Eagle House
Mill Street
St. Michaels

T-269

A steam saw and grist mill occupied the site of the Eagle House in the mid-19th century. It burned in 1860, was rebuilt, and exploded in 1864.

In 1893, the Dodson family acquired the lot and built this Victorian house. It is now covered with asbestos siding and houses the steamboat exhibits of the Mariner's Museum. The steamboat eagle on top of the tower is a reminder that steamboats were once moored at the wharf in front of the house.
