HEAT Your House With ONE Register

As ONE Sun Heats the Entire Earth—So ONE Register Heats Your Entire House

The Caloric way is Nature's way—most sensible, economical and healthful. No unsightly, expensive pipes and flues to cause fire danger, waste heat and clutter the cellar. The absence of pipes prevents overheating the cellar, hence produce is not spoiled. Its great heat radiation will save you at least 35% of your fuel.

PIPELESS CALORIC FURNACE

The Original Patented Pipeless Furnace

There are three reasons for this big saving. 1st, The warm air reaches your rooms by nature's direct method of circulation and there are no pipes to absorb or resist the heat. 2nd, Our double ribbed firepot and specially patented combustion chamber produce perfect combustion, thus insuring thorough burning of the fuel and a much greater heating surface. 3rd, Our specially patented triple casing, insulated with two air spaces, prevents any heat from radiating into the basement. This is the only successful, patented, one-register furnace and no other furnace can claim these three big features. This means that you get all the heat from your fuel.

Sold Under Guarantee

Put the Caloric Pipeless Furnace in your house and give it a fair trial. Its successful operation is guaranteed and we'll make right any defect in material or workmanship. The Caloric Firepot is guaranteed for five years by us and by the manufacturers. The Identical Heater & Range Co., Cincinnati, O. Use this furnace and get FREE book.

ANNEXATION MEANS CITY RULING STATE

Given a Majority of Voters, Its Increase in Legislative Representation Sure

DEALS AND THREATS POTENT

Managers Trying to Intimidate Both Political Parties and True to Neither — Demanding "Ripper" Planks in Democratic and Republican Platforms — Greater City Could Vote Any Law Hereafter Passed

No plaything will better amuse a small boy than a piece of rubber. The way the elastic material will stretch to suit his fancy is a perpetual source of joy to him.

The Annexationists of Baltimore seem to get fully as much delight in playing with the State Constitution. They quote with much gravity the sections which suit their purposes, but they say the section which prohibits annexation without a referendum has no force. They stretch the Constitution to suit themselves.

An article sent out by the Greater Baltimore Extension League in an endeavor to blind the voters of Maryland to the danger of giving Baltimore city a majority of the population of the State (which effect it is admitted annexation as proposed will have) asserts that Baltimore city would have no more power after annexation than now, for power comes from the Legislature, and the representation of the city and the counties is fixed by the Constitution. Baltimore city now has four Senators and twenty-four members of the House of Delegates. It has not been very many years since the city had three Senators and eighteen members of the House. How did the increase come about? By a constitutional amendment. Constitutional amendments have become so usual that the ordinary voter thinks there is something wrong with his ballot if he does not find one on it.

Amendments Easily Passed

The Annexationists tell you the Constitution can not be amended except by an act which passes the Legislature by a three-fifths vote in both houses and is then ratified by the people. Since they have announced that they will make everything else subservient to annexation and are freely using threats and cajoleries to swerve members of the Legislature to their favor, and have shown that they can swing practically the entire vote of the city delegation in both houses in any political deal or barter, it is easy to see that they would not have much trouble in securing equal representation for the city in the Legislature. Give the city a numerical majority of the voters of the whole State, and the ratification of the amendment would be a matter of course.

Bolting Both Sides

But the Annexationists are attempting to deceive the people when they claim that Baltimore could only assert its power through the Legislature. There is always more than two, and party leaders will be practically compelled to yield to the will of the majority in making party platforms and influencing nominations. Just now, as the did two years ago, the Annexationists are imperiously demanding that both parties insert in their platforms to be adopted the coming fall ironclad planks favoring annexation without a referendum. Threats are freely made of what they will do to any political leader who opposes them.

Not Bound by Parties

Can it be imagined that the same men and influences which are now attempting to rule both political parties will not in a similar way endeavor to dictate nominations if given a majority of votes with which to back their demands and threats? And if their wishes are not heeded in making the nominations, can any one doubt that they will be able to take their revenge by defeating any candidate not acceptable? They have already shown their willingness to do so. Facts do not bear out the assertion that when the become citizens of Baltimore Democrats remain Democrats and Republicans remain Republicans. Most of them work together to rule the rest of the State. No political party can be sure of their fealty, for they are avowedly out to gain their own ends by any sort of temporary expedient.

Give the city a majority of the population of the State and you will give it absolute control. No deserving man of either party in any part of the State will be able to obtain a State office without the approval of the city bosses. No law which does not suit the "city crowd" will stand any chance of being passed.

And if such a law should slip through, the city would have, and without any increase in legislative membership, the power to veto it. In 1915 the people ratified the Referendum amendment to the State Constitution. Under this amendment a majority of the voters may nullify any law passed by the Legislature except laws regulating the sale of liquor, and the regular appropriation bills. Under this amendment the city could override any law of the State hereafter passed, except as noted, that is, provided Mayor Preston's scheme for the aggrandizement of the city by overriding the Constitution and grasping one-half the population and wealth of Baltimore county and a fat slice of Anne Arundel county is successful.

AGRICULTURAL NEWS

By OLIVER C. JONES
County Agent

This year, many farmers will consider holding their grain for higher prices. The injury by insects plays a very important part in this question. All insects, such as the granary weevil and Angoumois grain moth, can be controlled by fumigating with carbon-bisulphide. Carbon-bisulphide is a clear, heavy liquid that evaporates on exposure to air and forms a gas that is heavier than air and therefore diffuses down rather than up.

One pound of carbon-bisulphide should be used for each 100 bushels of grain. The bin should be fairly airtight. The material should be poured into shallow dishes and placed on top of the grain. Put some blankets or canvas over this to help hold the fumes. This should be left for 24 hours. Use reasonable care not to breathe the fumes too much or too long at one time. Do not allow any fire or even a lighted cigar anywhere near at the time of fumigation or for a period afterward.

If large amounts of grain are to be fumigated, some of the liquid should be inserted into the middle layers of the grain. After fumigation, the grain should be shoveled over so as to help remove the gas remaining in the heap.

Protect From Flies.

Fly time is on in full. Protect your cows and horses by using some repellant. Your cows will give more milk and the horses will hold their flesh better and do better work. There are various remedies to be had and many are good. The U. S. Department recommends the following mixture as being cheap and efficient; Fish oil, 100 parts; oil of tar, 50 parts; crude carbolic acid, 1 part. Apply by means of a small hand pump. This should be aplied once each day.

Sow Turnips Now.

Turnips make an excellent winter feed for sheep and cows. They may be sown now upon a well prepared seed bed and a good crop may be harvested this fall. A few seed may be mixed with the sowing of crimson clover or they may be sown alone, broadcast, and harrowed in to a depth of about ¾ of an inch.

Every effort should be made to have some succulent feed, such as turnips, where no silo is to be had.

PLAN FINE WELCOME

PETERSBURG EXTENDS GREETINGS TO MARYLAND'S NEW ARMY MEN.

Under the caption "Come on in, Boys, the Hospitality's Fine; Welcome to Our City, Petersburg is Already Organized for You," Petersburg, Va., where the Maryland troops of the new National Army will have their cantonment, has sent out the following despatch:

Petersburg, Va., Camp Lee, Aug 3—The boys of the National Army not only will be, but already have been made welcome to Petersburg. The citizens here did not wait for them to come September 1, but reached out with the long fingers of the newspaper press to aid them in conveying to the National Army boys such assurances.

Five hundred of the leading men and women of Petersburg in public session, presided over by Mayor Robert Gilliam and attended by men of power in business, bankers, manufacturers, professional men, clergymen, educators of eminence, women of social station and grace, adopted a genuinely cordial resolution and instructed that it be sent to every publication in each State whence the troops of the Camp Lee are to come.

They also organized Camp Lee War Council agreeable with the plan of the War Department Commission on Training Camp Activities.

A new slant was given to the problems which have been discussed relative to gathering the great Army of 1917—that there will be joint responsibility on soldier and civilian to preserve the tradition of chivalry by making every man who wears the uniform as well as every citizen the conservator of the honor of womanhood. The resolution says:

"To the Men of the National Army who are to come to Petersburg:

"September first you will arrive in our city, to be our guests for an indefinite period. We shall make you welcome. Our best service shall be at your command. We purpose to co-operate with the Federal, State and City officials to make Cantonment, City and environs healthful, and cleanly and desirable insofar as we can effect that result.

"We purpose to utilize every available device to offer you pleasant surroundings in your hours of leisure—when you will be free to come to the city for recreation and amusement.

"We invite you to accept these assurances of hospitality as heartily extended; as constituting our pleasure in greater measure than they constitute our duty.

"We invite you to a program of mutual responsibility equally incumbent on civilian and soldier. You are to uphold the National Colors alongside the Lilies of France. You are to vindicate democracy, to insure justice and honor as the working motto of government.

"Coming, as you do, wearing the United States uniform as a badge of personal honor, it is gratifying to us to know that you will with us enter joint guardianship of the traditions of chivalry, a chivalry that elects every man protector of womankind.

"Your ambition shall become our ambition—to make of Camp Robert E. Lee the best in the United States, best in health, best in social pleasures, best as to military efficiency, best in all that will send you to the battlefields of Flanders fitted to reflect credit upon your selves, your families, your State and your National Government. (Signed)

The Mayors of Petersburg and other Cities of this Territory.

"The Advisory Council, Officers and Directors of Camp Lee War Council.

"The Ministers of this Region."

Squeaky Shoes.

While conducting a research for information on the origin of certain fashions of the past I discovered the reason for the existence of the squeak in shoes.

The squeak was once deemed fashionable, and men of great importance in the affairs of the country demanded it in their footwear, and cobblers were paid 2 shillings extra for putting it in. The squeaky boot denoted the approach of some one of importance, and the way was made clear at once in the same manner as a bicycler's shrill whistle warns you to look to your interests.

During the squeaky period men found it difficult to sneak into the house after 12 midnight without being discovered and disgraced. Removing the shoes before entering the home is an invention which followed the squeaky shoe era, and while the former is now almost obsolete, the latter is still in vogue and as popular as ever with married men!—Zim in Cartoons Magazine.

Bits About Beasts.

You think you know something about animals, eh? Well, let us put your knowledge to a few simple tests.

Frogs, to begin with. Can they breathe with their mouths shut? Certainly they can. As a matter of fact, they always do. If they kept their mouths open they would suffocate.

Next, hares. When do they close their eyes? Answer, never. You see, they haven't any eyelids, so they can't. But they have a thin membrane, which performs the service of eyelids when they are asleep.

What is the color of a horse's eyebrows? That's a difficult one. Think hard and then learn that a horse hasn't any eyebrows.

You may like to know, in addition, that turtles and tortoises have no teeth, that parrots, unlike the majority of birds, can move both mandibles of their beaks, and that fishes never masticate. They simply haven't time between breaths.—London Answers.

More Rope.

In July, 1836, General William Henry Harrison, who had been spoken of as a candidate for president, visited Philadelphia. Many of his political friends were at the steamboat wharf to meet and escort him to his hotel. He was placed in a four horse carriage, but after proceeding a short distance the horses became unmanageable and had to be taken out of the harness. The people began to draw the carriage, and there was a call for ropes. They were soon procured, but proved too short, and as the enthusiasm increased the cry arose, "More ropes!" and still more ropes. The Democrats saw only the funny side of the case and adopted "more ropes" as a ridiculing slogan. It did not last long and could not have hurt Harrison much, for four years later he was elected president.—Philadelphia Press.

Skeletons.

Skeletons are used in cemeteries, laboratories and museums. After battles they are frequently bleached before being stored away for the winter.

Everybody has a skeleton, without which one would fall around like a jellyfish and instead of going to bed at night we would have to be hung over a clotheshorse. Indeed life without a skeleton would be one long, dreary flop.

Skeletons come in a lot of assorted bones, which are more or less securely fastened together by the department store clerk who fastened them together before they went out of the shop. When the first skeleton was constructed one of its bones got away and has caused much trouble ever since.

Some wear clothes over their skeletons.—Life.

Tosti's Thanks.

One day a lady called on Tosti, the famous song writer, and announced her intention of singing two of his songs at a concert.

"I thought I would just run round and try them over with you," she said.

Tosti remarked that he was not in the habit of giving lessons in that manner, whereupon the lady retorted:

"Very well, I will not sing your songs then."

Tosti's face beamed as he advanced toward her with outstretched hands.

"Madam," he said, "I thank you very much for that favor."

A Complete Job.

"Do you love me with all your soul?" breathed the temperamental maiden as she peered through the orchids with which the table was decked at the lucky fellow whose joys and sorrows she had agreed to share.

The l. f. paused for a moment while he inspected the supper check, just handed him by an obsequious menial.

"Yes, and with all my roll," he said fervently.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Painfully Frank.

Wedderly—They say that a man and his wife grow to look alike after they have been married a few years. Now, my wife and I have been married ten years. Do you think we look alike?

Singleton—Yes, indeed. You both seem to have the same sad expression.

Big Once.

Patty—For two plus I'd pull yer ears for you! Shorty—Just you try it an' You'll find you'll 'ave your 'ands full!—London Firefly.

Pleonastic.

"What is an antiquarian, pa?"

"A man who, not satisfied with the present question, is looking for some in the past."

NAVY STILL CALLS

FINE CHANCES OF ADVANCEMENT FOR MEN AS HOSPITAL APPRENTICES.

Maryland has completed its quota of 30 hospital apprentices for the United States Navy, assigned some time ago by the Bureau of Navigation, and again has won commendation from the Navy Department.

There is still need, however, for additional men in this rating and the Maryland recruiting authorities at Baltimore have not slackened in their efforts to attract young men to this branch of the service.

Special attention is called to the opportunities for advancement for hospital apprentices. They can easily proceed through the Pharmacist's mate grade to the warrant rank of Pharmacist, receiving the pay, allowances and privileges of an ensign.

Although every military unit in the State is calling for recruits, and there is considerable rivalry among the various organizations, it is a great satisfaction to the authorities at Baltimore to note that Maryland manifests a preference for the Navy.

There never was a time when young men with the trade of machinist had better opportunities offered them than are now offered in the Navy. There is an urgent need for machinists and those going into the Navy in this capacity are promoted as rapidly as their qualifications warrant.

Young men from the outlying sections of the State can expedite their enlistment in the Navy by securing proof of their citizenship before they appear before the recruiting authorities.

It should always be remembered that all minors entering the Navy must first procure the written consent of their parents or legal guardian. Forms for this purpose can be obtained from the nearest postmaster.

All other particulars of Navy enlistments can be obtained from the postmasters of the State or directly from the Navy Recruiting Station, Calvert and Lexington streets, Baltimore.

3 PER. CENT. MONEY

By exercising foresight and making arrangements a few months ahead, the public can borrow money in any sum from $100 to $10,000 from the Cooperative League of America at three per cent annual interest. The League is a national organization operating under a declaration of trust, with its trustees and all its agents under bond. It is not necessary that the prospective borrower shall own property when application for a loan is made, but all moneys loaned by the League are secured by first mortgage on real estate. Loans will be made to buy or build a home, improve city or country real estate, to buy a farm, to pay off a mortgage, or to turn a loan privilege into cash. These loans are paid off by the borrower in small amounts monthly over a period of from eleven to twelve years.

Details will be sent on written request, or a representative will call.
