FROM GENERAL BANKS' COLUMN.

WILLIAMSPORT, MD., May 28.—My last letter contained a report of the fighting done upon the left flank of the column by Colonel Donnelly's brigade. I wish now to complete the imperfect account previously given of the attack of the enemy upon our right. At 12 o'clock midnight of the previous day Colonel Gordon's brigade was on the march from their camp at Strasburg. The 3d Wisconsin was sent off in the direction of Front Royal, where Colonel Kenly had suffered so severely upon the day before. The 29th Pennsylvania had been sent down the pike toward Middletown about 6 o'clock of the day before. The 2d Massachusetts and 27th Indiana remained upon the ground in the rain, which continued the whole night, without their tents. They started at 9 o'clock in the morning, and marched, with scarcely a halt during the day, no less than thirty miles. When they had proceeded to within six miles of Winchester they were alarmed by the report that the enemy had broken in upon their rear, cutting off a detachment of cavalry and a large baggage train, and the 28th New York, of Donnelly's brigade.

The 2d Massachusetts and 27th Indiana were turned back to Newtown, while the remaining two regiments of Gordon's brigade continued their retreat toward Winchester. When this force arrived at Newtown, the Indiana and New York regiments were held back in reserve, and the Massachusetts 2d went onward and drove the enemy out of the town. Col. Gordon remained for some time burning the baggage wagons which could not be sent back, and started on to Winchester about dark.

The enemy followed, and kept a continual firing of musketry upon the 2d Massachusetts, which, being in the rear, had all the skirmishing to do, and from the time they started to return until they had arrived to within two miles of Winchester, their retreat was attended by one continual skirmish. The enemy charged on them with cavalry, fired round shot at them from their artillery, and blazed away from behind the fences on the roadsides continually. Still the men retreated in as perfect order as if they were on parade, obeying the orders of Col. Gordon perfectly, and repelling the assaults of the enemy at every point. It was dark all this time, and the storm of bullets was as severe as any which they suffered upon the day following. The men did not go into camp until 1½ o'clock the following morning.

Some then had to go out on picket duty, and those who were in camp without blankets, the night being cold and damp, with heavy dew, got little rest, and were constantly wakened by the firing of pickets, who kept up a skirmishing with one another through the whole night. Just at daylight they commenced to come in in force. Our pickets were gradually drawn in by orders sent back to the rear. The line of battle was immediately formed by Colonel Gordon. Generals Banks and Williams now came out upon the field, and soon the firing was pretty heavy from the enemy, who, advancing, tried to turn our right. The enemy's force was so much superior that it completely flanked us all around. The Twenty-seventh Indiana fired some few rounds; the Second Massachusetts also fired, and then broke ranks and retreated confusedly until two miles beyond Winchester, when many of the soldiers were collected into line, and retreated in better order, and are now in camp a mile north of this place.

The list of casualties, which it was to have been expected would have decreased considerably, have dwindled down to almost unimportant dimensions. Men counted as lost, and reported killed or captured, have returned to us safe and unharmed. The wounded which have returned are being excellently provided for, and the ladies of Williamsburg are nothing in the discharge of offices of kindness to them. Very different this from the conduct of women in Winchester, who threw torpedoes among our soldiers as they retreated, and shot from their windows at them with pistols and rifles. One woman who was in the act of firing was shot at by our men, and dropped down upon the window-sill like dead.

The enemy are reported to be at Dam No. 5, and fighting has been reported to be going on there. A reconnoitering party have crossed the river to-day in considerable force, and the regiments here are under marching orders. Our army is not so much disorganized as it seemed to be at first. The men are ready and anxious to fight again, and would do so without a doubt. Both brigades have returned with little loss, the cavalry have come in, and Brig. Gen. William B. Magruder, who desires to correct the errors of the National Republican, at Washington, in regard to his testimony before Commissioner Cox. As we published the Republican's account of the trial, we cheerfully give place to Dr. Magruder's letter.—EDS. M. N. S.]

BROOKEVILLE, MD., May 29, 1862.

Editor National Republican:

SIR: In your paper of the 23d instant is a report of what purports to be the testimony of Dr. Wm. B. Magruder, of Brookeville, Maryland, before Commissioner Cox. In that report are several errors.

All, excepting the first paragraph, must have been reported from memory, as the testimony is not stated in the order in which it was given, and some things are omitted which I did say, and others added which I did not say.

In relation to the interference with me, all that I know is that somebody touched my leg repeatedly with a cane or something of the kind. If I was jerked by the coat, or punched in the side, I was not aware of it.

I said nothing about the President's policy in relation to emancipation. If I had said that the people of my neighborhood favored it, I would have been saying more than I knew, as I have not heard an expression of opinion upon that subject.

I have little doubt that some of the remarks purporting to be my testimony were taken from different private conversations occurring in the room after the trial was over, but misunderstood by the reporter.

Will you do me the justice to insert this in the next issue of your paper, and mail the paper containing it to me in Brookeville, Md.?

WILLIAM B. MAGRUDER.

THE NEW YORK NATIONAL GUARD IN BALTIMORE.

The following is a copy of a letter from a member of the 7th regiment (National Guard) to his father in New York:

COLEMAN'S EUTAW HOUSE,
BALTIMORE, May 27, 1862.

* * * * We arrived here about two hours ago, tired and dirty, I can assure you. We were immediately ordered to deposit our arms and traps in a large building here, and were told to disperse and report at 7 o'clock to-morrow morning. We have had one of the most wearisome twenty-three hours that I ever know anything about. My knapsack weighed about twice as much as it did when I left home. I am now writing with about twenty members of the regiment around me, and everything in confusion; therefore excuse lead pencil and bad writing. I am well, and think I shall be able to stand it. The prevailing opinion here is that we shall be sent to Federal Hill, in this city, instead of to Washington, and that in all probability we shall have to enlist for three months.

OKOLONA AND VICINITY.—Okolona, to which place the Confederate army of the Southwest is reported to have retreated, is a post village of Chickasaw county, Mississippi, about one hundred and seventy miles north by northeast from Jackson, on the route of the Mobile and Ohio railroad. It is distant sixty-seven miles south of Corinth, and twenty-eight miles north by northwest of Columbus.—Chickasaw county has an area of about nine hundred and ninety square miles. It is drained by the Oktabbaba, Lossacoona, and the Zellabusha rivers, the last of which rises within it. The surface is nearly level, and the soil productive. Cotton and Indian corn are the staples. The population in 1860 numbered 16,426, of whom 9,087 were slaves.

BRITISH SYMPATHY FOR REBELLION.—The schooner Hannibal, which arrived here this morning from Nassau, New Providence, whence she sailed on the 23d instant, reports that the Confederate steamers Thomas L. Wragg, (Nashville,) William Seabrook and Santee, were lying coolly in that port, and three others (the Kate, Cecil and Nelly) had sailed for Charleston. The Wragg was to leave in a few days for Charleston. The Santee and Seabrook had just arrived from Southern ports with cargoes of cotton. The authorities at Nassau permitted these six vessels to enter and depart without hindrance.—New York Post.

The New Orleans correspondent of the New York Herald states that the Delta, one of the recently suppressed newspapers of the "Crescent City," is to be again published, under new management.—It is to be conducted by Mr. Clark, formerly one of the co-editors of this journal, Mr. Bell of this city, and other gentlemen, who are of Gen. Butler's staff. There is undoubtedly experience and talent enough in the circle to make the Delta a highly valuable paper. We shall look for it with interest.—Boston Courier.

"The abandonment of the Shenandoah Valley is injurious to us in fact everywhere. Our hold upon New Orleans is not so palpably strong as to prevent the people there from steadily looking for the return of the Confederate power; and when they see that from this valley, on which we had an incomparably stronger grip, our force has been ordered to retire, how shall we persuade them that the same may not happen in New Orleans also?"—Boston Advertiser.

The Crown Prince of Prussia and Princess Victoria, his consort, have taken up their residence at Potsdam. Queen Victoria has arrived at Reinharbrum, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha's summer palace. Her Majesty is expected to remain there until the 1st of September, when the Princess Royal will be able to join her there. The Duke of Saxe Coburg will shortly return to Germany from his African expedition.

THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS PARTIALLY RESTORED.—After an involuntary absence of about three months, during which time we were made familiar with the classic and once hallowed grounds of Fort McHenry—we again resume, partially, our old vocation of enlightening the world with lamp-black." Our Press, being deemed dangerous by the Government, has been kindly limited, and, for the future, instead of publishing "THE SUN, or any other paper, without consent of the Commanding General," we shall modestly labor in the humbler department of the "art preservative of all arts," by executing every description of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING, hoping through that medium to sustain ourselves and those dependent upon us, and would earnestly appeal to our friends to favor us with their patronage. We have prepared our JOB PRINTING DEPARTMENT to execute all kinds of printing neatly, expeditiously and cheaply, and solicit a call at our old buildings.

STILL ANOTHER TRIUMPH.

BALTIMORE, May 1st, 1862.

I have experienced so much benefit by using PEARSON'S, MEDICATED TAR DROPS, that I believe it not only a duty but a pleasure, to make it known to others. I was afflicted with a Sore Throat and Dry Cough, which debilitated me so that I could get no rest. My friends told me that I had the consumption. I am now happy to inform you that your MEDICATED TAR DROPS have cured me.

I find that your MEDICATED TAR DROPS are counterfeited, and I caution the afflicted to be on their guard. This is really a shame that so efficacious a remedy should be injured by unprincipled men. I am glad, however, to see that your signature is now on each package, and I advise those who purchase to bear that in mind.

CLIFBURN HOSPITAL, NEAR WASHINGTON, May 30th, 1862.—A few days since there appeared in one of the Baltimore newspapers this statement: "Adolphus Landsberg, a wounded prisoner, was forced into the Rebel service," which I pronounce false. There is not a particle of truth in it. I volunteered fifteen months ago and have been in the Confederate army ever since with my own free will, until recently wounded and taken prisoner at the battle of Williamsburg; and although a foreigner by birth, my destiny is linked with the country of my adoption, the Southern Confederacy.
