Easy Does It

By ..... Helen Hale

Have you ever tried serving fried eggs on thin slices of French toast? They're a real treat of two old favorites.

Try a bit of mustard with canned green beans. Boil beans until the liquid is reduced to about ¼ cup, then add 2 teaspoons of prepared mustard and a tablespoon of butter to the liquid, bring to a boil and serve with the beans.

For a quick dessert, fill peach halves with current jelly, top with meringue and brown quickly in a hot oven.

Freeze some gingerale in ice cube trays, then pop one of the cubes on a fruit cup as you serve it.

Stir in a bit of onion, maple syrup, mustard and celery seed into canned baked beans before heating to give them a special flavor.

A new version of applie pie uses an unbaked crust, filled with sweetened apple sauce flavored with raisins, cinnamon and nutmeg. Bake in a hot oven until the pastry is crisp. Serve with wedges of sharp cheese.

Thick apple rings baked with maple syrup and butter are a luscious dessert, served warm, topped with ice cream.

DR. JOSEPH H. REASON director of libraries, Howard University, told his audience that "we need to look more to the finer values of life and not devote too much attention and time to the pratical things of life."

He was introduced by Mrs. L. B. Clarke of the mathematics department. The tapping ceremony and charge were made by Mrs. Carrie B. Davis, also of Florida A. and M.

The honor citation was given to students who made an average of 3.3 or above during the second semester by Lucius Wyatt.

STUDENT COUNCIL president Clifford Taylor led devotions and Mrs. George W. Gore Jr., and Mrs. M. Sanders sang the Alpha Kappa Mu hymn.

The idea for an organization giving recognition to collegiate men and women of superior scholastic attainments originated with Dr. George W. Gore Jr., during the time he was dean of Tennessee Agricultural and Industrial State College.

As an outgrowth of his sponsorship experience with the Phi Beta Tau Honor Society he perceived the need for coordinating and consolidating the efforts of the several institutions then operating honor societies.

His proposal to the representatives of five interested schools, namely, West Virginia State College, North Carolina Agricultural and Technical College, Tuskegee Institute, Benedict College, and the host institution, Tennessee Agricultural and Industrial State College, culminated in the founding of a national collegiate honor society with the title of "Federation of Scholastic Honor Societies," the predecessor of Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society.

* * *

IN THE two years following this initial convention in 1937 the scope and identity were expanded and clarified to encompass a permanent national honor society under the now familiar title of Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society.

Alpha Kappa Mu has won national acclaim is listed in Baird's Manual, the official Blue Book for American Fraternities and Sororities since 1948: in 1952, it was officially admitted to membership by the National Association of College Honor Societies.

Here are a few last notes on keeping Christmas safe

Don't turn your holiday joy into tragedy, cautions Joanne Reitz, University of Maryland home management specialist.

Miss Reitz offers these suggestions for insuring a happy holiday season:

Trees: Store your tree in a cool place until ready to set it up, and then erect it away from radiators and other sources of heat. Never place it so that it will block an exit.

Make a fresh cut diagonally in the trunk at least one inch above the original cut. Keep the base of the tree in a water-filled container all during the holidays.

* * *

CHECK THE wiring of all tree lights for defects and loose sockets, and avoid overloading circuits with this added illumination. Turn off the tree lights when no one is in the room.

Take the tree down as soon as it begins to shed needles or show signs of dryness.

Trimmings: Greens should be placed away from heat and all posible sources of sparks. Just as with a tree, as soon as the decorations become dry, they should be removed.

* * *

LOOK FOR fire-proof or fire resistant labels on the decorations you buy. Never use lighted candles near greens or other possible flammable decorations.

Never set a lighted candle in a window where curtains may blow into the flame.

Clean up after Christmas gift opening. A cigarette spark can turn the leftover wrappings into the starting fuel for a fire tragedy.

FLORIDA A. AND M. TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The Modern Dance Club of Florida A. and M. University was presented in a program titled, "Heavenly Messages," in last Thursday night under the direction of Mrs. Letitia S. Williams.

SAM LACY'S A TO Z

The boss says the Yule spirit should permate this week's regular column, so it is A to Z's wish to give its readers whatever is their pleasure . . . . Is it philosophy? . . . Then it is the resident belief that the really happy man is one who can enjoy the scenery when he has to take a detour . . . . It is also the lament that the nicest things are usually said about us when we're not listening.

MAYBE IT'S FOOTBALL? . . . . If so, that was a nice gesture to a deserving fellow when New York Giants fans honored Emlen Tunnell before Sunday's game with the Cleveland Browns . . . . Tunnell is the unheralded boy from the University of Iowa who walked into the office of Giant's owner Tim Mara, in 1948 and asked for a tryout . . . . Coach Steve O'Neil made the happy decision to give him one, and Em has not been out of the regular lineup since . . . . He holds the all-time pro record of 67 pass interceptions, is tied for the league mark of four kick runbacks in a single season, and has never missed a Pro Bowl (equivalent to the Major All-Star) game since its inception in 1951.

When halfback Lenny Moore was a senior at Reading (Pa.) High School, he used to watch the Reading Eastern League baseball team . . . . One of its outfielders was Bert Rechichar, now a teammate of Lenny's with Baltimore Colts . . . . AFRO co-workers of 5-foot, 106-pound Ernest Brown would laugh at him if he told them he played halfback on the same (Northhampton County, Va.) high school team that produced the Baltimore Colt's Johnny Sample . . . . so I'm telling 'em.

OR PERHAPS BASKETBALL? . . . Boston Celtics coach Red Auerback, often looked upon as the Paul Brown of the pro cage wheel, joins the legion of admirers of the talents of Elgin Baylor, rookie star of the Minneapolis Lakers . . . . "I would say that he's better than Maurice Sokes was," says Auerbach . . . . "Stokes was great when he came into the league, but I don't think he improved much . . . . Stokes could have been the greatest, and I think this kid has a little more ginger."

When Guy Rodgers, the All-American from Temple, made his professional debut with the Warriors in Philadelphia the other night, he ran smack-dab into the man with whom he had been often compared while playing college ball: the fabulous Bob Cousy of the Celtics.

According to the AFRO's Philly operative, Earl Vann (author of the Vannwagon column), "the 'Guy' was great!"

All good wishes to you for a holiday full of fun and festivity,

Season's Greetings
Sam Lacy

PRE-CHRISTMAS GREETING: "Mr. Sam Lacy — I am writing this letter in regard to your write-up about the trade between the Giants and Phillies (Gomezand Thomas for Sanford) . . . I've been trying for ten years to tell you that you'll never be a sports writer because you are the most prejudiced (colored man) I have ever known. . . . Now getting to the point, I am a brown-skinned (colored) man . . . . I am not tan, I am brown . . . . Why don't you speak the truth and call a black man black?

"If it was left to a d----y like you, the Giants would put nine black men on the field, but I am thankful to God that you don't have any part in the running of the major leagues . . . . You don't see anything that an athlete does unless he is (colored) . . . . Now to give you an example, suppose the white sports writers were like you . . . . Would they give Ernie Banks the MVP award?

"They could have picked a lot of white boys, but they were not color blind like you . . . . I am a regular reader of the AFRO and have been for 30 years, but if the editor keeps letting boneheads like you write a lot of junk, I am putting the AFRO down . . . . Sincerely, J. Ford."

Dear J. Ford—Happy Nay Year . . . . may you see 30 more of them . . . . your old pal, Sam.

Livingstone tops Morristown, 75-68

SALISBURY, N.C. — Livingstone College's Bears opened their basketball season successfully by beating Morristown College, 75 - 68, here Friday night at the Trent Gymnasium.

The Bears had a close fight on their hands and finally won it in the last three minutes. It was nip - and - tuck up to that point, and then Eric May, a freshman from New York, sparked the Bears in a rally that locked up the victory.

The teams were tied at 32-32 at halftime.

May was high scorer for the Bears with 18 points. Frye had 20 to lead the Morristown attack.

Allen 5 edges Knoxville, 76-75

COLUMBIA, S.C.—Allen University outscored Knoxville College, 76 - 75, for their third straight win.

Each of Allen's starting five scored in the double figures. Henry Shutes and Willie Long threw in 20 points apiece. Arnold Smith, last year's free throw champion, made one of three at the foul line and contributed seven field goals for a total of 15.

Robert Frazier was tops for Knoxville with 29 tallies.

SPORTS BY THE AFRO

Back now to the reader's preference:

IS IT BOXING? . . . . Recalling his hectic experiences of the title bout with Yvon Durelle, Archie Moore remembers: "I sure got sick of looking up at (referee) Jack Sharkey . . . . Every time I saw him he was standing over me counting" . . . . Asked to comment on the Durelle claim that he got a "long count" from the ref, Archie piped: "He's like the little boy who goes to bed Christmas Eve night planning to 'sleep fast' so morning'll hurry up and come . . . . Santa Claus didn't get there fast enough for Durelle, I guess."

Tiger jones has changed his plans for a future career . . . . instead of becoming a farmer after his ring days are over, he's going to be a repairman for TV and hi-fi sets . . . . And speaking of detours, Tony Anthony caused one of the strangest in the history of the sport when he knocked out Orville Pitts last year . . . . He bounced Pitts from the ring into a law class at University of Wisconsin.

HORSE RACING EH? . . . . The people who operate the Pimlico track on the outskirts of Baltimore can prove that there is truth in the saying: "It all depends on how you look at it."

To back up their advertising slogan of "Everybody wins at Pimlico," they point out that November 17 was a day when 10,598 fans attended the races . . . . and when six of the eight favorites won it enabled the patrons to cash 48,622 winning tickets, on an average of nearly five winners for each bettor . . . . heh!

OR BASEBALL, YET? . . . . The Los Angeles Dodgers Fan Club taped a special Christmas greeting recording and sent it to a man they'd never seen: Roy Campanella, who was to have been their hometown catcher until he was paralyzed in an auto crash almost a year ago.

Remember Dan Bankhead, the old Dodger pitcher? . . . . He belted a home-run to win a 4-3 game for Puebla in a Mexican League the other night . . . Dan's the team's regular first baseman.

VITAL STATISTICS? . . . . Thad Madden, popular young coach at Newport News' Huntington High School, has a birthday Saturday . . . . Edito former Olympic 200-meters Kink Andy Stanfield on Monday (29th).

Floyd Patterson and wife, Sandra, awaiting the stork's arrival.

OR MORE PHILOSOPHY? . . . . They say the world's a hectic place, with all the problems we must face . . . . But obviously we don't believe it, since none of us is wont to leave it . . . . Merry Christmas, folks!

JIM BROWN GOES TO TOWN—Cleveland fullback Jim Brown, rapidly gaining stature as the greatest player in the history of professional football, is caught in the progress of a 65-yard touchdown run in the first play of a game against the New York Giants. The fabulous sophomore of the Browns is shown in panel at left being pursued by Roosevelt Grier (76), Giant tackle as his (Jim's) teammate, Lou Groza tries to block out the Giants' Jim Patton (20). Second panel from left shows Brown, apparently trapped in a pincers formed by Patton and Harland Svare. Jim wriggled through, however, (panel No. 3) only to face an oncoming defensive halfback Ed Hughes (21). A flip of the hip and a burst of reserve speed eludes Hughes (panel 4) and Brown pulls away to drive the rest of the distance to the goal line untouched. It was the only touchdown of the game for the Cleveland outfit and duplicated a previous meeting between the two teams when Brown tallied the only TD on a 58-yard gallop. Loss of the contest, 13-10, forced the Browns into a playoff for the Eastern Division title with the same Giants, the winner getting the assignment to meet the Baltimore Colts in the championship playoff December 28.

Tan names dot pro grid league's top performers

The names of colored athletes are sprinkled heavily through the lists of top performers in the National Football League for 1958.

Most prominent, of course, is that of Jim Brown, 22-year-old fullback sensation of the Cleveland Browns. The big, 228-pound bulldozer from Manhassett, L. I., led the pro loop in two categories—ground gaining and scoring—and was credited with the best single game performance in still another—182 yards rushing in one afternoon.

* * *

JIM'S 1,527 yards gained established a new league mark for one season, and his 126 touchdowns to lead the individual scorers tied another NFL record.

He carried for his 182 yards against the Chicago Cardinals on October 12.

Ollie Matson of the Cardinals, Leroy Bolden and Bob Mitchell of the Browns were one - two - three in returning kickoffs. Mitchell also was second in punt returns.

* * *

LENNY MOORE of the Baltimore Colts, Clarence Peaks of the Philadelphia Eagles, and Brown tied for the lead in one day's scoring, each taling 24 points in regular league games.

Moore got his 24 against the Chicago Bears on October 5. Peaks registered his against the Cardinals on November 16, and Brown, also collected 24 against the Cards on October 26.

Moore tied white Paige Cothren of Los Angeles, for second in scoring, both banging up 84 points for the year.

In total yards, Joe Perry of the San Francisco 49ers, raced into third place in the late season, piling up 726 yards to smash the lifetime rushing mark of Steve Van Buren. Perry's 6,549 yards to date far surpasses the 5,860 accumulated by Van Buren during the late 40s.

Willie Galimore of the Bears, was seventh in yards gained, with Lenny Moore eighth and Jim Brown tenth. Moore also finished third in the league in pass receiving. And Galimore was fifth in the same department.

WOODLEY LEWIS of the Cardinals, and R. C. Owens, of the 49ers, moved up sixth and eighth in standings of pass receivers.

J. D. Smith of San Francisco was seventh at season's end among kickoff return specialists, a task at which rookie Lenny Lyles held the mark, twice returning opening kicks for more than 100 yards —once for 101, once for 103.

PETERSBURG, Va. — The Virginia State College Trojans won five of their seven games played up to December 19.

Virginia State's Harold Deane and Joseph Parker, freshmen from Baltimore, tied with 15 points each. At halftime the score was tied 32all. The hotly contested battle ended with Howard University the victor, 68-64.

* * *

In their final pre-holiday game the Virginians registered a 67-60 victory over Maryland State on the local floor.

Smith cagers break even in 4-game road junket

By BILL JOHNSON

CHARLOTTE, N.C.—Johnson C. Smith University's basketball team, stunned by the inept performance of its ace gunner, Clarence Barnes, limped home Saturday from a lengthy road trip which saw them break even in four games with as many CIAA schools.

The Golden Bulls whipped Howard and Saint Paul's and lost to Delaware and Shaw University. Coach Jack Brayboy's sharp shooters have now won three and lost two of five outings to date.

* * *

A 21-POINT scorer when the Herd left town, Barnes could find the baskets for only 11 points when the Bulls dropped Howard at Washington for the second time this year, 59-49. The little sophomore fell down to a field goal and five free throws for seven points while Delaware was edging Smith, 60-57, at Dover.

Barnes was back on the beam with 10 points in a subtitute role against Saint Paul's at Lawrenceville, a contest the Bulls won by an easy, 84-63, margin. He rounded out the trip with 16 in a losing cause against Shaw, 77-56, at Raleigh.

* * *

WHILE BARNES was suffering through one of his periods of his brilliant career, sophomore, Joseph Crenshaw and freshmen Richard Gaines were standing out.

Crenshaw, who was kept out of the Saint Paul's game because of an injury, wound up the week with a total of 71 points for a four-game scoring average of 17.7. He grabbed 75 rebounds for an average of 18.7. He leads the Smith players in both departments.

Fisk basketers capture pair

Bama State fell before the dead eye darlings of Coach Bus Thompson, 83-67, while Morris Brown succumbed, 88-77.

Sporting a flashy 4-0 record Fisk cagers had to come from behind to dump Alabama State.

TRAILING 28-26 at half time the Bulldogs unleashed Bobby Gilliam and James McAdoo, both of Nashville, who wound up with 24 points each.

Gilliam dropped 28 points against Morris Brown as the Bulldogs kept control of the game all the way.

Fisk journeys to Xavier for a game Wednesday and returns to Nashville for the Tenn State pre - Christmas tournament in the A and I gym Dec. 18-20.

West beats East in NC schoolboy Shrine Bowl

GREENSBORO, N.C. — The West All-Stars, top senior players from high schools in Western North Carolina, roled over the East team, 20-6 in the annual Shrine Youth Bowl, played here at Memorial Stadium last Saturday afternoon.

Bobby Bell, 6-3, 210-pound halfback from Shelby, spelled havoc for the Easterners. He scored two of the West TD's, blasted away for several brilliant runs and was a terror on defense as he recovered an East fumble and intercepted one pass, both stalling threatening drives by the Easterners.

Charlie Michael of Lexington, scored the third West tally.

The East team scored first on an 11-yard pass play from Charles Farrington of Chapel Hill, to Napoleon Johnson of Raleigh.

The game was sponsored by the Shriners of the State for the benefit of the organization's camp fund for underprivileged youths.
