ANNAPOLIS DINGS

By ELOISE RICHARDSON

A marriage of much interest in this community was that of Miss Lois Haley, public school music teacher, and Alfred Blackstone, a senior student at Morgan College.

The former Miss Haley is the daughter of Mrs. Zeona Haley, critic teacher in Elementary Education at West Virginia State College, and Simon Alexander Haley, recently retired head of the Department of Agriculture at Arkansas State College at Pine Bluff.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lovie Blackstone and the late Lawrence Blackstone, and a member of one of the oldest and leading families of Annapolis.

After a quiet ceremony before only members of the two immediate families, the wedding reception followed at the Blackstone residence.

THE BRIDE was sweet and demure in a white Valenelace ankle length town frock lined along bouffant lines with a high neckline and jewelry length sleeves.

She wore a white sequined cloche and rhinestone accessories, and her vinyl pumps were accented by rhinestone bows. Her hand bouquet was made up of white carnations, centered by a white orchid.

The Blackstone residence, which sits on a high hill, was ablaze on the outside with Christmas lights, and the interior carried out the Christmas motif in decorations with a lovely Christmas tree.

Hostesses were Mesdames Mary Williams and Godfrey Blackstone, and Miss Delores Blackstone, assisted by Mesdames Victoria Sims, Lovie Jacobs and Mary S. Blackstone and Miss Bertha Carter.

THOSE IN the receiving line were the bride and bridegroom; Mrs. Haley, of Institute, W.Va., mother of the bride; Mrs. Charlotte Payne of New York City, cousin of the bride, and James Blackstone of Baltimore, brother of the bridegroom.

Other out-of-town guests included:

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Haley, the bride's brother and his wife, and little son, and Mr. and Mrs. James Whitley, all of Washington.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Walker Shields and daughter, Sheila, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas, Mrs. Everett Johnson and Mrs. James Blackstone, all of Baltimore.

Also Miss Muriel King of Yonkers, N.Y., Miss Vandola Jenkins of New York City, cousin of the bridegroom.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hunter and sons, Mrs. Ethel Parker and Mrs. Annie Hardy, all of Anoskie, N.C., and Lt. and Mrs. Jeremiah Hawkins of Fort Benning, Ga.

Mrs. Blackstone, a graduate of West Virginia State College, is public school music teacher at the Stanton and Eastport Elementary Schools.

The couple will be at home to friends at the Blackstone residence in Admiral Drive.

AH, HOW sweet doth love's charms seem when a married couple can look over a span of time and realizes how much they were meant for each other.

The J. Alexander Wiseman's must have experienced this feelings on Christmas Day when joined along bouffant lines with a high neckline and jewelry length sleeves.

MRS. HELEN MATTHEWS died Sunday morning. Friends and neighbors are sending their condolences.

Hats off to Ernest Smack of Ferndale. Every Sunday on his way to church in Linthicum he stops off and brings several of his neighbors to John Wesley Methodist Church.

He then comes back and gets Mrs. Hammond and Mrs. Hebron and carries their home.

He has also given several donations to the church.

Last Sunday he not only brought them but came in to worship and said he enjoyed the service and will be back soon with his family.

Of incidental note is the fact that he is a member of the other race. The Rev. S. J. Mack is pastor.

DOWN GALESVILLE WAY: An occasion never to be forgotten by the children of Galesville was the holiday party hosted by the Community Club at the recently attained Community Center on Saturday.

About 100 children, from 2 to 12 years old, were greeted by Santa Claus and received bags of candy and oranges as gifts.

The decorations of holly, running cedar and icicles and a huge Christmas tree, were very gay and lent a refreshing atmosphere. After the singing of carols, the fun started for the group with games and music for dancing.

Mrs. Harriet Hull, assisted by Miss Reba Turner, made 100 cup cakes, decorated in the Christmas motif. These were served along with ice cream and punch.

Clifton Greene and Howard Sellman were in charge of Games. The goodies were served by Mesdames Mary Sellman and Nannie Crowner and Misses Reba Turner and Constance Crowner. Santa Claus was played by Benjamin Crowner Jr.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. James Crowner entertained Christmas Day, having as guests, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Fountain, Mrs. Geneva Ballard, Calvin Turner, Alexander Crowner, Samuel Diggs and Leroy Phillips.
