South Baltimore General

Any colored person who has experienced the jolt of discrimination in unsuspecting places can sympathize with Mrs. Essie G. Hood who learned last week she couldn't eat in the "white only" cafeteria at South Baltimore General Hospital, where she was employed.

We have heard reports in the past of rank discrimination in eating facilities—and even the food—at South Baltimore General. The story of Mrs. Hood, a practical nurse, confirms the reports.

Also confirming the rumor was Donald T. Mills, director of the hospital, who told the AFRO: "We have allotted a space for them (the colored employees) in the cafeteria. I don't think it is out of order."

IN THIS enlightened age when private and public agencies and institutions are revising their policies to get in step with democracy, we are forced to disagree with Mr. Mills's conclusion.

And the taxpayers of Maryland who this year are being asked to appropriate South Baltimore General $72,000 for its support will likewise look with disfavor on an institution still living in the dark past.

It's time for the administrators of South Baltimore General Hospital to get in line with the times and realize that it IS "out of order" to violate the letter and the spirit of the Constitution by continuing to practice discrimination.

He died 24 years ago

Death came last Sunday to Robert F. Duer of Princess Anne, Md. He was 86.

Actually Mr. Duer's political death occurred almost a quarter of a century before when in 1933 responsibility for the savage lynching of George Armwood in Princess Anne was laid squarely at his door.

Armwood had been accused of molesting a woman, and because of the prevailing lynch atmosphere on the Eastern Shore, had been removed to a Baltimore jail for safekeeping.

It was Duer, at the time a judge of the First Judicial Circuit, who ordered Armwood's return to Princess Anne, where a mob of 2,000 persons, including many women and children, awaited his arrival.

Judge Duer, addressed the mob as it was gathering, gently admonishing its members to return home, and then conveniently left the scene so the lynching could proceed as scheduled.

When some members of the mob had been arrested and carried to Baltimore jails, it was Judge Duer, who again interposed his judicial authority by ordering their return to the Eastern Shore, where a grand jury refused to indict them.

WHEN HIS TERM expired the following year, he was defeated by an uprising of decent-minded voters, who viewed with marked distaste his machinations with the mob.

He was never able to win another election, losing three times his bid for a seat in the U. S. House of Representatives.

His life was a clear demonstration that political expediency, even in such a benighted section as was Maryland's Eastern Shore 25 years ago, can never be a substitute for honesty, integrity and political courage.

Race unnecessary

Judging from daily newspaper accounts of reports to police during the recent holiday season, a reader would presume that Baltimore was in the throes of a crime wave and, of course, that most of the culprits were colored.

Reason is that the Baltimore Sun, the Evening Sun and the News-Post make frequent use of racial designations, particularly in crime stories.

Often, persons make false reports of crimes to police and describe the "assailants" as colored. These newspapers report the incidents, dutifully using the racial tags.

And often, unfortunately, when the reports are found to be untrue, these same newspapers which reported the so-called crime by colored persons do not carry a follow-up emphasizing that the culprit making the false statement to police has used an age-old dodge.

A CASE in point is this story of the "robbery" of a Sunpapers route salesman.

Route Supervisor Of Sunpapers Robbed

A route supervisor for the Sunpapers was robbed of $29 at knifepoint yesterday while he was making collections in the 1100 block North Carey street.

James E. McCleaf, 28, of the 1900 block Whistler avenue, told police he was held up by two Negroes as he was about to enter his parked automobile. The money was in a brown paper bag.

Bail Set In Report Of False Robbery

James E. McCleaf, Jr., 23, of the 1900 block Whistler avenue, was held in $500 bail today for action of the grand jury on charges of false robbery report and larceny of $29.

McCleaf, a route supervisor for The Sunpapers, pleaded guilty to giving a false report that he was robbed New Year's Eve while making collections. Police reported $27 recovered.

(NOTE: The first story refers to the race of the suspected criminals. However, the second story in which the newsman admits he was not robbed, there was no mention made regarding race.)

Fortunately, there is now a law which subjects persons convicted of making false reports to police to a maximum of six months in jail or a $500 fine or both.

What we are pinpointing here is the irreparable harm which is done by newspapers which use racial tags in news items when it is not pertinent to the story.

Needless segregation

Baltimore Health Department figures since 1953 show that the death rate of colored persons for Baltimore city is equal to or less than the death rate for white people for four straight years, 1953, 1954, 1955 and 1956.

Here are the figures:

In 1953 the white death rate per 1,000 population was 11.2 and the colored 11.0.

In 1954, the death rates were equal at 10.6.

In 1955, the white death rate was 11.4, while the colored remained at 10.6.

In 1956, the white death rate rose to 11.7, while the colored was 10.8.

THE REPORT of the Health Commissioner indicates he has been keeping these figures since 1935. In that year, the colored death rate was 18.0 as compared to the white death rate of 11.7.

It is to be noted that in these 22 years the colored death rate has been reduced 7.2 per cent and the white death rate today is exactly what it was 21 years ago.

It also needs to be pointed out that the 10.6 rate for colored persons in the years 1954-55 is the lowest for either white or colored in the 20-year period.

Twenty years ago, the Health Department thought it necessary to segregate the listings of deaths because the colored people had the higher rate.

NOW THAT the death rate is lower for colored people than for white, what, it may logically be asked, is the argument for continued segregation in compiling such statistics?

We submit there is none.

We therefore urge Governor McKeldin to order the practice be ceased in the state health department and Mayor D'Alesandro do the same for the city health department.

Who's disorderly?

The recent arrest of Dr. Benjamin Gordon by a Northeastern District policeman who charged him with disorderly conduct because the dentist inquired his badge number raises the question again as to what constitutes disorderly conduct.

In dismissing Dr. Gordon, Magistrate Simon Schonfield ruled that a simple request for a policeman's badge number does not of itself constitute disorderly conduct.

The dentist has given notice that he will file a civil suit against the officers involved for false arrest.

There are entirely too many of these wanton arrests of colored citizens by policemen who resent any inquiry or discussion of their actions.

IN THE PAST, it has been common for law enforcement officers in Baltimore to charge colored citizens with disorderly conduct or disturbing the peace simply because they themselves are impatient, displeased or in general resentful of searching inquiry.

But the courts have given notice that they will not support a policeman when he alleges disorderly conduct or disturbing the peace when his own peace is the only peace that is disturbed.

As Judge O'Dunne held in Murphy vs. Heinz, a policeman who trespasses unduly on the constitutional rights of citizens may be personally responsible in damage suits.

The Digest of Laws for the Police Department, Page 101, clearly defines disorderly conduct as "any conduct tending to cause or provoke a breach of the peace, or to disturb the peace or quiet of the community, or to corrupt the morals of the people."

Nothing in this section says a policeman can place such charges simply because he resents an inquiry or is himself disturbed.

Speak Your Piece

What time was it?

Dear AFRO:

Your real time in Friday's paper on the first baby born in the new year said he was born at 12:01. That was one minute after midnight but the baby was born one second after midnight. You write that 12:001.

GEORGE LEWIS

Dear AFRO:

The figure 12:01 is not one second after midnight. It's one minute. You write one second, 12:00-1.

JUSTINE FREEMAN

Dear AFRO:

Obviously your head writer does not know the difference between minutes and seconds.

ALBERT ROBINSON

(EDITOR'S NOTE: According to the Enoch Pratt Free Library, one second after midnight is indicated by writing 12:00-1. In the Armed Forces it would be written 0001. However, most journals write it 12:001 a.m.)

On So. Balto. Gen.

Dear AFRO:

I am glad to see that the AFRO has taken a stand on the situation at South Baltimore General Hospital.

It is outrageous that citizens of color are forced to suffer such humiliation.

I have heard rumors that colored employees at that institution are not even provided with the same type of meals as white workers.

The story goes that "down south" cooking is provided for one section of the hospital while first class meals are served on the other side.

Sightseeing

By JAMES D. WILLIAMS

Saddest sight of them all, the poor Christmas trees that have served their purpose, tossed out in the alley for the trash man to lug away.

Even sadder sight — the crestfallen faces that result from the opening of all those bills made during the holidays which will take until next Christmas to pay.

Sadder still — the heart-breaking promises "it won't be like this next year." . . . I wouldn't take a bet. . .

STRANGE that with all the business that local banks do with you and I, not nary a brown face do you see in such institutions unless the owners are pushing brooms or toting messages.

If I had me some money I'd open up a bank of my own with me as president, vice-president and treasurer.

Of course with all these titles I would keep me kind of busy and all I would have time to do is to stand at the front door and see that nobody made off with the pens.

ALL MY employees would wear clothes without any pockets and I wouldn't hire nobody I knew.

I would never fire anybody except for one reason — if they started showing up for work driving a Cadillac.

To make life interesting for my depositors I would have a little game.

Every day I would count up the money and then whoever had the bankbook with the number that corresponded to the last three numbers of the money in the bank that day could get his money back with 250 per cent interest.

Boy I bet the people would just swamp me with business.

Now all I need is a partner with some money and some nerve.

STORE IN the vicinity of North Ave. and Bloomingdale Rd., seems to have solved a problem rather neatly, if you like that kind of solution.

There was the store with most of its customers members of the nation's biggest minority group, and a policy of serving such customers in paper cups and not serving them at all in the booths.

So what did they do? They took out the booths. Now ain't that something.

DRIVING DOWN Druid Hill Ave., in the early morning, drivers find the sun shining directly in their eyes.

One female driver handled the problem in typical female fashion.

She took her hands off the wheels, put her sun glasses on, and never blinked an eye.

Of course the car was moving all the time.

She wasn't disturbed but she sure upset everybody else.

Send cards of cheer to the Rev. G. M. Edwards, veteran pastor of Pennsylvania Ave. AME Zion church.

Since Sunday, he has been a patient at the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Pneumonia got him—as he was preparing for gala services at the church to mark dedication of a $40,000 addition to the church building and a Hammond organ and Baby grand piano.

Your cards will reach him on Osler 5, John Hopkins Hospital.

Reliable reports are that a minister of a large Methodist church is considering an offer to return to the Big City where he once pastored.

And that another Methodist minister, pastor of a growing Northwest Baltimore congregation is slated to replace him.

The new regime of the Monumental City Bar Association takes over when the group meets on Saturday.

Linwood Koger Jr. is the new president. He defeated L. Theodore Hayes for the post at the recent election.

The vote was 20 to 13. He succeeds Dallas Nicholas.

* * *

All new officers — most of them younger members of the Bar, now hold office in the association.

Only holdover officer—William Murphy, treasurer, who was reelected.

And, by the way, if you heard reports that the Monumental Bar Association was about to disband now that the Baltimore City Bar Association is integrated, this is to report that it ain't so.

The new regime of the Monumental Group says the group will remain in existence until the City Bar Association offers more than token integration.

Slim Myers, by purchasing the Tijuana, is getting back the business he once owned.

Question of the week is whether he can also get the liquor license too.

Those in the know say the public auction on Wednesday was merely a paper transaction.

Slim, they explain, held mortages on the business, and foreclosed when the buyer was unable to carry out his end of the bargain.

Confused? So am I!

MR. THOMAS MRS. FORREST Here's hoping. . . . Where is she?

Judging from the undercurrents heard at the Frontiers dinner meeting last month, and from the reports which came out of the organization's Tuesday business meeting, all is not well in the ranks of this group.

Seems as though there is a battle between members who want to go all -out and raise funds, for worthy community groups and those who want to give most of the support to their national project, the sickle cell anemia foundation at Howard U.

Reports at the Tuesday meeting showed that there had been heard a dozen resignations in the past year.

Latest was that of A. Jack Thomas, 1957 president, who announced he "needed a rest" after being president for a year.

He made no bones about the fact that he was, highly displeased with the failure of the group to approve any portion of the program he submitted.

Mr. Thomas, who has been chairman of a group of prima donnas (and the Frontiers being composed of topflight men in the community fall in this class) will sympathize with Mr. Thomas.

Here's hoping things will look up for the Frontiers in 1958. Goodness knows they have been in a rut. We need a strong organization of business and professional men.

* * *

Aside to Frontiers members: Outsiders are saying your membership rolls are top-heavy with professional people who are not always available to do important groundwork.

They say you are overlooking able young men in business and trades who would be an asset to a truly representative (community group).

Can you help? — President Hospital officials are trying to locate Mrs. Evangeline Forrest or her next of kin.

She was an x-ray technician at the Hospital for over 20 years and is believed to have been living in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Edith Fields, the hospital records clerk was in the process of locating Mrs. Forrest when she died last month, so now all contact is lost.

If Mrs. Fields, who was a friend of Mrs. Forrest's whereabouts, President Hospital will be glad to hear from you.

Magistrate Linwood Koger Sr. is readying for his Caribbean cruise next month.

They do say that that his selection of resort clothes is out of this world!

Visitor in our town this week: Handsome Ambrose Nutt, formerly of Detroit, now of Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

He is a branch manager of Research Division, Army Air Force, heads a crew of 50 or more.

He was here for a space meeting of the ARDC (Air Force Research Division Command) at a downtown hotel.

Baltimore friends recall that Mr. Nutt was a mathematical wizard when he was growing up in Detroit and that he finished high school at age 15.

He holds a B.S. and a M.A. degree in aeronautical engineering from the University of Michigan, where he was studying when Baltimore's Warren Weaver was a student there.

Mr. Nutt was not lodged at a downtown hotel but at the Druid's YMCA. He was not aware that some of our hotels are democratic now and so he did not make his reservation in time.

John W. Whitten dies in New York

WASHINGTON

John W. Whitten, 48, member of President Roosevelt's so-called "Black Cabinet" and assistant to Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, died in New York City, Tuesday.

Funeral services will be held at McGuire's Funeral Home at 1 p.m. Saturday. Burial will be at the Lincoln Memorial Cemetery.

MR. WHITTEN held many important policy-making posts during his career with the Federal government, among which were race relations officer to the WPA, administrative assistant to the NYA, public relations officer to the OPA, executive assistant to the Recorder of Deeds, Washington, and an analyst to the WAA.

He was Compliance Investigator to Area Rent Control, upper Manhattan, NYC, at the time of his death.

Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Louise Whitten, member of the staff at Freedmen's Hospital, here, and a sister, Mrs. Hattie Austin, Roanoke, Va.

REPORT OF THE UNITED BAPTIST MINISTERS EVENING CONFERENCE of BALTIMORE and VICINITY

The Conference closed a record breaking year December 29, 1957, numerically and financially. Thirty members were added. $700 was raised. $300 was given to charity. All debts were paid, and $100 was left in the treasury.

The President, Rev. G. M. Harris, received for his closing message $20, and $10 for Easter.

The Headquarters for the Conference has been at the New Harlem Square Baptist Church for the past eleven years.

Rev. G. M. Harris, Founder, Builder and Pastor of the above named church, and retiring president of the Conference, wishes to thank the Conference for its loyalty during the year of 1957.

By HERBERT MANGRUM

By now everyone is aware that a large majority of people don't care to live within the city limits anymore.

America has gone suburbia crazy and our town is going along with the fad.

Stumbled across the best illustration of the trend of the times during a visit in the office of Commissioner James B. Monroe at the Department of Motor Vehicles.

He has figures to show that 20 years
