The 'Florence'
IS THE BEST
Family Sewing Machine
IN THE WORLD.
IT is so easily managed, that an ordinary girl of ten years of age has sense and muscle enough to run it perfectly.—It is the only machine that makes four kinds of stitches, and the only one that has a reversible feed, whereby the operator is enabled to sew backward or forward without stopping the work. It is the only machine having a self adjusting shuttle tension—a great improvement over all others, rendering it easy to do good work on any fabric. It has an improved hemmer which will hem anything and make perfect corners. It tucks, hems, fells, cords, braids, quilts, etc., without basting. It makes a gather and sews it to a band at one operation perfectly. It fastens the ends of a seam better and quicker than can be done by a seamstress. It runs light and quickly; the needle is easily adjusted and it uses less thread than any other machine.
We respectfully refer to the following ladies and gentlemen who have the 'Florence' machine in use in their families—(some of them for five years past) as to its merits, &c.:

Nicholas Willis,	Jas. H. Gossage,
Dr. J. S. Chaplain,	Wm. B. Townsend,
Sol. S. Hopkins,	T. W. Collins,
Jno. W. Kemp,	J. Vansant,
Saml. Stewart,	Mrs. Bray,
Jas. Oxenham,	Mrs. Margt. Stewart,
Wm. H. Seth,	and others.

Every machine warranted and kept in order, and instructions given. Machine oil, needles and cotton for sale. Call and examine the article.

DR. RADWAY'S
Sarsaparillian Resolvent
Has made the most astonishing cures; so quick, so rapid are the changes the body undergoes, under the influence of this truly wonderful medicine, that Every day an increase in Flesh and Weight is seen and felt.
THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.
Every drop of the Sarsaparillian Resolvent communicates through the Blood, Sweat Urine, and other fluids and juices of the system the vigor of life, for it repairs the wastes of the body with new and sound material, Scrotula, Syphill, Consumption, Glandular diseases, Ulcers in the throat, Mouth, Tumors, Nodes in the Glands and other parts of the system, Sore Eyes, Strumous discharges from the eyes, the worst form, of Skin diseases, Eruptions, Fever Sores, Scald Head, Ring Worms, Tumors, Cancers in the Womb, and all weakening and painful discharges, Night Sweats. Loss of Sperm and all wastes of the life principle, are within the curative range of this wonder of Modern Chemistry, and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease its potent power to cure them.
If the patient, daily becoming reduced by the wastes and decomposition that is continually progressing, succeeds in arresting these wastes, and repairs the same with new material made from healthy blood—and this the Sarsaparillian will and does secure—a cure is certain; for when once this remedy commences its work of purification, and succeeds in diminishing the loss of wastes, its repairs will be rapid, and every day the patient will feel himself growing better and stronger, the food digesting better, appetite improving, and flesh and weight increasing.
Not only does the Sarsaparillian Resolvent excell all known remedial agents in the cure of Chronic, Scrofulous, Constitutional, and Skin diseases; but it is the only positive cure for KIDNEY AND BLADDER COMPLAINTS, Urinary, and Womb diseases, Gravel, Diabetes, Dropsy, Stoppage of Water, Incontinence of Urine, Bright's Disease, Albuminuria, and in all cases where there are brick dust deposits, or the water is thick, cloudy, mixed with substances like the white of an egg, or threads like white silk, or there is a morbid, dark billious appearance, and white bone dust deposits, and when there is pricking, burning sensation when passing water, and pain in the Small of the Back and along the Loins.

All for Money.

What will not most people do,
All for money?
Anything, 'twixt I and you,
All for money.
Friend will turn his back on friend;
Haughty people have to bend,
Love some to old Harry send,
All for money.

As you travel on through life;
You will find it ever so—
Nothing like the ready cash,
For money makes the mare to go.

Some will swear that black is white,
All for money;
Do a wrong and say it's right,
All for money.
Moses he will swear to you
His old clothes are good as new;
Don't he make them fit you, too,
All for money.

Pretty girls can love old men,
All for money;
Even wed three score and ten,
All for money,
'Tis but a fool who ever dreams
That anything is what it seems;
The world is full of mocking schemes,
All for money.

Many people go to law
All for money;
Dentists nearly break your jaw,
All for money.
Tradesmen give you unjust weight,
Beggars tease you, early late.
Garrotters kindly on you wait,
All for money.

Lawyer's plead the fellow's cause
All for money,
Vow he has not broke the laws,
All for money.
Had he been on t'other side,
What a difference, and how wide;
To make him guilty he'd have tried,
All for money.

Don't the doctors physic you
All for money,
Give black draughts and blue pills, too,
All for money?
What their patients all endure
Any saint won't try, I'm sure—
They are good to kill or cure,
All for money.

Chalk and water milk men sell,
All for money;
Something else, perhaps, as well,
All for money.
Thus I will conclude my strain
With a sentence short and plain—
Everything is done for gain—
All for money.

THE STOLEN NOTE.
EXCEPT that he indulged too freely in the use of the intoxicating cup, John Wallace was an honest, high-minded and extraordinary man. His one great fault hung like a dark shadow over his many virtues. He meant well, and when he was sober did well.
He was a hatter by trade, and by industry and thrift he had secured money enough to buy the house in which he lived. He had purchased it several years before for three thousand dollars, paying one thousand down and securing the balance by mortgage to the seller.
The mortgage note was almost due at the time circumstances made me acquainted with the affairs of the family.—But Wallace was ready for the day; he had saved up the money; there seemed to be no possibility of an accident. I was well acquainted with Wallace, having done some little collecting, and drawn up legal documents for him. One day his daughter Annie came to my office in great distress, declaring that her father was ruined, and that they should be turned out of the house in which they lived.
"Perhaps not, Miss Wallace, said I, trying to console her, and give the affair, whatever it was, a bright aspect. What has happened?'
'My father,' she replied, 'had the money to pay the mortgage on the house in which we live, but it is all gone now.'
'Has he lost it?'
'I don't know; I suppose so. Lost from the bank and lent it to Mr. Bryce for ten days.'
'Who is Mr. Bryce?'
'He is a broker. My father got acquainted with him, through George Chandler, who boards with us, and who is Mr. Bryce's clerk.'
'Does Mr. Bryce refuse to pay it?
'He says he has paid it.'
'Well, what is the trouble then?'
'Father says he has not paid it.'
'Indeed! But the note will prove that he has paid it. Of course you have the note?'
'What does your father say?
'He is positive that he never received the money. The Mortgage, he says, must be paid to morrow.'
'Very singular! Was your father—'
I hesitated to use the unpleasant word which must have greated harshly on the ear of the devoted girl.
'Mr. Bryce says father was not quite right when he paid him, but not very bad.'
'I will see your father.'
'He is coming up here in a few moments; I thought I would see you first and tell you the facts before he came.'
'I do not see how Bryce could have obtained the note, unless he paid the money. Where did your father keep it?'
'He gave it to me, and I put it in the secretary.'
'Who was in the room when you put it in the secretary?'
'Mr. Bryce, George Chandler, my father and myself.'
The conversation was here interrupted by the entrance of Wallace. He looked pale and haggard, as much from the effects of anxiety as from the detrom which he was recovering.
'She has told you about it, I suppose, said he in a very low tone.
'She has.'
I pitied him, poor fellow, for two thousand dollars was a large sum to accumulate in his little business. The loss of it would make the future look like a desert to him. It would be misfortune which one must undergo to appreciate it.
'What passed between you on that day?'
'Well, I merely stepped into his office—it was only the day before yesterday—to tell him not to forget to have the money for me by tomorrow. He took me in his back office, and as I sat there he said he would get the money ready the next day. He then left me and went into the front office, where I heard him send George out to the bank, to draw a check for two thousand dollars; so I supposed he was going to pay me then.'
'What does the clerk say about it?'
"He says Mr. Bryce remarked, when he sent him, that he was going to pay me the money.'
'Just so.'
And when George came in he went into the front office again and took the money. Then he came to me again, and did not offer to pay the money."
"Had you the note with you?"
"No; now I remember" he said, "he supposed I had not the note with me, or he would pay me. I told him to come on the next day and I would have it ready—that was yesterday. When I came to look for the note it could not be found; Annie and I have hunted the house all over."
"You told Bryce so?"
"I did. He laughed and showed me his note, with his signature crossed over with ink, and a hole punched through it."
"It is plain, Mr. Wallace, that he paid you the money, as alleged, or has obtained fraudulent possession of the note, and intends to cheat you out of the amount."
"He never paid me," he replied, firmly.
"Then he has fraudently obtained possession of the note. What sort of a person is that Chandler, who boards with you?"
"A fine young man. Bless you, he would not do anything of that kind."
"I am sure he would not," repeated Annie, earnestly.
"How else could Bryce obtain the note but through him? What time does he come home at night?"
"Always at tea time. He never goes out in the evening."
"But, father, he did not come home till ten o'clock the night before you went to Bryce's. He had to stay in the office to post books, or something of the kind."
"How did he get in?"
"He has a night key."
"I must see Chandler," said I.
"No harm in seeing him," added Mr. Wallace; "I will go for him."
In a few moments he returned with the young man, Chandler, who, in the conversation I had with him, manifested a very lively interest in the solution of the mystery, and professed himself ready to do anything to forward my views.
"When did you return to the house on Thursday night?"
"About twelve."
"Twelve!" said Annie, "it was not more than ten when I heard you."
"The clock struck twelve as I turned the corner of the street," replied Chandler, positively.
"I certainly heard some one in the front room at ten," said Annie, looking with astonishment at those around her.
"We're getting at something," said I. "How did you get in?"
The young man smiled, as he glanced at Annie, and said—
"On arriving at the door, I found I had lost my key. At that moment a watchman happened along, and I told him my situation. He knew me, and taking a ladder from an unfinished house opposite, placed it against one of the second story windows, and I entered in that way."
"Good! Now who was it that was heard in the parlor at ten, unless it was Bryce or one of his accomplices? He must have taken the key from your pocket Mr. Chandler, and stolen the note from the secretary. At any rate I will charge him with the crime, let what may happen. Perhaps he will confess when hard pushed."
"Acting upon this thought, I wrote a lawyer's letter"—"demanded against you,'&c., which was immediately sent to Mr. Bryce. Cautioning the parties not to speak of the affair, I dismissed them.
Bryce came.
"Well, sir, what have you to say against me?" he asked stiffly.
"A claim on part of John Wallace poking over my papers, and appearing supremely indifferent.
"Paid it," he said, short as pie crust.
"Have you?" said I, looking him sharply in the eye.
The rascal quailed. I saw that he was a villain.
"Nevertheless, if within an hour you do not pay me two thousand dollars, and one hundred dollars for the trouble and anxiety you have caused my client, at the end of the next hour you will be lodged in jail to answer a criminal charge."
"What do you mean, sir?"
"I mean what I say. Pay, or take the consequences."
It was a bold charge, and if he looked like an honest man I should not have dared to make it.
"I have paid the money, I tell you," said he; "I have the note in my possession."
"Where did you get it?"
"I got it when I paid the—"
When you feloniously entered the house of John Wallace, on Tuesday night at ten o'clock, and took the said note from the secretary"
"You have no proof," said he, grasping the chair for support.
"That is my lookout. I have no time to waste. Well you pay or go to jail?"
He saw that the evidence I had was too strong for his denial, and he drew his check on the spot for twenty-one hundred dollars, and after begging me not to mention the affair, he sneaked off.
I cashed the check, and hastened to Wallace's house. The reader may judge with what satisfaction he received it, and how rejoiced was Annie and her lover. Wallace insisted that I should take the one hundred dollars for my trouble; but I was magnanimous enough to keep only twenty. Wallace signed the pledge, and was after a temperate man. He died a few years ago, leaving a handsome property to Chandler, and his wife, the marriage between him and Annie having taken place shortly after the above narrated circumstances occurred.
