"Whenever I hear anyone arguing for slavery (segregation, etc.), I have a strong impulse to see it tried on him personally."—Abraham Lincoln

Be patient with us

An open letter to Mr. Henry Barnes, commissioner of transit and traffic:

Since you came here to take over your position as commissioner of transit and traffic, you doubtless have learned that ours is a town of contradictions and many Baltimoreans are slow to understand the need for following modern methods.

In your difficult job, you have had to battle to move old-fashioned monuments from the middle of the street, ease traffic by inaugurating one-way streets in sections used to crowded doubled-lane traffic.

• • •

YOURS HAS NOT BEEN an easy task. In the recent snow emergency, when you had not only slow Baltimoreans to contend with but slow-to-move city officials and police, we can understand how you would be discouraged when your orders were not carried out.

Of course, the spectacle of a police department talking about consulting law books before it moves autos which hamper traffic and snow removal is something you would find only in a laissez faire city like ours.

We are a city of contradictions—We move swiftly to condemn parks for school sites or civic centers; we are slow to grasp the need for fast action in a blizzard; we are fast to condemn some sections for shopping centers and redevelopment areas; but slow to act when traffic is jammed for miles.

Bear with us, Mr. Barnes. We need enlightened public officials like you to help us or else we will be lost in a maze of confusion, a malady common to those who live in Baltimore.

14th Amendment fails

"No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or the immunities of citizens of the United States, nor shall any State deprive any person, of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

The above statement is a portion of the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution, adopted by the 39th Congress July 21, 1868, after the required two-thirds of the States had ratified it.

Today, Kentucky and Maryland are the lone two states which rejected the Amendment and have not subsequently ratified it.

THE NATIONAL Association for the Advancement of Colored People successfully argued in the school cases and other civil rights matters before the Supreme Court that plaintiffs seeking relief were being denied due process of law as guaranteed by the 14th Amendment.

State Senator Harry A. Cole for the fourth time introduced a joint resolution calling on Maryland lawmakers at this session to go on record as agreeing in fact as well as in principle with this vital part of our law.

BECAUSE OF political expediency as an election approaches, Maryland senators on Monday by a one-vote margin defeated the resolution.

A Constitutional majority of 15 votes was needed to adopt the resolution. It was defeated, however, by a vote of 14 to 7.

"Maryland is abiding by the Constitution," noted Mr. Cole after his proposal was defeated. "This would just make it official."

Certainly Free State legislators do not want the record to continue to show that Maryland is unwilling to join hands with the rest of the states.

Time's growing short

April 19 is the deadline for persons who meet the age and residence qualifications to register in time to vote in the May 20 primary.

Voting is an important civic duty. It's one thing to indulge in street corner conversations about your rights, but when you exercise the franchise you're taking the proper steps toward the goal of first-class citizenship.

• • •

THE CURRENT Register to Vote campaign has added 10,123 names to the voting list. But there are still 56,720 qualified persons as yet unregistered. If you are one of the voluntarily voteless thousands get down to the Supervisor of Elections NOW and register.

You only have until April 19 if you want to take an active part in the primary two months from now.

• • •

ANOTHER IMPORTANT thing to remember when you register is to affiliate with one of the two major parties (Republican or Democrat). In Maryland independent voters can not take part in a primary election.

If you register as an independent you can only vote in a general election. You can be independent in your thinking and voting and still align yourself with one of the major parties.

THE AFRO'S CREDO

A newspaper succeeds because its management believes in itself, in God and in the present generation. It must always ask itself—
Whether it has kept the faith with the common people.
Whether it has no other goal except to see that their liberties are preserved and their future assured.
Whether it is fighting to get rid of slums, to provide jobs for everybody.
Whether it stays out of politics except to expose corruption and condemn injustice, race prejudice or compromise.

—JOHN MURPHY SR., 1929

They missed it again

6 out of 7

After two delays because of bad weather, he fulfilled an engagement to give a noon-day talk at the Enoch Pratt Free Library.

Said Mr. Alkire: Weathermen are usually blamed when they are wrong, yet their predictions are right 85 per cent of the time or at least six out of seven times.

• • •

NO DOUBT Mr. Alkire is right but we hasten to remind him that human nature being what it is, people are inclined to forget the things you do right. They can more easily remember when you're wrong.

To correct this human failing we could keep a day-to-day box score of weather predictions. With a wallop-ing six for seven, the weatherman at the end of a season would outstrip anyone in the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Cherry Hill Honor Roll

Published in this edition are the names of ten residents of the Cherry Hill community selected by their fellow citizens to be named to a special AFRO Honor Roll.

They were nominated for a place on this honor roll by other Cherry Hill residents who said the honorees were shining examples of persons in the community who have rendered superior service.

We join this thriving community in congratulating these ten citizens, six men and four women from various walks of life, who are now members of the AFRO Cherry Hill Honor Roll.

Readers Say

Cherry Hill feature

Dear AFRO:

The AFRO has done it again. I have reference to the Cherry Hill feature supplement in your magazine section on March 1. It was indeed superb.

However, the lead article by Mr. Moses Newson, "A Thriving Baltimore Community," though interesting and informative, I note one exception.

In listing the churches of Cherry Hill he omitted the name of the First Baptist Church on Cherry Hill Rd., the Rev. John H. Clark, pastor.

It is one of the largest and one of the most progressive churches in Cherry Hill.

WALTER A. BAKER

Serves as reward

Dear AFRO:

On behalf of the residents of the Cherry Hill Homes I would like to express their thanks for the "This is Cherry Hill" supplement that appeared in the AFRO on Friday, Feb. 28.

Cherry Hill is proud of her achievements as a community and the recognition given us by the AFRO-AMERICAN serves as a reward for past accomplishments and a stimulus to greater achievement.

Ministers protest

Dear AFRO:

The Baptist Minister's Conference of Baltimore and Vicinity on last Monday took exception to the article appearing in the the AFRO's issue of Feb. 25, 1958 headlined "Prison For Pastor."

The complaint is that the prisoner is not a pastor and that this should be so corrected. This the conference respectfully requests.

Ousted prison guard

Dear AFRO:

I read of the discharge of Elbert Street from his job as guard at the Old Penitentiary and I was disturbed.

I am advised that still work-ing inside the Penitentiary is a former policeman who was discharged from the force and another who was involved in a fatal car accident.

They still maintain their jobs at the Penitentiary, yet Mr. Street was discharged because of "too many traffic tickets."

If a disbarred policeman can keep his job and a person involved in a fatal auto accident can keep his, there's something rotten about the dismissal of Mr. Street. This looks like a case of racial discrimination. The NAACP should investigate.

J. E. SOUTH

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Warden Vernon Pepperasack said if an employee failed to show the ability to develop into a custodial officer the employee would be discharged. The warden also noted that similar action would be taken against employees who repeatedly got into minor brushes with the law.)

Timely observations

Dear AFRO:

Whenever I am in New York City I always stop in our national NAACP office.

Recently it was my good fortune to meet some of my friends, Roy Wilkins, Dr. John Marshall, Bobby Branch and Gloster Current—and quite a number of persons greeted me with a "hi," and a friendly smile.

I asked Mr. Current if there was something I could do and he suggested that I go to the Supreme Court in Washington (Jan. 15) when the argument on the Alabama injunction against the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was scheduled to be heard.

The case was presented by Attorney Robert Carter, of New York City. According to my judgement the NAACP is a real asset to peoples of all origins — I am proud of my membership.

My next destination was to attend a call meeting at the National Council of Negro Women's headquarters, 1313 Vermont Ave., Washington. Members from many States represented to the workshop session.

I had been that this exotic island lacked a statuesque Eve (there always has to be one on a deserted island) to properly prepare the fish, grass and seaweed.

The challenges of overcoming all of the frustrations, heartbreaks and pitfalls thrown out by this era we live in are too great to try to get away from it all.

pressed concerning ways and means to increase membership, to promote unity of action among all women concerning education, economics, cultural, social and political life in America, and to build a common fellowship among members.

I am confident this workshop session has inspired all those present, which means they will share their information with thousands of other members — women belonging to different classes — women of education, homemakers, etc.

The NCNW is not the kind of organization which isolates itself from the recognition that many human beings are fellow creatures, whose lot should be bettered.

In her last will, our founder and president emeritus, Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, stated: "I leave you finally a responsibility to our young people." She also stated that "our children must never lose their zeal for building a better world — for they are to be the leaders of tomorrow."

(Mrs.) ANNE BEADENKOPF

Trip to moon

Dear AFRO:

It is inconceivable that any sane person will look forward to man's visit to the moon or any other planets.

Man's theory of a trip to the moon and outer space is only a flight or attempted flight from reality.

Man has miserably failed in his mission. No wise providence will permit corrupted and deceitful man to interfere with peaceful planets.

Man is on probation on earth. If he cannot qualify for higher advancement he is doomed by his own folly.

SOME MISGUIDED person or group is seeking permission from Congress to contact the moon. I think it was the very depth of stupidity. What congressman has authority over his own life?

Congress cannot even decide the simple question as in case of the President's disability, when and how the Vice President will take over.

I could select 27 pupils from the eighth grade and get a more intelligent answer. Look how long ago the Supreme Court handed down the decision on public schools.

What have been the results? It was disgraceful — mobs have defied the Federal government and gotten away with it. It is no use to enter anything unless you are prepared to go the whole way.

ZACCHEUS WHITE

Along the way

By STEVE DUNCAN

Have you ever thought about losing yourself on one of those far-away, exotic islands, away from it all?

There would be no worry about such little inconveniences as the high cost of living, taxes, rock 'n roll, in-and-out-laws, etcetera.

Over in the Middle East — in the Persian Gulf area — comes the story of a man who says he spent 33 years on one of those islands in the sun.

If true, as soon as his Robinson Crusoe gets his bearings — finds out the state of this wicked world — he'll probably be ready to take off to the mainland again.

• • •

ON THIS island the man had plenty of nothing: no bills, no fiet mignon, no pink champagne.

He had all the fish, grass and seaweed he could eat.

"Oh, wilderness were Paradise now!!"

• • •

SOUNDS GOOD, but there must be a hitch somewhere.

Could be that this exotic island lacked a statuesque Eve (there always has to be one on a deserted island) to properly prepare the fish, grass and seaweed.

The challenges of overcoming all of the frustrations, heartbreaks and pitfalls thrown out by this era we live in are too great to try to get away from it all.

• • •

THAT MUST have been quite a heartbreaking moment when the brains discovered they were missing the thing.

If I close my eyes real tight I can see it all just as plain as day.

Here's this big room jam full of this big important equipment, every piece of which has about a thousand dials on it.

Everybody in the place is wearing thick heavy glasses, so you know they must be smart.

The man with the thickest glasses, quite naturally, is the biggest brain of them all.

HE BEGINS counting, five, four, three, two, one, zero.

At this point there is a big swish and everybody starts looking happy until several minutes later a little man through his radar screen in a far corner discovers that where the satellite should be, there is no satellite.

"What's gone?" asks the biggest brain of them all, who usually talks only to other big brains, but makes an exception in this case.

"That thing you sent up in the sky," says the little man who has been looking at the same radar screen for the past five years and is getting slightly sick of the whole thing.

"Nuts," says the brain, "it's got to be there."

"D—," he says, "it sure ain't there."

• • •

"Maybe the biggest thing wasn't any good to start with," says a Navy man who hasn't spoken a word since the Navy got its satellite off the ground.

"Put that man out," shouts the big brain, who's beginning to feel a triffle ill.

"WHAT ARE we going to do," moans the seven star general who has been put in charge of the whole mess.

"What we'll do," roars the scientist, "the whole time we were making the thing the Army kept talking about its satellite.

"All I did was push the blinking button. It's your satellite so you go find it."

• • •

"You find it," replies the scientist, "and when you do write me at the Navy Department. Maybe they don't get them up in the air but at least they don't go around losing them."

• • •

BY THIS time the poor general is wishing that he had stayed a second lieutenant, but there's nothing he can do about that so he sits down and starts composing a letter to cover the situation.

"Dear Mr. President," he writes, "I regret to inform you that because of circumstances beyond my control, we seem to have temporarily misplaced one satellite . . ."

Well as they say, you can't win 'em all and the Army can be sure that if I for one happen to see it, they will be the first ones to know."

Sightseeing

By JAMES D. WILLIAMS

Doggone if they haven't gone and lost a satellite.

This happened on Wednesday when the Army fired an Explorer satellite into the air and after that it apparently disappeared into the wild blue yonder.

I've heard of people losing false teeth, umbrellas, pocketbooks, and I even know of one young lady who took off her shoes in a movie and then was unable to find them so that she had to walk out into the street barefooted.

Oh boy, what an unforgettable sight that was.

She was dressed in the height of fashion with a long pointed hat on her head and a beautiful dress, but alas no shoes . . . Ah, but that's another story.

Be this as it may, it still seems a little odd that they could have lost anything as big and as weird looking as a satellite.

People, places and things...

Word from San Jose, California, tells of the illness and recovery of Baltimore's Marie Edwards Johnson. She is the wife of Dr. Arthur Johnson, now practicing there.

Your cards to cheer Marie will reach her at 1411 Buckner Driver, San Jose, Calif.

Also, send get - well cards to — John H. Murphy Jr., AFRO's retired treasurer, is due home from Hopkins Hospital today (Friday). He was rushed there last Friday afternoon with a respiratory ailment.

Attendants made much over the fact that the room he occupied on Marburg was "the bridal suite" used recently by a foreign dignitary.

• • •

Mrs. J. T. Williams, wife of the Md. State College president, has been in Brady Room 424 since Monday, next door to Mrs. Carl Murphy, who has been a patient there since February 22.

And, Elisha Chandler, the postal worker who resides in Howardville near Pikesville, who has been in Provident Hospital with a stroke since Tuesday.

He is the father of Phyllis Green and Roslyn Catlin, city teachers.

• • •

And special cheer to Baltimore's most outstanding woman — NAACP President Mrs. Lillie Jackson, who has been confined to her home with illness for the past ten days.

Your cards will reach her at 1320 Eutaw Place.

Donald Dorsey, longtime cook at Springfield State Hospital at Sykesville is confined to 2-B at University Hospital. He's been there since Thursday.

Basil Hall, the Phoenix, Md., gentleman farmer, who underwent an operation at Sinai Hospital a month ago is now at home and doing nicely.

Barnett J. Moore, the Morgan library aide who collapsed on the job, on Monday, was released after treatment at Hopkins and was able to return to his post the next day.

New citizens due: Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Koger Jr., (Margaret Pigott), hope their July baby will be a girl. Their two boys are 7 and 3.

Mr. Koger's law partner, Charles J. Josey and his wife Daisy, Cherry Hill teacher, named their new baby Charles Jr.

And, the George Lottiers (Arnetta Murphy), who already have three girls and a boy, say it makes no difference what their July heir turns out to be 'just so he's healthy!'

Romance dept.: Charlie Tildon and Louise Smith, city teachers, have an Easter date with the parson.

• • •

Birthday greetings March 9 to: Emory D. Waters, 2324 Edmondson Ave., who will be 87 years old. He is still active enough to tend his farm and go fishing.

Mrs. Garrett Rawlings (Edna) longtime AFRO employee and Methodist church lay leader, 2330 W. Lanvale St., blows out her birthday candles on March 10.

Send March 15 cards to: Mrs. Louise K. Hines, 2106 Whittier Ave., and March 16th greetings to: Mrs. Lucille Russ, 2222 W. North Ave.

March 9 greetings to AFRO stereotype foreman, Leon Brown, 950 Franklintown Rd., and AFRO pressroom foreman, Joseph Goldman, 2609 Mt. Holly.

March 10th cards also to Magistrate Linwood Koger Sr., 2106 Bryant Ave., who is just back from a Caribbean vacation with a deep tan and 14 rolls of color film.

• • •

Speaking of color film: Victor Daly, the U.S. Labor Department consultant, entertained members of the Philomathians Club on Saturday evening with films of his recent European tour.

The meeting was at the lovely Lavalette St. home of Mrs. J. Douglass Shepperd.

About this and that...

The current issue of the Md. State Medical Society Journal contains a tribute to Dr. Joseph Earl Moore, the Hopkins Hospital physician and venereal disease expert, who died December 7th at the age of 65.

The article by Dr. Richard D. Hahn, recalls that Dr. Moore was a man who knew no prejudice on account of race, color or creed.

It was, the tribute says, through his efforts that colored physicians were first given the privilege of staff association at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

• • •

Mr. Wilson has received notice he has won a Department of Defense scholarship for two years study in Germany and will be able to take his family, which includes Annette, 4, and Stephen, 7 months. They leave in June.

Mr. Wilson is a specialist in languages stationed at Fort Meade.

Baltimoreans may remember him as the valedictorian and class president of the Douglass High class of 1948; or as the Baltimore boy who won honors at Boston University where he received a B.S. degree in modern languages in 1952. He is expert in speaking Russian.

Notes from the Cherry Hill cooking school: To soften brown sugar put a piece of fresh bread in the package or a slice of apple.

Brown sugar will soften by heating it in the oven, but after it is removed from heat, it will harden faster.

For cakes and other items which require quick baking, place same in middle of your oven.

Brown skinned Roland Wheatley was among the guests at the Stanley Theatre on Monday at the session for salesmen sponsored by Tele-Sell Clinics and the roof didn't cave in.

Mr. Wheatley, you know is chief public relations man for Hauswald Bakery.

He and his wife, the former Mildred Clark, both Douglass High grads, live at 2715 Liberty Heights.

Their children are Joyce, a city teacher; Jacqueline, a Douglass High senior who graduates this year; and Roland Jr., a tenth grader at City College.

Think you have troubles? Read this: Up in Paterson, N.J., Anthony Lozarchak walked into First National Bank and asked a very impressive - looking man which window he could use to deposit $1,000 to open a checking account.

The man assured Lozarchak that he would personally make the deposit, and Lozarchak would get his checkbook by mail at his home in Garfield.

Three weeks went by. Yesterday Lozarchak learned the truth — no one in the bank matched the man's description!!

Don't forget: The Show of Shows fashion review featuring Charm Centre models tonight (Friday) at Booker Washington High auditorium.

Noteworthy

By HERBERT MANGRUM

It was bound to happen.

Place two or three hundred kids in a building with an elevator and you have created a major headache for someone.

I could very well have said I told you so when a young boy and his sister found themselves trapped between the seventh and eighth floors of a building in the Lafayette Courts Tuesday.

The kids were held prisoner for more than three hours while the growing mob tried to figure out what to do next.

Police said the building superintendent wouldn't cooperate until time came to rescue the children because he had done his eight hours and was off duty.

The super calls the whole thing "a lie." Bet it was one big happy family amid all that confusion.

• • •

A WEEK ago I found myself stepped on the ninth floor of a building in the same 'project.'

Although two automatic elevators were in service, not one would stop at the ninth floor when the button was pushed.

"Due to a mechanical failure of some kind the elevators in the Orleans St. building would take you up but they wouldn't bring you down.

I had to walk down twice from the ninth floor. In the meantime the kids were having a ball on the automatic lift.

• • •

ON THURSDAY the Fire Department presented a pledge card for $32,500 to Mercy Hospital for their building fund.

Of the 160 colored firemen in this city all contributed to the fund with the exception of one. He refused on religious grounds.

More people and things...

Get Reuben and Romaine Jones (the school execs) to tell you why they never got to the Zeta's' dance last Friday evening.

Seems as though the man of the house just knew the proper way to get to the Catonsville armory!

When he discovered he was wrong, he made a U turn and landed in a mud bank. Couldn't budge his rear wheels.

After a long walk to Edmondson Village for help, they turned around. The dance was long over. They returned home, had coffee and to bed.

To hear them tell it is a scream. And, you know what — they didn't even exchange a cross word!

• • •

And Deputy U.S. Marshal William (Box) Harris has a heart-warming story he will tell all who will listen.

His daughter, Barbara, was set upon by a neighbor's dog. A kind neighbor threw her steak out the window to catch the dog's attention and keep him from continuing the assault.

When this failed, a brave teenage boy jumped in the yard and rescued the Harris child who suffered bites on the face.

And Mr. Harris — his wife, Ivy, and all their friends want everybody to know how grateful they are to the people who possibly saved their daughter's life.

• • •

In the excitement, they didn't get the name of the lady who called their home to call attention with the steak she had planned for dinner; or the youngster who braved the dog's anger and pulled the child away from him.

And, when he gets through telling the story — U.S. Marshal Harris likes to add the story about the question his daughter asked after she was safe in bed: 'Daddy,' she said, 'you're the marshal. Why didn't you shoot the dog?'

• • •

The pretty brick split level home going up at 3805 Edgewood Rd., will soon be the address of Howard (Puddin') and Iona Collins. She's the head of the Little School. He's the postal worker.

Remember, they sold their pretty Longwood St. place?

• • •

Talented Mrs. David Wright (Rea) was the consultant and did a beautiful job with colors. And, by the way, Mrs. Wright and her hubby have redecorated the kitchen of their pretty Bryant Ave. home. It's beautiful!

Prayers of the week...

For teachers: "O God, our heavenly Father, we pray to Thee for those whose lives are spent in teaching or in other service in our schools and colleges.

"Grant to them the strength they need to carry them through their tasks. In days of weariness and discouragement may they find in Thee their sure resource.

"In trying times give them patience, and guidance in perplexity; and let them see the reward of their labors in sound Christian character and good citizenship through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."
