AND THEN CAME THE DAWN—Filled with stomach cramps. The above were among guests who attended a party given by the Chipperettes, Saturday night, in Baltimore, following which a number became ill with what physicians diagnosed as food poisoning, and health officials termed an infection. Among the seriously ill are Mrs. Albert La Forest and Mrs. Edward Watson, both shown above. Shown, as they served themselves form an elaborate smorgasbord are, left to right: Mrs. LaForest, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ailor, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Johnston, Mrs. Watson, Hank Scarborough and Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Phillips. Mr. and Mrs. Ailor, Mr. and Mrs. Johnston and Dr. Phillips were also among the guests stricken.

Gadabouting in Baltimore

Townswomen stretch tight scintillating clothes line

With Lula Jones Garrett

This you will never believe, story, that a hundred and fifty women could assemble in one place at the same time, all wear the same color and no two have on dresses alike.

But it actually happened at the Chipperettes "Snow Ball," Saturday night.

The Snow Ball was quite the prettiest dance I've seen this season. . . with its gay tables centered with snow men . . . tiny forests of mistletoe; with the hostesses in their perfectly lovely white frocks being identified with wristlets of white ribbon pom poms into which were tucked tiny silver bells; and with, as I said, the guests turning the affair into a fashion show.

The Hi Tones provided music for dancing, with their vocalist, Dot Kelly, providing the only spot of color . . . she being draped in deep pink chiffon. If it now turns out to be the most sensational, with guests still coming down with illnesses, well, that's another story.

Many of the gowns were originals, which accounts for the lack of duplications.

Take for instance the floor-length stain chemise sheath, with its half-yard slits at the bottom filled in with under-pinnings of flowered satin, worn by Maxine Higginbotham; or the brocaded sheath with intricate neckline featuring a crossed fold erding with a half-bow, worn by Dorothy Wood; or the fitted - bodice, flowing and much ruffled skirt, a net concoction, which made a fairy tale princess out of Peggy Jones. . . . who lived up to the picture by tiara of brilliants for her hair.

And folks kept asking me about the long molded pants of white satin, topped by a pout beginning at the knee and completed with a fitted bodice, worn by Charles Bethea. At least, it was one way to have an ensemble not likely to be duplicated.

Elegant was the word for Joan Harris' floor - length, white taffeta, with suave draping at the front, worn with long white gloves, magnificent rhinestone bracelet and earrings, and orchids.

And as sweet as the latter was sophisticated was the white chiffon, with rounded neckline supported by string straps, worn by Doris Davis, with suave drapery of the bodice, and the very low square at the back, the whole outlined in a band of brilliants.

Helena Hall's beige lace, each tiny blossom blooming with a tiny rhinestone, drew comment, as did Elizabeth White's red satin, smooth at the front, collared in a revealing sailor motif at the back. Edna Campbell never looked better, in blue silk and orchids, and the speaker, Emma Brinkley, of Philadelphia, North Atlantic regional director, was a picture in gray lace over mauve satin, made with a modest neck, clipped with rhinestones, enhanced by a big white orchid showered in pink and green ribbons.

A number of out-of - town sorors came in for the affair, including Mabie Sims of Wilmington, Marets Carroll of Annapolis, Catherine Edwards and Alice Johnson of Philadelphia, Omega Jones of Princess Anne and Dr. Bessie Small of Denton.

After a fine evening of dancing at the Alcazar on Friday night, many went on to more intimate parties.

Mary Adams and Gloria McDaniels followed their usual pattern of holding forth after AKA dances.

Though Mary had been prevented from dancing by the illness of her mother, Mrs Geneva Buddin, who is ill in St. Joseph Hospital . . . plus the fact that boy friend, Bill Dabels, was just recuperating from influenza.

Guests came to them at her home following the dance.

THE REV. EDWIN SMITH, curate at St. James Episcopal Church, Baltimore, and the former Miss Alma Franze leave the altar following their marriage, Saturday. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Franze, Sr., Baltimore, and Mr. Smith, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Neal D. Smith, Sr. of Chicago.

Ceremony in Ames Church for Miss Gaskins, Robert Nelson

A ceremony in Ames Methodist Church, Saturday afternoon united Miss Phylliss Gaskins, daughter of Mrs. Aiken Gaskin, and Robert L. Nelson.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Nelson. The Rev. Frank J. Frye officiated and the wedding music was by M. Hassell, organist and Miss Ruth Collins, soloist.

* * *

THE BRIDE, given in marriage by her brother, Gordon Gaskins, wore a gown of Italian silk, the bodice embroidered in rhinestones. Repeating the rhinestone motif was the coronet which held her finger-tip length veil.

She carried a Bible, marked with an orchid.

She was attended by Miss Gloria Hobbs, maid of honor; Miss Peggy Johns, Miss Madeline Fields and Miss Ellen Ford, her cousin.

The attendants wore pastel colored frocks with matching accessories, and carried cascades of varied-colored flowers.

* * *

WARDELL OWENS was best man for Mr. Nelson. Ushers were Arthur Nelson, cousin of the bridegroom; Bernard Nelson, brother; and William Seville.

Miss Gaskins' nieces, Berine Thompson and Antonia Sharpe, were flower girls, and her nephew, Clarence Alexander, carried the rings.

* * *

A RECEPTION followed in the hall of the church.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gaskins wore blue chiffon, with blue accessories. Mrs. Nelson was gowned in dusty rose lace. Both wore corsages of orchids.

The couple's wedding trip was to New York City, and upon their return they will occupy an apartment at 1706 W. Lafayette Ave.

Mrs. Nelson is a secretary in the department of social work for the Board of Education. Her husband, a dental technician, is also a musician.

MISS PHYLLIS GASKINS, daughter of Mrs. Aiken Gaskins, became the bride of Robert L. Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Nelson in Ames Methodist Church, Baltimore, Saturday.

Clubs

MOTHERS — The club recently had a bus trip to Henryton State Hospital, where they took cookies, candies, fruits, toilet articles and towels and wash cloths to patients.

The club provided these necessities for 100 patients, in addition the group provided a program and gifts for patients confined to bed.

Jointly serving in this project were the Friendly Helping Hand Club and the Mount Carmel Baptist Church Senior Choir.

They were aided by the Yale Savings Club, Mrs. Fannie McGee, president; the Cameo Savings Club, Mrs. Jennie Thaniels, president; the Methodist Women's National Association, Mrs. Theresa Bailey, president; and Mrs. Inez Rice.

Among those making contributions were Mrs. Ida Hughes, Mrs. Eliza Swan, Mrs. Maggie Stuart and Mrs. Jennie Thaniels.

HAVING PAID a $500 life NAACP membership and donated $250 toward Thurgood Marshall's legal work, the Alpha Wives, their civic responsibilities done, will take off Friday, Feb. 7 on their annual mid-winter jaunt to New York City.

Bedecked in furs and Sunday finery, the club members and friends are scheduled to board their own special car attached to the Royal Blue at Mt. Royal Station at 4:30 p.m.

After four hours of bridge and pinochle en route, reservations await them at the Hotel Taft, where their president, Catherine Adams, will hold "open house" in the Presidential Suite and her loyal members are slated to take possession of an entire wing of the hostelry.

Ahead, are excursions to favorite television shows, a return visit to Birdland, a call on Pearl Bailey at the Waldorf Astoria and for a lucky few, tickets to see Lena Horne in "Jamaica."

Chairman of the affair is Maxine Higginbotham, who advises any of the wives who have delayed getting in touch with her to do so at once.

Final plans for the New York junket were laid Tuesday night at the first meeting since the holiday recess.

Hostesses were Elaine Hardy, Josephine Kimbro, Hilda Higgins, Evelyn Hayshert and Maxine Higginbotham.

The whole conversation centered on what was to be done, and who was to be seen in New York. Daisy Josey was voted in as a member.

Others present were Ada Veney, Hortense Winder, Susan King, Sara Nix, Rubye Walker, Alma Gray, Ellen Johns, Mae Mcampbell, Otyce Froe and M. Francis Mackay.

PRETTY AS A PICTURE in her frock of iced-blue nylon and the black strapless pumps she wanted, Marie Phillips had the time of her life at her birthday party, Saturday afternoon.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Phillips, and had reached her ninth natal day.

Also celebrating his ninth birthday on Saturday, was Lewis Tucker Jr.

Over 60 youngsters were present at the party held at his parents new Randallstown place.

* * *

NEONTA CORBIN and Bernice Turner hosted the We Moms at their Saturday meeting. At the business session the group made final plans for its second Skating Party to be held this Friday at the Northeastern. Incidentally the skating parties are proving big successes. The affairs are always a sell-out days ahead. Proceeds from the affairs go towards the club's charity fund.

The "Moms" are also planning to entertain their youngsters who represent three age groups. Each group will enjoy its own specially planned activity.

Following the meeting which was presided over by club prexy Ruth Sampson, members partook of a delightful supper.

About were Marion Amprey, Pauline Armstrong, Ada Coles, Minerva Williams, Margaret Wilkinson, Mae Cornish, Thelma Thompson, Minnie Porter, Patricia Holtsclaw and Jeanette Johnson.
