MEXICAN AFFAIRS—SECRET CIRCULAR—LOBBY INFLUENCES, ETC.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—A desperate attempt is being made here by parties who seem to have some very particular interest in the matter, to get the Senate to act favorably on the Corwin Treaty, loaning Mexico the sum of $11,000,000, which is now before that body.

The subject of Mexican affairs has already been wisely acted upon by the Senate in deciding to first finish our own matters before involving ourselves in other complications, and there is nothing in the present situation of our affairs to render it probable that the Senate will be disposed to change its course of action now, but the efforts of these injudicious friends of Mexico are so bold, and their attempts to influence the action of the Senate so pertinacious, that it may be well to call public attention to their proceedings.

In addition to the use of the usual lobby machinery, the following miserably-written secret circular is being distributed among members of Congress and others supposed to have influence, toward the passage of the treaty.

The arguments of this circular are so shallow, and its reasoning so injudicious, that it carries its own refutation; but it is worth referring to as showing the weakness of the cause of those who would urge us in blind haste to violate the only safe principle of policy to which we can adhere in times like the present, viz: that of absolute non-interference in the affairs of any other country.

The following is the circular, which bears neither date nor name:

REASONS WHY THE MEXICAN TREATY SHOULD BE ACCEPTED.

It is humbly conceived that the United States should accept the pending treaty with Mexico—

1. Because it will give a virtual control and protectorate over that country; and which control in its results will enable us to monopolize its commerce and prevent all invasion of its soil by any foreign power, thereby securing to this Government, now and forever, the means, so far as that Republic is concerned, of carrying out and maintaining the Monroe doctrine.

2. It will give us an asylum, well adapted in its climate, soil, productions, tastes and habits of its citizens for the colonization of such people of color as we may wish, from any cause whatever, to get rid of.

It is well known that the Mexicans as a nation have no aversion to the African race.

But however desirable this may be, and however anxious we may be to have established and maintained a republican form of government on our border, or to assist that infant republic in her efforts to maintain that which, at the expense of so much blood and treasure, now exists; or however anxious we may be to secure an asylum for the people of color in this country, all such hopes and desires would be thwarted, if by any means that country should fall into the hands of the detested rebels of this; for they would flee to it as an asylum in which to build up an aristocracy or other strong government better adapted to their slave institutions; and carrying with them a deadly and uncorquerable hatred to us, would not only prevent the introduction of free negroes there, but would establish upon our very borders a hostile government, ever ready to invade our rights, and for the defence of which a large standing army would always be required. And, in view of the known sympathies of he British Government with the South, this danger would not be lessened if Mexico were to fall into the hands of that Government.

Let us, then, while we may, by a timely stroke of policy, not only secure all these desirable objects, but at the same time thwart and defeat, now and forever, the plans and machinations of a people who have already cost us so much blood and treasure, and who have sworn never to renounce their hatred of us, and their hostility to our Government.

3. It will prevent that country from falling under the dominion of England, France or other foreign Power, and guarantee us against the hazard of having established there, a hostile and anti Republican form of Government; a measure which is now known question. And in that event, we shall be completely encircled, with Canada on the north and Mexico on the south, by British possessions; which, in the event of a war with that country, (a matter by no means improbable,) would place us in a very awkward and embarrassing condition. It is necessary, therefore, to the protection of our existing interests.

4. Mexico in possession of England or other foreign Power, would forever deprive us of a right which we now enjoy, a right of transit across that territory, either by Tehuantepec or other lines; and we should thus forever loose that rich commerce of the East and of the Pacific, which England hopes to acquire, and France is now endeavoring to obtain by the power of her arms.

5. We should, by acceptance of the treaty, place ourselves in a condition to discharge a sacred duty toward a weak sister Republic, now heroically struggling to maintain a free government like our own from destruction, against the machinations of the strongest Government of Europe, and whose known design is to erect a monarchy upon its ruins, and which in the course of time might greatly endanger our own possessions.

The interest, the right, the [illegible] national right, and the morality of the question, are all with us, and plead powerfully for the acceptance of the treaty.

But will it be said that such acceptance may draw upon us the displeasure of France?

France will have no more right to take umbrage than she would for the building of a light-house, or battery, or ship of war, or any other matter pertaining to our peculiar and domestic duties. But if she does, what then? Are we to be deterred from the discharge of an obvious duty to our Government, because France or any other Power on earth, object?

If France desires to pick a quarrel with us, she will find some other pretext, if this should not exist.

It is hoped the day is far distant when these United States shall act or decline action through her fears.

Next to the purchase of Louisiana, no act of the Government will so redound to the wealth, the security, the prosperity, and glory of the United States as this.

Or will it be said that we cannot at this time afford to pay the eleven millions.

In ordinary times the amount in question would not be thought of as an objection, and even now, in view of its immense importance, it ought not, even were the money required in hand.

But no money is required to be paid; a loan of the Bonds of the Government on twenty years time, is all that is required, and these are most amply secured; first, by an equal amount of Mexican Bonds, payable in five years from the ratification of the treaty, and these bonds secured by a conveyance of all the public domain of the Government, and all the church property, and amounting, altogether, to several hundred millions. No loss, therefore, can be sustained by our Government on these Bonds, and, as they will always find a ready sale in market, no advance by our Government can be required; it is merely a loan of its credit.

Were this a mere question of finance, it would be desirable on the part of our Government, inasmuch as it virtually loans to it $11,000,000 for 15 years.

In any aspect of the case, therefore, in which it can be viewed it is confidently believed that, while the acceptance of the treaty is urged by the most weighty considerations, no valid objections against it can be found.

There are but two points in this secret missive which are worth noticing.

One, is the first argument used, viz: That the ratification of this treaty will give us a virtual protectorate over Mexico.

This is precisely what the United States, now that it has escaped from the domination of Southern recklessness of principle, does not want to assume, nor to be charged with secretly entertaining the design of assuming, particularly at the very moment when we are strenuously opposing such a design on the part of France. Besides, a treaty made merely by the Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs, and which has not had the approbation of the Congress of that country, is not proof that the Mexican nation either needs or desires our protectorate.

The second point is with reference to the $11,000,000 of bonds referred to in the last clause of the circular.

Who is to be appointed the agent of the American Government to dispose of these bonds? By whom are the proceeds to be remitted? Who is to have the profit of the bills of exchange used in making such remittance, and the commissions for all these transactions? Is this an affair already arranged—an understood agreement?

There are those who think it is, and that this is the source of some of the patriotic interest manifested in the passage of this treaty. It would be an affair even more profitable than a commission on gun contracts.

Again, is the Government of Mexico, in its necessities, really the party who is to get the benefit of the proceeds of this $11,000,000 of bonds? It is reliably reported from Mexico that upward of three millions of this sum are to go to the benefit of English claim holders, and that no less a sum than three-quarters of a million of dollars has been pledged to be paid to three American claimants.—Nothing of all this appears in the treaty, of course; the object is to get the money into the hands of the Mexican Government, and trust to its manipulation there.

Here would be another source of patriotic interest to get money from the United States Treasury, under the plea of Mexico's necessities, and the delusive argument that a monopoly of the commerce of that country is to be got by the magic process of simply loaning $11,000,000.

Then there is a just commission, with vast powers, to be appointed, and more money to be handled, the proceeds of sales of land and church property, etc., altogether a most profitable affair for those who are to manage these vast interests, honestly.

But setting all this aside, does the loan of this money to Mexico in any way secure the withdrawal of the French? If not, what interest is it to us to make so vast an outlay at this moment, subject to so many complications in its management, when it does not in any way remove the danger we are in of having to go to war with France by and by, if she continues her designs against republican institutions on this continent? And does the simple loan of $11,000,000 to Mexico restore peace to that country, when probably two-thirds of the entire sum will fall into the hands of greedy speculators?

Away with all these shallow pretences! the whole scheme is one of corrupt money-making, and at a time when every throb of patriotic feeling revolts at such an attempt to fatten off the dangers which imperil the very nationality of the two Republics.

Dear Sir—I feel it a duty to express to you my sincere acknowledgments of the benefit derived from the use of a package of your MEDICATED TAR DROPS.

I was suffering with a Severe Cough and SORE THROAT, when a friend presented me with a pie ce of your celebrated TAR DROPS, and when I used them, I was free to confess it was more to gratify my appetite for sweetmeats than the idea of derlving any good from them; but really, the rapid allaying of the irritation and subsequent entire cure of the cough, induces me to thank you, and I take great pleasure in recommending to the public so effective a compound. Respectfully yours, J. E. SMITH, M. D., Assistant Surgeon Artillery Brigade U. S. A.
