NEW BOOKS.

From the Publishers:

FREE NEGROISM; OR, RESULTS OF EMANCIPATION IN THE NORTH AND THE WEST INDIA ISLANDS, with Statistics of the Decay of Commerce, etc., etc., etc. New York: Van Evrie, Horton & Co. Pp. 52.

This well-written and useful little pamphlet is evidently the production not only of an intelligent and well-informed, but also of a practical mind. Filled with interesting statistical detail, compiled, doubtless, with labor and care, and dealing exclusively with facts, it pictures concisely, but clearly, the invariable result which has always followed upon the emancipation of the negro. The history of the rapid and ruinous decline of commerce and wealth in the English and French West India Islands is contrasted forcibly with the steady and prosperous advance of Cuba and the Spanish Islands; and all that is, in truth, really interesting in the many books that have been written of late years on the subject, is here given in a few pages. There are statistics, too, relating to the free negroes of the North, which will be new to the great mass of our readers, and which should teach a lesson, not without its moral. Of little value as even such books are at the present time, and useless as the discussion of any minor topic can be, when a far greater question absorbs the mind, this pamphlet will still be found worthy a place on the library shelves as a convenient and reliable work for future reference. Its very moderate price places it within the reach of every one.

From the Publishers, and for sale by James Sheeby, 15 St. Paul street:

CHAMBERS' ENCYCLOPEDIA. A Dictionary of Universal Knowledge for the People. Part 40—Fust to Fig. J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

It is sufficient to say, of this most capital work, that it does full credit to its enterprising and deservedly popular editors, William and Robert Chambers, of Edinburgh. Well gotten up, of a convenient size, and illustrated by many wood cuts, it is one of the best books of the kind ever issued.

From the Indiana State Sentinel.

LETTER FROM AN ARMY OFFICER DESCRIBING WHAT HE SAW IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11, 1862.

DEAR JOE: I left your goodly city at 8 P. M. on Friday last, and by the aid of a slip of paper, which I paid $17 50 for, I found myself at this place on Sunday morning. You, of course, know that I am an officer of the grand Union army, and wear shoulder-straps, and as such should have had due respect shown me; nor can I complain, for when I left the cars, at the Washington Depot, I met a great string of the politest gentlemen of the city, each anxious that I should take a seat in his carriage and ride down to my hotel. This was a distinction that I did not look for, but I attributed it all to the shoulder-straps and my good looks. I finally selected one of the finest carriages, and the gentleman who drove asked me what hotel I desired to go to. This was a stumper, for I did not know myself. Indeed, after receiving so much attention at the depot, I thought it possible that I was to be made the guest of the city, and a hotel already in waiting to receive me. The gentleman, however, not understanding the matter in that light, repeated the names of a large number of hotels, and among the number was the "Avenue House," to which place he soon drove me, dismounted, and very politely opened the door of the carriage, and assisted me in getting out, and just as I was going to thank him for his kindness, he says, "A dollar, sir, please." "What?" says I. "A dollar, sir." So I just pulled out very nearly the last "unicorn" that I had about me and gave it to him. He thanked me with a gracious smile, which rather pleased me, and away he went.

I then went up into the lobby of the Avenue House, where I found a crowd of niggers. The nigger said that it was Sunday, and none could be had nearer than Willard's Hotel, to which place he directed me, and away I went. The streets were crowded with soldiers and niggers. Many of the soldiers were very polite, saluting me in true military style, all on account of my straps. I soon found Willard's, got my drink, and started back. I had not got far before I met a squad of the nicest-looking soldiers I ever saw, under the command of an equally nice-looking Sergeant, who, upon approaching, halted his men, gave me the military salute, and I thought he was going to have his men present arms while I passed. The streets were full, and I felt proud of the distinction about to be conferred. So just as I was going to make my most polite salute to the men, the nice little Sergeant says, "A pass, sir; a pass, sir!" "The devil!" says I, "I have no pass; I am officer of the army—don't you see my shoulder-straps?" The nice little officer informed me that he was officer of the Provost Guard, and charged with the duty of arresting all officers and soldiers found in the city without a pass. By this time quite a crowd of niggers and white men had come up, many of whom I noticed were very much amused, and I suspected that it might be at my expense. So you see that I did not feel quite so comfortable as I had a few moments before. However, by dint of hard persuasion, I got the officer to let me off, under the promise that I would join my regiment forthwith. This, however, I did not intend to do, for my leave of absence had three days to run, and I intended to make the most of it.

I returned to the hotel rather crestfallen, and fully of the opinion that I was not near so great a personage as I at first imagined.

In the evening I visited the "secesh" members of Congress, Colonel Dick Richardson's rooms, where I found several other "secesh" Representatives. Among the number were Robinson, of Ill., Dan Voorhees, of Indiana, Vallandigham, of Ohio, and many others. These rebels talked "secesh" right out, and, in my opinion, they ought to be expelled from the House. They are opposing all the measures of the Administration which tend to the freeing and equalizing the negro of the South with the whites of the North. They oppose the organization of a regiment of runaway negroes, their being armed and uniformed, as is being done by one of our generals in the South, in order that they may stand shoulder to shoulder, and assist our brave boys of the North in putting down this rebellion. They oppose the stealing of a few million of dollars by men who have assisted in placing the present Administration in power. They oppose the last "slide" of General Banks from Strasburg, Va., across the Potomac. They oppose the policy of the General being three miles in advance of his wagon train, and being the first to cross the Potomac, leaving his officers and men in the rear to protect themselves as best they could. They oppose the principle of Banks's taking more runaway negroes with him on his retreat than he had white soldiers, and also they oppose his permitting negroes to ride in the ambulances and wagons, while sick and wounded soldiers were forced to walk.—They oppose the freeing of negroes in the District of Columbia. They oppose contracting with the slave States, and pledging the faith of the Government to assist in buying the slaves of the several States, at least while our expenses are three millions of dollars per day.

All these "secesh" members insist on prosecuting the war until we can establish a peace upon the principles of the Constitution as it is, and the Government as it was.

Such men, representing a free and independent Western constituency, in the opinion of many, and indeed all, who desire to see the great and glorious principle of the equalization of all human beings, without regard to color, adopted as a Government policy, should be expelled from their position.

After ascertaining the views of these officials, I concluded to look around town a little, and an Indiana Rebel member offered to accompany me, which politeness refused my declining. We had not gone far before he pointed out to me some large brick buildings, and informed me that they contained eleven hundred negroes, who had recently obtained their freedom, and come to this city for the purpose of making it their home. These poor people had no money, nor nothing to live upon, having all their lives been in bondage, consequently the Government had rented these buildings for them, and is now, and has been, issuing eleven hundred rations to them each day, from the United States Commissary Department. These people look well, as a general thing, and will soon make good citizens. It is expected that at the next city election there will be more votes cast than ever was before in the city of Washington.

I was much gratified to learn that these poor people were as healthy as could be expected. Yet there was a considerable amount of sickness among them, and our surgeons from the hospitals, who have the care of our sick and wounded soldiers, often have to neglect the duties assigned them, in order that they may relieve the distresses of these poor "fellow citizens" of ours.

By this time it was getting quite late in the evening, and I concluded to retire. I bade good night to Mr. Congressman, went to the hotel, and was shown a room about half a mile high, with a kind of bed in it, and turned in.

The next morning after breakfast I started out to see what I could see. I found a great many very polite men, who would call out to me "Have a hack, sir?" "Have a carriage, sir," &c; but I concluded to walk. I could occasionally see my nice little Sergeant with his equally nice squad of men, coming down the street, but as I am a very polite man, and never having had a formal introduction to them, I always changed my course. During my perambulations, I was often asked by very polite little gentlemen, who seemed to be of foreign descent, if I did not want to buy some "plodding" but being in an unfortunate condition, I made no purchases. I also visited the House of Representatives, and walked right in, and sat down between two Western members. I had not remained there long, before an impertinent little fellow, neatly dressed, came along and told me that I must leave. Says I, "What?" He explained that strangers were not permitted on the floor during the session. My friends, however, drove the little fellow away, and I stayed until I was tired.

There are a great many clever and polite people here, and I am glad of it. An instance or two more, perhaps, will not be amiss. At night, a member of Congress not far from the Indiana State line, but on the Illinois side, came around and invited me and an Illinois lawyer to take a walk with him. We, of course, consented, and started up town. After walking a half mile or so the Congressman stopped at a door of a very fine house, pulled a door-knob, and soon the lady of the house appeared—invited us in—we were introduced to the lady, and she introduced us to a half dozen of her daughters—we sat down, and conversation commenced, the young ladies doing the most of the talking. I soon concluded that we were favorites, and had I not been so bashful, I think I should have made love to one of them—she was so pretty, and she almost made love to me. We soon left, with many very polite invitations to return—indeed, this was a very clever family, and should I again return to the city, I will call and see them, if I can find the house again.

Mr. Member of Congress, then took us down to No. 406 Pennsylvania avenue, where we went up stairs, and found a dozen gentlemen or so, among the number were several Senators, members of the House and other gentlemen. We were introduced, and asked to drink, which we did not refuse, they were so polite about it. Soon after supper was announced, and we were politely asked to participate, which we did, and a good supper it was, too. The room was well furnished—several fine long tables were in the room, some of which had a curious kind of large buttons stacked up on them. Indeed everything was nice. I was told that it was a bank with a scriptural name, the scriptural part I have forgotten. We then took a drink and went to our rooms.

Washington is a great city. John Randolph once described it in his own classic language, with much truth, no doubt, at the time, but it is very much changed since. It is now a city of hacks, negroes, and incompetent army officers, and might, with much truth, include officers of State. The people here run all night and sleep nearly all day. They breakfast at twelve, dine at six, and get supper sometime the next day.

Should I meet with any further adventures while I remain here, I will write you again.

Yours, &c', WESTERN.

THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS PARTIALLY RESTORED.—After an involuntary absence of about three months, during which time we were made familiar with the classic and once hallowed grounds of Fort McHenry—we again resume, partially, our old vocation of "enlightening the world with lamp-black." OUR PRESS, being deemed dangerous by the Government, has been kindly limited, and, for the future, instead of publishing "THE SOUTH, or any other paper, without leave of the Commanding General," we shall modestly labor in the humble department of the "art preservative of all arts," by executing every description of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING, hoping through that medium to sustain ourselves and those dependent upon us and would earnestly appeal to our friends to favor us with their patronage. We have prepared our JOB PRINTING DEPARTMENT to execute all kinds of printing neatly, expeditiously and cheaply, and solicit a call at our old buildings.

STILL ANOTHER TRIUMPH.

BALTIMORE, May 1st, 1862.

I have experienced so much benefit by using PEARSON'S, MEDICATED TAR DROPS, that I believe it not only a duty but a pleasure, to make it known to others. I was afflicted with a Sore Throat and Dry Cough, which debilitated me so that I could get no rest. My friends told me that I had the consumption. I am now happy to inform you that your MEDICATED TAR DROPS have cured me.

I find that your MEDICATED TAR DROPS are counterfeited, and I caution the afflicted to be on their guard. This is really a shame that so efficacious a remedy should be injured by unprincipled men. I am glad, however, to see that your signature is now on each package, and I advise those who purchase to bear that in mind.

Yours, truly, HENRY FISHER,
No. 15 North Bond street.

PEARSON'S MEDICATED TAR DROPS are prepared and sold by GEO. PEARSON, No. 5 Liberty street, Baltimore. Sold also by the principal Druggists at 10 cents per package.
