Mr. Lang told the AFRO, "then we can start more definite planning for the Dolphin St. section east of Fremont Ave. to old Area 12."

A FEW days ago, Clarence Mitchell Jr., chairman of the board of trustees of Sharp St. Memorial Methodist Church, Dolphin and Etting Sts., asked Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro whether approval of the Harlem Park school site would "adversely effect" the church.

Mr. Mitchell, in a telegram to the Mayor, said he had been advised that approval of the plan called for the demolition of buildings on the north side of Dolphin St., between Druid Hill and Pennsylvania Aves.

AREA 12, the initial redevelopment site now under construction around the Fifth Regiment Armory, has a western boundary line on Dolphin St. at the west side of McCulloh St.

Dolphin St. will be widened on its north side, according to present planning, from McCulloh St. within Area 12, to Bolton St.

It will be re-routed at Linden Ave. to circle south closer to the north side of the Fifth Regiment Armory and enter Preston St. at Cathedral.

Lanvale St. between McCulloh St. and Madison Ave. and various other sections between Lanvale and Dolphin Sts. east to John St. form the northern boundary of Area 12.

John and Cathedral Sts. are the eastern boundaries. Biddle and Chase Sts. are the southern boundary.

A portion of Druid Hill Ave. at Biddle and McCulloh St. and Madison Ave. are the west boundary.

However, a year ago, Area 12 became a part of a new and larger sector of the city designated for redevelopment—the Mount Royal — Fremont Urban Renewal Area.

This area's boundaries are, roughly, Druid Hill Park Drive to the north; Mount Royal Terrace and Cathedral St. on the east; Biddle St. to the south, and Fremont, Pennsylvania and Fulton Aves. on the west.

They noticed, the report said, "a colored woman standing with her head on the floor of the cell, with her back against the bars.

"She was disrobed with exception of her panties. We also noticed a part of a dress around her neck.

"Mrs. Wortman tore the dress away and the woman slipped to the floor of the cell."

Lt. Frederick Harbourne and Sgt. John J. Gates reported that when they were summoned they found Mrs. Miles "sitting on the floor of the cell with her back against the cell door."

Mrs. Miles was taken to University Hospital where she was pronounced dead on arrival by Dr. James Laster at 3:35 a.m.

CAPTAIN HARTUNG said one of the women arrested with Mrs. Miles told them the 222 pound woman had suffered with a heart condition.

Part of the woman's clothing was found on a bench and on the floor of her cell.

Captain Hartung said she appeared to have been "tearing them off piece by piece."

He added that no part of the clothing about the woman's neck was tied together.

Mrs. Miles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman A. Matthews, of 1626 N. Bentalou St., had lived in Cherry Hill with her four younger children since October.

On Thursday Mrs. Grace Matthews told the AFRO her daughter had been under treatment for a heart condition and low blood pressure.

Mrs. Matthews said Mrs. Miles had visited her Saturday and promised, "I'll see you on the week end."

A 19-YEAR-OLD resident of Cherry Hill told the AFRO she had been with the party until they started the last trip to Baltimore.

MRS. MILES' husband Ralph Miles, died in 1957, relatives

Her oldest daughter, Ethel Matthews, 17, did not live with her mother.

The younger children are listed as Eric, 8; Darrell, 7; Lamont, 5, and Arey, 3.

Mrs. Miles is survived by her mother, who also survived nine sisters and three brothers all of Baltimore. They are:

Mrs. Lena Stanten, Ernest Gough, Norman Matthew Jr., Miss Louise Matthews, Mrs. Evelyn McDaniel, and Mrs. Jean Stevenson.

Also Mrs. Doris Parker, Mrs. Shirley Jennett, William Matthews and Misses Delores, Beverly and Mattie Matthews.

Mrs. Miles' body will be at the George Kelson Funeral Home in the 1300 block of N. Calhoun St. until Saturday afternoon when it will be moved to the Matthews home.

Services will be at the Kelson Funeral Parlor at 1 p.m. Monday afternoon.

THE BODY of Miss Gloria Adelaide Jordan is taken from the Bethel AME Church in her hometown of Miss Jordan was slain during a burst of gunfire on Carlisle, Pa. after funeral services there Tuesday. the Howard University campus last week. A suspect is being held in the shooting.

difficult for them to understand how tragedy could come to Carlisle High School's 1957 honor graduate and so promising a student.

At one time she had been secretary to the school principal and she was voted as the young woman most likely to succeed.

Barely six months ago she had left her home for the first time in her life to attend a Junior College in Washington, had registered at Howard on February 4.

AS THE REV. Mr. Fortune asked God to console the family and friends, their cries of sorrow drowned out his words.

They were still griefstricken.

Just six days before, on Feb. 19, news had come to the townspeople that Gloria had been shot shortly after 1 p.m. in a classroom building on the snow-laden Washington campus.

They heard that she and a fellow student, Henry L. Polk Jr., fled to the basement of the building where he was also wounded.

It had been reported to them that Gloria died from wounds in the breast and heart as 150 fellow students looked on in horor.

Newspaper reports told them that police are holding Henry Vinson Mobley, 21, of the 3500 block of Holmead Place, NW., former Washington Baptist Seminary student.

ALTHOUGH IT seemed vague to those who mourned Gloria, they knew that she had returned home to them for the last time.

She lay there before them on the altar of her church in a bronze casket.

Clad in a blue party dress, her head rested on a sunburst velvet pillow. On the third finger of her left hand was her Carlisle High class ring. On her left arm a gold bracelet.

In her right hand she held a corsage of one pink rose and a single pink camellia, a remembrance from a childhood friend, now in Germany, Miss Leona Reed.

IN THE VELVET - LINED casket was the floral tribute from her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Girard, 2100 block of 1 St., NE, Washington.

It was a cross of white Easter lillies with a large purple orchid in the center.

At the foot of the casket lay a white satin pillow encrusted with tiny red rosebuds, a tribute from family friends, Mr. and Mrs. Morris B. Gathe.

Beside the casket stood a six-foot design of pink heather, roses and carnations from her grandmother, Mrs. Fiela Jordan, who resides at 128 Penn St. here.

THE SPRING-LIKE breeze which came through the door of the small church wafted fragrance from more than 50 other floral designs which flanked the altar and filled church windows.

Among them was a four-foot heart design of camellias from the students of the Howard University's College of Liberal Arts.

A star of gold chrysanthemums was from Gloria's Girl Scout troops Nos. 186, 98, and 257.

The Howard Women's League sent a four-foot spray of pink gladioli, the faculty a design of red roses and evergreen and the president and the board of trustees, a spray of carnations and spruce.

THE REV. LUTHER F. McNAIR, pastor of the Bethel Church, delivered the eulogy.

He said: "She was a good girl, filled with the Holy Spirit.

"The multitudes here today are testimony to the love we all had for her.

"She went about doing good.

"She was like a brilliant star, built frail, but full of energy and a brain power."

The Rev. Mr. McNair added: "Although we do not understand, God does know best. He will be with us in this trying hour. He will remove all pain from our aching hearts."

AMONG OTHERS who spoke was J. Norman Blackburn. Howard dean of students who recalled that although Gloria had been at the university "less than a month," all the students knew her as charming, sincere and unsophisticated.

He added: "Gloria was a fine young woman. She long had an ambition to go to Howard and when she came in with her mother and father, I knew she was just the type we wanted at the school.

"I put forth extra effort to clear her records to see that she got a good start."

Mr. Blackburn also read a letter from the Howard University Women's League.

It said: "We are grieved at the sudden loss of one of the most promising freshmen. She had shown charm and a purpose. She was a young woman who had promises of being a real Howard woman."

MR. BLACKBURN also read a letter from Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president, "We know no words of ours can lift from your heart the anguish of so great a loss, but the members that knew her loved her."

AMONG townspeople who had known Gloria and her family were Mrs. Ewing and her two sons whose family has owned the Ewing Funeral Home for over 100 years.

Mrs. Ewing said: "The family was mightily well loved here.

"They are an old Carlisle family."

Mrs. Ewing also recalled that on the eve of the funeral services "more than 300 people came to view the body."

She added: "Many of them were classmates and teachers of Gloria's. They were very much disturbed by her death."

THE SLAIN COED was born May 12, 1939. She was a member of the first honor group of Carlisle Senior High School and a member of the Scholastic Honor Society.

She was also a member of the Budget Club, the Oracle Society, the Commercial Club, and the Photography Editor.

She transferred from the Washington Montgomery Junior College in January to enter Howard University's 1958 freshman class.

Her mother, Mrs. Genevieve Girard, who is also studying at Howard, and her step-father, Mr. Girard, a seaman, survive.

He is a resident of Washington and is employed on a Miami, Fla. shipline.

MISS JORDAN resided with her parents at the I Street residence in Washington while attending college.

She is also survived by her grandmother, Mrs. Jordan, and great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hunter all of Carlisle.

Mr. and Mrs. John Girard, Lafayette, La., grandparents, also survive, as well as her great-grandmother, Mrs. Mary Williams and two uncles, Charles and Clarence Jordan, of Carlisle.

ALSO TESTIFYING to Gloria's activities in the Sunday school was the superintendent, Mrs. Mary Ransom who said, "She will be missed by all the members, teachers, and officers of the organization. She was the very life of the school."

Neighbors and friends also spoke fondly of Gloria. Mrs. Katherine Boswell, a neighbor, stated that she had known Gloria "since the day she was christened."

She said: "She was beloved by young and old. Everybody

Duckrey will only 23 words

PHILADELPHIA

In 23 words, written almost 14 years ago, Dr. Tanner Grant Duckrey, the eminent educator who died last Jan. 10, left his estate to his wife.

Dr. Duckrey, who was a district superintendent in the school system, dated the will as of May 23, 1944. At that time, he was serving as assistant to the Board of Superintendents.

Probated on Feb. 11 with Dr. Duckrey's personal property set at $1,631.73 and no real estate holdings listed, the will reads:

"I berewith wift and bequeath all of my property, any and all kinds to my dear wife, Courtney Duckrey."

In an additional 26 words, Dr. Duckrey invoked the following blessing:

"MAY GOD always bless her and my darling daughter, Nancy. May His love go ever with my mother and my family, friends and all His children."

Dr. Duckrey, who was 57, lived at 3836 N. 16th St. The day before his death in Graduate Hospital, he collapsed at 18th and Washington Ave. while driving home from his office in Barratt Junior High School, 16th and Wharton Sts.

Mrs. Duckrey was represented by Mrs. Sadie T. M. Alexander in the probation proceedings.

Girls accuse man, 55

ers was led before Magistrate Schonfield after the small court room had been cleared of all but the girls, their parents and reporters.

IN SOME instances, the teenagers testified, they were force to remain in the apartment while Rogers walked about the house dressed only in a T-shirt.

One 13-year-old girl testified: "I have been going to his house for two years. I had intercourse with him 35 times."

At this point, there was an audible gasp from one of the young spectators.

"Sometimes," the girl continued, "he gave me $2 and $3 when he bothered with me. Friday was the last time."

A TEN-YEAR-OLD child testified that she was assaulted when she accompanied a girl friend to the Rogers apartment to wash dishes. She stated:

"He put his hands on me and when I started to cry he tied my mouth up with a handkerchief.

"While I was crying, a man across the hall knocked on the door and said, 'Do you have a little girl in there?' He said,

'No.' He gave us 30 cents for washing dishes.

Most of the girls said they met Rogers for the first time when they went to his home with friends.

When Mr. Dearing asked the chilfren if they had told their parents about what had happened they all replied, "No."

The girls said that in addition to receiving money ranging from 25 cents to $5, they were permitted to eat sandwiches and watch television in Rogers' apartment.

AT THE HEARING, Policewoman Carolyn Robinson told Magistrate Schonfield that the existence of the alleged juvenile harem came to the attention of police after one girl's mother turned her over to Patrolman Stanley Moore.

Officer Robinson stated that when she and Sgt. James Kelley looked into the case, "The investigation skyrocketed and has been picking up ever since."

The girls making the charges came to court dressed in heavy topcoats and loafers.

Many wore scarfs about their heads and giggled whenever reference was made to the house on Ashland Ave.

One 12-year-old girl who told the court she was in the ninth grade, tried to assist one youngster who stuttered when her turn came to testify.

The court was told that practically all of the girls involved stood at the bottom of their classes at school.

What Negroes Can Learn From Gandhi

When Montgomery, Ala., integrated its buses, everyone waited for the explosion, but, to their surprise, Negroes were still sitting next to whites in peace.

Now, in this week's Saturday Evening Post, you'll see how this major integration battle was won as soon as Negro leaders such as Martin Luther King turned to the teachings of India's great Mahatma Gandhi!

You'll discover how Gandhi fought the Negroes' battle—the fight, but to turn the other cheek . . . and what could happen if all our American Negroes put his policy of "peaceful protest" to work!

It's all in "what Negroes Can Learn From Gandhi," written by Chester Bowles, former ambassador to India.

IN ALL, 7 articles, 4 stories, 2 serials, many cartoons.

Lamb or lion, March is AFRO Honor Roll time

No one is sure if March will come in like a lion or a lamb.

But it is for sure that the AFRO Honor Roll will be out sometime during the windy month.

Put it on your calendar.

March is the month when the AFRO will announce the 1957 Baltimore Honor Roll winners.

They will be persons whose deeds in 1957 were those of superior service to their community, city or state. They will be persons from all walks of life.

They will be those who deserve to join the long list of AFRO's honored citizens.

When March comes, watch for the AFRO's 1957 Honor Roll.

LIBRARIANSHIP PARLEY

ATLANTA — Atlanta University will be host Friday and Saturday to a group of college seniors chosen by campus committees of 50 institutions in eight southeastern states to attend the conference on librarianship sponsored by its school of library service.

ONE YEAR OLD— Members of the board of directors of the Allico Insurance Agency Inc., with headquarters at 1679 W. North Ave., are shown at a meeting last month when they celebrated a year of successful operation, and initiated plans for the broader insurance coverage. Seated is Melvin A. Callaman, realtist and president of the group. Standing, left to right, the directors, Percy Brinkley, attorney, James H. Edwards, George Barrett, William C. West, who was made agency director and treasurer at the meeting and Fannin Newsome. During the meeting, the board of directors also planned a special program in memory of Linwood Frazier, a deceased member, who was instrumental in organizing the agency.

Raps GOP 'Apathy'

Little Rock' Board Placed In 'Middle'

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Responsibility for the whole mess at Central High School here was placed in the lap of the Eisenhower administration last week.

The revelation came when the Little Rock School Board filed in U.S. District Court a petition laying it is caught in the middle—between the apathy of the Federal Government and the "extraordinary opposition on the part of the state government."

The petition, which asks that the "plan of integration heretofore ordered by this court be realistically considered in the light of existing conditions and that in the interests of all pupils the beginning date of integration be postponed," follows, in part:

"A SMALL group, with the encouragement of certain adults has absorbed the prevailing spirit of defiance and has almost daily created incidents which make it exceedingly difficult for teachers to teach and for pupils to learn . . .

"Implicit in the opinion of the U.S. Supreme Court is the assumption that states would bow to the ruling and repeal state laws which are in conflict with the new interpretation of the 14th Amendment to the constitution of the United states.

"Instead of revising local laws to bring them into conformity with the Federal law, the State of Arkansas has enacted several laws which tend to defy the Federal law and obstruct compliance by the (school) district with the order of this court . . .

"THE DISTRICT now finds itself in the difficult position of having the responsibility of operating under the phase plan of integration as directed by this court and yet it has no power to enforce the provisions of this plan."

The petition then goes on to place the blame for this state of affairs by saying:

"The Federal Government, except for having placed troops around the school grounds, apparently is powerless to enforce compliance with the court's in-provide transportation for their youngster.

While Charles County is desegregating its schools on a year to year basis, transportation is still segregated.

Williams Groves of St. Marys had complained to the State Board that his children had been denied admission to an all white high school.

Elementary schools have been mixed in this county.

The complaints were heard but a final decision was not announced until the board meeting on Wednesday.

AFTER THE decision had been announced, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., superintendent of the State Department of Education, said:

"Now the case can go to the courts and be decided on the question of constitutional rights."

Actually, the decision of the State Board was viewed in some quarters as paving the way for the case, to move quickly into the courts since as far as the Department of Education is concerned all administrative remedies have been exhausted.

In the St. Marys case it was reported that there were two major concerns.

First whether the appeal had been filed within the prescribed time and secondly whether the superintendent of county school had followed the policy of the county board.

In the Charles County case the point at issue was whether the superintendent had acted in accordance with board policy.

As far as the St. Marys case was concerned it was decided that the board did not have the right to waive the requirement that appeals be filed within 30 days of the superintendent's decision.

Actually, the appeal was not filed until 57 days later.

In both the St. Marys and the Charles County cases it was agreed that the superintendents had acted within the provisions of board policy.

Dr. Pullen's full statement follows:

"The State Board of Education today came to the conclusion that it could not approve the appeal in the case of Mr. William Groves against the Superintendent of Schools in St. Marys County concerning his two children who were denied admission to the Great Mills High School.

"The action of the Board was taken on the grounds that it did not have the right to waive the statutory requirement that an appeal be made within thirty days of the decision of the County Superintendent of Schools. The appeal was not filed until fifty-seven days after the decision of the County Superintendent.

"The State Board of Education at the time of the hearing called attention to the thirty-day appeal period required by law but decided to take testimony in the case.

"The testimony developed that the County Superintendent of Schools had acted in accordance with the policies of the County Board of Education, and the question raised then became one of whether the constitutional rights of the children had been violated by the policy of the County Board of Education, a purely legal question.

"The Assistant Attorney General advised the State Board of Education that it had no right to decide matters of a purely legal nature. Therefore, the State Board of Education could not have granted the relief requested even if the appeal had been filed within the legal time limit.

"In the appeal of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert G. Hart, Sr., against the Superintendent of Schools in Charles County in the case of their son, who was denied the privilege of riding on a bus carrying only white children to an integrated school, the same question of constitutional rights was involved.

"The State Board was advised that it had no right to pass upon that purely legal question. Therefore, the Board was not able to grant the relief requested."

Jersey firm absorbed by N.C. Mutual

All weekly premium and monthly debit ordinary insurance policies in force on Feb. 10 issued by Progressive Life Insurance Company and held by policyholders residing in the Philadelphia metropolitan area were reinsured by North Carolina Mutual on that date.

The 10 former Progressive agents and two ex-agents, who are now representatives of North Carolina Mutual and will continue in their same capacities as heretofore.

They are Samuel W. Walker, Joseph J. Moore, Raymond B. Alexander, John F. Washington, Leroy Harold, W. Roy Colbert, Herman L. Runnells, Tillman J. Oglesby, Thomas D. Herrod, Clarence Wise, Herman M. Frazier and Alvin L. Snigleton, both staff managers.

PROGRESSIVE LIFE was incorporated under New Jersey laws as a mutual legal reserve company, Jan. 1, 1948, and licensed on the same day.

It is an outgrowth of the Capital Friendly Society, a mutual benefit association, chartered in 1907 in New Jersey, which changed its name to Progressive Relief Association in 1925.

North Carolina Mutual extended its field operations into Pennsylvania 20 years ago — 1938. Today the Philadelphia District is composed of 50 combination agents; 12 special ordinary agents; 1 cashier; 7 clerks and stenographers; 10 staff managers; and 1 manager.

tegration order and suppress the interference now being encountered by the officials of the district.

"Federal officials have not applied penal sanctions to any of the persons who formed into groups near the school grounds, defied the court's order and interfered with the plan of integration therein specified.

"THEY HAVE stepped aside and placed on the (school) district the full responsibility of compliance.

"The judicial branch of the Federal Government has aided the district by preventing or attempting to prevent interference with the plan which the officials of the district, in the sense of duty, are endeavoring to apply in the operation of the schools within the district.

"There has been no effort on the part of the Congress of the United States to strengthen old, or provide new, judicial procedures which will guarantee enforcement of the civil rights of the colored minority.

"The (Little Rock school) district, in its dispute (of the law of the land, is left standing alone, the victim of extraordinary opposition on the part of the government and apathy on the part of the Federal Government."
