Message of President Grant.

The President presented his annual message to Congress at one o'clock on Monday. As usual, it is brief, concise and to the point, without any waste of words in the decided expression of his views, but owing to our limited space, we are compelled to give a mere synopsis of the various points taken up:

After returning thanks for the blessings of peace and prosperity which have prevailed throughout the year, the President says that whilst harmony has been resorted, in some of the late rebellious States, in exceptional cases, the verdict of the people has been reversed by violence and intimidation.

With the restoration of Georgia to representation in Congress, which may be expected very soon, the work of reconstruction will be complete and the President thinks, with an acquiescence of the whole people in the obligation to pay promptly the national debt, and to recognize the amendments to the Constitution there is no reason why we should not advance in national prosperity and happiness as no other nation has done after so devastating a war.

The course of Minister Washburne at Paris in affording protection to foreigners and his recognition of the Republic of France, are acknowledged as having been done under the direction of the President, and Mr. Washburne is highly commended for the able manner in which he obeyed his instructions.

The new Government of France having applied to our Government to use its good officers in the interest of peace, the President answered that the established policy and the true interests of the United States forbade all interference in European questions jointly with European Powers. Should the time, however, come when the action of the United States can hasten the return of peace by a single hour, that action will be heartily taken.

But little is said in the Message about Cuba, except that reparation for damage to the persons or property of American citizens has been made by Spain.

The annexation or purchase of San Domingo is again pressed on the attention of Congress, and the opinion expressed that it will fall into European hands so soon as it is ascertained that the purchase has been abandoned by the United States. San Domingo now has a population of 120,000 souls, and the President says it is capable of supporting a population of 10,000,000 of people in luxury. The people yearn for the protection of our free institutions and laws, and the president asks "Shall we refuse them?" Its possession by us will build up a coastwise commerce of immense magnitude, which will go far towards restoring to us our lost merchant commerce. The President concludes this branch of his Message with a review of the many advantages to flow from its early acquisition, and recommends that a joint resolution be passed authorizing the executive to appoint a Commission negotiate a treaty with the authorities of San Domingo for its purchase, and it can then be determined by a resolution of annexation, as in the case of Texas.

The President is very decided on the question of the Alabama claims, and says that our unalterable convictions are that the British Government was guilty of gross negligence. The appointment of a Commission to settle these claims, and pay them by the Govergment, its recommended, so that the Government may own them, and have full possession and responsible control of all of the demands against Great Britain.

The unfriendly course of the Canadian authorities towards our fishermen, and the statutes for the condemnation of American vessels, the President says, will not be permitted, and if attempted it would become his duty to take steps to protect the rights of citizens of the United States. Any attempt to enforce the claims put forth will be regarded as contravention of the treaty, and the Imperial Government will be held responsible. Congress is asked to empower the President to suspend by proclamation the operation of laws authorizing the transit of goods in bond to Canada, and if such an extreme measure should become necessary, to prohibit vessels of the dominion of Canada from entering the waters of the United States, which he cites various precedents in other countries to show belong exclusively to the commerce of the United States.

The encouragement of American iron ship building is strongly recommended. The building of a State Department is urged as a matter of necessity.

Such measures as will lead to an early resumption of specie payments are strongly recommended

The belief is expressed by the President that in a few years the national tax gather may disappear from the doors of the citizens almost entirely. Revenue sufficient may be obtained from stamps sold by Postmasters, a tax on liquors, and tobacco, and by a wise adjustment on the tariff, &c., fulfill all our obligations. "Revenue reform," says the President, "if it means this, has my hearty support. But if it means direct taxation of the people for the collection of the revenue to support the Government "then I am against revenue reform, "and believe the people are with me." If it means repudiation of the public debt and pensions, "then I am still more opposed to such kind of revenue reforms."

As soon as the revenue can be dispensed with all duty should be removed from coffee, tea and other articles of universal use not produced by ourselves. A tariff for revenue is, however, necessary, and incidental protection it gives to our artisans and laborers, in contrast with the pauper labor of the Old World, is approved.

The President endorses the recommendations of the Postmaster General for a reform of the franklin privilege, and the adoption of the "correspondence card," and believes that a self sustaining postal system may speedily be looked for, at no distant day a further reduction in the rate of postage be attained.

"Civil service reform" meets the hearty approval of the President, and he would have it go further than the mere tenure of office of clerks and employees whose appointment does not require "the advice and concent of the Senate." He would have it govern not only the tenure, but the manner of appointment, so that the President, Heads of Departments and members of Congress should be relieved from the trouble and embarrassment growing out of it. The elevation and purification of the civil service, says the President, "will be hailed with "approval by the whole people of the United States."

The new Indian policy is strongly commended as a success. The policy of encouraging the actual settlement of our public lands is strongly commended.

The concluding paragraph of the Message thus briefly sums up the position of the Administration upon all national and political topics. The President says:

"In conclusion, I would sum up the policy of the Administration to be a thorough enforcement of every law, a faithful collection of every tax provided for, economy in the disbursement of the same, a prompt payment of every debt of the nation, a reduction of the taxes as rapidly as the requirements of the country will admit—the reduction of taxations and to be so arranged as to afford the greatest relief to the greatest numbers. Honesty and fair dealing with all the other people; to the end that war with all its blighting consequences may be avoided, but without surrendering any right or obligation due to us. A reform in the treatment of Indians and in the whole civil service of the country; and finally in securing a pure, untrammelled ballot, where every man entitled to cast a vote may do so just once at each election without fear or molestion or proscription on account of his political faith, nativity or color."

Important Decision

Judge Magruder, of Calvert county, in the case of the State vs. Charles Watkins, recently tried in the Circuit Court of Calvert county, for perjury, delivered an interesting opinion as to the right to registration of colored men convicted of felony before the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment, in which he decided that also convicted were entitled to vote, notwithstanding the second sec. of the first article of the Constitution, which proves that

"No person above that age of twenty-one years convicted of larceny or other infamous crime, unless pardoned by the Governor, shall ever be entitled to vote at any election in this State."

The opinion was delivered orally, and we are therefore not able to give it in full but the substenance of it was, says the Calvert Journal, that section second of article first of the State Constitution intends to punish persons guilty of felony by depriving them of the right to vote.—Prior to the Fifteenth Amendment disfranchisement was no part of the punishment of colored persons, because they did not enjoy the right of voting. If then section second of article first of the Constitution deprives them of the right of voting for offences committed before the Fifteenth Amendment, it creates a new punishment for an old offence, and is therefore ex post facto in its operation, repugnant to the Constitution of the United states, and therefore void.

Our Baltimore Letter.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 8, 1870.

Since my last quite a lively time has been had around Paris. We were informed by the cable that Gen. Trochu had surrendered the city and army, thus virtually putting an end to the war. But the news came in such a confused mass of telegrams that it was impossible to place any reliance in it, and even the most knowing ones shook their heads doubtfully. After a sifting of the telegrams received, it appears that Gens. Ducrot and Palladines, at the head of some two or three hundred thousand men, made a grand sortie against the Prussian lines, resulting in a general fight. Immense loses were sustained on both sides, and either party claimed the victory—the French despatches saying that their force still held the positions taken by them, and the Prussian King telegraphing to his queen that the French were compelled to seek refuge behind the walls of Paris.—Telegrams from Paris state that uprisings of the populace against the provisional Government are of constant occurrence, requiring the interference of a strong body of the National Guard to preserve anything like order, and that unless Gen. Trochu very shortly performs some extraordinary military feat to raise the siege, the city is doomed.

The peaceful settlement of the Russian question is generally conceded on all sides. London despatches state that a congress of European powers will be held, at which a new treaty will be effected in which no mention will be made in regard to the navigation of the Black Sea, thus throwing open that body of water to the world. In that event, Russia will have accomplished more than was anticipated when she first broached the question.

Affairs in Rome are in a terrible condition. The Pope is virtually a prisoner in his own palace, in a country over which he has been recognized as both its spiritual and temporal ruler by the civilized world for centuries. Catholic churches and schools are pillaged, priests and nuns assassinated, and a reign of terror exists worthy the fiends of the bottomless pit. The Pope does not stir from his palace, for fear of being torn to pieces by the lawless devils who parade the streets yelling for his blood. And all this is allowed, and in fact encouraged, by one who styles himself "a devout Catholic and the Pope's most dutiful son." Laying all prejudice aside, it must be conceded by all that there surely will be a terrible retribution for the instigator of such hellish deeds in a christian land.

Just at this exciting time, when news from Europe is watched for with an eager impatience, we are informed that both the English and French Atlantic cables are sadly out of repair, so much so that it is scarcely possible to transmit messages from this side, especially on the English cable. Vessels have been sent out to grapple and repair the defective sections. It would rather try our nerves should we be compelled to resort to the primitive mode of sending and receiving despatches per steamer.

The second census of the city has been completed by the police force, and shows an aggregate of 283,375 inhabitants, being 15,476 in excess of the figures returned by the United States Marshal, who summed up our population at 267,899 The police force were very particular in performing this duty, and the result may be taken as correct. Of the above 283,375 inhabitants, 133,404 are males and 149,971 are females, showing considerable imigration from among the male portion.

Several of our "City Fathers" are on a visit to Chicago, inspecting the mode of city government of the Chicagoans.—This looks like the father asking the advice of the son, instead of the usual vice versa But although a city of yesterday, Chicago is fully competent to teach many of her elder sisters the modus operandi of making a growing and prosperous city—all its rascality to the contrary notwithstanding.

Baltimore is growing very fast, and is building up an immense trade, especially with the South We have some five or six steam lines running to the mouth of the Bay, and about the same number extending to ports along the coast as far as Cuba, to say nothing of those running North. All these lines are doing a heavy business, some of them being compelled to charter extra vessels to transport the immense piles of freight constantly blocking up their wharves. All of which speaks well for the future prosperity of the city, and makes glad the hearts of its natives.

The supply of fire-wood is somewhat scarce in the market, in consequence of many of the vessels heretofore engaged in that trade being brought into service to reduce the above mentioned pile of merchandise. It is to be hoped that the supply of this indispensable article will far exceed the demand before cold weather comes upon us, and that prices will be within the reach of all, as the lack of it is one of the greatest sufferings of our poor.

The large number of oyster packing establishments in our city renders an active demand for those delicious bivalves, and our docks are crowded with oyster boats loaded to the water's edge. This branch of business has largely increased in our city the past few years, and millions of cases are annually shipped to all parts of the world.

A very extensive fair was inaugurated at Concordia Hall on Monday night last, in aid of the German wounded and sufferers by the war. The German residents of our city have the matter in hand, and there is not the slightest doubt as to its most successful result. An interesting feature is the presentation of an elaborately carved gold mounted sword by a firm in Philadelphia, to be voted to a general officer in the German army, the successful competitor to be decided by the choice of the citizens of Baltimore.

The lecture season is now under full headway, and we are being nightly enlightened by some of the best talent in the country. The Maryland Institute particularly presents a choice programme by able speakers.

The approach of Christmas already creates a stir among the venders of toys and fancy articles, and their stores generally present a bright and attractive appearance.

In the Superior Court last week, before Judge Dobbin, the case of the State vs. the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company was taken up. This was an action to recover one-fifth of the gross receipts of the Washington Branch from passengers, the claim being for $300,000. J. Nevitt Steel, Esq., Attorney General Jones, S. Teackle Wallis, Esq., and ex Gov. P. F. Thomas, are counsel for the State, the railroad company being represented by Hon. Reverdy Johnson and John H. B. Latrobe, Esq.

In his annual report the Postmaster General recommends for general use in the United States the adoption of the "correspondence cards" now so extensively used in North Germany and Great Britain, and which consist of a card ruled and stamped on which to write a message and drop in the street letter boxes. The idea is a good one, especially for business men, as they will answer the purpose in thousands of cases where a letter would seem too formal.

The statement of the public debt, issued from the Treasury Department on the 1st of the month shows a further decrease of $7,475,860 during the past month of November.

Gen. Schenck has given notice of his intention to contest the seat of his opponent, Col. Campbell, on account of the rejection of the votes of the inmates of the soldiers' asylum at Dayton, Ohio—Campbell's party.

A Lee Memorial Association has been formed in this city, for the purpose of soliciting subscription to erect a monument to the late Gen. Lee. The subscriptions are limited to one dollar each.

A despatch from Washington says the Government has concluded to resort to harsh measures to subdue the unruly Indians, pleasant words and kind treatment having signally failed to accomplish the desired end.

A correspondent of the New York Herald tells the following yarn:—At the battle of Wiessenburg, for two or three days before the grand charge the German troops were fed on salt herrings, and not allowed any water. At the moment of the grand charge Prince Frederick Charles rode in front of the line and thus addressed his men: "Soldiers, behind yonder breastworks six thousand kegs of lager await you! Charge!—The result was the capture of Wiessenbourg and—the lager.

The entire number of arrests made by our police during the past month of November was 2,297, being an increase of 684 over the number arrested during the corresponding month last year.

The weather still continues bright and balmy, but within the past day or two indications of snow have been most too plainly observable for comfort.

Yours, &c., H.

A WONDERFUL MICROSCOPE.—Rev Daniel Wise, D. D., editor of the New York Sunday School Advocate, thus speaks of the celebrated Criag Microscope:

"Its simplicity, cheapness and great magnifying power struck me with surprise. Then I was examining a fly's eye by its aid, and was struck with wonder at the skill and power of the Creator which is displayed in its structure—When I saw a statement in an advertisement the Criag Microscope magnified one hundred diameters, and could be bought for $250. I thought it was one of the humbugs of the hour, for I had paid $20 for a microscope not long before. But now I find it to be a really valuable instrument which I should like to see introduced into the families of our readers in place of the manifold, useless toys which please for an hour and is then destroyed. This microscope would both amuse and instruct them and I advise every boy and girl who wishes to know the wonders which lie in little things to save his money until he has $2.75 which will pay for the microsepe and the postage when sent by mail."

As a holiday this microsope, being ornamental, instructive, amusing and cheap, and never looses its interest,—Agents and dealers supplied on liberal terms. A E H ROSS, 313 Locust St Louis, Mo.
