Harlem Park site

Residents living outside of the Harlem Park neighborhood are not likely to get a clear understanding of what is involved in the current controversy over location of an elementary and junior high school in that section.

In a nutshell, these are the facts: The Urban Renewal and Housing Agency, School Board and other allied city groups propose to build two schools on a site encompassing 1400 and 1500 Harlem Ave., 1400-1500 W. Lanvale; 700-800 Calhoun and 700 block Gilmor St.

These schools would serve approximately 3,000 children who can't be accommodated at existing schools in the area and also meet anticipated school population increases in the next decade.

• • •

OPPOSED TO location of the schools in these blocks are a majority of the residents of the area who belong to the Harlem Park Homeowners' Association.

They say, in essence, we know the need of additional schools in our area. Through the years we have backed neighborhood improvements, better recreational facilities, but we think the planners have not thoroughly studied our area.

These residents suggest that the plans be reviewed looking towards enlarging the urban renewal area so that the schools would be built on a site which is four blocks north of the present site and in an area bounded by Laurens, Calhoun, Mosher and Gilmor Sts., because the original site:—

1. Takes in a portion of Harlem Square for a playground to adjoin the proposed schools. The neighborhood has too little park space as it is.

2. Would raze substantial houses in the 1400 and 1500 blocks of Harlem Ave.—many of them one-family homes which residents have occupied for years.

If the aim of urban renewal is not to tear down substantial homes but improve areas where there is overcrowding, the homes in the area north of the original site qualify because many of them are multiple family dwellings.

• • •

AND, THE opponents go a step further. They say that through the years—wherever there was a proposal to build a school or recreational area in their section of Northwest Baltimore, somebody immediately suggested Harlem Square.

Back in the 1940's, it was a plan to put a recreational building there. Later, it was suggested as the site for Carver High.

Yet, they say in the immediate area are older houses, many of them overcrowded, where an urban renewal plan would work wonders and the entire city would benefit through the reduced crime rate, and better housing facilities.

And to the planners who argue that their alternate proposal is not in the urban renewal area and the city can not get Federal funds to help build the schools there, the residents answer that the city planners secured approval of their plans to enlarge the boundaries of Redevelopment Area 12 and there is reason to suppose it could get similar approval here.

• • •

THIS PROGRAM of urban renewal is new to all of us. It is reasonable to presume that in the beginning there will be some mistakes in judgment and/or planning.

But certainly it can not be said that the residents of the Harlem Park area—the homeowners—are disinterested in improving their area.

For twenty years they have been an organized force working hand in hand with the city to keep the area up. Often, they have worked against great odds, particularly when they have had to battle liquor outlets and taverns.

The differences here are between two sides, both concerned with making a better city.

It would seem to us that the elected representatives of these people would work toward amicable adjustment of the differences without infringing on the open air space of Harlem Square so that we could get on with the building of a better Baltimore.

A misleading statement

This is YMCA week.

Ten YMCA branches propose to honor "the youth of the city, promote Christian fellowship and urge church attendance."

Commenting on these broad ideals, the YMCA management authorized the following public statement:

"Membership in the YMCA is open to everyone. Boys and girls, men and women of every age, race and creed are welcome at the Y, as it is non-sectarian."

• • •

THIS IS a beautiful statement. But it is misleading and completely untrue for the following reasons:

1. Active membership in the YMCA, under its constitution, is not open to youths of the Jewish faith.

Our Jewish friends are solicited for donations, but not for active membership.

2. The YMCA in Baltimore is so fearful of the Catholic faith, it limits the number of memberships on its board that are open to Catholics.

3. As to colored people, youths who are not white are welcome in only five of the 10 branches in Baltimore City.

Ons is the fairly modern building on Druid Hill Avenue.

Another is an office in Turner Station. The modern Y in nearby Dundalk is for white youngsters only.

• • •

THE BALTIMORE YMCA is a Christian jim crow organization — if you can put those two terms together.

We readily admit that as a private organization it has a right to its prejudices, its practices and its beliefs.

But it has no right, shamelessly, to issue a public statement that it is non-sectarian and that it welcomes men and women of every color, race and creed.

Is Devereux the man?

Gov. Theodore McKeldin is our first Republican chief executive since the late Harry W. Nice (1935-39). He is now serving his second four-year term and is prohibited by law from seeking a third term.

Usually, Maryland has a Republican governor about every 20 years, but if the Republicans are wise they might well set a precedent and return a member of their party to Annapolis in 1959.

But before they nominate Congressman James P. S. Devereux or any other candidate to head their ticket, they would do well to consult the colored leadership of this state.

Mr. Devereux is an honorable gentleman.

He is completing his fourth term as congressman representing the Second District which covers Baltimore, Carroll and Harford Counties. During World War II, he was a Marine hero on Wake Island.

However, Mr. Devereux's congressional record published on Page 3 in this edition, shows that he has consistently voted against civil rights and against legislation designed to broaden democracy in housing and public education.

• • •

ACCORDING TO the latest figures, there are 86,187 colored persons registered to vote in Baltimore city alone.

Of this number, 34,875 are Republicans.

With his anti-civil rights record, would Mr. Devereux command their strength in a primary?

Like colored people, Republicans are a minority here in Maryland, so a divided Republican party is lost to begin with.

If the Republicans want to win, they will name as a candidate for Governor someone who can unite all members of the party as well as draw additional votes from the Democratic side.

In view of this, the question arises, is Mr. Devereux that man?

Thought of the week

"Let us build the strength of our understanding and powers of tolerance that young 1958 never will suffer the ignominy of 1957's senile September when the Governor of a great State stooped to the creation of a condition of fear and hatred to serve his selfish ends . . ."

Gov. Theodore McKeldin — from his message for the Emancipation Proclamation Anniversary Program.

Speak Your Piece

Braxton's mother

Dear AFRO:

I am so glad today (Jan. 14) I hardly know what to say, but I do hope I can find the right words to express myself.

My heart is exceedingly glad and filled with joy.

My God, the Most High Supreme Ruler of Heaven and Earth, with His finger of love touched the heart of the governor and gave the command to his obedient servant—one who is well acquainted with His—to spare the life of Alvin H. Braxton.

May God bless Governor McKeldin, the AFRO and everyone for the prayers and help

Commends governor

Dear AFRO:

I have written to Governor McKeldin and commended him for exercising the power of his office by showing mercy to Alvin H. Braxton.

At the time of his crime, Braxton was 17 years old, one year over the age when he would legally have been considered "an infant."

Undoubtedly, he should be punished.

I hope and pray that this boy will be given psychiatric help, so he can do some useful work, and show his gratitude to God, our governor and those interested people who

"White man win battle, great victory; Injun win, massacre."

Bitter words to this effect were expressed by a warrior in a film about the great Indian, Jim Thorpe, Indian, in a reference to the place in United States history of this country's first settlers.

Happily, the worm has turned; at least in the southern part of North Carolina.

A living testimony to this 180-degree switch is what happened to the North Carolina-South Carolina branch of the Ku Klux Klan last weekend.

THESE WHITE Protestants and restwhile dictators of what is good for America lost the battle, their sheets and dignity to boot in one of the most hilarious skirmishes on record.

The Lumbee Indians — who apparently have a marvelous sense of humor or were not bowled over by recent cross burnings of the KKK intended as a threat because they (the Indians) audaciously acted like full blooded Americans.

The KKK sent up smoke screens advertising a big rally (or was it pow wow) on the Indians' stomping ground.

The braves sent up smoke screens warning the KKK not to speak with crooked tongue at said rally (pow wow).

In a maneuver that would have warmed the heart of old Chief Crazy Horse, the Lumbee Indians completely routed the Klan.

And to heap insult on injury, the KKK received the worst reviews of the battle.

Sleep well in Happy Hunting Ground old Crazy Horse, Sitting Bull, Cochise, things are looking up.

EEOC regulation

Dear AFRO:

This is to call your attention to Section 10 (c) 3 of Ordinance 379 which makes it an unlawful employment practice for any employer to cause to be printed, published or circulated any notice or advertisement of a discriminatory nature, and to Section 10 (g) which makes it an unlawful practice for any person to aid in the doing of any act declared to be an unfair employment practice.

To implement these sections of the ordinance, the Commission has adopted Regulation No. 3.

As you perhaps know, the Commission has already mailed copies of Ordinance 379 to more than 10,000 employers as well as to employment agencies and labor organizations, by virtue of which they are on notice of its terms and provisions.

The Commission has also made spot - checks of major newspapers and has notified those who have placed discriminatory want ads that to do so violated Ordinance 379.

While the Commission has no desire to hinder the activities of the press, it must, nonetheless, see to it that the provisions of the law are complied with.

The Commission would be happy to meet with the representatives of your newspaper at any time if you feel it necessary to implement the provisions of the regulation.

In Georgia, where anything can happen and sometimes does, one of the elected representatives has given birth to a bill which would require you to get some blood they won't pull a fast one and give you some you may not want.

Now there's a perfect situation for a TV script to end all TV scripts and quite possibly TV itself.

• • •

THE DRAMA would open in an operating room with tense faced doctors and even tenser nurses (somebody hid the tranquilizer pills) standing around killing time until they can find something a little more substantial to work on.

The doors to the operating room swing open and two disgusting attendants (now we know where the tranquilizers really went) wheel in the patient, a high-born Southern gentleman.

Mr. Brown you've the biggest man in the whole entire South. You've got more money than there are bolls of cotton in Alabama, but you've got to have some blood," says the head doctor, a nut if we ever saw one.

Mr. Brown raises his tired white head and says: "Have you got any pure 100 per cent southern Anglo Saxon blood?"

• • •

THE DOCTOR sadly nods his head: "No we're fresh out, but we got some Lumbee Indian blood, some real red Chinese blood and some fresh colored blood."

"Mercy," says Mrs. Brown, "ain't you all got no western Indian Sioux blood or even some Russian blood, or if push comes to shove some white Yankee blood?

The doctor shakes his head again, "No."

"This is b— of a way to run a hospital," croaks Mr. Smith, "no white blood, I'm done for, darn that NAACP."

And with that he lowers his head and really does croak.

As they wheel his pale body out the band plays Dixie, somebody waves a Confederate flag and the doctors stand at attention while the nurses start picking up the attendants' who really hadn't been sampling the tranquilizer pills, but had actually been ripping on the medicinal alcohol.

Gad, what a show . . .

TUESDAY'S edition of the AFRO carried in the magazine section an enlightening article on the South's big stick, the cigarettes.

Right now filters are all the rage, even though nobody is quite certain whether the old fashioned loose end kind of cigarette causes anything more serious than a little bad breath.

My latest brainstorm concerns cashing in on this.

You know the place where they now have the filter, why I would replace the filter with tobacco.

Where the tobacco is now located I would put a filter.

You might not get much of a smoke, but by George you would have one heck of a filter.

Folks in this neck of the woods take their basketball seriously, and to tell the truth, its contagious.

The basketball bug has bitten me also.

I'm beginning to get a big charge each time Dunbar wins a game.

I've been told that when a person wins a story he is supposed to be impartial, but for me it was difficult to look the other way Tuesday when Carver threw a scare into Dunbar.

Thought for sure an upset was in the making.

Some of those coeds were on the verge of shedding tears when the hands on the clock reached the one minute mark and the Poets were still trailing.

IN MY estimation the best ovation of the day was not for Carver or Dunbar, but for the attractive Miss who strolled across the court at half-time in one of those new sack dresses.

What a howl those school boys (and some grown men) let out when she passed by.

And now she blushed.

I decided then and there that one picture is not always worth thousand words.

From the pictures I had seen of the sack look I was all against it. Now, I'm all for it.

Of course this young lady, who appeared to be a teacher, was equipped to supply that little bold orange dress with everything that it demanded.

On her, the dress looked good. On someone else it's hard to say.

THAT SEXARAMA now on the screen of a North Ave. movie house has drawn raves and I'm wondering why.

The story didn't have much of a plot, but I imagine only a few people noticed the story line anyway.

I'm a old timer, but I can recall a few years back when some of the things that were shown on the screen would have made this particular flicker look tame by comparison.

One Newington Ave. house-wife reportedly almost did her old man in this week because he wouldn't take her to see the movie in question.

Prose and poetry

Dear AFRO:

I believe you should devote one column in each edition of your paper to a good short story — I mean good literature, and also publish a poem in each edition.

Even a poor poem is better than none. In fact there should be two poems, one a classic and one on the homey side.

I believe you are underestimating your people by not doing as I suggest and believe your readers will be looking forward to it.

I further believe you should add to your Credo: To help the people and to give them the

People, places and things

Mrs. Bertha D. Boyle, long time Baltimore resident, was buried on Monday following services at Israel Baptist Church in Washington. She had made her home in Washington at 4407 Ord St., NE, for several years.

Mrs. Boyle was the widow of Dr. Edward Mayfield Boyle, practicing medic here. He died in 1936. She had been hospitalized since early December. The Rev. R. T. Newbold, pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church here gave the eulogy at the funeral. Mrs. Boyle kept her membership in Grace even though she had moved away.

Mrs. Boyle

Several Grace members attended the funeral.

Survivors are a daughter, Leona Thompson, formerly librarian here at Coppin, now a librarian in the Washington schools; Mayfield Jr., who lives in New York; and Bryden, who is a Howard University lab technician. There are also four grandchildren. Remember when the Boyle family lived at 588 Presstman St.??

• • •

Funeral services were held here in Baltimore on Monday for Henry B. Mann Sr. He was a member of the State Legislature in 1924.

I remember him best, however, as magistrate at the Northeastern Police Station. He was a police court magistrate from 1939-47.

It was Magistrate Mann who was presiding in Northeastern that Sunday morning back in May, 1941 when AFRO President Carl Murphy was arrested in his home by Officer Horace Heinze who resented his inability to answer questions about his wife's auto accident.

It was Magistrate Mann who explained to the officer—who is now no longer on the force—that a citizen is not compelled to answer questions of police officers if they don't know the answers and a policeman can't charge a citizen with disturbing the peace when it's only the officer's peace which is disturbed.

And Magistrate Mann's opinion was upheld by Judge Eugene O'Dunne in City Court when he awarded Mr. Murphy $1,000 for false arrest. (An award later cut to $25 by the Court of Appeals).

Mrs. Agnes Boykin who died suddenly on Sunday morning, was known as a faithful worker in the Provident Hospital and Labor Guild.

In fact, she had paid her annual membership a few days before her death.

About this and that...

People in some college circles are talking about a shortage in funds from a recent sports event, sponsored by the school.

Officials are not talking about whether they have taken any official action.

A week back, we carried an item reporting that Provident Hospital wanted the current address of its former longtime X-ray technician; Mrs. Enagelina Forrest.

This is to report that the AFRO reached her—Mrs. Forrest read the note and advises she is now living with her daughter and son-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Charles Cook, Ninth Infantry Division, Fort Carson, Colo.

School Board minutes last week said Douglass High was accepting $2,000 worth of shrubs for school grounds from its PTA.

Douglass reports that they are not so fortunate. The $2,000 shrubs et al were for Carver High from its PTA.

Business and Professional Women's benefit card party for their scholarship fund is tonight (Friday) at the YW.

Tomorrow (Saturday) members of the Baltimore group will attend the B and P executive meeting in Newark. Mrs. Lena K. Lee is president of the Baltimore group.

Dr. and Mrs. Sidney Burnett (Vivian) have, both of their twins, a home in Provident where they put in a surprise appearance last week. The girl had to remain an extra seven days in an incubator.

The Rev. and Mrs. Rufus Abernethy Jr. (Agnes) are expecting an addition to their family. They have a two-year-old boy.

The Rev. Mr. Abernethy is the Methodist minister at West minister. Mrs. Abernethy is music instructor at Coppin State Teachers' College.

Howard Jenkins, who is with the Labor Department in Washington, was speaker at the Du-Bois Circle meeting this week at the YW.

More people and things...

Local Howardites have been hosting Dr. Fred Wilkinson, field agent who is here on a money raising drive for the university program.

He is staying at the Druid Hill YM where he says, "I have the loveliest room and bath—one of the nicest I have ever had anywhere in this country ...the only thing it is on the fourth floor—pretty high for an old man."

Although he says he is over 68, Dr. Wilkinson looks much younger. In fact, he is as handsome as he was years ago. There are a few grey hairs and his walk is slower, but he seems the same friendly person he always was. I guess one of the things which has kept him young-looking is his marvelous sense of humor. It was refreshing to sit and chat with him.

Dr. Wilkinson will be here in Baltimore until Monday. So far this week he has talked with over 100 of the alumni. Let him hear from you.

Visiting hereabouts — Reginald Young, formerly of Baltimore, now with the Philadelphia department — and his bride-to-be, cute Phyllis Rogers, a Philly social security worker.

They have a date with the parson on or about June 7. It will be a big church wedding. She's the daughter of Mrs. George Rogers and the late Dr. Rogers.

He's the son of the Russell Youngs of Madison Ave.

Her engagement ring is a beautiful solitaire.

Mrs. Warren Brown of Crestwood, N.Y., spent the weekend here with her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Julian and her brothers, Dr. James and Dr. Emerson and her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth White.

Mrs. Brown, is off for Damascus (Syria) to join her husband (he's the famed doctor who is on a year's special job for the United Nations) who flew over a week back.

Thought of the week...

Mrs. Roy Hamilton Lively submits these words for hospital patients in the current issue of Forward:

"Have you ever wondered what to do with the long hours in a hospital room?
