BALTIMORE.

TUESDAY, MAY 6, 1862.

FROM GEN. HALLECK'S DIVISION.

The following despatches from the West give the latest intelligence from the army under General Halleck:

CAIRO, May 2.—The news from Pittsburg Landing is of the highest importance. Its transmission over the wires is prohibited. Gen. L. Wallace's division has taken possession of Purdy without opposition. The enemy's left flank had rested in that town. Governor Yates left to-night for Pittsburg, with the hospital steamer and a large quantity of sanitary stores. The river is stationary and eight inches higher than ever before known.

PITTSBURG LANDING, May 2.—A general order was issued yesterday, transferring Major-General Thomas' division from the army of the Ohio to the army of Tennessee; and Major-General Thomas takes command of the army formerly under Gen. Grant, of which the divisions of Generals McClernand and Wallace are to constitute a reserve under General McClernand. Major-General Grant will retain command of his district, including the army corps of Tennessee, but in the present movements will act as second in command under the Major-General commanding the Department.

CINCINNATI, May 2.—The Commercial has from its correspondent with the army of General Halleck the following official figures of our loss at the battle of Pittsburg Landing:

Divisions.	Killed.	Wounded.	Missing.
McClernand's	251	1,351	256
W. H. L. Wallace's	223	1,033	1,163
Lew. Wallace's	43	257	95
Hurlbut's	313	1,429	225
Sherman's	437	1,402	482
Prentiss'	196	562	1,802
Crittenden's	89	410	27
Nelson's	93	612	10
McCook's	94	866	4
Total	1,735	7,882	4,044

The total killed, wounded and missing is 13,661. About 300 of the wounded have since died.

Our burial parties report between 2,500 and 3,000 Confederates found dead on the field. Beauregard lost not less than 20,000 men in killed, wounded and prisoners, and the sick, used up and panic-stricken during his movement from Corinth upon Pittsburg Landing.

The Commercial publishes passages of a letter from General Grant in reply to a letter informing him of the nature of the criticism of his management of the battle of Pittsburg Landing. General Grant says:

I will go on and do my duty to the very best of my ability without praise, and do all I can to bring the war to a speedy close. I am not an aspirant for anything at the close of the war. There is one thing I feel well assured of—that is, I have confidence in every brave man in my command. Those who showed the white feather will do all in their power to attract attention from themselves. I had perhaps a dozen officers arrested for cowardice on the first day's fight. These men are necessarily my enemies. As to the talk about surprise here, nothing could be more false. If the enemy had sent up word where and when they would attack us, we could not have been better prepared.—Skirmishing had been going on for two days between our reconnoitering parties and the enemy's advance. I did not believe, however, they intended to make a determined attack, but were simply making a reconnoissance in force. My headquarters were at Savannah, though I usually spent the day at Pittsburg. Troops were constantly arriving to be assigned to brigades and divisions, all ordered to report to Savannah, making it necessary to keep an office and some one there. I was also looking for General Buell to arrive, and it was important I should have every arrangement complete for his speedy transit to this side of the river.

BEAUREGARD'S INTERCEPTED DESPATCH.

CINCINNATI, May 2.—The Commercial's correspondent with General Mitchell's army gives the following explanation of the manner in which Beauregard's despatch was taken at Huntsville:—The lines were broken at a point beyond Huntsville, and Beauregard's despatch was received at Huntsville, and was being prepared by the operator there to be forwarded by locomotive to Chattanooga, and thence repeated by telegraph to Richmond, when General Mitchell surprised the town and instantly seized the telegraph office. General Mitchell himself solved the cipher after an hour's study. There is no doubt as to the genuineness of the despatch.—Beauregard lost not less than 23,000 men in killed, wounded and prisoners, and in sick, used up and panic-stricken during his movement from Corinth upon Pittsburg Landing.

THE BATTLE-FIELD OF SHILOH.

Correspondence of the New York Tribune.

KENTUCKY, April 23.—I returned from the battlefield of Pittsburg Landing (or Shiloh) several days ago, having accompanied one of the many boats sent by the Cincinnati Sanitary Commission immediately after the battle became known. I desire as briefly as possible to let the public generally know a few things that I saw and heard from unquestioned sources. I hops I may never while this war lasts, nor at any other time, see or hear the like again.

My purpose in going was, like that of those who accompanied me, to render aid and succor to the sick and wounded. We arrived at the scene on the fifth day after the battle commenced, and you may judge of the suffering and horrors that met us when I state that wounded men were being brought in who had lain on the field uncared for up to this time!

No doubt hundreds perished from want of care—died from mere exhaustion from comparatively slight wounds. I saw myself, in looking over the ground for any that might yet remain wounded and alive, several who had died whose lives might have been saved had they received proper attention. It may be that such cases are unavoidable; their great frequency on this occasion admits of no excuse. Every body who knows anything of the matter will affirm that there had been no adequate preparation on the part of the medical corps for either sick or wounded. Hundreds went into this battle that should have been in a comfortable hospital.

They were sick and feeble; no place had been provided for them by those whose duty it was to do so, and when the battle commenced, and our forces were driven from their camp, they sought safety in the ranks until they dropped down from exhaustion. How many poor fellows fell in this way it is impossible to enumerate. But all agree that the number could not have been small.

I hope those whose imperative duty it is will inquire into this, and see that the like does not occur again. It is too horrible to contemplate; alike disgraceful to us as a nation, and a lasting stigma upon the Medical Bureau of the Army. It is safe to assume that but for the prompt and efficient aid rendered by the different sanitary commissions, hundreds would have died that now will be restored to their country and to their friends.

And there was great service rendered, too, by individual surgeons attached to the several brigades and regiments. I could particularize, but will not attempt it. The regular medical corps, however, whose duty it was to have provided for the sick, and to have been prepared—in some degree, at least—for the occasion which happened, deserve and have received from all who have witnessed the scene, the most unqualified condemnation.

Where the responsibility rests I do not know; it is a fearful one, be it whose it may. Many are disposed to censure the Commander of the Department. It is a matter, certainly, that he should not have overlooked, and perhaps he did not. So much for this particular abuse.

In regard to the battle itself there is but one voice—that the preservation of our glorious army from total annihilation was purely Providential.—There was no more preparation by Gen. Grant for an attack than if he had been on a Fourth of July frolic.

The movements of the enemy were unknown and unheeded; had the attack been made one day earlier, the whole of this splendid force would have been killed or taken prisoners. Of this there is no shadow of doubt. As it was, our losses have been terrible. Thousands of brave men fighting for their country have fallen—killed, wounded and prisoners—who ought now to be rejoicing with their brethern over their victory. This sacrifice is due alone to the criminal neglect of their Generals. Shall this great lesson, with many "like unto it," go unheeded? I wish Mr. Lincoln and his Cabinet could visit, as I have, and as thousands of others have visited, the scene of this conflict, and hear the testimony of those who shared it: something might then be done to avoid a repetition of the afflicting blunders and criminal inefficiency which have plunged so many hearts in sorrow.

THE SAME TRANSACTION RATHER DIFFERENTLY STATED.

Correspondence N. Y. Times (McDowell's Division.)

A NEW SECESSION UNIFORM CAPTURED.

Our business was to search the town for straggling soldiers. In the performance of this duty we ran upon the trunk of a Captain of the Texas Volunteers. He probably left it behind under the supposition that it would be carefully guarded by our army, and forwarded to him at Richmond. For this belief he had reason in the tender care we have thus far shown for the property of Rebels; but Col. Kilpatrick has a peculiar way of disposing of those things. The trunk was broken open, and a new secession uniform taken therefrom, with several other trophies, one of which, a beautifully worked pair of slippers, adorns my feet at the present writing.

As revised and improved by the correspondent of the New York Tribune:

A REBEL GENERAL'S UNIFORM CAPTURED.

Lieutenant Colonel Kilpatrick, of the Harris Light Cavalry, captured at Fredericksburg, a day or two since, a splendid uniform belonging to a Major General, adorned with brass buttons, with three stars upon the shoulder-straps, with boots well spurred, and hat splendidly plumed.

The prize brig Amy Warwick was sold at Boston on Friday for $15,000. Her cargo, consisting of 5,000 bags coffee, was also sold. Manning, Stanwood & Co. took 4,000 bags, at 18 cts. per pound, cash.

The new sloop-of-war Sacramento has been successfully launched from the navy-yard at Portsmouth. Her armament will be one 100-pounder Parrott gun, two heavy Dahlgrens and six smaller pieces.

RELIABLE NEWS.

BALTIMORE, March 29, 1862.

Mr. Geo. Pearson—Dear Sir: Being troubled with a severe SORE THROAT and cold (which settled on my lungs), I tried your MEDICATED TAR DROPS, and can speak very flatteringly of their having relieved me in a few hours, and curing me in three or four days. I cheerfully recommend your justly celebrated Tar Drops to all similarly affected, who will find them pleasant, simple, very efficacious, and the cheapest remedy I ever used. Yours, very truly,
