he went through a range of characters peculiar to himself, and was supported by some of the choicest of the southern theatrical companies. The drama, it seems, feels the pressure of the times in the southern section of the country, as severely as it does at the north—and theatres meet with but a meagre support. The French opera at New Orleans appears to drag on. Mr. Tasistro is playing tragedy at the St. Charles, and Charles Eaton is doing up the same at the American Equestrian Theatre, under Fogg' & Stickney.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10, 1841.

Among the numerous visitors now in this city, are several gangs of accomplished pickpockets. So I advise the public to be on their guard. These light fingered gentry are remarkably well dressed, which is one reason why they are not suspected. They have a plan of entering large boarding houses without ringing the bell, and if caught in the rooms, make a polite bow and represent themselves as in search of board, but "as no one answered the bell, they took the liberty of walking up," etc. I advise every boarder to lock his door, otherwise he may repent when too late. The galleries of both houses of Congress and the city post office, are famous places of resort for these rascals. At the post office, in the evening, when there is so great a rush for letters, many have their pockets picked without suspecting it. I speak feelingly on the subject, because, on Saturday evening last, I was one of the sufferers. But the whole of my loss was a small pocket dictionary. I presume it was some literary rogue who stole it, and that he was anxious to get a proper definition of the noun thief.

To-morrow General Harrison will attend at the City Hall, from one to three, P. M., to receive the visits of ladies.

The weather has suddenly cleared up, and the sky is without a cloud.

In the House of Representatives, this morning, a resolution was adopted by which the debate on the pension bill, and consequently the amendment of $100,000 for concluding the treaty in Florida, will terminate to-morrow at twelve o'clock.

After the disposal of some other business, the Senators appeared in the hall of the House, and the counting of the votes for President and Vice President of the United States commenced.

The galleries were crowded to excess.

"SHINE OUT, FAIR SUN!" For the sake of the southern editors, if nothing else, we do most sincerely hope that the bright god of day will gladden the southern clime with a blink or two of his golden beams. The complaints of his non-appearance, "according to contract," are general at New Orleans and Mobile; they are equal to the disappointments created by the irregularity of the mail; for, day after day passes, and still no sun gladdens the face of nature. We have enjoyed the light of his countenance in this latitude on alternate days—rain and sunshine, like good pork, "a streak of fat and a streak of lean." Therefore, we pray, oh! blazing idol of the devout Peruvian, that thou mayst be liberal with thy genial outpourings, if it's only for the sake of the man of the Picayune, who, dying with the ennui, exclaims:

"But O, for a gleam of sunshine! O, for a spot of blue! O, for a scorching, parching, smothering July day! If any body has one of them on hand, we'll take it and a mint julap at the same time. If we could have an opportunity, between ourselves and the post, we would embrace it, (not the post but the opportunity,) to bask in hot sunshine for a full quarter section of the term yet left us of sublunary existence. We want to be hung up and dried. We want to enjoy the luxury of being blinded in the streets once more with dust as fine as the pulverised front teeth of a small gray-coated goat!" 'Shine out, fair sun!'"

MCLEOD. The Montreal Transcript of the 4th inst. thinks it probable that Mr. Fox, the British minister, will demand his passports if McLeod be not released. The editor of the Transcript must keep cool on this subject; for, whatever Mr. Fox may think proper to do—whether to remain or retire—one thing is certain, that the national government cannot and will not change its position on McLeod's case. He was legally released from prison on bail, and was re-confined on the requisition of the people—that is, mob-law has been substituted for statute law—but this requires the action of the New York state authorities, and not that of the general government. We suspect that Mr. Fox will remain at his present quarters.

VIRGINIA BANKS. The last Richmond papers received state that the Banks of that city continued to pay specie, and that the demands for it were few and of small amount. They will suspend in less than a week or we shall be much surprised.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

VIRGINIA DWARF. A great curiosity is now exhibited at the Wheatfield Inn in the person of Lewis, the Virginia Dwarf. A number of medical men have visited him, and recommended him to the consideration of the curious.

CITY COURT, Feb. 10, 1841.—Present, Judges Brice, Worthington and Nesbit. The court was occupied nearly all the day in the trial of Charles Coyle, who was brought up under the indictment of assault and battery upon the person of Alexander McDougall, and also for false imprisonment of the same individual. It seemed, on evidence, that Coyle owned the house in which McDougall with his mother and two brothers resided—that Mrs. McDougall was a tenant of Coyle—and that he (Coyle) desiring to rid the house of its inmates, went to Captain Mullen, of the night watch, and entered complaint to him of the said Mrs. McDougall and family. He represented to Capt. Mullen that the tenants were vagrants—that they had no visible means of support—that they were a nuisance to the neighborhood—that he was apprehensive they might burn down his premises, &c. Under these representations Captain Mullen, as was customary, ordered his subordinate officers to go and arrest the parties and bring them before him. Accordingly Messrs. Baker and Shipley, police officers, proceeded to the house of Mrs. McDougall, about ten o'clock on the night of the 22d ult. broke open the door, entered the premises by force and took from the bed where they were sleeping, Alexander McDougall with his two younger brothers, and lodged them in the watch house, where the former was kept until morning and discharged, and the two latter committed as vagrants to the almshouse.

Though no charge had been brought against the police officers, yet the court took occasion to state that they had acted in this matter directly in opposition to law, and that they were guilty of an office of no common order. A man's house (whether poor or rich) is his castle, and cannot be entered forcibly under any circumstances, without authority duly granted according to law.—It appeared that the police officers had no legal authority to warrant them in their bold effrontery.

This case was somewhat novel, inasmuch as the traverser did not actually make the assault himself, but was indicted from the fact of his having been considered as necessary. Though the officers were culpable for breaking open the house, yet the prisoner was equally so from the fact of his having been the instigator—through his misrepresentations the deed was done. Those acting as counsel on the part of the state were by no means sparing in their remarks touching the unwarrantable conduct of the traverser. They read him a lesson from which he may profit in future.

William P. Preston, Esq. acted as counsel for the accused. This learned gentleman is, beyond all doubt, faithful to his clients. He did as much as a man could do—no stone was left unturned.—But the majesty of law stood out in such bold relief, that the way-faring man though a fool could see written upon its very front the traverser's condemnation. The jury in a few moments gave in a verdict of "guilty." The amount of penalty was not announced by the court. It will be given to-morrow.

Mr. Lucas announced the death of Saml. Harden, Esq. a member of this Branch from the Ninth ward, and on his motion the following message was sent to the First Branch.

Gentlemen of the First Branch: We announce to you with deep regret the death of Samuel Harden, Esq. a member of this Branch from the Ninth ward, and respectfully propose the appointment of a joint select committee to frame such resolutions, and report them, as will best express the opinions of the councils relative to his merit. On the part of this Branch we have appointed Messrs Lucas, Reaney and Hook, as the committee.

By order, A. R. PENNINGTON, Cl'k.

The First Branch concurred in the above message, and appointed Messrs. J. T. Brown, Dallam and Holter as the committee on its part.

Mr. Lucas from the committee submitted the following resolutions, which were unanimously concurred in by both branches.

Resolved by the First and Second Branches of the City Council of Baltimore, That we have heard with deep regret of the death of Samuel Harden, Esq. member of the Second Branch of the City Council from the ninth ward.

Resolved, in testimony of our respect for the memory of the deceased, that the Councils immediate adjourn until Monday afternoon next.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing resolutions be signed by the presidents of the two branches, and transmitted to the family of the deceased.

The branch adjourned in accordance with the above resolutions.

FIRE. The alarm of fire last evening a little before 6 o'clock proceeded from the stable in the rear of the tavern of Mr. Hugh Kennedy, on Lombard street. The stable fronts in an alley running parallel to Lombard st, and was used by Dr. Hintze for his horse and carriages. The timely arrival of the fire companies prevented great damage. The roof of the building together with a quantity of hay was destroyed. Luckily the horses were out. There is but little doubt that is was the work of an incendiary—some months ago the same building was set fire to.

ANOTHER. The alarm about half past ten o'clock proceeded from the segar and tobacco establishment of Messrs. Edwards & Frailey, in Holliday street, between Market and Fayette. The fire originated from a stove which had been left very hot in the store. The flames were fortunately extinguished before any serious damage was sustained.

WONDERFUL EXHIBITION.

LEWIS, THE VIRGINIA DWARF, now at the Wheatfield Inn, entrance from Baltimore-st. This wonderful specimen of the human form was born at Soldier's Rest, Frederick county, Va. and is now 21 years of age. His stature ranks him with the lowest of his species on record, for he stands 31 inches only! With an ample chest, he also presents shoulders with the proportions of strength—and, as if to atone for his pigmy height, nature has supplied all his limbs with double joints. His countenance is manly and pleasing, and, for his opportunities, he evinces the possession of a mind of fair endowments. He has always enjoyed good health, and his activity is fully equal to the range of movement that could well be allowed to such a diminutive creature.

To the Naturalist, the Dwarf LEWIS recommends himself as a remarkable subject for philosophic observation—to the curious, he furnishes an object of singularly rare attraction—and all, who have the fortune to see him, must feel the force of the observation—

"What a wonderful thing is man!"

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough to a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

MURDER. Two colored boys, in the service of the Hon. Mr. Appleget, near Spotswood, N. J. some time since had a quarrel in the woods while they were cutting wood. The younger of the two about 15 years of age, threw his axe at the elder and inflicted a severe wound in the neck, by which he was killed. The murderer then hid the body in the leaves. It was discovered by accident a few days since, and the boy is now in jail awaiting his trial. He confessed having thrown the axe, but not with the intention of killing.

WATCH RETURNS. Eastern District, Feb. 9—Mary Pate was found in the street, intoxicated, and brought up.

Western District—Feb 9.—Theophilus Simpkins, U. S. A., was arrested for intoxication, by the Police. Fulton Smith was imprisoned for disturbing the peace. Margaret M'Gregor applied for lodgings.

McLEOD INDICTED. The Rochester Advocate of Thursday last states, on the authority of one of the witnesses, that a true bill had been found against McLeod for murder. The Democrat inclines to the opinion that this is what would be done rather than what had actually taken place. It appears to be generally conceded that he will be indicted.

An excitement against the Shakers prevails in Shirley, in consequence of their retaining two children against the wishes of their parents.—Whenever the father comes after the children it is said they are secreted; and at other times kept in such a situation that they cannot escape.

☞One dollar bills of the Fulton Bank, (N. Y.) altered to tens, are in circulation. They are easily detected, although the alteration is very ingenious.

MORE CONVICTIONS FOR MURDER. Henry Sisco, a colored man, about 22 years of age, was tried and convicted of murder in the first degree last week at Hackensack, N. J. Another colored man was indicted with him.

FIRE. On Saturday morning last a fire broke out in the cabinet shop of Mr. John Elliot, Topsham, Me. which destroyed the entire building with its contents, and a number of valuable sleighs.

On motion of Mr. Gaither, it was ordered that the Committee on the Constitution be instructed to inquire into the expediency of reporting a bill to alter the Constitution of the State so far as it imposes a limitation on the time that the Legislature is authorised to sit.

The editor of the Advertiser repeats that we have recommended lynch law against him. He knows it is as great a falsehood as ever was brought into the world. We have never recommended lynch law against him, though possibly we may have suggested that our fellow citizens ought, at some moment favorable to the purpose, and in imitation of an example set in another city, to put corn in his breeches pockets and let the hogs root him into the river.

SHOCKING! An Irish carman and his wife, attended the wake on Friday night, over the body of John Hand, whom Cliff killed. To do so, they left two twin infants, 14 months old, in the cradle at home; but, becoming intoxicated, they did not return home until morning, when they found their infants dead! The decision of the coroner's jury was, that they came to their death by cold and starvation.—Detroit Adv.

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one, that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and be worthy of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1.50 each.

AGENCY. HOUSES, FARMS, VACANT LOTS, GROUND RENTS, LANDS, &c. bought and sold on commission. SLAVES, for life or a term of years, bought or sold on commission, and the highest prices obtained. Persons having slaves, which they wish to dispose of, will do well to apply at this office before selling.

N. B. All letters addressed to this office (post paid) thankfully received and promptly attended to.

CONSENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from these objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains as aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

CONSUMPTION.

To Dr. SWAYNE.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences tood on the banks of the flowing tide,

And the blushing moonbeams threw
A radiance down o'er its shining depths
Of cool reflecting blue.

I gazed above on that sea of gems,
And fancied each silv'ry star
The soul of some blessed spirit freed,
Glitt'ring in glory there.

I peopled the sky with departed friends,
And called on each dear one's name,
And methought their voices answered me,
As the night-wind's music came.

Breathing soft whispers around my head,
Like a mourning harp-string's tone,
And I told my sorrows to the breeze,
As it floated sweetly on.

Now the glaring day-light makes me sad,
And I long for the night to come,
To hold sweet converse with the stars,
And dream of the lov'd ones gone.

THE SOFT ANSWER.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

'I'll give him law to his heart's content, the scoundrel!' said Mr. Singleton, walking backward and forward, in a state of angry excitement.

'Don't call harsh names, Mr. Singleton,' said Lawyer Trueman, looking up from the mass of papers before him, and smiling in a quiet, benevolent way, that was peculiar to him.

'Every man should be known by his true name. Williams is a scoundrel, and so he ought to be called!' responded the client with increasing warmth.

'Did you ever do a reasonable thing in your life when you were angry?' asked Mr. Trueman, whose age and respectability gave him the license to speak thus freely to his young friend, for whom he was endeavoring to arrange some business difficulty with a former partner.

'I can't say that I ever did, Mr. Trueman.—But now, I have good reasons for being angry; and that the language I use in reference to Williams is but the expression of a sober and rational conviction,' replied Singleton, a little more calmly.

'Did you pronounce him a scoundrel before you received his reply to your last letter,' asked Mr. Trueman.

'No, I did not. But that letter confirmed my previously formed impressions of his character.'

'But I cannot find in that letter any evidence proving your late partner to be a dishonest man. He will not agree to your proposed mode of settlement, because he does not see it to be the most proper way.'

'He won't agree to it, because it is an honest and equitable method of settlement, that is all! He wants to over-reach me, and is determined to do so if he can!' responded Mr. Singleton, still excited.

'There you are decidedly wrong,' said the lawyer. 'You have both allowed yourselves to become angry, and are both unreasonable, and, if I must speak plainly, I think you most unreasonable in the present case. Two angry men can never settle any business properly. You have very unnecessarily increased the difficulties in the way of a speedy settlement, by writing Mr. Williams an angry letter which he has responded to in a like unhappy temper. Now, if I am to settle this business for you I must write all letters that pass to Mr. Williams in future.'

'But how can you properly express my views and feelings?'

'That I do not wish to do, if your views and feelings are to remain as they now are, for anything like an adjustment of the difficulties under such circumstances, I should consider hopeless,' replied Mr. Trueman.

'Well, let me answer this letter, and after that, I promise that you shall have your own way.'

'No, I shall consent to no such thing. It is the reply to that letter which is to modify the negotiation for a settlement in such a way as to bring success or failure; and I have no idea of allowing you, in the present state of your mind, to write such a one as will most assuredly defeat an amicable arrangement.'

Singleton paused for some time, before making a reply. He had been forming in his mind a most cutting and bitter rejoinder to the letter just alluded to, and he was very desirous that Mr. Williams should have the benefit of knowing that he thought him a "tricky and deliberate scoundrel," with other opinions of a similar character. He found it, therefore, impossible to make up his mind to let the unimpassioned Mr. Trueman write this most important epistle.

'Indeed I must write this letter, Mr. Trueman,' he said. 'There are some things that I want to say to him, that I know you won't write. You don't seem to consider the position in which he has placed me by that letter, nor what is obligatory upon me as a man of honor. I never allow any man to reflect upon me, directly, or indirectly, without a prompt response.'

'There is, in the Bible,' said Mr. Trueman, 'a passage that is peculiarly applicable in the present case. It is this—A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger. I have found this precept, in a life that has numbered more than double your years, to be one that may be safely and honorably adopted in all cases. You blame Mr. Williams for writing you an angry letter, and are indignant at certain expressions contained therein. Now, is it any more right for you to write an angry letter, with cutting epithets, than it is for him?'

'But, Mr. Trueman—'

'I do assure you, my young friend,' said the lawyer, interrupting him, 'that I am acting in this case for your benefit, and not for my own; and, as your legal adviser, you must submit to my judgment, or I cannot consent to go on.'

'If I will promise not to use any harsh language, will you not consent to let me write the letter?' urged the client.

'You and I, in the present state of your mind, could not possibly come at the same conclusion in reference to what is harsh and what is mild,' said Mr. Trueman, 'therefore I cannot consent that you shall write one word of the proposed reply. I must write it.'

'Well, I suppose, then I shall have to submit. When will it be ready?'

'Come this afternoon, and I will give you the draft, which you can copy and sign.'

'In the afternoon Mr. Singleton came, and received the letter prepared by Mr. Trueman. It ran thus, after the date and formal address.

'I regret that my proposition did not meet your approval. The mode of settlement which I suggested was the result of a careful consideration of our mutual interests. Be kind enough to suggest to Mr. Trueman, my lawyer, any plan which you think will lead to an early and amicable adjustment of our business. You may rely upon my consent to it, if it meets his approbation.'

'Is it possible, Mr. Trueman, that you expect me to sign such a cringing letter as that!' said Mr. Singleton, throwing it down, and walking backward and forward with great irritation of manner.

'Well, what is your objection to it?' replied Mr. Trueman, mildly, for he was prepared for just such an exhibition of feelings.

'Objection! How can you ask such a question? Am I to go down on my knees to him, and beg him to do me justice? No!—I'll sacrifice every cent I've got in the world first, the scoundrel!'

'You wish to have your business settled, do you not?' asked Mr. Trueman, looking him steadily in the face.

'Of course I do!—Honorably settled!'

'Well, let me hear what you mean by an honorable settlement.'

'What I mean—'

The young man hesitated a moment, and Mr. Trueman said,

'You mean a settlement in which your interest shall be equally considered with that of Mr. Williams?'

'Yes, certainly. And that—'

'And that,' continued Mr. Trueman, 'Mr. Williams, in his settlement, shall consider and treat you as a gentleman.'

'Certainly I do. But that is more than he has done!'

'Well, never mind. Let what is past go for as much as it is worth. The principal point of action is in the present.'

'But I'll never send that mean, cringing letter, though.'

'You mistake its whole tenor. I do assure you, Mr. Singleton. You have allowed your angry feelings to blind you. You, certainly, carefully considered, before you adopted it, the proposed basis of a settlement, did you not?'

'Of course I did.'

'So the letter which I have prepared for you states. Now, as an honest and honorable man, you are, I am sure, willing to grant to him the same privilege which you asked for yourself, viz: that of proposing a plan of settlement. Your proposition does not seem to please him: now it is but fair that he should be invited to state how he wishes the settlement to be made. And in giving such an invitation, a gentleman should use gentlemanly language.'

'But he don't deserve to be treated like a gentleman. In fact, he has no claim to the title,' said the young man.

'If he has none, as you say, you profess to be a gentleman, and all gentlemen should prove by their actions and their words that they are gentlemen.'

'I can't say that I am convinced by what you say, but as you seem so bent on having it your own way, why, here, let me copy the thing and sign it,' said the young man, suddenly changing his manner.

'There now!' he added, passing across the table the brief letter he had copied, 'I suppose he'll think me a low-spirited fellow, after he gets that. But he's mistaken. After it's all over, I'll take good care to tell him, that it didn't contain my sentiments!'

Mr. Trueman smiled, as he took the letter, and went on to fold and direct it.

'Come to-morrow afternoon, and I think we'll have things in a pretty fair way,' he said, looking up with his usual pleasant smile, as he finished the direction of the letter.

'Good afternoon, Mr. Singleton,' he said, as that gentleman entered his office on the succeeding day.

'Good afternoon,' responded the young man. 'Well, have you heard from that milk and water letter of yours? I can't call it mine.'

'Yes, here is the answer. Take a seat, and I will read it to you,' said the old gentleman.

'Well, let's hear it.'

'DEAR GEORGE—I have your kind, reasonable, and gentlemanly note of yesterday, in reply to my harsh, unreasonable, and ungentlemanly one of the day before. We have both been playing the fool; but you are ahead of me in becoming sane. I have examined, since I got your note, more carefully, the tenor of your proposition for a settlement, and it meets my views precisely. My foolish anger kept me from seeing it before. Let our mutual friend, Mr. Trueman, arrange the matter, according to the plan mentioned, and I shall most heartily acquiesce. Yours, &c.'

'He never wrote that letter in the world!' exclaimed Singleton, starting to his feet.

'You know his hand writing, I presume,' said Mr. Trueman, handing him the letter.

'It's Thomas Williams' own hand, as I live!' ejaculated Singleton, on glancing at the letter. 'My old friend, Thomas Williams, the best natured fellow in the world!' he continued, his feelings undergoing a sudden and entire revolution. 'What a fool I have been!'

"And what a fool I have been!' said Thomas Williams, advancing from an adjoining room, at the same time extending his hand toward Singleton.

'God bless you my old friend!' exclaimed Singleton, grasping his hand. 'Why what has been the matter with us both?'

'My young friends,' said old Mr. Trueman, one of the kindest hearted men in the world, rising and advancing toward them. 'I have known you long, and have always esteemed you both. This pleasant meeting and reconciliation, you perceive is of my arrangement. Now let me give you a precept that will both make friends, and keep friends. It has been my motto through life; and I don't know that I have an enemy in the world. It is

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 10, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. On motion of Mr. Coad, ordered that the committee on grievances and courts of justice inquire into the expediency and mode of providing such a repeal and modification of the ordinance of Baltimore City as will relieve captains and owners of vessels from the tax now imposed upon articles placed on board of vessels at the wharves in Baltimore, and also to report such measures, if to them it seem expedient, as may relieve the sellers of wood from the evils growing out of the present system of renting out wharves to wood hucksters.

Mr. Graves asked and obtained leave to bring in a bill to prevent the issue or circulation of small notes.

Mr. Pressman reported a bill supplementary to the act for the despatch of business in Baltimore County Court, passed December session 1828, chap. 161.

Mr. Graves made a favorable report upon the bill from the Senate to alter and amend the Constitution and form of Government so far as to provide for the election of County Clerks and Registers of Wills immediately by the people, which was made the order of the day for Tuesday next.

The House proceeded to consider the order of the day, being the bill from the Senate, entitled a supplement to an act, entitled an act to incorporate the Trustees of the Poor of Baltimore City and County, and the amendments reported thereto from the Committee on Corporations. It was rejected by a vote of 23 yeas to 39 nays.

The bill from the Senate to amend the Constitution so far as relates to the power of the Legislature to grant Lotteries, passed at the last session, was rejected.

Mr. Seidenstricker presented the petition of R. Lemmon & Co. and others, asking that the dock in front of the State's property on Frederick street wharf may be deepened.

SENATE. The bills from the House to divorce John Gill and David Ritcher of Baltimore were rejected.

The bill to divorce Frances Smith was passed.

The bill from the House to incorporate St. Vincent of Paul's Benevolent Association of Baltimore was passed.

The bill to amend the Constitution of the State was passed.

A supplement to the bill of the present session incorporating the Baltimore and Potomac Steam Packet Company was passed.

TEMPERANCE PROCESSION.

Messrs. Editors: I believe it is not generally known, and therefore wish to inform the public through your paper, that the friends of Temperance in Baltimore intend having a GRAND PROCESSION on the 5th of April next, which day is the anniversary of the formation of the "WASHINGTON TEMPERANCE SOCIETY." It is designed to make this procession a splendid affair; and it is not to be confined to any one association, but to be a general matter. All the Temperance Societies of the city are expected to unite on the occasion—nay, more—it is in contemplation by the Washington Temperance Society, to publish a circular address, inviting all the friends of Temperance not only in Maryland, but throughout the entire United States, to be present and assist to swell the numbers on that day. From the fairest calculations, there is reason to expect that at least eight or ten thousand will be found in the cold water ranks in Baltimore on the 5th of April.

The procession will probably be in the forenoon. During the same day, the Washington Temperance Society contemplate laying the corner stone of their new and splendid Hall. At night it is proposed to have an illumination. In this last proposition I am confident all the temperance families of the city will unite; and I trust that many who have never joined the societies, will assist in promoting so joyous and blessed an occasion.

It is hoped that every Society in the city, whether old or recently formed—whether connected with the different churches or not—will make arrangements to be out on the 5th of April in all their strength. We expect the ladies too will be out in carriages. In the great temperance processions in London there have always been several hundred vehicles, filled with ladies.—Banners are already being prepared for several of the societies, and it is hoped each society will be provided with one or more, with appropriate designs and mottoes. COLD WATER.

NAVAL. A correspondent of the Norfolk Herald, an officer on board the U. S. ship St. Louis, under date of Callao, Oct. 13th, 1840, says:

"We had a 59 days' passage from Mazatlan to Valparaiso, whence we sailed Saturday fortnight and arrived here on yesterday week, all well—having sailed upwards of twenty thousand miles since we left this port last January. The Constitution and Shark left here a few weeks before our arrival, the former for Guayaquil and the latter for Payta: officers and crews of both vessels well. Callao is as dull as ever; although we were enlivened yesterday by witnessing the boats of the whale ship Maria in pursuit of a couple of whales. After a very exciting chase of two or three hours, both were captured. The New Bedford, another whaler, is also here, and we anticipate more sport before they leave.

"While at Mazatlan we were treated with marked attention and kindness by Capt. Broughton of H. B. M. frigate Samarang. He supplied us with a month's provisions, and, being an older cruiser on that coast, with copious sailing directions, and tendered to us the use of a well which he had dug on shore for watering. While we were at Monterey, Capt. Forrest included the English subjects in his demand upon Gov. Alvarado, for the release and safety of our country-men who had been arbitrarily deprived of their liberty and property: and when the prisoners, both English and American, arrived at Tepia, they were all liberated by Mr. Barron, the English Consul at that place.

"You have my permission to make public, in your own way, these facts; as such mutual acts of kindness may have a tendency to promote and strengthen the good understanding which ought to exist between the kindred people of the two countries, and which events now in progress threaten to destroy."

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE.

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M. reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	" Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	" Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	" Richmond	5 P.M.

" Petersburg	7 P.M.	" Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	" Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is more of a connection through sail, whilst it is evident that Foul Round Weather and Storms must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Barlieb's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

FRIDAY MORNING, Feb. 12, 1841.

CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO CANAL. A writer in yesterday's American over the signature of "A Tax Payer," urges in strong terms the propriety of making no more appropriations to the canal under present circumstances. He states the cost already incurred in its construction to be $10,000,000, and that $3,000,000 additional will be required to finish it to Cumberland, a distance of forty miles from its present termination. The finances of the state are certainly at a low ebb, and we are indebted to a large amount—it may be well, therefore, for the legislature to pause before it incurs an additional responsibility of $3,000,000. An onerous tax must be imposed upon the people to discharge the interest upon the present debt, and we doubt whether the benefit to result from the completion of the canal to Cumberland would compensate for the expenses incurred, at least until a cross-cut canal shall have been made to unite the work with the waters of the Patapsco. Without this cross-cut it seems to us that the advantages of the canal would be confined almost exclusively to the District of Columbia and to a few counties of this state through which it would pass. If the state were able to complete the canal and make the cross-cut at the same time, we should be glad to see the works proceed; but, under present embarrassment, the policy of plunging further into debt, and increasing the burthens of the people, may well be doubted. We have too many heavy works on hand at the same time, and we must breathe over some of them unless we would exhaust our strength.—There is no work over which we can pause with greater propriety than the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, inasmuch as it is likely to be the most unproductive until it can be extended to the city of Baltimore. We are not hostile to the work—by no means—but the state should not venture beyond its ability; and, as the canal has been abandoned to its fate by the general government, and by most of those who originally took an interest in the project, it is evident that Maryland alone is relied on for its completion. Before she is pledged to this, let us see that the bill now before congress, relinquishing the government (including the District) subscription, be passed into a law. This is just and reasonable.

SMALL NOTES. Mr. Graves has obtained leave to bring in a bill to prohibit the issue or circulation of small notes within the state of Maryland. This would seem to be a work of supererogation so far as concerns the banks, a law being already in existence prohibiting such issues by them; nor do we know that they have asked for its repeal. An act was passed during the present session authorising them to receive and pay out the notes or orders of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company below five dollars. Is it the design of Mr. Graves to repeal this act? He surely cannot intend to annul an act that was demanded by the almost unanimous voice of his constituents. What then is his object? Perhaps he only designs to prohibit the issue and circulation of notes for the fractional parts of a dollar. If this be his intention, and he can draft a bill that will be effectual, we shall be content. But this is a matter more easily suggested than accomplished. Were not all the recent shinplaster issues in direct violation of law? and yet who was punished for the transgression? Not an individual. And is it no likely that there will be imitators in defiance of any law which may be passed? If there be, then the community will have to choose between the small notes of the rail road company and those of private individuals, and no one can doubt the decision. We should be glad to see the banks pay out small change in specie; but if this cannot be, let us have no law which might confine the rail road to issues of one dollar and upwards. If we must have small notes, which we think inevitable, let them be of the best quality.

There are doubts of the constitutional power of the legislature to prohibit individual issues—and if the authority does not exist, their circulation can only be prevented by the action of the people. We believe that the resolution is general not to tolerate individual shinplasters, and hence the demand for an emission of small notes from the rail road company.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS. We should be glad to see uniformity in the time and mode of electing the electors of president and vice-president of the United States established, but particularly in the former. The elections should be held on the same day throughout the whole Union. It is well known that the result in one state, under the present system, influences that in another—but there is another and a greater evil which would be removed by designating the same day for the choice of electors in each state; we mean the transportation of voters from one state to another. Whether this has been done we will not undertake to say—but it can be done, and has been charged by each party against the other. If then, for no other cause than to prevent the possibility of having the electoral vote controlled by illegal voters, we would have the elections held on the same day in every state. We do not see that any valid objection can be urged against the passage of such a law by congress, for it is an object of the first importance to preserve elections in their utmost purity.

The legislature of Rhode Island has memorialized congress on this subject, and we hope that it will be acted upon, if not at the present session, before another presidential election.

☞ We are indebted to the polite attention of Solomon Hillen, Esq., for a copy of the Report of the Secretary of the Treasury on the operations of the Land Office.

PHILADELPHIA BANKS. The citizens of Philadelphia are acting prudently in regard to their banking institutions. They now see and acknowledge the impropriety of the law which compelled the banks to resume specie payments in an unprepared state; but they meet the evil consequences of that law with the most praiseworthy spirit.—Instead of increasing embarrassments by ill-timed censure, they have applied to the legislature to relieve the banks from their critical position by repealing the act forfeiting their charters. This is the course dictated by common sense and the public interest—for, if the banks were compelled to wind up their concerns under the law of last year, it would be ruinous to the community. This is not a party movement; for, however political capital might be made out of a clamor against the banks, neither party has embraced the opportunity, but have united their efforts to promote the common good. We like this spirit, and should be glad to see it adopted every where.

The suspension in Baltimore was the inevitable consequence of that in Philadelphia: our banks could not, with safety, continue to pay specie after those in Philadelphia had suspended. Thus situated, we should endeavor to act with the same prudence which characterizes our neighbors; and, instead of denouncing our banks for doing what they could not prevent, and inflaming the minds of people against them, we should unite to sustain their credit, and to advance the interests of our city.

The banks of Baltimore as well as those of Philadelphia made the effort, in good faith, to continue specie payments; but, from uncontrolable causes, those of the latter city were placed in the power of eastern brokers, who used their advantage to crush them. Their notes were designedly collected, and a combined and successful movement against them made. "There is no friendship in trade;" and the banks of Baltimore had no right to expect to escape the assaults of combinations than those of Philadelphia, though, perhaps, to a less extent. We say, therefore, that the suspension in Baltimore was called for by a prudent regard for the interests of the banks and of the community at large.

CORN LAWS OF ENGLAND. To our minds it appears the worst imaginable policy to starve one portion of the community that another may thrive; and yet such is the effects of the corn laws of England. No importation of bread stuffs is permitted unless wheat averages a price at which it cannot possibly be purchased by the laboring class of people. In a document quoted by the Philadelphia Inquirer it is stated, "that the weavers of Glasgow, Norwich, Carlisle, and other places, gain by the hardest and most continuous labor, only from seven to nine shillings per week, which is not enough to support their families. And yet, it is added, these very men must pay, in order to eat a morsel of bread, the sum of 26s. 8d. per quarter on wheat." This is a sad picture, but it affords but a faint idea of the distress which must exist in consequence of the great disproportion between the prices of labor and bread. It cannot be surprising that, under such oppressive circumstances, there should be manifestations of discontent and convulsion; indeed it would be marvellous if it were otherwise, for we cannot conceive of any situation more oppressive to the spirits, and more likely to beget a recklessness of consequences, than to be unable, by the hardest labor, to afford food to those who are dependent upon us for support. Various efforts have been made to procure a repeal or modification of the corn laws, but in vain—it is adhered to amidst the groans of an oppressed people, and the cries of starvation. It enables the wealthy landholder to "put money in his purse," though it is extorted from the hard earnings of the poor, whom it sends supperless to bed. Such are the blessings which result from being ruled by kings, lords and commons.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT. It is stated that the president elect, General Harrison, visited Mr. Van Buren on Wednesday last, at the White House, and was cordially received. He accepted an invitation to dine with the president yesterday, when a number of gentlemen of both parties were expected to be present. This is the right spirit, and as long as it is preserved our country will be safe. How different is this from the intolerance of minor partizans, who permit their political differences to interfere with their social relations. We hope that this interchange of courtesy and civility between the president and president elect may moderate party rancor, and teach men the distinction between political and personal hostilities. Mr. Van Buren and General Harrison, although opposing candidates, have met as gentlemen and patriots should meet; not with a scowl upon their countenances or a hand upon their daggers, but on terms of amity and sociability; the one inviting, and the other frankly accepting the invitation, to partake of hospitality. We honor men who can thus act—who can thus rise above the narrow, contracted sphere of party, and despise the littleness which would keep them aloof from each other because they happened to belong to different sides. This is the spirit which should animate every man; and which, if more generally diffused, would soften party asperity, and make our political disputes the friendly discussions of brothers.

NATIONAL THEATRE, WASHINGTON. Mr. E. Forrest appears in his favorite character of Spartacus, in the Gladiator, to-night. Those who are fond of the terrific will be gratified with the play; there are some fine scenes in it, and some fine acting too.

EMBEZZLEMENTS. Several persons having charge of the custom house stores in New York, have lately been arrested on a charge of purloining goods from the buildings under their care. Two negroes named Brown and Burly were taken, but afterwards bailed by some white friends. The matter is now undergoing an investigation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11, 1841.

In the Senate, this morning, the consideration of the bill establishing a general bankrupt law, was resumed, the question pending being on the motion of Mr. Hubbard to lay it on the table.—This motion was withdrawn, and after some remarks from Mr. Davis, the Senate went into an executive session.

In the House of Representatives the first business in order was the bill for purchasing the patent right of the "safety valve" invented by Major Raub. After some debate of a desultory character, the further consideration of the bill was postponed to Monday next.

The pension bill was then taken up, the question pending being on the amendment appropriating $100,000 for the benefit of such Indians in Florida as may surrender themselves.

Mr. Davis, of Indiana, having the floor, spoke at some length against the amendment. As the war had hitherto been carried on by force of arms, he thought it the duty of government to continue hostilities until the Indians should be brought to unconditional submission. He thought it beneath the dignity of government to buy them out.

After some brief remarks from Mr. Briggs, in favor of the amendment, Mr. Thompson modified it by prohibiting the furnishing of any arms, etc. to the Indians until they should have arrived on the western bank of the Mississippi river. The amendment thus modified was agreed to.

The committee then rose, reported the bill as amended, and the House having concurred in it, the bill was read a third time and passed.

The House then went into committee of the whole, and took up the bill making appropriation for the civil and diplomatic expenses of government for 1841.

A long debate arose on the item appropriating an extra $25,000 for the contingent expenses of the House and Senate. Some astounding disclosures were made of imposition practised upon the House, in relation to lithographing, coloring maps, etc.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

VOLUNTEER CORPS. A meeting of the officers of the Fifth Regiment Maryland Volunteers took place on Wednesday evening at the quarters of Col. Hickman, and a number of resolutions were passed which, it is to be hoped, will have a tendency to infuse a proper spirit into the other regiments, and cause a revival of the old feeling which at one time placed our military on a footing with the best in the country. The fact is, there is too much apathy existing among the young men of this city—they should remember that it is to the military, as well as the fire department, that the property holder looks for safety—should the scenes of 1834 be acted over again, and Heaven forbid that they should, how would the laws and the people be protected? It is the consciousness of an existing safe-guard that makes the peaceable portion of the community strong, and intimidates the evil-disposed. The aspect of affairs requires that every city should possess a sufficiency of well drilled and disciplined corps—should there be an outbreak on the Canada frontier, a thing by no means improbable, our government must come in direct collision with that of Great Britain, and for the purpose of national defence, we have a standing army of 6 or 7000! It is obvious that the militia will prove the almost entire dependance of the government, and even they will present a feeble resistance to the well-disciplined troops of England, if the corps are made up of raw and inexperienced men.

The officers of the Fifth Regiment, we understand, have formed themselves into a company, for the purpose of studying tactics practically.—This is right—and we now hope to see full ranks and well drilled companies.

THE WEATHER. At it again! Old blue-nose made his appearance yesterday and placed his icy signet on all the gutters and puddles of the city. The sudden change from comparatively mild weather to bitterly cold, caused noses in many instances to run faster than legs. Aching joints and rheumatic twitches became suddenly fashionable, and the keen Nor-wester had no more mercy on us poor miserable sinners, than if we had been withered blades of grass upon a mountain heath. Our friends at a distance may depend on our giving them the earliest information of the breaking up of winter in this quarter, at present we have nothing more to say on the subject.

WATCH REPORTS. Eastern District, Feb. 10. A clean bill of morality.

Middle District—Godfrey Newbury was arrested on Wednesday night charged with assaulting and beating his wife; in the morning committed to jail by Justice Gorsuch. Jacob Foos was brought in for being drunk and riotous. Otho Barron was admitted to lodgings, and in the morning left for the police to send to the Alms-house.

Western District—John Coffee, was found drunk and disturbing the peace. Two watchmen were placed on extra duty, at the 'Seminary.'

ARREST. A mulatto, named Charles Howard, was on Wednesday arrested by officer Campbell, charged with assaulting and beating Sarah Conner, a white woman. He was taken before Justice Schaeffer, and gave security in the sum of $100 for his appearance at the City Court.

POISONING. In the parish of St. Helena, Louisiana, a scoundrel, name not mentioned, lately attempted to poison a Mr. West and his whole family, by putting arsenic in a barrel of flour.—Mrs. West has since died from the effects of the poison, and a negro woman is not expected to recover. The object of the villain, who is said to be a connexion, was, that he might inherit the property. He has been arrested, and is now in jail.

CITY COURT, Feb. 11, 1841.—Present, Judges Brice, Worthington and Nisbet. Sentence was pronounced by the court in the case of Charles Coyle, which we reported yesterday. The traverser was fined $10 and costs in one case, and $5 and costs each in the two others.

A number of petty cases were brought up, but of no particular interest. Their trials being either removed or postponed.

We would merely remark that the law as it now stands, in reference to the removal of criminal cases to adjoining counties, is lamentably imperfect. Every loafer and common scoundrel almost, who sees fit, upon being asked whether ready for trial or not, answers in the negative, giving as a reason that justice cannot be obtained here. We were forcibly struck with a case in point which came up to-day. A colored girl, about 16, a most miserable, filthy, idiotic looking wretch, was put upon trial, charged with stealing a few articles to the amount, probably, of 40 cents. On being asked if ready for trial, she answered no, and stated her intention to remove her case to Belle Air, thus putting both state and witnesses to a serious expense and loss of time, for the sole purpose, probably, of deferring condemnation, escaping just punishment or perhaps of getting a ride in the country. If an impartial trial cannot be given to such a creature in this court, where under heaven can she get it? An innocent man will never shrink from justice, while the guilty invariably do. We are of opinion that some more substantial reasons should be required for permission to remove a criminal case than the mere affidavit of the accused, who, if guilty, regards the solemnity of an oath about as much as an elephant does the life of a grasshopper.

Henry Myers, a German, was put upon trial, charged with stealing. He could not speak the English language. J. Storm, Esq. was called as interpreter. Through him he signified his desire to remove his case to Belle Air, which, upon making the requisite affidavit, was granted. In this case was manifested the imperious necessity of having a German interpreter for our courts of justice, and a better one than Mr. Storm we imagine could not be found.

William Downs was placed at the bar, indicted for stealing sundry tools, the property of F. Mitchell, butcher, from a stall in Lexington Market. The evidence not being sufficient, Downs was declared not guilty.

William Ives was arraigned, charged with an assault and battery upon the person of John Winett. The particulars of the matter gave no extraordinary developements.

Abraham Howard was put upon trial, charged by the state with stealing four bank notes, the property of William Harding. His case was removed.

Assault and battery. William Gross, and a fellow named Eccleston, were brought up, charged with an assault upon the person of Jacob Keilholtz. The former was acquitted, and the latter fined $20 and sentenced to three months imprisonment. Eccleston, in company with a person named Bender, were likewise tried and found guilty for an assault made upon the person of Samuel Merritt. Eccleston, for this offence, was sentenced to three months more imprisonment. Bender was also found guilty for an assault on an individual named Butler, for which, together with the above offence, he was fined $50 and six months imprisonment.

The court adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

SMALL NOTES. The article in yesterday morning's Sun in relation to small notes is in perfect harmony and strict consistency with the course of that paper for some years past, and evinces such a total ignorance of the best interests of this community—such an obstinate adherence to a favorite theory—and such a reckless contempt for public opinion, that it cannot be passed over in silence. When the suspension took place in October, 1839, and petitions from all quarters were presented to the City Council, praying that honorable body to issue small notes of the corporation, in which the public had unlimited confidence, and which had served, during the former suspension, as a wholesome currency, what then was the course of the Sun? Precisely what it is now—asserting, and repeating the assertion, "that there were plenty of small silver coins under a dollar to answer all the purposes of the community"—and what was the consequence? Why, this kind of clamor, together with party spirit mingling itself with the question, (with which it had nothing to do,) threw open the door to a flood of worthless issues, which brought distress and ruin upon many an innocent and unwary sufferer—and no one appeared to be more horror struck at these things than the editor of that paper, if we may judge from his pathetic lamentations over them the time they occurred.

He talks now about "sub-treasuries." He had one of these himself—and when he wanted to carry his point against the corporation notes, he invited all who were in want of change to call at his office. But how long did this sub-treasury hold out? Not one week—for a friend of mine who took the Sun requested the collector that when he called the next Saturday for the week's pay, to bring the change, (not in silver, but in small notes,) and when he presented himself he had not as much, nor could not get it. And yet in defiance of his own experience, regardless of the losses which have been incurred by worthless issues, and in contempt of the city authorities, this editor persists in his attempt to defeat the issue of a currency in which every body has unlimited confidence. Surely he does not want to see the city again inundated with worthless shinplasters. No—he is a hard money man; but in the present situation of affairs, it is perfectly absurd to talk about that matter—the public have been gulled long enough about yellow boys shining through their purses—they know at this time how to appreciate such slang. If the Sun man had $100,000 of small change in his sub-treasury, and put it in circulation, it would find its way before forty-eight hours into the hands of the money-changers, and would be no permanent relief to the community.

The question is not whether we will have a metallic or a paper currency—no doubt if we had our choice we would all prefer the former—but in the present emergency the question is whether we will have the issues of the Baltimore and Ohio rail road—secured by the whole property of the city—or the irresponsible issues of self constituted bankers, some of whom can hardly sign their names, and others are totally insolvent. I am in favor of the rail road, the arguments of the Sun to the contrary notwithstanding.

WONDERFUL EXHIBITION.

LEWIS, THE VIRGINIA DWARF, now at the Wheatfield Inn, entrance from Baltimore-st. This wonderful specimen of the human form was born at Sutsier's Rest, Frederick county, Va. and is now 21 years of age. His stature ranks him with the lowest of his species on record, for he stands 31 inches only! With an ample chest, he also presents shoulders with the proportions of strength—and, as if to atone for his pigmy height, nature has supplied all his limbs with double joints. His countenance is manly and pleasing, and, for his opportunities, he evinces the possession of a mind of fair endowments. He has always enjoyed good health, and his activity is fully equal to the range of movement that could well be allowed to such a diminutive creature.

To the Naturalist, the Dwarf LEWIS recommends himself as a remarkable subject for philosophic observation—to the curious, he furnishes an object of singularly rare attraction—and all, who have the fortune to see him, must feel the force of the observation—

"What a wonderful thing is man!"

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

HALLO, YOU CHAP! Where did you buy them BOOTS? I see your feet appear to be dry and comfortable, though the day is snowy and bad—indeed my own Boots leak and are otherwise disagreeable, while yours appear so much to the contrary. Where did you buy them at, I must have a pair like them? I bought them of WILLIAM H. BANGS, on Baltimore street, No. 79½. His Boots are not only well made, but much cheaper than you can get them elsewh ere. fe10 co2w

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

FROM TEXAS. Galveston papers to the 26th of January have been received at New Orleans. A Mr. Zebediah Payne has been arrested in Galveston, charged with the murder of one Coltare, in Franklin county, Tenn. He stands committed until a reasonable time is allowed the authorities of the United States to make a demand for him. A letter from Matamoras, dated December 25th, states that Gonzales, a Mexican captain, who took possession of the sloop at Corpus Christi, and took off two men, has been condemned to be shot. The expedition against the Indians on the upper Brazos, is in a fair way to be fully raised and equipped. The troops were to rendezvous at Nashville on the 25th January. The campaign was not to exceed three weeks.

We were inquiring the way to the Clipper office in the Railroad depot at Baltimore on Saturday morning, when a newsboy assured us, upon his honor, that we would not have time to go up there. We acquiesced, and purchased for a bit the Clipper.—N. Y. Planet.

Should have been happy to have been honored with a call from you and all your "little responsibilities." You would have found us up to our ears in newspapers, like a child in a confectioner's shop, doubtful which of the choice bits to select. By the bye, did you lighten the pockets of any one on the Rail Road?

ALTERED NOTES. Notes of that swindling concern, the Commercial Bank of Millington, (Md.,) are in circulation, altered so as to read New York in place of Millington. Washington Adams is cashier. Look out for them.

ELSSLER AT HAVANA. The success of Elssler at Havana is represented by a correspondent of an evening paper, to have been tremendous. Seats in the pit commanded $3; and with every night's performance the enthusiasm for the artiste increased.

PRESENTATION OF A SWORD. The Legislative Council of Florida have resolved to present Lieut. Col. Harney with a sword, for his services in that territory against the Indians.

FIRE. The distillery of Mr. Geo. Hain, of Susquehanna township, about four miles from Harrisburg, was, with its contents, destroyed by fire. Loss 1000 dollars.

HORRIBLE MURDER AND SUICIDE. A man named Williams, who was committed to the jail of Pike Co. Ill., for having shot and killed another man, recently sent for his wife and children under the pretence of a desire to see them. He cut his wife's throat soon after her entrance of the jail, and then his own, so they survived only a few minutes. It is supposed that he intended to murder his children also, had not the cries of the woman, by alarming the jailor, induced him to despatch himself, before he had carried his plan into full effect.—Louisville Gaz. 6th.

WESTERN FISHERIES. The growing importance of the Lake fisheries may be judged of by the following statement of the Detroit Advertiser. That paper says "the amount of White Fish, Trout and Siskavet, taken in Lakes Superior, Michigan, Huron, and on the Detroit River, last season, was over thirty thousand barrels; of which, 1950 barrels were taken on the Detroit River; 600 at the head of Hog Island, and 800 on Goose Isle."

SERIOUS DISASTER. We understand that five boats, laden with Pig metal, from Pattonsburg, were sunk in passing the Balcony Falls on Thursday last.—Three of the boatmen belonging to Mrs. Shields of Amherst county, were drowned.

A COLD WATER HOG. Mr. Joseph Akerman, of Newburyport, N. H. has killed a hog twenty months old, weighing 552 pounds, raised entirely on cold water and corn, never having eaten any cooked or warm food.

LIBERAL. Mrs. Ceristian Baker, of Boston, has bequeathed to the Am. B. C. F. M. and to the American Education Society, equally, an estate worth probably forty or fifty thousand dollars; to the Am. B. Society two thousand dollars, and to the Am. Tract Society at Boston one thousand dollars.

MCLEOD GUARDED. A guard of militia volunteers, is stationed near the jail in Lockport, every night, to prevent the possibility of McLeod's escape.—Rochester Advertiser, Feb. 3.

A FIGHT. A fight took place at St. Louis on the 30th ult. between a carpenter named Hale and another man. The latter drew a pistol, when Hale drew a fire poker and levelled his opponent, fracturing his skull seriously. It is thought the man will die of the wound.

THE TIGRIS. The libel for forfeiture (says the Boston Post) brought by Midshipman Jackson, in the name of Lieutenant Matson, the captor, was, on Saturday, fully dismissed by Judge Davis, the party having failed to enter into the required stipulations.

CHURCH ROBBERY. The St. Luke's Episcopal Church, in Germantown, was broken open on Wednesday night of last week and robbed of pew carpets, cushions, prayer books, &c. The most valuable of the portable property of the church is always removed after evening service, as the church had been several times entered for the same purpose.

DEATH BY DROWNING. A Mr. Myers, an old German resident of Cincinnati, and the head of a respectable family, was found drowned in the canal, near the bridge, Main street. He had been missing for upwards of a week, and is supposed to have fallen in accidentally.

HOSEA J. LEVIS. The Philadelphia Standard says information has been received in that city, that Levis, the absconding cashier of the Schuylkill Bank, had been arrested by agents of the Bank of Kentucky, and was on his way, in custody, to the north.

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one, that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and be worthy of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1.50 each.

AGENCY. HOUSES, FARMS, VACANT LOTS, GROUND RENTS, LANDS, &c. bought and sold on commission. SLAVES, for life or a term of years, bought or sold on commission, and the highest prices obtained. Persons having slaves, which they wish to dispose of, will do well to apply at this office before selling.

N. B. All letters addressed to this office (post paid) thankfully received and promptly attended to.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FITS, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains as aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. AN ATTACK of the "PILES" may be positively prevented by using (when the premonitory symptoms are felt) the celebrated HAYS' LINIMENT. CONSUMPTION.

☞ Consumption, that fell Destroyer! More Proofs of the efficacy of Doctor SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP of WILD CHERRY, in relieving afflicted Mankind.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences.

THE MAN WHO BURNT JOHN ROGERS.

A THRILLING STORY.

On board of one of the ships sent out by Walter Raleigh under the patronage of Queen Elizabeth, to make discoveries along the North American coast, was a passenger, of a singular and melancholy aspect, who, from the first moment of departure, was regarded by all the company with eyes of doubt and suspicion. There was a settled gloom upon his countenance, mingled with an expression that seemed sinister and malign, at the same time that it was timorous; and there was a restlessness and uneasiness in his deportment and gait which it was disagreeable for one who noted him to observe. He would sometimes start, when there was neither sound nor sight nor other cause of agitation. Sometimes he was seen, as darkness was descending over the waters, to conceal himself near the ship's stern, or among ropes and coils of cable; on which occasions he would start and turn pale, as if detected in guilty musings, or would assume a savage aspect, if he wished to destroy the intruder on his stolen privacy. The horrors of a guilty conscience seemed evidently to possess him. It seemed as if its workings had given an unnatural appearance of premature age. The lines of his face and the furrows of his brow were deeply impressed, and a morbid imagination might almost trace, in the dusky red characters of the latter, the thunder-scars of the fallen angels. His hair, in some places, had turned completely grey. And yet, on the whole, he seemed not to have numbered more than forty years.

He entered the vessel, under the general invitation, unknown to any of the ship's company.—A rumor was soon current that his assumed name was fictitious, and that he had done some deed which rendered him odious among mankind. His crime was variously surmised, and among other things, it was whispered that he had been an executioner. There were in that ship many desperadoes, and many who were flying from justice at home for crimes which in any country would have made them infamous. But no man inquired into or cared for his neighbor's character, though notoriously bad. This man alone, convicted by his peculiar and disagreeable physiognomy and manner, was the mark of aversion to all his fellow voyagers. The awkward attempts which he made, during the first few days of their voyage, to form acquaintance, met with such unpromising reception, that he desisted, and became uniformly silent. The women passengers avoided his glance, or looking at him askance, with a mingled expression of curiosity and horror, and at night stifled the cries of their children, by telling them that the Strange Man was coming. At meal-times, a solitary corner became his own by prescription, where his food was given and received in silence; and at night he retired to a couch, from the vicinity of which the occupants of the adjacent dormitories had removed; as they said his motions, groans and cries prevented them from sleeping. The sailors regarded him with a superstitious dislike, as the Jonas of their vessel, and avoided, or coarsely repulsed him, when he drew near them at their work. He frequently overheard their comments on his situation, and their surmises as to the cause of his revolting appearance, and the disgust it excited; which were all, however various, alike disgraceful to him.

Thus, on the bosom of the ocean, and within the narrow prison of a ship, without friend or counsellor, or the power of vindicating himself, (for who can fight single-handed with prejudice?) among hundreds of his fellow beings, men of like passions with himself, this wretched exile found himself the focal object of aversion, hatred and disgust. He seemed to be in the situation of a guilty ghost; more tormented in its unnatural exposure to the living world, than in its congenial hell; or like some of the prodigies with which the superstitions of different ages have teemed, like one who had been bitten by a rabid wolf, or who, having had his own veins sucked by a visitant from the charnel house, had become himself possessed by the horrible appetite for blood. He was like the first born Cain, bearing an obvious but inexplicable mark, which was at once the stamp of his guilt and his protection from the death which he coveted; or like the Jew who insulted our divine Redeemer, as he passed on to his closing passion, branded with the indelible stigma, which men trembled at and fled from. But the first murderer and the wandering Israelite had the world before them, with its solitudes and lurking places, where no human countenance could obtrude, with its expression of scorn or fear or detestation. This man was tied to his stake, with a tether whose shortness only allowed him to make idle and maddening efforts to hide himself from the many hundred eyes, that glanced distrustfully and with loathing upon him. The Hindoo who has lost his caste, can mingle with others, who, however despised by millions around them, at least form a community and fellowship of misery. But this man was alone; and the hatred of all his persecutors, which he gave them back in return for their aversion, was silently consuming his heart.

There was, however, a young man, named Rogers, among the company, whose sympathy for the desolate state of this individual overcame the repugnance, which, in common with the others, he could not help feeling. He had, once or twice, made an effort, when none observed him, to break through the sphere of repulsion with which the lonely man had become invested. But the latter, supposing his object was derision or insult, avoided his looks and retreated from his advance. Rogers, however, had marked him, when he had apparently thought himself secure from notice. He had observed that he wore a thin shirt of coarse hair, under his upper garments, and had seen him in the attitude of prayer, telling his beads. He naturally concluded, that the source of so much anguish was some dreadful and unforgiven crime, for which he was undergoing penance.

The weather, which had long been threatening in appearance, now indicated an approaching storm; and the symptoms increased in terror and in certainty. A tremendous gale rendered it impossible for the ship to carry any canvas: and night came on with tenfold darkness. The commander of this vessel, now separated from the others, was in the utmost perplexity; and the ship was rolling and driving under bare poles, at the mercy of the tempest. At first a murmur, and soon a shout was heard among the crew that the strange man should be brought forth and thrown overboard.

Roused by the clamor and the sound of his name, reiterated amidst the uproar, the unfortunate being sprung from his troubled slumbers and rushed upon deck. He trembled in every joint and fibre; his hair rose in distinct bristles; and his eyes, after wandering wildly, fixed in an intense gaze, that spoke of expected evil, dreadful and inevitable. It seemed as if he had been summoned to reveal to the assembled universe, the secret that overburthened his heart, and to receive the forfeit of some unpardonable sin, among the hootings and carnings of mankind. No one approached him, who regarded his countenance by the fitful light of the lanterns; but those immediately before him shrunk backward; under the overpowering influence of supernatural terror. Two stout seamen, however, sprang from behind, and were hurrying him rapidly towards the gangway. He was urged along so speedily, that he made no resistance until on the verge of destruction. The ship rolled downward on the side whence he was about to be precipitated; and a ruddy flash which streamed from a lantern held near the spot, fell upon the troubled waste beyond.—They were on the summit of an immeasurable mountain wave; and the wretch looked downward and downward into infinite darkness; while stretching high above, before him, another advancing Alp of waters was impending over the gulf, which was to be to him the abyss of eternity. He uttered one long shrill and piercing shriek, and clung, in the agony of his struggle, so firmly to his conductors, that they in vain endeavored to shake him off; but when they had pushed him from his foothold, he adhered, with the tenacity of despair, to the grips he had taken of each of them, and was thus suspended over the yawning shades below. One was advancing with a cutlass, to sever him from his tormentors and from life, when the vessel, shifting its position, threw all three backward. His grasp relaxed; he fell, as if exanimate, and rolled against the mast. The two men, having sprung again on their feet, were kicking him towards the opposite quarter, when Rogers, who had been standing near, interrupted them, and arrested the body of their intended victim in its progress. The whole scene had passed in a few moments; but in that brief interval the poor Jonas of the ship had passed through all the bitterness of death. Rogers now remonstrated with the seamen, but to no purpose. In vain he represented that the man had an equal right with themselves, to the precarious protection which the ship yet yielded them; and that they might one day be called to account for it; and that, though they should escape from human tribunals, they must eventually, and might perhaps in a few moments, follow this now living being, who had never offended them, to the last common audit, to answer for their usurpation of the attribute of God.

His intercession would have been altogether ineffectual, had not the commander himself at that moment appeared, and restored order by directing the execution of some new manœuvre. While the attention of the men was thus diverted, Rogers dragged the insensible being down to his couch, and deposited him there in darkness and temporary safety. He opened his eyes, which fixed, for a moment, on his deliverer; then, turning on his face, he enveloped himself in his covering, and lay coiled in the farthest corner of the recess which had been allotted him to sleep in.

The storm abated, and courage and confidence returned to the crew. On the day following the night of his jeopardy, the stranger being crawled from his lurking place, unobserved, until he suddenly made his appearance in his usual place, at the hour of dining. His danger on the preceding night was not generally known; but the company looked at him with a creeping sensation of superstitious awe, when they saw that his hair was turned completely white. His lower jaw seemed to have dropped. His head was bowed low over the trencher, from which, with trembling hands, he took his allotted fare. Silence for some time prevailed in the cabin; and when the spell was passing away, the speakers addressed each other in an under tone, that sounded unnaturally to themselves, rebuked as it was by the fearful dread that fell on upon them. From a furtive glance which he threw towards him, Rogers thought that the object of so much terror recognized him as having been his preserver. He soon took an opportunity, unobserved, of beckoning to him, and the man followed him to a retired corner. Not without some emotion, Rogers requested him to meet him, at midnight, on the quarter deck. 'I will, sir,' replied the man: 'I believe I owe you my life. Would to God I had never incurred the debt. May I know the name of one who at any rate meant to befriend me?' 'Rogers.'—At this word the man recoiled. His limbs seized with a sudden paralysis, and he was only sustained from sinking by a projecting timber. 'I know you not,' said Rogers, 'you never did me any injury: I may do you some good. Remember your appointment.' So saying, he left him.

Whether curiosity or humanity had the most influence with the young man in seeking this interview, is a question which, probably, he did not ask himself. Whatever was the original motive, the former independent was now exceedingly strong. He determined to gain from the stranger a confession of the cause of his situation—and though it could not possibly interest him, though it might involve him in a troublesome confidence, or stamp on his memory some disagreeable picture with which his imagination might ever after be haunted, though the supposed possession of the man's secret, or even a discovery of their private confidence might render him obnoxious to the dislike of his companion,—he still felt impatient until the hour should come which was to gratify his desire of penetrating this mystery. Such is the disease of the mind, however denominated, or by whatsoever cause excited, inseparably connected with the thirst for knowledge. Eve could not have disbelieved the warning which she heard from the lips of Omnipotence; that evil however darkly apprehended as to its nature, must follow the breach of divine probation; and yet she plucked and ate, and death came into the world.

[To be concluded in our next.]

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Lines—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M. reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M. "	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M. "	Fred'ksburg	10 A.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M. "	Richmond	5 P.M.

" Petersburg	7 P.M. "	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M. "	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M. "	Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Foul Rough Weather!! and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

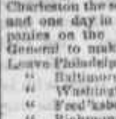
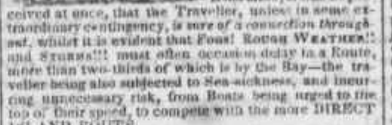
READ AND BE NOT HUMBUGGED.



The friends and old customers of the subscribers will please to bear in mind that we do not, nor do we intend selling HATS in the Maryland Arcade again, and if any of our patrons are not aware of our removal, and should again visit there with a desire to purchase a Hat of KEEVIL'S Manufacture, they will be deceived, as we have no connexion with any concern whatever, excepting our only establishment, No. 66½ BALTIMORE STREET, where, by unremitting attention to business, and manufacture of our Hats, we hope to merit a continuance of the liberal support of the public. Our prices are well known, and are as follows: Fine Russia Hats for $2.50, of the same quality as those selling elsewhere for $3. Also, beautiful Silk Hats on Russia bodies for only $2.50, actually worth $4. We make our own Hats and warrant them to be first rate, at KEVIL'S well known Store, No. 66½ Baltimore street, opposite Tripsett's alley, between Gay and Holliday-sts. So call in for first rate



Weariness of Hats, this is no humbug or puff, the fact of the subscriber's being their own Manufacturers, who perform most of the labor with their own hands, and being at a low rent, their economical habits of living, and cash system of doing business, are sufficient reasons for their being enabled to sell at such unprecedented low prices—and knowing, from experience, as they do, that small profits and quick returns are most advantageous in the end—don't forget to call at

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

EXTRAVAGANCE. The discussions in the house of representatives indicate that the clerk of the house has been most profuse in his appropriations of the contingent fund, and that there has been great misapplication of the public money in the articles of stationery, &c. At the last session the extravagant contracts of the clerk were the subject of investigation by a special committee. We have no doubt that abuses exist, and that they will be continued until proper measures to correct them shall be adopted by the house. We are glad that members have got into an economical humor, and are disposed to curtail useless expenditures. It is high time; and we hope that when they have cut down the clerk to the proper dimensions, they will extend their attention to themselves, and see whether by a "reform" in their proceedings they cannot "retrench" in the public expenses. How many useless speeches have the people paid for during the last and present sessions? Will some of the business men of the house figure out the amount? We will venture to guess, that the sum thus foolishly thrown away during the above period would go far towards building and equipping a first rate steam frigate; and yet it has been spent on wind. How plain we can discern the mote in our brother's eye, and yet how blind are we to the beam in our own. This is, perhaps, owing to the frailty of human nature. Men are naturally blind to their own faults, however keen-sighted they may be to discern those of others. But it is the duty of the press to set those right whom it finds stumbling in error: we therefore take the liberty to hint, that, for every lash applied to the back of the clerk, two should be laid on the shoulders of the bellows-blowers of the house. We do not mean to intimate that the clerk should be spared if guilty of impropriety. No—he should be held to a strict accountability, and made to comprehend the difference between the use and the abuse of a trust—and this is precisely what we would have also forcibly impressed upon the minds of members, so that the "still, small voice" of reason may be occasionally heard amidst the war and tumult of passion and folly.

RIGHT ABOUT. It is said that many of the present office-holders have suddenly made the discovery that they are Whigs, and have thrown up their caps for General Harrison. There may have been many Whigs kept in office by Mr. Van Buren, and we hope that his successor will not be less liberal; but we sincerely trust that no man who renounces his party from the base motive of retaining office, will be continued. We are sure that such truckling knavery cannot recommend them to the favorable consideration of the President elect. Frank himself, he will despise duplicity in others—he will not, therefore, lend a favorable ear to those who would sing, with the vicar of Bray,

"For whatsoever king may reign,
I'll be the vicar of Bray, sir."

These sudden metamorphoses are well enough on the stage, where it is the business of the player to seem what he is not; but in real life they are contemptible. We cannot admit a distinction between political and moral honesty. When a man unites himself to a party, it should be from principle, and then he will not change sides except when convinced that he has been in error. But of all grounds for change that of self-interest is the most despicable: it has, however, become so fashionable to seek office as a means of support, that we are not surprised that some should have the meanness to sacrifice principle to attain their ends.

We hope that, whoever may receive appointments under General Harrison, they will be required to discharge their duties faithfully, without interfering with the rights of others. Improper intermeddling in elections should be, and we think will be, prohibited.

THE NEW CABINET. A letter from a friend in Washington city, dated on Thursday night last at 11 o'clock, states as the prevailing impression, that the following gentlemen will compose the cabinet of General Harrison:

Mr. WEBSTER, Secretary of State.
Mr. EWING, (Ohio,) Secretary of Treasury.
Mr. BELL, (Tenn.) Secretary of War.
Mr. GRANGER, (N. Y.) Postmaster General.
Mr. BADGER, (N. C.) Secretary of the Navy.
Mr CRITTENDEN, Attorney General.

Most of these gentlemen are well known to the public, and are highly distinguished for talents; and we have no doubt that all are well qualified for the stations to which they have been assigned by report.

ARCH STREET THEATRE. The Arch street Theatre, we see it stated, has been taken by Jones of Chesnut street, and Blake of Walnut street, who, backed by Forrest, intend to open that establishment shortly.

ISLAND OF CYPRUS. The number of the Southern Literary Messenger for the present month contains an elaborate and interesting historical account of the Island of Cyprus, written by Gov. Cass, American minister in France. Gov. Cass possesses talents of the first order, and is disposed to employ them for the gratification of his countrymen, as he is a contributor to several of our literary periodicals.

Having traced the history of this famous island from its earliest period to the time of its subjection to the Roman government, the writer gives the following account of the introduction of the Christian religion within its limits:

"But, in a stable in Palestine, was now born a greater than Cæsar, and his everlasting kingdom was now commencing—slowly indeed, and feebly, but surely; and it was destined to go from conquering to conquer. Cyprus was too near the theatre of our Saviour's life and death, to be long neglected by his apostles, and it soon became the field of missionary labors. Barnabas and Paul were chosen to carry there the glad tidings of salvation—and the Proconsul, Sergius Paulus, is the first eminent Roman functionary, who is recorded in the Scriptures as a convert to the new church. The apostles landed at Salamis, now Famagosta, whence they 'went through the isle' to Paphos, at its western extremity, where they found 'the deputy of the country, Sergius Paulus, a prudent man,' who 'desired to hear the word of God.' In the discussions to which the new doctrines gave birth, one Elymas, a sorcerer, withstood the advocates of the Christian faith, 'seeking to turn away the deputy.' But Paul, indignant, called down upon him a manifestation of the Divine wrath, and he was struck with instantaneous blindness, 'going about,' as the story is simply and beautifully told, 'seeking some one to lead him by the hand.' 'Then the deputy, when he saw what was done, believed, being astonished at the doctrine of the Lord.' Little did this representative of Roman sovereignty think, when he humbled himself before two unknown strangers, who preached 'Christ, and him crucified,' that this new faith would soon find its way to the imperial throne—and that its visible sign would banish the proud eagle from the seven hills, and would extend its sway to regions where neither the Roman power nor name was known."

U. S. BANK. There is a heartless rejoicing over the fall of this institution, although it was produced by combination among speculators and stock gamblers. In the exultation at the prostration of the bank, commiseration for the fate of those who have lost their all is not thought of. We have heard of numerous instances of widows and others who had nearly the whole of their estates invested in the stock of this bank, who have not now means to supply their necessities. Had the bank not been an object of persecution, it might perhaps, have recovered from its embarrassments, and saved innocent individuals from being sacrificed. But the whole moneyed interest of the country is now subject to depression or elevation, as may suit the whims or interests of the stock gamblers of Wall street: and the country is said to prosper or decline with the fluctuations of the stock market in New York. This is a new regulator of the country, and much more blighting in its influence than the Bank of the United States or any similar institution. The next move will probably be, to ask Congress for a national bank to be located in New York for the benefit of the stock-jobbers of that city.

FRONT STREET THEATRE. This establishment opens on Wednesday night next with the tragedy of Jane Shore, and the drama of Gil Blas, the theatre being under the management of Mr. Ward, Mr. C. Hill having charge of the stage department. We are not aware of the arrangements made by Mr. Ward, or of the plan he has laid out for his campaign, but we trust, from his well known tact, that he will be amply encouraged in the undertaking. He has now linked his destiny with the 'People's Theatre,' as it has been termed, and there is but little doubt that the people will sustain him, if he will exert himself to produce such novelty as will suit the present taste of the public. No mincing and chopping up of pieces—no agonizing halts on the stage—no discordant choruses, or limping dances—no pretended stars or false promises—no language that would offend the ear of modesty, or representations that would excite disgust. Let his company respect the audience, and they will, in return, respect them.

UNITED STATES MILITARY MAGAZINE. We have received the seventh number of the second volume of this magazine. It is a periodical devoted exclusively to the interests of the volunteers, and the army and navy; as such, we recommend it to the consideration of those who have the well-being of our army and navy at heart.—The number before us gives a biographical sketch of Commodore Charles Stewart, and is embellished with a fine lithographic likeness of that officer, with another representing the engagement between the frigate Constitution, and the British ships Cyane and Levant. The work is published by Huddy & Duval, Philadelphia.

THE LADIES. It seems that the President elect was compelled to cut short his interview with the ladies of Washington, as well as those of this city. We regret this exceedingly for the sake of those fair damsels who were anxious to squeeze his hand and kiss his cheek. How many "bouncing sons" may hereafter be named William Henry Harrison, we cannot say—but we are pretty sure it will be a fashionable signature twenty or twenty five years from the present period—for ladies, when an important event takes place, generally like to make their children the mementos which will bring it to mind in after times.

DEATH. The Hon. Samuel Walker, speaker of the House of Representatives of Alabama, died at his residence in Madison county, on the 23d ult.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12, 1841.

In the House of Representatives, this morning, a report was made by Mr. Cushing, from the joint committee appointed to wait on W. H. Harrison, the effect that the committee had performed their duty, and that W. H. Harrison had expressed his gratitude for the favor conferred upon him by the country.

After the disposal of some other business, the Senate bill for the relief of the widow and orphans of the late Doctor Perrine, was taken up and, after some opposition by Mr. Stanley, passed. The Doctor, you will recollect, had established an extensive plantation in Florida for the culture of tropical plants, and lost his life through the treachery of the Indians.

Mr. Jones, from the committee on ways and means, moved the House to go into committee of the whole on the civil list bill, but the motion was negatived. A considerable portion of the day was then occupied in the consideration of private bills.

Mr. C. Johnson, from the District committee, reported the Senate bill for extending the charter of the Bank of Alexandria, without amendment. It was then referred to a committee of the whole.

In the Senate, the bill from the House authorising the issue of five millions of treasury notes, was taken up, the question being on ordering it to a third reading.

A violent debate arose, which had not terminated when this was closed.

It is said that Mr. John Sergeant is to go as Minister to England.

On the night of Friday last, a respectable young lady of Goerck street, after the hour of ten, left her residence bareheaded, under great perturbation of mind, and hastened to the East River, at the foot of Grand street, with intent to drown herself. Her movements were watched by several gentlemen, who gave information to a watchman and requested him to follow her and prevent the catastrophe. He did so, and endeavored to get round the ferry house so as to reach her before she made the fatal plunge, but treading on some oyster shells made so much noise as to alarm the young lady, who instantly threw herself into the dock. A boat, however, was instantly procured, and by the assistance of a young gentleman rendered to a watchman, the young female was drawn out of the water, and snatched from an untimely grave.

Her name and residence having been obtained, she was taken there and restored to her family and friends. It was ascertained that she had been courted by a young merchant, under pretence of marrying her—that she had been seduced by him, and when called upon to marry her, it was discovered that he was a married man. This discovery, with the delicate situation in which she had been placed, so preyed upon her mind, that in a moment of desperation she planned and endeavored to destroy a life which had become to her a burden; but was happily prevented, as above stated. We hope the seducer will make all the atonement in his power for the ruin he has wrought.

MEETING IN PHILADELPHIA. A memorial was sent to the legislature of Pennsylvania a few days since, from sundry citizens of Philadelphia, asking that the law forfeiting the bank charters might be suspended in favor of all the banks except the Bank of the United States. Many of the mechanics, laboring men and others, believing that this exclusion was improper, held a meeting at the Exchange on Thursday last, and unanimously passed resolutions in favor of including the U. S. Bank in any action of the legislature. This is an act of justice, as we cannot discover any justification for a discrimination between the banking institutions of Philadelphia—and we are glad that the subject has been taken up by the mechanics and laboring men of the city.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAIL ROAD. The President and directors of this company are resolved to "go ahead." In another column will be found their advertisement for supplies of materials to be used in the construction of the road from Harper's Ferry to Cumberland; and we believe that every exertion will be used to complete the work within the limit mentioned in the shortest time practicable. The concerns of the company appear to be judiciously managed under the present direction.

BEWARE OF POISON. A man living near Lockport, bought at auction a lot of physician's jars, bundles, &c. one of which he took for saltpetre. In preparing pickle for his hams, he put some of it into a brass kettle, and from its singular appearance afterwards, was apprehensive that there was something wrong about it. On having it carefully analyzed, it proved to be corrosive sublimate! a deadly poison. Had he used an iron kettle, probably the mistake would not have been discovered until it had proved fatal.

DEATH OF AN AMERICAN CONSUL. The New York Herald has received intelligence of the death of P. S. Parker, Esq. American Consul at Bombay. He was appointed in 1838. He filled his trust with honor to himself and country. He died on board ship last October, while on his way to Zanibar, and hence home. Age twenty-six years.

FATAL ACCIDENT. We learn by Leonard's Express, says the Boston Transcript of the 9th, that as Mr. Jonathan Rutledge was engaged yesterday afternoon in making some repairs on the steam engine in Mr. Merryfield's sash and blind factory, in Worcester, on stooping down to look underneath, the crank, in its revolution, struck him on the head and killed him instantly.

A REGULAR FLEET. The Washington Herald contains the marriages of Martin Briggs to Louisa Schooner, Everard Boatman to Margaret Scull, George Shipp to Phœbe Cutter. They should all be attached to the navy department.—Pic.

Let us know their whereabouts, and we'll send them the Clipper.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

VOLUNTEER CORPS. Our remarks of yesterday have, we are happy to say, had the effect of drawing the attention of many of the members of military corps once in existence, and there appears to be a desire to revive those corps. Steps are about being taken to resuscitate the Rifle Regiment, and we have been informed that a call will shortly be made for a meeting of its officers. The only rifle company now in existence is the German Yagers, a corps of foreigners—drilled in a foreign language, but, no doubt, ready at a moment's warning to answer the call of their adopted country. Where are the Sharp Shooters, the Morgans, the Marions, and that patriotic band of Irishmen formerly under the command of Captain Hughes? The three first were composed of Americans, and should not let it be said that foreigners are more zealous in the country's cause than themselves. We trust, also, that the companies composing the 53d regiment will imbibe the proper spirit—the regiment was probably one of the most brilliant in the country, from the splendid variety of their uniforms and their soldier-like bearing. Let them follow the example of the "ancient and honorable" Fifth, and we shall have a spring parade which will not only prove an honor to Baltimore, but cause her citizens to feel secure in case of internal commotion or foreign invasion.

Much has been said about the inefficiency of the existing militia law; this, we have every reason for believing, will be remedied during the present session of our Legislature. At all events, steps have been taken to insure the passage of a law for the protecting and strengthening of the volunteer corps of the State.

THAT MUTTON! To-day there will be a splendid exhibition of mutton at the stalls of Messrs. Thomas and Turner, Centre Market. The sheep were raised by Major Phillip Reybold, of Delaware City, and are the finest ever exhibited in this market. The average weight of eight of the full blooded is 150 pounds—some of them weighing as much as 167 pounds!

COLD. The thermometer yesterday morning early was so low that we did'nt like to keep company with it. It was but four degrees above zero; and our old friend Nosey, who regularly visits our bulletin-board, attempted to read the paper in front of the office, was compelled to "give in," exclaiming that "he was perfectly satisfied, as his nose was more red than the paper was."

POLICE. A colored man, named John Henry, charged with stealing a table cloth, the property of Mrs. Crocker, was on Thursday evening arrested by officer McKeown, and brought before Justice Jones, who committed him to prison.

John Simpson, a white man, and Julius Budd, colored, were committed to the alm-house by Justice Barnard.

Owen Goodwin and Tilden Goodwin were on Thursday arrested on a charge of kidnapping a colored girl, the property of Mrs. Dorsey. They were taken before Justice Pennington, and entered into security for ther appearance for further examination.

WATCH RETURNS. Eastern District, Feb. 11. Negroes John Watson and John Lewis were imprisoned for disorderly conduct.

Middle District. John Simpson, and negroes John Askins, Daniel Thomas and Julius Budd were brought in and left for the police officers. Betsy Chase, colored, was brought in for being drunk.

Western District. Abraham Howard was brought in by two watchmen and officer Bowersox, as a fugitive from the Warden of the Jail, and in the morning returned to prison. James Murray was imprisoned for being drunk and riotous.

The military of Baltimore are arousing themselves, to be prepared in the event of our nation and England assuming a belligerant attitude.—Why do not our military companies and regiments arouse themselves? Come, gentlemen, do something for your own sake, and for the interest of the city.—N. Y. Planet.

The Montreal Herald states that Sir George Arthur and his family will go to England by the Columbia, which sails on the 1st of March, and that his son, Capt. Arthur, has gone to Boston to make arrangements for that purpose.

"TWO YEARS BEFORE THE MAST." The Harpers, it is stated, have sold 30,000 copies of "Two Years before the Mast," the copyright of which they purchased for $200. Their profits already amount to $5000.

MONEY is the "root of all evil," yet it is the salt of enterprize and almost the sole impulse to human action. Missionaries, even before they carry the light of Christianity to the Mountains of the Moon or the Snake Indian of the Oregon, they must have money! The Politician, who declares that the Poor are the dear objects of his consideration, and his heart bleeds at their political oppression, watch him closer, and you will find that the emptiness of his pocket is the heart of his patriotism! Money is power—it builds navies, raises armies, and undoubtedly does a great deal of good and harm both. It is however, next to religion, the very best friend a man can have in this lower world. A finer opportunity to gain so good a friend, perhaps has not been presented for a long time, as that offered in the Virginia Lottary, which draws TO-DAY at 4 o'clock.

The Sawed Lumber may be of white or yellow pine, with not more than an inch of sap on two edges of the stick; free from large knots, shakes or decay of any kind. A portion of the 4½x8 scantling may be proposed for to be furnished, of white oak, under the same conditions as to quality. The points of delivery may be at Baltimore, Georgetown, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any other point upon the line of the road, and the proposal will state the places as well as times at which the Lumber will be furnished.

Proposers to whom more than one of the places just named are accessible, will separately state their prices for delivery at each; so as to allow an option to the Company in regard to them should the proposal be accepted.

The hewn Timber, intended for the cross-ties and support-blocks, may be of white oak, rock-oak or chesnut oak, or of chesnut. It must be sound wood, and straight in one direction. If the proposer prefers delivering it in the rough state, and does not wish to undertake the hewing of it to the required dimensions he can so word his proposal, and in that case the size of the sticks must be such as to permit them, when dressed, to be of the full dimensions specified, clear of bark and axe-kerf. If the timber is cut while the bark is loose, it must be stripped off before the delivery. The delivery may be made upon any point of the line, between Harper's Ferry and Cumberland, and the points between which it will take place must be stated. There are to every mile of track 31,680 feet board measure of 4½x8, and 26,400 feet of 3x10 scantling, 1056 cross-ties dressed to 4½ inches thick, and 352 dressed to 3 inches thick. Proposals will not be received for a less quantity of any of the kinds of timber, than will lay a mile of track.

The Castings for the chairs and plates will be of an easy pattern—they must be of strong and sound metal, and smoothly cast—the contractor furnishing the patterns. The screw bolts and nuts will be of sound, tough iron and made with exactness as to the required form and size. The washers will be of bar-iron, rolled with the proper section, cut off and punched for the passage of the bolt. The zinc plates similarly made. The hook-headed spikes to be of iron of as good a quality as that of the screw bolts.

The Iron Fastenings just described may be delivered at Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any point of the line of the road between the two latter places and the places and times of delivery will be stated in the proposals. There are to every mile of track 7656 lbs. of castings—1584 lbs. of bolts and nuts—591 lbs. of iron washers—105 lbs. of zinc plates, and 2247 lbs. of spikes. No proposal for a less quantity than will supply 10 miles will be received.

Monthly estimates will be made of the quantities of each kind of materials so delivered and four fifths of the value at the contract prices will be paid thereon—reserving to the Company the option of paying the said four fifths in Baltimore City 6 per cent stock at par—or in the stock orders of the Company at par; and also reserving the option of paying for the remaining fifth in like manner, when the delivery of the whole quantity contracted for shall have been completed according to the contract.

If the materials contracted for or any part of them are not furnished at the times required, the Company may dissolve the contract and retain the one-fifth due on any which may have been already delivered, and no estimates or payments shall be made or on account of materials delivered before the time specified for commencing the delivery of the same. The monthly payments shall be made at the Company's offices in Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh, Virginia, at the option of the contractor, and the final payments shall be made in Baltimore. The manner and times in which the materials shall be furnished on the different parts of the line will be specifically provided for in the contracts, and particulars will be given on application to the undersigned. It will be required that about one half of the whole quantity of materials shall be delivered as early as possible between now and the 1st of December next. A model of the rail and its supports and fastenings will be ready for inspection at the Company's office in Baltimore by the 20th current. The proposals will be directed under seal to the subscriber, either at Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh—and will be received up to the 15th of March proximo. WONDERFUL EXHIBITION.

LEWIS, THE VIRGINIA DWARF, now at the WHEATFIELD INN, entrance from Baltimore-st. This wonderful specimen of the human form was born at Soldier's Rest, Frederick county, Va. and is now 21 years of age. His stature ranks him with the lowest of his species on record, for he stands 31 inches only! With an ample chest, he also presents shoulders with the proportions of strength—and, as if to atone for his paltry height, nature has supplied all his limbs with double joints. His countenance is manly and pleasing, and, for his opportunities, he evinces the possession of a mind of fair endowments. He has always enjoyed good health, and his activity is fully equal to the range of movement that could well be allowed to such a diminutive creature.

To the Naturalist, the Dwarf LEWIS recommends himself as a remarkable subject for philosophic observation—to the curious, he furnishes an object of singularly rare attraction—and all, who have the fortune to see him, must feel the force of the observation—

"What a wonderful thing is man!"

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 50 cents per bottle.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

CITY COURT, Feb. 12, 1841.—Present, Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington.

Abduction of Slaves. A mulatto man named William Adams was put upon trial, charged with assisting, enticing and persuading off two slaves, one named Lloyd Howard and the other Nicholas Howard, both being the property of Richard Dorsey, Esq. The alleged crime on the part of Adams was shown to be in violation of an act of Assembly, made and approved 1827, ch. 15, sec. 1, wherein it is stated, that any person engaged in any way, as principal or assistant, in attempting to entice slaves away from their masters, shall be subject to punishment in the state prison. S. Teackle Wallis, Esq., counsel for the state, arose and stated to the jury the facts which he intended to establish, and the ground of defence upon which he purposed resting the case.

Richard Dorsey, witness for the state, was called upon the stand. Said he was owner of the abducted slaves; that they left his house on the 21st Dec., 1839; that he had no knowledge of the accused having any connection with the affair.

Mr. Star was next called up. Witness lives 23 miles from Baltimore on the York road; on the night of the 21st Dec. 1839, about 12 o'clock, saw a hack going past his house; suspicioned that something was not right; pursued it, and in company with Mr. Kidd arrested the driver about 4 miles from the Pennsylvania line; on stopping the hack, two black fellows made their escape from it; did not arrest the negroes, but secured the driver; put him in irons; the hackman's name is James Wilson, alias Indian Jim; Wilson was brought to witness' house; found in hack a hat with Lloyd Howard's name written in it, also a carpet bag containing clothes, which were afterwards recognized by Mr. Dorsey as the property which he had given his servants.

Mr. Kidd was called up, and deposed to about the same in substance as had been given by Mr. Star.

James Wilson, alias Indian Jim, was next put upon the stand. This witness was the most important on the part of the state. We would here remark that this witness was the hack-driver who had the slaves in charge, and had, according to his statement, been employed to transport them to Strasburg, Pa. We would further remark that Wilson was found guilty of the charge of abduction at the previous term of court, as being an accessory to the same offence for which Adams is now being tried. His sentence by the court has been deferred for the purpose of using his testimony in the case of the present traverser. This same Adams was also tried and found guilty for the charge now against him at the previous term of court, but through the interference of some friends was granted a new trial. The testimony of Wilson seemed contradictory. He stated however that Adams had employed him on the 21st Dec., 1839, to take two men to Strasburg, Pa., for which he was to receive 25 dollars; that Adams came to his back, in Calvert-st., with the two men about dark; they got into the back; Adams bade them farewell, and witness proceeded on his way; did not know whether the inmates of the hack were white or black. That he proceeded out the York road about 23 miles when he was overtaken and handcuffed; had never been so far out that road before, not farther than Cockey's. The witness here became wearied, seemed to lose his recollection, stated that long imprisonment and sickness had almost destroyed his senses.

Nancy Wilson, sworn. Am wife of Wilson; Adams came to see her husband; said he was in a hurry; husband said that William Adams had employed him to take two colored gentlemen away; lives in Park street; Adams came to her house in the evening.

Richard Dorsey, Jr. sworn. Am a nephew of Mr. Dorsey—reside with him—frequently saw Adams in conversation with uncle's servants. Saw him him three or four days previous to their departure. Adams at times seemed timid when observed in company with my uncle's slaves.

Mr. Zell was called upon the stand. He went out to Star's, found the property there which had been in custody of the slaves, &c. The witnesses on the part of the state having been gone through, Mr. Buchanan, counsel for the prisoner, arose and briefly stated to the jury what he intended to establish. Various witnesses were then called to testify in behalf of the prisoner, among whom were Judge Heath, S. T. Wallace, Esq. Wm. Gwinn, Esq., who stated that he believed Adams to be the best servant in the world, except his Moses. There was no want of testimony on the part of the accused to establish his good character. His honor, Judge Heath, stated he had known the prisoner from 1826 to the present, and that a greater part of that time the accused had been his slave—though owing to his good conduct he had liberated him. Col. Davies also testified to Adams good character. Samuel A. Price testified that Adams attended a meeting over which he presided, and was in his presence about seven o'clock on the same evening, and about the same time that Wilson testified he (Adams) had been at his hack on Calvert street. Some other witnesses were examined, whose testimony is of but little importance and too tedious to give at length. The jury went into their room, and will probably return a sealed verdict to-morrow morning.

Stealing. Mary Henderson, a negro, was put in the bar, charged with stealing forty pieces of silver, the property of Caleb Foster. She was not ready for trial—and wanted to remove her case.

John T. Hall was put upon trial, charged with assault and battery, but he was not ready for his trial.

State vs. Lewis Morris, for assault and battery on the person of John Swain. The court declared the traverser not guilty.

The court adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one, that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and be worthy of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1.50 each.

CAUTION. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon suppositions; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. FARR'S SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of FARR, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. FARR drawn in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains as aforesaid, trust it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

CONSUMPTION.

☞ Consumption, thou fell Destroyer! More Proofs of the efficacy of Doctor SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, in relieving afflicted Mankind.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised to the public prate over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences.

THE OPAL RING.

The Opal Ring you gave to me,
It gleams upon my finger now,
And as its rays flash brilliantly,
I think of thy forgotten vow.

Of thee so changing as the hues
That flit across this sparkling gem,
Thy love, thy vows, thy faith and truth,
Are fairly mirrored forth by them.

Ah! I remember well the bower,
Where I received this ring from thee,
The moon's soft light illumed the hour,
And heard thee swear to love but me.

Thou hast no hold now on my heart,
I could not love one false as thee,
Yet from thy gift I will not part,
It minds me of man's Constancy.

A THRILLING STORY.

(Concluded from our 1st.)

The wind had lulled, but a universal darkness covered the face of the deep, as the hour of the appointed meeting drew nigh. Save the watch and himself, all the inhabitants of the vessel were resting below from the fatigues and alarms of the previous night and day, as Rogers was slowly pacing the quarter deck. The light from the binnacle glimmered with wan and melancholy rays, deepening the infinity of gloom around. The ocean seemed moaning, as if after its recent tortures. There was no other sight nor sound, until a stifled groan fell on the ear of Rogers—a sob of deep agony, which the sufferer seemed vainly endeavoring to repress. He looked in the direction whence it came, and indistinctly discerned a figure, advancing with irregular movements, and half crawling towards him. He began to experience an unaccountable nervous agitation. This man was probably insane, perhaps unnaturally visited by some demoniac possession. Credulity was rife with stories of the kind at that time. Why had he sought his intimacy? Why summoned him in private, at this untimely and ghostly hour? But the figure had reached him, and after a timid observation, the stranger being stood up and began to gaze earnestly on Rogers' countenance, as the dim light played flittingly across its features. There was nothing to terrify the subject of its scrutiny, either in the gaze, or in the appearance of the examiner. For the former soon changed from the expression of anxiety to that of humble entreaty; and the figure shook as with decrepitude. And, indeed, after a short time, he fell down on his knees, took hold of his young defender by the skirts, and looked up to him with an imploring eye. Rogers drew him from his abject situation to the stern of the vessel, and there bade him sit down beside him.

Silence succeeded for a few moments; when, with some hesitation, he addressed him. "I believe, I did, indeed, preserve your life last night. You say you cannot rejoice at your deliverance. I have felt compassion for you, because you are alone among so many. Confide in me, and I will extend my protection still farther. Whatever crime you may have committed, you are going to the deserts of a new world, where you may begin a new existence. The arm of retributive justice cannot reach you there; and the face of man cannot behold you, if you choose to fly into its solitudes. I have a strong desire to learn your history, and promise, most solemly, never to betray your trust without your consent."

"I have committed no crime," replied the man, "for which I am amenable to human laws. In what I have performed, I have been told I did heaven service. But could I fly from man, nay, could I escape from the presence of God, beyond the uttermost parts of the earth or the depths of hell, I cannot fly from myself. I have prayed for madness; but I am not mad. I can reason, and, alas! too well remember. Here it is, printed on my brain, a picture of fire; and it burns, and will burn forever, unless the soul can be annihilated. I would not commit an offence, which I believe would consign me to perdition; or I would long since have laid down this tormenting load of life; yet how could I be happy in heaven, if memory is there, or if there I am to meet any of the countenances that are now looking upon me, though you cannot see them—so sad, so horror-struck, so agonized? Have you not read how heathens, in old times, guilty of parricide, or other inexplicable offence, were followed over all the earth, and even to the thresholds of their temples, by terrible women, shaking unquenchable firebrands, with living serpents hissing and twisting around their heads? I am beset by many followers; but they do not threaten me, but look fixedly and sorrowfully upon me; and I seem sinking down and down beneath their looks, into a fathomless pit. Last night I saw them, too, deep in the monstrous womb of the ocean; and now I see them; and I shall see them forever. The heathens, I have read, could cling to their altars; and the Jews had certain places where the avenger of blood could not pursue. But I have no sanctuary, and no city of refuge, in all the wide world of land and waters that basks in the sunlight; and I cannot look for it in the grave."

And here he lay down on his face, and a strong convulsion shook him like an ague fit. He regained some composure, and continued. 'Since I have been on board this vessel, where the tormente of my earthly purgatory have been condensed to an intensity greater and more unremitting than ever, the persecutions of those who follow me have been constant. Every living thing around has mocked at and shunned me; until each human countenance seems to be that of a fiend to whom the penal torture has been assigned of persecuting, and mouthing, and chattering at the guilty; but I could abide all this, if they were not with me. I have seen them in crowded capitals; in the Arabian deserts; and in the dungeons of the infidels; but never, though long years have past, more distinctly than now.

'But why should I weary you with what you cannot understand, and have no interest in. You ask to know the source of my calamity. I will endeavor to inform you as briefly and intelligibly as I can. I was the son of an industrious and frugal woollen draper, in the city of London, and his only child. I was much indulged; and my father having bound me apprentice to himself, did not chastise me when I neglected his business, but was satisfied to reprove me for my present offences. I did not acquire any vices; but I was an idle youth, and loved to see spectacles of all kinds. In particular I attended all public executions; and was very sure never to be absent when any tragic scene was to be acted on Tower Hill or at Tyburn. I loved to watch the countenances of men going to be separated instantly from the bustle of life; and felt a strange excitement at the parade and circumstances which attend the awful execution of law. I did not go with the common feeling of the multitude, who thought no more of the event after it had passed, but dispersed to other places of amusement or to their every day business. The procession to the scaffold or the tree; the prayer and the psalm and the dying speech; the preparations for the block or the halter; the descending axe or the withdrawing cart: the hushed pause of countless spectators; the mangling of the bodies afterwards—were all to me so many acts of a stage play, in which I took a fearful but intense delight. It became a passion, paramount above all others; insomuch, that I sometimes envied the vile executioner, all I sometimes envied the vile executioner, all stained as he was, and besmeared with the blood, and tearing the vitals of his often yet conscious victims; because he enjoyed a nearer prospect of the scene, from which I was kept back by the crowd and the soldiery.

I have seen, in the East, men who derived their sustenance from mortal poisons; and others who kept tame snakes in their bosoms, and would caress the slimy monsters, as they were wrapt in their grisly and glittering folds. I have heard too, of cannibals, and of forlorn creatures who haunt grave yards and prey upon dead carcasses. Not more unaccountable even to myself than the fancies and appetites of these extraordinary creatures was the desire that possessed me of witnessing the sufferings of human beings previous to the separation of soul and body. I have reasoned upon it since, and found no satisfactory cause; for in my nature, if I knew what it was in childhood, there was no cruelty nor malice against my fellow men. But so it was, that the contemplation of all these scenes of bloodshed and terror was my constant employment, and visions of executions, in all their terrible variety of pain and fear and agony, held their infernal sabbath in my mind, so that I neglected business and regular occupation of every kind.

"The persecution of the heretics began, and burnings took place in every part of the country. I had never attended an exhibition of this sort, and imagined, according to the craving of my diseased curiosity, that it must surpass in terror and sublimity all I had witnessed of the closing drama of penal justice. It so happened that I had made acquaintance with one of the sheriff's men, with whom I held much communion on the subject always uppermost in my thoughts; and he came one morning to inform me that a minister was to be burnt the next day, and that I might, if I pleased, be close to the pile, and see every thing as it occurred. This was a golden opportunity for me; and one for which I had long and vainly sighed. I was, however, not a little damped in my eagerness, when he told me it was necessary I should light the pile myself.—From this office, although a good Catholic, and esteeming, even as I still do, (but forgive me—you are a Protestant,) the consuming of heretics as an acceptable thing to God;—from this function, I say, I recoiled, as unbecoming the son of an honest man, out of whose province it was entirely to perform the part of the common hangman. My acquaintance, however, told me, that I could gain a near access to the stake on no other condition; and gave me a mask which was adapted to the upper part of my face, and which he said, would prevent any person from recognizing me. He added, that he would call for me the next morning, and so saying, he left me.

"All the rest of that day I was uneasy, irresolute, and almost beside myself, pondering between my desire to indulge a long-cherished curiosity, and the repugnance I felt to execute an office considered disgraceful even when prescribed to an individual as his legal duty. Before I fell asleep, I had made up my mind to depart from home early in the morning, and to behold the spectacle from a distance among the multitude. My dreams, of prophetic of all I have ever had since, were troubled, wild, and agonizing; and I awoke in a feverish state of excitement.—Very soon, the populace were seen pouring from various quarters to the field where the execution was to be; and while I was yet meditating whether to evade my appointment by flight, or to refuse accompanying the follower, he made his appearance and beckoned to me, and as if by a fatal, uncontrollable impulse, I slipped quickly out of my father's shop, and accompanied him on his way. Turning down a narrow alley, he equipped me with my mask, and hurried, or rather dragged me towards the prison. No notice was taken of me, as, by the side of my companion, I mingled among the retainers of the law. Very soon the inner gates were opened, and there came forth, among the officers, a man in black vestments, a little advanced in years. His countenance, though not discomposed, was sad; for, as I heard, he had just parted from his family. And behind the escort I saw them slowly advancing, but did not then note them particularly; for a heavy load had fallen upon my heart. I heard not distinctly what was uttered around me, and turned my face neither to the right nor the left; but was led by the arm, mechanically, by my companion; following with the other attendants, the cart in which the victim intended for the present sacrifice was placed.

"In this stupor I walked on the whole distance, unaroused by the great following of the people, or the occasional interruptions that took place in our progress, until we arrived at the spot, where the stake and the faggots were prepared. I kept my eyes fixed, as if by enchantment, on that fatal pile, and was dragged along unresistingly, while a ring was formed around the scene of torture. With dim and dreaming vision, I saw the minister descend from the cart, and walk tranquilly and firmly, as it seemed, to the goal of his earthly pilgrimage. There were other things passing which swam indistinctly before my sight. There was a priest with an angry countenance, holding a cross, from which the heretic minister turned away; and a proclamation was read, of which I heard the sounds, without perceiving the meaning of the words. Then they fastened the prisoner to the stake by iron hoops, and closed up the circle of faggots around him. At this moment I was thrust forward so suddenly by my companion, that I was urged within a few feet of the pile. I stood without motion, rather as a machine than a thinking being, and a torch was put into my hand by a halberdier. The sheriff, who stood by, addressed me, but I understood not his words. I only comprehended from his gesture, that I was to light the pyre. A dead silence prevailed among all the assembled people, and we might have heard the whisper of an infant, or the falling of a leaf. A brief struggle passed through my frame, and hastily, by the same seemingly mechanical impulse, of which alone I appeared to be conscious, I advanced with the fatal brand.—One instant I cast my eyes upwards on the victim. His countenance was serene and cheerful; and he bent his eyes upon me with a settled calmness and forgiveness, which now lives before my sight, as though it were yesterday. I thrust the torch among the light stuff and combustibles at the foot of the pile; and the flame speedily ran all around it, and mounted among the wood. I thought I felt it at the same moment encircling my own brain. I dropt the torch and returned to my companion. There was a weight upon my feet that seemed to clog them to the earth at every step, and a death-like coldness at my heart. Then, as I lifted up my eyes, I beheld, behind the surrounding guards, a melancholy train, in sable apparel. There was a mother with a little infant in her bosom. She was tall and of a dignified aspect; but her cheeks were pale; and her eyes, swollen and red, were fixed in the direction of the pile where her husband was suffering. There were two lusty and stately youths, who stood gazing sternly and sadly; but as the fire began to crackle fiercely behind me, they lifted up their voices and wept aloud. There was a maiden, just arrived at womanhood, slender and graceful, with a saintly countenance, such as I have seen in pictures of the Holy Virgin; and she clung weeping to her elder brother. There was a younger girl, with golden hair and blue eyes, like a younger cherub, weeping, shrieking out for mercy for her father, and a boy, deformed, and supporting himself with a crutch, who had an obliquity in one eye that gave to the agony of grief, expressed in his face, a strange peculiarity. And there were little children clinging around their mother's garments, all crying bitterly; the youngest, poor souls, for company, not knowing why the rest were so afflicted. Methought that, at the same instant, they all directed their eyes towards me; and ever since I have retained the individual expression of each of those woe-begone faces. I turned around, and saw the father of this family, surrounded by the ascending blaze, that burst fiercely, but with a pale unnatural lustre, in the broad glare of day. His look was serene, and he stretched out his hands, and washed them in the consuming element."

The vessels were in sight of the coast of Florida. A delightful perfume was wafted from the shore, and the adventurers beheld the banks, even down to the edge of the water, covered with luxuriant vines and groves of magnolia. Some boats put off from the ship in which Rogers was a passenger, for the purpose of paying a visit to this land of promise; and in one of them the unhappy man, whose history is here-in-before recorded, went on shore. He was never seen more. Those who were in the same boat with him, said that he had wandered away into the interior of the country, and could not be recalled in time. It is more probable that they purposely left him.

The ship under command of Sir Francis Drake, a few years afterwards, took from the Virginia coast the remnant of the colonists, who were unfortunate in their settlement. Among the survivors, Rogers returned to England, by whom the foregoing facts were narrated. And notwithstanding many traditions and legends that have been popular, the above are the only authentic particulars in relation to the man who burnt John Rogers.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

Our city looks cheerful—the beaux and belles are promenading the avenue in true English style; they dress magnificently, which reflects distinguished honor on the tailors and dress-makers. Some of our beaux have coats with long tails, and buttons in front of them from the chin to the great toe, and others have no buttons at all at all. They appear like a respectable old dame in her night gown, promenading her private chamber, after the cares and disquietudes of the day have been put to rest.

The patriots are still shaking the paw of the great "lion," and if they continue much longer, that paw will become incompetent to perform its official functions.

Shortly there will be a grand musical flourish of the Temperance trumpet in this city, notifying the rum-sellers that they must appear at the bar of public opinion, and give an account of the deeds done in the spirit. These are spirit-stirring times.

They shall walk in review before you, Mr. Clipper.

Mr. Harris, of the Union Literary and Debating society, possesses considerable talent and a fine mind. With proper care this member may become not only a popular orator, but a beacon to warn others of the danger of the retort impudent.

Mr. Wroe improves rapidly, and if he continues in the same locomotive, he will one day shine on this great terraqueous ball.

Washington Lyceum, No. 1, contains some valuable spirits. I once heard Mr. Douglass pronounce a lecture before this society that would do credit to the pen and head of a taller man than he is.

Mr. Knox evinces talent of a fine order, and with care would make a good debater.

I intend to visit Washington Lyceum on their first night of meeting. JUPITER.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	"	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	"	Fred'ksburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	"	Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	"	Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	"	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	"	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	"	Charleston at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Foos! Rough Weather!! and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

MONDAY MORNING, FEB. 15, 1841.

WARLIKE MOVEMENTS. On referring to our Washington correspondence it will be seen that the report of the committee on foreign affairs, touching the late difficulties in reference to the Caroline, has been presented by Mr. Pickens. The report is said to be of a bold, fearless and independent character—such as may probably lead to war between this country and Great Britain.

THE BANKS. Some of the Banks in this city, (and perhaps all of them,) refuse to receive rail road notes in payment of debts. Now we should like to know which affords the best security, the rail road notes or those of the Banks? We think our Banks would act more justly, if not prudently, if, whilst they refuse to redeem their own notes, they would not be so very particular in the receipt of other currency. The legislature is still in session, and may yet act upon this subject; but, independent of this consideration it should be remembered, that any individual holding a Bank note, has a remedy in his own hands. If they are resolved to be entirely useless to the community, the people can very easily render them unprofitable institutions.

APPOINTMENTS. As the day approaches for the inauguration of General Harrison, those who are seeking appointments become more busy and restless—and some are said to carry their pen and ink-horn in hand that they may be ready for the signature of every passer-by.—Streets, lanes and alleys, high-roads and by-roads are paced with eager anxiety for recommendations; and we suspect that the signature of many school-boys will be found appended to the voluminous documents which are preparing for the President's eye. Rotation in office is now a favorite doctrine with them—what it will be in four years hence with those who may be successful, we shall leave to be determined by time—but, in the course of considerable experience, we have never known those in power to be sticklers for the rotation principle, although they obtained office through its agency. It seems to lose all charms for those who have used it successfully.

We have repeatedly given the office-seekers friendly advice, but they will not listen to reason. Like the crowd in a burning house, each looks to his own safety, heedless of the fate of others; but they should remember that, in the general rush, one is as liable to be crushed to death as another. There are some ten or twenty applicants for every office—at least so we hear—and among these are persons who have no claims to confidence, on the score of services to their party, their country, or their fellow-citizens—and they anticipate that General Harrison will be weak enough to appoint them to office. But they will mistake their man, or we know nothing of the mind and character of the President elect. The public have already suffered so much from misplaced confidence, that General Harrison will no doubt be cautious to appoint no man who cannot come recommended for capacity and integrity. Rolls of signatures from unknown individuals, can have no influence with him—for he will naturally infer that a reputation that has to be thus bolstered, is none of the brightest or fairest.

Some of the applicants are for specific appointments—some will accept of either of certain designated offices—whilst others again embrace every thing within the gift of the President, from a foreign mission to a suit of cast-off clothes.

Who can look upon this general scramble for office without regret? It exhibits a want of principle, the more striking from the fact, that the present and preceding administrations were denounced by many of the present office-seekers for the demoralizing principle upon which they were said to have acted, of rewarding their friends and punishing their enemies. It is certain that if this becomes the controlling principle of government, all future elections will be contests between office-seekers and office-holders, and the interests of the country must necessarily be sacrificed. We look to General Harrison to set an example which shall check this wild spirit, and bring back the government and its officers of every denomination to the pure condition of former times.

We have heard that some gentlemen who stand prominent in the nation, have become so infected with the office-hunting mania as to solicit recommendatory letters for the situations of foreign ministers; but we can hardly credit the rumor, as it imputes disreputable practices to those whom we have looked upon, as high-minded and honorable men.

The situation of General Harrison is peculiar. He stands solemnly pledged to serve but one term; and in redeeming this pledge he will set an example which his successors will be compelled to follow. This will remove many of the evils under which the country has labored. In this independent position he can, and no doubt will have a single eye, in all his appointments and measures, to the happiness and prosperity of his country and his own glory.

☞We learn by the Chicago American that robbing and thieving of a pretty extensive character has been carried on in that city for some time past. Goods to a large amount have been missed by several persons, and circumstances transpired to fix suspicion on a little girl who constantly visited some of the shops. She was watched and followed to the house of a tailor named Keogh, where all the missing articles were found. Keogh is in prison.

☞The river was rapidly falling at Cincinnati on the evening of the 9th inst.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13, 1841.

The Senate, having passed the treasury note bill last evening, was not in session to-day.

In the House of Representatives, the bill making a further appropriation for the survey of the boundary line of the north eastern frontier, was considered in committee of the whole, but no action had thereon.

Mr. Pickens, from the committee on foreign affairs, to whom had been referred the correspondence between Messrs. Fox and Forsyth, in relation to the burning of the Caroline and the imprisonment of McLeod, made a report thereon.

The report takes very high ground, and is of a very warlike character.

Mr. Granger denounced it as tantamount to a declaration of war, and made a speech to shew the impropriety of having it printed under the official sanction of the House.

Mr. Pickens denied that the report was of that character. On the contrary he considered it as having a tendency to preserve peace, by shewing that we were determined not to be imposed upon.

Mr. Fillmore thought the report was decidedly warlike, and that its publication in the present state of excitement would be highly improper.

Other members participated in the debate, which terminated in a motion to print being carried.

The report cannot fail to create a great excitement through the country.

The President elect dines with the President in fact this afternoon. It is understood that by way of compliment some hard cider will be placed on the table.

Both these illustrious chiefs went to the Theatre last evening.

Now the new cabinet has been appointed, it is understood the General will shortly leave for Virginia. The ladies say he ought first to give them another audience, as he was called away so unexpectedly on Thursday last.

THE CABINET. The National Intelligencer of Saturday last contains the names of the gentlemen who are to compose the cabinet under General Harrison. They are the same as announced in our last paper.

On the subject of these appointments the Intelligencer says: "We anticipate the warm approbation of a great majority of the people of the United States of these selections, and of the aggregate result. In some cases, doubtless, choice has been difficult, where many were thought worthy; but out of the abundant materials before him, it cannot be denied that the President will have formed a cabinet remarkably strong in talent, character, and the possession of the public confidence.

"It is an old observation that the head of a government usually shows how much wisdom and discretion he possesses by the choice of ministers and agents. Tried by this received standard, the new elected President has, in this first act of his official duties, well justified that great measure of favor which he has received from the people."

U. S. BANK. The state of Pennsylvania is indebted to this institution to the amount of nearly eight millions of dollars; and yet some members of the Pennsylvania legislature have expressed a determination to exclude this bank from the benefit of any law which may be passed for the relief of the banks of that state. Why make this unjust distinction? The Bank of the United States is not more guilty than the other institutions. All have suspended specie payments; and if this is the offence for which punishment is to be inflicted, it should fall equally upon all. If the solvency of the state were to be tested by its ability to discharge its debts in specie, there can be no doubt that it would be declared bankrupt. Had its debts to the bank been thus paid, or paid in any current funds, it is probable that suspension never would have taken place—it is therefore cruel to single out this institution for punishment whilst its means are withheld by the state. We do not think that the legislature will be guilty of the injustice.

THE MURDER NEAR SPARTA. The negro man Riker, says the Augusta Constitutionalist of the 9th, was tried in Sparta on Thursday last, for the murder of Mr. Petigrew, and found guilty. He was sentenced to be hung on Friday next. We have been informed that he has made some confessions, implicating a white man in the neighborhood, and divulged plans laid to take the lives of two white men supposed to have money; one of whom is a Kentuckian, and the other a citizen of Sparta. It seems that the Kentuckian had been apprised of the design against his life and money, and was upon his guard. He is yet in Sparta, and states that he had observed signs that satisfied him, that an attack upon him had been meditated, and that the information communicated had been of service to him.

We are also informed that examination and investigation were still going on in Sparta, and that some more goods have been discovered, knows to have belonged to stage passengers.

NAVAL. Orders have been received at the Navy Yard to prepare the sloop of war Fairfield, recently thoroughly repaired, for foreign service. Her officers will be promptly ordered. It is highly probable the ship of the line Delaware, now at Norfolk, will soon be prepared for sea, destined to the Mediterranean, to relieve the Ohio, Com. Hull.

U. S. SENATOR. Governor Woodbridge has been elected U. S. Senator from Michigan, to take the place of John Norvell, Esq., whose term of service expires on the fourth of next month.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN.

CITY COURT, Feb. 12, 1841.—Present, Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington. The verdict of the jury in the case of William Adams, whose trial we published on Saturday last, was, "not guilty."

In the case of James Wilson, alias, Indian Jim, the hackman who was indicted at the February term, 1840, and found guilty on the third count of one of the indictments, for aiding the slaves of R. Dorsey, Esq. to escape, a motion was this day made by his counsel, Wm. P. Preston, Esq. that the sentence of the court be suspended for a short time, upon reasons to be filed, tending to show that sentence ought not to be pronounced against the prisoner. For this purpose the court humanely granted until Saturday next. Mr. Preston made a very strong and earnest appeal in behalf of the unfortunate creature, who, we are inclined to the belief, was brought into his present predicament through wanton ignorance more than any thing else.

Charles Rolleman was placed upon trial, indicted for an assault and battery upon the person of a youth named Wright. He was fined one dollar and costs.

Emeline Johnson, an idiotic looking negro wench, was placed in the box for trial. She was charged by the state with stealing from a gentleman named Thomas Lenox a small amount of property, consisting of knives, spoons, &c. to the value probably of 50 cts. The court dismissed the case and liberated the prisoner.

A person named William Hopkins was placed in the bar under the indictment of stealing one bridle, the property of Daniel Miller. On being asked whether or not guilty of the charge, the prisoner answered in the shape of an Irish bull, by saying "he was not, nor never had been." The jury pronounced him not guilty.

State vs. James Hawkins, a mulatto boy, alias James Pullit, for assault with intent to kill a colored man named Jesse Evans. This case was of some little importance. The parties were both old penitentiary birds. The assault was made on the 6th of last November in the penitentiary. It seemed that previous to the time above mentioned Evans had made use of some expressions to his fellow prisoners derogatory to the character of Hawkins. Hawkins determined to have revenge. He accordingly, on the 6th of December, when Evans was at work, and in a stooping position, stabbed him in the neck behind the right ear with a shoemaker's knife, producing a wound the depth of three inches and three quarters. It was proven by Mr. McCafferty, an officer of the penitentiary, that Hawkins had said he intended to kill Evans. Mr. Houlton, superintendent of the penitentiary, testified that immediately after the act had been committed he saw Hawkins with the handle of the knife with which he had inflicted the wound in his hand, the blade having been left fast in Evans' neck. One of the keepers attempted to extract the blade with his hand, but could not. A large negro was called for, who drew it out by means of his teeth, first wrenching it one way and screwing it another, &c. until he succeeded. The witnesses having been gone through, Wm. P. Preston, Esq. counsel for the prisoner, arose, and contested the validity of Evans' evidence, it being, as he alleged, counter to the act of assembly of 1818, in reference to that point, where it is stated that a convict in the state's prison cannot be taken in evidence against any one but a fellow prisoner. The design of this motion upon the part of the learned counsel will be perceived when it is stated, that although Hawkins had served 13 years in the penitentiary, his time was out, and he is now at liberty—had been for some weeks. The court, however, decided that the witness was competent, inasmuch as he was a convict at the time the assault was made. The case being put to the jury, a verdict was soon returned of guilty. The court sentenced the traverser to 14 years confinement in the penitentiary, which when being served out will complete 27 years of an imprisoned life for the traverser.

Charlotte Handy, a colored woman, was next placed in the box, charged by the state with stealing one plough plane, one hammer and a few other small articles, the property of Mr. Donahue. The jury pronounced her guilty

State vs. James Kirkpatrick, charged with an assault upon the body corporate of Wm. Richardson. The court, upon hearing the case, fined the traverser $50 and costs.

The court adjourned until Monday morning at ten o'clock.

THE EASTERN MAIL. The eastern mail seldom arrives in this city until after four o'clock. We have been at much pains to enquire the cause of this tardiness, and have at length discovered it. A friend informed us on Saturday that all the locomotives on the Rail Road have been attacked with a severe influenza, and the conductors on the road have frequently to stop them in order to administer a dose of Pease's hoarhound candy!—The virtues of this wonderful medicine are becoming more and more developed every day.

WATCH RETURNS. Eastern District, Feb. 12. Capt. George Collins and four other white men were locked up.

Middle District. Mary Ryan was imprisoned for drinking strong water. James Taylor and Alfred Newler applied for lodgings. Sam. Elliot, Thos. Washington, and Richard Sterling were admitted as lodgers. Moses Gain, a boy, came in for lodgings.

Western District. The district was unusually quiet.

POLICE. Sarah Hyson, charged with threatening the life of Mary Ann Coyle, was on Saturday morning brought before Justice Pennington, and giving security for her behaviour, she was released.

Mary Pierce, charged with threatening injury to John Pierce, was arrested and taken before Justice McDonald. In default of security, was committed.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY. Yesterday was St. Valentine's day—and, as usual, we were honored with our share of hearts with skewers stuck through them, little fat Cupids, turkey-buzzards with hearts, livers and lights hanging from their beaks, and all that sort of thing. And then the poetry!—oh, dear! we have been wallowing in ecstacies for the last four hours; such sentiment! and so beautifully expressed! Here are a batch of stanzas which we copy verbatim et literatim:

the wether's cold—the sun does shine,
too welcum you my valentine.

how Long Shall i in misery pine,
wile you Are owned my valentine?

in heven there is a promis Sign that you will Be my valentine.

What agony of mind is mine to no that you're my valentine.

The last couplet strikes us as being far from complimentary, and as there is a single editor to this paper, we consider it a duty he owes himself to explain.

We would advise those ladies who are in the habit of selecting a Valentine every year, to fee a poet, in order that their declarations may be couched in such language as would, at least, infuse a spark of their tenderness into the bosoms of their chosen champions. For our part, we would at any time rather see a lady mending her stockings than cutting a piece of paper into an unmeaning shape—representing Cupids and winged hearts, and penning thereon poetry like to that quoted above. There are ninnies enough amongst the men, but even the ninnies are not to be gulled by poetical taffy. If St. Valentine was a gentleman, and we have every reason for believing that he was, his ghost would rise up in judgment against two-thirds of the ladies who attempt to attach his name and qualities to bachelors of modern date.

FIRE. Yesterday evening about half past six o'clock, a fire broke out in the ten pin alley attached to Tibbel's Globe Coffee House, No. 95 Pratt street, which was entirely consumed.

LENNOX'S BENEFIT. It will be perceived that Mr. Lennox, well known in this city both in public and private life, makes an appeal to his friends in the shape of a benefit at the Holliday-st. Theatre to-night. In Scotch characters he, in all probability, has not his equal in this country—and he will give the audience a rich treat in the part of Andrew Mucklestane, if they are only numerous enough to cheer his spirits during the performance. If we may judge from what we hear about town, a good house may be looked for.

DOLLAR MAGAZINE. The February number of this very excellent magazine is upon our table. It is published monthly by Wilson & Co. New York, at the low price of $1 per annum. For further particulars we refer the reader to the office of Mr. Taylor, No. 12 North street, who has it for sale.

JEFFERSON LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. A lecture will be delivered before this association this evening by Professor Foreman.

APOLOGY. We must apologise to our attentive Georgetown correspondent "Jupiter" for omitting a portion of his communication of the 9th instant, giving an account of the arrival of General Harrison in Washington city. It was not received until Saturday.

We give below the concluding part of his letter:

Let us rise superior to that selfish spirit of our fallen nature, that cries "to the victor belongs the spoils," and adopt the more patriotic sentiment, that to the victors belong the honor of having achieved the victory, and leave to the barbarians of the age the pleasing satisfaction of fighting for their ruling principle—the blood of their political enemies.

We have in our national halls of legislation a young but patriotic spirit, one before whom a mere working politician would not dare to sound the cry—"give me for my trading services office! office, office! and I am satisfied."

That young but exalted spirit is Henry A. Wise, of Virginia, whose opinion upon the merits of turning out and turning in is so purely republican, that, persevered in without favor, will in due course of time carry him to the White House, where I shall be happy to see him.

May a spirit becoming the enlightened age in which we live nerve the arm of the incoming administration to deeds worthy the name of freemen.

My best respects to "Domesticus," and the Metropolitan Lyceum; you shall receive that attention your merits so richly call for. JUPITER.

Georgetown, Feb. 9.

INQUESTS. An Inquest was held at New York on Friday morning on the body of John Adams, who died of intemperance and exposure. Also, on the remains of a human being terribly mutilated and packed in a champaign basket, found floating in the dock at the foot of Troy street. On examination, it was discovered that the soft parts had been partly dissected off, and some of the blood vessels injected with wax.

MELANCHOLY CALAMITY. On the morning of the 3d inst. a house in Quebec, occupied by Mr. James Smilie as a jewelry shop and dwelling, was consumed, and he with all his family except one boy, perished in the flames. The sufferers, were Mr. Smilie and wife, an apprentice named Alexander McLaughlin aged 13, and an Irish servant girl named Betsy.

DARING ROBBERY. A light fingered gentleman went into one of the Rochester Banks a few days ago and having diverted the teller's attention to something else, seized a $500 bundle of bills and immediately disappeared. He had the audacity to return in a few days when he was recognized and arrested.

SERIOUS EXPLOSION. Two persons were shockingly mutilated by a premature explosion, the other day at the stone quarry of Mr. John Van Buren, at Kinderhook, N. Y. Mr. Van Buren himself was one of them; but it is thought he will recover. He is a cousin of the President.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

SMALL NOTES. We copy from the Republican of Saturday, the following bill introduced into the house of delegates of Maryland by Mr. Graves, of this city. We presume that it was not the intention of the mover of this bill to exclude from circulation the small scrip-notes of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, because he makes an exception in favor of "such corporate bodies whose issues are now recognised by law." But it seems to us that this bill of Mr. Graves' is nothing more than a reiteration of an existing statute, excepting that it includes issues above the sum of five dollars. We are disposed to go with Mr. Graves in all measures that may effectually secure the community against impositions from shinplaster establishments; but we must have a currency other than metallic, with which to transact business.—It is indispensable—and, as such a currency can and will be furnished by the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company—a currency in which the people have implicit faith—we have no apprehension that an inferior one will be tolerated.—Past experience has taught a lesson in regard to individual small notes, which will not soon be forgotten. As "a burnt child dreads the fire," so he that has been once cheated by shinplaster manufacturers, will be careful not to afford them the second opportunity.

AN ACT, to prohibit any corporation, or individual, or association of individuals, from issuing any paper, intended to circulate as a money currency.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That from and after the passage of this act, no person, or association of persons, or body corporate, except such corporate bodies whose issues are now recognized by law, shall either, directly or indirectly issue, pay out, receive or deliver, or attempt to emit or circulate, any bill, note, scrip-note, certificate of deposite or other evidence of debt, intended to circulate as money or currency; and that it shall not be lawful except when specially authorized by law, for any individual, association or corporation to issue, pay out, receive or deliver, or attempt to emit or circulate, any bill, note, scrip-note, certificate, token or device whatever, representing or purporting to represent any portion, claim or evidence of a claim to any share of the stocks of any corporate company, or any bond, or other obligation of any state or corporation whatever, or of any subdivided part of the same, and that any person or persons, or any director, president, cashier, or other agent or officer of any such corporation, who shall violate the provisions of this act, or shall directly or indirectly assent to such violation, for each and every violation shall forfeit the sum of fifty dollars, to be recovered by indictment in the City Court of Baltimore, or in any County Court of this State, one half of said penalty to the use of the informer, and the other half to the State.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That it shall be obligatory on the Judges of the respective County Courts, and of the City Court of Baltimore to give this act in charge to the Grand Jurors, at the opening of each session of said Courts, and it shall be the duty of each Grand Juror to give information to his fellow jurors, of any infraction of this act, which shall come to his knowledge.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That whenever a question may arise in any Court of this state, touching the right of a Corporation to issue under its charter, such notes or evidences of debt as are intended to be prohibited by this act, it shall be the duty of the prosecuting officer in behalf of the state, if the decision of the Court shall be against the state, and the privilege of the party indicted in case the decision shall be against him, to propose such questions for the decision of the Court of Appeals, to be determined at the first term of that Court, which may occur after the reception of such record.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 12, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. On motion of Mr. Legrand, ordered that the Committee on Grievances and Courts of Justice consider the proceedings of the State of Virginia in relation to certain acts of the State of New York, touching the question of negro slavery; and also be instructed to consider the proceedings had by the Legislature of Alabama in relation to the controversy between Georgia and Maine, and to report upon the same.

On motion of Mr. Presstman, leave was granted the Committee on Corporations to bring in a bill to provide for the destruction of the notes of insolvent Banks in certain Banks in certain cases.

Mr. Seidenstricker reported a bill to confer upon the Corporation of the City of Baltimore, power to collect taxes due to said Corporation, which was read and passed.

Mr. Graves reported a bill to prohibit any corporation, or individual, or association of individuals, from issuing any paper, intended to circulate as money or currency. On motion of Mr. Jones, made the order of the day for Tuesday next 16th inst.

Mr. Graves reported a bill entitled an act to repeal an act to confirm an act, entitled an act to amend the Constitution and form of government of this State, limiting the future sessions of the General Assembly.—And also reported a bill to regulate the time of meeting of the General Assembly of Maryland; which were severally read and made the order of the day for Wednesday the 17th inst.

Mr. Frazier reported a bill to authorise the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to license wood hucksters in the City of Baltimore; made the order of the day for Tuesday the 16th inst.

Mr. Jones of Somerset submitted a message requesting the Senate to return the bill entitled an act to alter and amend the Constitution so far as it relates to the power of the Legislature to grant Lotteries, passed at Dec. session, 1839, chap. 31, in order that they may reconsider the same. Some debate ensued upon the adoption of the message; it was however adopted by a vote of 35 to 23.

The bill reported by Mr. Poultney, regulating the joint property of the City and County of Baltimore, was taken up for consideration and on motion of Mr. Poultney ordered to lie on the table.

The bill relative to the power of the Legislature to grant Lotteries has been returned from the Senate and is now under discussion.

The Senate have been in Executive session.

To our Baltimore friends, how would two or three lectures on Elocution, with recitations, take in your city? We ask for the benefit of a friend, who is a gentleman and scholar, and whose recitations we can recommend with sincerity. He is no humbug wandering lecturer, but a professional man of standing and character.—N. Y. Planet.

A BOILER BURST. Married, in Brown, Mercer county, Indiana, John Wall to Sophia Boiler, of that place.

FIRE AT JAMAICA, L. I. A fire broke out on the morning of the 12th instant, in Fulton, near Washington street, Jamaica, in a building occupied by Mrs. Hicks. It was destroyed, together with the female seminary, presided over by Miss Hanna, and the building occupied as a drug store, by Justice Bradley as an office, and we believe by the Long Island newspaper. The three buildings were owned by Mr. Herriman, who is insured for $4000.

LAFITTE. The New Orleans Bulletin says:—We are informed that this renowned old pirate is at present alive and kicking, in, or near our city. The fact may well be considered doubtful, but we would enquire—whence the improbability? An individual is not always irrevocably despatched by either the page of history, or the paragraph of a newspaper.

SPORT, SPORT. A company of hunters, in pursuance of a proclamation duly made, went out at Chicago on the 2d inst. with pistols, &c. and after a hunt of six hours, returned with six deer and four wolves.

RESIGNATION. E. Crumbacker, Esq., Postmaster at Westminster, Md. has resigned his office, and Joshua Yingling, Esq. has been appointed his successor.

THE RECORDER. The New York Sun insists that Mr. F. A. Tallmadge is or will be Recorder of New York, notwithstanding the assertions of other city papers to the contrary.

LAUNCH. The ship Oneida, intended to ply between New York and Havre as a regular packet, was launched at New York on Saturday last.

844,800 Hook-headed Spikes, 4½ inches long, 7-16 square in the shank, and weighing 4½ oz. each, 224,716

The Sawed Lumber may be of white or yellow pine, with not more than an inch of sap on two edges of the stick; free from large knots, shakes or decay of any kind. A portion of the 4½x8 scantling may be proposed for to be furnished, of white oak, under the same conditions as to quality. The points of delivery may be at Baltimore, Georgetown, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any other point upon the line of the road, and the proposal will state the places as well as times at which the Lumber will be furnished.

Proposers to whom more than one of the places just named are accessible, will separately state their prices for delivery at each; so as to allow an option to the Company in regard to them should the proposal be accepted.

The hewn Timber, intended for the cross-ties and support-blocks, may be of white oak, rock-oak or chesnut oak, or of ebesnut. It must be sound wood, and straight in one direction. If the proposer prefers delivering it in the rough state, and does not wish to undertake the hewing of it to the required dimensions he can so word his proposal, and in that case the size of the sticks must be such as to permit them, when dressed, to be of the full dimensions specified, clear of bark and axe-kerf. If the timber is cut while the bark is loose, it must be stripped off before the delivery. The delivery may be made upon any point of the line, between Harper's Ferry and Cumberland, and the points between which it will take place must be stated. There are to every mile of track 37,580 feet board measure of 4½x8, and 26,400 feet of 3x10 scantling, 1056 cross ties dressed to 4½ inches thick, and 352 dressed to 3 inches thick. Proposals will not be received for a less quantity of any of the kinds of timber, than will lay a mile of track.

The Castings for the chairs and plates will be of an easy pattern—they must be of strong and sound metal, and smoothly cast—the contractor furnishing the patterns. The screw bolts and nuts will be of sound, tough iron and made with exacts as to the required form and size. The washers will be of bar-iron, rolled with the proper section, cut off and punched for the passage of the bolt. The zinc plates similarly made. The hook-headed spikes to be of iron of as good a quality as that of the screw bolts.

The Iron Fastenings just described may be delivered at Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any point of the line of the road between the two latter places and the places and times of delivery will be stated in the proposals. There are to every mile of track 7655 lbs. of castings—1584 lbs. of bolts and nuts—391 lbs. of iron warhers—165 lbs. of zinc plates, and 2947 lbs. of spikes. No proposal for a less quantity than will supply 10 miles will be received.

Monthly estimates will be made of the quantities of each kind of materials so delivered and four fifths of the value at the contract prices will be paid thereon—reserving to the Company the option of paying the said four fifths in Baltimore City 6 per cent stock at par—or in the stock orders of the Company at par; and also reserving the option of paying for the remaining fifth in like manner, when the delivery of the whole quantity contracted for shall have been completed according to the contract.

If the materials contracted for or any part of them are not furnished at the times required, the Company may dissolve the contract and retain the one-fifth due on any which may have been already delivered, and no estimates or payments shall be made or on account of materials delivered before the time specified for commencing the delivery of the same. The monthly payments shall be made at the Company's offices in Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh, Virginia, at the option of the contractor, and the final payments shall be made in Baltimore. The manner and times in which the materials shall be furnished on the different parts of the line will be specifically provided for in the contracts, and particulars will be given on application to the undersigned. It will be required that about one half of the whole quantity of materials shall be delivered as early as possible between now and the 1st of December next. A model of the rail and its supports and fastenings will be ready for inspection at the Company's office in Baltimore by the 20th current. The proposals will be directed under seal to the subscriber, either at Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh—and will be received up to the 15th of March proximo. CHILDREN TRETHING.

A T this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains ra aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

CONSUMPTION.

☞ Consumption, that fell Destroyer! More Proofs of the efficacy of Doctor SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, in relieving afflicted Man. To DR. SWAYNE.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

TUESDAY MORNING, Feb. 16, 1841.

Important Report. Our readers have been made acquainted with the correspondence between Mr. Fox, British minister, and Mr. Forsyth, secretary of state, in relation to the arrest and confinement of Alexander McLeod, charged with having participated in the destruction of the American steamer Caroline and the death of some of her crew in 1837. This correspondence was communicated to Congress and referred in the House of Representatives to the committee of foreign relations. Mr. Pickens, chairman of that committee, made a report on the subject on Saturday last, which created a strong sensation in the House, and was viewed by some of the members as nearly equivalent to a declaration of war. On a careful examination of the report we do not discover sufficient ground for this opinion; nor can we believe it to be the desire of Mr. Pickens, or any other member of the committee, to involve us in a war with Great Britain at a moment when we are so entirely unprepared for the conflict, and when there appears so little disposition on the part of Congress to put the country in a state of defence.

The report recapitulates the incidents connected with the destruction of the Careline—that, at the time of the aggression she was running as a ferry boat from Schlosser on the American shore, to Navy Island, nominally in the British possession—that she at no time carried any arms or munitions of war, with the exception of a six pounder, the property of a passenger—she was used as a ferry boat but one day, and at night was burned in the harbor of Schlosser, when one or more American citizens were assassinated.—We pass over the arguments of the committeee on the injustice of this attack, because we cannot believe that reasoning can be necessary on the subject: the outrage is felt. The report says:—"There is no doctrine more consecrated in English history, than that every human being who touches the soil of Great Britain is immediately covered by British law. Suppose one of her vessels were cut from the banks of the Thames and burnt by Frenchmen, and British citizens were assassinated at night, and the French Minister were to avow that they acted under the orders of his government, and that the vessel was 'piratical,' and the citizens murdered were outlaws—then there is not an Englishman whose heart would not beat high to avenge the wrong, and vindicate the rights of his country. The law there is the law here. And there is no international law consistent with the separate independence of nations, that sanctions the pursuits of even pirates to, murder and arson over the soil and jurisdiction of one of the States of this Confederacy. No greater wrong can be done to a [illegible] at another, and the nation that submits to it, finally sinks down into drivelling imbecility. It a representation of the state of things at Schlosser, and the conduct of those who had control of the Caroline, had been made to the proper authorities of New York, or of the United States, then there would have been some show at least, of respect for our sovereignty and independence, and a disposition to treat us as an equal. But in this case, as if to treat our authorities with contempt, there was no preliminary demand or representation made.

"It was hoped that the outrage was perpetrated by a party in sudden heat and excitement, upon their own responsibility. But the British Minister now avers that 'the act was the public act of persons obeying the constituted authorities of her Majesty's Province,' and again affirms that 'it was a public act of persons in her Majesty's service, obeying the orders of their superior authorities.'

"If this had been the first and only point of collision with Great Britain, it might not have excited such interest, but there is an assumption in most of our intercourse with that great power, revolting to the pride and spirit of independence in a free people. If it be her desire to preserve peace, her true policy would be to do justice, and show that courtesy to equals which she has always demanded from others. The committee do not desire to press views on this part of the subject, particularly as a demand has been made by our Government upon the Government of Great Britain for explanation as to the outrage committed, the answer to which it is hoped will prove satisfactory."

The report then enters into an examination of the demand made by the British minister for the release of McLeod by the President, and the grounds upon which that demand is made. It is clearly shewn by the report, that the general government has no jurisdiction in the case, and consequently cannot, if so disposed, interfere, as McLeod is amenable to the laws of New York alone; but we think the argument might have been spared, as the question of jurisdiction is well understood, and the distinction must be known to the British minister.

Having dismissed the affair of McLeod, the report proceeds to touch on other points in controversy between the two countries. It says:—"We have other points of difference with Great Britain, which add interest to every question that arises between us at present. Neither our north-eastern or northwestern boundaries are yet settled with her, and the subject is not entirely free from difficulty. She has recently seized our vessels and exercised a power involving the right of search, under the pretext of suppressing the foreign slave trade, which, if persevered in, will sweep our commerce from the coast of Africa, and which is incompatible with our rights as a maritime power. She has recently, in her intercourse with us, refused indemnity and denied our rights to property on a subject-matter vital to near one half the states of this confederacy, and which, considering her military position at Bermuda and her growing power in the West Indies, is of the last importance to our national independence.

"All these subjects make every question between us, at this peculiar juncture, of the deepest interest."

The report then gives a condensed view of the vast possessions and immense power of Great Britain, and concludes with the following reflections: "Her positions all over the world are at this moment, in a military point of view, equal to a million of men under arms. Her continual conflicts in the mighty regions of the East, only enable her officers to become skilful and to improve in the art of war, while her great armies and extensive fleets draw their support from the immense countries seized and occupied. In the present juncture of affairs, no statesman can overlook these things. Steam power has recently brought us so near together, that in the event of any future conflict, war with its effects will be precipitated upon us with much more rapidity than formerly.

"Avarice and ambition are the ruling passions of modern times, and it is vain to shut our eyes to the state of things around us. It remains to be seen what effect steam power is to have upon changing and modifying the whole art of defence and war. It may be a great engine for again levelling mankind, and reducing everything to a contest of mere physical force. In that event it might be difficult to conjecture what system of national defence will stand the test of time and experience.

"We have a deep stake in peace, and fondly hope the repose of the world will not be disturbed. We have certainly not the least desire for any rupture. Firmness, and a wise preparation, will long preserve us from such a catastrophe. But while no temptation should ever prompt us to do injustice on the one hand, so no consideration, on the other hand, should ever induce us to submit to permanent wrong from any power on earth, no matter what the consequences may be,

"Your committee would conclude by expressing a firm belief that all our points of difficulty may be honorably and amicably adjusted, and that harmony may long be preserved by both Governments pursuing a liberal and generous policy, congenial to the interests and feelings of both people, and compatible with the spirit and genius of an enlightened age."

After parading before our eyes the great ambition of England and her wonderful resources, the committee come to the consolatory conclusion that all differences may yet be amicably adjusted. It is to be hoped that the friendly relations between the two countries may be preserved; but it is certain that the attitude of Great Britain indicates somewhat of indifference as to the result. She has relations with the United States are in a delicate and critical position. This has been manifest for some time past, and yet congress has adopted no measure of preparation for the crisis which may arrive with little or no warning. We have repeatedly spoken of this remissness; this palpable neglect of duty—but the defence of the country appears to be considered a matter of insignificance in comparison to that of long-winded speech-making. If we could conquer our opponents with wind, there is enough of it spent in the house of representatives to exterminate the whole population of Great Britain—and, unfortunately, it is almost the only weapon of defence prepared by our representatives.

Although we do not look upon this report as a declaration of hostilities, nor think that it will be so considered in England, yet it is not unlikely that it will either cause a speedy adjustment of existing difficulties, or precipitate us into war.—It defines our position so strongly that it cannot be mistaken by the British government, and the next movement of that country will probably decide whether we are to have our rights amicably recognized, or be compelled to maintain them by force. In view of the possibility of the latter resort, the nation must be put in a position of defence. To supply means for this, additional duties must be imposed—for, however objectionable this measure may be to the unreasonable politicians of some of the southern states, it is required by the necessities of the country, and cannot be dispensed with without prejudice to the general interests. A few days remain for congress to continue in session, and these few days should be devoted to the passage of laws which may atone, in part, for former imbecility and negligence.

Lecture on Painting. On Thursday evening last, professor Monkur delivered, by invitation, an interesting lecture on the Art of Painting, at the Franklin Institute, Fell's Point, to a large and respectable audience. The lecturer gave a brief outline of the invention and progress of the art, but confined himself more particularly to a historical relation of the principal events and improvements in the art of painting during the epochs of the Milan school. The works of the most distinguished artists of this school were enumerated and their merits examined. In this review the lecturer exhibited great skill and a perfect acquaintance with the master productions of the art. It would be doing injustice to the learned professor to attempt a sketch of his lecture, which, from the nature of the subject, would be necessarily imperfect. It may suffice to say, that the audience appeared much gratified.

A meeting of the citizens of Philadelphia will be held this evening, for the purpose of expressing an opinion relative to the bank suspensions in that city.

Franklin Bank. An adjourned meeting of the stockholders of this institution was held yesterday, to hear the report from the committee appointed at a former meeting. The report stated the condition of the bank to be as given by a committee of directors at the first meeting, and concluded with a recommendation that the affairs of the bank be wound up. It is said that the vote of the committee on this report was unanimous. It was, however, on motion, laid upon the table, and the directors instructed by resolution to apply to the legislature for liberty to reduce the stock to $12½ per share. The directors were further authorised to proceed in the settlement of the affairs of the bank, and resume business as soon as may be deemed expedient. The vote in favor of continuing the operations of the bank is said to have been more than two to one.

We are glad that this has been the determination of the stockholders, because, had the affairs of the bank been placed in the hands of trustees for liquidation, there would have been a great sacrifice to note and stockholders. As it is, the loss to stockholders will be nearly one half, unless the doubtful debts of the institution should yield more than they have been estimated at, which we think not improbable.

City Court, Feb. 17. Present—Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington. William Simms, a negro, was put upon trial, indicted for stealing 2 seals, 1 silver snuff box and two one hundred dollar notes from the office of Z. Collins Lee, Esq. on the 17th of January last. The evidence being conclusive, the jury soon returned a verdict of guilty. The traverser was sentenced to be sold 15 years out of the state.

Jack Stripes, a German, was indicted for keeping a disorderly house. Proof being wanting, the accused was liberated by the court.

Murder. James Thomas, alias Adams, a colored man, was arraigned on the charge of murder, perpetrated upon a colored man named James H. Anderson in December last. The prisoner not being ready for trial was remanded until Wednesday next, when the case will be brought up.

State vs. Charles Howard, negro, for assaulting a white woman named Sarah Connor. It appeared on evidence that Howard had used insulting language in reference to the woman in question, and afterwards committed an assault upon her by striking her with his hat. He was fined $1 and costs.

Alexander Peach was next put upon trial charged with stealing a ham from Mr. A. W. Ennis. The jury not being able to agree in the box, retired to the room, and had not returned when the court adjourned.

Several negroes and a few other loafers were brought out, but owing to various causes were not ready for trial.

Thomas Roberts, a colored man, was put upon trial, charged by the state with stealing a piece of carpet from on board the steamboat George Washington, the property of Joseph Trippe. The property was found in the house of a man named Elias Hartzburg, who was subsequently indicted as a receiver of the stolen goods. Hartzburgh was called upon the stand to testify against the traverser, but was objected to on the ground that he was an incompetent witness against the principal offender, inasmuch as he was a party concerned. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty.

Attention! An order was yesterday issued by the court authorities, requesting all the city bailiffs, police officers and constables to appear before the grand jury on Wednesday next at ten o'clock, A. M. The object we are not able to divine.

☞An attempt was again made on Saturday night last by the prisoners to break jail. They succeeded in cutting a bar of one of the upper windows, but were arrested in good time.

Naval. The Norfolk Beacon says:—The U. S. frigate Constitution, we learn, will leave the Pacific station in June, for the United States. Letters for her officers or crew, in the meantime should be directed to Rio.

The official order has been received to carry the U. S. ship of the line Delaware up to the Navy Yard, preparatory to equipping her for sea.

It is said that her destination is for the Mediterranean, to relieve the Ohio.

We also learn that the Pensylvania will take the place of the Delaware as a school ship.

Arrest. A man named Colley, who had robbed the Merchant's Bank of Ithica, N. Y., of $2500 was arrested on board the steamer Express, at Wheeling, Va. on Wednesday, by two gentlemen from Cleaveland, who had pursued him. About $300 of the money stolen, together with a horse and buggy, and two gold watches, were recovered, and four horses which he had sent through Ohio.

Vessel Dismasted and Abandoned. The Norfolk Herald says the schr. Laurel, Mott, from Georgetown (D. C.) bound to New York, put into this port yesterday having in tow the schnr Tigress, Thompson, of Georgetown, which she fell in with on the upper end of the Middle Ground, on Wednesday evening entirely dismasted nearly water-logged, and not a soul on board. The Tigress had sailed hence the day before for Baltimore, laden with lumber, hides, leather, naval stores, &c.

Bank of Gallipolis. The Ohio State Journal contains a letter from J. Coombs, the present Cashier of this institution, giving a statement of the rise, progress and downfall, of the Bank. The villainous combination for the purpose of direct swindling and stupendous frauds contemplated and actually accomplished through the agency of the Bank of Gallipolis, certainly exceed almost any thing of the kind ever before attempted in this country.

Newspapers in Cincinnati. There are now published in Cincinnati, Ohio, no less than thirty six newspapers and literary periodicals of all descriptions and characters. The circulation of none of the dailies exceeds one thousand, which fact we judge will tend to shorten the existence of a goodly number of them. In 1826 there were but nine newspapers and one periodical published there.

Shipwreck. We learn from the Norfolk Beacon that on Friday the 5th, in the morning about 4 o'clock, the pilot boat United States, of Baltimore, Capt. Smith, went ashore about three miles to the southward and westward of Smith's Island, in a snow storm, and was totally lost. All hands, seven in number were saved.

Foul Murder. A man named Wm. Cook, in Van Buren county, Arkansas, recently murdered a young man, who had not injured him, named McNammee, merely, as he said, to see how he would feel after shooting a man! The sum of $500 is offered for his apprehension.

Virginia Banks. The Richmond Whig says the Banks continue to pay specie, and states that they can do so, without any inconvenience to the merchants, by curtailing the accommodation usually extended to them.

The total expense of the civil list of the state of Louisiana is 149,700 per annum. The Governor receives $7,500 and the state librarian $600 being the highest and lowest.

Small Notes. The Legislature of Virginia have authorised the Banks to issue small notes, under five dollars until 1st January, 1842.

The York and Cumberland Rail Road bill was lost on Saturday, in the Pennsylvania Senate, by a vote of 12 in favor to 13 against.

FRONT STREET THEATRE.

☞ The above Popular place of Amusement will Re-open on WEDNESDAY EVENING, 17th inst. 1841, under the exclusive Management and Direction of Mr. WARD.—who is proud in observing that he has received such promises as will enable him to offer to the public, the brilliant productions of modern genius, in addition to careful selections from the admired efforts of old masters, and also a number of magnificent Spectacles and Melo-Dramas, calculated to raise this establishment in the estimation of the drama's patrons, and render it one of the most useful theatres in the states. And, in order to the combining of a company which shall possess every claim to public approbation, the Manager will, shortly after the opening, present, in addition to many established favorites, several new candidates for their approbation. In the hope that a few remarks may not be deemed impertinent or inappropriate in his opening bill of fare, the manager in respectfully submitting them, takes leave to announce his intention of using every exertion and adopting every precaution in striving to render his stage not merely attractive, but beneficial also, and worthy the approbation of every wise, talented, good and benevolent man in the community. The drama is very frequently abused by those who never enter the walls of any of its temples, but who judge it from the perusal of obsolete plays and such works as are seldom placed before the theatrical public, without being first subject to curtailment, and the language of the seventeenth century altered to the more pure taste of audiors of the present day. It ought, therefore, to be the business of the drama's professors, to explain these attacks and defend their art, and not to shrink from the wild and interested observation of the hypocrite and the fanatic. Next to the pulpit, the stage is the best place to teach those moral rules which our higher perceptions point out as the most pure and persuasive. It is its duty to instil into the mind the best principles of moral rectitude in their most pleasing forms, by decorating its most rigid maxims in an alluring dress —and by infusing them, as it were, into our very pleasures to make us enamored of them in proportion, as they are divested of austerity. Whoever witnessed the towering magnanimity which breathes in the soul of a Cato, without feeling pity and admiration? or the deliberate villany which Iago developes without detestation and contempt! And whoever left a theatre after the performance of either without a due impression of the force and nobleness of virtue, and equal abhorrence of vice? For the drama is a diversion which wears out of our thoughts every thing which is mean and little, cherishes and cultivates that humanity which is the ornament of our nature, softens insolence, soothes affliction, and subdues the mind to the dispensations of Providence: it is not surprising, therefore, that all civilized nations of the world are encouragers of plays, but amazing that so many, otherwise good men, should oppose and abuse what they understand so little.

Take away the Drama and what becomes of society as at present constituted. The young require entertainment and will seek for it from vicious sources, if refused permission to participate in pure and rational enjoyments. Ever since the days of Shakspeare the stage has elicited from the unprejudiced that respect due to its general character—due also to its dignity, and it is not because a few weeds are scattered among the flowers, that its supporters should calmly submit to the condemnation pronounced by its opponents.—Should they not rather strive to render the stage perfect by urging its directors to obliterate every expression calculated to offend the most fastidious; to select such pieces only as could be viewed with unmixed delight and admiration—and to evince constant anxiety to place the Drama, in Baltimore, on such a foundation, that it may be a subject of gratulation and profit to its citizens, its company and its Manager. The confined limits of a play bill will not allow Mr. Ward to descant further upon this subject, than to state, that in the hope of making the Theatre the approval of the philanthropist, the scholar, and the moralist, every play, farce, and spectacle will be carefully perused before their production on the stage, and same be submitted to the public but such as the guardians and friends of the young, the innocent and the beautiful would approve. It will be the earnest endeavor of the Theatre's director to render the entertainments so inoffensive as to make those who proclaim against the immoral tendency of the Drama, become pleasingly convinced of their error. Those who attribute universal selfishness to mankind shall witness the representation of Ion, and seek to imitate his virtues; and let him who believes not in the fidelity and self-devotion of the heart of woman, behold the admirable Juliet sacrificing her life at the shrine of natural attachment and say whether he does not feel within his breast a vibrating cord that jars against his precious judgment, in spite of reason, sophistry and logic. The Manager will thus strive to perform his duty, and, to quote from Eterne, he trusts that in endeavoring to combine instruction with amusement, it will never be required from him to state, "whether he did it in a black coat, or whether it was performed in a red one."

FREE ADMISSION SYSTEM.

It is well observed that "the laborer is worthy of his hire, and that it may be afforded to him the Manager respectfully notifies his intention of withholding free admissions from all but those who make some return for the privilege. Gentlemen connected with the Press may always obtain an order at the Manager's office, whenever they feel inclined to place their candid and impartial opinions of the entertainments and the establishment before the public, and, however harsh and severe the expression of those opinions may be, they will never induce him to withhold the privilege of admission; but, self protection urges him to state, that he cannot consent to admit those nightly, who allow season after season to pass without thinking it necessary to aid the Drama, by their approval of its honest efforts or their condemnation of its errors. The respect he entertains for the members of his own profession would urge him to throw his doors open to them, if the courtesy had not been so much abused, which circumstance compels him to state that only occasional orders will be given, and those at no other time than during the office hours of the day.

FIRE AND MILITARY COMPANIES.

It has often occurred to Mr. Ward that such public bodies, to whom the city is so much indebted, as the Fire and Military companies of Baltimore, should frequently have invitations tendered to them to attend the theatre, as a slight tribute of respect by the Manager, for their untiring zeal and unwearied energy in the cause of humanity whenever their suffering fellow citizens require their assistance; and Mr. Ward begs to assure them, that he would have long since cheerfully communicated with them on the subject, if star arrangements had not interfered to prevent his carrying his wishes into effect. It now, however, affords him great pleasure to state that, in future, he proposes to give an invitation at least once every week, to a Fire or Military company, commencing with the oldest and terminating with the last established. On the nights in question, every effort will be exerted to render the entertainments satisfactory, and the Manager will strive to gratify his friends and fellow citizens, by making the performances worthy the presence of the guests invited.

ORDER IN THE THEATRE.

It only remains for the Manager to express his firm determination to protect those who honor the Theatre by their attendance, against every annoyance and interruption. His first request to the officers employed will be to do their duty in all cases, and without any respect to persons. It will be to him a most painful task to prosecute those who offend against the order he is determined to establish, but he pledges himself to do so in all cases where the audience is disturbed and the offender refuses to obey the mandate of the officer; and, in the event of injudicious friends interfering with the police in the performance of their unpleasant duty, it will force upon him the reluctant and very disagreeable necessity of presenting all parties to the Grand Jury, in obedience to the pledge now given, and the necessary protection of his own property. Every fair and proper means will be adopted to render a rigid course unnecessary, but the Manager's first duty will be to prevent the many being disturbed by the few, and he respectfully assures the public that however annoying and harrassing may be the duty, he will not shrink from its performance.

NO POSTPONEMENT ON ACCOUNT OF WEATHER. Ladies and Gentlemen are informed that they need not entertain any doubt of a performance taking place when the announcements are made, as the Manager will never, under any circumstances, consent to dismiss those, however few, who honor the Theatre with their presence. fe17-1t

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. Williams, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 13, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. Mr. Frazier presented the petition of Joseph E. Muse, of Dorchester county, praying aid from the state in cutting a canal from Transquakin river into Choptank river in said county.

Mr. Prestman presented the memorial of E. F. Chambers, Robt. W. Bowie and others, praying an act to incorporate the convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Diocese of Maryland, for certain purposes specified therein.

Mr. Nesbit presented the petition of citizens of Washington county, praying that the banks of this state may be allowed to issue small notes for a limited time.

Mr. Gaither, from committee on corporations reported a bill entitled an act to incorporate the Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Diocese of Maryland. Read and passed.

Mr. Brent made an unfavorable report upon the leave to bring in a bill to secure the right of property to females, which was concurred in.

Mr. Legrand reported a bill to provide for the destruction of the notes of insolvent banks in certain cases.

On motion of Mr. Holmes, the House took up the bill to divorce Catharine Peddicord of Baltimore City—a mensa et thoro. On motion of Mr. Holmes, the bill was amended so as to read, a vinculo matrimonii, and passed.

The Clerk of the Senate returned the bill to confer upon the corporation of Baltimore City power to collect taxes due said corporation—endorsed "will pass."

The House then resumed the consideration of the bill to amend the Constitution so far as it relates to the power of the Legislature to grant Lotteries.—The bill was made the order of the day for the 10th of March.

Mr. Jones of Somerset presented the proceedings of a public meeting in Baltimore City upon the subject of a constitutional amendment to grants of Lotteries.

The merits of the subject are again under discussion and probably will occupy the House some time.

SENATE. A supplement to the Act relating to the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company was reported.

The bill to incorporate the Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Maryland, which had previously passed the House, also passed the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15, 1841.

In little more than a fortnight the present session will have terminated, so until that blessed period, I presume there will be plenty to do.—After wasting, as usual, the first part of a session, the members now wake up and see the necessity of doing something before they go home. Each man thinks his business of the most importance, and the consequence is that from the competition which ensues, the time is wasted in doing nothing. When will the people send working instead of talking members? If they would elect merchants and plain common sense farmers, instead of gabbling lawyers, the business would go by steam.

General Harrison visited the House of Representatives this morning, and went through the process of shaking hands with many members of both parties. He looked better than he did last week. I understand he visits Alexandria to-day.

After the disposal of some private business, the House went into committee of the whole and resumed the consideration of the bill making appropriation for the civil and diplomatic expenses of government for the present year.

Quite a spirited debate arose on a proposition by Mr. Vanderpoel, to strike off a clerk from the force regularly employed in the office of the fifth auditor. In the course of the debate it was elicited from Whig members, that the test of the next administration for turning out officeholders, would be their interference in elections.

Mr. Graves also contributed his quota, and gave the clerks in office, collectively and individually, a stab under the fifth rib.

In the Senate the pension bill, with the amendment appropriating $100,000 for ending the Florida war, is under consideration.

DEFALCATION. A correspondent of the Boston Mail writes from Norwich, Ct., as follows:—Asa Childs, esq. late agent of the Rail Road Company, has turned out a defaulter to the company of upwards of $33,000. Mr. C. committed no less than eight forgeries in order to carry on his game of embezzlement—and that he perjured himself four times before the legislature, in order to obtain the grant of $400,000 to aid the rail road.

SENTENCED. John Rox, lately convicted of manslaughter at Philadelphia, was, on Saturday, sentenced by judge Barton to solitary confinement in the penitentiary for four years.

DISGRACEFUL. During the afternoon service in the Nazareth church in Philadelphia, on Sunday evening, one of the audience cried out that the lecturer, Mr. Sparry, was a "liar." He was immediately ejected.

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one, that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and be worthy of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1.50 each.

AGENCY. HOUSES, FARMS, VACANT LOTS, GROUND RENTS, LANDS, &c. bought and sold on commission. SLAVES, for life or a term of years, bought or sold on commission, and the highest prices obtained. Persons having slaves, which they wish to dispose of, will do well to apply at this office before selling.

N. B. All letters addressed to this office (post paid) thankfully received and promptly attended to.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

The Sawed Lumber may be of white or yellow pine, with not more than an inch of sap on two edges of the stick; free from large knots, shakes or decay of any kind. A portion of the 4¼x8 scantling may be proposed for to be furnished, of white oak, under the same conditions as to quality. The points of delivery may be at Baltimore, Georgetown, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any other point upon the line of the road, and the proposal will state the places as well as times at which the Lumber will be furnished.

Proposers to whom more than one of the places just named are accessible, will separately state their prices for delivery at each; so as to allow an option to the Company in regard to them should the proposal be accepted.

The hewn Timber, intended for the cross-ties and support-blocks, may be of white-oak, rock-oak or chesnut oak, or of chesnut. It must be sound wood, and straight in one direction. If the proposer prefers delivering it in the rough state, and does not wish to undertake the hewing of it to the required dimensions he can so word his proposal, and in that case the size of the sticks must be such as to permit them, when dressed, to be of the full dimensions specified, clear of bark and axe-kerf. If the timber is cut while the bark is loose, it must be stripped off before the delivery. The delivery may be made upon any point of the line, between Harper's Ferry and Cumberland, and the points between which it will take place must be stated. There are to every mile of track 31,680 feet board measure of 4¼x8, and 25,400 feet of 3x10 scantling, 1056 cross ties dressed to 4½ inches thick, and 302 dressed to 3 inches thick. Proposals will not be received for a less quantity of any of the kinds of timber, than will lay a mile of track.

The Castings for the chairs and plates will be of an easy pattern—they must be of strong and sound metal, and smoothly cast—the contractor furnishing the patterns. The screw bolts and nuts will be of sound, tough iron and made with exactness to the required form and size. The washers will be of bar-iron, rolled with the proper section, cut off and punched for the passage of the bolt. The zinc plates similarly made. The hook-headed spikes to be of iron of as good a quality as that of the screw bolts.

The Iron Fastenings just described may be delivered at Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any point of the line of the road between the two latter places and the places and times of delivery will be stated in the proposals. There are to every mile of track 7656 lbs. of castings—1584 lbs. of bolts and nuts—591 lbs. of iron washers—105 lbs. of zinc plates, and 2247 lbs. of spikes. No proposal for a less quantity than will supply 10 miles will be received.

Monthly estimates will be made of the quantities of each kind of materials so delivered and four fifths of the value at the contract prices will be paid thereon—reserving to the Company the option of paying the said four fifths in Baltimore City 6 per cent stock at par—or in the stock orders of the Company at par; and also reserving the option of paying for the remaining fifth in like manner, when the delivery of the whole quantity contracted for shall have been completed according to the contract.

If the materials contracted for or any part of them are not furnished at the times required, the Company may dissolve the contract and retain the one-fifth due on any which may have been already delivered, and no estimates or payments shall be made or on account of materials delivered before the time specified for commencing the delivery of the same. The monthly payments shall be made at the Company's offices in Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh, Virginia, at the option of the contactor, and the final payments shall be made in Baltimore. The manner and times in which the materials shall be furnished on the different parts of the line will be specifically provided for in the contracts, and particulars will be given on application to the undersigned. It will be required that about one half of the whole quantity of materials shall be delivered as early as possible between now and the 1st of December next. A model of the rail and its supports and fastenings will be ready for inspection at the Company's office in Baltimore by the 20th current. The proposals will be directed under seal to the subscriber, either at Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh—and will be received up to the 15th of March proximo. By order of the President and Directors,

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains as aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

CONSUMPTION.

To Dr. SWAYNE.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

CITY LYRICS—No. XXXI.

Huntil to hage ve grow;
It's "forvard two and back again,"
Vile Fortune draws the bow.
The sexes pair—then "ladies' chain"
And "'ands across"—my bies!
The 'usband comes 'ome "balances,"
Then "dos-a-dos" they lies."

Youth's but a gay and giddy waltz,
Our prime is but a reel;
Hold hage goes through a minuet,
Vith trembling "toe and heel."
The cat-gut speaks—prince Murray's voice
I heard 'bahove the din,
And forth the hangel creatures dart,
The quadrille to begin.

And noddin' plume and shinin' helm,
And trappins bright vere there;
But none shone like the ladies' hies
Vot glisten'd hevery vere.
Some moved jist like a floating dream,
(That simile's my hown,)
They had no vings—'tis veil 'twas so,
Or helse they vould have flown.

"There's Chips!" says von, "I know him by The vay he scrutinizes!"
A smart girl that—she'll set the Falls
A fire ven it rises.
A queen for hany king;
A vitching smile—moves like a swan,
But rather too LANGUISHING!

Yon PETITE beauty takes my hye,
Looks downcast like a saint;
The ROSE and LILY on her cheeks—
But then—"look hout for paint."
The bee vot soars o'er flowery fields,
And don't know vere to light,
Vos never his so hal a fix
As I vos hon that night.

So many sweets—and hall so rich!
(To me they vere quite sour,)
I scarce could hanswer vich vos vich,
Or vich von had most power.
Silence that dreadful fiddle there!
Make vay for creams, blanc manges,
Kisses and comfits, lemonade,
And hother things vot strange is.

Make vay for me! I cannot bear
To see the ladies munchin',
The hangel stoops to flesh and blood,
Vene'er they eat a luncheon.
The Deacon's mellow voice I 'ear,
George sweeps the hivory keys—
And yonder his a minstrel band
Singin' 'armonious glees.

Music!—'ow dull this life would be
Vithout thy fairy spell!
Man vould be wrapt in sollitude,
Vile joy vould sigh farewell!
Long life, say I, to each Cadet,
And some good fightin' too;
Ven Huncle Sam vonce calls 'em bout,
He'll find 'em hall TRUE BLUE.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 15, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. Mr. Weems, Chairman of the Committee on Inspections, delivered a report, which contained the result of the investigation of the Committee, who were authorised to visit Baltimore for the better discharge of the duty, which the orders of the 5th and 10th of January had imposed upon them.

The Committee have reported that Warehouse No. 1 requires some alterations and repairs, which will cost, agreeably to an estimate they had made, the sum of fourteen hundred and forty four dollars and two cents. And from a minute examination of Warehouse No. 3 the Committee are of opinion that the entire part of the old building attached thereto, will require to be taken down and rebuilt as being no longer safe. The Committee also considered it inexpedient to reduce the outage on Tobacco. The report was read and made the order of the day for Thursday the 18th inst.

Mr. Holmes from the Committee on divorces made an unfavorable report upon the petition of Henry Elliott, praying to be divorced from his wife Celeste Elliott.

Mr. Frazier, Chairman of same Committee, offered as a substitute for said report, a bill entitled an act to divorce Henry Elliott of Baltimore City from his wife Celeste Elliott. On motion of Mr. Frazier said report and substitute were laid on the table.

Mr. Graves reported a bill "to provide for the re-organization of the City Court of Baltimore, and for the more prompt administration of justice in said City. On motion of Mr. Graves, made the order of the day for Monday the 22d inst.

Mr. Graves presented the petition of Thomas Jenkins, Jno. Dominey, Chas. Turner, and others praying to be incorporated as the Newington Beneficial Society of Baltimore.

Mr. Legrand presented the petition of Thos. W. Norman, praying to be placed on the pension roll for services rendered during the war of the revolution.

The bill reported by Mr. Nisbet to reduce and establish a uniform system of charges by Notaries Public, on all protested notes, drafts and bills of Exchange, was taken up for consideration, passed and sent to the Senate.

Mr. Bowie, Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, reported a bill to raise revenue for the support of Government, which was read and ordered to be printed.

SENATE. The Committee on Corporations reported favorably on the bill to incorporate the German Hermann Beneficial Society of Baltimore. Also favorably upon the bill to incorporate the Jackson Beneficial Society of Baltimore, severally read and passed.

VOL. III. NO. 133.] WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 17, 1841. [PRICE ONE CENT.

CITY COURT—FEBRUARY TERM.

Present—Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington.

Tuesday, Feb. 16. The jury in the case of James Brown, negro, who was tried yesterday for stealing a ham of bacon, came into Court this morning with a sealed verdict of not guilty. The prisoner "saved his bacon."

James Simmons, negro, was put upon trial, charged with stealing from Messrs. Bull & Tuttle, proprietors of the Clipper, 20 half dollars and two $20 bank notes. Mr. Bull stated that the counting room of the office had been frequently pilfered—the amount stolen at differeht times was about $30—the office was afterwards robbed on a Saturday night of $135—one night on going into the counting room, found the prisoner coming from behind the counter where the money drawer was—went to the drawer—found in the lock a false key which would unlock and lock it—found on top of the standing press a key which fitted the counting room door—at another time found part of a key in the lock of one of the desks, which had been broken off in it—the prisoner continued in their employ until the last robbery was committed—he was then arrested. Mr. Wills stated that he heard that there had been an attempt to break jail by the prisoners—went to the jail to learn the facts—while there the prisoner came to him, and in conversation admitted that he had taken the first amounts of money, but denied taking the 135 dollars. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

William Hill, negro, was put upon trial, charged with having stolen one coat, the property of Philip Bond. Mr. Bond stated that he was at work at the house of Mr. Doyle—pulled off his coat, and shortly afterwards when he went to get it found it gone—understood that the prisoner and another negro had been in the house when the coat was there—went in search of them—found the prisoner and the other negro—the prisoner had the coat on his back—it was an overcoat—the prisoner said that he had bought it for fifty cents, but was not able to tell from whom. Mr. Doyle corroborated the statement of Mr. Bond. The jury returned a verdict of guilty.

James Ellenger was put upon trial, charged with having obtained from —— Beck a horse upon false pretences, and with committing an assault upon him. It appeared that the parties had agreed to trade horses and there grew some dispute out of the bargain, and that Ellenger afterwards obtained the horse from Beck, and committed an assault upon him. The state failed to prove the false pretence. The Court declared him not guilty of the false pretence, and guilty of the assault. Fined $5 and costs.

James Wagner was placed in the bar, charged with stealing one coat. The material witness being absent and out of the city, and not knowing what time he would return, the state's attorney said that upon the testimony of the other witnesses he could not ask for a conviction, consequently he was discharged.

The case of Henry Gunter, charged with manslaughter, was postponed on account of the absence of James M. Buchanan, Esq., his counsel, from the city, until next Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

A jury was empannelled to-day to try the case of John Robinson, negro, charged with having aided and assisted a slave, the property of Mrs. Hanna, to escape from his owner. The case will be tried to-morrow morning.

The Court adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

INTERESTING. One of the earliest records in relation to the settlement of Pennsylvania is at present to be found in the office at Harrisburg; it purports to be an original letter from William Penn to the Indians, then the inhabitants of this county, written by him at London, and supposed to have been sent to America through his interpreter previous to his arrival here. The document itself is composed of parchment, written in the "good old fashioned" style, and presents a very antiquated appearance. It remained for many years filed away amongst other records of the State, but has very recently been framed and hung up in the Secretary's office as an object of curiosity.

The letter breathes a spirit of justice, and is full of that piety and simplicity which characterized the whole life of the illustrious founder of our commonwealth.

"To the Emperor of Canada:

"The Great God that made thee and me, and all the world, incline our hearts together as becomes the workmanship of the Great God. The King of England who is a great Prince hath for divers reasons granted to me a large Country in America, which however I am willing to enjoy upon friendly terms with thee—And this I will say that the people who come with me are a just, plain and honest people that neither make war upon others nor fear war from others because they will be just—I have set up a Society of Traders in my Province to traffic with thee and thy people for your commodities, that you may be furnished with that which is good at reasonable rates—And that Society has ordered their President to treat with thee about a future Trade, and have joined with me to send this Messenger to thee with certain Presents from us to testify our willingness to have a fair correspondence with thee—And what this Agent shall do in our names we will agree unto—I hope thou wilt kindly receive him and comply with his desires on our behalf, both with respect to Land and Trade

"The Great God be with thee—Amen.

"PHILIP THEODORE LEHMAN, Sec'y.

"WM. PENN.

"London, the 21st day of fourth month, called June, 1682."

It will be recollected that William Penn landed here in October, 1682, several months after the date of this document.—Phil. Ledger.

SUICIDE. In China, Kennebec Co. Me. a few days since, an accomplished young lady, of respectable parents, cut her throat with a razor, having previously written some letters and prepared a comfortable pillow for her head.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY. A fellow named Hamilton was arrested on Saturday last in New York, and bailed in $1000, for robbing Wm. M. Tyler, of Maine, of his watch and five dollars.

FROM TEXAS. By the Neptune which arrived yesterday from Galveston, says the N. O. Bulletin of the 4th, we received Texas papers to the 30th ult. We find in them but little news.

After an intermission of twenty days, a mail had been received from Austin. A general bankrupt law had been passed by Congres, which it is believed would receive the sanction of the President. Thos. W. Ward has been appointed Commissioner of the General Land Office. Heavy rains still continue, and such is the state of the roads, that travelling by day is nearly abandoned.

The Texas papers contain some new versions of old rumors, to the effect that the Mexicans are concentrating a force on the Rio Grande, for the purpose of invading Texas—but it is acknowledged the same wants confirmation—these papers are entirely in error—the Mexicans are not sending a force against Texas.

FIRE AT CLINTON, MISS. On the night of Sunday last, between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock, says the Vicksburg Whig, a fire broke out in the Rail Road depot at Clinton, by which that structure was entirely consumed, together with its valuable contents. The loss is variously estimated; by some gentlemen with whom we have conversed it is rated as high as $40,000. This is, perhaps, an overestimate. About 200 bales of cotton were consumed, and a large amount of merchandize. Two brothers, we are informed, lost goods to the value of $15,000.

There are several travellers from Cochin-China, now in Paris. They lately made their appearance at the levee of the Minister of Commerce. They were superbly dressed, in grand costume, that is to say, they appeared in robes de chambre. They came to Paris in consequence of being despatched by their sovereign, to study the French manners. When they see any thing striking, they draw from their girdles a covered tablet of Chinese paper, ink, and a pencil, and write down their observations, even in the middle of the street, nothing disturbs them. They are said to be men of good education, and highly distinguished in their native country.

MATRIMONIAL SQUABBLE. "Vy," said the lady, "it a'nt no use belonging to you, no how!—Vere's the benefit I gets by it? I never has none of your earnings, nor nothen." "Vy, now," expostulated her mate, 'vot is it you be arter' Vot does the 'oman vish? Vos'n you drunk o' Monday, corned o' Tuesday, drunk o' Wednesday, corned o' Thursday, drunk o' Friday, and corned again now? Vot would you 'ave? I suppose you vants to be a hangel next."

The Grand Jury of Tipperary in Ireland, had lately under consideration the propriety of building a new county jail, and came to the following resolutions, which were published in the newspapers.

1st, Resolved, That the present jail is insufficient and that another ought to be built.

2d. Resolved. That the materials of the old jail be employed in the new one.

3d. Resolved, That the old jail shall not be taken down until the new one be finished.

DAMAGES. James Murray, a fireman on the South Carolina Canal and Rail Road Company, having received a serious personal injury by an accident to the locomotive, caused by the negligence of the engineer, brought suit against the company, and recovered $1,500.

The case will be taken before the court of errors, who are of opinion that the damages in such a case connot be recovered.

THE OHIO PENITENTIARY. By the report of the Warden of this establishment it appears that on the 1st of December there were in the Penitentiary 488 convicts; of these 434 are white males, and 47 colored males, 3 white females and 4 colored females.

NEW COUNTERFEIT. It is stated in the Terre Haute Courier that counterfeit $50 Indiana certificates are in circulation there. The engraving is well done, but the paper is better than the genuine, and the filling up badly done.

☞ The Philadelphia Inquirer says there is not the slightest foundation in the rumored defalcations on the part of certain officers in the United States Bank.

☞ At the time the U. S. Bank suspended specie payments, her notes in circulation amounted to about $2,800,000, and her deposites at all points to $1,100,000.

SUIT AGAINST THE BANK. On Monday afternoon Alderman Binns gave judgment against the U. S. Bank on a suit for the specie promised on two of their ten dollar bills.

COLD IN THE WEST. Saturday, Sunday and Monday, the 16th, 17th and 18th ult. the thermometer stood at twenty degrees below zero, at Fayette, Missouri.

ESCAPE OF MCLEOD. The N. Y. Planet says: It is rumored that McLeod has made his escape from the jail of Niagara county.

MASONIC. A bill is now pending before the Senate of Ohio, for the incorporation of the Grand Lodge of Ohio.

ACCIDENT. A man named Leopold Waterman was accidentally killed on the West Branch Rail Road a day or two since.

THE NEW YORK POST OFFICE CLERKS have been attacked by some of the papers, charging them with negligence and carelessness in the performance of their duty, and attribute the detention of newspapers to them. In the N. Y. Sun is given a statement of the precise time at which each of the clerks arrived at the newspaper office for the preceding week, which shows that none of them have been later than half past five, which proves that they have been undeservedly accused.

INSANE ASYLUM. A plan of the proposed asylum for the insane poor of Pennsylvania has been drawn by Mr. Strickland, the architect. It is intended to be 350 feet front, and calculated to accommodate 300 males and females. The estimated cost of the building is $104,000. The bill before the Legislature appropriates $120,000 to its erection.

MCLEOD AFFAIR. The British Colonist (official paper) of February 3d, says "that Gov. Arthur has forwarded despatches to the Governor General, and also to Mr. Fox, British Minister at Washington, in reference to the recent proceedings which took place at Lockport in relation to this individual.

SUMMARY JUSTICE. A petition has been presented to the legislature of Mississippi, praying that all the rogues of the state be disposed of in a summary manner, by "hanging all public defaulters and banishing the swindlers."

AVON THEATRE. We learn from the Norfolk Beacon, that Miss Virginia Monier has rented the Avon Theatre for a short term commencing on the 8th March next, Forrest is to open with her.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE HUDSON. The Common Council at Albany have passed resolutions uniting with the prayers of the petitioners for a bridge across the Hudson at Albany.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P.M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S.C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M. reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M. "	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M. "	Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M. "	Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M. "	Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M. "	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M. "	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M. "	Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, which cannot be delayed, and is almost entirely a Rail Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection throughout, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads, Weather and Storms!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, Feb. 17, 1841.

☞By some unaccountable mistake we failed to receive our Washington correspondence last night.

DEFAULTERS. We have new terms for every thing. Harsh epithets applied to the grossest offences are considered ungenteel. A man runs in debt and cheats his creditors, and is called unfortunate: an officer steals money from a bank or from government, and he is a defaulter. In fact the public have become so much accustomed to witness these villainous acts, that they have ceased to be even a nine-days' wonder. It is considered much more extraordinary to find a man who, having the opportunity, declines to turn robber. We shall not imitate our cotemporaries in the use of "holiday terms," and hope that the period is not distant when punishment will be certain to follow crime. In respect to appointments under the general government care should be taken to exclude all who, from habit, would be likely to spend more than they earn—in other words, whose habits of extravagance are stronger than their moral principles—for, in the hands of such men, the public money can never be safe. If bank directors choose to make bad selections of officers, or wilfully divest themselves of all control over them, the remedy, as the loss, is with the stockholders: with public officers the loss is general. We believe that General Harrison will come into the Presidential chair resolved to administer the affairs of government with purity and uprightness. He will necessarily have to make many appointments, and it is here that the greatest caution will be required. We have no pretensions to be of his council or to know his mind; but from the opinion we have formed of his character, we have reason to hope, that he will grant office only where he has the full assurance that the applicant is honest and capable. To ascertain these points street certificates will not be required—for signatures could be got to hang any man as readily as to advance him to office. They are frequently given without investigation, taking it for granted that the object for which they are asked has been justly stated. Touching the confidence which may be reposed in the integrity of applicants for office, it may be well for the President to invariably require evidence that they have heretofore acted honestly—for it is generally a correct criterion to determine what a man will be, by what he has been. It would be as easy to wash the Ethiop white, as to cure a rogue of his propensity to plunder. An unfortunate man in private life is apt to become the defaulter in public office. We do not mean this of the truly unfortunate—they have our commisseration and respect. We are speaking of that class of the unfortunate whom our fathers would have designated swindlers—who spend whilst they have credit, and cheat when they have none. "Let no such man be trusted."

CITY APPOINTMENTS. We have uniformly opposed proscription for difference of opinion, and have recently expressed our ideas very freely in regard to appointments under the general government. We think that it would be a happy circumstance if a spirit of liberality in the matter of public officers could be infused into the authorities, national, state and city. A just and liberal system cannot and will not be partially adopted. If proscription be practised by the minor authority, it will be extended throughout, and a perpetual changing of officers will be the consequence. We have no objection to regular rotation in office, where the law, and not party, dismisses the incumbent; but we shall continue to oppose the abominable principle that "to the victors belong the spoils," because we think it highly demoralizing and extremely prejudicial to the public interests. It has no reference to the talents or integrity of the recipient of favor, but confers power and wealth where they will be most serviceable to party views; and looks with a lenient eye upon trespasses, if the transgressor be a shrewd and active politician.

A new president of one party is about to be installed in office. The governor of the state and the mayor of our city are of the opposite party. Thus situated, proscription by the the one party will be retaliated by the other; for it is not to be presumed that the friends of either side will quietly submit to be sacrificed. The period has nearly arrived when the mayor will have to make his nominations of officers. If he pursue the sweeping policy, and "divide the spoils" among his political friends, the sweep will no doubt be retaliated—and thus this see-saw game will be perpetuated. We believe that if the mayor would set the example of liberality, he would do much towards breaking down the office-seeking disposition which unhappily prevails to so great an extent. We think that the public mind is prepared to rejoice over the death of the monster proscription; and to contest future elections upon principles of policy, and not upon the claims of individuals to reward.

We do not expect that our ideas upon the subject of appointments will be approved by the office-hunters on either side; but we write for the interests of the community, and not those of individuals, and are therefore indifferent to the opinions of those who are governed by interest alone. However liberal principles may have gone out of fashion, we have not ceased to recognize their propriety, and shall continue to advocate what we belive to be right, though certain to see practised what we know to be wrong.

A meeting of the stockholders of the United States Bank was held at the City Hotel, New York, yesterday evening.

FASHIONABLE FOLLY. We gave, a few days since, an extract from an article on the Island of Cyprus, written by General Cass, and published in the Southern Literary Messenger. In the same article we find the following admirable hit at one of the dirtiest of Fashion's follies. The general after describing the personal appearance of a Turkish governor, with his "black flowing beard," proceeds:

"It is Gibbon, we believe, who somewhere says, there is little probability that a civilized people, who have once renounced the custom of wearing beards, will ever resume it. But the acuteness of this shrewd observer failed him in this remark. He did not count enough upon foppery and folly. He was a better historian than prophet. From the progress already made in the revival of hairy envelopes for the countenance, and the consequent destruction of much of its expression, he would be a bold writer, who would now renew the prediction of the historian of the Lower Empire. For ourselves, we confess that we never see the lip disfigured by these protuberances, fit only to defile the drink which is brought to the mouth, without a mixed feeling of dislike and contempt. And whether upon the Boulevards of Paris, or the Broadway of New York, if we meet a young fop with more hair upon his face than brains in his head, turning up his nose, and twisting his whiskers, or mustaches, or imperials, or favoris—or whatever other title the emptiness of fashion may have given them, —our mind is instantly carried back to the dirty, miserable streets of Jerusalem, where this operation may be seen in all the vigor of its native climate. There we have many times passed the beggars, as wretched as hunger, nakedness and hopelessness can make them, extended under a powerful Syrian sun, and curling and twisting their mustaches, with all the pride of an American or European dandy! So much for taste."

We know not how it is that ladies tolerate these hairy monsters. We always associate the mustache and imperial with an empty head; for we cannot believe that a man possessed of common sense will wantonly wear his visage with unseemly disfiguration. A kiss from an animal of this description must be as pleasant as that from the goat; and a delicate female would probably hesitate as to which she would prefer.—People have visited menageries to see wild animals eat, but we think that a Dandy of the first water would be a superior attraction; for it must require some dexterity to swallow soup without sending the floating mustache after it. Perhaps they hold up the mustache with one hand and feed with the other. We know not how they contrive, and have more curiosity to witness the operation than to see wild animals bolt their food. We think the fashion disgusting in the extreme, and marvel that any man who aspires to associate with respectable people, should thus endeavor to resemble the brute. But let the frost be ever so severe it never kills all the fools—some will be left to propagate the species.

NATIONAL DEFENCE. In the Senate on Monday last an incidental discussion arose on the presentation by Mr. Merrick, of a memorial from the Mayor and City Councils of Baltimore, praying for an appropriation to commence the construction of fortifications on Sollers' Point; in which Mr. Preston took occasion to speak of the necessity of adopting a general system of defence for the country—and he expressed the opinion that, although adequate measures could not be matured and acted upon at the present session of Congress, for the want of time and means, yet that the necessary preparations would be made at an early day. He was in favor of adopting an efficient plan of national defence, and believed that there was a general conviction of the necessity of the measure.

We are pleased that this distinguished Senator has taken the subject in hand, and hope that he will seize the earliest opportunity of again presenting and enforcing his views. A proper system of defence is absolutely necessary, unless we mean to fall behind the spirit of the age, and become the subject of insult and aggression. To put our extensive seaboard in a proper condition of defence will require heavy outlay, but as it is essential to the preservation of the honor and interest of our country, the expense should be no consideration. We must only cut down unnecessary expenditures—curtail members' speeches and levy duties on articles of luxury. We have ample resources for every exigency—and have only one evil which seems incurable—that is, the interminable harangues of the bellows-blowers of the house of representatives. Nothing short of paralysis of the tongue can prevent them from "speaking out their speech."

MCLEOD. Whatever feeling of resentment may be entertained against the British government on account of the avowal by Mr. Fox, that the affair of the Caroline was an authorized act, McLeod, who has been indicted as a participant in that affair, should not be prematurely condemned in public opinion, but have a fair and unprejudiced trial. In the fever of excitement it should be remembered that the life of an individual (and that individual too, perhaps, innocent,) is at stake, and that we are called upon by every principle of justice and humanity, to afford him the opportunity to defend himself against the charge. It is possible that McLeod had no agency in the destruction of the Caroline or the murders which were committed. His attorneys have published an account of the recent illegal and unjustifiable proceedings in his case, in which they express the conviction that he is innocent. However this may be, he is under the protection of law, and should be sustained in all his legal rights. Popular indignation, however it may be directed against the British government, should have no influence in determining the fate of McLeod. His guilt or innocence is yet to be ascertained by an impartial jury, and hence it is improper to publish inflammatory appeals which may have a bearing upon his trial.

NOMINATION. George W. Krebs, Esq. was last evening nominated by the whigs of the 9th ward, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Samuel Harden, Esq. in the Second Branch of the City Council.

CITY COUNCIL. First Branch, Feb. 16, 1841. Present, Mr. Snyder, President, and all the members.

Mr. Hanson presented a petition signed Stephen Currey, inviting attention to his model of a bridge. Referred to the joint committee on bridges.

Mr. Pinkney presented the petition of James Craig, relative to claims upon the city for advertising. Referred to the committee on claims.

Mr. Cole from the Sixth ward, arose and read a petition signed John Hillen and others, relative to the removal of the bridges on Jones' Falls, which was presented to the councils April 22d, 1840. On motion, Mr. Cole was permitted to withdraw said document from the archives of the corporation and have it referred to the joint committee on bridges.

Mr. Bender presented the report of the joint committee on ways and means, relative to the issue of small notes for change by the city corporation, which was unfavorable. The committee were of opinion that inasmuch as the President and Directors of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company had consented to issue notes of a less denomination than one dollar, any motion on the part of the city in reference to that subject would be unnecessary.

Mr. Peregoy offered a resolution relative to the removal of obstructions caused by the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road on Amity-st. Laid on the table.

The bill in relation to the inspection of flaxseed, was returned from the Second Branch not concurred in.

Mr. Cole moved that a joint committee of conference be appointed to confer upon the flaxseed bill, which was agreed to. The committee consists of Messrs. Cole, Hanson, and J. S. Brown. This bill has been called up frequently. We are of opinion if it is pressed a little further the erudite councillors may get to the oil. Messrs. Jones, Boyd and Reaney were appointed as a committee on the part of the Second Branch.

Mr. Bender presented the report of the joint committee on ways and means, relative to the disposition of certain state stock held by the corporation; accompanying which was an ordinance to dispose of the same for purposes therein mentioned.

Mr. Pinkney presented the petition of Charles R. Barney and others, relative to the presentation of certain grounds owned by them, located in McHenry street, extending from Cove street to the west side of Amity alley. Referred to the committee on streets.

A message was received from the Second Branch, which was a report from the committee on streets, relative to the petition of W. Minifie. Favorable. The subject was laid on the table to consider proposed amendments.

Mr. Cole presented the report of the joint committee on markets, relative to the petition of John R. Wright and others, in reference to the standing of wagons near the market house. Favorable.

On motion of Mr. Keyser, the council adjourned until to-morrow afternoon at half past three o'clock.

JUPITER. Our Georgetown correspondent who bears this distinguished name, has sent us an epistle general, commencing with King John, and terminating with the proceedings of the Union Literary Society a few evenings since. As he wishes the fact known, we state, that England has no written constitution. For his historical facts it may be sufficient to refer the reader to Hume's History of England. He gives us, however, one important piece of information which we cannot withhold, that is, that the successor of John "died for the want of breath." He must surely have been reading Peter Pindar, who says,

"What is death,
"But a little loss of breath?"

It seems that Mr. Batcheler delivered a lecture on a "Congress of Nations" before the Union Literary Society; but our correspondent thinks the idea of settling disputes by such a reference perfectly utopian, and we dare say he is correct. This over, the question, "Does the English constitution partake more of republicanism than despotism?" was eloquently argued by Mr. Harrison and Mr. Dimitry, the latter of whom Jupiter terms the lion of the day.

INTRODUCTORY LECTURE. We have read with real pleasure the introductory lecture delivered before the Library Association of the Mechanical Fire Company, by the rev. W. E. Wyatt. From the acknowledged talents and piety of the reverend lecturer, an address replete with moral and religious instruction, conveyed in chaste and forcible terms, might have been anticipated. For such a lecture we were prepared; but our expectations have been much more than realized—for the lecture which we have just perused is one of the happiest efforts of the kind we have ever seen; and we are convinced that no one can read it attentively without admiration and esteem for its author, and the mental determination to reform whatever may have been amiss in former conduct. It is a powerful appeal to all, but particularly to youth; and the mild and persuasive manner in which the lecturer enforces the necessity of moral and religious observances, must have made the most favorable impression upon his auditory. We are glad to see this lecture in print, and hope that it may be extensively circulated.

FRONT STREET THEATRE. To-night this elegant establishment opens for the season with the romantic drama of Gil Blas, and the tragedy of Jane Shore.

Mr. Ward, the persevering Manager, has made extensive preparations, such as cannot but insure for the Front street a most brilliant season. If he pursues the course marked out in his card to the public, we are confident that the drama, in this city, will be speedily aroused from its lethargy, and that the play-going community will heartily reciprocate his laudible endeavors.

BALTIMORE MARKET,
February 16, 1841.

Flour. The Flour market continues dull. We quote Howard street at $4.50 for good common brands. The wagon price continues at $4.37½. City Mills is held at $4.62½.

Grain. We have no change to note in the price of Grain. We quote Red Wheats, nominally, at 90 cents. There is, however, but little in market. White Corn, best sale, 43a44 cents. Oats 30a32 cents, according to quality. Cloverseed, $5.12½a$5.25. There is not much demand for the article.

Provisions. Mess pork $15; New mess beef $12.50; No. 1 $10.50; prime $8.50a9. Baltimore cured hams 10a10½c. Sides 8c. Assorted western 7½. Frederick county do. 7½ cts. Hams do. 9a10 cents. Western Lard, No. 1, in kegs, 8c. Same description in bbls. 6¼a7½. There is but little doing in butter. Glades Butter No. 1, 18a21c., &c. according to quality. Western we quote at 7a8c.

The market has been well stocked with beef cattle. We quote at $6a$7.50 per 100 lbs. according to quality. Live hogs $5.75a$6 per 100 lbs.

Whiskey. We quote in hhds. 20½; in bbls. 22½a23 cents. Wagon price, exclusive of the bbl. 18 cents.

FAILURES. The Philadelphia Spirit of the Times says it was rumored in that city on Saturday and Monday that several heavy failures had occurred in New York and Philadelphia, which will add greatly to the embarrassments of business and finance. Messrs. Pope & Aspenwall of Philadelphia have "stopped" for upwards of $400,000, and a branch of the same firm in New York, it is said, has also suspended with a large list of debts. The firm of Christmas, Livingston and Ward, late Prime, Ward and King, bankers, of the latter city, have also failed for an immense amount. These gentlemen were extensive speculators in stocks, and are the agents of several banks in Canada.

MONTHLY BUDGET. This publication is devoted to science, literature and art, and is edited and published by J. Austin Sperry, corner of North and Fayette streets, at $2 per annum. The February number is before us, and is well filled with original and selected articles, in prose and verse; and is embellished with a lithograph representation of the Cathedral, and an account of that building. We hope that the proprietor may receive adequate encouragement.

A STUBBORN HORSE. Yesterday evening a horse, attached to a hack which was passing down Market street, seemed to say to himself when at the corner of Gay street—"thus far will I go and no farther." While his comrade pulled forward he pulled back, bidding defiance to all around. The animal continued thus stubborn for the space of a half hour, when a large body of people collected to witness the scene. The animal, after receiving many stripes, found obedience to be the better part of valor, and walked off docile as a lamb.

U. S. BANK. We learn by the Philadelphia Standard that the Directors of the United States Bank have prepared an able and manly memorial to the Legislature, in which the causes that induced the late suspension, the vigorous but unavailing action of that institution to withstand them, its services to the Commonwealth, etc. are truthfully and well portrayed, and in which the same favor that shall be awarded to any of the institutions is asked for the whole.

THE LECTURE. The lecture delivered last evening by J. P. Kennedy, Esq., before the Mercantile Library Association, on the "Instinct of Society," was attended by a very large auditory of ladies and gentlemen. It was among the most instructive. Every sentence was a maxim and a text from which might be written volumes. It was a monument of knowledge on whose top, fancy, to our mind, painted the eagle of American liberty.

THALIAN BALL. We will remind the reader that this is the evening of Mr. Griffith's ball, to be held at the Assembly Rooms. Mr. G. is said to be a celebrated dancer, and will amuse the company during the evening with a Hornpipe. It is reported that there will be much beauty and fashion in attendance. We shall go and see.

FIRE. Last evening, between seven and eight o'clock, a fire broke out in the machine shop attached to Share's foundry, situated on Falls Avenue, which with all its contents were speedily enveloped in flames. It was with difficulty that a stone dressing establishment adjoining was saved from suffering the same fate.

ORDINATIONS. Last Sabbath morning, at a meeting in Light street Church, nineteen Deacons were ordained to the Gospel Ministry, by the Rev. Bishop Waugh, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and on the same morning, in the Monument street Church, fifteen Elders were also ordained to the same holy office by the Rev. Bishop Morris.

BATTLE. We learn that on Saturday last a quarrel of a very serious nature took place in the Belle Air market, between two butchers, one of whom was dangerously injured with a meat hook in the affray. The wounded man is in a very critical condition. The other has succeeded in keeping clear of the police.

The southern mail yesterday morning brought no papers further south than Augusta, Geo. to the 11th. The Charleston dates are of the 11th and 12th inst.

STOCKS at Philadelphia, 15th inst.—$3,000 State 5's, 81a81¼; 32 shares United States Bank, 26¼a27; 630 Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Rail Road, 37a37¼.

DIED,

On the morning of the 16th inst. Dr. WM. N. BAKER, late Professor of Anatomy and Surgery in the University of Maryland.

On the 5th instant, WILLIAM H. MCGAW, in the 40th year of his age.

CONSUMPTION.

☞ Consumption, that fell Destroyer! More Proofs of the efficacy of Doctor SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP or WILD CHERRY, in relieving afflicted Man. To Dr. SWAYNE.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

Your friend, ABRAHAM SKINNER,
Crawford county, Pa.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time likely neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough to a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 50 cents per bottle.

DEBATE IN THE CITY COUNCIL. On Monday evening last a very spirited debate arose in the First Branch of the City Council, upon the subject of having a partition erected in the Police Office. A bill in relation to the matter had previously passed the branch, but upon subsequent reflections, was reconsidered and nullified. Mr. G. not being satisfied with the vote, determined to have the affair brought, like a Phœnix from its ashes, into new life. He accordingly offered a resolution requiring that the city treasurer be authorised to pay out of the treasury the sum of seventy-five dollars for the above purpose. A motion was made to amend the resolution by striking out the seventy-five, and placing in its stead the word fifty. All things were now "cocked and primed," and the trembling resolution ready for dissection—each member seemed "eager for the fight." The elements were first put in agitation by Mr. B., who arose and enquired of Mr. G. the specific object of the resolution. Mr. G. observed that the contemplated improvement was indispensable—that it was designed for a receptacle of stolen goods, and that it could also be used as a sanctum to hold secret converse with thieves—that in his opinion it would facilitate the ends of justice, and enable the high constable to make safe stolen goods which himself and assistant officers had, in the discharge of their duties, taken from thieves, from being stolen again by other thieves, when justice was seated on her throne, and the old thief or thieves were being publicly examined among a promiscuous crowd of honest men or thieves, pro. or con. as the thing might be, or as the fates would have it.

Mr. B. indulged in rather a warm Hudibrastic rejoinder. He had no notion that the corporate authorities should sanction the reception of stolen goods, thereby making the whole city of Baltimore liable to indictment under the common law for a criminal or penitentiary offence. He wished to be informed what this secret business meant, &c.

Mr. G. again replied, and stated that all public functionaries who were delegated authority to arrest crime and bring roguery to light were in the habit of having private rooms for private purposes, which were sacred to invasion by any but those who had regularly graduated for the entrance into so unapproachable a sanctum—and that the high constable being an instrument in the hands of justice, should and of right ought to have the wonted protection and the specific sanctum, in order that he might bring light out of darkness, and truth from secresy.

Here the President, Mr. S., descended from the chair. He opposed the resolution in a warm and elaborate speech. Police officers, he observed, were employed by the city to enforce and carry out its ordinances—that thief-catching was out of their regular line of business. There are others, he remarked, whose business more properly partakes of that character, such as constables, magistrates, &c.—that the city did not [illegible] to make a business of that. the crumbs falling from which belonged to others.

Mr. G. was up again, and went it like a Kentucky lawyer on board a Mississippi steamboat. He appealed for the justness of his cause to the almost intuitive, self-evident knowledge of his brother magistrate upon the point at issue, and then dropped the subject, when Mr. P. that corpulent gentleman, who treads lightly upon the surface of mother earth, arose and made a speech, which, for uniqueness and brevity, cannot be qualled—it is as follows: Mr. Chairman—"N. suff ced." O. K. said we to ourself, when curtain dropped. The resolution was lost. P.—no partition.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objectionus; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

☞ Price one dollar per box. For sale in Baltimore by SETH S. HANCE, ja11-y Corner of Charles and Pratt streets.

A portion of the 4½x8 scantling may be proposed for to be furnished, of white oak, under the same conditions as to quality. The points of delivery may be at Baltimore, Georgetown, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any other point upon the line of the road, and the proposal will state the places as well as times at which the Lumber will be furnished.

Proposers to whom more than one of the places just named are accessible, will separately state their prices for delivery at each; so as to allow an option to the Company in regard to them should the proposal be accepted.

Proposals will not be received for a less quantity of any of the kinds of timber, than will lay a mile of track.

The Castings for the chairs and plates will be of an easy pattern—they must be of strong and sound metal, and smoothly cast—the contractor furnishing the patterns. The screw-bolts and nuts will be of sound, tough iron and made with exactness as to the required form and size. The washers will be of bar-iron, rolled with the proper section, cut off and punched for the passage of the bolt. The zinc plates similarly made. The hook-headed spikes to be of iron of as good a quality as that of the screw bolts.

The Iron Fastenings just described may be delivered at Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any point of the line of the road between the two latter places and the places and times of delivery will be stated in the proposals. There are to every mile of track 7656 lbs. of castings—1584 lbs. of bolts and nuts—591 lbs. of iron washers—105 lbs. of zinc plates, and 2247 lbs. of spikes. No proposal for a less quantity than will supply 10 miles will be received.

Monthly estimates will be made of the quantities of each kind of materials so delivered and four fifths of the value at the contract prices will be paid for the said four fifths in Baltimore City 6 per cent stock at par—or in the stock orders of the Company at par; and also reserving the option of paying for the remaining fifth in like manner, when the delivery of the whole quantity contracted for shall have been completed according to the contract.

If the materials contracted for or any part of them are not furnished at the times required, the Company may dissolve the contract and retain the one-fifth due on any which may have been already delivered, and no estimates or payments shall be made or on account of materials delivered before the time specified for commencing the delivery of the same. The monthly payments shall be made at the Company's offices in Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh, Virginia, at the option of the contactor, and the final payments shall be made in Baltimore. The manner and times in which the materials shall be furnished on the different parts of the line will be specifically provided for in the contracts, and particulars will be given on application to the undersigned. It will be required that about one half of the whole quantity of materials shall be delivered as early as possible between now and the 1st of December next. A model of the rail and its supports and fastenings will be ready for inspection at the Company's office in Baltimore by the 20th current. The proposals will be directed under seal to the subscriber, either at Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh—and will be received up to the 15th of March proximo. CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains as aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

TO M * * *.

All nature wears a smile of joy,
All things are bright and fair,
Yet I am sad the while and sigh,
Because thou art not near.

The feathered songsters warbling notes
Swell out upon the air,
Could I but be as light as they,
As free from every care.

Could I but range these hills, and gaze
With joy upon the scene,
And listen to the streamlet flow
Along you vale so green.

Could I but join you mirthful throng,
And mingle with their joy,
And could I feel that perfect peace
That never knows alloy.

But no! my M * * * dwells in climes
Beyond the swelling seas,
Go bear my sighs along to her,
Ye gentle evening breeze.

Oh! haste thee here, my love, to dwell
Beneath thy native skies,
For me all nature then shall bloom,
And joys around me rise. S * * * * *.

PRAIRIE SKETCHES.

A DUEL WITHOUT SECONDS. The two opponents stood, with pistols cocked and pointed, looking, with firm and unwavering glance, into each other's eyes. There was not another thing of life, save the summer insects, to be seen around the far prospect. The smoking carcass of a newly slaughtered buffalo cow lay between the young men, and the last breath had scarcely escaped from the poor brute at the moment of which we are speaking.

It was noon day. Some two hours before, the scene had been enlivened by the passing of an extensive trading company, and the duellists were two young men who had remained behind in pursuance of their sport. They were close friends, had known each other from boyhood, and through long years of intimacy had reciprocated a warm attachment and esteem. They stood now, with deadly determination flashing in their eyes, each waiting for the other to speak the fatal word of destruction. Not a spectator was there to mark the indomitable bearing of the friends so suddenly and strangely turned against each other.—There was a pause, in which the very insects and the motionless atmosphere seemed to join, and the dark, glaring orb of the dead cow stood open, as if its wrathful spirit was still lingering there to witness the bloody spectacle about to be enacted.

Let us return now and learn how trivial a cause brought about this serious disposition of affairs.—The two young friends, in full chase of the cow, had fired at the same instant, one with a large horse pistol, the other with a shot gun charged with a rifle ball. Each was proud of his aim, and in the excitement of the moment each claimed the honor of having given the mortal wound.—One ball was planted in the liver, as was proved by the beast spouting blood before death. The other was dug from the fleshy shoulder, several inches above the hunter's well known mark and in a part where no mortal injury can possibly be given to a buffalo.

"It is your ball; own it," said the youngest o the two friends, as he stripped the skin from the yet breathing beast, and tore out the ball that lay flattened against the bone.

"It is a lie, sir," said the other, shame for the word he had spoken instantly heightening his irritation, while stubborn pride arose to forbid retraction.

They were youths of fiery mould. Neither, to preserve the last ebbing drop of life, could stoop to suffer a degradation. It was a too chivalrous and subtle temperament that made them wanderers at this time in the wild regions of the west. The young hunter, still upon his knees by the bleeding buffalo, lifted the ball above his head, and swore to plant it in the heart of his companion unless the reproachful word was withdrawn.

"Load then," said the other, coolly, as he plunged his knife in the buffalo's throat, preparatory to extracting the tongue.

The young man shot off the contents of a pistol in the air, and then proceeded to reload, charging his weapon with the devoted bullet.

"Do you take back the word?" said the insulted youth.

"No," was the cool response.

"Then get up and fight, and don't compel me to murder you."

"It must be murder if either you or I should die here," said the elder of the companions;—"for no witness is present to testify for the survivor."

"Coward!" muttered the indignant youth between his teeth. The epithet was muttered, but not with design to be unheard.

"Then I will kill you dead upon the spot, since you desire it," said the other, rising to his feet, and deliberately drawing a pistol from his belt.

Thus they stood at the opening of this description. After the pause we have mentioned, the elder companion spoke, with a sarcastic smile on his countenance, and said, "take the word, and tell me when to shoot, youngster."

"Take better aim than you did at the buffalo," replied the youth, "or your shooting will do me no harm."

"Come and meet me breast to breast," said the other, "and that will improve my aim."

The high mettled young men advanced to meet each other, and, each placing his right foot upon the slain brute, the muzzles of their weapons were placed within thirty inches of the murderous aim taken.

"Quite as well that the distance should be short," said the young man, as I do not wish to live and be accused of your murder."

"Give me your hand and fire," said the elder, "kill me dead, or my ghost shall haunt you—fire!"

The elder pointed his pistol in the air and fired, while the younger, after a pause, dashed his instrument upon the earth and exclaimed, "you called me a liar, Jack!"

"Then why do you not shoot me?"

"Why!" replied the impetuous youth, "because here in the lone desert I see your mother's imploring hands uplifted, and my pistol seems pointed at her heart instead of yours. Instead of your blood I see her tears flowing, and I stand here a dishonored man, powerless of revenge."

Moisture dimmed the eye of the elder hunter, and a plaintive alteration was in his voice when he said, "well, Tom, you called me a coward."

"Then I was a liar, Jack, and not till then.—You have called me a liar, and a retraction now can do no good, for a liar you have made me."

"Never, Tom, never," was now the exclamation of the other companion. "No, Tom, I did you wrong, and I ask your pardon. By the long years of our friendship, whether it was your ball or mine that killed the old cow, I was rash and wrong in what I said. Forget it, forget it, and let us just cut out the cow's tongue and be off after the wagons, for the sun will drop down in the west before we reach our companions."

A few more moments saw the reconciled friends riding forward together, exchanging explanations as warm as their quarrel was brief and rash, and the buffalo's tongue furnished them with a supper over which the sudden difference was as speedily forgotten. Neither was ever satisfied, however, as to which killed the buffalo.

CITY COURT—FEBRUARY TERM.

Present—Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington.

Wednesday, Feb. 17. John Robinson, negro, was placed upon his trial, charged with having aided and abetted James Ducket, a negro slave, the property of Mrs. Hanna, to escape from his lawful owner, against the act of 1827, chap. 15.

Mr. Zell, on the part of the state, stated he was at the rail road depot on Sunday morning, the 29th of November last. Saw Mr. Rochester, the agent at the ticket office, give Robinson a ticket—he (Mr. Zell) took his stand on the last car, which is appropriated for colored persons—the cars started near the corner of Gay and Pratt streets—saw the prisoner and Ducket in the street—saw Robinson urging Ducket to get on the cars—Ducket got on. Suspecting that all was not right, waited until Ducket arrived at Canton, when he asked him for his free papers, on which he produced the ticket for his pass—told him that it would not do—arrested him and brought him to his office—he was afterwards taken to Mr. Slatter's by direction of Mrs. Hanna's son. Robinson was not arrested until the Friday following, when he was brought to the office by Mr. Worthington, constable. Asked him for his papers, when Robinson referred him to a colored woman named Hynson in Old Town—sent Mr. Worthington for them—the colored woman came with Mr. Worthington and produced the papers of Robinson.

Cross-examined. Robinson did not say that he got his papers from Capt. Clark on Tuesday after he purchased the ticket. Robinson had Ducket by the arm when he was urging him.

Mr. Rochester, on the part of the state, the agent in the ticket office of the rail road company, stated, that on Sunday morning, the 29th of November, Robinson came to the office to obtain a ticket for Philadelphia; he was very impudent—asked him for his free papers—he produced them, and gave what is called a three-quarter ticket for Sunday—it was about 15 minutes before 9 o'clock, A. M.—the ticket which he gave Robinson has never been returned to the office—the ticket is good for six mouths—has seen Robinson frequently at the office purchasing tickets.

Mr. Hanna stated that James Ducket was the slave of his mother for life.

James Ducket, negro, on the part of the defence, (this is the slave,) stated that he never saw the prisoner at the bar until he saw him at the office of Mr. Zell. Robinson is not the man who gave him the ticket—met the man on the Saturday before, to whom he gave $3 to purchase a ticket for him—met the man the next day, Sunday morning, at the corner of South and Pratt streets, when he gave him the ticket—he never saw the man until the day previous to his getting the ticket from him. The case was argued before the jury by G. R. Richardson, Esq. on part of the state, and T. Y. Walsh, Esq. on part of the prisoner. The jury returned a verdict of guilty.

Mr. Walsh, the counsel for the prisoner, filed a motion for an arrest of judgment, which will be argued hereafter.

James Robinson was charged with an assault upon Rosannah Riley. He was declared not guilty.

Daniel Tyson was charged with two assaults upon Mr. Myerheffer. He was declared guilty. Fined $10 and costs in each case.

James Blanchard was placed upon trial, charged with keeping a disorderly house, which was proved to be frequented by boys between the ages of 12 and 18 years. His house is situated in Marsh Market Space. He was declared guilty. Fined $25 and costs.

Mary Henderson, negress, was placed upon her trial, charged with stealing 45 silver half dollars, the property of a negro man named Proctor. It appeared that Proctor had saved some 95 or $100, and placed them in a bed between the sacking bottom and the feather bed—during his absence he left the house in the care of his children—while absent, the prisoner came to the house, and was seen at the bed by one of his children, with her hands underneath of it—she was afterwards seen with a large amount of money in her possession—she had always heretofore been very poor. The jury returned a verdict of guilty. Mr. Walsh, the prisoner's counsel, filed a motion for a new trial.

The Court then adjourned till to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

THE MINISTER'S ADVICE TO MR. SLICK ON CHOOSING A WIFE. "Don't marry too poor a gall, for they are apt to think there is no end to their husband's puss; nor too rich a gall, for they are apt to remind you of it unpleasant sometimes! nor too giddy a gall, for they neglect their families; nor too demure a one, for they are most apt to give you the dodge, race off and leave you; nor one of a different sect, for it breeds discords; nor a weak-minded one, for children take all their talents from their mothers; nor a —— O Lord! says I, minister, how you skeer a body! Where under the sun will you find a nonsuch like what you describe? There ain't actilly no such critters among women. I'll tell you, my son, said he, for I'd like afore I die to see you well mated; I would indeed! I'll tell you, tho' you talk to me sometimes as if I didn't know nothin of women. You think nobody can't know 'em but them as romp all their days with them as you do; but them, let me tell you, know the least, for they are only acquainted with the least deserving. I'll gin a gage to know 'em by that is almost invariable, universal, infallible. The character and conduct of the mother is a sure and certain guarantee for that of the darter."

IMPORTANT INVENTION. Mr. Hullmandell, who has already done much to improve lithography, has invented a new mode of producing pictorial effects on lithographic stone, by tints, washed with a brush which yield impressions so perfectly resembling the original sketch that the difference is not discernible.

INCENDIARIES. Several attempts have been lately made to fire buildings in Richmond, which have fortunately all been frustrated. The police are on the look out for the miscreants.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P.M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	" Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	" Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	" Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	" Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	" Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	" Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is more of a connection through-out, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads Weather!! and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

THURSDAY MORNING, Feb. 18, 1841.

AMISTAD CASE. Mr. FOX, British minister, has addressed Mr. Forsyth, secretary of state, on the subject of the Africans who were brought into the United States in the Amistad Spanish vessel, and who are now awaiting the decision of our judicial tribunals. If it would not be deemed discourteous towards a foreign minister, we should term the letter of Mr. Fox an impertinent interference with our local concerns. It would seem as if the British government had forgotten that we are no longer in a state of colonial dependence, and are free to shape our own course and pursue our own measures; for a dictatorial stand has been assumed by that government which ill comports with the respect due to an independent nation. In the case of McLeod the British minister has deemed it necessary to admonish us of our duty, and to point out the obligations of the president; and again in the present instance he thinks our government remiss in fulfilling its treaty stipulations. As we are to be thus schooled by the British authorities, if we should prove to be unapt pupils it is probable that chastisement will accompany our tuition—for it is not to be supposed that our course should be thus chalked out if our instructor did not think there was power to enforce obedience.

It is evident that England is assuming, in her intercourse with this country, a loftier tone than usual. Whether this is attributable to a supposed pusillanimity on our part, or a fixed purpose to embroil the two nations in war, is yet to be seen. But, whatever the design, all attempts at dictation will be promptly repelled—and when the occasion for open resistance occurs it will be found, that, however partizan views may divide the American people on local matters, they will have but one voice and one arm, to speak to and strike the foreign aggressor.

The attitude which Great Britain has assumed towards this country cannot be viewed otherwise than with distrust; and therefore we have repeatedly urged upon congress the necessity of making such preparations as may enable us to meet all exigencies with energy and honor. By the proceedings in the house of representatives on Tuesday last it seems, that the military committee is about to report in favor of a general system of defence. Though late in the session for action upon a bill of this magnitude, yet it may be carried through congress if members will discharge their duty. It may be that England will not push us to extremity; but if not, we shall owe it more to her fears than to her magnanimity or forbearance. We have some knotty points to adjust with her, and we cannot be too well prepared to maintain our position. She has been the aggressor in the boundary dispute and in the affair of McLeod, and it is impossible that we can submit to the invasion of our soil and the destruction of life and property, without apology or atonement; nor can we yield to her claims to the possession of the disputed north eastern territory. Here are two important matters for discussion and adjustment; and pending the controversy on these points, her minister undertakes to lecture our government on a subject which is exclusively within our own jurisdiction. She once had a minister dismissed by our government for presumption, and it may become necessary to repeat the admonition.

NO QUORUM. Were it not that some members of the house of representatives are conscience-hardened, we should ask them how they can, consistently with honor and honesty, absent themselves from their duties, and leave the house without a quorum to transact business? A few days only remain of the present session, and yet scarcely a day passes without a suspension of the business of the house from the absence of members. We pronounce such conduct dishonorable to the members and disrespectful to the people. But they seem to be incorrigible; insensible to shame, and regardless of the obligations of duty. If "honest" Iago deserved to have "placed in every honest hand a whip, to lash the rascal naked through the world," what should be the punishment of the member of congress who betrays the confidence reposed in him by the people, and not only declines to discharge his own duty, but prevents others from attending to their's? Were we in possession of the names of the absentees we would give them to the public that it might be seen who is guilty of the fraud of receiving pay for services not rendered.

This crying grievance can only be remedied by the press; and we hope that public attention will be called to the subject by every independent paper in the country; so that the people may reject slangwhangers and loafers, and send honorable and intelligent men to take care of their interests.

NORTH EASTERN BOUNDARY. A correspondent of the Boston Daily Mail says, that a resolve has been introduced in the Maine House of Representatives to repel British Aggression!—which provides "that the resources of the State be, and they are hereby, placed at the disposal of the Governor, and the specific sum of $400,000 be appropriated, to remove the troops of Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, now quartered on the territory called disputed by the British Government; but by the treaty of 1783, and by the resolutions of both Houses of Congress passed in 1833, and by resolves of the Legislature of Maine, clearly, and unequivocally a part of the rightful soil of this State."

SECOND UNIVERSALIST CHURCH. We understand that the Rev. Mr. Shrigley, sometime since unanimously elected Pastor of this church, has accepted the charge, and will assume the duties of his station on the first Sunday in April next.

STEAM ENGINES. We have received a copy of the annual report of the canal commissioners of Pennsylvania. Among the documents thereto appended, is the report of the superintendent of motive power on the Philadelphia and Columbia rail road, in which an engine built by Mr. Ross Winans, of this city, is spoken of in the most flattering terms, which applies not only to the particular engine, but to the class of engines built by Mr. Winans. We extract the following from the report: "In addition to the different engines of the ordinary construction purchased by the undersigned is one built by Ross Winans, of Baltimore, which, as well as others, was contracted for by a resolution of the board, previous to the date of my last report. The general principle upon which this engine is constructed, is similar to the one which, by the order of my predecessor, had been placed on the road near a year before my appointment. It is, however, entirely different in its proportions.

"This engine was constructed by special orders, as an experiment in the use of anthracite coal as a fuel to generate steam; and on trial, has met all my anticipations. It is very large and heavy, with more than double the power of any other machine on the road. It burns anthracite coal exclusively, and from the additional space of fire box, obtained by its increased size, has advantages in the use of that article, which is not, and which cannot be possessed by any other plan of engine. It is intended exclusively for the transportation of heavy trains of burthen cars. It will haul double the ordinary train, but owing to its great weight, must be run very slowly over the road."

We have understood that this engine rests its entire weight on four propelling wheels, each wheel supporting about the same weight as each one of the two propelling wheels of the largest class six wheel engines on the Philadelphia and Columbia road. The engine last built by Mr. Winans, and which we have before noticed, is still more powerful than the one spoken of in the report; but having overcome the difficulty that has heretofore been deemed insurmountable, of placing eight wheels under his engine, and connecting the motive power with all of them, so as to get the adhesion of the entire weight, without having a weight on any any one wheel which is oppressive to the road. The engine now furnished weighs 19 33-100 tons, when in running condition, and is mounted on eight propelling wheels, which divide the weight equally among them, putting 2 42-100 on each wheel. The passenger engines of Norris' construction, in such extensive use, weigh about 10 tons when in running condition; but as they have only two propelling wheels, the greatest adhesion which they can render available is that resulting from 6 70-100 tons resting on the driving wheels, which is but little more than one-third the adhesion obtained by Mr. Winans' eight wheel engine, while the weight on each driving wheel of the Norris is 3 35-100 tons, nearly a ton more than the weight on each wheel of the eight wheel engine. The power of every locomotive engine is limited by the greatest adhesion of its wheels on the rails; the adhesion is directly as the weight resting on the propelling wheels collectively. The greater the weight bearing on any one wheel the more destructive to the road. The greatest economy in transportation results from the use of the most powerful engines that can be employed consistent with the strength and character of the road on which they are to run; hence the advantage of increasing the number of propelling wheels.

An account was published a few days since in a Philadelphia paper of a gross load of 481¼ tons being drawn over the Philadelphia and Reading rail road by an engine built by Messrs. Baldwin, Vail & Hufty, the weight of which is stated to be 11 92-100 tons, and the weight on the driving wheels 6 30-100 tons. As this is less than one-third the weight on the driving wheels of Mr. Winans' eight wheel engine, which has been shown to work to the full extent of its adhesion, it follows that it would be capable of taking over the Reading road three times the amount of the load above named.

The report above mentioned states a fact which gives to Mr. Winans' engine great recommendation. It is with reference to fire from locomotive engines. Extract from the report: "But I am constrained to say, that I am now satisfied that public opinion has always placed a mistaken estimate on the security in engines, the fuel of which was exclusively mineral coal, against firing property in the vicinity of the road. One year's experience has settled that question in the mind of every one who has paid any attention to the subject. It is true, if all the engines on the road were constructed on the same plan as those made by Ross Winans, of Baltimore, with vertical boilers and tubes, or flues, and a constant or uniform draft, then there would be no danger from fire. But with the ordinary engine, the draft of which is created by the exhaust steam of the engine itself, there is nor can be no security against fire." It is rather curious that such flattering accounts of our own manufactures should be made known to us first from a distance—we trust the time is at hand when our own mechanics will receive all the patronage to which they are so well entitled.

A HEAVY BREASTWORK. Yesterday a lady entered a store in Gay street, and while the attention of the occupant was drawn in another quarter, managed to conceal a large skein of worsted thread in her bosom. The slight o' hand, however, met the observation of the proprietor, who immediately accused her of stealing. She denied the charge, and he insisted upon searching her, which he did, after some resistance on her part. To his utter astonishment he found concealed in her bosom the skein of worsted, two large shawls, a pair of stockings, and what is most surprising of all, a pair of skates. Having disburdened her of this assortment, he let her go, and is ready to give up the goods to the rightful owner, when called for.

FINANCIAL REPORT. Mr. Bowie, chairman of the committee of ways and means, has reported a bill requiring that a return of the amount of office fees shall be made semi-annually, from the first day of April next, by the clerks of the several courts, registers of wills, register in chancery, commissioners of insolvent debtors for Baltimore city, lottery commissioners, wood corders, and all inspectors who are paid by fees of office. Returns to be made on oath. From the gross amount of fees of each officer, twenty-five per cent. is first to be deducted, and upon the balance ten per cent. is to be paid into the treasury for the use of the state. The bill is well drawn to carry the object into effect. The last section provides that no collector of public monies in this state shall receive more than four per cent. commission.

Mr. Bowie has begun at the right end. Those who are paid by the public should contribute to the public purse; and if men dislike to hold office on such terms, others can be found who will accept, for there is no lack of office-seekers.

Mr. Bowie has also reported a bill to assess and tax real property—and we hope that he will now turn his attention to the license system and to the subject of stocks, &c. So that each may contribute to the support of government in proportion to his worth in real and personal property, as required by the constitution. We think that it would be advantageous to brokers and to the public to require them (the brokers,) to take out licenses; and it is possible that attorneys and physicians would be pleased to contribute in the same way towards the necessities of the state. It was customary for militia officers to present five, ten or fifteen dollars, sometimes more, to the clerk of the council on receiving their commissions. This was considered a perquisite of office. We know not whether the practice is continued; but a price might be placed upon commissions for the use of the public treasury—and we think that justices of the orphans' courts, of the levy courts (or commissioners, as may be,) and magistrates might also be required to pay a stipulated sum for their commissions. They are so patriotic that they would dislike to be omitted from the list of contributors. In short, the state "wants money and must have it;" and we are in favor of going into by-ways as well as high-ways to obtain it. The farmer's cow should not be milked to death whilst the officer's goat escapes untouched.

DOMESTIC MANUFACTURES. At a public meeting of the citizens of the Tenth ward of this city, a resolution has been adopted pledging the members of the meeting to the use of cloths of domestic manufacture. Could the whole city and country be induced to come into this measure, we should soon be relieved from all difficulties, and society would be restored to a healthy condition. But pride is stronger than patriotism; and whilst fashion countenances the wear of foreign fabrics, we can hardly anticipate that the example of the citizens of the Tenth ward will receive extensive favor. It is the vast consumption of foreign productions that embarrasses the monetary concerns of the United States, and causes the sudden and violent convulsions which occur. We are tributary to foreigners instead of being independent; nor can we emancipate ourselves but by adopting some course of policy which will restrict importations. If domestic clothing could be rendered fashionable, the beneficial effects would be instantaneously felt—for we should release ourselves from foreign debt, keep our money at home, and give encouragement to domestic industry. We hope that the citizens of the Tenth ward will persevere in their laudable undertaking, and that other wards will follow the precedent.

PROFESSOR W. N. BAKER. We cannot but regret the early decease of this young gentleman. Gifted as he was with extraordinary talent, he bid fair to shine among the Faculty as a star of commanding brilliancy. But alas! that star has gone out from the firmament of genius, to be mourned and wept by many, and especially by those upon whose pathway its lustre was made manifest in the halls of science.

Professor Baker, young as he was, had already gained an enviable celebrity in the high ranks of his profession. The faculties which were given him have reared a monument to his memory more enduring than marble, and left as immortality coequal with the corroding finger of time. He was really a benefactor of his fellows, and his premature loss cannot but be felt with deep and serious regret. Oft, we predict, will the student's recollection return to the spot where he sleeps with kind and grateful acknowledgments. The proceedings of the Faculty of which the deceased was a member, show the high estimation in which was held by that learned and distinguished body.

ACCIDENT. Yesterday morning about ten o'clock, while a gentleman named Morandas, his lady and two daughters, all of whom were residents of Illinois, were travelling in their carriage to Philadelphia, on the Philadelphia road about two miles from this city, the horses took fright, ran off, upset the vehicle and threw the passengers out. Fortunately no serious damages were sustained, though all were somewhat injured. The younger daughter received a slight wound on her right arm, the elder complained somewhat of her left shoulder. The lady of Mr. Morandas broke her fall by being thrown upon one of the horses, while the gentleman escaped with a slight bruise upon the left side. Some colored persons, who were in the immediate neighborhood of the accident, repaired to the unfortunate strangers' assistance, harnessed up the horses so that they were enabled to proceed on their journey.

ARRESTED. The Boston police surprised the inmates of a house of doubtful reputation a few nights since, and captured a dozen of both sexes. The gentlemen were each fined $5 and costs, and the ladies were sentenced to three months confinement in the house of correction.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17, 1841.

I have the honor to announce that the great pig, fed on purpose for General Harrison by a citizen of the United States, has safely arrived in this city, and is for exhibition at the Log Cabin on the Avenue. If every poor man at this inclement season could get such a weighty present, there would be but little cry of distress. I hope the General will follow the example of General Jackson with the big cheese, and have the pig killed and cut up for the benefit of all comers.

Last evening after I closed, an amendment was adopted to the general appropriation bill in the House, providing a sum of $50,000 for the repair of the Potomac bridge. It is hinted, however, when the bill shall be reported from committee of the whole, an attempt will be made to strike out this amendment.

This morning Mr. Lincoln, a member of the committee on public lands, asked leave to introduce a bill making valid the land patents issued for the last four years. It appears that young Van Buren, the private secretary of the President, instead of signing his father's name to patents, has, contrary to the requirements of law, signed his own name. This being the case, it is necessary that the great number of patents issued in this way should be legalized. Mr. L. succeeded in introducing his bill, and it was read twice.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole on the general appropriation bill, the question pending being on a motion to strike out the item for branch mints.

Mr. Bynum being entitled to the floor, spoke at great length in opposition to the motion.

In the Senate the bankrupt bill is not yet in a shape to meet the views of both parties. After a little more moulding, I presume, it will be sent to the House, about the 3d of March.

LET TRUTH AND JUSTICE HAVE THEIR COURSE. We would pass over the following, but that a gross and offensive misstatement, tending directly to the injury of a young man's character, has been made in reference to it in a cotemporary morning paper of this city. We do not believe in jeopardizing a man's character for the purpose of publishing a detached, incorect item of useless intelligence. The facts are these:. Enoch R. F. Small, plaintiff, brought suit in action of debt before Squire Schaeffer against Wm. E. Hanson, a young man of this city, for the recovery of a bill contracted for dry goods, amounting to $11.87, alleged to have been purchased while plaintiff was clerk for Mr. Thomas Armstrong. The defendant, on trial, denied having made any such purchase of plaintiff—that there was no entry in Mr. Armstrong's books against him, and none of any kind, except on a small piece of paper which he kept as a memorandum. Mr. Hanson, defendant, distinctly stated before Squire Schaeffer, that "he was a minor at the time the goods were purchased;" but the plea of minorship was not made by him—he only required the account to be proved according to law and he would pay it. Mr. Armstrong was sent for to appear as a witness against Mr Hanson. He sent a distinct message to Justice Schaeffer that he knew nothing of the case against Hanson. The plaintiff was nonsuited, and had to pay the costs. We are not in favor of taking the statement of an aggrieved party, and publishing it to the world, thus jeopardizing innocence or reputation.

CORRECTION. We copied into our paper of yesterday, an article from the Philadelphia Spirit of the Times, in which it was stated that "the firm of Christmas, Livingston and Ward, (late Prime, Ward and King,) Bankers, of New York, have failed for an immense amount." This is a mistake; and we are authorized to say that the firm of Christmas, Livingston & Prime (not Ward) is a different house from Prime, Ward & King, the latter being the house of which James G. King is the managing partner, and of the credit and solvency of which there has never, we understand, been a doubt.

ASSAULT. John P. Youce, city bailiff, was yesterday brought before Squire Schaeffer, charged on the oath of Sarah Newell, a married lady, with committing an assault upon her in her own house. The facts are these: the bailiff had a commitment on her husband, who escaped from his custody and entered his own dwelling to secrete himself. His wife shut the inner door, the officer seized hold of her person with violence in order to take the husband. He, Youce, was held to bail for his appearance at court.

FOR THREATENING. Stephen Burgess was yesterday arrested by Geo. Smith, and brought before Justice Schaeffer, charged on the oath of Mary Kirby with threatening to disable her for life if she appeared against him before Squire Gorsuch as a witness in a civil suit. The accused was held to bail in the sum of $200 to appear before the City Court.

THE BANK OF MICHIGAN. The President of this Bank sent into the House of Representatives on the 8th inst. making three proposals, stating at the same time that if one of the three were not complied with, the bank would proceed to a liquidation of its liabilities as fast as circumstances would permit, and bring the business to a final close.

FRONT STREET. Owing to some mismanagement with the gas, Mr. Ward was unable to open the theatre last night as he intended. It will be opened to-night with the same pieces as announced upon the previous occasion. A full house, we are of opinion, will be forthcoming.

THE BRITANNIA steamship is expected to arrive at Boston to-morrow morning, at seven and a half minutes past 10, A. M. How precise.

A BENEFIT. The printers were to have a benefit at the North American Circus, in Boston, on Monday night.

FIRE. A two story brick building corner of Floyd and Market streets, were destroyed by fire in Louisville on Thursday last.

CONSUMPTION.

To Dr. Swayne.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attension to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

Your friend, ABRAHAM SKINNER,
Crawford county, Pa.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. Williams, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

ELLICOTTS' MILLS, Feb. 17, 1841.

Before the breakfast bell rings, I will endeavor to "drop you a line" as the angler said to the gudgeon. The loud yell of the steam whistle—the wizz! fizz! of the locomotive and the rattle of the cars over the rail road, are yet sounding on the tympanum of my ear. Brown keeps a fine hotel, and I sincerely recommend him to the consideration of your readers. The spring and summer, however, will, doubtless, bring him plenty of customers. The beautiful village of Ellicotts' Mills has felt the "tightness of the times;" the iron works are motionless and silent—the factories may be said to have suspended, and the flour mills barely drag on. I regret this, as the prospects of this town were at one time quite cheering.

Last evening I attended the Lyceum, to hear a lecture from your learned townsman, David Hoffman, Esq. The room was well filled, the males and females occupying different sides. The subject selected by the orator was "The destruction of Jerusalem, as by an eye witness." A terrific detail was it, in truth; the learned gentleman appeared to be determined that the good people of the country should, through his instrumentality, acquire a profound knowledge of events that transpired nearly two centuries ago—presuming, of course, that they were ignorant of the existence of such a personage as Josephus. The lecture of Mr. Hoffman, though characterised by all the research and eloquence peculiar to that gentleman, was, in my humble opinion, mal apropos. In his desire to display his own knowledge, he forgot his audience. A lecture on mechanics or agriculture, or even a constitutional question, would have been more in unison with the character and disposition of his hearers. The discourse was long and labored—sprinkled with occasional flights of fancy, and, I may say, abortive efforts at the sublime and horrible. The girls shuddered at the idea of a mother eating her "roasted baby" without sauce or trimmings, and the men wondered that the Romans could be as avaricious as the avaricious Jews, and rip open the bowels of the latter to secure to themselves the gold they had swallowed. I wonder if Mrs. General Gaines related these facts in her discourse on the "horrors of war?" If she did, she forgot the dignity of her sex, and should not be heard by ladies. Twice or thrice during the lecture Mr. Hoffman apologised to the audience for its length, and the question was once put to the members of the Lyceum whether he should go on or not? Those who were not asleep answered in the affirmative, and the snore was taken for 'aye.' He was consequently allowed to proceed. We then had the roasted babies again—pestilence and famine—rotten carcasses—hungry dogs battening on putrid human flesh, and myriads of wretches shrieking and writhing in the hot lava of the burning temple. The description of the siege and it progress was truly terrific, and only needed physical force to rivit the attention of the audience. The style of the composition and the details reminded one of Selathiel—and some parts of the last days of Pompeii, but there was a want of energy in the delivery, which smothered half its beauties.

I am happy to inform you that the Ellicotts' Mills' Lyceum is in a highly prosperous condition. They have also a flourishing Lyceum at Elkridge Landing. The military spirit is also awakened here—a meeting has been called for the purpose of organizing a troop of horse.

Yours, STILTS.

On motion of Mr. Bender, the Council adjourned until to-morrow at half-past 3 o'clock.

ROBBERIES. The bar room of the Lunch attached to Barnum's City Hotel, was also entered on Monday night, and robbed of a small amount of money and some imitation silver spoons.

We learn that an unsuccessful attempt was made on the same night to rob the South street Lunch.—Patriot.

The delivery may be made upon any point of the line, between Harper's Ferry and Cumberland, and the points between which it will take place must be stated. There are to every mile of track 21,600 feet board measure of 4½x8, and 26,400 do do of 3x10 scantling, 1056 cross ties dressed to 4½ inches thick, and 302 dressed to 3 inches thick. Proposals will not be received for a less quantity of any of the kinds of timber, than will lay a mile of track.

The Castings for the chairs and plates will be of an easy pattern—they must be of strong and sound metal, and smoothly cast—the contractor furnishing the patterns. The screw bolts and nuts will be of sound, tough iron and made with exacts as to the required form and size. The washers will be of bar-iron, rolled with the proper section, cut off and punched for the passage of the bolt. The zinc plates similarly made. The hook-headed spikes to be of iron of as good a quality as that of the screw bolts.

The Iron Fastenings just described may be delivered at Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any point of the line of the road between the two latter places and the places and times of delivery will be stated in the proposals. There are to every mile of track 7656 lbs. of castings—1584 lbs. of bolts and nuts—591 lbs. of iron washers—105 lbs. of zinc plates, and 2947 lbs. of spikes. No proposal for a less quantity than will supply 10 miles will be received.

Monthly estimates will be made of the quantities of each kind of materials so delivered and four fifths of the value at the contract prices will be paid thereon—reserving to the Company the option of paying the said four fifths in Baltimore City 6 per cent stock at par—or in the stock orders of the Company at par; and also reserving the option of paying for the remaining fifth in like manner, when the delivery of the whole quantity contracted for shall have been completed according to the contract.

If the materials contracted for or any part of them are not furnished at the times required, the Company may dissolve the contract and retain the one-fifth due on any which may have been already delivered, and no estimates or payments shall be made or on account of materials delivered before the time specified for commencing the delivery of the same. The monthly payments shall be made at the Company's offices in Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh, Virginia, at the option of the contractor, and the final payments shall be made in Baltimore. The manner and times in which the materials shall be furnished on the different parts of the line will be specifically provided for in the contracts, and particulars will be given on application to the undersigned. It will be required that about one half of the whole quantity of materials shall be delivered as early as possible between now and the 1st of December next. A model of the rail and its supports and fastenings will be ready for inspection at the Company's office in Baltimore by the 20th current. The proposals will be directed under seal to the subscriber, either at Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh—and will be received up to the 15th of March proximo. By order of the President and Directors,

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains as aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

THINGS THAT ARE SWEET.

Sweet is the truth, and sweet the posey too,
That can, in vivid lines, express sweet things;
Sweet the dark eye, and cheek of rosy hue,
And sweet dear scenes that mem'ry backward brings.

Sweet is the welcome, we receive from friends,
Remembrance, of that welcome, too is sweet;
Sweet are the means that consummate good ends,
Sweet, to the sinner, is repentance meet.

Sweet, all things are, that demonstrate God's love,
Sweet are the murmurs of the moaning wind;
The stars are sweet, and all the worlds above,
But Hope is sweetest, to the immortal mind!

Dear is this Earth, with all its happy scenes,
Sweet are its rivers broad, and valleys wide;
Dear are its mountains high, and "village greens,"
Where joyous childhood "doff'd the world aside."

Sweet is the evening hour—the close of day,
The sunglit clouds that curtain all the West,
And Fancy then, most sweetly seems to say,
"Bright will the future be, and man be blessed."

Dear is the friend, who meets us on the way,
By which, through life, we pass its varied scenes;
Sweet is the voice, which kindly bids us stay,
And peace enjoy, where Heaven bestows the means.

Let this suffice—sweet are the tears of joy,
Dear is that innocence, we dare maintain,
And dear the thoughts, my inmost soul employ,
The earth born thoughts of "Sea, Woods, & Maine."

THE OLD FAMILY BIBLE.

AN INCIDENT FROM REAL LIFE.

Whoever has travelled among the Scottish hills and dales, cannot have failed to observe the scrupulous fidelity of the inhabitants to the old family bible. A more honorable trait of character than this cannot be found; for all men, whether christians or infidels, are prone to put reliance in those who make the bible their confidant, and whose well thumbed pages show the confidence their owners possess in it.

A few years ago there dwelt in Ayeshire an ancient couple, possessing of this world's gear sufficient to keep them independent from want or woe, and a canny daughter to bless their grey hairs and tottering steps. A callant of a farmer became enamoured of the daughter, and she, nothing loath, consented to be his. As the match was every way worthy of her, the old folks consented, and as they were desirous to see their bairn comfortable, the two were made one. In a few short years the scythe of time cut down the old people, and they gave their bodies to the dust and their souls to the creator.

The young farmer having heard much of the promised land ayont the sea, gathered together his duds, and selling such as were useless, packed up those calculated to be of service to him, at his new home. Some neighbors, having the same itching for adventure, sold off their homes and homesteads, and with the young couple set sail for America.

Possessed of considerable property in the shape of "siller," this company were not like the generality of emigrants, poor and friendless, but happy and full of hope of the future. The first thing done after the landing was, the taking out the old family heir loom, and returning thanks and praise to him who had guided the bark to a safe haven.

As the farmer's object in coming to this country was to purchase a farm and follow his occupation, but little time was spent in the city he had arrived in, and as his fellow passengers had previously determined on their destination, he bid them farewell, and with a light heart turned his face towards the setting sun. Indiana at this time was setting fast, and having heard of its cheap and fertile lands, he determined on settling within its borders.

On the banks of the Wabash he fixed on a farm, and having paid cash for one half, gave a mortgage for the balance, payable in one year. Having stocked his farm, and put seed in the ground, he rested from his labor, and patiently awaited the time when he might go forth to reap the harvest; but alas! no ears of grain gladdened his heart or rewarded his toil. The fever of the country attacked him, and at the time when the fields were white with the fullness of the laborer's skill, death called him hence, and left his disconsolate wife a widow, and his only child an orphan.

We leave this first sorrow, and pass on to witness the struggles of the afflicted widow a year afterwards. The time having arrived when the mortgage was to be paid, she borrowed the money of a neighbor who had been very attentive to her husband and herself, one who knelt at the same table with her to renew their professed obligations to the giver of all good. Hard and patiently did she toil to repay the sum against the promised time; but all would not do; fortune frowned, and she gave way to her accumulated troubles. Disheartened and distracted, she relinquished her farm and the stock for less than she owed her christian neighbor, who, not satisfied with that, put an execution on her furniture.

On the Sabath previous to the sale, she took courage, and strengthening herself with the knowledge of having wronged no one, went to the temple of her Father, and with a heart filled with humility and love, poured out her soul to Him "who turneth not away," and having communed side by side, with her christian neighbor, returned to her desolate home.

Here her fortitude had like to have forsaken her, but seeing the "old family bible," she reverently put it to her lips, and sought for consolation from its pages. Slowly she perused its holy and inspiring verses, and gathered hope from its never failing promises, and while the tears flowed freely, her heart seemed to say—

Within this holy book I trace
The ine of Christ, his wondrous grace,
Thu anxious care and holy love,
Not earth's, not mine, but Heaven above.
The path is clear, the track is sure,
Why wait I then, these pangs endure;
O, grant my God my life may be sincere and prayerful Lord, to thee.

The day of sale having arrived, her few goods and chattles were, in due course, knocked off to the highest bidder. Unmoved, she saw pass from her possession article after article without a murmur, till the constable held up the old family bible. This was too much. Tears flowed, and gave silent utterance of a broken heart. She begged the constable to spare her this memento of her reverend and departed parents; and the humane man of the law would willingly have given it to her, but her inexorable creditor declared every thing should be sold, as he was determined to have all that was owing him.

The book was, therefore, put up, and about being disposed of for a few shillings, when she suddenly snatched it, and, declaring she would have some relic of those she loved, cut the slender thread that held the brown linen cover, with the intention of retaining it. The cover fell into her hands, and with it, two flat pieces of thin, dirty paper. Surprised at the circumstance, she examined them, and what was her joy and delight to find they each called for five hundred pounds on the Bank of England. On the back of one, in her mother's handwriting, were the following words:

'When sorrow overtaks ye, seek yer bible.'

And on the other, in her father's hand—

'Yer father's ears are never deaf.'

The sale was immediately stopped, and the family bible given to its faithful owner. The furniture sold was readily offered to her by those who had purchased, which she gladly took back. Having paid off her relentless creditor to the uttermost farthing, and rented a small house in the village of ——, she placed the balance of her money in such a way as to receive interest enough to keep her comfortable, and is now able to enjoy the precepts of the old family bible without fear or molestation. Her time and attention is devoted to the bringing up of her bright blue-eyed Alice, and if the happy smiles of the countenance may be considered an index of the heart and mind, little Alice bids fair to be a shining star in the little community of which she at present forms but a unit.

At the meeting-house in the centre of the village, may be seen every Sunday, sitting about half way up the south aisle, a lady about thirty years of age, dressed in deep mourning, with a face glowing with the beauty of holiness, but on whom may be seen deep traces of past sorrow.—At the public house in the same place, and at the same time, may also be seen a being in the garb of man, bloated, and sotting over the poisoning bowl. The one is the possessing widow, the other the professing neighbor.

CITY COURT—FEBRUARY TERM.

Present—Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington.

Thursday, Feb. 18. John Henry, alias John Henry Askins, negro, was placed on trial, charged with stealing one table cloth, the property of Nancy T. Crocker. It appeared that Mrs. Crocker's house was on fire, and that the prisoner came into the house and was seen at the drawer of a sideboard, when one of the inmates of the house caught hold of him and struck him several times, and then handed him over to Mr. McKeown, the police officer, who conducted him to the watch house—while on the way to the watch house, a small boy saw him drop a table cloth from under his coat, which table cloth was identified as the property of Mrs. Crocker. The jury returned a verdict of guilty.

Perry Lee, negro, was placed on trial, charged in connection with Wm. Hill, negro, with stealing one coat, the property of Philip Bond. [The testimony in this case was the same as that in the case of Wm. Hill, negro, tried and convicted on Tuesday last, as published.] The jury returned a verdict of guilty.

Nicholas U. Chafee was placed on trial, charged in five different cases with an assault upon Geo. Smith, Geo. R. Campbell, Peter P. Potee, and Mr. Maydwell, constables, and with a riot. The officers stated that they had a number of writs against Mr. Chafee, and that on the morning of the 8th Dec., between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock, they went to Mr. Chafee's house for the purpose of arresting him, but they were unable to accomplish their object at that time, and went again in the afternoon to his distillery, but on account of the threats which were made use of by Mr. Chafee, he firing a pistol and threatening to shoot any person who attempted to arrest him, they were unable to do it. It was proven on part of the defence that there was no combination on part of the hands to protect Mr. Chafee from arrest. Mr. Campbell afterwards arrested Mr. Chafee on the 12th Dec. after a severe scuffle—he was on horseback at the time he was arrested. The court declared Mr. Chafee not guilty of the riot, but held the cases of assault over for the present.

William Ridgaway was placed on trial, charged with obtaining from Dr. F. E. B. Hintze a promissory note and $200 upon false pretences. Dr. Hintze stated that on the 16th June he advanced the money to Ridgaway, and previously advanced him a promissory note for $264 48, upon the representation that he had purchased of Mr. Bloomer his store at the corner of Baltimore and South-sts., and he was to give him a mortgage upon that store to secure the payment, which was never done. Dr. Hintze's statement was flatly contradicted by Wm. Ridgaway, sen. The court acquitted Mr. Ridgaway of the charge. Counsel for the state, Geo. R. Richardson—for the traverser, James M. Buchanan, Esq.

James H. Anderson and James Smith, negro boys, were placed on trial, charged in two indictments with stealing 1 shawl, the property of Sarah Ann Johnson, a negro woman, and 3 capes, 2 collars, 1 frock, 1 pair shoes, and 1 umbrella, the property of Ann Maria Dickinson. The property was taken from a house corner of Park and Monument-sts.; it was afterwards found in the possession of the prisoners by Mr. Cook, deputy high constable, who arrested them. The jury returned a verdict of guilty.

Samuel Johnson, negro, was placed on trial, charged with having stolen a watch, the property of Mr. Hitchberger. It appeared that the watch was hanging up in the store in which the prisoner worked, and that he was the only person who had been in the store since the last time the watch was seen and the time which it was missed. The jury returned a verdict of guilty.

The court adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

LATE FROM HAVANA. By the arrival of the steam ship Natchez at New Orleans on the 5th, we have dates from Havana to the 1st inst. The Elssler mania was raging to an alarming extent. The divine Fanny, the beautiful sylph, the Elssler this and the Elssler that, in short every thing was done a la Elssler. The manager of the St. Jago de Cuba Theatre has offered her $1,200 a night for an engagement. The New Orleans Bulletin says:

It gives us pleasure to state that the progress of Republicanism is not confined to Yucatan and Tobasco; Chiopas has caught the infection. At the latest date the central government was making abortive efforts to send from Vera Cruz and Jalafa, troops to quell the revolutionary spirit lately manifested in that State. The strongholds are still in the possession of Bustamente, but by the next arrival we confidently look for the news of the disenthralment of the State of Chiopas. Centralism or monarchy cannot thrive on this continent.

The Yucatanise, it appears from accounts by way of Havana, have converted all their vessels of war into merchantmen. The sole aim of this people is to preserve their state sovereignty.

Just before the Natchez left a brig arrived from Gallivas, on the coast of Africa, bringing intelligence of an outrage upon a couple of factories at that place by a British man-of-war. One of them was owned by Don Pedro Blanco and the other by Don Pedro Martinez, and were the most extensive at the place. The man-of-war's crew was sent ashore, goods to the amount of $500,000 were destroyed, and no less than 1,500 negroes employed about them made their escape.

MUSIC TUITION.

HEWITT respectfully informs his friends and the public generally, that having withdrawn from all connection with the public press he is prepared, at any time, to receive pupils on the PIANO FORTE, FLUTE, GUITAR, or in VOCAL MUSIC. He trusts that the lapse of time that has intervened since he followed the profession of Music, has not altered the confidence placed in his abilities.

C. to CHARLESTON, S. As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that FOGS! RECENT WEATHER!! and STORMS!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

FRIDAY MORNING, Feb. 19, 1841.

DENUNCIATION. We are informed that some worthy members of the whig party, who think their labors in the cause worthy of being compensated by good offices, have denounced us as Ishmælites, because we have spoken of their office-seeking propensity in terms of censure. Now, as we are tee-totalers against proscription for difference of sentiments, we can have no objection to their entertaining whatever opinion they please with respect to the course we have pursued; we only hope that we shall never again hear the sentence of condemnation against Gen. Jackson or Mr. Van Buren uttered from their lips. We thought that the war waged against the late and present administrations, was a war of principle; and that among the most objectionable measures of these administrations was that of dismissing men from office on party principles. And we will not do the whig party the injustice to suppose, that they were not sincere in their disapprobation of the doctrine, that "to the victors belong the spoils;" in taking exception, therefore, to the conduct of some of the office-hunters, we wish to be distinctly understood as meaning nothing disrespectful to the whig party. We are willing to believe that the mass of both parties are actuated by pure motives, and sincerely desire to advance the interests of their country; but it is evident that those individuals who condemn the spoils system one day, and adopt it as their rule of action on the next, are not influenced by principle or actuated by patriotism. We do not identify such men with either party—they are mere camp-followers, who go to the field for the sake of plunder. If we hit such men hard, it is because they deserve it. However they may be disposed to make party subservient to selfish interests, or to trample under foot their former professions, we must be excused if we decline to follow their example. We believe in the existence of political morality, and, if convinced to the contrary, should look upon party conflicts with the same interest that we take in the combat of two dogs for the possession of a bone. And yet this is the condition to which the country must inevitably be reduced, if party struggles are conducted for the exclusive benefit of office-seekers.

Whilst, as American citizens, we utter our own sentiments freely and independently, we would not close the mouths of others—and if we object to being punished for the exercise of this inalienable right, with what propriety can we punish another for the expression of his opinion? The doctrine of "rewarding friends and punishing enemies" in political matters, is radically wrong, anti-republican and anti-American. We have always condemned it in opponents, and shall never recognize it as just in friends. Our principles are not to be changed by every current of wind—nor can we cry "stop thief" after one, and shut our eyes whilst another steals a purse. In short, although our morality may appear a little old-fashioned, yet we shall adhere to it in preference to adopting another of a newer coinage.

EQUAL JUSTICE. A memorial has been presented to the senate of the United States, from citizens of the state of New York, praying the interference of government in behalf of certain individuals who were taken in arms against the authorities of Canada, condemned and banished to Van Dieman's Land. It is somewhat extraordinary that whilst the interference of the British minister in the case of the Amistad negroes excites the liveliest indignation, congress should be called upon to commit the same indiscretion of which we complain in the case just mentioned. What have we to complain of in the punishment of those who endeavored to revolutionize the Canadas by force of arms? They acted in violation of the laws of the United States and of England. They wantonly engaged in acts of plunder and murder; and when arrested and punished, an effort is to be made to excite public sympathy for their fate. Their punishment is a matter belonging exclusively to the British government, and with which it would be highly improper for congress or the president to interfere. We have now a British subject, (McLeod,) confined in prison and indicted for murder, on the supposition that he was concerned in the invasion of our soil and the murder of our citizens—and what is the feeling which has been exhibited in consequence of the interference in his behalf by the British minister? universal condemnation of the act; and yet our government is asked to take a stand in favor of the convicts at Van Dieman's Land. The golden maxim "to do as we would be done by," is entirely lost sight of by the memorialists, but must be adhered to by government if we would retain our self-esteem or secure the confidence of other powers. We should "ask for nothing that is not right, and submit to nothing that is wrong," that we may in all events, have justice on our side.

FIRE. The fire which occurred yesterday morning about 9 o'clock, proceeded from that portion of the Post Office Buildings, immediately adjoining the post office, occupied by the Susquehanna Canal Co., and by Messrs. James M. Buchanan, John Nelson, and R. N. Martin, counsellors at law. Owing to the proximity of one of the fire engines, the flames were speedily extinguished. The fire originated in the Canal Co.'s office, and is supposed to have been caused by the intense heat emanating from the grate, which set on fire a mahogany book case adjoining the fire-place. The company's books were saved with but little injury.

STATE TAXES. The Committee of Ways and Means of the House of Delegates have an arduous and delicate duty to perform, in selecting proper objects of taxation, so as to make the burthen bear justly upon all. It is generally conceded that it would be improper to levy the whole additional tax upon real estate; and hence the necessity of adopting some system which will have an equitable bearing upon the whole community. It is desirable that this subject should be discussed in the newspapers, for it is sufficiently extensive and intricate to engage the attention of the ablest minds.

The American of yesterday morning contains some suggestions as to the objects of taxation, which merit consideration. We concur in some of the positions taken, but from others we must dissent. We know that a tax upon income has been denounced both in Europe and in this country; but we agree with the American, that it is a proper subject of taxation. There can be no propriety in permitting a man with $10,000 per annum income from ground-rents, or mortgages, or stocks, to escape taxation, whilst the hut of the poor man is assessed and taxed. To all the comments of the American on this part of the subject we assent; but we think the principle erroneous, that "the average annual value of a farmer's crops should be assessed instead of his land." We will suppose a case. A wealthy man owns some fifty or sixty acres of land in the vicinity of Baltimore, which, with the improvements, are valued at ten, fifteen, or twenty thousand dollars.—This is held as a place of retreat and recreation, and is an expense to the occupant, instead of being productive. If the principle contended for were adopted, this farm would escape being taxed, whilst the gardener's ten-acre lot, being better cultivated, and more productive, would yield something for taxation. If an income-tax be adopted, it is questionable whether, in the case of the farmer, his land and the products of it will not both be subject to taxation. If a house in town yield an income to its owner of—say $1,000 per annum, will not both house and income be taxed? We think it doubtful, nor do we say that it would be just. If the crop of the farmer is to be assessed, instead of his land, by the same rule, the rent of a house should be taxed instead of the house. But there is one material objection to this system: in the case of rented farms, the tenant would pay the tax instead of the landlord.—Now, an income and direct tax might embrace both; though the true policy is to bear as lightly as possible upon the poorer classes of society.—Articles of luxury are proper subjects of taxation, as the American states.

The taxes which are about to be laid upon the people of Maryland will be permanent, or, at least, must be continued for many years; it is, therefore, important that the system of taxation should be devised with great care and caution.—We are glad to see that the editors of the American have taken the subject in hand, as we think that their views will arrest the attention of the Committee of Ways and Means. The system should be as comprehensive as possible, making the taxes fall heaviest on those who are best able to pay. The old system was extremely defective, as, in some instances, men were made to pay for property they did not own. Thus, the owner of a tract of land valued at $10,000, was compelled to pay a tax on that amount, whilst it was mortgaged for one-half, and the mortgagee escaped without paying anything. This injustice should be guarded against in the tax-bills about to be passed.

THE THALIAN BALL. We attended this ball and were highly pleased with the neat manner in which it was conducted. The number present was not large, though sufficiently so for comfort and convenience. Miss D. V. was there with two black eyes, only equalled in beauty by a pair of blushing cheeks beneath them. Miss H. of up town and Miss H. of Fell's Point were fair representatives from these two quarters. Miss T., we are of opinion, shot an arrow where it may be effective. Miss W. was grace in all her movements. Little Miss Z. of the Point was decidedly the nimblest. She dances exquisitely. Miss F., that fair form in black, we judge, touched the vibrating chord which regulates the heart of Mr. M., with the frock coat. Miss J. is beautiful without paint—she can draw the inference. We were pleased with her dancing, and struck with her winning smile. That young lady whose alabaster neck looked through a thousand flowing curls, caused a youth we "wot of" to bow at Cupid's shrine, and exhibit a leetle touch of the green eyed monster.

The hornpipe by Mr. Griffith was much admired, and in our humble opinion handsomely executed—so was "le petite," a waltz by the same and Miss Z. The music was good, the refreshments were extra good. Indeed, all we saw pleased us—the fair portion of the assemblage particularly.

A STORM BREWING. A "still small voice" may be heard in various parts of our city, whispering in tones audible enough to be understood, that something is not right in the police department. We are fearless in stating that things have been told us in reference to the matter, which, if brought to light, would cast a deepening blush upon the fair front of justice. It is not, however, our intention to implicate any one. Rumor has a thousand tongues, and she may prove treacherous; yet, when she speaks from so many mouths, there is generally some foundation. We would rather defend than censure or condemn, and are willing to put the most favorable construction upon the most unfavorable representations. Perhaps we have been misinformed. If so, let the rumor be disabused. A thorough investigation by the proper authorities into the matter alluded to, can reach the end desired. Let this be done—truth fears not the light, and justice demands that it should be brought from darkness.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18, 1841.

Amidst the rejoicings of a party, the memory of the great founder of our republic, who belonged to no party, ought still to be preserved. In accordance with this view, the members of the Franklin Fire Company of this city will give a ball on the 22d instant, at Carusi's saloon. From the noble conduct of this company at the recent fires here, I have no doubt their dancing arrangements will be equally spirited.

This morning while experiments were trying on Colt's patent cannon, on the east front of the Capitol, the carriage of Mr. Adams came by.—The horses being startled by the firing, ran off and threw the driver from his seat. The unfortunate man was nearly killed. Mr. Adams was not, I understand, in the carriage at the time.

In the House of Representatives a resolution was agreed to, appointing a daily recess from three till four o'clock. So the House will hereafter sit very late; but as for the business that will be transacted, after members have been home to their dinners, it will be small. After a recess, it is really surprising how greatly the talking faculties of some gentlemen develope themselves. Whether wine has any thing to do with it is a question very easily solved.

The House then went into committee of the whole, and resumed the consideration of the civil and diplomatic appropriation bill. The motion to strike out the item for the support of the branch mint in North Carolina, having failed, Mr. Green moved to strike out the appropriation for a branch mint in Georgia.

A warm debate arose between the Georgia delegation on the tariff question, during which the amendment was entirely lost sight of. After each of these gentlemen had "defined his position," Mr. Steenrod took the floor, and spoke at some length in defence of the measures of the present administration.

The Senate has again taken up the general bankrupt bill, and it was under discussion when this was closed.

An attempt was made to go into the election of a printer to that body, but without effect. A printer will, however, be elected before the close of the session, for the next congress.

BANK OF THE UNITED STATES. A meeting of the stockholders of this Bank, residing in Baltimore, was held in this city on Wednesday last, of which Robert Gilmor, Esq. was chairman, and S. T. Thompson, secretary. The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That a committee of three persons be appointed by the Chairman of this meeting, whose duty it shall be by conference with the Committee of Investigation, appointed at the annual meeting of the Stockholders of the Bank of the United States of Pennsylvania in January last, or otherwise, to obtain all the information possible with reference to the usual assets, liabilities, and true condition of the Bank, and to report the same at an adjourned meeting of Stockholders to be held at this place on the 25th of March next, together with any course of conduct which they may deem it advisable for the Stockholders of Maryland and others to pursue at the said meeting in April next, with regard to the affairs of the Institution. And that the said committee have power to take such other steps as may seem to them advisable to carry out the objects of this meeting. And in case of a vacancy in the above Committee, by death, resignation, or any other cause, the Chairman of this meeting is hereby authorized to fill such vacancy.

The Chair thereupon appointed the Committee, viz: J. SPEAR NICHOLAS, JOHN S. DONNELL, and ROBERT A. TAYLOR, Esqs.

Another resolution was passed, inviting the other Stockholders in Maryland to attend the adjourned meeting on the 25th of March, with legally executed proxies to be filled with names of those who may be selected to carry out the views of the Stockholders at the general meeting in Philadelphia, on the 2d of April next.

STRONG SUSPICION OF FRAUD. The Superior Court of New York, Chief Justice Jones presiding, has been engaged for several days past with the trial of an action brought by Albert H. Wright against Jacob Acker, late Sheriff, Cornelius Bogart, and Edmund Penfold, for the recovery of some $3,000, being the value of certain goods seized by the defendants as the property of William C. Hoffman, and claimed by the plaintiff by virtue of an alleged bill of sale, executed by Hoffman to him, to cover an indebtedness of some $2,000 for cash lent, and other considerations.—The case seems to have been very complicated. The jury rendered a verdict for the defendants.

THE BOSTON BURGLARS. Some curious facts have been elicited during the examination of the persons arrested in Boston a few days ago, on suspicion of being concerned in recent acts of burglary and incendiarism. They have confessed to have set fire to different houses, one of which, belonging to Mr. Codman, they fired three different times before they "could make it stick," as they expressed it. At last, they succeeded in carrying off a lot of goods, and secreted them, but were observed by a woman, and, on returning to take possession, found they were not there.

FRONT STREET THEATRE opened the season last night with a very excellent house. What is unusual upon such occasions, there was present a goodly number of ladies. The play went off well, every thing appeared cheerful, indicating the commencement of a brilliant season. We must congratulate Mr. Ward upon his present flattering prospects. We invite attention to the bill for to-night.

DROWNED. James B. F. Warren, an intelligent and promising youth, aged thirteen years, a pupil of Framingham Academy, and oldest son of James L. F. Warren, of Brighton, was drowned by falling through the ice while skating on Concord river.

ROBBERY. A room was entered in Philadelphia on Tuesday evening by some adept thief, who succeeded in carrying off several articles of jewelry.

THE NIAGARA HOAX. The following is from the New York Signal, with whom we agree as to the probability of its being a made up wonderful phenomenon.

"A most ridiculous, plain and palpable hoax has been played off upon the rascal Bennett and attempted to be played off upon others, but without success. This is another illustration of the truth that he who is in the constant habit of falsehood and of attempts at deceit, is most easily deceived himself.

"The Herald of Wednesday morning publishes a slip, which purports to be from the office of the Buffalo Advertiser, which commences in the following bombastic and absurd fashion:

OFFICE OF THE ADVERTISER,
Buffalo, Feb. 14, 4 o'clock.

We hasten to announce to our readers and to the world, an event in its nature at once the most stupendous and sublime that has ever been recorded in the annals of the wonderful. The Falls of Niagara—the unmatched phenomenon of nature—the centralization of power, grandeur and beauty—the theme of poesy and the material of the traveller—the resort of the ennuyee and the delight of the susceptible—IS NO MORE. The feelings of wrapt and terrific interest with which we beheld the spectacle we are about to detail (so far as the details are understood) were blended with those of mournful regret that earth was being robbed of one of her greatest glories, and our country of her unrivalled distinction.

"This paragraph alone, without the inflated farrago which follows, would be quite enough to convince any sane man of the falsity of the whole account."

Middle District.—Eliza McGuire and negroes John Wilson and Alfred Patterson, were brought in by the police. James Scott was locked up for being drunk, and Augustus Brown imprisoned by the high constable.

Western District.—Wm. Doak was found in the street drunk and destitute of a home, by officer Chaney. Minerva Star was imprisoned at 12 o'clock, being drunk and disturbing the peace.

GRAMMATICAL. 'Sammy,' said a fond father to his son who was just studying English grammar, 'our cat caught a rat—in which case is the noun cat in this sentence?' 'The nominative,' replied Sammy. 'Very good—very good, indeed; but the rat—is the rat in the nominative case, too?' 'Why, no sir' hesitated Sammy, 'the rat sir, is in—is in—yes, sir, the rat is in—' 'What?' 'Why, sir, he's in a very bad case, indeed, sir!' 'You're a smart boy, Sammy, you are—you may go down head.'

MURDERER ARRESTED. Solomon White has been arrested and committed to jail in Natchez, on a charge of having murdered a man in Autauga county, Alabama. It is stated that he confessed the crime, and letters found on his person seemed to confirm the fact. Two bowie knives were found about him, one of them, that with which he said he committed the act, sixteen inches long in the blade.

ESTABLISHMENT FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF STEAM SHIPS OF WAR IN MASSACHUSETTS. It is proposed to establish a National Foundry, and a Yard for the construction of Steam Engines and Steam Ships of War, in Boston Harbor. The extensive and valuable lands now and long since owned by the United States Government, in Chelsea, have been pointed out as the most suitable site for the purpose, in the county of Suffolk.

PICKPOCKETS. A gentleman, while at the Olympic Theatre, N. York, on Monday evening, had his pocket-book adroitly cut from his coat pocket, containing $100 in small bills, and a check for $500 on the Merchant's Exchange Bank, and other papers.

THEATRICAL. The Park Theatre has been opened again, with the opera of Artaxerxes, in which Mrs. Sutton figures. The National is also open. Mr. Vandenhoff and his daughter are there.

AMALGAMATION. A huckster woman in Philadelphia lately married a colored man, which greatly incensed the other professional ladies, who have inflicted a severe punishment and expelled her from their society.

CAUGHT HIM. A fellow named Tumble alias Tripner, was arrested in Philadelphia on Wednesday, he having been the gentleman who, some time ago, robbed a Mr. Espin of a large amount of money and goods. He is now in safe keeping.

CONSUMPTION.

☞ Consumption, that fell Destroyer! More Proofs of the efficacy of Doctor SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY, in relieving afflicted Man. To Dr. SWAYNE.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 50 cents per bottle.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

David Hoffman, Esq. delivered before the Ellicotts' Mills' Lyceum on Tuesday evening a lecture on the "Destruction of Jerusalem, as seen by an eye witness." The subject in itself is a thrilling one, and as handled by the lecturer was rendered interesting in the highest degree. The description of Jerusalem, her walls, her glorious temple, the awful state of anarchy within and Roman discipline and valor without, with all the horrors of war, pestilence and famine was graphic beyond description. The affecting story of Mary of Perea drew tears from the eyes of many of the audience. The prophecies foretelling the downfall of the holy city were brought forth with solemn effect, and their fulfilment painted to the eye of the mind with startling fidelity. The falling of walls and towers, the firing of the immense and splendid temple, the heroism of the priests upon her temple walls, and the final and overwhelming ruin of Jerusalem were depicted in a manner truly sublime and worthy of the subject. A description of the double triumph of Vespasian and Titus, father and son, the like of which Rome before nor the world since never saw, closed the splendid lecture. It lasted the unusual length of two hours, and yet the interest was unabated, and intense to the close. Upon the whole, considering the subject and the manner in which it was handled, this lecture has not been and cannot be surpassed.

"AN EYE WITNESS."

[We are informed that the lecture of Mr. Hoffman gave the greatest satisfaction to the members of the Lyceum and the large audience present.]

For the Baltimore Clipper.

The weather continues unsettled. In my recent peregrination due east, I was induced by a spirit of respect for the memories of the dead, to visit the celebrated spot called "Holts Cemetry, or city of the dead." On entering this sacred spot where lie the remains of some of our most distinguished public men, I was led to exclaim, "love not the world, neither the things that are in the world, for the day is not far distant when we will have to take up our abode in the "city of the dead."

On leaving this holy spot, I wandered over the fields that have held upon their face the rich and nutritious Indian corn; from thence, I proceeded to the Marine barracks where I found every man neatly trimmed and awaiting sailing orders. I then entered the Navy Yard, and the first objects that took my attention was the large brass pieces taken from the Turks by the late lamented Sommers and Decatur.

On the left of the main entrance you may see a handsome weeping willow taken when a sprig from the grave of Buonaparte, and at the same time as neat a yard and as intelligent men as may be found elsewhere. The ladies of this section of our city are generally handsome, intelligent and extremely polite; and I am convinced that if male worth and female loveliness unite in the service of relieving the poor and distressed, the worth and loveliness of our eastern friends shine bright and fall in the performance of this sacred duty.

I then took the most direct route for the Metropolitan Lyceum, and, in my hurry to reach there before eight o'clock, I walked "right straight" into the canal, and before I knew the amount of damage, I was up, and "oph" like a bull after a locomotive. The accident having occurred in a very retired part of the city, I thought it was best to be off as quick as thought, knowing that our once-quiet city is now very much infested with a species of professional office-seekers and gentlemen who are authorized to remove the deposites, although contrary to law.

Well, I reached home, and found the Lyceum had adjourned to meet again on Monday evening next, at 7 o'clock, where I intend to be without failure.

The question for discussion is, "Was the Roman Conquest justifiable?" On the last evening, Mr. Allen opened the debate tolerably. If this member would pay more attention to Murray, and use less vehemence, I may safely say that, in time, he would make a popular orator.

Mr. McCarty followed in a very able and truly eloquent speech. If he continues in the same path to knowledge, &c. he will, in due course of time, receive that attention his coolness and eloquence so richly deserve.

Mr. Newton. Too fiery—room for improvement.

Mr. Brannan. Rather wild—fine talent—keep your hands quiet.

Mr. Smith. Tolerable—study, study, and you will do.

Mr. Hoover. Some talent, and, with proper cultivation, would shine.

Mr. R. Hall evinces fine talents, and will make a good debater. JUPITER.

Georgetown Heights, D. C.

CITY COUNCIL.

FIRST BRANCH, February 18, 1841. Present, Henry Snyder, Esq. President, and all the members.

Mr. Hanson presented the petition of Samuel Register, complaining against the market master of the Lexington market. Referred to committee on markets.

Mr. Cole, from the joint committee on conference, to whom was referred a petition relative to the inspection of flaxseed, reported unfavorably.

Mr. J. S. Brown offered a resolution relative to Gay street bridge, which, on motion of Mr. Peregoy, was laid on the table.

Mr Holter called up the report and resolution relative to the improvement of Charles street Spring, which was passed. Also, a resolution favorable to Calvert street Spring, which was passed.

Mr. Pinkney offered a resolution asking to memorialize the Legislature of this state, for the purpose of having that body pass act which shall make thieves amenable to the penal law for stealing Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road notes. This is a good resolution—one which we hope will be speedily acted upon. Instances have recently occurred of such notes having been stolen, and no indictment could be found by the grand jury against the thief, in consequence of the notes not having been legalized. The resolution was passed.

Bill No. 11, entitled an ordinance for the appointment of a collector for the city of Baltimore, and prescribing his duties, was called up, and after having undergone various amendments, was passed. Yeas 20, nays 3.

The most important portion of this bill is the 15th section, prescribing the annual salary for the collector. The amount of salary was put at $2000 per year, and that of the deputy collectors at $650.

The report and resolution of the joint committee on streets on the petition of A. Alexander and J. T. Dunbar, were returned from the Second Branch endorsed concurred in.

On motion of Mr. J. S. Brown, the Council adjourned until to-morrow afternoon at half-past 3 o'clock.

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one, that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and be worthy of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1.50 each.

AGENCY. HOUSES, FARMS, VACANT LOTS, GROUND RENTS, LANDS, &c. bought and sold on commission. SLAVES, for life or a term of years, bought or sold on commission, and the highest prices obtained. Persons having slaves, which they wish to dispose of, will do well to apply at this office before selling.

N. B. All letters addressed to this office (post paid) thankfully received and promptly attended to.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

The Sawed Lumber may be of white or yellow pine, with not more than an inch of sap on two edges of the stick; free from large knots, shakes or decay of any kind. A portion of the 4½x8 scantling may be proposed for to be furnished, of white oak, under the same conditions as to quality. The points of delivery may be at Baltimore, Georgetown, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any other point upon the line of the road, and the proposal will state the places as well as times at which the Lumber will be furnished.

Proposers to whom more than one of the places just named are accessible, will separately state their prices for delivery at each; so as to allow an option to the Company in regard to them should the proposal be accepted.

The Sawn Timber, intended for the cross-ties and support-blocks, may be of white oak, rock-oak or chesnut oak, or of chesnut. It must be sound wood, and straight in one direction. If the proposer prefers delivering it in the rough state, and does not wish to undertake the hewing of it to the required dimensions he can so word his proposal, and in that case the size of the sticks must be such as to permit them, when dressed, to be of the full dimensions specified, clear of bark and axe-kerf. If the timber is cut while the bark is loose, it must be stripped off before the delivery. The delivery may be made upon any point of the line, between Harper's Ferry and Cumberland, and the points between which it will take place must be stated. There are to every mile of track 31,680 feet board measure of 4½x8, and 26,400 feet of 9x10 scantling, 1056 cross ties dressed to 4½ inches thick, and 302 dressed to 3 inches thick. Proposals will not be received for a less quantity of any of the kinds of timber, than will lay a mile of track.

The Castings for the chairs and plates will be of an easy pattern—they must be of strong and sound metal, and smoothly cast—the contractor furnishing the patterns. The screw-bolts and nuts will be of sound, tough iron and made with exacts as to the required form and size. The washers will be of bar-iron, rolled with the proper section, cut off and punched for the passage of the bolt. The zinc plates similarly made. The hook-headed spikes to be of iron of as good a quality as that of the screw bolts.

The Iron Fastenings just described may be delivered at Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any point of the line of the road between the two latter places and the places and times of delivery will be stated in the proposals. There are to every mile of track 7656 lbs. of castings—1584 lbs. of bolts and nuts—591 lbs. of iron washers—105 lbs. of zinc plates, and 2247 lbs. of spikes. No proposal for a less quantity than will supply 10 miles will be received.

Monthly estimates will be made of the quantities of each kind of materials so delivered and four fifths of the value at the contract prices will be paid thereon—reserving to the Company the option of paying the said four fifths in Baltimore City 6 per cent stock at par—or in the stock orders of the Company at par; and also reserving the option of paying for the remaining fifth in like manner, when the delivery of the whole quantity contracted for shall have been completed according to the contract.

If the materials contracted for or any part of them are not furnished at the times required, the Company may dissolve the contract and retain the one-fifth due on any which may have been already delivered, and no estimates or payments shall be made or on account of materials delivered before the time specified for commencing the delivery of the same. The monthly payments shall be made at the Company's offices in Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh, Virginia, at the option of the contractor, and the final payments shall be made in Baltimore. The manner and times in which the materials shall be furnished on the different parts of the line will be specifically provided for in the contracts, and particulars will be given on application to the undersigned. It will be required that about one half of the whole quantity of materials shall be delivered as early as possible between now and the 1st of December next. A model of the rail and its supports and fastenings will be ready for inspection at the Company's office in Baltimore by the 28th current. The proposals will be directed under seal to the subscriber, either at Baltimore, Cumbertand, or Martinsburgh—and will be received up to the 15th of March proximo. CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains ex aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

THE MILDEW OF THE HEART.

Fain would I know if Earth yields aught
Within the reach of Art,
To shield, to shelter mankind from
The mildew of the heart!

To hide them from its fatal blight,
And o'er their bosoms cast
Such mantles as will shroud them from
It's dread, destructive blast:

Will deck them in the glad array
Of Peace, Content and Joy,
So that the tempest winds of Life
May never more annoy!

For oft the garden of the heart
Becomes a desert drear,
Where not a bud or blossom thrives
To animate or cheer—

A darksome waste, where scarce a ray
Of Hope adorns with light;
A wilderness of gloom and woe,
Amid unchanging night!

My mother Earth! list to my call,
Kindly to man impart
Aught that thou hast to guard him from
The mildew of the heart!

FRANKNESS.

Alice Ray was one of those beings whose communications are an index to her heart—whose conversation faithfully mirrored her inmost soul. She uttered a hundred things that you would conceal, and spoke them with that dignified assurance that made you wonder that you had ever hesitated to say them yourself. Nor did this unreservedness appear like the weakness, of one who could not conceal, or a determination to make war on the forms of society. It was rather a calm, well-guarded integrity, regulated by a just sense of propriety—knowing when to be silent, but speaking the truth when she spoke at all.

But you may just visit Miss Alice for half an hour to-night, and judge for yourselves. You may walk into that little parlor. There is Miss Alice on the sofa, sowing a pair of lace sleeves into a satin dress—in which peculiar angelic employment she may persevere until we have finished another sketch.

So you see that pretty little lady, with sparkling eyes, elastic form, and beautiful hand and foot that is sitting opposite to her? She is a belle;—the character is written in her face—it dimples in her smiles, and pervades the whole woman.

But there—Alice has arisen, and has gone to the mirror, and is arranging the finest auburn hair in the world, in the most tasteful manner.—The little lady watches every motion as comically as a kitten would watch a pin ball.

'It is all vain to deny it, Alice—you are really anxious to look prettty this evening,' said she.

'I certainly am,' said Alice quietly.

'Ah, and you hope you shall please Mr. A. and Mr. B.' said the accusing little angel.

'Certainly I do,' said Alice, as she twisted her fingers in a beautiful curl.

'Well, I would not tell it, Alice, if I did,' said the belle.

'Then you should not ask me,' said Alice.

'I declare! Alice.'

'And what do you declare?'

'I never saw such a girl as you are.'

'Very likely,' said Alice, stooping to pick up a pin.

'Well, for my part,' said the little lady, I would never take any pains to make any body like me—particularly a gentleman.'

'I would,' said Alice, 'if they would not love me without.'

'Why, Alice! I should not think you were so fond of admiration.'

'I like to be remembered very much,' said Alice, returning to the sofa, 'and I suppose every body else does.'

'I don't care about admiration,' said the little lady; 'I would be as satisfied that people should'nt like me as that they should.'

'Then, cousin, I think it's a pity we all like you so well,' said Alice, with a good-humored smile. If Miss Alice had penetration, she never made a severe use of it.'

'But, really, cousin,' said the lady, 'I should not think such a girl as you would think any thing about dress or admiration, and all that.'

'I don't know what kind of a girl you think I am,' said Alice, 'but for my own part, I only pretend to be a common human being, and am not ashamed of common human feelings. If God has made us so that we love admiration, why should we not honestly say so? I love it, you love it, and every body else loves it; and why should not every body say so?'

'Why, yes,' said the little lady; 'I suppose every body has a—has a—a general love of admiration. I am willing to acknowledge that—that I have; but'—

'But you have no love for it in particular,' said Alice. 'I suppose you mean to say; that is just the way the matter is disposed of. Every body is willing to acknowledge a general wish for the good opinion of others; but half the world are ashamed to own it when it comes to a particular case. Now, I have made up my mind, that if it is correct in general, it is correct in particular, and I mean to own it in both ways.'

'But spite how, it seems mean!' said the little lady.

'It is mean to live for it, to be selfishly engrossed in it; but not mean to enjoy it when it comes, or even to seek it, if we neglect no higher interest in doing so. All that God made us to feel, is dignified and pure, unless we pervert it.'

'But, Alice, I never heard any one speak out so frankly.'

'Almost all that is innocent and natural may be spoken out; and as for that which is not innocent and natural, it ought not even to be thought.'

'But can every thing be spoken which may be thought?'

'No, we have an instinct which teaches us to be silent sometimes; but if we speak at all, let it be done in simplicity and sincerity.'

'Now, for instance, Alice,' said the lady, 'it is very innocent and natural, as you say, to think this, that, and the other thing of yourself, especially when every body is telling you of it—now would you speak the truth if any one asked you on this point?'

'If it were a person who had a right to ask, and if it were a proper time and place, I would,' said Alice.

'Well, then,' said the bright lady, I ask you, Alice, in this very proper time and place, do you think that you are handsome?'

'Now I suppose you expect me to make a courtesy to every chair in the room, before I answer—but dispensing with that ceremony, I will tell you fairly—I think I am.'

'Do you think that you are good?'

'Not entirely.'

'Well, but don't you think that you are better than some people?'

'As far as I can tell, I think I am better than some people—but really, cousin, I don't trust my own judgment in this matter,' said Alice.

'Well, Alice, one more question. Do you think that James Martyrs likes you or me best?'

'I do not know.'

'I did not ask you what you knew, but what you thought,' said the little inquisitor, 'you must have some thought about it.'

'Well, then, I think he likes me best,' said Alice.'

Just then the door opened, and in walked the identical James Martyrs. Alice blushed—looked a little comical, and continued on with her sewing while the vixen little lady began:

'Really, Mr. James, I wish you had come in a minute sooner; to hear Alice's confessions.'

'What has she confessed?' said James.

'Why, that she is handsomer and better than most folks.'

'That's nothing to be ashamed of,' said James.

'Oh, that's not all—she wants to look pretty, and loves to be admired, all'—

'It sounds very much like her,' said James, looking at Alice.

'Oh, besides that,' said the lady; 'she has been preaching a discourse in justification of vanity and self-love.'

'And the next time you shall take notes when I preach,' said Alice, 'for I do not think your memory is remarkably happy.'

'You see, James,' said the lady, 'that Alice makes it a point to say exactly the truth, when she speaks at all; and I've been trying to puzzle her with questions; I really wish you would ask her some, and see what she will say. But mercy! there is uncle C. come to take me to ride. I must run.' And off flew the little humming-bird, leaving James and Alice tete-a-tete.

'There is really one question,' said James clearing his voice.

Alice looked up.

'There is one question, Alice, which I wish you would answer.'

Alice did not inquire what the question was, but began to look very solemn; and just then I went out of the room and shut the door: and so I never knew what it was that Alice's friend, James, wanted to be enlightened about.

BALTIMORE CITY COURT.

Present—Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington.

Friday, February 19, 1841. Samuel Maynard was put upon trial, charged with assaulting Elias Johnson. Both of the parties were negro draymen. The occurrence took place in the store of Mr. Wysham. Johnson was declared guilty. Sentenced to be imprisoned for one week and fined $5 and costs.

State vs. Eliza Pier, col'd. } Indictment for the murder of Rachael Stewart, a negress.

The prisoner was indicted for murder by setting fire to the clothes of Rachael Stewart, which, by said setting fire, she caused a wound on the body of the said Rachael Stewart the length of five inches and depth of one inch, in consequence of which said wound she the said Rachael Stewart died.

The principal testimony against the prisoner was the dying declarations of Rachael Stewart, which were taken by Peregrine Gorsuch, Esq. on last Sunday afternoon. Mr. Gorsuch stated that Mr. McKeown put the questions to the woman and he wrote them down. The following are the questions and answers:

How did you get burned?
By shavings.
Who did it?
Eliza Pier.
Who brought the shavings?
Indian Ann, to lay on.
How do you know that Eliza Pier did it?
Because there was no other person else in the house but her and Peter, a little Frenchman?
Did you see her set fire to you?
No, but she as good as told me so to-day.
Was the man in the house at the time?
He was.
Where did the man go afterwards?
Some man took him away.
Where was you setting at the time?
By the cupboard.
What part of your clothing took fire?
My frock and apron before.
Who put the shavings on the fire?
Expects that Eliza did.
Had you any dispute during the day with her?
Had none.

The above occurrence took place in that notorious place L. alley. It was proven by McKeown that the fire might have happened by accident. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Mrs. Martin was charged with having committed an assault upon a little girl in her employ. She was declared not guilty.

In the case of Nicholas U. Chafee, the Court fined him $10 and costs for resistance to officer Campbell, and not guilty in the other cases.

The Court this day passed sentence on the following persons convicted at this term:

James H. Anderson, negro, two cases—first case, to be confined in the Maryland Penitentiary until the 30th August, 1842; second case, until the 30th August, 1844.

John Spicer until the 2d April, 1842.

The Court adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

A TELL-TALE ASSORTMENT. On Monday last a lady fell down near the Marlboro' Hotel, Boston, and left her card case in the street, containing three billet-doux, two unreceipted bills, and a pencil sketch of a distinguished clergyman.—There is no name on the case.

ARREST EXTRAORDINARY. Yesterday morning the Mayor's clerk and Levin H. Smith, the High Constable, were arrested in Philadelphia on a charge of slander, seriously affecting the family connections of Eleazar Hand, an officer in the Sheriff's office. Both of the defendants were bound over in a very heavy security, to answer the charge at court.

ACCIDENT. A young lady named Catharine Moffit was instantly killed on the 5th instant, at Peoria, Illinois, by being thrown from a wagon.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	"	Washington	8 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	"	Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	"	Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	"	Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	"	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	"	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	"	Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads Weather and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

STOCKTON, FALLS & CO.
Adjoining the Philadelphia Rail Road Office,

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

SATURDAY MORNING, Feb. 20, 1841.

PUBLIC LANDS. It is extraordinary that party discipline is brought to bear upon every subject, from the most insignificant to the most important. Whether the dispute be about straws or matters of the weightiest concern, it is conducted with equal earnestness. It is unfortunate that men should be bound so fast in the fetters of party as to become mere machines or puppets, to be worked as others may draw the wires. By this rigid party discipline, all freedom of action and of thought is sacrificed; and when a public measure is proposed, it is not canvassed upon its intrinsic merits, but is seized upon as a bone of contention, over which a party battle is to be fought. In this ridiculous strife, the real interests of the country are neglected or forgotten. The proposition to distribute the proceeds of the sales of public lands among the several States, is a subject which is not necessarily connected with party, and is of sufficient importance to be examined with reference exclusively to its justice and propriety. To the citizens of the old States in particular, it is a matter of vital consequence, and among them we should hardly expect to hear a dissenting voice to its adoption. But, instead of the unanimity which should, and would exist under a different condition of things, we have an array of party on one side to carry, and on the other to defeat the measure. Some oppose the distribution bill on the ground that it is unconstitutional, and yet they have no such scruples when it is proposed to cede the lands to the States in which they lie. Others, again, affect to think that the receipt of this money by the States, would have a corrupting influence, and lead to a dependance by the States on the General Government, if not to the assumption, by the latter, of the debts of the former.—But these are shallow pretences, as unwise as they are unpatriotic, and form not the real motive of opposition to the measure. That is to be found in party dictation; and, as with wild geese, the leader guides the flock, so with parties. We wish that we could see party men so far unmanacled as to use their own limbs, see with their own eyes, and speak with their own tongues. It is "a consummation devoutly to be wished," but, we apprehend, not speedily to be witnessed.

In this question of the public lands the people of Maryland have a deep interest. The sum annually received from that source would relieve them to a considerable extent from taxation.—And shall they reject so great a benefit? Will they consent to relinquish their interest in these lands, because it may suit the ambitious views or the misguided policy of this or that individual? Their right to a participation in the proceeds of the public lands is undoubted, and would be undisputed in this state but for party—then why permit this to be made a party question? It would be better to annihilate party spirit altogether than to make so great a sacrifice. But, say some, if you withdraw this fund from the public treasury, a compensating amount must be raised by an increase of duties. Agreed. This is the very effect which we wish to see produced. We are running in debt to the amount of millions annually for articles of luxury and other things with which we could dispense; and when it is asked how this debt is to be liquidated, echo answers, how? and we should like to see the man who can give a better reply. An increase of the tariff should be no obstacle to the passage of the distribution bill. Some of the states (and among them Maryland,) are largely in debt, and have no means of raising money except by taxes. The general government is comparatively free from embarrassment, and may increase its receipts to the desired point by additional duties, without aid from the public lands. But, if the proceeds from the sales of these lands were necessary to the general government, events shew that they will not long be available, as the cession project must succeed in the course of a few years, if a final disposition of the matter be not previously made. The distribution bill would prevent the further agitation of the subject by dealing out to all the states even-handed justice.

GAS COMPANY. A correspondent has sent us a forty-four pounder against the Gas Company.—He complains of the incorrectness of the metres in construction and running—of the inferior materials of which the gas is made—of the enormous cost of the light, and of the increase of this cost without cause. The remedy he recommends is, to have sworn inspectors appointed to examine the construction of the metres and attend to their regulation; and to inspect the manufacture of the gas.

We have heard considerable complaint on this subject, and we know that the expense of gas light has increased four-fold since the adoption of metres. We have no confidence in their accuracy, and should be pleased if the company would cause such corrections to be made in the premises as will quiet discontent, at the same time that justice is done to all parties.

We are informed that the suggestion of our correspondent in relation to the appointment of inspectors, is based upon the practice in other cities, where the same exceptions were taken to the metre as in Baltimore; and we have heard the opinion expressed, that great frauds may be committed in the construction of these machines. However this may be, we deem it our duty to comply so far with the request of our correspondent, as to call the attention of the company and the public to the subject.

RESCUE. A man named Madison saved a boy from drowning who fell through the ice at the Battery, New York, on Wednesday last.

USE AND ABUSE OF THE PRESS. The use of the Press is to diffuse correct information—to enlighten and instruct—to inculcate morality—"to raise the genius, and to mend the heart."

It is an abuse of the press to misrepresent facts, motives, or actions—to encourage immorality—to use abusive terms, or to expose the occurrences at the domestic fireside. It is not our intention to enter upon this wide field; we shall confine our attention to one point—the abuse of the press in dragging before the public matters which are entirely of a private character. Newsmongers, in their eager search after novelty, do not sufficiently discriminate between that which is a proper subject for animadversion, and that which is of a strictly private nature; and hence we have events narrated, which, however they may minister to the morbid appetite, should remain secluded from public view. Petty disputes between individuals—the quarrels of lovers—domestic discord—runaway matches—disappointed hopes—every thing is now thought worthy of being paraded before the public. If the public morals could be improved by such publications, some benefit would result from the violation of propriety; but this is not pretended. The sole object appears to be, to create a demand for the paper in which such things are inserted; and this purpose is answered to a great extent. The press should be a terror to evil-doers, but it should disdain to resort to the family sanctuary, to drag forth and publish its secrets.

A SERENADE. A few evenings since, a young gallant, who had become enamoured with the loveliness of a fair form in one of the fashionable parts of our city, slung his guitar around his shoulders, and repaired to the spot where dwelt his beau ideal of beauty, for the purpose of waking up her sympathetic heart with the soft tones of plaintive melody. He commenced with "Wake from thy Slumbers." Sure enough, while in the midst of his impassioned strains, a female form approached the third story window. "That," said he, "must be the divinity of my soul—I'll sing 'Young Love's Dream.'" No sooner was this thought of, than a soft tone broke from his guitar, accompanied by a voice almost celestial. We can imagine the secret, incomprehensible transmission of unsullied affection, under such circumstances, to the form at the window, whom the minstrel's fancy had painted as the magnet of his heart. After a few more love-sick ditties had been disposed of, and the devoted youth was about making his exit, a voice from the lattice cried—"Massa, Massa, don't stop dat are music—jis gib me Jim Crow or Zip Coon, before yer gwoin." The knight of the mustache was struck with awe. He found that his minstrelsy had been wasted upon the ear of Dinah, the young lady's chamber-maid, and that his devoted one had been out that evening, attending a soiree given by her neighbor.

INSTRUCTIONS. Mr. Williams, senator from Maine, has been instructed by the legislature to give certain votes or resign. We dislike this peremptory mode of proceeding; and as the doctrine of instruction has been practically carried out, the intention of the constitution in requiring U. S. senators to be chosen for six years, is defeated. It is not always that the legislature represents truly the wishes of the people; and unless delegates are chosen with express reference to the matters about which they undertake to instruct senators, we do not consider the latter bound to obey such instructions. We object to recalling senators upon every change of party in the legislature, because, where the popular vote is close, as in the state of Maine, senators might scarcely take their seats before they would be ordered back.

THE LAND OFFICE REPORT. The Philadelphia Ledger says. The annual report of the Commissioners of the Land Office, states that the sales of Public Lands during the year 1839 amounted to 4,976,382 87 acres, and the nett proceeds from this source paid into the United States Treasury, during the same period, were $7,076,447 35.—The sales for the first three quarters of the year 1840, amounted to 1,696,617 42 acres, and the payments into the Treasury to $2,630,217 25. During eight years, from 1833 to 1840, both exclusive, there were sold 56,842,806 acres, and the receipts thereof paid into the Treasury, were $72,269,749 58. There will be prepared for the market, during the ensuing eighteen months, thirty-one millions and a quarter of acres.

AMERICAN GENIUS. We saw yesterday, a new historical painting of much merit by a young American artist. It is called "the wise men worshipping Christ," taken from the 2d chapter 5th and 11th verses of Matthew. The subject is certainly one of great beauty, and according to our taste, delineated in a masterly style upon canvass. Those wishing to be gratified with a sight of it, can call at No. 153 Baltimore st. where they will receive the polite attentions of Mr. S. G. Gale, the artist. Mr. G. has gained considerable celebrity in Europe, where he has sojourned for some years, and bids fair to become distinguished in his native land.

ECLOGY. A very appropriate eulogium was delivered yesterday afternoon, in the University of Maryland, by Dr. G. W. Miltenberger, upon the death of the late Professor of Anatomy, Dr. W. N. Baker. We are informed that Dr. Miltenberger has been appointed to fill the place of Professor Baker, and will lecture on Anatomy during the remainder of the season.

☞ The bill providing for an increase of tolls on the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, has passed both branches of the legislature, and is consequently a law.

☞ General Harrison was expected to arrive at Richmond on Wednesday evening last. Great preparations were being made for his reception.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19, 1841.

This morning the senate is quarrelling about the election of a printer to that body for the next congress. It is contended by the whigs that the joint resolution authorizing the election of that officer for a succeeding congress, is unjust, and ought to be repealed.

In the house, the chairman of the military committee stated, that a report, embracing a general plan of defence for the country, had been prepared, and was in readiness whenever the house should think proper to receive it. It will probably be taken up to-morrow.

Mr. Stanly having last night spoken rather harshly of certain resolutions passed by the legislature of South Carolina, Mr. Holmes of S. C. this morning wished to put a question to him on that subject. Mr. Stanly objected, whereon Mr. Campbell of S. C. advised Mr. Holmes to treat any thing Mr. S. might say against their state with silent contempt. Mr. C. also added that the puny arm of Mr. Stanly was not long enough to reach the state of South Carolina.

Mr. Stanly rose, and holding out his arm at full length, said it was long enough to reach the member from South Carolina, or any other member.

The house then went into committee of the whole, and took up a bill for continuing in force an act granting half pay to certain widows and orphans.

After some debate on this bill, the war with Mr. Stanly was again renewed.

Mr. Pickens of S. C. alluding to what Mr. S. had said against that state last evening, made some satirical remarks in relation to the "pigmy" arms of that member. Also that the efforts of the member to injure South Carolina were about as ineffectual as the arrows of the savage which were shot at the sun. The dreaded valor of the gentleman, said Mr. P., reminds me of the nursery rhyme,

> Who shot Cock Robin?
> I, says the Sparrow,
> With my bow and arrow,
> I shot Cock Robin.

Mr. P. went on to hint that Mr. Stanly was about as much to be feared as a sparrow, etc.—[Mr. Stanly is the smallest man in the house in point of stature.]

Mr. Stanly replied, and assured the member from South Carolina, that he, Mr. S., small as he was, could kill a whole cowpen full of such cock robins as he. Mr. S. also likened Mr. P. to a "choked fish." After some further recrimination, the chair interfered, and the debate went on with more order.

I leave you to make your own comments upon such "parliamentary" proceedings.

HARPER'S FAMILY LIBRARY. We have received from Messrs. Cushing & Brother, Nos. 123, 124 and 125 of this popular work. The present numbers contain the "Lives of Distinguished Men of Modern Times." They are embellished with beautiful engravings of John Wielif, Edmund Burke, and De Witt Clinton.

MAGAZINES. We have received the following from Mr. William N. Harrison, 174 Baltimore street and 28 N. Gay street:

"Graham's Lady's and Gentleman's Magazine," for March, 1841. Besides the plate of fashions, there is a beautiful engraving attached to the story of the "Lady Isabel." The contents are various and appropriate, and the work deserving of patronage.

"The Lady's Amaranth," containing tales, historical and biographical sketches, &c. It is published for $1.25 for 26 numbers—cheap enough in all conscience.

"The Family Magazine, or Monthly Abstract of General Knowledge," illustrated with several hundred engravings. This publication is in imitation of the Penny Magazine, and abounds with useful information and a variety of subjects. It should be extensively circulated, the cost being only $1.50 per annum.

We have also received from the editor and publisher, G. H. Hickman, the "Juvenile Mirror," No. 8; designed for youth and well adapted to their improvement, the selections being chiefly historical, biographical and moral. We are glad to see Master Hickman thus putting forth his energies. "Tall oaks from little acorns grow."

BANK ROBBERS. An attempt was made on Saturday or Sunday night last, to break into the Railroad Bank, at Lowell. The thieves succeeded in opening the outer door of the vault by means of false keys; but the inner door was fastened by one of Andrews's patent locks, which they could not pick. They attempted to force it off, but did not succeed, although they appear to have been well prepared with instruments for the purpose, and they left the premises, having got nothing for their pains. $500 reward is offered for their apprehension.

SHIPWRECK. The schooner Margaret, Laurence, from Combahee for Charleston, with about 220 barrels rice and twenty bales cotton, went ashore on the South breaker, on the afternoon of the 12th inst. and is a total loss. The steamer Southerner, which left on the 13th inst. for Savannah, was alongside about three hours, and it is probable she took off the crew and cotton, and proceeded on her voyage.

NAVAL. We learn by the Norfolk Beacon, that Commodore Morris is to go out in the ship of the line Delaware, to take command of the Mediterranean squadron. It is rumored that Captain Connor is to be his flag captain. It is also rumored that Commodore Warrington is to succeed Commodore Morris as President of the Navy Board.

ELECTION. George W. Krebs, esq. was elected, on Thursday last, a member of the city council, in the place of Samuel Harden, esq. deceased. He was the whig candidate, and had no opposition.

The following is from the N. Y. Sun, which fully explains the great hoax and also proves that we were not far from the mark, when we pronounced it a made up story. We have been at Niagara and thought it would have been rather a tough job for even Nature herself to have accomplished such a piece of destruction of her own making.

LATEST NEWS FROM NIAGARA FALLS. A second express having arrived, we have the pleasure of informing our anxious readers that all is right again. Goat Island has lifted itself from the abyss into which it had fallen, and regained its old position: Biddle Tower looms as large as ever; the spiral staircase is where it was before; the excellent hotel is re-opened for the reception of visitors; the wheels of the natural revolution have rolled backward; the rocks have again upreared their everlasting barrier, and Niagara's eternal flood still foams and roars, and thunders as it has done since the world began.

Perhaps, kind reader, by this time you begin to think that we have been most deucedly hoaxed, and in truth we have strong suspicions to that effect ourselves. We had half a mind to be vexed at first, and were disposed to scold the scoundrel roundly; but upon second thought we remembered the "Moon Story," and concluded we might as well keep quiet. But really it is not pleasant to be laughed at, and if we only had the author upon the brink of Goat Island, we would punish him by holding him in the foaming flood by the heel, as Thetis did her immortal son Achilles. However, we would not let him "go over the dam," for we perceive something clever about him. Although he has told us a confounded lie, he has done it very plausibly, fortified as it is by the predictions of geologists.

There is no cruelty in his hoax, and we trust no malice in his heart. If he will only let us know his name, we will treat him to a capital dinner at the "Carlton," trimmed with some of Benson & Hodges prime "old Stackpole" at $1 a bottle. What say you nonsenis nubra?

As for our kind friend, Mr. C. McNorton, who came on by express from Buffalo, and immediately forwarded to us the "only extra that had reached the city," we are greatly indebted to him for his extreme politeness, and will give him a drink of "hard cider" the first time we meet him.

FROM FLORIDA. We learn by the New Orleans Picayune that Col. Riley with his detachment recently succeeded in surprising and capturing Cossa Tustenuggee's band, numbering over 100, on the head waters of the Ochlawha. They had free papers from Gen. Armistead to proceed without molestation to Tampa Bay for the purpose of surrendering themselves, so that Colonel Riley, after achieving by far the greatest victory during the war, was obliged to let them go.—Whether they will surrender themselves remains yet to be seen.

☞ The Mobile Journal of the 11th inst. says: A paragraph is going the rounds of the northern papers, stating that the Legislature of this state, previous to adjournment last month, "passed a law authorising the banks to suspend specie payments until the 15th of November next, when the Legislature meets again." This is an error—no such act passed, and the state in which the Legislature left that part of the bank question, is one of the gravest causes of complaint against them for neglect of the most obvious points of duty.

MAGNETIC HOAX. Some wag wrote a letter to the keeper of a lecture room in Massachusetts a few days ago signed "Wm. L. Stone," stating that he intended to lecture on magnetism that evening. The necessary preparations were made, but at the appointed time no lecturer made his appearance. It was not until the patience of the audience was pretty well tested that they found out that they were nicely hoaxed.

CANADA MILITARY FORCE. There are 20,000 regulars in the two provinces. In addition, each regiment of militia is required to have two flank companies in constant readiness. As there are 113 regiments in the Upper Province, this will give 16,000 men. A force of 36,000 would thus be called into the field at a moment's notice.

NEW LIFE BOAT. There is now building at the shop of Mr. George James, Philadelphia, a large life boat capable of carrying one hundred persons. It is intended for the steam frigate, at present on the stocks at the Navy Yard. This will be when finished the largest boat of the kind ever built in this country.

FOUND. A package of money ($1,400) was found in a yard in Boston on Tuesday night. It is supposed to have been the money stolen by James Gardner from Mrs. Wheeler, who was tried for the offence last week. Gardner was to have been sentenced the following morning.

GOING THE ROUNDS. We yesterday received several New York and Brooklyn papers of the 22d and 23d ult. by way of New Orleans; also, a lot of New Orleans papers of the 27th and 28th by way of New York.

STEAMBOAT SUNK. The steamboat Wilmington is sunk at Satartia. She was freighted with cotton, a part of which, it is thought, will be saved. The boat will be a total loss.

ANOTHER FIRE AT CHICAGO. On the morning of the 9th inst. a fire broke out in a house occupied by Alfred Root, which was partially destroyed. The damage was very small.

ALTERED NOTES. It was decided in the N. Y. Court of Common Pleas on Monday last, that a bank is not liable for the original value of a note that has been altered or defaced.

GREAT BEQUEST. A Mr. Bartlett, by his will, has left $50,000 to the Andover Thelogical Seminary. His estate is said to be worth half a million.

An English editor, with much gravity, says that the way they procure black writing ink in South Carolina, is by whipping the negroes until they cry, and then catching the tears!

APPOINTMENT. Wm. Roselius has been appointed Attorney General in New Orleans.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. Williams, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 18, 1841.

He also reported a bill to provide for taking the vote of the people of this state as to the expediency of calling a convention to reform the present and frame a new constitution, and to amend the constitution, so as to enable the legislature to call such convention; which was read, and on motion of Mr. Foreman recommitted by a vote of 42 to 20.

FROM CAPE OF GOOD HOPE. The whale ship Friend, at New London, from Cape of Good Hope, brings advices to Dec. 15. Three American whalers were reported to have been wrecked.

Cape Town, Dec. 15. Slavers.—The Brazilian schooner Maria Felix, Capt. J. J. de Mesquita, with ivory, &c., has been detained in the Mozambique Channel by H. M. S. Lily, on suspicion of being concerned in the slave trade, and sent into Table Bay. The Portuguese bark Amelia and cargo, detained by H. M. S. Acorn, were condemned in our Vice Admiralty Court on the 8th inst.

EXPLORING EXPEDITIONS IN THE SOUTHERN HEMISPHERE. British Antarctic. The Erebus, Capt. J. C. Ross, and Terror, Capt. F. R. M. Crozier, from Simon's Bay, last Kerguelen's Land, arrived at Hobart Town, 15th August, all well. Great expectations are formed of what this expedition is likely to effect in respect of magnetic observations and synchronous days are set apart, or, to speak more plainly, the same time the observations are made here, they will be made in different parts of Europe, four stated days in the year having been appointed by the German Magnetic Association, and other periods in their own observatories. The observations have been hitherto such as to induce Capt. Ross to entertain the idea that he can solve the problems of magnetic influence, in so far as to establish the position that it does not depend upon the earth. Besides magnetic observations, atmospherical pheuomena are also to be comprised within the scope of this expedition.

Flour. We have no alteration to quote in the price of flour. Howard street, good common brands from stores $4.50. The wagon price continues at $4.37½. City mills $4.62½.

A FANATIC. Also a female, who said the man was her husband and stated that he had lately joined the Mormons.

105,600 Screw-bolts, 7½ inches long, and ¾ in diam. wt 1 lb. each,	105,600
105,600 Nuts for same, (1 7 8 sq'e, 9-16 thick,) wt. ½ lb. each,	52,800
105,600 Washers, of a wedge form, 3½ inches long by 2½ wide, and ¼ inch average thickness, and weighing 9 16 lb.	50,136
105,600 Plates of rolled Zinc, same length and width, and 1 16 thick, weighing 16 to the pound,	10,560
844,800 Hook-headed Spikes, 4½ inches long, 7-16 square in the shank, and weighing 4½ oz. each,	224,716

The Sawed Lumber may be of white or yellow pine, with not more than an inch of sap on two edges of the stick; free from large knots, shakes or decay of any kind. A portion of the 4½x8 scantling may be proposed for to be furnished, or white oak, under the same conditions as to quality. The points of delivery may be at Baltimore, Georgetown, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any other point upon the line of the road, and the proposal will state the places as well as times at which the Lumber will be furnished.

Proposers to whom more than one of the places just named are accessible, will separately state their prices for delivery at each; so as to allow an option to the Company in regard to them should the proposal be accepted.

The hewn Timber, intended for the cross-ties and support-blocks, may be of white oak, rock-oak or chesnut oak, or of chesnut. It must be sound wood, and straight in one direction. If the proposer prefers delivering it in the rough state, and does not wish to undertake the hewing of it to the required dimensions he can so word his proposal, and in that case the size of the sticks must be such as to permit them, when dressed, to be of the full dimensions specified, clear of bark and axe-kerf. If the timber is cut while the bark is loose, it must be stripped off before the delivery. The delivery may be made upon any point of the line, between Harper's Ferry and Cumberland, and the points between which it will take place must be stated. There are to every mile of track 31,680 feet board measure of 4½x8, and 26,400 feet of 3x10 scantling, 1056 cross ties dressed to 4½ inches thick, and 302 dressed to 3 inches thick. Proposals will not be received for a less quantity of any of the kinds of timber, than will lay a mile of track.

The Castings for the chairs and plates will be of an easy pattern—they must be of strong and sound metal, and smoothly cast—the contractor furnishing the patterns. The screw-bolts and nuts will be of sound, tough iron and made with cutters as to the required form and size. The washers will be of bar-iron, rolled with the proper section, cut off and punched for the passage of the bolt. The zinc plates similarly made. The hook-headed spikes to be of iron of as good a quality as that of the screw bolts.

The Iron Fastenings just described may be delivered at Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any point of the line of the road between the two latter places and the places and times of delivery will be stated in the proposals. There are to every mile of track 7656 lbs. of castings—1584 lbs. of bolts and nuts—591 lbs. of iron washers—105 lbs. of zinc plates, and 2247 lbs. of spikes. No proposal for a less quantity than will supply 10 miles will be received.

Monthly estimates will be made of the quantities of each kind of materials so delivered and four fifths of the value at the contract prices will be paid thereon—reserving to the Company the option of paying the said four fifths in Baltimore City 6 per cent stock at par—or in the stock orders of the Company at par; and also reserving the option of paying for the remaining fifth in like manner, when the delivery of the whole quantity contracted for shall have been completed according to the contract.

If the materials contracted for or any part of them are not furnished at the times required, the Company may dissolve the contract and retain the one-fifth due on any which may have been already delivered, and no estimates or payments shall be made or on account of materials delivered before the time specified for commencing the delivery of the same. The monthly payments shall be made at the Company's offices in Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh, Virginia, at the option of the contractor, and the final payments shall be made in Baltimore. The manner and times in which the materials shall be furnished on the different parts of the line will be specifically provided for in the contracts, and particulars will be given on application to the undersigned. It will be required that about one half of the whole quantity of materials shall be delivered as early as possible between now and the 1st of December next. A model of the rail and its supports and fastenings will be ready for inspection at the Company's office in Baltimore by the 20th current. The proposals will be directed under seal to the subscriber, either at Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh—and will be received up to the 15th of March proximo. VALLIER'S FRENCH PILL, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Valier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of the superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains as aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

TO MY MOTHER IN HEAVEN.

The glowing eve is softly fading
O'er the wide and distant sea,
Gentle thoughts my mind o'ershading,
Memory wanders far to thee.
Tho' the mist of days departed,
Breaks a ray of golden light,
'Tis the glowing age of childhood,
Sheds a halo 'round my sight.

Thou wert near me then my Mother,
My young head laid on thy breast,
While that voice with love's own music,
Sweetly lulled me there to rest.
Oh! the lovely spell of sorrow
That the orphan's heart come's o'er,
When her mother's step she misses,
When her tones she hears no more.

Other friends may cluster near us,
Other ties around be thrown;
But they feel not that affection,
True and holy as thy own.
For a land of sunnier bloom,
There I see thee robed in glory,
Happy in thy blessed home.

When the cold world's frowns oppress me,
My sad spirit turns to thee;
Asking, when life's ills distress me,
Mother thou wouldst pray for me.
Once I was thy cherished ido',
Can those ties by death be riven!
No, I feel, my angel mother,
Thou wilt love me still in Heaven!

THE RUNAWAY MATCH.

BY MISS M. A. CORCORAN.

It is well known that the laws of some of the states of the Union afford more facilities than others, to those who are desirous of marrying against the will of their parents and friends.

In the good old State of Pennsylvania, the laws are so constructed that every possible encouragement is held out for her young people to enter into a state of double blessedness; as the votaries of Hymen have only to hie away to the nearest justice of the peace, who is duly authorized to rivet the golden chain, without much ceremony, and without any permission from a higher functionary. Hence, when the young folks of Maryland and Virginia, being near the line, wish to enter the married state, against their friends' wishes, they come "over the border" to avail themselves of the liberality of the statutes of Pennsylvania.

A few years ago, when I resided in one of the southern counties of that respectable old commonwealth, I witnessed a runaway match, which was attended with more than ordinary interest.

I was passing some time at the house of an uncle, in the little village of G———, which, from its contiguity to the Maryland line, is a kind of Gretna Green for the "true lovyers" of that state, who are unfortunate enough to have cross-grained fathers and mothers. My cousin Agnes, who was a giddy, romping girl, came running to me one day with an open letter, which she desired me to read. It was from a young lady, living some thirty miles off, in Maryland, with whom Agnes had gone to boarding school. The writer stated that she was about to elope with a young gentleman to G———, on the next day, in the afternoon of which she expected to have the silken knot tied.

"Oh! coz," said Agnes, "Caroline Gay is an angel of a girl! You will be so much pleased with her!"

"Do you know her intended?" I enquired.

"Very well, indeed, coz," she answered.—"He is a fine, tall, handsome young man, and loves Caroline to distraction. I am bound to help them all I can. But after all, if that crabbed old father of hers should pursue them, and take Caroline home, what a spite it would be!"

"Then he is stoutly opposed to the match, I suppose!"

"So he is; but it don't make a bit of difference. George Hazard is a prize that any girl might be glad to draw; and I am right down glad to hear that she is going to marry him, in spite of her father's teeth, if the crusty old fellow has any.—They will be with us to-morrow afternoon, and the wedding shall take place in our parlor.—Coz, I must now go and get ready. You must help all in your power, for we'll have oceans of fun."

The giddy young girl flew to her wardrobe, and satisfied herself that her dresses were in order, to enable her to appear at her friend's nuptials, in a style befitting the occasion. She then impressed me into her service to assist in making such little culinary delicacies as our limited time enabled us to do. We toiled hard until a late hour in the evening, by which time we had prepared a bountiful supply of pound cake, sugar cake, jumbels, spice balls, and the many other nameless nicnacs which usually grace the table, on occasions like the one which was about approaching.

The next day was Sunday, and a clear and piercing cold one it was in the bargain. At an early hour, a glowing fire was made in the parlor, to impart a comfortable degree of warmth to the room in which the young Marylanders were to hear their decree of earthly bliss. Agnes had taken the precaution to send a private messenger to Squire Docket, who lived in the far end of the town; and the squire appeared in the parlor long before the appointed time, anxious no doubt to be prepared to administer the ceremony without delay. Agnes cast many a look through the end window of the house, which commanded a view of the road for some distance, as the hour approached.

"Come, set down by the fire, Agnes," said Squire Docket; "they will be here presently."

"That is, if nobody has overtaken them," she replied.

"Don't be uneasy—all will be well."

"You have everything ready, I hope, squire?"

"Yes—no—hang it all!" he exclaimed, hastily, "I've forgotten my spectacles, and I must hurry back home to get them, for I can't read a line without them."

"I'll send for them, Squire," said Agnes.

"Nobody but myself can find them, child. I'll soon be back—plenty of time yet."

"Now do hurry yourself," eagerly enjoined Agnes.

The Justice hastily strode out of the room. As soon as he got into the street, he exclaimed, 'As I live, I believe they are coming."

Agnes and I ran to the door, and both exclaimed, "Hurry, Squire."

We perceived two persons on horseback, approaching from the Maryland road. It was only, however, when they came within a few hundred yards, that we discovered one of them to be a female. Agnes immediately cried out, "'Tis Caroline and George Hazard."

In a few moments more, the couple were seated at the parlor fire. They both appeared to be in great glee at their success in their enterprize thus far. A great many congratulations passed to and fro.

"Oh, Caroline," said Agnes, "you can't imagine how glad I am to see you! But I declare I could scarcely tell at first whether you were a man or a woman, with all those buttons shining on your dress. You look for all the world like a trooper captain."

The dress worn by Miss Gay was of a peculiarly striking character. A neat little jockey cap surmounted her head; and her hair was nearly all concealed in its body, giving a boyish look to her face, which was, however, very beautiful, and of a deep carnation hue, in consequence of her cool ride. She was dressed in a French riding habit, of dark blue cloth, fitting neatly to the bust. It opened in front, with a falling velvet collar, after the fashion of a gentleman's vest. The habit was ornamented with elaborate silk embroidery, and tastefully decorated with perhaps half a grose of plain, flat, gilt buttons, of small size, and of exquisite finish, brilliancy, and fineness. A thickly set row of these buttons, served to connect the body in front, while on the other side was another row, gracefully curving to the shape, and extending to the shoulders. The outer side of each sleeve was likewise bestudded with another row of them. She wore a beautiful white satin chemisette, on each frill of which glittered another row of the same favorite buttons, but of a size yet smaller than those on the riding habit. Her apparel, upon the whole, though gorgeous, was chaste and pretty.

"I am a pretty fair soldier," she replied laughingly, "as my retreat from pa's guard room clearly shows."

"Did you ride fast, Caroline?" asked Agnes.

"We came like fox-hunters all the way, because brother Sydney is in pursuit of us. We have but little time to spare, Agnes."

"We had the old squire here unatil a moment ago," said Agnes, "when he found that he had forgotten his old specs. He will not be back for half an hour, being rather slow in motion."

"I hope he will soon return," remarked Mr. Hazard, "as our time is precious. Sydney cannot be far behind—though my brother will give us timely warning of his approach."

"Then your brother accompanies you?" inquired Agnes.

"Yes," replied Miss Gay, "he is only a short distance back, stationed as a sentry of mine, to warn his 'captain' of impending danger."

While she was yet speaking, the furious rattling of horse's feet at the door announced the arrival of Mr. Charles Hazard, who reported that Miss Gay's brother was rapidly coming towards the town.

"We must retreat!" cried the groom. "We can soon reach another place, where we may not be molested, Caroline."

"Just as you say, George," remarked Miss Gay, who was not in the slightest degree depressed in spirit, but was even yet full of merriment.

"I have it now," cried Agnes. "You shall not leave the room. I will put on your riding habit, Caroline, and Charley and I will gallop up the road, when Sydney comes in sight: he will take us to be you two; and before he can overtake us and bring us back, the old squire will be here and have the ceremony performed."

"Most excellent plan," exclaimed the groom.

"It will do," said Miss Gay, and she instantly divested herself of the riding habit, and assisted in putting it on Agnes.

"My gracious!" said Agnes, "what will people say when they see me in such a dress? I never had a gilt button on me before."

"Nobody will recognize you, coz," said I; "and the dress becomes you very much, I think. You always admired gilt buttons, if you never wore them."

"It really makes me dizzy to look at these glittering buttons!" said Agnes, after she had surveyed her gorgeous habiliment in the glass.

"Nonsense," replied Caroline; "nothing can be prettier. Besides you know our school-mistress used to call such buttons the 'eyes of Cupid,' 'Love's beacon lights,' and all such pretty things."

"I feel queer in this dress, Caroline," said Agnes. "I'll put my shawl on to hide these eyes of Cupid, as you call them."

"No, no; if you do, Sydney may not mistake you for me. Let them remain as they are.—Don't be afraid."

"Give me your whip, then," cried Agnes. "I will neither fear Sydney Gay, nor your shining buttons. I can be as good a soldier as any of you. Dear, how charming I must look."

Agnes was soon before the door, and Sydney Gay directly after came in sight. He was still at a great distance, but it was evident from his motions that he had noticed Agnes and Charles Hazard. Agnes was helped into her saddle, and the two cantered off up the street, and were soon out of sight. By arrangement, I remained at the door purposely to reply to any interrogatory which Mr. Sydney Gay might see proper to ask, when he should arrive. He was not long in coming up.

"Excuse me, Miss," said he, reigning in his horse; "you are doubtless aware of the direction taken by the persons I seek; and I hope you will oblige me as much as to say which route I ought to take to pursue them."

"You can scarcely overtake them," I replied. "They are travelling at a rapid gait; and their plans are too well arranged for you to frustrate them."

"You are sure, then, that they are gone?" asked the young man, with a sarcasm of speech that made me tremble with fear.

"Quite sure," I replied; but there was such a tremor in my voice, I could plainly see he doubted my information. Just at this moment a boy came riding towards us from the direction taken by the fugitives. Mr. Gay hailed the urchin.

"My fine son," said he, "did you meet a gentleman and a lady on the road?"

"A gentleman, and a young woman with ever so many yaller goold buttons on her coat?" retorted the boy.

"'Tis she!—Which way did they go?"

"Straight towards M———, and mighty fast, at that."

"I thank you both for your information," said the young man. "I will make havoc with their schemes, at every hazard!"—And, putting the spurs to his horse, off he rode.

I went in doors to rejoin Mr. Hazard and Miss Gay. They had overheard the colloquy between Mr. Gay and myself, and were much gratified at its result. After waiting a long time, Squire Docket appeared with his spectacles. I related to him what had transpired during his absence.

"Well managed!" he exclaimed, "and now for fear of meeting more troubles, we had better yoke this fair couple on the spot."

"We are ready sir," said Mr. Hazard. "Proceed with the ceremony."

The two stood up, and Squire Docket soon had them joined in the holy bands of wedlock. But the ceremony had scarcely been over before Mr. Sydney Gay re-appeared, and burst into the room. He cast a look of dismay at the honest old justice.

"Just a minute after the time, Sydney," said his brother-in-law.

"Well, the old man will be sorely grieved," he replied; "but all is over now. You were too many for me.—Caroline, you may thank your buttons for your success. The young lady whom I pursued did not correspond with you exactly in size, and I rather doubted her to be you, until I got near enough to see some of the gilt buttons on her dress, which satisfied me it was you, but upon overtaking her, my surprise was great to find a different person from my runaway sister. But the deed is done; and I wish you all the happiness in the world, and I promise to intercede with the old man for your forgiveness."

Agnes and her companion, soon after returned, in high spirits. They had a great deal of sport in talking about their successful ruse.

"I've a great mind to keep your riding habit, Caroline. I am getting in love with it," said Agnes, complacently viewing its beauties in the large mirror.

"I thought you would like it," replied the bride. "It will be excellent to catch beaux with."

"Indeed it will, Caroline. A soldier like me, armed with such an array of splendid buttons, is absolutely irresistible! Oh! dear, how sweetly they glitter! I never thought any body would see me with gilt buttons on—but really there's no giving them up, now—they're too lovely." And the romping girl marched to and fro, across the floor.

"The riding habit has acted a prominent part in our play to-day," said the bride; "and you shall keep it for your wedding, Agnes."

"I'll do so, Caroline.—But let us now be merry."

Our little party, now no longer filled with apprehensions, enjoyed ourselves to our hearts content. Our guests next day, started homeward. Mrs. Hazard left her riding habit with Agnes, who frequently wore it afterwards; and although she replaced its many buttons, as often as they became tarnished, with new ones of dazzling brightness, I have not heard that they were the means of her catching any beaux.

CURIOUS COINCIDENCES. On the 15th of October, 1815, Napoleon landed at St. Helena; on the 15th of October, 1840, his body was embarked after a lapse of twenty-five years. The circumstance of the Belle Poule frigate having left St. Helena, with the remains of Napoleon on the 15th of October, has led to an article in a German paper, stating several events of importance connected with the career of the Emperor as having taken place on that day of the month. The article names the Revolution, which gave him the consulate; the battle of Turlina, on the Beresina; the battle of Leipsic; the battle of Waterloo, and his arrival at St. Helena.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 19, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. Mr. Graves obtained leave to bring in a bill for the better regulation of the Banking Institutions of this State. Referred to a select committee composed of Messrs. Graves, Tuck, Nesbit, Hooper and Legrand.

Mr. Causin, chairman of the committee on corporations, reported a further supplement to the act to incorporate the Stockholders of the Franklin Bank of Baltimore, which was made the order of the day for Wednesday the 24th inst.

The bill for regulating the licenses of hawkers and pedlars, and for other purposes, was taken up for consideration, and after undergoing some amendments, was passed.

The first order of the day was then taken up, being the bill from the Senate, entitled an act to incorporate the Patapsco Canal and Navigation Company, and the amendments reported thereto from the committee on Corporations, which were read and assented to. The bill was then read as amended and a discussion commenced. I scarcely think the question will be decided to day, at least not in time to send the result by the cars.

BIGAMY, AGONY AND AFFECTION. At an English court recently a man named Bottervill was found guilty of intermarrying with Eliza Cowderoy, having several other wives alive, and sentenced to be transported for several years. The first or real wife, who had been listening to the proceedings, exclaimed with frantic gestures, "Oh, sir, forgive him for my sake and the sake of my children! I love him still! If he has done wrong, be merciful for my sake and his children!"

RECENT WEATHER!! and STORMS!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

MONDAY MORNING, Feb. 22, 1841.

Correct doctrine. We have undergone no little censure from some of the office-seekers, for our firm adherence to the principles which we have always maintained in relation to appointments. Our sentiments on this subject were considered perfectly satisfactory when applied to the proscriptive policy of the adverse party; but now that power is about to change hands, they are pronounced mal-apropos; not by the whig party, but by those who expect to make profit from the result of the political contest.

In what we have said respecting office-seekers, we have desired to be understood as opposing, not the claims of particular individuals, but the proscriptive policy—that policy which has been heretofore so severely denounced by whig writers and the party in general. If we have failed to define our position with sufficient distinctness, it is not now necessary that we should labor the point; for we find our sentiments so much better expressed by the distinguished senators Messrs. Clay and Preston, that it is unnecessary for us to add a word. Whilst we are sustained by such intellectual giants and pure patriots, we shall disregard the denunciations of pigmies.

"Mr. Clay, of Ky. made one of his noblest and best speeches, brief and powerful, in reply to an insinuation from Mr. Sevier, that the Whigs were to be proscriptive, and to remove from office without cause. He said that he had never conceived or uttered such a sentiment in all his life, and he held it as a despicable one. His opinion was that there should be but one inquiry in regard to officers. Was the man honest? Was he capable? Had he discharged the duties devolving upon him with fidelity? Had he kept aloof from executive interference? Had he not prostrated the duties of his office to party purposes? If a public officer had done none of these things, he should be retained in office, and held up as an example worthy of support.

"Mr. Norvell expressed the hope that the incoming administration would make a clean sweep, and leave not one stone upon another of the old administration.

"Mr. Preston trusted that the Whigs would do no such thing. The most infamous sentiment he had heard in all his life was that 'to the victors belonged the spoils.' It was not his sentiment, and he repudiated it altogether, and believed that neither the head of the new administration nor any one that sustained it would carry out such a principle. The sentiments of the Senator from Kentucky were his—honesty, capability of candidates for office, and a faithful discharge of public duties by them in office should secure them their places if they had not been guilty of interference with the people in their elections.

"Mr. Mangum assented to the same doctrine."

The Banks. Mr. Graves has taken the banks in hand, and is about to introduce a bill for their better regulation. Some of them stand sadly in need of reformation, and whilst Mr. G. has his hand in, we hope he will do the work thoroughly, so as to place such safeguards over the people's money that "thieves cannot break in and steal." We would hold directors and officers to the strictest accountability; and, if possible, prohibit them from accommodating themselves so largely. It is evident that there must be new principles of banking introduced, if banks are to receive the confidence of the public. The business has been carried to excess and should be restrained. A few banking institutions, with sufficient capitals and well regulated and conducted, would be preferable to numbers pulling against each other.

We know not what are the views of Mr. Graves, but he has an important subject upon which to exercise his skill and judgment. It is a matter which will require great discretion, but no passion. He must be prepared to build up as well as to pull down. If he be judicious in his proposed regulations he may do much good—if rash and indiscreet, his labors will be ineffectual.

Contemptible. In a recent squabble in the house of representatives, some members were guilty of the meanness of reflecting upon a gentleman because of his diminutive size. This is truly contemptible, and detracts from the dignity of those who resorted to so ungentlemanly a mode of warfare. If, however, members will indulge in personal disputes, instead of discharging their public duties, we must not be surprised at their sometimes adopting the language of the canaille, and using epithets at which the common loafer should blush. It would be our last thought to reproach an opponent with the smallness of his stature, for mind and body do not necessarily correspond.

Mission to England. It is rumored in Richmond, that the Hon. Henry Clay will be despatched forthwith to London, on a special mission to open negotiations for the final adjustment of the existing difficulties between Great Britain and the United States. We know not what credit is to be attached to this rumor, but think that the selection of Mr. Clay for such a purpose would be most judicious. We have every confidence in his talents, firmness, and patriotism; and no man understands better the matters in controversy.

Mr. Webster. This distinguished gentleman has resigned his seat in the senate of the United States. He will receive the appointment of secretary of state under general Harrison, a station for which he is well qualified by his talents and extensive acquirements.

Small Notes. Mr. Coad has obtained leave to bring in a bill to authorize the commissioners of St. Mary's county to issue notes or scrip under the denomination of one dollar, during the suspension of specie payments.

We have no apprehension that a bill for this purpose will be permitted to pass; for it would open a door which could not be closed again without damage. Every county in the State would ask the same privilege, and counterfeits would be abundant.

Whilst on the subject of small notes, we will recur, for a moment, to the bill reported by Mr. Graves, and which has passed the house of delegates. The first section is in the following words:

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That from and after the passage of this act, no person, or association of persons, or body corporate, except such corporate bodies whose issues are now recognized by law, shall either, directly or indirectly issue, pay out, receive or deliver, or attempt to emit or circulate, any bill, note, scrip-note, certificate of deposite or other evidence of debt, intended to circulate as money or currency; and that it shall not be lawful except when specially authorized by law, for any individual, association or corporation to issue, pay out, receive or deliver, or attempt to emit or circulate, any bill, note, scrip-note, certificate, token or device whatever, representing or purporting to represent any portion, claim or evidence of a claim to any share of the stocks of any corporate company, or any bond, or other obligation of any state or corporation whatever, or of any subdivided part of the same, and that any person or persons, or any director, president, cashier, or other agent or officer of any such corporation, who shall violate the provisions of this act, or shall directly or indirectly assent to such violation, for each and every violation shall forfeit the sum of fifty dollars, to be recovered by indictment in the City Court of Baltimore, or in any County Court of this State, one half of said penalty to the use of the informer, and the other half to the State.

Now, the question arises whether, by this section, the issues of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company are excluded from circulation. It will be recollected that, by a bill previously passed, the Banks in this State were authorized to receive and pay out the scrip notes of this Company, thus recognizing their issues, and rendering them legal. Mr. Graves's bill expressly excepts from the operation of the law, "such corporate bodies whose issues are now recognized by law," and was designed, as we believe, to prevent the issue of shinplasters by irresponsible individuals and forger's associations. This is very proper, and we hope that the bill may have the desired effect, though, as we have before said, we think that public opinion will constitute the greatest obstacle to the introduction of such spurious currency. We should greatly prefer a small currency of specie, but doubt whether it would be practicable to keep it in circulation whilst specie remains at a premium. If the effort to accommodate in this respect, were made by the banks and found unsuccessful, it could be discontinued; if it be not made, then it will be incumbent on the banks to render that currency which the people are forced to accept in consequence of the suspension, equivalent, at least, to their own paper, for bank purposes.

Virginia banks. It seems by the following article from the Richmond Star and Transcript, that, although the Virginia banks have the credit of continuing to pay specie, they do not deserve it. We shall take occasion to expose the "manœuvre" of which the Star and Transcript speaks, so that the banks of that state may have all the credit they deserve—but no more.

Our Banks. All concern about specie payments has passed from the public mind; and if the northern shavers and blood-suckers will only keep away, we shall go on, as we now do, without trouble. The arrangement under which the banks preserve the aspect of specie payments, is the only one that is possible under present circumstances, being in fact rather a manœuvre to avoid specie payments, than a bona fide, thorough business resumption, which is an impossible thing with non-specie paying banks on every side of us. We repeat, that the procedure of the banks is shrewd and skilful in the highest degree, and it only requires that the game played upon the U. States Bank be not attempted here to make the present posture of bank affairs permanent and safe.

Warlike. The following resolution was offered to the house of representatives of Maine, and referred to the committee on the northeastern boundary, on the 13th inst. The sum of $1,000,000, instead of $400,000, has been appropriated for the defence of the state. This resolution was also referred to the committee:

Resolved, That the President of the United States be requested and urged to cause the immediate removal of the foreign armed force, by which our State is invaded, stationed upon the upper valley of the St. Johns, and that the Government of the United States be earnestly invoked to relieve this State from the present heavy needy burthen of its own defence.

Public lands. The report and resolutions relative to the public lands, sustaining the principle of distribution, have been passed in the house of delegates of this state by a large majority, and will probably pass the Senate.

We have no doubt that the land bill will be brought before congress at the extra or succeeding session, and that it will become a law.

Another Railroad. The Directors of the Berkshire Railroad Company held a meeting a few days since at Hockbridge, and resolved to commence operations instanter, on the road from thence to Albany. The length of the road is to be twenty miles, and is said to be very easy of construction.

Early asparagus. We received, on Saturday last, from Dr. Edmondson, a present of some excellent asparagus, raised at his country residence. It is early in the season for this delicious vegetable, and we thank Dr. E. for his polite attention.

Fanaticism. A woman in Haydon Bridge, England, lately endeavored to cut off her legs with an axe. She said that they "offended her," and she would do as the bible directed.

A Machine for Setting Type. On Saturday last we called at Beltzhoover's Hotel, and were there shown a machine for setting and distributing type, the inventor of which is a Mr. John D. Hitt. To describe the model as exhibited to us would be almost impossible. The principle did seem somewhat plausible, but as regards the utility of the machine we have serious doubts. The idea forcibly struck us that, admitting it to operate, it would perform less work than a single printer, and at the same time be probably twice or three times the expense. The peculiar feature of the invention consists in a horizontal wheel, the diameter of which may be extended to one, three or five feet. On this wheel is distributed in small grooves the fonut of type, each kind of letter by itself, set in a perpendicular position. Extending from the said wheel are a number of keys similar to those of an organ or piano, which upon being touched with the finger immediately stops the rotary motion of the wheel, carrying round with it the type, and puts in operation a small piston which strikes upon the end of the specified letter designed for use, thereby placing it in, what is called by printers, the stick. This stick is also caused to move in such manner as to receive the wouted letter.—The machine is designed to work by steam, and the only animated substance necessary to keep it in operation would be an ingenious editor who could finger the keys and compose editorial as the wonderful invention progressed. If the above machine proves effectual (which for the entire consolation of printers we know cannot) art has only one thing more to produce in the way of printing, and that is an artificial editor, who can bring out prose, poetry, blank verse and every other style of composition, such as will suit a heterogeneous taste—thus furnishing material to keep the locomotive type-setter in constant operation.

Shocking Murder. A murder of the most brutal character, says the St. Louis Republican, was committed by one James Layton, on the person of his wife. He was absent the whole day on which the deed was committed, and returned at night; he then, without any provocation whatever, began to beat his wife with a club, beating out her brains and breaking both her legs and arms. The murderer immediately absconded. Several persons were in pursuit, with hopes of capturing him.

Another. On Sunday, the 14th inst., another murder, if possible of a more brutal character than the above, by a man named Bean, also on his wife, at Brenton, New Hampshire. The previous evening, a friend of the deceased requested her to stop at his house, as he thought that she would not be safe with her husband; she refused, and remained. During the night, she was murdered by her husband; her face and head were horribly mutilated. The murderer is secured, and will undoubtedly be dealt with according to his deserts.

Front-street Theatre. We were at Front Street on Saturday night. The house was good; the play went off well. The gas light was not so brilliant as it ought to have been; why, we are not able to say. To-night will be performed "Gil Blas" and "The Hunchback." In the latter, Mrs. Richardson will sustain the character of Julia, and Mr. Lennox that of Master Walter.—As this is a celebrated day, we have no doubt that many will celebrate the evening by repairing to Front street, to enjoy one, at least, among the best plays ever written.

Mr. Kossowski's concert. This distinguished pianist will give a concert at the Law Buildings this evening. Those wishing to enjoy a first rate musical treat should not omit the opportunity proffered them this evening. We refer to the advertisement in another column.

The Independent Greys' Ball. It will not be forgotten that this patriotic military corps celebrate the birth night of the illustrious Washington in the way of a splendid ball at the Assembly Rooms this evening. We shall drop in and review the company, at the same time take a peep at the fairy forms as they float through the dance.

Cook's Saw Knife. This is a very neat and most useful article, manufactured by Mr. W. Stillman. It is a cast-steel knife about a foot in length, with a set of excellent saw-teeth on the back, by which cooks will be enabled to prepare meat for cooking, with little or no trouble. These knives will prove extremely serviceable in families and on board vessels, and may be had at the kitchen furnishing, hardware and variety stores of this city.

A Julap. Sutton, of Military Hall, sent us, on Saturday morning last, a "family glass," containing a julap made with fresh green mint! Being total abstinence men ourselves, we handed it over to our old friend "Chips," who pronounced it O. K. Guess making julaps is a poor business these temperance times.

Death from intemperance. Two men, named Murphy and Jones, were recently frozen to death in New York state. Both cases are said to have proceeded from intemperance.

North Baltimore Total Abstinence Society. We refer the reader to our advertising columns, where useful information can be obtained by the perusal of an advertisement having the above caption.

Shocking accident. A young man named Gifford was killed at Dartmouth, Mass., on Wednesday last, by the bursting of his gun while in pursuit of game.

Fire. The paper mill near Raleigh, N. C., was totally consumed by fire on Thursday last. Loss about $6,000.

The new Penal Code of Alabama, makes death by duelling murder in the first degree.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

Washington, Feb. 20, 1841.

Last evening, the misunderstanding between Messrs. Pickens and Stanly was removed by the friendly act of Mr. Evans, who was in the chair at the time the discussion took place. Mr. E., on leave, recapitulated the facts under which he had suffered the debate to proceed, and said he understood the strong language of Mr. Pickens as applying solely to the arguments of Mr. Stanly, and not to his person. Mr. Pickens on being appealed to, admitted that such was the fact, and that his ridicule was intended to apply solely to the arguments of Mr. S. An admission was then made by the latter, and the affair is now considered as settled, although previous to the explanation a note had been sent by Mr. P. desiring an explanation from Mr. S.

This morning the house resumed the consideration of the civil and diplomatic appropriation bill, but without coming to any conclusion thereon. At half-past three a motion to adjourn prevailed.

The Senate was engaged in rather a sulky business, viz: the election of a printer for the next congress. The opposition senators all refused to vote, alledging that the joint resolution authorizing the election for a succeeding congress, had been exploded by the house some years ago. So Messrs. Blair & Rives were re-elected without opposition, but under a motion by the whigs that the election would be set aside so soon as they should have the power.

The resolution of Mr. Clay, for the repeal of the independent treasury law, was next taken up, and after some debate, the senate went into an executive session.

Much dissatisfaction is manifested by the ladies that they cannot be admitted on the floor of the senate. But should a motion to that effect prevail, our senators would all become cross-eyed; for they would certainly be looking at the chair and the ladies at the same time. In the house of commons in England, they are remarkably rigid on such subjects. The speaker, Mr. Manners Sutton, on one occasion desired that certain ladies he observed should be requested to retire. A member denied that there were any ladies on the floor. The speaker said, "Well, I am sure I saw petticoats." This was a delicate way of avoiding the lie direct.

The weather is delightful, and the numerous visiters are thronging the avenue in high glee.

The unfortunate driver of Mr. Adams' carriage, referred to in my letter of Thursday, is dead. I understand he has lived with Mr. Adams more than twenty years.

A Woman Burnt to Death. A Mrs. Sarah Twisher was a few days ago burned to death in a shocking manner at a public house in Montgomery Co. N. J. Flames were seen in her room and on some persons repairing thither, found the unfortunate woman lying on the bed which was burning around her. She was immediately removed, but life was extinct.

Iron Ore in Saratoga County. The Ballston Spa Gazette of the 9th inst. contains a communication describing an extensive bed of iron ore in the town of Hadely, which is said to produce iron of the best description, and from its being located on a steep sidehill, can be worked with trifling expense.

☞At a meeting of the Whig members of the Legislature of Massachusetts, on Wednesday evening, the hon. Rufus Choate was nominated as a candidate for election to the U. S. Senate, to succeed Mr. Webster. The election takes place on Tuesday, the 23d inst.

The Insane. The number of applications for admission to the Vermont Asylum for the Insane, has been so great of late, that the present building is too small to accommodate them. The trustees are about adding another wing to the building.

The Brooklyn Murder. Wm. H. Stokes has been tried and honorably acquitted for the murder of Master Phelps, some time ago, in Brooklyn, N. Y. It is thought that he has been the victim of a malicious revengeful conspiracy.

The disease spreading. The cashier of the Public Bank of the Colony was tried at Nassau, (N. P.,) on the 23d ult., for embezzling and appropriating to his use the sum of six thousand pounds sterling. Great efforts were made to get him acquitted, but they were unsuccessful.

Guilty. Mathias Varina was tried at Boston on Wednesday last for the murder of Capt. Jas. Brown, on board the schr. Hero, and found guilty. He will probably be sentenced to ten years in the state prison.

The steamer Brittania. The Boston mail had not arrived at New York when the cars left for the south. It was expected that the detention was on account of the arrival of the steamer. We will undoubtedly have her news to-day.

Office hunters. A pack of these worthies started from New Orleans for Washington with about six bushels of written documents, to prove their claims for a share in the spoils.

Counterfeits. Fives, tens and twenties, on the Bank of Illinois, Shawneetown, are in circulation in that State—letter C. 1839. Be on your guard.

Imprisonment for Debt. A bill is before the legislature of Massachusetts to abolish imprisonment for debt. It is probable it will pass.

Theatrical. Buckstone and Mrs. Fitzwilliam are still at New Orleans. Ranger is in Mobile doing the thing handsomely.

Counterfeiting. A man named Russell has been arrested in Troy, Ohio, last week, for counterfeiting bills of the bank of the United States.

Luxuries. They had fresh shad and lettuce in the Norfolk market last week.

MARRIED,

On Thursday, 18th inst. by the Rev. Francis A. Harduo, John L. Lane to Miss Elizabeth Barlow, both of Anne Arundel county.

DIED,

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

BALTIMORE CITY COURT.

Present—Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington.

Saturday, Feb. 20, 1841. Jacob Keilholtz and William Gray were put upon trial, charged with having assisted in committing a riot, &c. in Wilk street, at the "Log Cabin," on a Sunday afternoon during the last election campaign. They were declared guilty. Each fined $5 and costs.

Jefferson Griffith alias John Alexander was charged with an assault upon Jacob Keilholtz.—The prosecution was unable to sustain the charge; consequently, he was declared not guilty.

Andrew Seiselberger was charged with committing an assault upon James H. League, a boy about 12 years of age. He was declared guilty. Fined $1 and costs.

Mary Ann Gilbert, negress, was placed upon trial, charged with stealing from Messrs. McLaughlin & Stanard, proprietors of the City Hotel, a large quantity of sheets, pillow cases, towels, &c. She confessed to Mr. Stanard the fact of the theft, and the property was found in her possession. The case was held over for the present.

John P. Youce, city bailiff, was charged with an assault upon Mrs. Newell. It appeared that Mr. Youce had an execution against her husband, and arrested him, and carried him before a magistrate; while the magistrate was making out the commitment, he escaped from the office, and Mr. Youce pursued him into his house, when his wife endeavored to protect him from arrest; and he merely took hold of her gently, in order to get her out of the way. The court acquitted Mr. Youce, and remarked that he was acquitted without the least suspicion.

Daniel Dickson, negro, was charged with assaulting Ann Colvin, negress. He was declared guilty, fined $1 and costs.

The court then adjourned until Monday morning, at 10 o'clock. The jury on this pannel will be finally discharged.

FIRE IN PORTSMOUTH, VA. On Wednesday night last an extensive fire broke out in a range of wooden buildings in Portsmouth, which, with several dwellings and outhouses, were entirely consumed. The loss was not very heavy, and is divided among among several property owners.

NAVAL. The Norfolk Herald says that the U. S. ship Delaware is ready for service with the exception of four Paixhan cannon to be put on board. The Herald censures in very severe terms the use of such dishonorable means of warfare.

THE SMITHSONIAN BEQUEST. $500,000 in "British gold," sovereigns fresh from the British mint, has been invested in Arkansas bonds, and the money is now the capital of a bank in that State!

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE. The son of Mr. Neff, one of the Commissioners of the district of Moyamensing, Philadelphia, left the house of his father on Wednesday morning, and has not since been heard of.

MISSOURIUM. The proprietor of the great Missouri Leviathan has arrived in New Orleans with the skeleton. It is of enormous dimensions; measures 32 feet in length and its height is fifteen feet.

The offices of Secretary of the Navy, Post Master General, Quarter Master General, and Commissary General have been abolished.

FLYING DOGS. A dog flew at a man in Philadelphia on Friday last and bit him severely. So says the Ledger.

☞John Howard Payne, accompanied by Chief Ross and the rest of the Cherokee delegation, arrived in New Orleans on the 10th inst. on their way to Washington.

☞The Bank of Cincinnati has been reorganized, and is now open for business.

FIRE. The Barton Academy at Mobile was fired by some unknown person a few days ago, and would certainly have been destroyed, but for its early detection.

CONSUMPTION.

To DR. SWAYNE.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain, had it not been for your medicine (as life frequently depends on early attention to proper medicines,) I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

Your friend, ABRAHAM SKINNER,
Crawford county, Pa.

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT must be obvious to every one, that an Intelligence Office, when conducted under proper principles, and regulated upon an honest and equitable course, is of great convenience and utility to the citizens of a populous and thriving city like this. The subscriber, being aware of this fact, and with the knowledge that a degree of dissatisfaction has existed from the manner in which other offices of the kind have been heretofore conducted, he has therefore taken great pains to conduct his establishment in such a manner as to deserve public confidence, and be worthy of the public patronage.

PERSONS making application at this office for servants, or help of any other kind, will deposit, in advance, 50 cents each, for which they will have access to the records, properly kept for that purpose, and on which they find the names, residences, references, &c. of the servants or other help—in case that neither of them answers the desired purpose, the money will be returned. Yearly subscriptions received at $1.50 each.

AGENCY. HOUSES, FARMS, VACANT LOTS, GROUND RENTS, LANDS, &c. bought and sold on commission. SLAVES, for life or a term of years, bought or sold on commission, and the highest prices obtained. Persons having slaves, which they wish to dispose of, will do well to apply at this office before selling.

The Sawed Lumber may be of white or yellow pine, with not more than an inch of sap on two edges of the stick; free from large knots, shakes or decay of any kind. A portion of the 4½8 scantling may be proposed for to be furnished, of white oak, under the same conditions as to quality. The points of delivery may be at Baltimore, Georgetown, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any other point upon the line of the road, and the proposal will state the places as well as times at which the Lumber will be furnished.

Proposers to whom more than one of the places just named are accessible, will separately state their prices for delivery at each; so as to allow an option to the Company in regard to them should the proposal be accepted.

The hewn Timber, intended for the cross-ties and support-blocks, may be of white oak, rock-oak or chesnut oak, or of chesnut. It must be round wood, and straight in one direction. If the proposer prefers delivering it in the rough state, and does not wish to undertake the hewing of it to the required dimensions he can so word his proposal, and in that case the size of the sticks must be such as to permit them, when dressed, to be of the full dimensions specified, clear of bark and axe-kerf. If the timber is cut while the bark is loose, it must be stripped off before the delivery. The delivery may be made upon any point of the line, between Harper's Ferry and Cumberland, and the points between which it will take place must be stated. There are to every mile of track 51,680 feet board measure of 4½8, and 95,400 feet of 3x10 scantling, 1056 cross ties dressed to 4½ inches thick, and 302 dressed to 3 inches thick. Proposals will not be received for a less quantity of any of the kinds of timber, than will lay a mile of track.

The Castings for the chairs and plates will be of an easy pattern—they must be of strong and sound metal, and smoothly cast—the contractor furnishing the patterns. The screw bolts and nuts will be of sound, tough iron and made with exactness to the required form and size. The washers will be of bar-iron, rolled with the proper section, cut off and punched for the passage of the bolt. The zinc plates similarly made. The hook-headed spikes to be of iron of as good a quality as that of the screw bolts.

The Iron Fastenings just described may be delivered at Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any point of the line of the road between the two latter places and the places and times of delivery will be stated in the proposals. There are to every mile of track 7656 lbs. of castings—1584 lbs. of bolts and nuts—591 lbs. of iron washers—165 lbs. of zinc plates, and 2247 lbs. of spikes. No proposal for a less quantity than will supply 10 miles will be received.

Monthly estimates will be made of the quantities of each kind of materials so delivered and four fifths of the value at the contract prices will be paid thereon—reserving to the Company the option of paying the said four fifths in Baltimore City 6 per cent stock at par—or in the stock orders of the Company at par; and also reserving the option of paying for the remaining fifth in like manner, when the delivery of the whole quantity contracted for shall have been completed according to the contract.

If the materials contracted for or any part of them are not furnished at the times required, the Company may dissolve the contract and retain the one-fifth due on any which may have been already delivered, and no estimates or payments shall be made or on account of materials delivered before the time specified for commencing the delivery of the same. The monthly payments shall be made at the Company's offices in Baltimore Cumberland, or Martinsburgh, Virginia, at the option of the contractor, and the final payments shall be made in Baltimore. The manner and times in which the materials shall be furnished on the different parts of the line will be specifically provided for in the contracts, and particulars will be given on application to the undersigned. It will be required that about one half of the whole quantity of materials shall be delivered as early as possible between now and the 1st of December next. A model of the rail and its supports and fastenings will be ready for inspection at the Company's office in Baltimore by the 28th current. The proposals will be directed under seal to the subscriber, either at Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh—and will be received up to the 15th of March proximo. VALLIER'S FRENCH PILL, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

CAUTION. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains as aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH.

BY PROF. LONGFELLOW.

Under a spreading chesnut tree
The village smithy stands;
The smith, a mighty man is he,
With large and sinewy hands,
And the muscles of his brawny arms
Are strong as iron bands.

His hair is crisp, and black, and long;
His face is like the tan;
His brow is wet with honest sweat,
He earns whate'er he can;
And looks the whole world in the face,
For he owes not any man.

Week out, week in, from morn till night,
You can hear his bellows blow,
You can hear him swing his heavy sledge,
With measured beat and slow,
Like a sexton ringing the old kirk chimes
When the evening sun is low.

And children coming home from school
Look in at the open door;
They love to see the flaming forge,
And hear the bellows roar,
And catch the burning sparks that fly
Like chaff from a thrashing floor.

He goes on Sunday to the church,
And sits among his boys;
He hears the parson pray and preach;
He hears his daughter's voice
Singing in the village choir,
And it makes his heart rejoice.

It sounds to him like her mother's voice,
Singing in paradise!
He needs must think of her once more,
How in the grave she lies;
And with his hard rough hand he wipes
The tears from out his eyes.

Toiling—rejoicing—sorrowing—
Onward through life he goes;
Each morning sees some task begin,
Each evening sees it close;
Something attempted—something done,
Has earned a night's repose.

THE CHOICE OF A WIFE;
Or, The Force of Modesty.

FROM THE FRENCH.

"I," said she to him carelessly, "I do not know the piece."

"The brilliant manner in which you accompanied these ladies."——

"Oh! that is very different, I have practised it with them so often, but I cannot accompany at first sight, however let us try."

Arthur commenced; Eliza, who was very anxious to please the Colonel, tried her best, but in vain; she missed the bars, took false notes, flourished over the passages, and was obliged at last to stop.

"If Mde. de St. Albans," said Mde. de Surville, "would be kind enough to try? I understand she took the prize for music this year."

"Oh! Madam, I hardly dare," replied the timid Emily, "but I will endeavor to do so, rather than deprive you of the pleasure of hearing the Count de St. Geran."

She went to the piano, hesitated at first, looked attentively at the music, ascertained the key, but at going on, accompanied the Count with a steadiness that showed a perfect knowledge of the art. She astonished all who were present, even Eliza could not forbear granting her a slight tribute of praise, and the Count, who had observed, that several times, when he had made a mistake, she had known how to follow him, and pass it over without its ever being noticed, did not doubt, but that the modest Emily had the good sense to prefer the solid to the brilliant.

In the different assemblies, which followed this first triumph, Emily always had the advantage in knowledge and expression; in vain did they endeavor to eclipse her by their brilliant execution, as soon as she sung and played, she won the suffrages of the heart.

She proved some time afterward, that music was not the only art with which she was familiar. She had often heard the Colonel relate the circumstances of the death of General St. Gerau, she remarked also, that he wore around his neck a small chain, to which was suspended the miniature of his adopted father. She conceived the object of retracing the memorable instant in which the celebrated warrior expired, and to present it to Mde. de Surville; she told her of it in confidence, and begged that Mde. de Surville would try to pursuade the Count to lend her the miniature for a few days, which she did, telling him that she wanted it copied. Emily set about the work, and not long after offered to Mde. de Surville the exact scene of the death of St. Gerau. He was represented wounded, and expiring in the arms of Arthur, who was dressed in the uniform of an aid-de-camp; the General's eyes were turned on him, as if in the act of speaking to him, and at the bottom of the drawing were written these words, "I die satisfied, I leave a son worthy of me." The resemblance was so striking, the place so well delineated, that it was impossible to forbear giving credit to the amiable artist.

Mde. de Surville having had it framed, was anxious to know the effect it would produce upon Arthur. One day that he came to see her, while Emily was in her own room, preparing for her departure, she told him that she wanted to consult him in regard to a drawing which would undoubtedly interest him very much, and without telling him whose work it was, she handed it to him. The Count, surprised, astonished, delighted, changed color, and exclaimed, bursting into tears—

"Yes, it is he! It is I! I think I see my benefactor—my father—methinks I hear him—all the gold that I possess could not pay for this delightful picture."

"The artist would not accept any thing but thanks, however."

"And who, then, is the skilful hand that has known so well how to paint nature."

"You see her before you," said Mde. de Surville, pointing to Emily, who had just entered the parlor.

"What!" replied the Count, struck with astonishment, "so much talent, and so much modesty!—can it be possible that this master-piece—"

"Pray, sir, do not thus qualify a mere sketch, that I wished to leave the friend of our family, as a remembrance of her kindness toward me."

"It would be very dear to me without doubt," added Mde. de Surville, "but allow me, my sweet Emily, to offer it to the Count St. Gerau as the most precious gift which friendship can bestow."

"Never, no, never, shall this exquisite picture leave my possession; it shall be my guide, my consolation, my dearest treasure; it belonged only to all the virtues united in one, to delineate so well, benevolence and gratitude."

Emily made no answer, but, taking the drawing from Mde. de Surville, with a trembling hand, gave it to the Colonel, who, after pausing an instant, said with vivid emotion, "allow me to ask you to add one more favor to this act of kindness."

"What is it, sir?"

"It is customary for all artists to affix their names to any picture they are willing to acknowledge; oh! how dear yours would be, traced here by your own hand."

"Arthur, you astonish me; you are no relation of Mde. de St. Albans, not even a friend of the family; would it not be highly improper that her name—"

"It is not her name either, that I would wish her to write on this drawing."

"What name then?" said the unconscious Emily with a smile.

"Emily de St. Gerau," cried Arthur, taking her hand, "I have found it at last, that ideal object which heaven has formed for my happiness! Oh! do not be frightened at the overflowing of a heart you have fixed forever, yes, sweet and modest creature, it is you I would choose for the companion of my life; one word from your sweet lips, and you are the Countess St. Gerau!"

"I! Colonel? I your wife! Oh! let go my hand, I beseech you."

"It is Mde. de Surville, who here represents your worthy mother; it is to her that I promise to surround you with all the blessings you deserve."

"Excuse me, Count, but such language is so new to me. I feel honored without doubt, I can hardly express myself."

"Compose yourself, lovely creature—"

"Lovely, do you say? yet you know that I am not handsome."

"How can you be otherwise, with such an expression of countenance?"

"Without any attractions."

"Yet you charm every body."

"I am poor."

"But so rich in virtues."

"I belong to a large family."

"So much the better."

"I am the oldest of seven children, five boys yet very young."

"Well, I will be to them what the Count St. Gerau was to me."

"——'s not known that my poor mother is very infirm."

"That is a reason why she should have every comfort—oh! how anxious I am to bestow on her every mark of tenderness possible."

"You overwhelm me with so much kindness, that I do not know what to answer."

"The more you speak the more I persist in my choice. It is not your talents alone, which have captivated me, but it is the qualities of your heart, and particularly its faithful medium, that sweet voice, which seems to come from heaven to announce happiness on earth, but what still makes my felicity greater, is to find in you a pupil of Eeeuen. What more enthusiastic pleasure can a soldier, honoured by the benefits of his sovereign feel, than to be able to share them with one of his adopted daughters."

These last words of Arthur were pronounced with so much frankness of expression, that Emily was moved even to tears, and throwing herself on the bosom of Mde. de Surville, she said "O my guide, my mother's friend, I give myself up to you, speak what shall I do?"

"Accept the hand of the best man I have ever known," replied she, "I have had a better opportunity than any other of knowing the heart of the Colonel, I can answer for him."

The next day this lady wrote to Emily's mother, who a few days afterwards gave her consent. The wedding was celebrated without pomp at the particular request of Emily, whose rank and wealth never altered her modest and unaffected manners, her happiness was complete, for she saw all around her in comfort. Nothing could exceed the kindness with which Arthur treated her widowed mother; she, by her entire devotedness fully repaid her husband's generosity. The union was approved of by every body, even Eliza could not help applauding in secret the Count's choice, and when she heard from Mde. de Surville, that, had it not been for her unbounded ambition to please, her excessive love of admiration her too great confidence in her own powers, but more particularly that immoderate love of talking, which so materially injured her character, she would have been the Countess de St. Gerau, she reflected seriously, and determined to moderate that too great degree of assurance so common among young girls of fashion, and was convinced, that the most powerful attractions in a woman, and which far surpass even talents, grace, or beauty, is a quiet unassuming manner: and that, joined to a sweet voice, which is usually the organ of the heart, one of the first qualities in the choice of a wife is MODESTY.

A FULL ROUND SENTENCE. We copy the following from the Norwich, (Conn.) Aurora.—Boston Post.

"Of all the evils which tend to desolate the domestic fireside—to scatter want and wretchedness and wo throughout the land—to foster the growth of crime—to sap the foundations and shake the pillars of the social fabric—and to poison the health, corrupt the morals, ruin the intellect, degrade the character—harden the heart, and crush the hopes of man—there is not one more deadly than INTEMPERANCE."

The Post says the editor should have added—"it sears the eye-balls—turns the hair grey—bloats the countenance—swells the body—diseases the liver—fires the blood—destroys the brain—weakens the joints—rots the teeth—burns down houses—beats wives—abuses children—murders—commits suicide, &c. &c. &c. &c. &c. &c.

DENOUNCED. There has been a resolution introduced into the Senate of Missouri, denouncing the Native American Association of that State, by Major Harvey. The party are very much incensed on account of such an unwarrantable proceeding.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 20, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. Mr. Legrand presented the proceedings of the grand jury of Baltimore city in relation to the removal of cases to the adjoining counties. Referred to the committee on the constitution.

Mr. Tuck presented the memorial of David Ridgely, asking the adoption of a work illustrative of the geography and history of Maryland for the instruction of youth, to be used in the elementary schools of the state. Referred to committee on education.

On motion of Mr. Legrand, it was ordered that the committee on pensions inquire whether the heirs of the late Major Alexander Roxburgh, an officer of the revolution, be entitled to any pay under resolution of the house of delegates, March 25, 1779; and if so, to report a resolution to provide for the payment of the same.

Mr. Maccubbin, from the committee on colored population, made an unfavorable report upon the amendment proposed by the senate to the issuing of licenses to free negroes and mulattoes.

A message was then sent to the senate expressing a disagreement to the amendment bill to prohibit the issuing of licenses to free negroes and mulattoes, and respectfully asking a conference thereon. Messrs. Brent, Maccubbin and Graves were appointed on the part of the house.

Mr. Rider reported a bill to authorise the mayor and city council of Baltimore to license wood hucksters, which was passed.

Mr. Graves reported a bill for the better regulation of the banking institutions of this state, which was made the order of the day for Friday next.

Mr. Foreman reported unfavorably upon the bill to provide for taking the vote of the people of this state, as to the expediency of calling a convention to reform the present and frame a new constitution.

Mr. Graves offered as a substitute for said report, a bill which has a similar title to the one reported unfavorably upon, and which I presume is nearly similar in effect.

On motion of Mr. Graves, the house took up the resolutions for requesting our members of congress to procure a law for building two steam batteries for the defence of the Chesapeake Bay, &c. The resolutions were slightly amended and passed.

BALTIMORE CITY COURT.

Present—Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington.

Monday, Feb. 22. The case of Henry Gunter, indicted for manslaughter, by killing Ferdinand Plain, which was assigned for trial this day, was postponed until to-morrow morning, at 10 o'clock.

Joseph Montgarret was placed upon trial, charged with an assault with intent to murder, and with a common assault only, upon Archibald Cook. Mr. Cook stated that, on the night of the 11th of January last, between 11 and 12 o'clock, he was standing in the door of his house, on Light street wharf, talking to an apprentice of Mr. Dall's, when Montgarret came along whistling, and said to him, "what the hell are you talking about;" went towards him, to see who he was, when Montgarret struck him; immediately knocked him (Montgarre) down; Montgarret got upon his feet, and said "come and try that again;" Montgarret then advanced, and stabbed him in the left side; was sober at the time; don't know Montgarret; did not see the knife; went into his house before he fell.

Mr. Ford stated that he was the apprentice alluded to in the testimony of Mr. Cook; was at Mr. Cook's house at the time of the affray; saw it; don't know who struck first; heard Cook say that he was stabbed; caught his as he fell, and went for the Doctor.

Dr. Rich stated that he was called, on the night of the 11th of January to see Archibald Cook; found him lying on the floor of his house in a very dangerous condition, having a very severe wound in the region of the stomach, about the length of a half inch; don't know the depth, as he did not probe it. (The knife was here exhibited; its blade was about the length of 5 inches, and breadth of half an inch.) The wound might have been inflicted with this knife, from the appearance of it.

Mr. Chisholm, for defence, stated that Cook was generally known as a bully and quarrelsome man, and heard that he said he "could whip any American who dwelled before his house."

Numerous other witnesses testified to the general bad character of Cook, and the peaceable and quiet disposition of Montgarret. The case was argued before the jury by Wm. H. Norris and James E. Stewd, Esqs., on part of the State, and by T. Yeates Walsh and Samuel Stump, Esqs., on part of the prisoner. The jury retired, and will seal their indict, if they should agree, and return it in the morning.

The Court then adjourned until to-morrow morning, at 10 o'clock.

"Pray, sir," said the commissioner to an insolvent brought up to be discharged on his petition, "and pray sir, how could you, wilfully and with your eyes open, contract such a number of debts, without any visible means of paying them?" "My lord," said the petitioner, "you labor under a great mistake. I never in my life wilfully contracted a debt; the contrary, I have invariably done every thing in my power to enlarge them!"

HARD TIME. A load of coal was deposited at the office of the St. Louis Pennant, and, in the space of two hrs, thirty-eight persons applied for the job of crying it in.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P.M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M. reach	Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M. "	Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M. "	Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M. "	Richmond	5 P.M.

" Petersburg	7 P.M. "	Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M. "	Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M. "	Charleston at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through out, whilst it is evident that Foggy Rough Weather!! and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

TUESDAY MORNING, Feb. 23, 1841.

State Taxes. We shall give our readers the State-tax bill entire, or an intelligible synopsis of its provisions, so soon as it shall have become a law. The bill before the house is long and comprehensive, embracing, we believe, all property which should be subjected to taxation. It is based upon that provision of the constitution which requires that "every person shall contribute toward the support of government, according to his worth in real and personal property;" which is certainly the most equitable principle in the levy of taxes. It is possible that, in the course of examination by the legislature, some of the provisions of the bill may be somewhat altered, but we have no doubt that the principle will be adhered to. The bill exempts persons not assessed to more than $200, from taxation.

It is impossible to form a correct estimate of the amount of revenue which will be likely to be produced, as the levy is to be made under a new assessment, and the rate per cent. of the tax is not yet fixed; but we presume that a sufficient sum will be raised by this and other bills, to discharge the obligations of the state regularly, if not to establish a sinking fund. A uniform mode of assessment will be necessary to obtain equal justice; and the fairest method would probably be to value all property at cash prices.

With this tax bill, the tax upon clerks, registers, and other officers, and the receipts from the license system, with a reduction of expenses to the minimum point, the state of Maryland will be able to extricate herself from difficulties in the course of time.

General Harrison. This gentleman is on a visit to Richmond, where he has been received with the greatest demonstrations of respect. It is said that he will return to the seat of government by the way of Annapolis. He has taken occasion to defend Mr. Granger (who is to be Postmaster General) from the charge made against him of being an abolitionist.

Visiters to witness the inauguration of General Harrison begin to arrive at Washington city, and by the fourth of March that city will be filled to overflowing—many being impelled by curiosity, and others from the desire to be first in presenting their claims to office. The scripture says that "the first shall be last, and the last first," and such will no doubt be the case in the present instance, as the general has been too long in the army to be taken by storm. He appears to possess a cool head, and will not be hurried into any appointment or measure which is not first approved by his reason. Some already clutch the pap-spoon as Macbeth did the dagger, in imagination, and are likely never to hold in a more substantial grasp. But their pains and anxieties will be soon relieved, as we presume that the business of appointments will proceed within a few days from the inauguration.

Washington's Birth Day. So long as we continue to respect the birth day of the father of his country, so long may we indulge the hope that his wise precepts and patriotic example will not be forgotten. All who desire the perpetuity of the Union, and its glory and happiness, should turn their eyes to the career of Washington with the same grateful feeling that the Mahomedan looks to Mecca—for, amidst the conflicts of party and the violence of faction, the recollection of his services and sacrifices—his skill and bravery in the field—his wisdom and moderation in council—and the paternal advice of his farewell address—will recall us to a proper sense of duty to our country, and of kind feeling towards our fellow-citizens.

The anniversary of his birth was yesterday commemorated by a handsome parade in this city, and our streets presented a scene of bustle and animation. The Independent Blues, capt. Lilly, with a band; the First Baltimore Light Infantry; the German Yagers, capt. Friederick, with the band under Mr. Metz; the German Guards, capt. Brandt, with a band; and the Baltimore Invincibles—made a fine display, and attracted great attention. The music was excellent, and its delightful strains revived the recollection of "Auld lang syne."

We hope that the military spirit will be resuscitated in our city, and that the numbers of handsome companies which existed a short time since, will again cheer our sights. The parade yesterday was a treat which afforded high gratification.

We have enumerated those companies only which marched through Gay street. It is possible that others paraded in different sections of the city.

An empty honor. Messrs. Blair & Rives were chosen, on Saturday last, printers to the Senate for the ensuing two years. The Whigs did not participate in the election, and have declared the intention to reverse it as soon as they have the power, which will be on the 5th of March next; so that these gentlemen are likely to have the honor without the profit of the appointment. Both parties probably do in this business, precisely what their opponents would do under similar circumstances.

Board of Examiners. We learn by the Philadelphia Ledger that the adjutant General announces that a Board of Examiners will convene in Philadelphia on the 25th of May next, for the purpose of examining the Assistant Surgeons who may be ordered to appear before it, and such applicants for appointment in the Medical Staff of the Army as may be invited to attend. The Board will consist of Surgeon Mower, Surgeon Finlay, and Surgeon McDougall.

Colonization. We ask the reader's attention to the "Address to the Friends of Colonization in Maryland," by the committee appointed for that purpose. It is certainly desirable that colonization should be vigorously pushed, and we are happy to find that the Maryland Society are making the most strenuous efforts in the cause. It seems that great dissatisfaction prevails amongst the colored emigrants to some of the British colonies, and that some of them have returned to the United States. We are under the firm conviction that the colonizing that portion of our population in Africa is the only expedient by which they can be permanently settled in tranquility and comfort.

ADDRESS TO THE FRIENDS OF COLONIZATION IN MARYLAND.

At the annual meeting of the Maryland State Colonization Society, held on the 28th January, in the Senate Chamber at Annapolis, it was unanimously resolved to hold a Convention of the friends of colonization in Maryland, during the coming spring, and the Board of Managers were directed to appoint such time as might be most convenient for the purpose, and to give general and public notice thereof. They have accordingly fixed upon the first Thursday in June next, falling on the third day of that month, for the meeting of the convention in the city of Baltimore; and they have constituted the undersigned a committee to give the notice directed by the resolution of the annual meeting, in such manner as to secure the full representation of the State of Maryland, on the occasion.

In the necessarily brief space allotted to a notice in the public prints, it is impossible for the committee to state fully all the considerations that make the proposed convention a matter of deep interest to the people of the state; nor perhaps, would it be important to do this, even did the space allow it. The state of Maryland was the first to embark in the cause of colonization; and no other state in the Union has done so much, and so effectually done it, to promote its success. A frontier state, between the slaveholding and the non-slaveholding states of the Union, it was not permitted to Maryland to remain indifferent in any matter affecting her colored population; and colonization, when matured into a practicable scheme, was at once embraced as a means of procuring, in the words of the founders of it, "the removal of the free people of color of the state, with their own consent, to the coast of Africa."

The first expedition that ever left the United States was mainly fitted out with funds obtained in Baltimore. This was in 1820. In 1826, the legislature made an annual appropriation of $1,000 in aid of the cause—and in 1831, increased the appropriation to $200,000—to be expended in sums of $10,000 per annum. To the people of Maryland, therefore, it would seem unnecessary to enter into any explanations of the purpose and importance of colonization. All that is necessary to be said is, that the events of the years that have elapsed since the subject was first advocated in the state, have tended to give to it a constantly increasing importance, until it is now of vital, and, it ought to be, of all absorbing interest. In Maryland the system pursued, and which originated here, is that of independent state action; the State Colonization Society holding, that in a State where slavery exists, the subject of the coloured population is one that admits of no foreign interference or extraneous influences. The state society, therefore, has no connection with any other in the Union, and the colony of Maryland in Liberia, founded for the use of emigrants from Maryland, is independent of the other establishments on the coast of Africa. In calling a convention, therefore, of the friends of colonization in Maryland, the state society deemed that it was taking the step best calculated to procure efficient action in which every citizen of the state was interested, not in behalf of the general undertaking as philanthropists only, but in what might be considered a domestic matter of fireside and every day concern. It is for the weal of the people of Maryland, white or coloured, slave and free, that the convention has been called. If twenty years ago colonization was deemed important enough to enlist the feelings, and obtain the pecuniary aid of Maryland, its importance is this day increased twenty fold. Beyond the limits of Maryland, much has been done, of which her citizens should be aware, and which they should gravely consider as it relates to her coloured population. Within the limits of Maryland much has yet to be done, that can only be appreciated and determined after the most careful deliberation. For the full interchange of opinion, for the diffusion of information, for the promotion of the cause of colonization in the most efficient manner, has the convention been called; and it is most earnestly hoped, that not only every county, but every town, village, and district in the state, will be represented when the day of its meeting arrives.

Baltimore, February 10, 1841.

Bank of the United States. We have no reason to believe that the legislature of Pennsylvania will exclude this bank from the operation of any law which may be passed in relation to the banks of that state. We know that many members have a deadly hostility to that institution, but the injustice of extorting from the bank the means it possessed, for the use of the state, and then punishing it for not having those means, is so manifest, that we do not believe that the most prejudiced legislator could be guilty of it. Besides, to compel the bank to go into a state of liquidation, would cause no little embarrassment to the state, which would have to pay up about eight millions of dollars now due to the bank.—The legislature will hardly act with so little discretion as to force the bank to wind up its concerns in accordance with the law of last year, when the interests of the state and of a great number of its citizens must be the inevitable sacrifice. We care nothing about the permanent continuance of the bank; but we do think that it would be cruel to ruin innocent individuals by refusing to the institution the time necessary to render its effects available.

Mission to Austria. A writer in the Patriot suggests that David Hoffman, Esq. would be an appropriate nomination for the Austrian mission. We should be pleased to see our distinguished townsman appointed to this situation, as we are confident that he would discharge the duties attached to it with credit to himself and benefit to his country.

The Forty Days Suspension. The bill legalizing the suspension by the Banks for forty days, went through third reading on Friday, in the Senate of Pennsylvania, and was passed by a vote of 18 to 14.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

Washington, Feb. 22d, 1841.

In the House of Representatives this morning, Mr. Thompson, from the military committee, reported a bill providing for a general fortification of the United States. It was read twice and referred to a committee of the whole. So, towards the end of the week, when the subject shall be taken up, you may expect some very warlike speeches.

After the disposal of a private bill, the bill appropriating $75,000 for continuing the exploration of the north eastern boundary line, was taken up and passed.

Just before the passage of the above bill, Mr. Petrikin made an ineffectual motion to recommit it, with instructions for the committee to report how many pots of currant jelly, sweetmeats and other articles, are necessary for completing the survey. Of course Mr. P. intended to convey the idea that such luxuries had been used hitherto.

The House then went into a committee of the whole, and resumed the consideration of the civil and diplomatic appropriation bill. The question being on the motion of Mr. Stanley to strike out the enacting clause. Mr. Sergeant spoke at great length on a variety of subjects. After he had concluded, Mr. Stanley withdrew his motion to strike out.

Mr. Cushing renewed it, and spoke with some warmth about retrenchment, reform, etc. On concluding, he also withdrew the motion to strike out.

Mr. Hunt then took the floor on an amendment for reducing the fees of the marshals and district attorneys of the United States.

The Senate are engaged on a bill to prevent interference in elections by officers of government. The resolution of Mr. Clay to repeal the sub-treasury law has been laid on the table by a vote of 27 to 25.

Your military friend, Captain France, is out to-day with his company of Light Infantry, in honor of the birth day of Washington. A new volunteer company is also out for the first time, they are called the National Blues, and wear cocked hats.

It is the general impression that Mr. Wise will be elected U. S. Senator from Virginia.

Yagers' Ball. To-night, the German Yagers hold their anniversary ball at Washington Hall. A great share of martial spirit has been displayed by this company. Their parades, generally, have been full, and the handsome show they, in conjunction with the German Guards, made yesterday, should cause some of our countrymen to feel a little ashamed of their lukewarmness. The ball to-night bids fair to be well attended. Look out for the waltz, gallop, and polonoise; it takes the Germans to do these kind of things—and the way the Yagers, with their light-footed partners, will spin round, will be a scandal to fly-wheels and smoke-jacks. Our best respects to the patriotic Yagers; may they have a full ball, and hearts full of pleasure.

[illegible] RIGHT. A fellow was caught in the act of stealing some articles from a gentleman's house in Philadelphia on Saturday night. The gentleman quietly ejected him, but some boys in the neighborhood got wind of the affair, and secured the delinquent. They then covered him with theatre bills and other combustible stuff, which they fired, and then liberated him.

Resignation. The hon. J. J. Crittenden, lately elected U. S. Senator for six years from the 4th of March next, has addressed a letter to the Governor of Kentucky, declining to accept, as he is about to take the office of attorney-general of the United States. The Senate will lose an able and distinguished member.

Nova Scotia. The Nova Scotia Legislature commenced its present session on the 2d instant. The Lieut. Governor Lord Faulkland proceeded to the Council chamber instate, where the members were in attendance, and delivered the opening speech. The Hon. Joseph Howe, editor of the Nova Scotian, has been chosen Speaker.

Mercantile Library. It will be observed by advertisement, that the Rev. Dr. Johns will deliver a lecture before this association to-night. His subject is—"The motives which should incite to the pursuit of literature and science." The lecture will be delivered in the Universalist Church, corner of Calvert nd Pleasant streets.

U. S. Senator from New Jersey. On Friday, the New Jersey Legislature elected the Hon. Jacob W. Miller, of Jorristown, (Whig,) U. S. Senator for six years, to succeed Mr. Wall, whose term expires on the 4th of March.

Front street Theatre. The members of the Mechanical Fire Company, having accepted an invitation politely tendered them by Mr. Ward, will visit the Theatre this evening in full firemen's costume.

A Prodigy. There is a female child now exhibiting at the Museum in Boston who is but seven years of age, and is 5 feet high, weighs 220 pounds and measures nearly four feet round the waist. She is a native of New Hamshire.

The U. S. Bank, it is said, has seled its account with the Stonington Railroad Co giving the Co. 30 years time at 5 per cent. interest.

A lad aged 14 years, son of Micel Burns, was killed on Thursday in the Cale Printing Factory at Taunton, falling on a wiel which was in motion—he died instantly.

Horrible. Five negro children were burned to death a few days ago in Chesterild. The parents had been absent, and whenreturning found the house in flames.

The N. Y. Atlas gives it as its cand opinion that some folks follow virtuous way all their lires, but never overtake them.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

Having arrived safe at home, and reformed my dress, I then continued my rambles, with a view to demonstrate that the western section of our city sends forth, on a sunny day, more ourang outangs than the other three sections united. I was but a short time on the fashionable track, before indubitable evidence (in the shape of a large baboon) convinced my mind that such is the lamentable fact.

It appears that the people of this part of our city are determined to render themselves as ridiculous as the old, worn-out fashions of Turkey, England, France, and Russia can make them.

What must be the feelings of the great founder of human freedom, when he looks down upon the poor, degenerate sons and daughters of the present day? Answer, ye mushroon democrats, answer. That educated men and women should dress like stage actors and actresses, and expose themselves to public view, is really distressing to the more elevated and refined portion of the civilized family.

Cast your eyes on whatever side you may, and you behold nothing but the aping of all the shocking notions of Turkish and English depravity.

From the west, I took my course east northeast, and arrived safe at the room of the Union Literary and Debating Society, where I had the pleasure of examining Mr. Russell's astronomical apparatus. After a few illustrations of the science of the celestial bodies, the Society resumed the consideration of the main question, which is, "Does the British Government partake more of a republicanism than despotism?"

Mr. Lang opened the debate in a very eloquent manner.

Mr. Dimitry made a suggestion.

Mr. Dent spoke in his usual happy style.

Mr. Dimitry then made a feint show of the powers of his mind.

Mr. Harrison resumed his argument, and had reachnd the point of eloquence, when he was interrupted by Mr. Hoban, for the purpose of explaining. When this member got to his explanation, he became so very eloquent, that Dr. Fowle called him to order, and insisted, with the pertinacity of a wild cat, that he should take his seat, and allow Mr. Harrison to proceed in his argument. Mr. Harrison gave way, and the Doctor still called Mr. Hoban to order, and, with a view to keep the peace, as well as the floor, Mr. Harrison moved an adjournment, which was carried, and some of us went home, and others of us went elsewhere. Office of the Gas Light Co. of Baltimore,
February 20, 1841.

☞Consumers of Gas are respectfully informed that Mr. J. B. Mattison is no longer in the employment of this Company. As it is not intended, at present, to appoint another in his place, messages heretofore communicated through that channel, will, until further notice, meet with prompt attention, if sent to this Office. By order, fe23-eo6t James Mowton, Sec'y.

TO THE PUBLIC.

☞An advertisement appeared in the American of Monday notifying the public that I was no longer in the employment of the Gas Company. As it might be supposed by those unacquainted with the causes of my connexion with that company having ceased, that I had been discharged for improper conduct, I deem it necessary to state the reasons which induced the company to dispense with my services. When I first engaged with the company, it was at a small salary, with the stipulation that it should be annually increased until it amounted to a proper compensation for my labors. At the commencement of the second year it was accordingly increased a small amount. Near the beginning of the third year, on my requesting additional compensation, it was denied, and I was informed by the secretary that he was ordered to discharge me if I persisted in my demand. I was continued at the former salary until Saturday last, when I was charged with having communicated to the proprietors of the Baltimore Clipper some facts concerning the inaccuracy of the metres and the impossibility of making correct bills against the consumers of gas by this mode of measurement. Without taking the trouble to ascertain the correctness of this charge, I was peremptorily discharged.

The remarks in the Clipper gave great offence, because they were calculated to induce investigation—the company well knowing that proper scrutiny would result in proving that the present mode of charging for gas is uncertain and not to be relied on, and that great injustice may be done. It was my duty to take the statements of the indexes by which the bills were formed, and the consumers frequently censured me for what they supposed inaccurate returns. To relieve myself from this injustice I sometimes mentioned that I did not believe the metres to be entirely correct, but that I was obliged to return the measure as I found it. Great dissatisfaction has prevailed with the consumers of gas, and whilst the present system is continued that dissatisfaction will not be decreased.

I have uniformly been treated with the greatest respect by the consumers of gas, for which they will accept my thanks. I have always desired to do them justice, and hope that the gas company may manifest the same disposition. The situation I occupied was not an enviable one, and I have the satisfaction to [illegible] respectability, where I shall not be subjected to the arbitrary power of any man, nor compelled to be silent at what I know to be wrong.
fe23-1t John B. Mattison.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

Bill No. 12, being an ordinance in relation to streets was called up by Mr. Dallam, which upon being amended, was passed.

A message was received from the Mayor.—This was the long looked-for, almighty and much-talked of "green bag," or in other words the list of nominations for office. On motion of Mr. Donovan, a committee was appointed to inform the Second Branch of the fact, and invite its members into secret convention with the first. The bag was of sizeable dimensions—so ponderous that it almost weighed Samuel Myers, Esq., to the floor as he bore it across the chamber to his honor, the president. Subsequent movements being of a secret order, ourself with the lobby members were permitted to withdraw. Previous, however, to the awful conflict, there reigned a dead silence, or rather a muttering like the sound of many horses going to battle. There was considerable whispering. At times we fancied we could hear a faint voice saying will you vote for Mr. H., Mr. W. Mr. M., &c.? For the Baltimore Clipper.

MESSRS. EDITORS: I sometime since noticed an article in a northern abolition paper, headed "Maryland," commencing with the following paragraph:

"It is seldom we devote a separate article to this state, although our attention has been often turned to its condition. It ought to be the most known and the most moveable of any of the slave states except Delaware, but for some reason it is almost the reverse."

This, then, is the manner in which we are calculated upon by our northern friends. The questions with them seem plainly to be: Are they moveable? Is it possible for us to stir up in them the elements of discord and strife? Can we light the torch of the incendiary? Can we rock to their base and demolish the institutions of any of the states of this Union whose constitution and laws we are bound to support and to protect? This is what they would do, and what they wonder that they have not effected, particularly with Maryland, which, it seems, they are obliged to confess is the least moveable. And why? For them and for ourselves the answer to this question is most important. For them, that they may thereby see, if they will but desist from their efforts and let us entirely alone, the results so far as the elevation of the character and improvement in the condition of the African race is concerned, which they profess to advocate, would be consummated in a way satisfactory and advantageous to all, and injurious to none. For ourselves, that the same causes which have thus far rendered our state the least moveable and vulnerable to their continued and uncharitable attacks, should continue to be supported and strengthened. The whole is explained in one word: We owe our quiet, or freedom from the agitation and foment which have excited all parts of this Union, to our state system of colonization. Maryland has never closed her eyes to the subject of her colored population. If she has been little known to her northern friends, she has been well known to herself. She has ever been disposed to legislate for the general and mutual good of her inhabitants. While she has carefully guarded the interests and rights of her white citizens, she has not been unmindful of the condition of the free negro and slave. She has appropriated her thousands to improving the condition of the free man of color and opening the door for the manumission of the slave. She has purchased for them a home in the land of their fathers, in a clime which they were destined by nature to inhabit—she has built them a city, planted for them vineyards, and said, go, inhabit, and enjoy the good thereof.

Long before abolition was dreamed of at the north, whence the watch word, the tally ho! of the bigot and fanatic, Maryland numbered among her most respectable inhabitants many, very many friends of the African, who were ready to spare no sacrifice of their talents or money to better their condition, so far as it could be done without jeopardizing the interests and infringing upon the guaranteed rights of the white citizen of the state. They could not but see that the physical and moral condition of the slave was preferable to that of the free black, not only in Maryland but in the "happy regions of the moral north:" that their degradation proceeded not from their political position, but from the indelible marks of their former state of servitude, which must be obliterated of themselves, removed from the influence of their superiors. To effect this, and enable them to acquire that elevation of character of which nature has rendered them capable, was the colony of Liberia founded, and how much has been effected thereby, and to what superiority they have attained over the colored population now resident in the United States, her history has unfolded to the world.—But it appears that the effects of African colonization on our own state have been too lightly estimated, less noted by us than our more vigilant friends abroad. It behooves us, one and all, to look to it, that it languish not—to foster and cherish it—to grasp firm the talisman that thus guards and protects us from the influence of foreign disorganizers, and renders us the least moveable of the states assailed by the bastard philanthropy of the north. The Sawed Lumber may be of white or yellow pine, with not more than an inch of sap on two edges of the stick; free from large knots, shakes or decay of any kind. A portion of the 4½x8 scantling may be proposed for to be furnished, of white oak, under the same conditions as to quality. The points of delivery may be at Baltimore, Georgetown, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any other point upon the line of the road, and the proposal will state the places as well as times at which the Lumber will be furnished.

Proposers to whom more than one of the places just named are accessible, will separately state their prices for delivery at each; so as to allow an option to the Company in regard to them should the proposal be accepted.

The hewn Timber, intended for the cross-ties and support-blocks, may be of white oak, rock-oak or chesnut oak, or of chesnut. It must be sound wood, and straight in one direction. If the proposer prefers delivering it in the rough state, and does not wish to undertake the hewing of it to the required dimensions he can so word his proposal, and in that case the size of the sticks must be such as to permit them, when dressed, to be of the full dimensions specified, clear of bark and axe-kerf. If the timber is cut while the bark is loose, it must be stripped off before the delivery. The delivery may be made upon any point of the line, between Harper's Ferry and Cumberland, and the points between which it will take place must be stated. There are to every mile of track 31,680 feet board measure of 4½x8, and 26,400 feet of 3x10 scantling, 1056 cross ties dressed to 4½ inches thick, and 302 dressed to 3 inches thick. Proposals will not be received for a less quantity of any of the kinds of timber, than will lay a mile of track.

The Castings for the chairs and plates will be of an easy pattern—they must be of strong and sound metal, and smoothly cast—the contractor furnishing the patterns. The screw bolts and nuts will be of sound, tough iron and made with exacts as to the required form and size. The washers will be of bar-iron, rolled with the proper section, cut off and punched for the passage of the bolt. The zinc plates similarly made. The hook-headed spikes to be of iron of as good a quality as that of the screw bolts.

The Iron Fastenings just described may be delivered at Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any point of the line of the road between the two latter places and the places and times of delivery will be stated in the proposals. There are to every mile of track 7656 lbs. of castings—1584 lbs. of bolts and nuts—591 lbs. of iron washers—105 lbs. of zinc plates, and 2247 lbs. of spikes. No proposal for a less quantity than will supply 10 miles will be received.

Monthly estimates will be made of the quantities of each kind of materials so delivered and four fifths of the value at the contract prices will be paid thereon—reserving to the Company the option of paying the said four fifths in Baltimore City 6 per cent stock at par—or in the stock orders of the Company at par; and also reserving the option of paying for the remaining fifth in like manner, when the delivery of the whole quantity contracted for shall have been completed according to the contract.

If the materials contracted for or any part of them are not furnished at the times required, the Company may dissolve the contract and retain the one-fifth due on any which may have been already delivered, and no estimates or payments shall be made or on account of materials delivered before the time specified for commencing the delivery of the same. The monthly payments shall be made at the Company's offices in Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh, Virginia, at the option of the contractor, and the final payments shall be made in Baltimore. The manner and times in which the materials shall be furnished on the different parts of the line will be specifically provided for in the contracts, and particulars will be given on application to the undersigned. It will be required that about one half of the whole quantity of materials shall be delivered as early as possible between now and the 1st of December next. A model of the rail and its supports and fastenings will be ready for inspection at the Company's office in Baltimore by the 26th current. The proposals will be directed under seal to the subscriber, either at Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh—and will be received up to the 15th of March proximo. VALLIER'S FRENCH PILL, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

CONSULT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for those diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Valier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains as aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

SONG.

To my heart of hearts let me enfold thee,
In my heart of hearts I have enroll'd thee,
More than ever, ever I have told thee
Let me utter here
In this falling tear:—

Enwreath me gentle words of poesy,
Awaken me a strain of melody,
In song I'll tell thee all I feel for thee,
Maiden dear! maiden dear!

Ah, tell us not of losing Eden fair,
Our joys on earth are bright as any there,
For paradise and its delight we share,
Meeting angels here,
On our lowly sphere!

Oh, we are not from Eden chased away,
Believe it not, whatever sages say,
We are truant children only, out at play,
Maiden dear! maiden dear!

Never, never, love, while joys invite us,
And while things are near us to delight us,
Did kind heaven e'er design to fright us
From the blessings dear,
It has scattered here!

Never! for the power that makes thee mine, love,
Is a thing I know to be divine, love,
And thou art mine, mine, as I am thine, love,
Maiden dear! maiden dear!—Pic.

POWER AND DEBILITY.

Or, What will the Emperor say?

FROM THE GERMAN OF JEAN PAUL—BY S. L.

It was on the eighth of February, 1806, that a young lady was lying on a sofa in the royal palace at Hague. She was tall and pale, with auburn hair, but her form did not show any thing of the characteristic fulness of Dutch beauties. Her small elegant foot, her wonderfully moulded form, her face, perhaps a little too long, but exceedingly charming, made easily known the lady of Paris. This was the daughter of Joseph Beauharnais, the celebrated scholar of Madame Campan, the Queen Hortense. Before her stood quite respectfully a young and beautiful "Dame D'Annonce"—and this was my mother.

"But now," cried the Queen, with a voice full of pain and impatience. My mother wept bitterly.

"You are silent, Louise, you are silent! Oh, Lord! then, my dear child is dead! dead! poisoned!" she uttered, clasping her hands in despair. "They predicted it; this child was a child of France. His name was Napoleon—he must die."

Tears suffocated her voice. "But what will the Emperor say?" she cried again; "this child was his glory, the heir of his fortune. My son, my son!" Pressing the hand of my mother, she continued, drying a tear; "How sad is this grandeur, Louise. Every one thinks that fortune is united with the King on the throne—Heaven only knows what sorrow this crimson conceals. What would I give to return to the humble situation from which a cruel accident has dragged me! I curse the crown they have put on my head. To love is not permitted to us, and the refinement of the court disapproves our tears. The Queen must cease to be a woman."

A long silence followed. My mother would not break it, knowing that common consolation only augments the pain. Then another lady, less excelling with beauty, than with intellectual charms, entered the room. It was Mdlle. Cochelet, the playmate of her childhood, the most intimate friend of the Queen.

"Ah, there you are, my good Emily," exclaimed Hortense, with a mournful smiling, and she took a seat near her.

"You see how I defy misfortune; this world is a valley of tears, and religion commends us to bear the cross with patience."

The young friend wept tears of admiration; she sunk on her knee before the Queen, who embraced her with both arms.

"Let us weep over him, my dear, dear Emily! this fortitude I spoke of was only hypocrisy. I would play my part as Queen. O what folly!—God has given me the heart of a mother. My child was so beautiful, Emily, an anointed emperor in the cradle. My son would have succeeded Napoleon. You have seen, you have heard him, you know yourself never gave a child greater hope."

Here she rose as if to leave the room. "But no, it is impossible," she exclaimed suddenly, taking the hand of M'delle Cochelet, "it is false; it is a shocking error. Thousands of times have the physicians taken sleep for death. Come, Emily, let us look after my son, they would bury him alive."

She had scarcely uttered these words, when a clergyman approached the Queen. She looked at him with frightful anxiety. "My son," she murmured indistinctly.

"Children become angels when they leave this world," interrupted the man of God.

He spoke in strong emotion. The Queen became very pale. "Thanks, my father, thanks. Let us pray for him ladies," she softly continued, and knelt before the crucifix.

During this, a gentleman appeared at the door of the saloon. He was of middling size, more slender, and except his eyes, which were without expression, he looked very much like Napoleon. He went to the Queen, and would have taken her hand, but she withdrew it.

"Oh, sir," she cried in despairing accents, "Oh, sir, give me back my child."

"The King shivered in horror. "The Lord has given, the Lord has taken, the name of the Lord be blessed. Pray for him to our Saviour; your child is one of his angels."

This was Louis Bonaparte. "He is in heaven," repeated the Queen with force. "Very well, sir, but my poor child left me a legacy of vengeance, entrusted to us both to execute. The villains, sir, who have slain our child, shall they remain unpunished? Dod't shake your head, Louis, what I tell you, your heart must have told you long ago. You are a man, show yourself worthy of the high station the Lord entrusted to you."

Louis seemed strongly affected. "Your pain confuses your head, and that excuses you, Madam. Believe me, there are pains which only resignation may overcome."

"No, sir, no; resignation is the weapon of the weak; we want courage and perseverance. And what have you to fear? Are you not the brother of Napoleon, and is not Napoleon the master of the world?"

"Hortense," replied the King with bitterness, "the height whence came this blow, I cannot reach. Could I risk it without an army, without a people, against this giant? Don't you know that we are surrounded with spies, waiting for a pretext to give Holland a revolution, to overthrow my throne, and to return this crown to her former possessor? No, madam, the time is not yet arrived. We must delay our vengeance, and wait till the hand of my brother is united with mine;" then he continued softly, "Hortense, this palace has too many mournful recollections for you. Let us leave it for some months. You know time cures all pain."

A bitter smile floated over the Queen's lips. "Sir," she replied, "there are pains which time cannot cure, and nothing in the world can make us forget." Then addressing M'delle Cochelet, she said, "follow me, dear Emilie, God and you alone know what I suffer."

The palace at Busch is one of the most splendid Royal residences in Holland, situated in the midst of a forest. It is built in an elegant style, and seems to be in the centre of a green crown, proving that the elegant and picturesque may be united. To this place, the day after the death of Queen Hortense's eldest son, the postillion drove a large Cerline with eight horses, and guard officers rode before it. In the carriage were the young Queen, and beside her her guardian angel, her friend, the intimate of her joy and woe, M'delle Cochelet, seemingly in a sad humor.—Louis Bonaparte and the minister of the police, Mr. Vanderhoff, were on the back side. The face of the King was pensive, but not angry, his silence was decency, perhaps something of an interval contentment. He cherished more the younger son of the Queen; the other, Napoleon, had always been an object of his aversion, and he had determined to make the younger his successor, and to give him the title of the King of Rome.

The Queen of Holland did not speak one word during the whole passage. She supported her head on the shoulder of Miss Cochelet, and one would have believed her sleeping, had not a tear crept from from time to time from beneath her closed eye-lids. But as the chimneys of Busch appeared through the trees, she shivered, rose, and touching with her fingers the knee of her husband, "Excuse me, sir, my will is firm; I will not put a footstep into this castle."

The King gazed on her amazed, "And why, Madame, if I may be so inquisitive?"

"Because," replied the poor, distressed mother, "because I played the first time with my child in that room whose widows this oak tree shadows. To any other place, Sir, only not there, the grief would kill me."

"But where will you go, Madame?" replied the King, quite anxiously, "will you not give room to these sad thoughts in any place? You know, it is impossible at this moment to depart for Rotterdam. Hague is the centre of all intrigues, and four miles are often sufficient to build an insurmountable obstacle between the King and the Crown. To our days the crown is a fragile thing, and mine could be dashed from my brow by the feeblest blow."

Contemptuously smiled the young Queen, "God knows, Louis, I would not shed one tear."

The King folded his eyebrows, "You are not with yourself, Madam," he replied, and then addressing Mr. Vanderhoff, he continued, "Is not in this neighborhood the castle of Mr. Vana?"

"Yes, Sir," replied the minister, "but I know by the secret police, that this man has old Dutch blood in his veins, he will refuse you a reception."

"Are you mad, Sir?" answered Louis, "not a fortnight ago I made this Vana my chamberlain." Some minutes afterwards the carriage stopped before the yard of a splendid castle. The owner came quickly forward, but hesitated as if he did not know them. "What do you want?" he asked, in a manner not very polite.

Louis went to him: "Hospitality, Sir, the eldest son of the Queen died yesterday."

"Yes, and——?"

"And the Queen is inconsolable; she shuns every place, where she finds anything that could remind her of her loss. The child has been in every Royal palace. In her name it is that I pray you for a momentary refuge."

After a short pause the Dutchman replied ironically. "I am inconsolable, Sir, but every room here has its purpose, and the plan cannot be altered."

You refuse also a shelter to the King of Holland, your Sovereign?"

The Dutchman crossed his arms over his breast, and looked straight into Louis's face. "Are you Willaim of Orange? No, sir, no, you are Louis Bonaparte, the brother of General Bonaparte, and a nobleman of Corsica, as he is."

Then his voice became stronger with extraordinary expression as he spoke. "Mark you, sir, you have changed everything in Holland, but you could not extirpate it. It is an easy matter to overthrow thrones; they are only of gilded wood. The fortunes of battles can do it. But quite different is it with principles rooted in the heart of the country, becoming a use a necessity, a religion. These principles are immortal, and there is only one way to extinguish them, and that is to murder every man in Holland, to burn every leaf and every word of our history, to destroy all monuments, to raze our houses and our churchyards, then, but only then, you could boast yourself of right to be King of Holland."

Louis became quite pale, and addressing his suit he said, with great emotion, "What do you think now, gentlemen; is this crown, put on my head by Napoleon, not a crown of thorns?"

Nobody replied, and the Cerline drove back to the palace at Busch.

We learn from the N. O. Picayune, that the recent long continued and heavy rains have proved destructive to the cattle in the prairies about Attakapas county. Numbers of them have died, and the sharp cold weather which has succeeded is as likely to heighten the evil as to lessen it.

VOL. III. NO. 139.] WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 24, 1841. [PRICE ONE CENT.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 22, 1841.

Mr. Maxwell presented the memorial of sundry citizens of Port Deposite and its vicinity, praying for a charter of a bank, on condition that the stockholders be made liable in their individual capacity to a limited amount, say one hundred per centum. Referred to committee on corporations.

Mr. Billingslea presented the petition of sundry citizens of Harford county, praying that no license may be issued for retailing intoxicating drinks in any election district of any county or any ward of any city of this State, wherein a majority of the voters thereof at the polls at any general election so express their wish. And further, that the sale of intoxicating liquors may be prohibited on the Sabbath.

Mr. Martin submitted a message requesting the Senate to return a bill passed by the House entitled an act to prohibit any corporation or individual or association of individuals from issuing any paper intended to circulate as money or currency, and that the same may be reconsidered by this House. The message was assented to by a vote of 31 to 29.

The House proceeded to consider the bill reported by Mr. Graves, to provide for the reorganization of the city court of Baltimore, and for the more prompt administration of justice in said city. The bill was laid on the table.

On motion of Mr. Gallagher, the House took up the bill supplementary to an act to vest certain powers in the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, &c. An additional section was added, stating that the act should not take effect until the first day of June next. The bill as amended was passed.

In the Senate, Mr. Howard presented the memorial of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road to be relieved from the payment of one million of dollars to Washington county. Referred to a select committee.

Leave was granted to report a further supplement to the Insolvent Laws of this State. It was subsequently reported and passed.

A bill was reported to regulate the issuing of executions, which was laid upon the table.

BALTIMORE CITY COURT.

Present—Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington.

Tuesday, Feb. 22. The jury in the case of Joseph Montgarret this morning returned a verdict of guilty on the second count of the indictment, which is for a common assault only. The court sentenced him to pay a fine of $200 and costs, to be imprisoned in the jail of Baltimore city and county for the term of two years, and at the expiration of the sentence to give undoubted security in the sum of $500 to keep the peace. The court prefaced their sentence with some very judicious remarks upon the impropriety of carrying deadly weapons. They said that they were obliged to adopt this course in order to prevent the community from such outrages in future.

The Grand Jury yesterday morning presented James L. Hawkins, the former cashier of the Franklin Bank of Baltimore, for feloniously abstracting one hundred thousand six hundred and eighty-three dollars and seventy-eight cents, the property of the Franklin Bank of Baltimore.

Tilden and Owen Goodwin, two young men, were placed upon trial, charged with obtaining from Hope H. Slatter $250 under false pretences. Mr. Slatter stated that Owen Goodwin called upon him on the evening of the 10th of this month, and represented to him that he had a negro girl for sale, and asked him if he wanted to purchase; he told him he did; Owen Goodwin then told him he would send her up in the afternoon; he did so, and came up himself; told him he must give a bill of sale from the lawful owner; he told him that Mrs. Dorsey, his sister, was the proper owner; told him that he would go and bring his sister up to him; afterwards brought an order purporting to be drawn by Mrs. Dorsey; then gave him the money. On the same night about 11 o'clock, Mr. Dorsey called upon him, accompanied with Mr. Price, and asked him if he had purchased a negro girl during the afternoon; told them he had; they went into his jail and claimed the negro as the property of Mrs. Dorsey; delivered her up.—Next day, had Tilden and Owen Goodwin arrested, and recovered from them all the money with the exception of $17.

Mr. John Glenn, on the part of the defence, stated that Mr. Goodwin, the father of the young men, who is now deceased, did, during his lifetime, execute a bill of sale of all his property to him on account of his indebtedness to him, and among the property was this negro girl; he had since his decease, permitted the family to enjoy the property, and they did not know that there was a bill of sale, and were under the opinion that the property still belonged to them. The court declared them not guilty.

The case of Henry Gunter was further postponed until Thursday morning next at 10 o'clock.

John Lewis and John Watson, two negro boys, between the ages of 14 and 16 years, was placed upon trial, charged with stealing from Frederick Bloomer one cloth cloak, one bonnet, one veil and one shaving box. It appears that on Thursday last the house of Mr. Bloomer was robbed of the above articles—that the prisoners went to the house of Mr. Bloomer, while one of them went into the kitchen and commenced a conversation with a negro servant of Mr. Bloomer's, the other went into the parlor and stole the property; they were afterwards seen running down the street with it. The jury returned a verdict of guilty.

A jury was sworn in the case of James Thomas alias James H. Anderson, negro, indicted for the murder of Wesley B. Cook, negro; they were not charged to-day. The trial will commence to-morrow morning.

Thomas Brown, a mulatto, was charged with assaulting his wife in the most brutal manner.—The court required him to give security to keep the peace; in default thereof, he was committed.

The court then adjourned until to-morrow morning, at 10 o'clock.

The following, which we find in the Boston Mercantile Journal, is A. No. 1. "A farmer's boy was told to give the cows some cabbages, and to give the cow that yielded the most milk the largest share. He literally obeyed the order, and laid the largest share on the PUMP!"

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, attended with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, Feb. 24, 1841.

STATE DEBT. The present debt of Maryland amounts to about $15,000,000, and the annual sum to be raised by taxes is about $600,000. As if this burden were not sufficiently onerous, the committee on internal improvement, of the legislature, have reported in favor of another appropriation to the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, of $2,000,000, this amount being sufficient, they think, to complete the canal to Cumberland. But of this, there is no certainty; and the probability is, that the work will cost at least $3,000,000, in addition to what has been already appropriated. But suppose the committee to be correct, and that the money can be obtained upon the state's bonds, (which we doubt, without we incur a heavy loss,) what benefit is Maryland to derive from the canal, when so completed? The committee say: "The ultimate termination of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal is the city of Baltimore.—And if your committee were not satisfied that the right of the Maryland Canal Company to continue the canal through the District to Baltimore, was unquestionable, and that it would be speedily done after the completion of the work to Cumberland, they would not feel that deep solicitude in its rapid projection, which they have been impelled to express to the legislature."

It is evident, then, that the ultimate termination of the canal at Baltimore, is looked to as indispensable to render the work of utility as a state work. Until this can be accomplished, all the benefits from the canal are to be centered in the District. It will cost at least from three to four millions of dollars, we suppose, to connect Baltimore with the canal in the District, and will take some years to perform the work. In the mean time, the people of Maryland will be paying a heavy additional tax, that the District may enjoy the trade of the canal. We object to this, not because we are so selfish as to deny the District any advantage from the work, but because we are called on to pay all the costs, without participating in the benefits. If we must have an appropriation during the present session, let it be for the Cross-cut canal, and when that shall have been completed, the work to Cumberland can be continued.

We cannot concur in opinion with the committee, that the tolls on the canal from Cumberland to the District will relieve the people of Maryland from taxes on account of the canal. We do not think that our burthens would be in the least lightened by the proposed appropriation—on the contrary, the state taxes would be increased from six to nearly eight hundred thousand dollars.—The taxes are already heavy enough; and if they must be increased, do not compel us to bear all the loss without a share of the profit. We have plunged blindly into debt heretofore, and are now about to reap the fruits of our folly: let us hereafter "look before we leap." Were the state in a condition to complete the canal to Cumberland and to make the cross-cut simultaneously, we should say "go ahead;" but we are too poor to "throw good money after bad." We have to pay interest upon the investments already made in the canal, and we had better let things remain stationary than to incur further debt without the certainty of relief.

CITY APPOINTMENTS. It is an old saying that "a new broom sweeps clean," and we have the evidence before us, that this is true of municipal, as well as household brooms. His honor the Mayor has made a clean sweep, scarcely leaving a whig grease spot to denote where one of that party stood. We were in hopes that he would set the same example on a small scale, that it is expected General Harrison will on a large one; but we suppose that he had to drop a crumb into each hungry mouth, to prevent being worried to death by his own dogs. An old politician, when asked his definition of party, replied, "it is the madness of the many for the benefit of the few." Solomon himself could not have given a better explanation. In national politics, there are distinctive differences in parties, but in state and municipal affairs, it is a mere matter between the ins and outs—a scramble for two-penny offices.—We wish it were otherwise, and that state and city officers could be chosen without reference to party; the men best qualified would then be selected. But the current is strongly against us, and we suppose that the Mayor, whatever may be his disposition, has been compelled to yield to its force. We do not object to the individuals whom he has appointed; for, with few exceptions, we know nothing of them, and they may be very clever men. It is the principle we oppose; and upon this subject, we write under our names ne varietur.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTH DAY. Our corespondent "Jupiter" states that the day was celebrated in Washington by a general parade of the military, and a display of flags, &c. He says that hacks and cabs are so numerous as to have become a nuisance—that the two houses were so crowded with ladies as nearly to "push men from their stools," and that the postmaster general is so unwell as to be confined to his house. He informs us that the new post office will probably be completed by September next—and that Mr. Van Buren will remain in the white house until the third of March, which we think very proper.

McLEOD. Augustus McLeod, brother to him now confined at Lockport, has addressed a letter to the editor of the Journal of Commerce, stating the innocence of his brother respecting the Caroline affair. He says that the night it took place his brother was at Stamford, a village four miles from Chippewa.

NEW BANK. An application has been made to the legislature, to incorporate a bank at Port Deposit, upon a new principle, viz: to make the stockholders individually responsible to the amount of 100 per cent. upon their stock. Although this would afford greater security than the ordinary mode, yet we very much doubt the policy of incorporating any new bank in the state of Maryland. The facilities for borrowing are already great enough, and experience has proved that banks are not serviceable to the farming interests. We have known men in independent circumstances, who have been reduced to poverty by speculations induced by bank accommodations. It is the true policy of the people, collectively and individually, to rely upon the profits of industry and economy, instead of resorting, upon all occasions, to loans from banks. We are greatly beyond the point of precedence in our expenditures, and we must retrench, if we would prosper.

In former times, men were content to progress slowly, laying up dollar by dollar; but now, this tardy, but sure process, is scanned, and there is a restless anxiety to jump, at once, into a fortune. This hap-hazard kind of business may succeed with some, as occasionally a man may draw a prize in a lottery, but it is ruinous to others.—Now, if a young couple marry, they are not content, however poor they may be, unless they can imitate their wealthy neighbor, by furnishing their house in splendid style; and what is the consequence? Too frequently bankruptcy and ruin. Franklin wheeled the paper he purchased through the streets, and thought it no disgrace.—Now, such an act would be deemed discreditable. We must have delicate hands to be accounted respectable; but an unsoiled hand will not discharge the sheriff's writ. We must come down in our notions and our expenses, and then we shall have less occasion for banks and bail-bonds. But he who will imitate the soldier, and "spend half a crown out of six pence a day," will stand in need of both, and the aid of the insolvent's court to boot.

PUBLIC OFFICERS. Mr. Crittenden has introduced into the Senate his bill to prevent the interference of federal officers in elections, but we doubt whether it will be passed this session.—This is an evil of long standing, though it never, perhaps, was carried to so great an extent as of late years. Mr. Jefferson restrained it by a general prohibitory order to his officers; but the doctrine has been recently avowed, by high authority, that it formed a part of the duty of public officers, to intermeddle with elections; it is, therefore, proper that a law upon the subject should be passed. In England, they are expressly forbidden to interfere; and we should like to see them compelled in the United States, to attend to their public duties, leaving the citizens to the uninfluenced exercise of their rights. The present is the auspicious moment to kill this party monster, and we hope that the work will be effectually done at the first opportunity. Should no law be passed to restrain the evil, we are under the impression that the President elect will adopt the course of Mr. Jefferson, and confine his officers to their legitimate duties. But we would prefer to have a prohibitory law, that it might become the established policy of the country to forbid federal officers from interfering with elections; and we shall have no objection to having the same policy extended to state officers.

ATTEMPT TO BREAK JAIL. Another attempt was made yesterday morning about two o'clock, by two of the prisoners, Hugh McAlamar and Peter Carson, to break jail. Carson succeeded in getting out of a window from room No. 9 on the second story into the yard. He accomplished this by prying off the iron bars, and letting himself down by means of bed blankets. When discovered by the officer he immediately gave himself up. McAlamar, it will be remembered, was lately sentenced to two years imprisonment for an assault upon Dr. Whittaker.

OLD TOWN AND UP TOWN BOYS. The old feud, like that between Grant and McPherson, of Scotch memory, has again been revived between the up town and old town boys. Yesterday, three of them were taken before squire McDonald, charged with rioting, fighting, throwing stones and other outrages. They were very properly held to bail in good behaviour. These boys should be well punished, and their guardians reprimanded for permitting them to usurp such authority. Good precept, good example, and a good rattan, used with judgment by parents, will effect more in improving the morals of boys, than bug-bears or frights from police officers.

A FINE COW. In an advertisement of some Durham cattle to be sold near Philadelphia, mention is made of a cow which has yielded twenty pounds of butter in one week; her cream possessing the singular property of being turned into butter in ten seconds by simply placing it in a bowl and stirring with a spoon. This is something "new under the sun." If her owner could only guarantee that her offspring would be alike valuable, his fortune would be made. We have read of cows from whom more butter has been made in a week, but never with so little trouble. We wish that some of our farmers would introduce the breed into Maryland, and our dairies need not then supply their customers with so much blue milk.

FRONT-ST. THEATRE. This establishment under the management of Mr. Ward is gradually gaining ground. Last night the audience was large and fashionable, and the performance went off excellently. To-night will be presented, the beautiful drama of the "Mill Maid and Ferry," together with the amusing comedy of "Day after the Wedding," the whole to conclude with the "Idiot Witness, or a tale of blood." The bill presents quite an attraction, such as cannot but insure a full house.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23, 1841.

Last evening the Ball of the Franklin Fire Company took place in pursuance of notice, and the arrangements were such as could not fail to give general satisfaction. Shortly after the dancing commenced, some envious fellows attempted to destroy the harmony of the evening by raising a false alarm of fire. Such conduct cannot be too severely censured.

The House of Representatives did not adjourn till between nine and ten o'clock, and when it did adjourn, no more real business had been done than when they met in the morning. The question pending was a motion to strike out a proviso from the civil and diplomatic appropriation bill, for reducing the salaries of United States district attorneys. It being a legal subject, the lawyers of the House took the debate into their own hands. This being the case, you may easily imagine how extremely interesting the debate was, when several members went to sleep and snored most melodiously. One of the sleepers suddenly woke up, and misapprehending the question before the House, caused much amusement.

This morning the debate was resumed and carried on at much length. A resolution has, however, been adopted, by which the bill is to be reported from committee of the whole at 5 o'clock this evening. It will then pass, I have no doubt, before the adjournment.

There are five other appropriation bills yet to be acted upon; so considering we have but a week left, there will be little time for trifling.

In the Senate last evening, the debate on the bill of Mr. Crittenden, for preventing the interference of office holders in elections, was continued to a late hour. The question on its reception then being put, it was decided in the negative. The galleries were cleared, owing to some token of applause having been exhibited while Mr. Preston was speaking.

This morning the House bill, making appropriation for continuing the exploration of the north eastern boundary line, was taken up and passed.

DISCOVERY OF A NUMEROUS GANG OF THIEVES. The New York Sun says:—The Wayne Standard, which has just come to hand, brings intelligence of the recent discovery of a gang of thieves, in the town of Manchester, Ontario county, which have for a long time been committing depredations upon the people of the adjacent country to an enormous extent, and shielding themselves from justice by visiting every one who made an attempt to expose them, with some signal vengeance.

Fourteen of them were arrested at one haul, large amounts of stolen property were found, and arrests were still made of people before unsuspected.

COL. PRINCE ASSASSINATED. The Buffalo Republican of Wednesday says: A report is current in this city this morning, that Col. John Prince, of Sandwich, U. C., whose ultra loyalty during the troubles with the patriots led him to the most cruel acts of tyranny, and rendered him extremely obnoxious to a large portion, if not a majority, of the people of that province, has been assassinated. His dwelling and all his other buildings, with the whole of their contents, were burnt.

MADAME LAFFARGE. The Phil. Spirit of the Times says: this woman, who was tried in Paris on a charge of murdering her husband by administering arsenic, and was sentenced to imprisonment for some three or four years, has met it seems with another mishap. During her trial, her advocate, Mons. Bac, fell in love with her, and she fell in love with him. The consequence is, among her prison furniture will have to be provided a——cradle.

A GOOD ARTICLE. Families will find the "Patent Chemical Yeast Powders," prepared by Turner & Sherman, 12½ Baltimore street, near the bridge, a convenient and excellent article, as they save the delay attendant on the use of common yeast, and make equally as light and good biscuit, muffins, &c. We have tried and can recommend these powders.

THIEF DROWNED. Two thieves entered the cabin of the brig Talisman, at New York, on Saturday night: the mate perceiving a light in the cabin, and suspecting that all was not right, shut the trap and called for help. One of the thieves in endeavoring to escape, fell overboard and was drowned.

CAUTION. The Manufacturers Bank of Ulster have established an agency at the office of the New York Sun for the purpose of redeeming their notes, which is done at a trifling discount. The Sun has publicly cautioned the holders of notes of the above institution against disposing of them to John T. Smith & Co. Wall street Brokers, who have been laying it on pretty thick.

QUITE A CRUSH. The tow-boat Delaware, when towing several vessels out of the harbor at Philadelphia, on Monday, stuck fast in a piece of ice. The crafts in tow came suddenly on each other, and a good deal of damage was the result.

INCENDIARISM. A fellow named Kane set fire to his house in New York on Sunday last, because his landlord had seized his goods for rent.

STEAM BOAT ACCIDENT. The Savannah Georgian of Thursday says:—The U. S. steamer Newbern, Capt. M'Nulty, with a cargo of Government Stores, consisting of hay, corn, iron, &c., left for Pilatka on Tuesday evening, a few minutes before 10 o'clock, and had proceeded opposite the Eastern Wharf below the city, when she struck something supposed to be a snag, and sunk in about 4 minutes to the water's edge. Capt. M., as soon as he found her sinking, run her ashore on the Garden Bank, below the City, where she now lies.

ROBBERS CAUGHT. Goods to a large amount have been recently stolen from Wiley & Co., in Charleston, of which the friends of the house had been apprised. On Saturday last, an officer was despatched on board a vessel just arrived from Charleston, and there found a young man named Tilson, formerly a clerk in the establishment, and a young girl, his companion, in whose possession about $800 worth of the stolen goods were found.

REPORTED SUSPENSION. The Augusta (Me.) correspondent of the Boston Mail, says: "In consequence of some drafts on New York being protested, drawn by the purchasers of furs, which have since been paid, the Citizens' Bank in this place has been obliged to redeem nearly all its new circulation in this quarter; and it was reported on Saturday, that the Bank had declined redeeming any more.

BUSINESS AT PITTSBURG. The Pittsburg Intelligencer of Saturday says, about 150 wagon loads of foreign and domestic goods, from New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, had arrived in that city during the previous week.

A SHARPER. A loafer went into a house in Philadelphia, on Sunday, and asked for something to eat. While the family were preparing him some refreshments, he decamped with a watch which was hanging in the apartment.

☞A man named Ferris, an industrious farmer, fell from the window of his bedroom in the Union Hotel, Uniontown, Pa., on Monday morning, and was instantly killed.

Parsonage, Exeter, Conn., Feb. 1st, 1841.

Mr. ROBERT SEARS—

Dear Sir—Your "Pictorial Illustration of the Bible," requires no extraneous testimony as to its intrinsic worth, and beautiful mechanical executions:—the book speaks for itself. And consequently, it cannot fail, by its ingenious, copious, and beautiful illustrations of Natural History, Ancient Costume, and Antiquities, to prove a guide and help, of essential importance, to Christian families in general, and to Sunday-school scholars, and teachers in particular.

The rapid sale of the work—"of 6000 copies in eight weeks," sufficiently attests its great practical utility, and has earned for it a high reputation; this is the highest and best possible recommendation the work can receive. I am glad to hear that your laudable labors, ingenuity, and views are so extensively encouraged; that you are engaged in compiling "two more volumes, on the important and inexhaustible subject of Biblical Illustrations," and that you deem it important to the interests of religion, as of the Church, that the eye of Christians should be directed to primitive times, and primitive Christianity. Yours, in haste,

W. GEO. MILLER.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 50 cents per bottle.

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

THE INDEPENDENT GREYS' BALL. We passed a few very pleasant hours at the Greys' ball on the night of the 22d inst. The whole affair was excellently managed and went off well.—The number of ladies and gentlemen present was quite sufficient for comfort and convenience. The fairer portion of the assemblage was unusually attractive. Every countenance we saw seemed to be lit up with an appropriate glow of patriotism. Miss Z., of the Point, who sported a velvet cap, was much admired. Cupid's invisible dart is at her control. She is an archer of no ordinary skill, and wounds deeply at the first aim. Little Miss T. was the poet's ideal of innocence, love and beauty. She is like the rose-bud in a May morning. We do not wonder that her smiles and modest blushes made so strong an impression upon the heart of that tall youth. Emma, of Gay street, dances prettily. A few more years and she will hold, we predict, more than one admirer in a state of captivation. Her sister is rather a philosophical genius—cunning as a cricket. The Misses P's, of O. T., we have frequently seen on such occasions, and never without admiration. We don't like straw hats—that little girl can draw the inference: she was pretty and danced nimbly, but then that straw concern. Miss D., of up town, had a pair of beautiful eyes. Miss C., of O. T., is of a retiring disposition—she did not dance, but was a speculator upon those that did. That tall lady is white was never without a partner—good sign!

Them curls, them curls,
Upon Miss C.,
Like richest pearls,
Attracted me:

And who says this aint poetree? Miss C., who resides near one of the fountains, was herself a fountain of all that love could dream of. Miss McK. was the last lady upon whom our eye turned as we left the hall to make peace with Morpheus. She left an impression fair to dream on. There were numerous other fair ones present, whose names we could not learn; they will therefore excuse silence.

Every thing went off in good style—we were pleased from beginning to end, and wish the Greys a happy return of another such anniversary. The music was first rate—so much for Murray.

P. S. Some private business was transacted after the adjournment, relative to settling the preliminaries for a good fat supper. We made a speech upon the occasion and advocated the measure with great force and eloquence. Time grew late, however, and we had to absquatulate before hearing the result.

844,800 Hook-headed Spikes, 4½ inches long, 7-16 square in the shank, and weighing 4½ oz. each, 224,716

The Sawed Lumber may be of white or yellow pine, with not more than an inch of sap on two edges of the stick; free from large knots, shakes or decay of any kind. A portion of the 4½x8 scantling may be proposed for to be furnished, of white oak, under the same conditions as to quality. The points of delivery may be at Baltimore, Georgetown, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any other point upon the line of the road, and the proposal will state the places as well as times at which the Lumber will be furnished.

Proposers to whom more than one of the places just named are accessible, will separately state their prices for delivery at each; so as to allow an option to the Company in regard to them should the proposal be accepted.

The Hewn Timber, intended for the cross-ties and support-blocks, may be of white oak, rock-oak or chesnut oak, or of cisenut. It must be sound wood, and straight in one direction. If the proposer prefers delivering it in the rough state, and does not wish to undertake the hewing of it to the required dimensions he can so word his proposal, and in that case the size of the sticks must be such as to permit them, when hewn dressed, to be of the full dimensions specified, clear of bark and axe-kerf. If the timber is cut while the bark is loose, it must be stripped off before the delivery. The delivery may be made upon any point of the line, between Harper's Ferry and Cumberland, and the points between which it will take place must be stated. There are to every mile of track 31,680 feet board measure of 4½x8, and 26,400 feet of 3x10 scantling, 1056 cross ties dressed to 4½ inches thick, and 302 dressed to 3 inches thick. Proposals will not be received for a less quantity of any of the kinds of timber, than will lay a mile of track.

The Castings for the chairs and plates will be of an easy pattern—they must be of strong and sound metal, and smoothly cast—the contractor furnishing the pattern. The screw bolts and nuts will be of sound, tough iron and made with exactness as to the required form and size. The washers will be of bar-iron, rolled with the proper section, cut off and punched for the passage of the bolt. The zinc plates similarly made. The hook-headed spikes to be of iron of as good a quality as that of the screw bolts.

The Iron Fastenings just described may be delivered at Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any point of the line of the road between the two latter places and the places and times of delivery will be stated in the proposals. There are to every mile of track 7656 lbs. of castings—1584 lbs. of bolts and nuts—591 lbs. of iron washers—105 lbs. of zinc plates, and 9247 lbs. of spikes. No proposal for a less quantity than will supply 10 miles will be received.

Monthly estimates will be made of the quantities of each kind of materials so delivered and four fifths of the value at the contract prices will be paid therefor—reserving to the Company the option of paying the said four fifths in Baltimore City 6 per cent stock at par—or in the stock orders of the Company at par, and also reserving the option of paying for the remaining fifth in like manner, when the delivery of the whole quantity contracted for shall have been completed according to the contract.

If the materials contracted for or any part of them are not furnished at the times required, the Company may dissolve the contract and retain the one-fifth due on any which may have been already delivered, and no estimates or payments shall be made or on account of materials delivered before the time specified for commencing the delivery of the same. The monthly payments shall be made at the Company's offices in Baltimore Cumberland, or Martinsburgh, Virginia, at the option of the contractor, and the final payments shall be made in Baltimore. The manner and times in which the materials shall be furnished on the different parts of the line will be specifically provided for in the contracts, and particulars will be given on application to the undersigned. It will be required that about one half of the whole quantity of materials shall be delivered as early as possible between now and the 1st of December next. A model of the rail and its supports and fastenings will be ready for inspection at the Company's office in Baltimore by the 28th current. The proposals will be directed under seal to the subscriber, either at Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh—and will be received up to the 15th of March proximo. VALLIER'S FRENCH PILL, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed. CHILDREN TEETHING.

AT this important period, LITTLE CHILDREN suffer very much, and should not be neglected. Mothers and Nurses, who have the care of them, should be cautious and apply such means as will relieve them. Dr. PARIS' SOOTHING SYRUP, for CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH, is pronounced by Thousands to be the most efficacious medicine yet discovered; it gives immediate relief to those little ones, (if used according to directions,) thus preventing FEVER, CONVULSIONS, and other dangerous symptoms, which often prove fatal. It is highly important to be very careful of whom you purchase this medicine, and not mistake the spelling in the name of PARIS, as there are several individuals representing themselves as Agents, who palm on the unwary a different article, which is not only useless, but a Dangerous Poison to Infants. ☞ Remember, all genuine has the signature of Dr. PARIS blown in the bottles, and the labels and envelope contain an entry, "According to an act of Congress," with the fac simile of the proprietor on the envelope. Unless it contains as aforesaid, touch it not. Price 50 cents. For sale by

LIVER COMPLAINT. This disease is discovered by a fixed obtuse pain in the right side under the short ribs, aneeded with heat, uneasiness about the pit of the stomach;—there is in the right side also a distension—the patient loses his appetite and becomes sick and troubled with vomiting. The tongue becomes rough and black, countenance changes to a pale or citron color, or yellow, like those afflicted with jaundice—difficulty of breathing, disturbed rest, attended with a dry cough, difficulty of laying on the left side; the body becomes weak, and finally the disease terminates into another of a more serious nature, which in all probability is far beyond the power of human skill. Dr. Harlich's Compound Tonic Strengthening and German Aperient Pills, if taken at the commencement of this disease, will check it, and by continuing the use of the Medicine a few weeks, a perfect CURE will be performed. Thousands can testify to the fact.

A CITY MARSHAL'S SPEECH.

Authority is mine! Stand back I say!
Constables! Watchmen! Drag those rogues away.
King of the Lock up am I! and I'll keep
That place well filled with devils to wail and weep.
Down with those signs; the times no signs shall have—
Our fashion is to smell out what we crave.
Watchmen attend! Ye blue-over-headed throng,
If right, by accident, keep mostly wrong.
Poor pauper pensioners, on public plunder,
Scramble for fees, above the earth, and under.
Let costs accumulate. Multiply complaints,
But touch not one of all our holy saints.
If they turn sinners, why you must be visiters,
Or you will lose your offices, and chinkers.
Net small fry, and get our praises to-,
But the big fish will force a passage through.
Besides, to friends 'tis courteous to be partial',
A right of office, in a City Marshal.
Be busy coast like; and prowl about,
Let no man's business 'scape each piercing snout',
So shall you thrive on fees; my boast and pride,
And I your leader, shall be glorified.

THE WIFE.

BY WASHINGTON IRVING.

The treasures of the deep are not so precious
As are the concealed comforts of a man
Lock'd up in woman's love. I scent the air
Of blessings, when I come but near the house.
What a delicious breath marriage sends forth—
The violet bed's not sweeter! MIDDLETON.

"I have often had occasion to remark the fortitude with which woman sustain the most overwhelming reverses of fortune. Those disasters which break down the spirit of a man, and prostrate him in the dust, seem to call forth all the energies of the softer sex, and give such intrepidity and elevation to their character, that at times it approaches to sublimity. Nothing can be more touching, than to behold a soft and tender female, who had been all weakness and dependence, and alive to every trivial roughness, while treading the prosperous path of life, suddenly rising in mental force to be the comforter and supporter of her husband under misfortune, and abiding, with unshrinking firmness, the bitterest blasts of adversity.

As the vine, which has long twined its graceful foliage about the oak, and been lifted by it into sunshine, will, when the hardy plant is rifted by the thunderbolt, cling round it with its caressing tendrils, and bind up its shattered boughs; so is it beautifully ordered by Providence, that woman, who is the mere dependent and ornament of man in his happier hours, should be his stay and solace when smitten with sudden calamity; winding herself into the rugged recesses of his nature, tenderly supporting the drooping head, and binding up the broken heart.

I was once congratulating a friend, who had around him a blooming family, knit together in the strongest affection. 'I can wish you no better lot,' said he, with enthusiasm, 'than to have a wife and children. If you are prosperous, there they are to share your prosperity; if otherwise, there they are to comfort you.' And, indeed, I have observed that a married man falling into misfortune, is more apt to retrieve his situation in the world than a single one; partly, because he is more stimulated to exertion by the necessities of the helpless and beloved beings who depend upon him for subsistence; but chiefly, because his spirits are soothed and relieved by domestic endearment, and his self-respect kept alive by finding, that though all abroad is darkness and humiliation, yet there is still a little world of love at home, of which he is the monarch. Whereas, a single man is apt to run to waste and self-neglect; to fancy himself lonely and abandoned, and his heart to fall to ruin, like some deserted mansion, for want of an inhabitant.

These observations call to mind a little domestic story, of which I was once a witness. My intimate friend, Leslie, had married a beautiful and accomplished girl, who had been brought up in the midst of fashionable life. She had, it is true, no fortune, but that of my friend was ample, and he delighted in the anticipation of indulging her in every elegant pursuit, and administering to those delicate tastes and fancies that spread a kind of witchery about the sex. 'Her life,' said he, 'shall be like a fairy tale.'

The very difference in their characters produced a harmonious combination; he was of a romantic, and somewhat serious cast; she was all life and gladness. I have often noticed the mute rapture with which he would gaze upon her in company, of which her sprightly powers made her the delight; and how, in the midst of applause, her eye would still turn to him, as if there alone she sought favor and acceptance.—When leaning on his arm, her slender form contrasted finely with his tall manly person. The fond confiding air with which she looked up to him, seemed to call forth a flush of triumphant pride and cherishing tenderness, as if he doated on his lovely burthen for its very helplessness.—Never did a couple set forward on the flowery path of early and well-suited marriage with a fairer prospect of felicity.

It was the misfortune of my friend, however, to have embarked his property in large speculations; and he had not been married many months, when, by a succession of sudden disasters, it was swept from him, and he found himself reduced to almost penury. For a time he kept his situation to himself, and went about with a haggard countenance and a breaking heart. His life was but a protracted agony; and what rendered it more insupportable was the necessity of keeping up a smile in the presence of his wife; for he could not bring himself to overwhelm her with the news. She saw, however, with the quick eyes of affection, that all was not well with him. She marked his altered looks and stifled sighs, and was not to be deceived by his sickly and vapid attempts at cheerfulness. She tasked all her sprightly powers and tender blandishments to win him back to happiness; but she only drove the arrow deeper into his soul. The more he saw cause to love her, the more torturing was the thought that he was soon to make her wretched. A little while, thought he, and the smile will vanish from that cheek—the song will die away from those lips—the lustre of those eyes will be quenched with sorrow—and the happy heart which now beats lightly in that bosom, will be weighed down, like mine, by the cares and miseries of the world.

At length he came to me one day, and related his whole situation in a tone of the deepest despair. When I had heard him through, I inquired, 'Does your wife know all this?' At the question he burst into an agony of tears. 'For God's sake!' cried he, 'if you have any pity on me, don't mention my wife; it is the thought of her that almost drives me to madness!'

'And why not?' said I. 'She must know it sooner or later; you cannot keep it long from her, and the intelligence may break upon her in a more startling manner than if imparted by yourself; for the accents of those we love soften the harshest tidings. Besides, you are depriving yourself of the comforts of her sympathy; and not merely that, but also endangering the only bond that can keep hearts together—an unreserved community of thought and feeling. She will soon perceive that something is secretly preying upon your mind; and true love will not brook reserve; it feels undervalued and outraged, when even the sorrows of those it loves are concealed from it.'

'Oh, but my friend! to think what a blow I am to give to all her future prospects—how I am to strike her very soul to the earth, by telling her that her husband is a beggar!—that she is to forego all the elegancies of life—all the pleasures of society—to shrink with me into indigence and obscurity! To tell her that I have dragged her down from the sphere in which she might have continued to move in constant brightness—the light of every eye—the admiration of every heart—how can she bear poverty? She has been brought up in all the refinements of opulence.—How can she bear neglect? She has been the idol of society. Oh, it will break her heart—it will break her heart!'

I saw his grief was eloquent, and I let it have its flow; for sorrow relieves itself by words.—When his paroxysm had subsided, and he had relapsed into moody silence, I resumed the subject gently, and urged him to break his situation at once to his wife. He shook his head mournfully, but positively.

'But how are you to keep it from her? It is necessary she should know it, that you may take the steps proper to the alteration of your circumstances. You must change your style of living—nay,' observing a pang to pass across his countenance, 'don't let that afflict you. I am sure you have never placed your happiness in outward show—you have yet friends, warm friends, who will not think the worse of you for being less splendidly lodged: and surely it does not require a palace to be happy with Mary—'I could be happy with her,' cried he convulsively, 'in a hovel! I could go down with her into poverty and the dust!—I could—I could—God bless her!'—God bless her!' cried he, bursting into a transport of grief and tenderness.

'And believe me, my friend,' said I, stepping up, and grasping him warmly by the hand, 'believe me, she can be the same with you. Ay, more: it will be a source of pride and triumph to her—it will call forth all the latent energies and fervent sympathies of her nature; for she will rejoice to prove that she loves you for yourself.—There is in every true woman's heart a spark of heavenly fire, which lies dormant in the broad daylight of prosperity; but which kindles up, and beams and blazes in the dark hour of adversity. No man knows what a ministering angel she is—until he has gone with her through the fiery trials of this world.'

There was something in the earnestness of my manner, and the figurative style of my language, that caught the excited imagination of Leslie. I knew the auditor I had to deal with; and following up the impression I had made, I finished by persuading him to go home and unburthen his sad heart to his wife.

I must confess, notwithstanding all I had said, I felt some little solicitude for the result. Who can calculate on the fortitude of one whose whole life has been a round of pleasures? Her gay spirits might revolt at the dark, downward path of low humility, suddenly pointed out before her, and might cling to the sunny regions in which they had hitherto revelled. Besides, ruin in fashionable life is accompanied by so many galling mortifications, to which, in other ranks, it is a burden. In short, I could not meet Leslie, the next morning, without trepidation. He had made the disclosure.

'And how did she bear it?'

'Like an angel! It seemed rather to be a relief to her mind, for she threw her arms round my neck and asked if this was all that had lately made me unhappy. But, poor girl,' added he, 'she cannot realize the change we must undergo. She has no idea of poverty but in the abstract; she has only read of it in poetry, where it is allied to love. She feels as yet no privation; she suffers no loss of accustomed conveniences nor elegancies. When we come practically to experience its sordid cares, its paltry wants, its petty humiliations—then will be the real trial.'

'But,' said I, 'now that you have got over the severest task, that of breaking it to her, the sooner you let the world into the secret the better. The disclosure may be mortifying; but then it is a single misery, and soon over; whereas you otherwise suffer it, in anticipation, every hour in the day. It is not poverty, so much as pretence, that harrasses a ruined man—the struggle between a proud mind and an empty purse—the keeping up a hollow show that must soon come to an end. Have the courage to appear poor, and you disarm poverty of its sharpest sting.' On this point I found Leslie perfectly prepared. He had no false pride himself, and as to his wife, she was only anxious to conform to their altered fortunes.

Some days afterwards, he called upon me in the evening. He had disposed of his dwelling house, and taken a small cottage in the country, a few miles from town. He had been busied all day in sending out furniture. The new establishment required few articles, and those of the simplest kind. All the splendid furniture of his late residence had been sold, excepting his wife's harp. That, he said, was too closely associated with the idea of herself; it belonged to the little story of their loves; for some of the sweetest moments of their courtship were those when he had leaned over that instrument, and listened to the melting tones of her voice. I could not but smile at this instance of romantic gallantry in a doating husband.

He was now going out to the cottage, where his wife had been all day, superintending its arrangement. My feelings had become strongly interested in the progress of this family story, and as it was a fine evening, I offered to accompany him.

He was wearied out with the fatigues of the day, and as we walked out, fell into a fit of gloomy musing.

'Poor Mary!' at length broke, with a heavy sigh, from his lips.

'And what of her?' asked I, 'has any thing happened to her?'

'What,' said he, darting an impatient glance, 'is it nothing to be reduced to this paltry situation—to be caged in this miserable cottage—to be obliged to toil almost in the menial concerns of her wretched habitation?'

'Has she then repined at the change?'

'Repined! she has been nothing but sweetness and good humor. Indeed, she seems in better spirits than I have ever known her; she has been to me all love, and tenderness, and comfort!'

'Admirable girl!' exclaimed I. 'You call yourself poor, my friend; you never were so rich—you never knew the boundless treasures of excellence you possessed in that woman.'

'Oh! but my friend, if this first meeting at the cottage were over, I think I could then be comfortable. But this is her first day of real experience: she has been introduced into a humble dwelling—she has been employed all day in arranging its miserable equipments—she has for the first time known the fatigues of domestic employment—she has for the first time looked around her on a home destitute of every thing elegant—almost of every thing convenient; and may now be sitting down, exhausted and spiritless, brooding over a prospect of future poverty.'

There was a degree of probability in this picture that I could not gainsay, so we walked on in silence.

After turning from the main road, up a narrow lane, so thickly shaded by forest trees as to give it a complete air of seclusion, we came in sight of the cottage. It was humble enough in its appearance for the most pastoral poet; and yet it had a pleasing rural look. A wild vine had overrun one end with a profusion of foliage; a few trees threw their branches gracefully over it; and I observed several pots of flowers tastefully disposed about the door, and on the grass-plot in front. A small wicket-gate opened upon a footpath that wound through some shrubbery to the door. Just as we approached, we heard the sound of music—Leslie grasped my arm; we paused and listened. It was Mary's voice, singing in a style of the most touching simplicity, a little air of which her husband was peculiarly fond.

I felt Leslie's hand tremble on my arm. He stepped forward to hear more distinctly. His step made a noise on the gravel-walk. A bright beautiful face glanced out at the window, and vanished—a light footstep was heard—and Mary came tripping forth to meet us. She was in a pretty rural dress of white; a few wild flowers were twisted in her fine hair; a fresh bloom was on her cheek; her whole countenance beamed with smiles——I had never seen her look so lovely.

'My dear George,' cried she, 'I am so glad you are come; I have been watching and watching for you; and running down the lane, and looking out for you. I've set out a table under a beautiful tree behind the cottage; and I've been gathering some of the most delicious strawberries, for I know you are fond of them—and we have such excellent cream—and every thing is so sweet and still here.—'Oh!' said she, putting her arm within his, and looking up brightly in his face, 'Oh, we shall be so happy!'

Poor Leslie was overcome.—He caught her to his bosom—he folded his arms round her—he kissed her again and again—he could not speak, but the tears gushed into his eyes; and he has often assured me, that though the world has since gone prosperously with him, and his life has indeed been a happy one, yet never has he experienced a moment of more exquisite felicity.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P. M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	" Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	" Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	" Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	" Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	" Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	" Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection throughout, whilst it is evident that Foul Roads Weather and Storms must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the unwilling being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

THURSDAY MORNING, Feb. 25, 1841.

FOREIGN NEWS. We give in to-day's paper copious extracts from the European news received by the arrival of the steamer Britannia, at Boston. The difficulties between England and China being nearly adjusted, and the Eastern question entirely settled, it may appear extraordinary that France should continue on foot so large a military force, and that England should contemplate an increase of her marine and army, the latter to be augmented ten thousand men. We look upon the calm which at present exists in Europe as deceitful. The great discontents which exist in England, and the apprehension of revolutionary movements in Ireland, may have rendered an increase of her military force expedient as a measure of precaution—but we rather suppose that other views have also had their influence. The warlike preparations of France, and the existence in that nation of a powerful party favorable to a war with England, have no doubt caused anxiety in the latter kingdom, and suggested the propriety of increased preparation to meet any exigency. The omission in the Queen's speech, to mention France, may have been unintentional, but it is a subject of regret with some of her subjects. We see also, that the three other powers in league with England view the movements in France with distrust, and are resolved that she shall desist from her warlike preparations, or that a rupture must be the consequence. On the whole we doubt whether the present tranquillity will be of long duration.

PUBLIC LANDS—DUTIES. Partizans may decide as they please on the proposed distribution among the states of the proceeds of the sales of public lands, and the duties required to be laid on silks, wines and other luxuries. We have nothing to do with partizan views of these subjects: we look to the justice and propriety of the measures alone; and we adhere to the opinions which we have heretofore expressed in favor of the adoption of both projects. We have seen no argument to shake our confidence in the sentiments we have expressed, nor no objection to the measures which we think cannot be fairly removed. A morning paper assumes the extraordinary position, "that the greater part of the money paid for duties are taken from the pockets of the poorer classes of the community, whilst the distribution of the proceeds of those sales, (public lands,) among the states, would operate to reduce the taxes of the more wealthy classes." It is the first time that we ever heard that a tax upon luxuries would affect the poorer more than the wealthier classes of society. We have always believed that the effect would be exactly the reverse, and have advocated duties on luxuries upon the ground, that the amount thus raised would be exclusively levied upon those who would be best able to pay. Silks, wines, brandies, laces, &c. are not indispensible to rich or poor, and of course there is no compulsion upon any one to use them, nor will they be used except by those who are willing to indulge their taste or appetite at the expense of their pocket. But, perhaps the editor may suppose that the withdrawal of the land fund from the public treasury, would create a necessity for an increase of duty on tea, sugar, coffee, cloths, &c. and thus affect the poorer classes. We have no expectation of such a result; but should we be mistaken, we doubt whether the effect would be as anticipated. These articles (with the exception perhaps of cloth,) remain at about the same prices now as before the tariff was reduced, the additional profit upon the article being a gain, not to the consumer, but to the grower and importer. Excellent coffee sold in 1830 under a high duty at 12½ cents per pound, and tea and sugar at about the present prices.

But is it a fact that the wealthy alone would be relieved of taxes by the distribution bill? Under the tax bill as reported in the house of delegates, those alone who are not assessed to the amount of $200, are to be exempted from taxation. Are all persons who own real or personal property of the value of $200, to be classed among the wealthy? If so, we shall appear to be a prosperous community: but how few are there among the mechanics and laboring classes who do not possess this amount of property? these will all have to contribute their tax to the support of government, unless the distribution bill be passed. We do not believe that there is one-tenth of the white population of Maryland who do not own property of some description to the amount of $200, and to all who have this amount it is of interest that we should have our equitable share of the proceeds of the public lands.—But were the sum to be received to be devoted, not to relieve us from taxes, but to education or internal improvements, or both, it would be an important consideration for the pepole of this state. And it really seems to us most extraordinary that there should be an opposition to the distribution, when it is manifest that, we have no choice but to receive our share or give it away. Are we in a condition to practice this wonderful liberality towards the states in which the lands lie? Sooner than agree to the proposed cession of the public lands, we would apply our portion of the land fund to the erection of our town hall, temperance hall, or any other object of local interest. But it is a matter of great state interest, and we do hope that, upon a subject of such magnitude, party spirit will be dormant.

☞We learn that a bench warrant has been issued for the apprehension of James L. Hawkins, late Cashier of the Franklin Bank, who is at present in Frederick, Md.

MILITARY. The public attention, at the present time, being directed to a consideration of the best mode by which our militia system can be improved, and that main arm of our national defence rendered effective in the event of circumstances requiring that they should be called into service, a large portion of this community are deeply impressed with the necessity of some means being immediately adopted, by which all disposed could acquire a proper knowledge of military tactics, many, from circumstances, being prevented, and others having an aversion to connect themselves with uniformed volunteer corps. The best means to accomplish this object, it is thought, would be, by associating all disposed to acquire such instruction with the well-drilled members of the established companies, and, by participating in the regular drills of such companies, to have the advantage of instruction from officers who are competent, and animated with a desire to perfect the discipline of their own corps, no consideration being exacted from such persons but a proper desire and zeal to be benefitted by such instruction. To carry out this design, one of the companies passed the following resolution, which has been handed us for publication. We commend it to the consideration of our readers and citizens, generally:

ARMORY INDEPENDENT GREYS,
53d Reg't Vol. Inf., 19th Feb., 1841.

At a meeting of the corps held this evening, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this company cordially invite all persons subject to the militia laws of this state who are desirous of acquiring a knowledge of military tactics, to participate with us at our regular drills, from 7½ to 9½ o'clock, p. m. on the evenings of Friday, in each week, at our Armory, at the intersection of Exchange Place and Commerce street, where arms and accoutrements will be provided for them by the company.

By order, R. H. MIDDLETON, See'y.

[ASSFAY]

THE BANKS. We have received from Mr. Graves, a copy of the bill introduced by him and made the order of the day for to-morrow in the House of Delegates, entitled "An act for the better regulation of the Banking institutions of this State." The bill is not what we anticipated, and its title should have been, "An act to compel the Banks of Maryland to pay specie." It does not pretend to regulate banking operations in any other respect. The first section requires the Banks to resume specie payments within — days after the Banks of Pennsylvania shall have resumed, and for subsequent suspension the charter to be forfeited. The second section prohibits the issue of post or other notes not payable on demand. The third section provides that in case of failure to pay specie after the first day of— next, holders of notes may get a notary public to certify the fact, upon which certificate the chancellor shall declare forfeiture of charter, and issue an injunction restraining said bank or any of its officers from exercising any of its corporate rights, &c. By section four, the chancellor is requested to appoint three persons as trustees, who shall proceed in the settlement of the affairs of the Bank —the trustees to distribute rateably amongst creditors (other than stockholders) every six months. Section 5. The compensation of the trustees not to exceed the joint salaries of the president and cashier. Section 6. The trustees to give bond, make oath, &c. Section 7, Repeals conflicting acts.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE. We have seen it stated, that there is more talent in the present house of delegates than in any former house for some years; and, as far as we have been able to form a judgment, we concur in the opinion. Many weighty and important subjects have engaged the attention of members, some requiring extensive investigation and great intellectual exertion.—The labors of some of the committees have been arduous, particularly those of the committee of ways and means, but they have been performed with promptness and ability. It affords us pleasure to bear testimony to the ability and industry of our representatives, because we have too often had occasion to censure instead of bestowing praise. The majority of the present house of delegates appear to be what is termed business men—men who faithfully attend to their duties instead of spending their time in idleness and folly. We wish that we could have occasion to speak in the same terms of commendation of the national house of representatives. It is always more agreeable to praise than to condemn; but we should be unfaithful to our duty were we to pass in silence the disorderly scenes which have disgraced congress hall. Had the Maryland house of delegates been guilty of like indecorum, we should not have spared our censure.

FORTIFICATIONS. We have received from our representative, the Hon. Solomon Hillen, a copy of the bill making appropriations for certain fortifications, for the construction of steam-frigates, &c., from which we extract the following items, as being of more immediate interest to the citizens of Maryland:

For repairing fort, at Annapolis harbor, Md., five thousand dollars.

The bill embraces a variety of objects, and is a good commencement of a general and effective system of defensive preparations. The appropriation for steam vessels is small, but before it is expended further appropriations can be made if necessary. We hope that our difficulties with England may be amicably settled; but even if we were certain of enjoying undisturbed tranquility for ten years to come, we think that it would be politic to proceed with the construction of works of defence.

BURGLAR ARRESTED. A fellow named James Boune was arrested in N. York on Friday last by the police officers.—He was recognized as being one of an incorrigible band of burglars.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24, 1841.

Our good people here, who have been congratulating themselves on the departure of old Winter, were this morning most wofully disappointed by the arrival of a suspicious, crusty old relation of his, in the shape of a rough snow storm. So sunshine stock has fallen 99 per cent., and there is every probability that we shall have cold times of it on the 4th of March.

Last night the general appropriation bill was, at a late hour, reported by the committee of the whole to the House, with numerous amendments. This morning the amendments were severally taken up and a decision had on each.

Among those which have been agreed to is one appropriating $30,000 for the repair of our long bridge. This will be good news to the country people.

The amendment reducing the fees and emoluments of United States marshals and district attorneys, was also agreed to.

The amendment appropriating $6,000 for extra furniture, of American manufacture, for the White House, was likewise concurred in, but by a very close vote.

The bill will evidently pass to-night.

The Senate is engaged on the bill for rechartering the several banks of the District.

MR. CUTHBERT. As soon as the resignation of Mr. Webster was read in the United States Senate, Mr. Cuthbert assailed him for certain opinions which Mr. C. alleged Mr. W. had expressed; and this gave rise to an animated discussion, which it is not our intention to notice. Our purpose is to quote a most profane and undignified expression of Mr. Cuthbert, to shew how little respect some men occupying high stations have for themselves or the situation which they occupy. He said, "The interests of my constituents shall be defended by me on all occasions—by G—d they shall." If the Senator be destitute of religion he should at least have some sense of propriety. Such language is objectionable when used any where; but in the Senate of the United States it is undignified and disgraceful—and if there be no rule of the Senate prohibiting its use, it is because it was deemed impossible that any gentleman could so grossly violate decorum as to give utterance to it in debate. In some seminaries they have what are termed parlor boarders, where politeness is taught; and we would advise Mr. Cuthbert to take a quarter's tuition.

LADY'S BOOK. Mr. W. N. Harrison, agent, has furnished us with the March number of this beautiful and entertaining periodical. This number comes recommended by unusual attractions. Besides two plates of fashions, there is an excellent satyrical engraving representing the effects of "mathematical abstraction," in which an old gentleman boils his patent-lever instead of an egg. We have not yet perused the whole contents of the number, but if it contained nothing else than the continuation of Miss Leslie's story of Mr. and Mrs. Woodbridge, it would be worth more than the subscription money. We wish that this excellent tale could be placed in the hands of every lady in the country. The "New Minister," by T. S. Arthur, of Baltimore, is also good; and from the names of other contributors, we are led to believe that the present number will equal in interest any of the preceding.

We have also received a copy of the above work from Mr. N. Hickman.

POLICE. Thomas T. Rutledge and John McComas, of Harford County, were arrested on Tuesday, charged with having in their possession a negro boy, whom they had offered for sale, without having title to the same. They were taken before Justice Gorsuch for examination, and released on security for their future appearance. The slave was committed to jail for safe-keeping.

IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT. The Legislature of Massachusetts have passed a bill abolishing imprisonment for debt in that State.—The following are the words of the bill:—"No person shall hereafter be imprisoned on mesne process or execution for any debt founded on any contract."

[Reported for the Clipper.]

BALTIMORE CITY COURT.

Present—Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington.

Wednesday, February 24, 1841. The time of the court to-day was occupied in the trial of the following case:

State vs. Jas. Thomas, alias Jas. H. Anderson. } Indictment for the murder of Wesley B. Cook, negro.

The indictment charged the prisoner with the murder of Wesley B. Cook, by inflicting on him the said Wesley B. Cook, with a knife, a mortal wound on the left side of the neck, the length of three inches and the depth of one inch, on the 27th day of December last.

Testimony was produced upon the part of the state which proved most conclusively that the traverser (Anderson) did, at the time above mentioned, take the life of Cook. It was also shown upon the stand that an altercation had taken place between the prisoner and the deceased some twenty minutes or half an hour previous to the committal of the fatal act—that the traverser had gotten into a fight with some half dozen of negroes, and that Cook, with others, had beaten and kicked him. Anderson, after having been released from this scrape, left the party, and in a short time returned, found Cook alone and asked him if he thought himself man enough for him, at the close of which sentence drew his knife and stuck him in the neck, exclaiming "damn you, take that," and then made his escape. This is about the substance of the whole matter pertaining to the case.

The case was ably conducted on the part of the state by Wm. H. Norris and James Stewart, Esqrs. Carroll Spence and Wm. M. Addison, Esqrs. were counsel for the prisoner. This, we learn, was the first effort of Mr. Spence. He did himself much credit, and is a young lawyer of distinguished promise. His colleague also gained great praise for his perseverance and able defence of the prisoner.

The jury, after having retired about fifteen minutes, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree. The court then adjourned until to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

CITY COUNCIL.

FIRST BRANCH, Feb. 24. The Branch met pursuant to adjournment. Present, H. Snyder, Esq. and all the members.

Since the late disposition made of the "green bag," there has been a wonderful falling off in the lobby members. Occasionally there may be seen a few stragglers who, perhaps, can think of no better way of killing time.

Mr. J. T. Brown, of the committee on bridges, presented a report relative to the building of a bridge across Chatsworth run, which was unfavorable. On motion, the resolution to discharge the committee was laid on the table.

A communication was received by the president, addressed to both branches of the City Council, signed Jesse Hunt, Esq. Register, which referred to an ordinance in reference to the public debt of the city and the mode of closing the accounts of certain Books pertaining to that subject. The communication was referred to the committee on ways and means.

Mr. Pinkney called up bill No. 16 relative to the opening of an Alley between Light and Williams st. which upon being amended was passed.

Mr. Keyser of the committee on fire companies presented a report and resolution favorable to the town clock or steeple of the German Reform Church. The resolution proposed that $600 be paid out of the city treasury for the purpose of assisting in the repairs of said steeple.

Mr. Dallam called up bill No. 15, relative to the mode of collecting certain taxes, which upon being read and amended, was passed.

A communication was received from the city commissioners, in answer to a resolution passed by this branch, relative to Gay-st. bridge. The communication stated that means were in progress to have the stone bridge taken down and a wooden one built in its place as early in the spring as possible. Referred to committee on bridges.

On motion of Mr. Peregoy, a resolution relative to the erection of a bridge across Chatsworth-st., was called up, amended and passed.

Mr. Keyser, of the committee on fire companies, presented a favorable report relative to the petition of Jacob Boyer, for permission to improve his property in East Pratt street. The accompanying resolution was passed.

Bill No. 17 was called up by Mr. Dallam.—This bill proposed changing the name of Long Lane to that of Lewis street. It was passed without debate, or a dissenting voice.

Mr. Pinkney, from the joint committee on claims, presented the report and resolution on the petition of Nicholas Smith, which were unfavorable. Also, a report upon the petition of Duff Green, asking pay for printing done by him, which was favorable. Accompanying the report was a resolution, authorizing the treasurer to pay $17 50, the amount of said bill.

Mr. Cole called up a resolution relative to changing the position of horses, carts, &c. which are caused to stand in the neighborhood of Centre market. Mr. Snyder was of opinion, that no legislation, on the part of the councils, was necessary upon this subject, inasmuch as there existed already an ordinance requiring the clerk of the market to have these matters attended to—that is, the horses' tails could be turned where their heads were once, the flies brushed off them, if necessary, and carts, apple carts, &c. turned upside down, if required. On motion of Mr. Cole, the report and resolution were recommitted to the committee.

Mr. Dallam presented the report of the joint committee on streets on the petition of Mr. Hardesty, for the closing of a part of Bank street.—The committee were discharged, and the petition remanded to the petitioner.

Mr. J. D. Brown presented the petition of Richard Phillips, asking an appropriation for lettering signs at the corners of streets. Referred to the committee on streets.

To-morrow the councils again meet in convention for the purpose of confirming the remaining appointments, or rejecting them, as they may, in their wisdom, see fit.

On motion of Mr. Fields, (that gentleman so tenacious of candles,) the Branch adjourned until to-morrow afternoon. A motion was previously made by the gentleman from the 11th Ward, for the Branch to close, but the move being of a novel character, required an explanation, which, upon being made intelligible, was unanimously lost.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 23, 1841.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 56 cents per bottle.

ARRIVAL STEAM SHIP BRITANNIA.

23 DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

IMPORTANT NEWS FROM EUROPE—ARRIVAL OF THE LEVANT MAIL WITH DESPATCHES FROM TURKEY, EGYPT, AND SYRIA—THE ENGLISH PARLIAMENT OPENED—HER MAJESTY'S SPEECH—THE KING OF HANOVER'S LAW-SUIT FOR THE JEWELS IN THE ENGLISH CROWN.

The Britania sailed from Liverpool on the 4th, and arrived at Boston on the morning of the 22d, being 17½ days out. She had a very rough passage.

The news brought by the Brittania is of great interest and importance. Below we give the particulars:

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

'My Lords and Gentlemen:

'I have the satisfaction to receive from foreign Powers assurances of their friendly disposition, and of their earnest desire to maintain peace.

'The posture of affairs in the Levant had long been a cause of uneasiness and a source of danger to the general tranquility. With a view to avert the evils which a continuance of that state of things was calculated to occasion, I concluded with the Emperor of Austria, the King of Prussia, the Emperor of Russia, and the Sultan, a convention intended to effect a pacification of the Levant; to maintain the integrity and independence of the Ottoman Empire; and thereby to afford additional security to the peace of Europe.

'I have given directions that this convention shall be laid before you.

'I rejoice to be able to inform you that the measures which have been adopted in execution of their engagements, have been attended with signal success; and I trust that the objects which the contracting parties had in view, are on the eve of being completely accomplished.

'In the course of these transactions, my naval force have co-operated with those of the Emperor of Austria, and with the land and sea force of the Sultan, and have displayed upon all occasions their accustomed gallantry and skill.

'Having deemed it necessary to send to the coast of China a naval and military force, to demand reparation and redress for injuries inflicted upon some of my subjects by the officers of the Emperor of China, and for indignities offered to an agent of my Crown, I at the same time appointed plenipotentiaries to treat upon these matters with the Chinese Government.

These plenipotentiaries were, by the last accounts in negotiation with the government of China, and it will be a source of much gratification to me, if that government shall be induced, by its own sense of justice, to bring these matters to a speedy settlement by an amicable arrangement.

'Serious differences have arisen between Spain and Portugal, about the execution of a treaty concluded by these powers in 1835, for regulating the navigation of the Douro. But both parties have accepted my mediation, and I hope to be able to effect a reconciliation between them upon terms honorable to both.

'I have concluded with the Argentine Republic and with the Republic of Hayti, treaties for the suppression of the slave trade, which I have directed to be laid before you.

'Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

'I have directed the estimates of the year to be laid before you.

'However sensible of the importance of adhering to the principles of economy, I feel it to be my duty to recommend that adequate provision be made for the exigencies of the public service.

'My Lords and Gentlemen,

'Measures will be submitted to you without delay, which have for their object the more speedy and effectual administration of justice.—The vital importance of this subject is sufficient to ensure for it your early and most serious consideration.

'The powers of the commissioners appointed under the Act for the Amendment of the Laws relating to the Poor expire at the termination of the present year. I feel assured that you will earnestly direct your attention to enactments which so deeply concern the interests of the community.

'It is always with entire confidence that I recur to the advice and assistance of my Parliament. I place my reliance upon your wisdom, loyalty, and patriotism; and I humbly implore of Divine Providence, that all your councils may be so directed, as to advance the great interests of morality and religion, to preserve peace, and to promote, by enlightened legislation, the welfare and happiness of all classes of my subjects.'

The steamer President was to have sailed on the 10th positively.

All the New York packet ships from London and Liverpool have been full of freight.

A report is current that Chusan had been retaken by the Chinese troops, who had disguised themselves and entered the town; and that her Majesty's ship Melville and two transports had been burned.

In India every thing has remained in a quiet state since the surrender of Dost Mahommed to the British, on the 4th Nov.

The Bombay Times has brought a grave charge against Sir W. M'Naghten, in attributing to him the counsel to purchase off the Russians from the British frontiers, by the payment of a million sterling.

The West Middlesex Fire Insurance Co. London, have swartwouted, cheating the public out of £200,000.

A German Jew has just died at an advanced age, leaving the enormous fortune of £2,500,000, being perhaps the largest sum possessed by any single private individual in modern times.

The following is from the London correspondent of the N. York Signal in a postcript dated Feb. 3d 2 o'clock, P. M.

I have just learned that the Four Powers are so mad gnant at the extensive warlike preparations which France continues to make, notwithstanding all their remonstrances against them, and in the teeth of the pacific assurances given both by Louis Phillippe and M. Guizot, that if she persists much longer in her present course, the consequence will be an open rupture with the other powers.

The elections for Canterbury and Walsall are over; and in both Cases Tories have been returned though the former members were Liberals. Ministers are now clearly in a minority in the House of Commons.

The earl of Cardigan was to be tried before the house of lords on a charge of shooting at capt. Tuckett in a duel. The trial was to take place on the 16th.

Lord Stanley has had leave to bring in his Irish registration bill.

The winter in England, Ireland and Scotland had been unusually severe. Several persons died in London from the effects of cold and famine.

Scott, the American diver, while exhibiting on a platform on Waterloo bridge, to which he fastened a rope, at one end of which was a noose with which he used to undergo a mock execution; he had repeated it several times, but at last the noose slipped, and the unfortunate man was hanged in earnest.

Charles Kean and Miss Ellen Tree have been married at Manchester. Charles Kemble's health is nearly re-established.

The Chartists have had several meetings at Leeds.

Painter & Co.'s cabinet warehouse, Finsburg-pavement, was burned on the 2d instant. Loss, $100,000.

There have been several great floods in England, occasioned by an unusual quantity of snow, which had fallen and suddenly thawed, carrying away many houses and mills, and destroying much property, attendee with loss of life.

The Thames steamer was wrecked on her voyage from Dublin to London, on the 3d ult., and out of sixty-five passengers only four were saved.

Frost, the chartist, who was sent to Port Arthur, has been appointed, it is said, clerk to the governor of the place.

The president's message was carried out to England by the Sheffield, which ship arrived at Liverpool on the 12th ult.

The christening of the Royal Princess was to take place, with great ceremony, on the 10th inst., in the Chapel Royal, St. James'.

FRANCE. The Paris papers have made a great noise about the Queen of England not having made any mention of France in her speech.

Great excitement exists among the Paris press, concerning certain political letters said to have been written by Louis Phillippe, and which are pronounced to be forgeries. Five of the Paris papers have been seized for having published these letters.

An American named Webster, of Virginia, was drowned on the 15th January, by the swamping of a boat in which he was endeavoring to land at Boulogne.

A stoppage has been put to the representation of a melo-drama, reflecting on, or ridiculing the Queen of England.

SPAIN. It is announced in the Madrid papers that the regency had accepted the mediation of Great Britain in the Douro affair.

The Carlist refugees are returning to Spain by way of Oleron.

PORTUGAL. Letters and papers from Lisbon announce that so far as Portugal is concerned, the Douro question may be considered as settled. the bill having passed the chamber of deputies.

SWITZERLAND. There has been another revolt in several towns in Switzerland, whose people recently adopted new constitutions, proposed by the government of each. The aristocratic party and the Catholics resisted the government troops for three days, and the result was the utter rout of the insurgents. The excitement in many of the large towns was intense.

GREECE. In consequence of much publicity having been given by the English and Continental newspapers, to the recent horrible acts of torture and cruelty practised by the police of Athens, sanctioned, as it would appear, by the King, some attempt at explanation has been put forth by an Athenian journal in the interest of the Court, but not one of the charges has been refuted.

GERMANY. The military preparations now being made with several German states are solely for the purpose of restoring the corps of the army of the German Confederation, together with the reserve, are to be raised to the amount fixed in the act of the Confederation, which is 300,000 men.

DENMARK—Copenhagen, Jan. 9. The official account of the finances for 1839 is extremely satisfactory. It shows a surplus of 2,136,958.

HANOVER. The King of Hanover intends soon, it is said, to institute a law-suit against Queen Victoria, to recover a portion of the jewels of the English crown. Some English lawyers are now in Hanover, making investigations and inquiries, and collecting materials and the depositions of witnesses for the law-suit.

POLAND. Accounts from Poland represent the situation of that kingdom as becoming hourly more deplorable. Every week numerous arrests were taking place, and each day the measures ordered by the Government were becoming more intolerable and exasperating. It is stated that in Lithania a real or pretended conspiracy had been discovered, in consequence of which two hundred young men, almost exclusively of the noblesse, had been arrested, the chief of whom had blown out his brains. It is reported that in the whole kingdom of Poland, especially in the western parts, considerable bodies of Russian troops are concentrated. Nothing has yet transpired as to the object for assembling such a great force in Poland.

PRUSSIA. The Prussian State Gazette of the 18th ult. contains a detailed account of the ceremonies of the coronation of the King of Prussia.

RUSSIA. A letter from Moscow states that the British expedition against China had given a very unfavorable turn to the trade between China and Russia. The quantity of tea sent to Moscow diminished from 100,000 chests, the amount of last year, to 40,000, as the Chinese can now only send their goods by land. The export of Russia goods to China, chiefly cloth, had also greatly diminished.

RUSSIA AND CIRCASSIA. It is asserted in the French papers, upon the best authority, that English agents had been endeavoring to excite the Circassians to revolt. It is also stated that three vessels laden with ammunition, which was forwarded from Bir at the expense of the British Consul at Erzeroum, were lately captured by the Russian flotilla.

TURKEY, EGYPT AND SYRIA.—The Turco-Egyptian Question. At our last advices from the East, the long unsettled difficulties appeared in a fair way of being immediately adjusted; but, in the interim, new obstacles were continually presented, and there was little chance, for several weeks, of their being removed. By the arrival of the Levant mail, intelligence was received, through an extraordinary express from Paris, by the London Times, on the 2d inst. which seems to remove all doubts of any further difficulties growing out of the Turco-Egyptian question.

On the 12th of January, one of the officers of the Sultan left Constantinople for Alexandria, the bearer of a firman, by which his highness officially accedes to Mehemet Ali the hereditary possession of Egypt. Two days afterwards the Pacha restored the Turkish fleet. The London Morning Chronicle of the 2d inst. confirms this news in the following manner: "The public may be at length congratulated upon the arrangement of the Eastern question. This most important and satisfactory intelligence was received by her Majesty's government yesterday, in despatches from Sir Robert Liopford, dated Marmorice Bay, January 14."

"Ibrahim's army was immediately to evacuate Syria, and to return to Egypt; and arrangements had been made to send transports to Caiffa, to bring away the women and children, and sick of the army, if they could go to that port.

The plague had broken out at Acre, and still continued at Alexandria. Upper Egypt was infested with Bedouins.

EGYPT AND SYRIA. The Eastern question is now formally and finally settled. Official accounts were yesterday received from Constantinople, announcing that the Turkish fleet was in the act of being restored, and that the Sultan had duly installed Mehemet Ali in the Pachalic of Egypt for life. This intelligence has given great satisfaction to men of all parties.

Daniel Brent, Esq., U. S. Consul at Paris, and Agent of American Claims, died in that city on the 31st ult. in the 68th year of his age, of typhoid exhaustion after gout.

The screw bolts and nuts will be of sound, tough iron and made with exactness to the required form and size. The washers will be of bar-iron, rolled with the proper section, cut off and punched for the passage of the bolt. The zinc plates similarly made. The hook headed spikes to be of iron of as good a quality as that of the screw bolts.

The Iron Fastenings just described may be delivered at Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any point of the line of the road between the two latter places and the places and times of delivery will be stated in the proposals. There are to every mile of track 7656 lbs. of castings—1584 lbs. of bolts and nuts—591 lbs. of iron washers—105 lbs. of zinc plates, and 2247 lbs. of spikes. No proposal for a less quantity than will supply 10 miles will be received.

Monthly estimates will be made of the quantities of each kind of materials so delivered and four fifths of the value at the contract prices will be paid therefor—reserving to the Company the option of paying the said four fifths in Baltimore City 6 per cent stock at par—or in the stock orders of the Company at par; and also reserving the option of paying for the remaining fifth in like manner, when the delivery of the whole quantity contracted for shall have been completed according to the contract.

If the materials contracted for or any part of them are not furnished at the times required, the Company may dissolve the contract and retain the one-fifth due on any which may have been already delivered, and no estimates or payments shall be made or on account of materials delivered before the time specified for commencing the delivery of the same. The monthly payments shall be made at the Company's offices in Baltimore Cumberland, or Martinsburgh, Virginia, at the option of the contractor, and the final payments shall be made in Baltimore. The manner and times in which the materials shall be furnished on the different parts of the line will be specifically provided for in the contracts, and particulars will be given on application to the undersigned. VALLIER'S FRENCH PILL, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

CAUTION. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

STANZAS.

And her best gifts bestow;
There's still one bliss, I prize above
All others here below.

Is what I far more highly prize,
Than fortune's best decree.

Give me a bosom where there reigns
A passion pure and strong,
And feelings, which each glance explains,
To me alone belong.

Oh! what is there in wealth and fame,
Or what in life at best,
When none, with us, those bounties claim,
And none, but we, are blest. E.

LOVE AND GOOSEBERRIES.

A SENTIMENTAL STORY.

[By the Editor of the "Natchez Courier."]

It is a horrid day—and why shouldn't we write sentiment? An Englishman would hang himself in such weather—we'll sentimentalize. Bulwer writes sentiment, and what is to hinder us. It is better than committing suicide! If you should not agree with us, gentle reader, get two feet of strong rope, and hang yourself by way of experiment. And should we ever wander over the fields of Acheron together, we will compare notes, and decide the point at issue. But we'll not believe a word you may say against our theory, until you have made way with yourself.

Well, now for it. Shall we paint you the awful horrors of the tempest, show you the "air-pumps of heaven, sucking up" their fatal draughts with a forty thousand horse power, and take you as an inside passenger in the car of the Storm-King, as he careers in frantic fury through the shrinking sky? You should "sup full of horrors" were we to use our patent-locomotive steel pen upon this terrific theme.

Or shall we write a tale of fiendish necromancy? How a young lady was beloved by two brothers—how one, "a nice young man," was blest by her rosy smiles, and the other, a dark-haired, beetle-browed ruffian, blasted by her thunder-and-lightning frowns—how the black individual invoked the aid of Satan, and became a mighty magician—how he spirited away the damsel to an enchanted castle, into which no one could enter except he had the pass-word, presto vade vediacum—how a kind of fairy—what a delightful little creature! gave the "nice young man" the pass—how he rescued the maiden "all forlorn"—and how all the neighbors lynched the magician!

Or of love? "Yes, let it be of love," I heard a fair one cry, or if we did not hear her, we take it for granted that every fair reader, when she came to the question, made that answer. An ancient authority, which is generally esteemed upon such points, has two lines, which run somewhat in this way—and a very sensible thing is it in love, and that can be rarely said of him. For if the "puir body" would "gang aboot his business," love would be very apt to have a sight-bill either laid over, or altogether protested, for want of time-funds to meet it. Notes of hand are more formidable than bonds of the heart. Bricklaying is the "sov'reignst thing on earth" for a fit of love. Love and castle-building always go together; well, of course, as the bricklayer sees that no house can stand unless it is regularly built upon substantial foundations, the hard-working fellow will soon, by force of analogy, discover that his air-castles are not inhabitable, and, upon inquiring for the original draughtsman, he'll find that it was love, and then what chance will love have against a trowel? No, let a "puir body gang aboot his business" whenever he feels a fit of love coming on—and there's no hope at all for the boy-archer. "Do you call that sentiment," sneers some beautiful lip, like a half-crushed red, red rose upon a bank of pearls? No, but it's pretty good sense, though. "I thought you were going to tell us a love-tale," sighs the beauty—being entirely propitiated by that compliment to her lip. And so we are.

"Love is a dizziness—

"Had you ever a cousin, Tom?
Did your cousin happen to sing?"

Well, we had a cousin—heigho, she's the "anxious mother" of half a dozen little cousins, now—well, she was of form and feature as far above the concentrated charms of all the heroines of all the novels that ever were or will be written, as Amanda Malvina Fitz-Allan was superior to Mrs. Jerry Sneak. Her voice, it was like the wild warblings of an Æolian harp as it lulls the Zephyrs to their slumbers—her eyes, look not upon the stars, you can't match them there, and the cunning little gipsy had such a way of half closing the brilliant orbs, veiling their dangerous beams, and then with a sudden start, flashing their death-dealing rays upon you, that your very heart incontinently felt the process of combustion—her brow, shaded by her auburn hair, was like a hand's-breath of white cloud mid the rich lustre of a southern sun-set—her hands were fitted for nothing but to sweep the harp's mellow chords, and to be kissed by a lover—and her feet—oh, how we adore a pretty foot!—her feet—Titania, Queen of the fairies, would have given her most beautiful nut-shell chariot, just to have seen that perfect feature, we must call it.

Well, we were in a dreadful condition about that cousin—sometimes, we'd call her "cousin," it was so delightful to claim relationship with such a perfect creature—and, then we would'nt call her cousin, for we laid a sort of trap, that if she asked, as we hoped she would, why we used not that cousinly title—we had a very pretty speech made up to intimate that we desired, when manhood came, to call her by a dearer name. But the provoking little minx never seemed to notice, whether we cousined her or not!

She was older than we—and her name was Elegantina!

One day, walking in the garden with the fair one, we determined to divulge the yet unspoken tale of affection, which surcharged the heart.—We were in a beautiful walk, fringed with gooseberry bushes, when, after the most approved fashion of romance, sinking gracefully upon one knee, in burning words, we poured forth the story of our eternal love.

Elegantina calmly listened—we thought that we perceived a kind tear dimming her radiant eye—we rose, and stretched out our arm, expecting, of course, that she would sink upon our breast, and murmur the gentle confession of reciprocated attachment. Reader, she did no such thing.

She serenely turned, and pulling a handful of green gooseberries, gravely asked,

"Cousin John, what are these?"

SCENE IN A PRINTING OFFICE.

Enter Stranger.

Stranger.—"Good morning, gentlemen."

Edr.—"Certainly, sir," handing him a paper.

Str.—"There is nothing in the paper I believe of much importance this morning."

Edr.—"No, sir, nothing very important. There is, however, an interesting letter from Florida, and a letter of a late date from Washington."

Str.—"I am going to send this paper 600 miles off, and perhaps it may be the means of procuring you a subscriber."

Edr.—"Yes, sir—PERHAPS it may."

Str.—"Good morning, gentlemen"—bowing himself out of the office, and forgetting to pay for the paper.

Edr.—"Good morning, sir."

After a short absence, the stranger returns with the paper in his hand, and requests the clerk to put it in a wrapper for him.

The above scene, says the Savannah Republican, actually took place in our office yesterday morning, and we publish it simply that our readers may see the value placed upon the labor and expenses of publishing a newspaper. What would a grocer think of a stranger's coming into his store, and after ordering a pound of sugar or coffee, bow himself out without offering to pay for it? Or, a Hardware dealer, of a customer's purchasing a hand-saw in the same way? And yet, do not publishers of newspapers have to labor and invest capital as well as the former? Why then should an individual think it right to avail himself of the labor of one, more than the other, without remuneration?

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 24, 1841.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES. Mr. Legrand presented the memorial of S. C. Leakin and others constituting the Grand Jury for Baltimore City, respecting the necessity of some provision being made for the insane poor, which was ordered to be printed.

Mr. Seidenstricker presented the supplemental petition of Michael C. Dempsey for a divorce. The unfavorable report on said Dempsey's previous petition was then called up and recommitted with the above petition.

Mr. Seidenstricker presented the petition of Elizabeth Collins for a divorce.

Mr. Pressman presented the petition of James C. Ross praying that the composition money upon a certain certificate to be returned under a land warrant, may be released. Referred.

On motion of Mr. Pressman, leave was granted the Committee on Grievances and Courts of Justice to introduce a bill to regulate the issuing and service of process on judgments and decrees.

Mr. Orrick obtained leave to bring in a bill relating to the Attorney's fees for the prosecution of Criminal cases in Baltimore County Court.

Mr. Hellen reported a bill to incorporate the Tobacco Planters Bank of Maryland. Referred to the Committee on Corporations.

Mr. Seidenstricker submitted a message which was assented to, requesting the Senate to reconsider and pass the bill to divorce Susan C. Etherington.

Mr. Jones from the Committee on Ways and Means made a favorable report upon the bill reported by Mr. Tall for the better regulating the Harbour and Port of Baltimore. The bill was amended and passed.

Mr. E. A. Lynch, Chairman of Select Committee to which was referred the resolutions from the Senate for the retrocession to the State of that portion of the district of Columbia lying West of Rock Creek, reported the same with an amendment. It was made the order of the day for the 25th inst.

The House then took up the order of the day, being the bill reported by Mr. Bowie, Chairman of the committee on Ways and Means, entitled an act for the general valuation and assessment of property in this State and to provide a tax to pay the debts of the State. The House is now in committee of the whole, and have the said bill under consideration. They have as yet made but little progress, and it probably will be some days before they determine upon the bill.

SENATE. The bill to incorporate the Newington Beneficial Society of Baltimore was passed.

The bills to divorce David Ritcher, Margaretta White, Mary McKewen, and Catharine Peddicord, all of Baltimore, were passed.

Leave was granted to a select committee to report a supplement to the act in aid of the construction of a State Armory and Town Hall, in Baltimore. The bill was subsequently reported and passed.

BALTIMORE CITY COURT.

Present—Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington.

Thursday, Feb. 25. Benjamin Tibbles came into Court this morning, and gave bail in the sum of $1000 for his future appearance. He is indicted for gaming.

The balance of the time of the Court was occupied in the trial of the State vs. Henry Gunter, for manslaughter by killing Ferdinand Plain, on the 11th day of November last. The testimony of the case not being finished, we deem it improper to publish it to-day, as it would be in a great measure ex parte. The trial will be published in our next.

ONE OF WASHINGTON'S LETTERS. The following letter was written by Washington in reply to a proposition made to him at the conclusion of the war by some of his officers, to accept a crown:

"Sir. With a mixture of great surprise and astonishment, I have read with attention the sentiments you have submitted to my perusal. Be assured, sir, no occurrence in the course of the war has given me more painful sensation than your information of there being such ideas existing in the army as you have expressed, and I must view with abhorrence, and reprehend with severity. For the present, the communication of them will rest in my own bosom, unless some further agitation of the matter shall make a disclosure necessary.

"I am much at a loss to conceive what part of my conduct could have given encouragement to an address which to me seems big with the greatest mischiefs that can befal my country. If I am not deceived in the knowledge of myself, you could not have found a person to whom your schemes are more disagreeable.

"Let me conjure you, then, if you have any regard for your country, concern for yourself or posterity, or respect for me, to banish these thoughts from your mind, and never communicate as from yourself, or any one else, a sentiment of the like nature. I am, &c.

"GEORGE WASHINGTON."

SINGULAR ADVENTURE. On Saturday last, whilst two persons of this parish (father and son) were hunting on a small island, near the prairie Marroone (a place but little frequented) they came suddenly upon a negro man named John, a runaway, belonging to Mr. Voorhies, who had been absent from his master for the last two years. One of the party attempted to seize him, but he ran to a cabin built there by himself, and brought out a gun and attempted to defend himself; but fortunately it missed fire, and the young man immediately seized him; a scuffle ensued, which would have probably terminated fatally to the young man had not his father, who was at some distance from the spot, ran to his assistance and despatched the negro by firing at him, within almost touching distance, a gun loaded with shot, which pierced his neck, and killed him on the spot. This negro was implicated in the Lafayette insurrection, had once before been shot in the woods of that parish, but effected his escape, as it was supposed at the time, without injury; it appears now the shot had entered his back, and that the wounds had not yet healed when he was killed. This fellow had a good cabin, plenty of provisions, a gun, powder, shot, and a horse, the whole of which he had stolen from different individuals. St. Martinsville Gazette.

CITY COUNCIL.

FIRST BRANCH, Feb. 25. Present, H. Snyder, Esq., President, and all the members except Messrs. DeLoughrey and Dryden.

Mr. Hack presented the petition of Mr. G. N. Stewart and others, relative to the opening of a portion of Vine street. Referred to joint committee on streets.

Mr. Holter presented the report and resolution of the joint committee on water, in reference to the resolution of inquiry respecting hydrants.—Also, a report and resolution relative to the petition of Thomas H. Lamden, keeper of the Eastern Fountain, praying for an increase of salary, both of which were unfavorable.

Mr. Keyser called up the report and resolution of the committee on fire companies, relative to the proposed appropriation of $600 for the purpose of repairing the steeple of the German Reform Church in Second street. Mr. Keyser sustained the report with a very able and excellent speech. We find this honorable and valuable member of the branch always actively engaged in some good cause, and so far as our opinion goes we are with him in opinion that the city should make the appropriation. Mr. J. S. Brown opposed the measure, on the grounds that the city made an appropriation for the erection of the steeple when first built—and also, that if an appropriation were granted to the Church, others would come to the councils with similar claims. Mr. Hanson arose and strongly advocated the proposed donation. Mr. Holter was also a strong advocate for the petitioners of the German Reform Church. Mr. Bender thought that, as the advantages of the town clock extended materially to the banks, they should therefore pay a portion of the expenses, and moved that $400, in the place of $600, be inserted in the resolution. Mr. Dallam was of opinion that $600 was too little. The motion for amendment was lost. The resolution was carried. Yeas 18, nays 4. The preamble was also adopted.

A message was received from the Second Branch, being a report and resolution of the joint committee on streets, on a resolution from the Second Branch, which was favorable.

A communication was received through the Mayor, asking a special loan of $10,000 from the city corporation, to the President and Directors of the Baltimore and Chesapeake Steam Towing Company. Referred to the committee on commerce.

A message was received from the Second Branch, which was the bill relative to the city collector, prescribing his duties, &c. The bill and proposed amendments, was concurred in by that branch. On motion of Mr. Keyser, the further reading of the bill was dispensed with until printed.

On motion of Mr. Hanson, an invitation was sent to the Second Branch, informing its members that the First was ready to go into convention for the purpose of confirming the remaining nominations, which are as follows:

Deputy High Constable—Jacob Cook.

City Bailiffs—Ephraim Smith, Jacob Caulk.

P. S. A report was received from the joint committee on knives, relative to a certain penknife which was laid on the table a few days since. The committee were of opinion that the subject was too cutting for further investigation, and offered a resolution requesting the police department to make search for it in other quarters, where in all probability it might be found.—Agreed to.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Foos! Rough Weather!! and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

FRIDAY MORNING, Feb. 26, 1841.

EUROPEAN AFFAIRS. The warlike preparations of England are indicative of some coming event of importance. The increase of her military and marine forces, and the fitting of various war steamers for active service, are not for idle parade. She is not in the habit of making useless exhibitions; on the contrary, she seldom resorts to extra armaments, without she designs to strike a blow. The precise object at present in view, is uncertain. Her relations with France are, by no means, on a stable foundation, and it may be that she anticipates hostility from that quarter; but is there not some probability that she apprehends, or designs to cause, a rupture with the United States? The course pursued by her minister, Mr. Fox, has, no doubt, been adopted with the sanction of his government, and will be sustained, if necessary, by the whole power of England. Besides, the controversy about the N. E. boundary is not likely to be amicably terminated. If it be the intention of the British government to maintain her claim to the disputed territory, or to insist upon the release of McLeod without trial, her preparations are significant of the determination to maintain her pretensions at all hazards. She has engaged in war heretofore on equally unjustifiable pretexts. But, whatever may be the motive for the large augmentation of her offensive means, whilst she holds so "questionable a shape," it will be prudent in our government to be prepared for any event, and to keep a vigilant eye upon her movements. Great numbers of her population are in the utmost distress, and a spirit of discontent exists to a considerable extent. The condition of Ireland is represented to be wretched in the extreme, and, of course, great dissatisfaction prevails. Too many men in both countries are idle, miserable, and desperate, and it may be deemed politic to engage in war to give them employment, and to prevent combinations which might prove formidable to government. This policy has been pursued by the British government upon other occasions, particularly on the occurrence of the French revolution, when the republican spirit was extensively communicated to the British people, and it was apprehended might revolutionize that government.

England has a formidable power in her steam frigates, five new steamers of a large class having been ordered to be equipped immediately for active service. France is also prepared in this arm of defence, but we are destitute of it, and, in case of war, would be made to feel the effects of our dilatory legislation on the subject. But, notwithstanding our want of preparation in this respect, we should have no fear of the result in case of actual hostilities, and, therefore, would not have our government swerve, in the slightest degree, from the position it now occupies. With a united and patriotic people, and our favorable geographical position, we could defy the world in arms.—But the confidence in our internal strength should not mar, in the slightest degree, preparatory measures of protection; and we hope, therefore, to see liberal appropriations made to place us in an "armour and attitude" worthy a free and great nation.

DOMESTIC MANUFACTURES. The resolutions passed at a public meeting in the Tenth Ward, in favor of wearing domestic manufactures, received our approbation, and we indulged the hope that similar resolves would be adopted by every ward of the city. So far, there has been no response; but the appeal from the "Second Ward," published to-day, is calculated to attract attention to the subject, and we hope that public meetings will be called. We perfectly agree with the writer, that the use of domestic fabrics will do more to advance internal prosperity, and to secure our rights, than a high tariff or force of arms. It is true, as he states, that foreign agents inundate our country with their goods, large quantities of which are sold at auction, and all of which have to be paid for in specie or its equivalent. A little exertion of patriotism will free us from a degrading dependence upon foreign nations. We are now oppressed by a heavy debt, which is accumulating by the importation of goods, with the use of which we could dispense without inconvenience. Let the citizens of Baltimore set the noble example of using domestic manufactures exclusively, and if it be not followed in other cities, we shall, at least, emancipate ourselves from dependance on foreign countries, and encourage the skill and industry of our own citizens.

EXTRA SESSION. It seems to be pretty well ascertained, that an extra session of Congress will be held during the ensuing summer. As the time for which the present members of Congress from Maryland were elected will expire on the 4th of March, an election will have to be held previous to the regular period. We presume that one of the first acts of General Harrison, after his inauguration, will be, to issue a proclamation for the extra session; so that those who design to become candidates had better prepare to buckle on their armor forthwith. We want members with clear heads and sound hearts—who will be able to "give a reason for the faith they profess," but who, at the same time, will have sense enough to know that wisdom does not consist in "much talking." In short, common sense members, one of whom is worth a dozen chattering magpies.

TO SOME OF OUR POETICAL CORRESPONDENTS. We have on hand a large quantity of rhyme and a few pieces of poetry. Much of the former has never been read by us—a perusal of the first and second stanzas being sufficient to condemn all the following ones. Love and poetry we admit are hand-maidens, but really we get so much trash and nonsense from love-sick swains upon love-sick themes that we become almost sick at the sight of it. Many young poetical aspirants entertain a strong desire to make their debut in the arena of literature, by addressing through the public press a few verses in rhyme to the fair object of their tender affections. This accomplished, they think, and a Byron himself could not stand higher as a poet. More than once have we received attempted poetical addresses to young ladies, written by their admirers, with pressing requests to publish the same, which, if published, and the ladies to whom addressed were intelligent, would at once sink the reputation of the writer, and perhaps cause his defeat at the altar of Hymen. We delight in good poetry and are always glad in encouraging those who have a talent for the accomplishment of that beautiful branch of literature. It is our desire also to present the reader with such as will be pleasing to the general taste, but not that kind of stuff from which all, except the particular parties concerned, would turn with pity and disgust. If poets will harp upon a common theme, let them strike out into a new channel of thought and clothe their ideas in language that will touch the right place.

Our correspondent "Emily" is a promising poetess. She has written many good things. Her last communication, however, headed "guard well thy heart," will do her more credit in secret than in public. The rythm is faulty, some of the comparisons out of taste and the general subject not cleverly expressed. Let not this discourage our fair poetess.

If Miss E. A. G. is acquainted with the rules of poetical composition, she would laugh at Mr. A. W. for his inexcusable deviation from those rules in the stanzas addressed to her. His piece is not admissible.

"Leone," of Washington, is common place.—Let him make his communications to the lady verbally, and he may succeed better.

We cannot see the wit of "Chip"—will he call and explain it?

"Winter Musings" will suffice when we are not pressed with more important matter. They are pretty, but too prolix.

We have a vast amount of manuscript on hand, purporting to be poetry, all of which we cannot notice at present. We shall, when time permits, give it an overhauling, and select such as we deem worthy of publication. We shall be pleased, at all times, to hear from good poetical correspondents, and would suggest to those who have been unfortunate in some of their attempts, to persevere. Good feeling for the writer, and a desire to elevate the poetical department of our journal, alone, shall prevent our publishing any thing but that which we deem creditable to all parties.

SAM PATCHISM. It is an old and true adage, that "one fool makes many." The silliest act will be imitated, and it matters not how ridiculous the thing it will attract attention.

"Sweet is the tale, howe'er uncouth its shape,

Sam Patch was a star in his day, and thousands went to witness his foolish, and finally fatal, leaps. It would hardly be supposed that any one would be ambitious to imitate his dangerous experiments; but a man by the name of Scott was inspired with what Colman calls the "low ambition;" and not content with "astonishing the natives" of this country, visited England to exhibit his wonderful exploits. Resolved to outdo Sam Patch, he added mock-hanging to diving, and amused his audience by dangling in the air by the neck. This was a perilous experiment, but the applause counterbalanced the danger, and Mr. Scott went on prosperously until, alas, his jest was converted into earnest, and his mock-hanging proved real; and so he lost his life to make the mouths of people gape with wonder.—Notwithstanding this fatal termination, and the disgust which every person of sensibility must feel as such exhibitions, let another fool enter on the same career, and he will attract as great crowds as his predecessors. The world is so fond of the marvellous, that a man who promises to squeeze himself into a quart bottle, or to swallow a live rattle-snake, will have a larger audience than can be drawn together by the representation of one of Shakspeare's best plays. It is this feeling which enables immodest female dancers and the low representatives of negro characters, with their 'possum up the gum tree,' and the like fooleries, to realize fortunes, whilst modest merit goes unnoticed and unrewarded.

The following is the account of the termination of Scott's adventures, which we hope will prove a warning to others who may desire to tread in his footsteps.

"Scott, the American diver, has met with an awful death. He had, for a long time, been in the habit of diving from the mast head of ships in the Thames, and from the different London bridges. On the 12th ult. he announced on exhibition, and had a staging erected on Waterloo bridge. To the top pole he fastened a rope, at one end of which he made a noose, in which he placed his head, as was his custom, to go through a mock execution; he performed the trick three times, but the third time the noose slipped, and the wretched man hanged in earnest. Upwards of 100,000 persons were present at this exhibition."

BURNED TO DEATH. The dwelling house of Robt. Miller, near Cattail, New Jersey, was burned last Wednesday, and a young woman perished in the flames.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Clipper.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25, 1841.

The Hon. Phillip P. Barbour, one of the judges of the Supreme Court, was found dead in his bed this morning. In consequence of this melancholy event, the Supreme Court met this morning and adjourned to Monday next.

Last night after I closed, the House passed the civil and diplomatic appropriation bill, with sundry amendments. Among the amendments is an appropriation for paying the certificates held by the stone cutters employed on the public buildings in this city. Another amendment limits the amount of fees received by postmasters for letter boxes, and provides that the surplus shall be paid into the treasury. The amendment striking out the appropriation for a minister to Mexico, was not carried. So a minister will be sent to that country.

This morning the House went into committee of the whole on the naval appropriation bill.

Mr. Saltonstall moved to strike out a section appropriating $1,425,000 for the repair, equipment, etc. of the navy, and to insert $2,000,000.

A discussion arose on this amendment, in which the miserable state of our navy was set forth in glowing colors.

In the Senate the bill for the rechartering of the banks of the District was passed. The amendment making the stockholders liable, was rejected by a majority of one vote. I am certain it will not pass the House in that shape.

STEAM NAVIGATION PROJECT. It is stated in the Philadelphia Ledger that a proposition has been made to the Government by some capitalists of New York to build four steam ships of 2,500 tons each, to run between New York and Liverpool. The mails to be carried by them for a given sum paid by government, the latter receiving the benefits of postage. The vessels to be built as men-of-war, and if within ten years war take place with England or any other power the government is to buy the steamers at a valuation agreed upon by both parties.

IMPORTANT. The Philadelphia Chronicle says that intelligence has been received in that city from the West Indies, stating that orders had some time since reached the islands from the Home Government, that 25,000 colored men were to be disciplined as soldiers, in addition to the ordinary colored militia and regulars of the islands.

SHIPWRECK AND LOSS OF LIFE. The schooner Henry, at New Orleans from Labacca Bay, reports that a small schooner called the Wave, loaded with merchandise for Galveston, had sunk. The captain, Mr. Bray, and crew, and a Mr. Jenkins, all perished.

☞ In the Senate, on Monday, at the close of Mr. Preston's remarks on Mr. Crittenden's bill, there were indications of a disposition to applaud in the Galleries, whereupon Mr. Benton cried out, "clear the galleries! turn out the blackguards!"

CONNECTICUT. The Democrats of Connecticut have nominated Francis H. Nicoll, of Fairfield county, for governor, in opposition to Wm. W. Ellsworth, whig, the present incumbent.—The election takes place in April.

MAINE. The 3d Monday of March next, has been appointed by Gov. Kent, for an election in the congressional district of Mr. Evans, (Kennebec and Somerset,) he having accepted the office of U. S. Senator.

DEATH OF GOV. WINTHROP. The Hon. Thos. L. Winthrop, formerly lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, and father of the Hon. R. C. Winthrop, member of Congress, died at his residence in Boston, on Monday last, aged 81 years.

SUDDEN DEATH. A young man named George Thompson, who had been married the day previous, dropped dead on Wednesday, at Allegheny, Pa. while on a pleasure party. Thus in the midst of joy was the young wife made a widow.

A Florida paper says that if all the States in the Union had run into debt to an amount, proportionable, with that territory, the interest annually would be three thousand seven hundred and fifty tons of silver.

RESOLUTIONS OF NEW YORK CITY COUNCILS. Resolutions calling the attention of Congress to the defenceless condition of our frontier and seaboard, have been offered in the New York City Councils.

HONOR CONFERRED. We notice, by the London Gazette, that the Queen was pleased to confer the honor of knighthood upon George Simpson, Esq. Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company's settlements in North America.

VENITIAN. A man named Heely has been arrested at Little Rock, Ark., for hiring and paying three men $300 to assassinate a man named Bishop, to whom the hired party made known the affair.

MILLER'S BANK AT CLYDE. The Comptroller has given notice that the bonds and mortgages deposited by this institution, as part of the security for its circulation, will be sold at auction, at the Albany Exchange, on the 1st of April next.

☞ Five houses were burned in Water street, New York, on Wednesday, which were occupied by about twenty families.

☞ Letters received from Rio Janeiro, dated Dec. 22, say that the U. S. ship Marion was then afloat and perfectly free from water.

☞ The Toronto Patriot contradicts the report in circulation of the assassination of Col. Prince in Upper Canada.

DR. THELLEN'S new work, entitled "Canada in 1837 and 1838," is published in Boston.

The Legislature of Missouri adjourned on the 15th inst. after a long and profitless session.

MARRIED,

On Thursday evening the 25th inst. by the Rev. Mr. Varden, JAMES W. BRYDEN to MARGARET, fourth daughter of Peter Boyd, Esq. all of this city.

On Tuesday evening, 23d inst. by the Rev. S. P. Hill, HENRY PATTERSON to MARY LOUISA, daughter of Jas. Wilson.

DIED,

At Warren, Ohio, on the 18th inst., JOHN MCELROY, aged 83 years. He was a native of Ireland—joined the army in the Pennsylvania line, Jan. 1st, 1776 previous to the Declaration of Independence—was in sixteen engagements in the Revolution, and received an honorable discharge from the hand of Washington, at the close of the war in 1783. He was also under Wayne and at the building of Fort Meigs, and was a volunteer at the age of 55 in the late war, making his whole services on active duty about 19 years. He lived an unexceptionable life, and died regretted by a numerous circle of friends.

No. 1.

Description of a third class Coal Gas Apparatus—of the quantities of Gas generated from that article—and also the great revenue a city might derive from the establishment of one.

In the first place, there is a row of arches or ovens erected, which extends the whole length of the retort house. In each of those ovens there are three strong cast iron retorts, placed about 8 ft. long, and about 2 ft. 6 in. wide on the bottom, and the top oval or D shaped. Two of these are set side by side near the bottom of the oven, and the third lies just above, under the centre of the arch. Under the retorts there is a long furnace with small flues winding round them; and then a flue passing from the top of the front part of the oven connects with the main flue which leads to the high chimney. The front of the oven is walled up, and just the head of the retort projects out. From the top of this, a cast iron pipe about 5 in. in diameter rises to some considerable height above the ovens, and then turns down into a semi-cylinder, partly filled with water, called the Hydraulic Maine, which extends also the whole length of the retort house on the top of the ovens, while the pipe from the retort dips about 9 inches into the water. The coal is then put in the retort, and the lid screwed on with cement, and is subjected to a strong heat from the furnace, by which means the gas is generated from it, which passes up the pipe and enters the main, where it blubbers up from the end of the pipe above the water, and then unites with the gas from the other retorts. From the main it is carried along by a large pipe to the condensers, but before entering discharges the greater portion of the oil and tar with which coal gas is combined. Then by passing it through the condensers, in which it is washed by pure water, it discharges the remainder of the oil and tar, and is conveyed to the purifiers, when it is necessary to pass it through good lime, which article alone completely combines the sulphurated hydrogen, which constitutes a constituent part of coal gas. From the purifiers it passes to the gasometers, but not in some gas establishments until it has produced rotary motion of sufficient power to propel machinery of some considerable magnitude, which might be applied to an air pump or bellows, provided such articles were used in a gas establishment. The gasometer is a tremendous cylindrical vessel, some of them holding from 30 to 60,000 cubic feet. This is placed in a well or tank about one foot greater in diameter. The gas pipe is then brought under the tank or well and then perpendicularly to the top. The tank is then filled with water within a few inches of the top of the pipe, and the atmospherical air of the gasometer exhausted, and they are then the same as one tumbler turned upside down in another a little larger. The top of the gasometer being well braced and having a counterbalance attached to the centre, the gas passes up the pipe and strikes the top, and spreads out over the surface of the water, and as the gas generates at the retort it acquires sufficient power to raise the gasometer out of the water, until it has become nearly full of gas; and then the valve is closed, and the gas conveyed into another gasometer, and so on, until there is a sufficient quantity to supply the district to be lighted at night. The valves are then all raised, and the pressure of the atmosphere forces the gasometer down and the gas along the pipes, and by lighting a burner it produces the most brilliant of all lights, and which was intended to be a most economical one. But is this the case in this city?

I shall now show what quantity of gas would have to be made to supply a district about the size of our Gas Company's district.

For the summer season it will require three of those ovens or nine retorts, to generate a sufficient supply. Nine retorts, being charged regularly every four hours, for a day, (which is sufficient time to generate all the gas of 1½ bushels of coal,) would require 81 bushels per day.

81 bushels, at 18 cts. per bush. would am't to	$14 58
3 firemen per day and 3 for night, at $1 each,	6 00
2 men per day, 1 for night to attend the purifying house, regulate the pressure, and pump the boxes through the city, at $1 each,	2 00
8 bushels oyster shell lime, at 12½ per bushel,	1 00
50 " coke for fuel, at 10 cts. per bush.	5 00
Superintendent of manufacturing gas, per day ☞	3 00
Two laborers, at 75 cts. per day each,	1 50
Expenses for one day, amount to	$33 08
For summer season, or 182 days, will am't	$6019 56
1 bushel of coal will produce 500 cubic feet of gas, so that 81 bushels would produce 40,500—this, at $4 per thousand, am't to	162 00
81 bushels of coal produces over 100 bush. of coke, the half of it for fuel, leaving fifty bushels to sell, amount to	5 00
50 gallons of tar, at 8 cts. per gal.	4 00
Lime, after combining sulphurated hydrogen, will sell for more than half of first cost, say half,	50
One day's receipts would be	$ 171 50
And for the summer season, or 181 days,	$32,113 00
Deduct expenses of summer season do.	6,020 16
Leaving a balance of	$26,092 84

I shall now proceed to show the operations for the winter season. It may startle the reader, but every consumer of gas in Baltimore should give it a careful perusal.

It will require 7 ovens, or 21 retorts to generate a sufficient gas to supply a district about equal to that of the gas company of our city, for the winter.

Twenty one retorts, charged regularly every four hours with a bushel and a half of coal, would amount to 189 bushels, which, at 18 cts per bushel, would amount to

	$34 02
5 firemen for day and 5 for night, at $1 each,	10 00
2 men for attending purifiers, &c. do.	2 00
17 bushels shell lime, at 1½ cts. per bush.	2 13
125 bushels of coke for fuel, at 10 cts. per bush.	12 50
Superintendent for manufacturing gas, per day ☞	3 00
3 laborers at 75 cts per diem,	2 25
Amounting to	$65 90
And for the winter season, or 183 days,	$12,710 70

189 bushels of coal will produce 94,500 cubic feet of gas—this, at $4 per thousand, will amount to $378 03

100 bushels of coke, at 10 cts. per bushel,	10 00
100 gallons of tar, at 8 cts. per gal.	8 00
Lime at one half of original cost, say	1 00
This, in one day, amounts to	$397 03
For the winter season, or 183 days,	$72,651 09
Deduct from this expenses of winter season,	12,710 70
Leaving a balance of	$59,940 39
To this add balance of summer season,	26,092 44
Leaving a total of	$86,032 74

over and above the cost of coal fuel, and the whole expenses of manufacturing, allowing the gas measured to give 1725 cubic inches to the CERIC FOOT.—☞

The whole of the gas apparatus being constructed by the capital stock, in the first place, would be about $250,000—it will only require a sufficient amount of the $86,032 74 to pay dividends, officers' salaries, &c. which will be about equal to the expense of manufacturing, say the whole expenses of the year, $40,000.

The whole receipts per annum,	$104,764 60
From which deduct expenses,	40,000 00
Would leave a nett amount of	$64,764 60

This amount may be increased 1-8, 1-7, or 1-6, by having no standard recognized legally by a city for the construction of a gas measure, and no inspectors for testing the measure, as well as the measuring of gas. I shall proceed in my next number to show, BY DIAGRAMS, how it may be increased according to the proportions mentioned above, and showing by what means impure gas may increase it to 1-4 or even to 1-3.

CONSUMPTION! CONSUMPTION!!

To DR. SWAYNE.

Dear Sir—The time has been, when I would not recommend a medicine advertised in the public prints over my own signature; I now feel different—I feel it my duty to inform the afflicted where they may find relief. I was reduced, by a protracted COUGH for six months, to a mere skeleton; no rest at night; soreness and pain in my breast, side, &c. Suffice it to say, I used your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, which in a few weeks relieved me effectually. I am certain that, had it not been for your medicine, I should now be in the silent grave. Let no person delay, but procure your Syrup and be relieved of their COUGHS and COLDS, as they are dangerous companions, and often lead to dangerous consequences

Your friend, ABRAHAM SKINNER,
Crawford county, Pa.

HANCE'S Compound Syrup of Horehound.

CERTIFICATE. Mrs. WILLIAMS, of Petersburg, Va. caught a very severe cold last fall, and thinking it would wear off in the course of time itself, neglected it to a very great extent. Finding, however, it did not leave her, she then tried various remedies, some of which subdued the cough in a measure, but none effectually cured it.

About a month ago, her husband thought she had better try a change of air, so she came to Baltimore, where she first became acquainted with the COMPOUND SYRUP OF HOREHOUND—the first bottle produced such relief, that before she had finished it she determined to purchase two bottles and return home. Price 50 cents per bottle.

For the Baltimore Clipper.

MESSRS EDITORS: One of our wards having organized a Society, morally pledged to wear and use articles of domestic manufacture only, we regret that the noble precedent has not been already followed by the remaining eleven. We trust that this patriotic object will yet meet the attention it merits.

Our country, when we consider our State liabilities, is heavily indebted to Europe, and we deem the interest annually paid to England thereon, quite as great an amount of tribute as she merits at our hands. But we are compelled thro' our fondness for fine dress to be further taxed for our consumption of foreign manufactures.

The latter fact is a generally admitted evil, and so far and well is it known, that at this time the orders from our merchants for foreign goods are quite limited in extent, yet so necessary is our business to the British and French manufacturer's success, that as we will not come to him, he comes to us, and on their own account, the foreign manufacturers are now inundating some of our large cities with their goods. This then is a moment peculiarly suited for a movement in the matter and let us look why.

Our boundary question is unsettled and England, arbitrary through her fancied superiority in the means of war, refuses to accord us justice. We can, if we unite, strike a blow which will shake her monied institutions and men to the centre? She requires the returns at some rates for her heavy shipments, and if her merchandize lies neglected in our public stores and private warehouses for eight months, she will have family quarrels sufficient to occupy the leisure moments of her statesmen. Her starving population will not readily be kept quiet, and before three such years roll round, she will be willing to abandon her claim to Maine, to admitt our tobacco at fair rates and to modify her corn laws, so that our agriculturists can have a vent for their surplus products. A Tariff cannot effect this result, but the combined determination of the American people, not to buy at any rate, will. But, is it practicable to produce such a feeling and action throughout? We say it is! It only requires that the dormant energies of our patriotism should be aroused, and, as in former days, it will spread like the fire of times past, over the whole land. But, I am only one individual, what can I do?—We reply, you can do your part. If you have influence, exert it to form an association pledged to the cause. If not possessed of this influence, do as we do, preach and practice it as we do, resolving neither to purchase or use articles of foreign make, whether it be the cloth for a suit or even a penknife, and dress yourself in domestics.

As we have met with some wealthy citizens who feel a solicitude in this matter, we beg to call their attention.—It is a fact well known to you, that the influence of your example is very great, particularly on the middle class of society, and whatever you do is imitated by a large portion of them, as far as dress and fashion go. Few are willing to be able to wear a coat "a la mode" in form and material. You, we say, can influence a large portion of our community, and if the renowned Franklin could sport his domestic suit among the gay and fashionable of Versailles, can you not, like him, and from the same motive of patriotism, consent to use domestic cloth for your dress? Tariffs have proved vexatious matters sometimes in our legistures, but in the patriotism of Americans and our determination to rid us of tribute to a power at this time presuming on our forbearance, we can make a moral tariff, which will prove a permanent good to our country, enabling us in a few years perhaps to compete with European fabric elsewhere, patronising American ingenuity, and ridding us of the constant fluctuations which have prevailed in our monetary affairs.

To the tobacco grower and the wheat grower, we add, you have a great stake in the matter.—If it becomes general and wide-spread (and why not?) the duties on your products will probably come off in Europe, and you will have the double gratification of finding your resources increased and having served to foster into strength those of your country.

Then come one and all to the great work! reflect upon it, and if you approve, resolve carrying out your principles scrupulously, and our word for it that your laudable example will soon be widely followed.

SECOND WARD.

Will those who have domestic cloths, &c. please advertise?

Wrought Iron for Fastenings

165,600 Screw-bolts, 7½ inches long, and ¾ in diam. wt 1 lb. each,	165,600
165,600 Nuts for same, (1 7 8 sq're, 9-16 thick,) wt. ¼ lb. each,	52,800
165,600 Washers, of a wedge form, 3¼ inches long by 2½ wide, and ¼ inch average thickness, and weighing 3 16 lb.	59,136
165,600 Plates of rolled Zinc, same length and width, and 1 16 thick, weighing 10 to the pound,	10,560
844,800 Hook-headed Spikes, 4½ inches long, 7-16 square in the shank, and weighing 4½ oz. each,	224,716

The Sawed Lumber may be of white or yellow pine, with not more than an inch of sap on two edges of the stick; free from large knots, shakes or decay of any kind. A portion of the 4|8 scantling may be proposed for to be furnished, or white oak, under the same conditions as to quality. The points of delivery may be at Baltimore, Georgetown, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any other point upon the line of the road, and the proposal will state the places as well as times at which the Lumber will be furnished.

Proposals to which more than one of the places just named are accessible, will separately state their prices for delivery at each; so as to allow an option to the Company in regard to them should the proposal be accepted.

The hewn Timber, intended for the cross-ties and support-blocks, may be of white oak, rock-oak or chesnut oak, or of cinesnut. It must be round wood, and straight in one direction. If the proposer prefers delivering it in the rough state, and does not wish to undertake the hewing of it to the required dimensions he can so word his proposal, and in that case the size of the sticks must be such as to permit them, when dressed, to be of the full dimensions specified, clear of bark and axe-keel. If the timber is cut while the bark is loose, it must be stripped off before the delivery. The delivery may be made upon any point of the line, between Harper's Ferry and Cumberland, and the points between which it will take place must be stated. There are to every mile of track 53,680 feet board measure of 4|8, and 26,400 feet of 3x10 scantling, 1056 cross ties dressed to 4½ inches thick, and 352 dressed to 3 inches thick. Proposals will not be received for a less quantity of any of the kinds of timber, than will lay a mile of track.

The Castings for the chairs and plates will be of an easy pattern—they must be of strong and sound metal, and smoothly cast—the contractor furnishing the patterns. The screw bolts and nuts will be of sound, tough iron and made with exactness to the required form and size. The washers will be of bar-iron, rolled with the proper recesses, cut off and punched for the passage of the bolt. The zinc plates similarly made. The hook-headed spikes to be of iron of as good a quality as that of the screw bolts.

The Iron Fastenings just described may be delivered at Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, or any point of the line of the road between the two latter places and the places and times of delivery will be stated in the proposals. There are to every mile of track 7656 lbs. of castings—1584 lbs. of bolts and nuts—591 lbs. of iron washers—195 lbs. of zinc plates, and 2247 lbs. of spikes. No proposal for a less quantity than will supply 10 miles will be received.

Monthly estimates will be made of the quantities of each kind of materials so delivered and four fifths of the value at the contract prices will be paid thereon—reserving to the Company the option of paying the said four fifths in Baltimore City 6 per cent stock at par—or in the stock orders of the Company at par; and also reserving the option of paying for the remaining fifth in like manner, when the delivery of the whole quantity contracted for shall have been completed according to the contract.

If the materials contracted for or any part of them are not furnished at the times required, the Company may dissolve the contract and retain the one-fifth due on any which may have been already delivered, and no estimates or payments shall be made or on account of materials delivered before the time specified for commencing the delivery of the same. The monthly payments shall be made at the Company's offices in Baltimore Cumberland, or Martinsburgh, Virginia, at the option of the contractor, and the final payments shall be made in Baltimore. The manner and times in which the materials shall be furnished on the different parts of the line will be specifically provided for in the contracts, and particulars will be given on application to the undersigned. It will be required that about one half of the whole quantity of materials shall be delivered as early as possible between now and the 1st of December next. A model of the rail and its supports and fastenings will be ready for inspection at the Company's office in Baltimore by the 20th current. The proposals will be directed under seal to the subscriber, either at Baltimore, Cumberland, or Martinsburgh—and will be received up to the 15th of March proximo. VALLIER'S FRENCH PILL, FOR THE CURE OF SECRET DISEASES. One box of these inestimable Pills is worth all the Quack Medicines in the world.

COMMENT. If we examine the nature of the above diseases, and the situation of the parts affected, we must consider it a very important object to be able to obtain a remedy at once certain in its action, and at the same time composed of such ingredients as will prevent the possibility of discovery while using it. It is a fact well known to many, that most of the remedies offered for these diseases are composed of such nauseous drugs, as to render it almost impossible to continue their use without creating a sickness at the stomach or other unpleasant consequences. Such being the case there can be no doubt but such a remedy as Vallier's French Pills, will meet the universal approbation, being entirely free from those objections; pleasant in their operation, and prompt in removing the disease. The proprietor would here remark, that the efficacy of these Pills in the disorders alluded to, are not based upon supposition; on the contrary, it is founded upon rational experience, having used them in a successful practice for upwards of two years, he feels confident of their superiority over the remedies hitherto employed.

THINGS THAT ARE BITTER.

Bitter is falsehood, breathed by infant lips,
The blush of conscious guilt upon the cheek;
Bitter the mental throe at night, the wretched sips,
And bitter woes in bitter silence speak!

Who has beheld the bitterness of soul,
Or who has felt the pangs that woman feels,
When son or husband, from the bitter bowl,
Drinks deep its curse, and man unmann'd reveals!

These midnight revelries! That dawning gun!
Lo! age and youth join in the drunken "bout,"
And virtue weeps, where men forget their shame!

Is this a bitter—disapp inted love?
Go ask its victim, in her cypress cell!
Behold the eye, where mind with beauty strove,
Aye, catch that look—its bitterness will tell.

Is this a bitter—disappointed hope?
Go ask the maniac, through his dungeon grate!
The looks, the thoughts, that gave to virtue scope,
Alas! are fled—His is a bitter fate!

In age advanced, and clogg'd with many sins,
Strong is that grasp, and bitter is the call,
Wherewith he seizes, and whereby he wins!

Despair is bitter—bitter are its gifts,
And melancholy follows in its train,
It steals that hope away, the soul that lifts,
And where it blights, joy never comes again!

Of human bitters, these are but a few,
One bitter more, and this the worst to tell;
Keep still, thou tear, that sayest my feelings true,
No—trickle forth, thou'lt help me say—farewell!

EGO.

BALTIMORE CITY COURT.

Present—Judges Brice, Nisbet and Worthington.

Thursday, Feb. 25. Benjamin Tibbles came into Court this morning, and gave bail in the sum of $1000 for his future appearance. He is indicted for gaming.

State vs. Henry Gunter. } Indictment for manslaughter, by killing Ferdinand H. Plain.

George Brown,	Absalom C. Butler,
Nicholas Burke,	William E. Patterson,
Z. C. Johnson,	Noah Ridgely,
John N. Brown,	William Christ,
Jeremiah Storm,	Levi Williams,
Patrick Key,	Daniel Cameron.

The indictment charged the prisoner with manslaughter by killing Ferdinand H. Plain, by shooting him with a pistol, thereby inflicting a mortal wound on the neck of him the said Ferdinand H. Plain, the length of one inch and the depth of two inches, on the 11th day of November last.

George Berry on part of the state, stated that he was in the Rolla House, Hanover street, on the night of the 11th of November last—heard a young man named France and Plain quarrelling about their trades. Plain then turned round to a young man named Harris and said that he (H.) was an ordinary son of a b—h. Harris replied that he was as ordinary as he was last winter.—France then picked up a pair of tongs and said he would have order in the house. Plain picked up a chair and threw it at France—it missed him and struck the screen before the front door, breaking a slat out of it; upon this Gunter came out of the ten pin alley and said "ha, is the chairs getting lively," and went behind the screen to repair it. Plain said to Gunter "perhaps you don't like it." G. replied that he did not like it so very much. P. said "you son of a b—h I will make you like it," and then went behind the screen where G. was—they got into a scuffle—P. had G. by the collar, from the screen they got to the oyster box, when G. broke away from P. and went behind the bar and took from out of the drawer a pistol, and presented it at P. P. opened his breast and said "snap, snap you son of a b—h." G. then fired and shot him. P. then picked up a chair as G. went to run from behind the bar up stairs, threw it at him, at the same time exclaiming "Oh! you son of a b—h"—dont know that P. had his waistcoat unbuttoned when he told G. to fire. Plain might have reached G. from before the bar while he (G.) was behind it—don't know that P. was armed at the time—had a conversation with G. after P. was dead. G. said if it had been any person else he would not have killed them, but the reason why he shot him was that P. had said he would kill him (G.)

Emanuel Irons, on part of the state, stated that he was at the Rolla house on the evening in question; heard the quarrelling between France, Harris, and P.; P. picked up a chair and threw it at France; it missed him, and broke a slat out of the screen. Gunter came out of the ten-pin alley, and said "here is the chairs getting lively." G. picked up the chair and placed it upon its feet, and then went behind the screen; while he was repairing it, P. said to him "perhaps you don't like it." G. replied that he did not "like it so very much." P. then said "you son of a b——h, I will make you like it," and then went behind the screen where G. was, and should judge from their actions, that P. struck G.; they got into a scuffle behind the screen, from thence they got to the oyster-box, where G. broke away from P. and went very fast behind the bar, and got a pistol; P. then opened his breast, and said "shoot!—shoot! you son of a b——h." G. then fired and shot P.; P. then picked up a chair and threw it at G. as he went to run from behind the bar, at the same time exclaiming "oh, you son of a b——h." It was some few seconds before G. fired after he got the pistol. Witness was standing some 3 or 4 feet from P. when he was shot.

Cross-examined. G's hand was resting on the bar with the pistol in it when he fired; Gunter was not angry when he went behind the screen;—did not see who struck first; it was about half-past 9 o'clock when the occurrence took place; when G. came from behind the screen, his hat was off; G. was endeavoring all the time to get away from P. when in the scuffle; heard G. say to P., "Ferd, what are you doing." G. looked very much frightened; the next morning afterwards, saw G; he had a mark of violence upon his forehead.

John France, on part of the state, stated that he was at the Rolla House on the evening in question. P. and himself were talking about trades; were not quarrelling; while they were talking, P. turned round to Harris, and said he (H.) was another ordinary son of a b——h; H. replied that he was not as ordinary as he (P.) was last winter. Witness then picked up a pair of tongs in fun, and said he would have order in the house; P. then picked up a chair, and threw it at him (witness;) the chair missed him and struck the screen; upon this, G. came out of the ten-pin alley, and said "ha! are the chairs getting lively?" [Here the witness described the scene at the screen and the oyster-box, which has already been given.] After G. broke loose from P. he went, as fast as he could, without running, behind the bar, and got a pistol, presented it at P., hesitated some few seconds, and then fired; went with P. to the doctor's; after P. got out of G's house, he exclaimed, "D——n my heart—I am shot." P. said, when G. presented the pistol, "Snap! snap! you son of a b——h."

Cross-examined. When G. said he did not like it, P. struck at him; G. was endeavoring to get away all the time from P.; G. did not strike P.

Mr. Reed, a student of medicine, stated that he was present at the post mortem examination which was performed upon P. and saw the wound—the ball entered in the front part of the neck, and was lodged at the top of the first rib.

Walter Crook, on part of the defence, stated—that he knew G.; had lived with him about 12 months; always found him to be a peaceable, quiet and good-natured young man; it is about 12 months since he was in his employ.

Mrs. Margaret Swartz, on part of the defence, stated—that she is the sister of G.; was in the bar room at the time part of the scuffle was going on; heard P. say to G. that he would kill him, the d—d son of a b—h; left the bar to draw a glass of beer at that moment; did not see any more of the disturbance; as she came back into the bar, G. was coming in the door which leads up stairs; P. threw a chair at him, which struck her as she came in.

Otto Torry, on part of the defence, stated—that he knew G. for about twelve years and a half; always found him to be a peaceable and quiet man.

Mr. Palmer stated—that he rented to G. the house in which he had been keeping tavern, and knew him for 12 months; always found him to be a quiet and peaceable man, one who would rather take an insult than resent it; knew P.; he was a man of desperate bad character, totally reckless in his passions, and very dangerous; has known him to go into G.'s house and take anything he pleased; G. was so much afraid of him that he would immediately go up stairs when he came in; P. constantly slept in the Union Engine House, of which he (the witness) is keeper; he would very often ring the bell and raise false alarms in order to get into G.'s house; at last the directors of the company had to have a patent lock put on the engine house door in order to keep him out.

Emanuel Irons, recalled by the defence. On a Sunday or two previous to P.'s death, saw him slap G. in the mouth; G. did not resent it as he was so much afraid of him.

Edward Brown, on part of the defence, stated—that he knew G. to be a very quiet and peaceable man; knew P. on the contrary to be very dangerous and quarrelsome; G. told him once in conversation, that he had either given P. or lent him money to go out of the city, in order to get clear of him, as he (G.) believed if he remained here that he (P.) would take his life.

Dr. Durkee, on part of the state, stated the same as was given by Mr. Reed.

Mr. Middlecamp, on part of the defence, stated that he knew P. to be a man of very bad and depraved character.

Mr. Dickinson, a watchman, stated that P. was a man of very bad character; has had a great deal of trouble with him in the discharge of his duty; knows G. to be a quiet and peaceable man.

George Berry, recalled by the state—Did not hear P. say to G. that he would kill him.

Emanuel Irons stated the same.

John France stated the same.

Thomas Cooper stated that he knew P.; he was a high-spirited young chap; would fight at any time.

Friday, Feb. 26. Mr. C. W. Spilker, on part of the defence, stated that he has known G. for five years past; was in his (witness') employ for about three years; always found him to be a quiet, peaceable, and very industrious man.

Archibald McLean, on part of the defence, stated that he was at the Rolla House on the evening in question; saw the scuffle; G. broke away from P. and ran behind the bar; P. followed him within a few feet of the bar; G. got a pistol and presented it at P., his arm resting on the counter at the time; P. then uncovered his breast, and exclaimed, "shoot! you d——a Dutch son of a b——," or "shoot! G—d d——n you—shoot"—has known G. since May last; always found him to be a peaceable and quiet man; G. looked very much frightened; was as much frightened as any man he ever saw; his hair was standing nearly straight up.

Mr. Harris stated that P. struck G. several times.

The case was argued before the jury by John McKim Duncan and Wm. H. Norris, Esqs. Mr. Duncan is a young man of fine talents; he made an excellent argument, and bids fair to become an ornament to his profession; he understands the principles of oratory; his manner and style of speaking are peculiarly appropriate; it is calculated to have much effect. The case was conducted on part of the prisoner by James M. Buchanan and Charles F. Mayer, Esqs. Mr. Buchanan made a very excellent argument for the defence. In fact, the counsel on both sides done themselves much honor.

The case was given to the jury about 6 o'clock, and the court continued in session about a quarter of an hour afterwards, waiting for the jury to return their verdict. The jury sent a message to the court, stating that they were, as yet, unable to agree, and asked the privilege of having refreshments. The counsel on both sides consented. They were then allowed the privilege.—The court directed them to seal their verdict, if they should agree, and return it in the morning. The court then adjourned until to-morrow morning, at 10 o'clock.

REPORTS OF THE GRAND JURY.

To the Honorable the Judges of Baltimore City Court.

The Grand Jury, in compliance with the duty enjoined upon them by law, have visited the Jail of Baltimore City and County.

Whilst we deeply regret that the construction of the prison will not permit of a still further classification of the inmates than at present exists, we express our great gratification at finding the general arrangement of the prison and the great cleanliness of the various apartments and the apparent interest manifested for the health and comparative comfort of the prisoners were such as to commend to the favorable opinion of the Grand Jury the peculiar fitness of David Herring, Esq. the Warden, for the responsible station he holds.

CITY COUNCIL.

FIRST BRANCH, Feb. 26, 1841. The Branch met pursuant to adjournment. Present, H. Snyder, Esq., president, and all the members.

Mr. Bender presented a bill being a supplement to an ordinance relative to the appointment of city officers by the mayor. Upon being amended, the bill was passed.

Mr. Dallam presented the report of the joint committee on streets, relative to the petition of George N. Stewart, for opening a part of Vine street, which was favorable.

Mr. Dallam offered a resolution requesting that the joint committee on police inquire into the duties imposed upon the counsellor of the city, and report to this Branch. The resolution was passed; so Mr. Marshall may prepare himself for a formal visit.

Mr. Keyser called up bill No. 11, as amended by the Second Branch, being an ordinance for the appointment of a city collector, and prescribing his duties. Upon the yeas and nays being taken, they were—yeas 17; nays 5. The bill, therefore, and at last, has finally passed both Branches, and wants only the signature of his honor the Mayor, to become a law.

Mr. Myers offered a resolution, asking the committee on water to inquire into the practicability of preventing persons from using water from the pumps at the reservoir on Fell's Point. The resolution was passed.

A message was received from the Second Branch, being a report on resolutions on the petition of Thomas Lloyd, which was unfavorable.

Mr. Fields, of the joint select committee, presented the report of said committee on the new division of wards; accompanying which, was a resolution requesting that a memorial be sent to the State Legislature, asking the enactment of a law legalizing the election of members to the Second Branch of the Council from the prospective additional wards. The report was favorable, and the resolution passed.

A message came in from the Second Branch, being a report and resolution of the joint committee on claims, relative to the petition of Nicholas Smith, which was endorsed concurred in.

A message was received from the Mayor, directed to the First and Second Branches of the City Council, in convention assembled. On motion of Mr. Bender, a committee was appointed to invite the Second Branch into convention. The above message was the little end of the first "green bag," containing a few remaining nominations for office. The bag was undoubtedly light, for Samuel Myers, Esq., as he bore it across the chamber, stepped as nimbly as a young bachelor of twenty-five. The following gentlemen have been regularly confirmed by the members of both branches to office:

City Commissioner and Port Warden—Josiah Reihm.

City Police officer—Amos Duvall.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.
GREAT SOUTHERN
UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE,
DAILY TO THE SOUTH.
The ONLY LINE carrying the GREAT MAIL, and the only DAILY LINE!

TRAVELLERS FOR THE SOUTH, are informed that, by taking the Cars at Baltimore for Washington at 4 P.M., they proceed, via Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Weldon, and Wilmington, N. C. to CHARLESTON, S. C., reaching Charleston the second morning after leaving Baltimore, and one day in advance of the Bay Line—the Companies on the route being bound by the Postmaster General to make the following quick Schedule:

Leave Philadelphia	8 A.M.	reach Baltimore	2 P.M.
" Baltimore	4 P.M.	" Washington	6 P.M.
" Washington	5 A.M.	" Fredk'sburg	12 M.
" Fred'ksburg	12 M.	" Richmond	5 P.M.
" Richmond	5 P.M.	" Petersburg	7 P.M.
" Petersburg	7 P.M.	" Weldon	1 A.M.
" Weldon	1 A.M.	" Wilmington	1 P.M.
" Wilmington	1 P.M.	" Charleston	at 5 the next day.

As this Line carries the Great Mail, (which cannot be delayed,) and is almost entirely a Rail-Road Line, it will be perceived at once, that the Traveller, unless in some extraordinary contingency, is sure of a connection through, whilst it is evident that Foul Rough Weather!! and Storms!!! must often occasion delay in a Route, more than two-thirds of which is by the Bay—the traveller being also subjected to Sea-sickness, and incurring unnecessary risk, from Boats being urged to the top of their speed, to compete with the more DIRECT ISLAND ROUTE.

☞ The above line will be found not only the most certain and expeditious, but the most attractive, as it passes through the Seat of Government, and in sight of Mount Vernon by daylight, and through Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg, the largest and most flourishing towns in Virginia. It is also cheaper to Richmond, and as cheap as the Bay route to Weldon: and travellers have no expense or trouble with their Baggage.

☞ This is much the nearest, quickest, and cheapest route to the interior of Virginia, North and South Carolina—at Petersburg, Va. commences the route by way of Raleigh, N. C.—145 miles of Rail Road from Petersburg to that city. Stage Lines branch off from Raleigh Rail Road to the old Piedmont Line, to Milton, Danville, &c., and to Knoxville, (Tenn.)

☞ Passengers for the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road pay through to Petersburg, Va. For further information and Through Tickets, apply at the office of

BALTIMORE CLIPPER.

SATURDAY MORNING, Feb. 27, 1841.

The Ocean. We present this splendid sheet to the reader to-day full of interest and useful intelligence. We will inform our Methodist friends that it contains the late appointments made by the Baltimore Conference. In it will also be found the recent appointments as confirmed by the Council. Likewise very late and important news from Europe. In connection with the above are the proceedings of the State Legislature, the City Council, Washington Correspondence, and reports of the City Court. On the first page will be found a tale called "The Runaway Match"—also, the "Choice of a Wife," "Frankness," "Power and Debility," from the German, and "The Wife," by Washington Irving, one among the sweetest things he has ever written.

The latest intelligence from all parts of the United States may be found in the Ocean of this week. It can be obtained at the counter in wrappers or otherwise.

Inconsistency. Politicians complain of inconsistency in their opponents, as if it were unexpected and novel. It is the nature of man to be changeable and inconsistent, and it is, therefore, as natural that practice should contradict profession in politics as in other matters. All history abounds with pure declarations and foul acts, nationally and individually. We need not go to antiquity for illustration: modern times afford abundant evidence of the variation between precept and example; and this is not confined to the Heathen—for Christians deviate as widely from their principles as the most barbarous and uninformed of mankind. The discoverers of America preferred to be governed by the pure and meek, and self-denying doctrines of the christian religion, and yet broiled their victims on coals, to extort from them gold. The puritans, who fled from persecution in the old world, became persecutors in turn. In religious and political concerns, we all claim for ourselves freedom of thought and action, and yet how few amongst us are willing to tolerate the same liberty in others? This may arise from a selfish and egotistical feeling, or from mental blindness, which enables us to draw a slight shade of difference between what we condemn in another and that which we practice ourselves. In most cases, however, no such apology is sought, but the principle is openly avowed, that we have the right to promote our own interest whenever we can seize the opportunity, and without reference to the justice or iniquity of the measure. If the solemn obligations of religion have been insufficient to secure us against this offence to morals, it can hardly be expected that we should permit political morality to restrain our actions. And yet the deviation from rectitude is not the less censurable. All enlightened minds recognize a standard of right, and the rule of action is so clearly defined in the New Testament, as not to be misunderstood. This rule is as obligatory in political, as in other concerns; but it is disregarded by all parties, the possession of power invariably absolving the dominant party from its observance. The spirit of intolerance is nourished and strengthened by exercise, and the proscriptions of the one party are retaliated by the other. However mild and virtuous the man, persecution will excite within him a vindictive feeling which impels him to deal out "measure for measure." It is this feeling which has prompted the white man to take scalp for scalp with the Indian. We have condemned the political scalping which has been so extensively practised heretofore, and have urged upon the coming administration a rigid adherence to consistency.—But, to insure toleration, there must be forbearance on both sides. It would be palpably absurd in any one to exclaim "spare my friends, whilst I cut down yours!" He who demands, should be willing also to give quarter. And it is this spirit of mutual concession—this adoption of liberal feelings—this practical illustration of republican principles, which we should like to see prevail with the national, state, and municipal authorities. But, if persecution be practised on a small scale, it will spread and diffuse itself like the ripples upon the water's surface; nor will the fear of being pronounced inconsistent, withhold those who have the power, from giving it impulse.

We could write a moral lecture, if not a sermon, upon this subject; and it would be about as effectual to arrest the practice we condemn, as the cobweb to stop the progress of the cannon-ball. It is in vain to attempt to fetter Sampson with thread, or to conquer the tiger with soothing words. Men instinctively cling to their own interests, and are not over-scrupulous of the means by which they are promoted; and so party proscription will be continued so long as the public crib can supply provender to the hungry.

Night and Morning—by Bulwer. Although not particularly fond of novel reading, on examining a few pages of this work the interest excited was so intense, that we went right ahead until we reached the end of the two volumes. The celebrity of the author will insure the work a favorable reception from the novel-reading world, who will be amply repaid for the time spent in perusing it. Ladies who have no stockings to darn or sewing to do, should take the book in hand at once: others must not neglect to read it when they have finished their labors. It is for sale at the bookstore of Messrs. Cushing & Brother.

Kentucky U. S. Senator. The Hon. James T. Moorehead has been chosen U. S. Senator by the Legislature of Kentucky, in place of Mr. Crittenden, resigned.

Temperance Cause. There are nineteen Temperance Societies in this city and county, containing 7000 members. There are also in this county seven Total Abstinence Societies, embodying 10,000 members. A sum of $1500 is appropriated for the relief of members of the society. Since the first of January more than 1000 persons have joined the Temperance Societies in this city, 652 uniting at one meeting.—Phila. North American.

Temperance Societies are working a glorious moral revolution. The great impetus to the cause was given by father Matthew, in Ireland, where the beneficial change in the moral and social condition of the peasantry, through his instrumentality, has been most wonderful. Under the influence of temperance the drunkard has been reclaimed, the hungry fed and the naked clad—and although the people of Ireland endure oppressions of no ordinary kind, still their present situation is pleasant and happy compared to what it was previous to the introduction of temperance associations. In the United States it is producing similar results; and it will soon, we hope, be as uncommon to find an intemperate man, as it was heretofore to see one who never tasted liquor. In every direction of the country the people are becoming animated by the same desire to extirpate intemperance; whilst in the cities, thousands are uniting for the same object. Nineteen temperance societies, as will be seen above, have been formed in Philadelphia, numbering about 7000 members. We do not know how many similar associations exist in Baltimore, but the number of individuals who have signed the pledge is immense, and the cause is still progressing. This rapid and thorough reformation is a subject of pleasing contemplation. As intemperance decreases crime will diminish, and the healthy action of the social system be restored. We congratulate the friends of religion and morality upon this signal improvement.

Purity of Elections. More than a month ago we offered some suggestions on the necessity of so amending the election laws of this State, as more effectually to prevent illegal voting, and to protect the legal voter in his rights, and we entertained the hope that the members of the legislature would turn their attention to the subject and devise the necessary safe-guards. We know not whether any committee of the house contemplate moving in the business at the present session: if not, we hope that some of the suggestions made by John P. Kennedy, Esq. to the committee of elections may be carried into effect. No honest man of either party can object to such a modification of existing laws, or such additional enactments, as will enable every legal voter to exercise his right, and give to each party a fair opportunity to prevent fraud.

We understand that it was proposed to divide each ward of the city of Baltimore into two sections, so as to enable all persons entitled, to vote without inconvenience. To the aged and infirm, particularly, this would be a salutary change.—Further, that the place of residence should be entered with the name of the voter—and that each party shall be authorized to designate one individual to be admitted to sit with the judges as objectors. We have wondered that the judges have not voluntarily given this privilege, as we believe it is invariably granted in many of the counties; and, instead of retarding, it facilitates voting, as objections are not urged by persons outside of the room.

A dog case. Yesterday a case of rather novel character was brought before H. W. Gray, Esq. The parties were a Mr. Gordon Brown vs. Mr. Mills, for the recovery of $10 damages, which he alleged to have sustained in the purchase of a water-dog some time since from defendant, and also claiming two dollars for board of said dog, while in his (plaintiff's) possession. Upon the oath of Mr. Brown, it was ascertained that Mills had at the time of sale warranted the dog to be sound in every respect and in good keeping, an excellent hunter, &c. &c. Subsequent developements, however, demonstrated that the dog was not that first rate animal he had been represented to be. In the first place he was deaf and in the second he was lazy and would not hunt. Mr. Ross, a witness for the plaintiff, was sworn.—Upon being told by W. P. Preston, Esq. to tell all he knew in relation to the matter, he (witness) replied "if I do it will make you laugh." No matter said Mr. P. "Well then, here goes. Sir, I knows the dog is not good, for he will not go into the water until he is tickled on the flanks, and sir, you may holler in his ear as loud as you can holler, yet he won't understand one word you say. I therefore is of the opinion he aint the dog wat he oughter be." The case was held over for advisement.

Front-st. Theatre. Last night the Mechanical Fire Company made a grand display at the Theatre. They were accompanied by the Independent Blues' Band, which, as it passed the office, greeted our ear with some very choice notes. The audience present was large, and the play went off well. To-night will be performed the "Hunchback," and "Gil Blas." Mr. Ward, we are glad to say, is doing very well. There are many in our city who are not aware of the talents of Mrs. Hill as an actress and dancer.—Her dancing is certainly of a very chaste and superior style. Those who omit an opportunity of witnessing the performance of this lady, will miss a treat. Go to-night: she will appear in the grand medley dance.

☞In our notice to poetical correspondents yesterday, we had occasion to speak of one who used the signature of "Chip." It slipped our memory at the time, or we would have suggested to the writer the impropriety of attempting to ape the signature of our very excellent poet and friend "Chips," whose productions are always sure of publicity in consequence of their intrinsic merit.

The present circulation of private Banks in England is over $30,000,000, and of joint-stock banks, near $20,000,000.

Washington, Feb. 26, 1841.

Contrary to expectation the snow storm has hushed its unwelcome voice, and the sweet zephyrs of spring are again breathing over the city. The sky is without a cloud, and the sun is shining into the eyes of our fair maidens as if he had a mind to insinuate himself into their good graces. The city is like a bee hive, and the numerous visitors arriving by every conveyance will, by the fourth, swell our population to twenty times its usual amount. How so many people are to be accommodated I cannot say. I am afraid some of them will have to get a berth in the open air.

I understand that General Harrison has been waited upon by a delegation of his friends, with a proposition that he appoint a committee to kiss the ladies, instead of going through the constant operation himself. The General gave a prompt and stout denial, declaring that he would do it himself. I commend him for it, for if he keeps on the right side of the fair sex, he may defy the world. Besides, the ladies in general do not like to be kissed by proxy.

In the House this morning, after the passage of a resolution for paying members their per diem allowance, who did not arrive until after the session had commenced, a bill for legalizing land warrants was passed.

A resolution was then adopted that the House adjourn from two to four o'clock, for the purpose of attending the funeral of the late judge Barbour.

The consideration of the naval appropriation bill was then resumed in committee of the whole, the question being on an amendment providing for the building of steam vessels of war.

Mr. Saltonstall spoke at some length in favor of his amendment, contending that the interests of the Navy required the appropriation to be made, and argued from the documents before him, that the Navy Commissioners had been restricted in their estimates, and required to bring them within a certain amount.

Mr. Jones, of Va., replied, and, in the course of his remarks, adverted to the documents distributed but a few months ago, through the agency of Mr. Saltonstall, all over the Union, attributing to the present administration the expenditure of enormous amounts; and now (said Mr. J.) the very same gentleman rises in his place and tells you that you ought to be denounced for parsimony.

Mr. Saltonstall said the document was nothing but an executive report, and that it had nothing to do with the present question.

The Senate, after the disposal of some private business, also adjourned to attend the funeral of the late Judge Barbour.

Shipwrecks. The brig Bordeaux, Parker, from Matanzas, struck on Minot's Ledge, off Cohasset, in endeavoring to run into Boston harbor, on Tuesday last, during a snow storm. Her cargo of sugar was all wet. Cargo insured for $40,000 and vessel for $10,000.

The packet ship President, from New York, at London, has been condemned, and was advertised to be sold for the benefit of all concerned. The P., on her passage, got ashore near London, and it was reported was gotten off without much damage, but on a survey being held, it was discovered that several of her timbers were broken, and the vessel not worth repairing. She was valued at $24,000.

The Charleston Transcript of the 22d inst. says: The schr. Julia Warden, previously reported as having been capsized inside of St. Helena bar, was fallen in with by the smacks Welcome, Charleston, and Majestic, about 10 miles S. E. of Charleston Light House, and towed to this city on Saturday evening last, full of water. The hull is apparently but very little injured.

Detention of an English Steamship by French Authorities. The French authorities at Havre have seized upon the English steamship James Watt, as a security for the amount of loss sustained by the French owners of the steamship Phenix, which vessel was sunk by a collision with the Brittania, owned by the British Company.

Dead Loss. The National Intelligencer presents a statement from one of its southwestern collectors, in which the aggregate loss by exchange on collections to the amount of $8,616, was no less than $3,220 15! One of the consequences of a depreciated paper currency.

Villany. A genteel loafer stepped into a coach in Philadelphia on Wednesday last, and beat the boy in attendance, because he refused to give him eight tickets for 25 cts. when only three are given for that amount.

Tribute of Respect. The officers and soldiers attached to the corps of the Providence, R. I. First Light Infantry, have presented their worthy commander, William W. Brown, Esq., with a silver pitcher and a pair of silver goblets of exquisite workmanship and great value.

Almost Married. A couple a few days ago presented themselves before a squire in Rochester, in order to get the knot tied, but when it came to the point, the bridegroom backed out and cut. The disappointed fair one vowed vengeance for her disappointment, leaving the squire to do without his dollar.

Appropriations. The Finance Committee of the New York Legislature recommend appropriations to the amount of $4,050,000 to the following works:—$2,750,000 for the Erie Canal Enlargement, $750,000 for the Genesee Valley Canal, and $550,000 for the Black River Canal.

It is said that Col. Harney has been put under arrest by Gen. Armistead, for disobedience of orders, in respect particularly to the hanging of some captives.

Licenses. Three thousand dollars have been added to the city treasury of Cincinnati, by fines on persons selling liquor without licenses.

‡ For Sale. † Wanted.

U. S. ship Brandywine sailed from Lisbon 22d January, for New York.

Vessel capsized and all on board lost. The schooner Evelina, Captain Ashley, which left Norfolk on Friday last for York River, was capsized on that afternoon in a quall which struck her about the mouth of York River and all hands were lost.
