BOSTON, October 4.
LORD NELSON'S FLEET.
WE have seen a letter from an officer of Lord NELSON's fleet dated August 13, in lat. 49 30, long. 10. The fleet had proceeded from Gibraltar off Cadiz, where fresh instructions were received, and Lord NELSON made the signal to steer for Bantry-Bay—which course the fleet was pursuing, when a frigate spoke with the Admiral, who, in consequence of the information received, determined to put into a port in England, whither he was proceeding. It was conjectured that Lord NELSON would shift his flag to the Superb and remain a short time in port, unless the Brest fleet should escape from their harbour.

NEW-YORK, October 8.
Our London papers of the 17th of August, received from Captain Scoville, of the ship General Hamilton, from Liverpool, express their disappointment at the combined fleets having escaped them and got into Ferrol; and throw some censure upon the conduct of Sir Robert Calder, for not re-engaging the French fleet.—One of the papers says, "We are almost tempted to think, that Sir Robert Calder should have risked a battle at any rate," and again, "It is necessary, upon every account, that the most serious inquiry should be instituted."

LONDON, August 10—14.
CAPTURE OF AMERICAN VESSELS BY THE SPANIARDS.
It is a well known fact, that every American vessel which has sailed for the Mediterranean for some time past, with English produce on board, has been captured by the Spaniards. It was not till Saturday that this extraordinary circumstance could be accounted for by the Underwriters, and for the discovery they are indebted to the following extract of a letter from Vice Admiral Collingwood to William Marsden, Esq. dated off Cadiz, 26th July, and transmitted by him to the committee at Lloyd's:—
"The factor, American brig, from Liverpool, as mentioned in the letters from Lloyd's as having a very valuable cargo on board, was spoken by the squadron within four leagues of Cadiz Light house. I sent the Hydra to see her in safety thro' the Straits, without which she would probably have been taken by the gun-boats, and which the master seemed to think a much less evil, then proceeding on his voyage to Naples, and running the risk of being met by a Tripolitan. I have been informed the Spaniards give to neutrals laden with English property, every encouragement to put themselves in the way of their cruizers, by discharging them quickly, and paying their freight liberally.
"The American schooner Hermon, is stated to have come off this port before the blockade, for the purpose of being taken, and after condemnation of her cargo, was at sea again perhaps in less time than she could have performed her original voyage; so that they have both a pecuniary interest in being captured, and secure themselves from the danger of meeting the cruizers of Tripoli."
A large American ship, detained by the Bonetta sloop of war, on suspicion of having French property on board, was brought into the Downs, and reported to Admiral Holloway, who immediately ordered a detachment of men from his flag ship to take charge of her till she was inspected, with orders that none of her hatches should be uncovered. They had not been long on board when they observed the mate go below with a lighted candle. He was instantly followed by three seamen of the Utrecht, who detected him in the act of setting fire to some gunpowder, which was prevented only by the seamen knocking the candle out of his hand. On searching further, they found the vessel was laden with 1600 barrels of gunpowder. Had the mate succeeded in his purpose the mischief both to the men of war and merchantmen in the Downs, would have been incalculable. The fellow has been sent in irons on board the flag ship, and an enquiry will be immediately instituted into the cause of this diabolical attempt.

August 15.
An American brig, brought into Plymouth by the Triumph, was it seems, one of the small fleet of victuallers from Bordeaux to Cadiz laden with flour and biscuit for Admiral Villeneuve's squadron. It is clear, therefore, that the enemy's fleet was expected to reach the coast of Spain.
No order whatever has been issued either by the council or the admiralty relative to the detention of American vessels bound to the enemy's ports, as erroneously stated in this and other papers. This rumor is supposed to have originated from a late decision of Sir William Scott, founded upon a resolution of the Privy Council that the produce of enemies colonies, carried to America, there entered and subsequently transmitted to the mother country, is still in transitu, and the entry in America not changing the destination, can only be regarded as a deviation in the voyage. An order, we understand, is about to be issued from the council office, declaring that neutrals laden with the produce of the enemy's colonies, and bound to the United Kingdoms, shall not be molested by our cruizers. [Star.
