THIS IS THE SITE, as indicated by the dark lines, that the Department of Education wants to use as the location of a new junior high school and an elementary school. The high school would occupy the 1400 and 1500 blocks of Harlem Ave. and Lanvale St., bounded by Gilmor St. and Calhoun St. The elementary school would be in the square block between the 800 blocks Calhoun and Stricker Sts. The present situation developed when some residents of the area said the school should be placed in the area bounded by Gilmor St., Laurens St., Calhoun St., and Mosher St. Officials of the Urban Renewal and Housing Commission have said that this second site is out of the Harlem Park Urban Renewal Area and that all renewal plans for the area have been based on having the two schools on the site favored by the Department of Education. The difference of opinion on where the school should be located is expected to be resolved Monday when the Judiciary Committee of the City Council meets to take action on a condemnation ordinance involving the properties on the initial site.

the Urban Renewal area.

"The whole process of city and Federal government action in such cases is a slow process.

"Any changes may mean negotiations of some 18 months or more. And to expand an enlargement of the area to put one school there may disqualify us for Federal funds."

COUNCILMAN LISS interrupted to state:

"When Harlem Park was first suggested as an Urban Renewal area, there was no suggestion of a school there.

"There was to be a program of building, and not one of tearing down.

Fifth District Councilman Michael J. Hankin asked Mr. Sondheim:

"Wouldn't it be a valid reason to say that expansion of the area is needed because of adjacent slums?"

BEFORE HE could answer, Leo. A. Rubenstein, Fifth District Councilman also posed this query to Mr. Sondheim:

"Is your Urban Renewal program going to be handicapped if a school is not placed there?"

"Yes, sir," Mr. Sondheim answered. "Because all the planning that has been going on is based on this pattern. Street patterns have been changed."

A SUGGESTION that the School Board in selecting the Harlem Park area as the school site could be making a mistake, was made by NAACP Attorney Bundy when his turn came to speak.

Mr. Bundy said: "We are against tearing down good housing in this instance. The School Board does make mistakes.

A mistake he referred to is the new school at Barre and Warner Sts., which Mr. Bundy said is in the midst of an industrial area and is half empty. He added that in this instance the School Board didn't get the large number of pupils it anticipated when it planned the school.

Dr. Fischer countered that the school board did not make a mistake in the Barre and Warner St. school and that children who attend there now were removed from dilapidated buildings into modern facilities.

Mr. Bundy insisted that the population the school board needed for this school aren't there . . . the school board does make mistakes.

Council President Abramson commented: "The only issue here is what is best for the most people. I am sorry to see the NAACP take a stand here."

Other speakers heard were Mrs. Lillie M. Jackson, president of the NAACP; who spoke against the School Board site; and Mrs. Esther Ferrell, a member and Mrs. Brooks, chairman of the Harlem Park Council, who spoke for the site as did Solomon Baylor, an attorney member of the Council.
