COLDS

An up-to-date remedy for colds. That is what Peruna is. In successful use over 50 years.

Colds are caught in many ways: Illy ventilated rooms; rooms that have direct draughts; crowded rooms; damp houses; stuffy school rooms; offices illy heated.

A dose of Peruna at the right time, at the first symptom of cold, before the bones begin to ache, before the sore throat manifests itself, or the cough, or the discharge from the nose, just a dose or two of Peruna before these symptoms begin is generally sufficient. But after the cold is once established with the above symptoms prominent, a bottle of Peruna, or maybe two, will be necessary.

"For several years I have been troubled with colds at each change of season. I took Peruna and have not been troubled with the slightest cold this entire season." Mr. Harry Fisher, 1928 Mosher St., Baltimore, Md.

"I give the children Peruna if they have a cold, and it always relieves them." Mrs. I. D. Hayes, 1937 Druid Hill Ave., Baltimore, Md.

"When I feel a cold coming on I take a little Peruna, and it does me good." Mr. Charles S. Many, 12 Water St., Geneing, N. Y.

"No family should ever be without Peruna, for it is an unfailing cure for colds." Mrs. M. F. Jones, Buffalo Springs, Ky.

Romance of Red Cross Duchess an Outcome of the European War.

MILLICENT, DOWAGER DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND.

An interesting incident of the war in Europe is the announcement of the second marriage of Millicent, dowager Duchess of Sutherland. The bridegroom is Major Percy Desmond Fitzgerald of the Eleventh British hussars, and the romance is said to be a direct development of the work of the duchess at the front.

She was connected with the Red Cross, and when Brussels was taken by the Germans she was one of those who remained to care for the wounded. She expects shortly to publish a book of her war experiences for the benefit of the Red Cross fund.

The wedding took place recently while the duchess and Major Fitzgerald were on leave in England.

The Duchess of Sutherland is the daughter of the fourth Earl of Rosslyn and the widow of the fourth Duke of Sutherland. Her sisters, the Countess of Westmoriland, the Countess of Warwick and Lady Angela Forbes, are noted for their beauty. As Duchess of Sutherland she did much to develop the success of the Potteries district in England and has been a leader in many other philanthropic movements. She is the author of several books. During her late husband's life she entertained splendidly and was a leader of the smart set. Her son, the present Duke of Sutherland, is serving at the front. He married a famous English beauty, Lady Eileen Butler, in 1912.

Charming Gift For Invalid.

If you have an invalid friend over whose prospective Christmas gift you are puzzling make a note of the clock illustrated here.

These clocks come in white and a tinted composition resembling marble to match the furnishings of the bedroom. The figures on the face of the clock can be seen across the room even in a dim light. Illuminated clocks may be bought. If the invalid has medicine to take at night often he or she may take it without calling upon the nurse for a glance at the clock will tell them the time. Then, too, wakeful people like to know how the time is passing and the illuminated clock face enables them to do so.

Economy in Furs.

A note in fur fashions which is sure to bring joy to the heart of the woman who has only a small dress allowance to that, while a good deal of fur is used as a trimming, no large pieces are in vogue. For instance, from a last year's muff it will be quite possible this season to make a muff and a "choker," the name given to the small round piece of fur which encircles the throat, ties tightly in a smart ribbon bow or ends in a big velvet flower. Muffs are smaller—in fact, many are so small that they hardly cover the hands. A small, round muff and a tiny "choker" are considered the acme of smartness.

Milady's Mirror

Cultivating Plump Hands.

The appearance of the hands is an index to the general health, and a physician looks them over when he examines the pulse.

One of the best ways of retaining or acquiring fresh, plump looking hands is by means of oil baths.

Almond oil or, lacking this, olive oil is the best. This is warmed and applied after the hands have been thoroughly washed or scrubbed, rinsed in clear water and all the moisture removed.

A little cologne may be added to make the work somewhat more agreeable. Go over the hands and wrists and crevices around the nails, covering the entire surface. Take five minutes or longer for each hand. The more oil the pores absorb the more they need this nourishing food. This treatment continued every night or every other night for two weeks will certainly make a vast improvement in the hands.

Hollows gradually fill in, the skin becomes refined and soft, the nails cease to appear dry and crack off, and the cuticle is more easily pushed back to display the delicate half moon.

That unbecoming sallow, wrinkled appearance gives way to a firm, smooth white skin, which gives encouragement to the possessor.

Thin, anaemic women should always nourish their hands in this manner. Good fattening creams or cocoa butter may be substituted or alternated with the oils.

Astringents in the way of tonics should be used to further tighten the tissues, and for this purpose lemon juice may be employed, or the lotion consisting honey, lemon juice and cologne, one ounce each.

Protruding Wrist Bones.

Ugly, protruding wrist bones often disfigure an otherwise rather pretty arm and hand. Where the bones are too large there can be no help except to make plump the flesh about them, and for this nothing is better than almond oil or cocoa butter.

Cocoa butter can be had at any drug store. It comes usually in square or oblong cakes, although some is put up in round stick shape in a neat tin case and covered with tin foil, easy to tuck into a hand bag or toilet case.

To use warm the end of the stick or cake by the flame of a candle, if nothing else is handy, or even by the slight heat of a couple of matches—anything to make it just soft enough to adhere to the palms of the hands. Have the skin ready—clean, soft and warm and dry—run in the cocoa butter thoroughly and leave it on to absorb which it does very readily, more so than any skin food or cold cream.

An objection has been made that it causes a growth of superfluous hair. If this is feared finish with a spray of good cologne, well and thoroughly applied. An atomizer costing 50 cents will last a lifetime for the purpose. If the wrists are made plump it stands to reason that the joints cannot protrude in ugly fashion. It is usually lack of flesh that causes the thing in the first place. And the same may be said of the elbow. Where the joint is sharp, by increasing the plumpness of the flesh on the arm the bones will not appear so prominently.

Whitening the Neck.

Brown necks are not half so attractive as white ones. Try this way of whitening:

First wash well with hot water and good soap, then massage with cold cream.

While the cream is still on the skin rub with half a freshly cut lemon, then massage again. Afterward wipe quite dry with a soft rag or towel.

Repeat the treatment night and morning for some weeks and you will be surprised to find how much whiter your neck has become.

Care of the Mouth.

In the cleansing toilet the care of the mouth, throat and nostrils should not be neglected. Few educated people neglect to brush the teeth before going to bed, but they are less careful in regard to the mouth and throat. The gums, tongue and roof of the mouth should be washed daily with a roll of absorbent cotton and the throat well gargled. If this rule were always followed throat troubles would be rare in the opinion of throat and ear specialists.

Strengthening the Eyebrows.

The following ointment will strengthen the growth and improve the appearance of the eyebrows: Red vaseline (two ounces), tincture of cantharides one-eighth of an ounce, oil of lavender fifteen drops and oil of rosemary fifteen drops. Mix thoroughly. Apply to the eyebrows with a small brush once a day. Be careful that none gets into the eyes, as it will inflame them, as all oils do.

The Sleep That Counts.

When you go to bed—if you are looking for beauty sleep—you should fall asleep right away. The beauty sleeper, the one who wakes up looking refreshed, will fall asleep the minute her head touches the pillow. She will fall into a slumber, heavy and dreamless, and she will waken in the morning of her own accord.

HOW 10-YEAR-OLD LASS MADE MONEY

CANNING CLUB MEMBER

On One-Tenth of an Acre of Land This Little Country Girl Cleared $37.50 From Canned Tomatoes. The Story of Her Work as Written by Miss Fields.

Every Queen Annes countian is, or should be, interested in the work of the Girl's Canning Clubs during the last year. By special request the Superintendent of the State Canning Club Department has forwarded to THE OBSERVER a sketch, written by Miss Mary R. Fields, of near Templeville, who won first prize in the county exhibit. This sketch was written by the little girl, and tells how she produced her pack this year, and how she cleared $37.50 from one-tenth of an acre of land. The sketch, to say the least, is interesting. It follows:

I am a small girl, 10 years old, and I joined the Girls Canning Club because I thought I could do some of the things that Miss Burnite, our State agent, said other little girls had done. Mrs. Robinson (county agent) gave me the "Stone" tomato seed April 1st. I got some soil in a small box and warmed it until it was dry.

April 5th I planted the seed and they came up grand and grew very fast. On May 2nd I transplanted them in a row in our garden. I asked father "How much he would rent me a tenth acre for?" He said he would give me the rent free and the cultivating free as well if I would help him drop his plants and replants. So I agreed to help him. He gave me the tenth acre of high light land. It was a scarlet clover sod. Then he put lime on it. Next it was plowed, rolled and harrowed, and rows run three feet nine inches each way. May 27th we began setting out plants.

After school I went into the garden, pulled the largest of the plants, and mudded the roots thoroughly. I carried them to the patch in a small express wagon. Then father used the spade to make the hole, and I put the plants into it. For over a week I worked from early in the morning until school time, then from after school till dark to get all the plants out. After the first cultivating father put the phosphate on (one handful of potato and vegetable fertilizer to three plants), because he was afraid I would put it on too heavy. At the third cultivating I put on the same. At the fourth cultivation we put on a little nitrate of soda around each plant.

About ten days later we put hen house manure and ashes around each plant. I had but very little replanting to do. I did not do any pruning or staking of plants, nor I didn't have any insects or diseases to attack my plants.

My tomatoes ripened slowly, but it was good that they did, because I had a spell of sickness that lasted about five weeks. I wasn't able to work at all. I only canned a few before school started, because we only had such a few to can at a time. My teacher would meet me at the school house early, so as to hear my lessons and to be marked present.

Before I went to school I made my fire in the canner and sterilized my cans. Then when I came home I started to get my tomatoes ready to can.

Our county agent, Mrs. Robinson, was always here to help me. The largest number we canned in a day was 115 cans from eight baskets of choice tomatoes. I finished in time to drive one mile after the cows for father.

I got my 300 cans from Graham & Thomas.

I wanted more cans. I could not get them from this firm, so I bought a few from the other girls that had no tomatoes to fill them.

After filing these cans, I still could not get enough for what tomatoes that I had ripe, so I sold eleven baskets to the cannery for 13 cents per basket. Father's horses were all busy seeding wheat, and I could not get one to drive to Centreville. That was the nearest place where I could get cans. Professor Grimes was kind enough to bring me up three cases. I had several orders for my canned tomatoes, but couldn't fill the orders, because I didn't have my labels. Mrs. Robinson brought the labels Oct. 19th. I labeled one case of cans and sent them away October 21st, and I heard from the lady October 26th, saying she was so pleased with the tomatoes that she would want more another year.

I think the labels are very pretty, especially the motto. The emblem is the shamrock with four "H's," which means head, heart, hand and health.

Two times we canned I had so much extra work to do, because mother was sick in bed, and I lost some of my tomatoes by not getting to work early. In all I have canned 525 cans. I have worked at this work with all my heart.

I had 53 empty cans, and I had pears given me, so I thought it was best to use the pears instead of the tomatoes which were watery and couldn't have been first class. We had one good club meeting at our school house. My teacher had a program of speaking, singing, violin and organ music. Miss Burnite gave us addresses, which we enjoyed very much. We also had several business meetings. All of our club went to Mrs. Robinson's to a county demonstration, given by Miss Burnite and Mrs. Robinson. We used tomatoes in our home, fried, baked, stewed, soup and tomato bisque.

Expenses.

Cans	$13.50
Labels	1.00
Incidentals	50
	$15.00

$52.50 for tomatoes sold
15.00 expenses

$37.50 profit off 1-10 acre

This work has taught me how to can different kinds of fruit and vegetables in many ways. If all of our canned goods were put up as our club does, because we sterilize everything and it is done out of doors, away from flies and dust.

We all know that flies carry disease. We are trying to carry out our motto, which is "To make the best better."
