THE FEDERAL DISASTERS IN VIRGINIA—EUROPEAN INTERVENTION THE PROBABLE CONSEQUENCE.

The serious Federal disasters in Virginia, ending with the latest and greatest of all—the retreat of Gen. McClellan's army before superior numbers—a well calculated to stir the national heart to its depths. The whole country is roused, and everybody inquires what is the cause of the misfortune? The blame does not rest with the brave troops who have been sacrificed, fighting like heroes, nor with the General, who, at the outset, said he would do the best he could with the small number of troops entrusted to him, but with the imbecility of the Navy and the War Departments. It was General McClellan's purpose to proceed up the James river at first; but our incompetent Navy Department was unable to clear it for him, notwithstanding the immense number of vessels at the command of Commodore Goldsborough. The Merrimac was permitted to control the waters of the James river till it was too late, and the Confederates had possession of the strong points on its banks.

Had the river been under control of our fleet when General McClellan was ordered to march up the York Peninsula, a very different story would be told to-day. The James would have been his basis of operations from the beginning, instead of the York and the Pamunkey; and, supported by the gunboats, he would have been in Richmond a month ago. The War Department cut up and divided McClellan's army in despite of all his remonstrances, sending one portion here and another there, in order to give position and consequence to political generals, while the Confederates concentrated their whole force around Richmond—the decisive point of the theatre of war. The result was a serious reverse to our arms. If this blow had been brought about by design on the part of our high officials, it could hardly have been more disastrous. That the radicals intended to have McClellan repulsed on the Chickahominy, as they caused Banks to be repulsed on the Shenandoah, there cannot exist a doubt.

But there is something still worse to be apprehended. The news of the disaster has gone to Europe, and upon its heels will probably follow intervention on the part of France and England, if not of all the maritime Powers of Europe.

The practical question is, what ought to be now done in the crisis that is upon us? The first thing the people ought to do is to demand the removal of the imbeciles from the Navy and War Departments, who have brought such disgrace upon our arms. The next most essential thing is to secure the coast, from the Rio Grande to the Kennebec—to strengthen the fortifications already in existence, and to add new works wherever they may be needed; and lastly, to organize a home guard to man the artillery and practise constantly at the gun. In the meantime the fleet of gunboats ought to be made stronger, and the new iron-clad vessels ought to be hastened to completion. Lastly, the 300,000 men called for by the President be speedily enrolled, organized and brought into the field. Thus prepared for the Powers disposed to intervene, they may shrink back from the consequence; or, should they be rash enough to assail us, we can retaliate upon them with terrible vengeance. Not only can we wrest from them every foot of soil on this continent and on all the islands which belong to it, but we can carry the war into Europe. There are plenty of Irishmen throughout the Northern States who want to go to Ireland with arms in their hands.

Then, if the country is forcibly broken up by foreign interference, the loss of American bonds, amounting to six or eight millions of dollars, due to English capitalists, is inevitable. If the republic is divided it is no longer the United States, and the questions, in which half of it will be responsible to foreign countries for the common debt. Among the dangers, too, of European Powers will be revolution at home, organized by the Democracy in sympathy with the United States.

Such are some of the difficulties involved in the meddling of European nations with our domestic affairs. Yet there is too much reason to believe that they meditate intervention, and that they will attempt it if our statesmen are not careful and energetic. Our people should be prepared for this emergency. It is extremely probable that they will make the recent disaster in Virginia an excuse for the recognition of the so-called Confederate States, and that step would involve consequences of the most tremendous character. Our citizens should hold a great public meeting and raise the voice of strength and power of this metropolis made manifest.

DEATH OF MR. BUCKLE.

Mr. J. Stuart Glennie writes to the London Times the following interesting particulars of Mr. Buckle's death:—

"He had overworked himself, and suddenly felt the effects of it after the publication of his second volume, last spring. In October he left England, accompanied by two boys, the sons of a friend, and spent the winter on the Nile. He was so much better that in the beginning of March we left Cairo together for Sinai and Petra. Greatly improved in health by the six weeks in the Desert, he undertook the more fatiguing traveling on horseback through Palestine. Again his ardent temperament, or rather, as I now think, the restlessness of an over-excited nervous system, made him do too much; and, though on the 27th of April he expressed himself as feeling never to have been in better health in his life, he was that day seized with diarrhœa, and afterwards with an attack of sore throat, which detained us at Nazareth for more than a week.

"He never recovered his Desert strength, and we had to stop a couple of days more than we had proposed at Sidon, and take the easiest, though least interesting route to Damascus. At the sudden view of that famous plain, on emerging from the rocky defile on the eastern ridge of Anti-Lebanon, he exclaimed, 'It is worth more than all the pain and fatigue it has cost me!' Alas! how much more it was to cost him.

"The fatigue again brought on diarrhœa. The quantity of opium prescribed, though small, yet, with his peculiar constitution, produced delirium for about a quarter of an hour, and it was touching to hear him exclaim in the midst of his incoherent utterances, 'Oh, my book, my book, I shall never finish my book!' The French medical officer, however, whom he consulted, not only assured him, but myself privately, that there was nothing whatever to fear, only that it would be advisable that he should give up the proposed excursion to Baalbec and through the Lebanon, and return by the French carriage road to Beyrout.

"On these assurances, and finding him apparently much better on the 21st, I regret to say I was induced to leave him, and go the long route through the Lebanon alone, in the confident expectation, however, that I should find him waiting me at Beyrout, re-invigorated by the sea air, and ready to proceed on our journey to Greece and Turkey. I need not say how shocked I was to hear at the Consulate yesterday (31st of May) that, on the evening of the day I left Damascus (the 21st), he was seized with typhus fever, sank into an unconscious stupor on the 26th, died, and was buried on the 29th. *

"One thing, I confess, I fear may have hastened the end; he was leeched. But the kindness and attention of our Acting Consul, Mr. Sandwich, the American missionary, Mr. Robson, and the American physician, Dr. Barclay, who went up expressly from Beyrout, must be warmly acknowledged.—The stimulants applied by the latter had only the effect of producing the partial and very temporary return to consciousness which preceded his decease.

"Thus, at the early age of 39, died one whose death, I think, more than the partiality of a friend, makes me consider him a national loss."

THE WRECKS IN HAMPTON ROADS.

T. F. Wells, Esq., of this city, has just completed a contract with the Government by which he agrees to raise the vessels sunk at Gosport Navy Yard and in Hampton Roads. The value of property sunk upon which he proposes to operate amounts to over a million of dollars, and consists of the following vessels:

Pennsylvania	120	gun ship.
Delaware	84	"
Columbus	80	"
Raritan	50	"
Columbia	50	"
United States	50	"
Congress	50	"
Plymouth	22	"
Germantown	22	"
Cumberland	24	"
Dolphin	4	"
Merrimac	12	"
2 new Confederate steamers—water-boat, powder-boat.

The two new Confederate steamers, it will be recollected, were all ready for sea, and were scuttled and sunk at the Navy Yard in great haste.—They now lie in about thirty feet of water, and it is thought can be easily raised. The Cumberland lies in eleven fathoms of water, and it is the intention of the contractor to raise her by means of four wholeships of four hundred tons each; which will be partial y submerged by being partly filled with water, and then, after attaching to the sunken ship, will, by means of the rise of the tide and the use of steam pumps, bring her up. It will be recollected the Merrimac was plated with eight hundred tons of iron, all of which, it is expected, will be recovered. The Congress and Cumberland each had iron safes aboard, containing respectively $35,000 and $18,000 in specie, which will, without doubt, be recovered by means of diving apparatus.

The undertaking involves an outlay by the contractor of some sixty thousand dollars before commencing the work. He will employ something like two hundred men, among whom will be twenty divers, who will descend to the sunken ships in the Wells & Gowen submarine armor. Such of the vessels as are not raised will be blasted with gunpowder, and all the material that is of value recovered.

The contractor is the same party who raised the steamer Erie from Lake Erie, in 1854, and has been engaged in other submarine operations. We understand he is to commence operations at once, and is to receive forty-five per cent. salvage from the Government in the value of all property recovered.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 17, 1862.
GEO. PEARSON, Esq.
Dear Sir—I feel it a duty to express to you my sincere acknowledgements of the benefit derived from the use of a package of your MEDICATED TAR DROPS.
I was suffering with a SEVERE COUGH and SORE THROAT, when a friend presented me with a package of your celebrated TAR DROPS, and when I used them, I was free to confess it was more to gratify my appetite for sweetmeats than the idea of deriving any good from them; but really, the rapid allaying of the irritation and subsequent entire cure of the cough, induces me to thank you, and I take great pleasure in recommending to the public so effective a compound. Respectfully yours, J. E. SMITH, M. D.
PEARSON'S MEDICATED TAR DROPS are prepared and sold by GEO. PEARSON, No. 5 North Liberty street, Baltimore, at 10 cents per package. Sold also by all the principal Druggists. je21-tf
