Morgan Primed for Opening of CIAA Cage Play

Pierce Honored

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — The Student Council elections committee named Chester (Chet) Pierce, star tackle of the Harvard University football team, to serve as class marshal, the first of his race to be so honored.

Pierce, 21-year-old brother of Sam Pierce, ex-Cornell gridiron luminary, was elected second marshal of the '48 class and, as such, will be one of three students to lead the commencement procession in June.

A resident of Glen Cove, L.I., Pierce is a three-year letter man in football, and became the first of his race to play in an intercollegiate football game below the Mason-Dixon line when Harvard played University of Virginia at Charlottesville last Oct. 11.

Bears Entertain Trojans of Va. State Here Monday

Hillmen Seek Revenge for the '47 Tourney Licking; Frosh Look Good

Coach Talmadge (Marse) Hillcrots his Morgan State College bears return onto the Baltimore Gardens floor Monday night for their first taste of CIAA competition for the 1948 campaign.

Opposing the Bears will be the Virginia State College Trojans, upon whom the locals are seeking revenge. Revenge for a surprise pasting tacked onto them in the opening round of the 1947 CIAA tournament at Washington, last March.

Morgan, it will be remembered, had twice beaten the Virginians during the 1947 regular season, once by a margin of 76-61, and again by a difference of 71-66. Conquerors of the Bears drew the Trojans in their first round in the second annual tourniament, followers of the former felt satisfied their lads would go places.

However, Coach Harry Jefferson's charges, speared by an eagle eyed doorman named Lanky Banks, promptly dumped that Hillmore hopes into the ashpan by emerging with a 69-57 decision.

Morgan has never quite forgiven the Trojans for this indignity, and the Washington brothers, George and George Emlen Johns, Web Lewis and others from the '47 Bears have been awaiting a chance for revenge.

Hill is expecting great things from the clever brother-combination, which set the scoring pace in the conference through the early months of the '47 campaign. But is he more enthusiastic by the showing of a sophomore newcomer, Tom Vaughters, a 6-foot 9-inch center from Morton, Pa., who has been giving the veteran Jones and Jim Turpin a merry chase in practice drills.

Likes Freshmen

The Bears will also pleased with the work of a freshman quartet, composed of Tim Howard, of the football team; Eugene Evans, another frosh gridder; Billy Harris, of Philadelphia, and Herman Stephens, a product of Chicago scholastic circles.

With the exception of Steptoe, the lads all six-footers, Howard is a guard; stands 6.01, Vaughters measures 6.03, and Howard reaches up to 6.03.

State comes to town with a high-scoring combination which includes Banks, leading scorer of the conference last year; Ray Crittenden, high-point man of 1946, Tom Hurley and a host of top-line freshmen.

The Bears' second game is slated for Jan. 19, against Johnson C. Smith University of Charlotte, N.C.

Morgan Football Banquet Thursday

Members of the 1947 Morgan State College football squad will be honored at the annual gridiron banquet, to be held Thursday night at 8 p.m. in the college cafeteria.

Howard K. (Brutus) Wilson, coach of the CIAA champion Shaw University eleven, and an alumnus of Morgan, will be the guest speaker for the occasion.

As I See It

By AL SWEENEY

WASHINGTON

This writer missed the Eastern Board of Officials' annual meeting last Saturday for the first time in four years.

I passed up mopping up chicken from the festive board with Washington arbiters for good reason. It was simply my conscience.

I thought about heading for Wake Hall, but the inner me said "Al — don't go. It wouldn't be right."

Even though the vision of a plump "drum stick" was dancing through my head and causing the taste buds to play havoc with my underfed gastronomic organ, I fought off the temptation and stayed away.

The reason for my reluctance and final decision was that I knew I was going to reel off a bitter pillar pointing out the inept football officiating during the 1947 season.

How could I accept their food and then give them the works in my column?

The refereeing in the CIAA reached a new low in 1947, and the members of the EBO contributed a large share to the inefficient arbitrating.

This writer covered about eight games during the season passed and not one of them was handled with any degree of perfection (as I saw it) by the referees in charge. After everyone of the contests the coaches of the participating teams expressed their dissatisfaction over the officiating and all of them vowed that there would be some changes made, when the alumni CIAA meeting was held.

Nahing Done

Well, the CIAA sessions have come and gone and nothing has been done about referees. Good old Benny Washington made his annual report "white-washing" the type of officiating in the loop during the grid season of 1947 and the same coaches who vowed that there would be some changes made, sat in their chairs spellbound by Mr. Washington's report and applauded after it was read.

Only one coach took the floor to denounce the officiating in the CIAA during the recent session and that coach was Sam Taylor of Virginia Union. The rest shut up like so many clams.

Forgotten were the charges that the E.B.O. was running the officials of the CIAA. Forgotten was the threat to throw out all of the officials of the CIAA, who were doubled as officials of the E.B.O. such as John Burr, who is president of the E.B.O. along with heading the CIAA; and Benny Washington, who is secretary of the E.B.O. and commissioner of officials of the CIAA.

Forgotten also was the complaint that EBO members were getting better assignments than members of the other boards of officials. They forgot to bring up these complaints, so why should this writer worry? you are probably asking.

Officiating Bush League

Well, from the press box, it seemed the only small-time phase of CIAA football during the past season was the officiating.

Most of the teams were well-coached and the players were of high calibre. But, more than one game was ruined by the inept officiating.

Union's 8-7 victory over North Carolina College was decided on a questionable decision. The fans in Norfolk are still talking about the odor left by officiating in the A. & T.-Virginia Union game.

There are plenty of Shaw followers, who admit that Howard got some very bum decisions, when the Bisons faced Shaw at Raleigh. Manny Rivero had plenty to say about the official who kicked his star end out of a game at Hampton when Lincoln's Lions held the Pirates to a 0-0 tie.

Looked to Morgan Bench?

The fans, who watched Howard upset Morgan at Griffith Stadium, are still wondering, whether the officials didn't look to Morgan's bench before making a decision.

When Morgan faced Hampton, the Pirates were favored over the Bears on several decisions. And so it went throughout the season.

This column doesn't challenge the honesty of the officials, but this writer does wonder about the arbiters' knowledge of the streamlined game of football and feels that the game has become too fast for the grey-beards, who are assigned to handle games week in and week out.

With the contemplated rules changes, which will speed up the game even more than it did last year, there is a need for younger, more competent officials, who should be chosen not on the basis of their affiliation, but on their ability.

Indoor Carnival and Classes Planned by Recreation Bureau

An indoor carnival, dancing and home nursing classes are among the events to be sponsored by the Bureau of Recreation.

The Bureau is being planned by the girls' gymnasium classes at School No. 130, 133 and 450 in conjunction with the Lexington St. Recreation Center. It will be held late in February.

Mrs. Virginia Sykes will begin dancing classes at Cherry Hill Center Tuesday. Classes are from 5 to 8 p.m.

Home Nursing Classes

The home nursing classes will begin at McCulloh Town Sed. Jan. 22. A cooking school is already being conducted in the project. Certificates and pins will be awarded to persons completing the courses. Miss Ardonia Snowden is leader in charge.

Beginning Monday, Douglass Homes Community Center will be open Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays only, from 2 to 10 p.m., Mrs. Mae K. Folkes, recreation supervisor, has announced.

Classes and groups of interest to teen-agers will be promoted by the leaders-in-charge, Misses Holland and Francis Dent.

At School 136, Miss Naomi Hersbrod, recreation leader, has a full program of activities for groups on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 3:15 to 5:15 p.m.

Seek Games for Young Quint Under DPR Ban

In an effort to prevent the loss of interest in their intercracial venture, the boys of the mixed Fulton A.C. basketball team have been booked for a game with the YMCA Adelphi five at the Druid Hill Avenue Y, next Friday night.

The young Fulton lads have been deprived of a chance to play basketball since action was taken to bar them from the City Recreation Department League late Monday.

The ban was ordered by Fred D. Crosby, commissioner of amateur sports in the Department of Public Recreation, with the approval of Harold S. Callowhill, director.

The Fulton team played all five games in the first half of the league. Ten games are scheduled for the full season. One of these games—slated for Wednesday—has already been postponed pending a final decision by the Park Board, whether or not participation of the mixed team is permissible.

Two other games, listed for January 14 and 21, are also likely to be missed because the meeting of the Park Board is not due to be held until January 20.

Meanwhile, Philip Boyer, the team's organizer, is seeking what games he can get for the boys so that their interest in the project will not wane. The game with the Adelphia is a result.

Bratton Given 'Works' in Bout With Minelli

PHILADELPHIA

By FRANKLIN BROWER

The 1948 boxing season got off on the wrong foot when Livio Minelli, a back-threading Italian welterweight, was returned the winner over Chicago's Johnny Bratton at Convention Hall, Monday night, before 7,700 onlookers.

The split decision which gave Minelli his 38th consecutive professional triumph was one of the most outrageous, over handed decisions ever rung out. It was certainly more unfair than anything Pennsylvania's crop of inept ring officials had turned out this year.

Making his first local appearance, the Chicago Bratton chased and battered Minelli all over the roped square, and, except for a ninth-round flurry by the Italian, completely dominated the milling.

Yet Referee Pete Pantaleo in his first big-time assignment, was brazen enough to declare Minelli the winner, 5-2-1. Why the State Athletic Commission would promote Pantaleo, an official whose work has been generally conceded bad to worse, to a referee's role, is unfathomable.

Bratton, little better than the referee, giving Minelli the nod on the strength of a strong ninth round after awarding each principal five rounds. Only one judge, Leo Trese, who favored Bratton, 6-4, judged the fight this way.

On the AFRO's score card, Bratton, who spotted Minelli four pounds at 139, was ahead seven rounds to three.

The Chicago lad entered the ring an 8-5 underdog after the odds had made some curious shifts shortly before battle time. Early in the betting, Bratton was a 8-5 choice. But for some unexplainable reason, the speculators went over to Minelli as the day progressed.

Bratton, however, was disdainful of the odds. The only reason he didn't trounce Minelli more decisively, and even knock him out, was that he elected to toy with him early in the fight.

Made to Look Silly

Always moving in, Bratton brought cheers from the crowd as he rode under the foreigner's punches and moved back perfectly silly.

Other times, the mid-westerner would corner Minelli and feint him into a frenzy. Although he frequently failed to throw punches on these occasions, Bratton would so befuddle his opponent that Minelli pounded at like a man dodging bullets. But the Italian never caught his wary out. He ran.

Bratton abandoned his fancy tactics in the ninth round and began to batter his foe with hard shots to the head. Minelli's hasty retreats were the only things that saved the Italian from being pummeled.

After undergoing a frightful mauling in the eighth round, Minelli came up with his best period in the ninth. He hit Bratton fast and furiously. But Bratton was never in trouble and always stood his ground.

The 10th period was Bratton's by a monumental margin. But that did not prevent the three officials from scoring it for Minelli in different ways.

The decision was, deservedly, well-booed. Many dissenters were too surprised to give vent to their feelings.

It likely that Promoter Herman Taylor will make an effort to have the fighters. But Bratton will probably think twice before trying himself for another new deal at the hands of local officials.

Louis Signs for June Title Bout

NEW YORK — Heavyweight champion Joe Louis on Thursday signed a contract to defend his title in a 15-round bout at Yankee Stadium here in June against an opponent to be selected by the 20th Century Sporting Club.

The opponent has not as yet been named. Though Louis expressed a preference for Jersey Joe Walcott, Bob Strauss, acting head of the 20th Century, said at the time of the signing that there was no definite assurance that Jersey Joe would be the man in the other corner.

Walcott's demands for 30 per cent of the gate are too much, Strauss declared. He said the challenger would receive 20 per cent "and no more."

Walcott Adamant

In the meantime, Walcott told newsmen in Waterbury, Conn., where he was appearing as a referee, that he did not intend to sign for less than 30 per cent of the receipts.

The champion's contract calls for a 40 per cent cut of the net receipts, including movie radio and television rights.

The signing of Louis brings to end speculation that the fight might go to Philadelphia, Chicago or Los Angeles. Philadelphia, it was learned last week through Promoter Herman Taylor, had made a strong bid for the booking.

While no definite date has set, it is assumed the battle will take place June 23, at which time Louis will be making the 25th defense of his crown.

Stribling, Walker to Meet 3rd Time

WASHINGTON

Ken Stribling, local middle weight contender and victor in 11 of 13 matches in 1946, will meet Johnny Walker, veteran Philadelphia battler, in the third and rubber match, Monday night, in Turner's Arena.

Stribling won on a first-round foul when the pair met for the first time in Philadelphia, and lost the second, although the game Bucks fought valiantly to pull it out of the fire in the closing minutes of the bout.

The losers can blame the 16 personal fouls their opponent piled up anxious moments for their defeat. Stribling was credited with a percentage of these charity tosses, which proved to be the deciding factor in the battle. In the last quarter, Coach L. U. Gibson's lads unleashed an attack which fell short by a mere two points.

Sensational hooks and set shots by George (Twinky-Toe) Prelow, James (Tweedle) Payne, Edwin (Swish) Curry, Alexander (Farmer-John) Thomas, and Leroy Brown played a major part in this rally.

Edwin Curry and Harris copped scoring honors with 14 points apiece.

Stonewall Jackson Adds Color to D.C. Fight Game

By FRED LEIGH

WASHINGTON

Everybody should know Stonewall Jackson by now.

He is the colorful, curly-haired little fighter with bulging biceps who wears Kelly green trunks trimmed in yellow, and green shoe strings to add color to his clowning as he slips and slides around out his opponents.

Jackson is the only local fighter to be supported by a personal cheering section when he climbs into the ring.

In some instances, enthusiastic partisans even stage parades for their idol. Some fans appear amused at their antics; while others claim they are nuisances, and boo lustily.

Pugilist's Story Interesting

However, there is a different Jackson on the other side of the ropes—one that most fans don't know little. Behind him lies a saga of varied experiences and experiences.

Jackson admittedly was up with the gangs that roamed the streets around Georgetown and contributed to the pool room.

In 1944, the sturdy youth, at 16, sought to enter a pool room tourney. He was turned away because he was a minor and didn't possess a draft card.

Pretending to be 18, he registered at the local draft board and received a draft card that admitted him to all the pool rooms he desired, but, to his woe, also ushered him into the Navy.

As a form of punishment, his mother allowed him to stay, and there his boxing talents sprouted.

Served in Navy 2 Years

Jackson, serving in the Navy two years, 1944-46, spent 18 months in the Pacific, and during the two years engaged in 28 amateur bouts, losing only two.

Prior to his discharge from the service he captured the junior welterweight championship of the Pacific in a tournament at Pearl Harbor.

The 19-year-old Phelps Vocational School lad, who plans to open a shoe shop after his graduation this year, turned professional July 9, 1946, and in the fight-for-pay ranks has rung up a string of 18 victories in 19 starts.

Splendid Ring Record

According to his manager, Billy Edwards, he has made enough from his ring earnings already to set up a small business.

Jackson's pro record shows: 1946—Six victories, all by decision, KO 1; Al Wilkins, KO 3; Billy Gulliver, Jr., Raymond Williams, D. C. Bobby Burns, D. 4; Hal Faulkner, D. 6; Tommy Battles, D. 6; Hal Jackson, KO. 2; John Littlejohn, D. 6; Charles Bailey, L. 6; Johnny Bernstein, D. 6; Johnny Johnson, D. 6; Jackie Bernstein, D. 6; Al Delmarr, KO. 2; Pat Demers, KO. 7; Willie Chestnut, D. 10; Charles Bailey, D. 10.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson of 850 20th St., N.W., Jackson is the oldest of three sisters and is the oldest of six boys in the family.

Considers Left hook his best weapon; and at 5 feet 8 inches, he regards 138 pounds as his best fighting weight.

Holds Two Records

As a young professional, Jackson has notched up records by performing two seldom-seen feats at a local fighter.

He has been the main go on two consecutive Monday nights, fighting Joe DiMartini and Pat Demers; and in his last fight in Baltimore, he decisioned Willie Chestnut, taking 10 of 10 rounds unanimously.

A fast seldom witnessed.

Too Meet Johnny Williams.

As a result of his showing against Charlie Bennett, Monday night, at Turner's Arena, Jackson is slated to appear against Johnny Williams, who wrecked Biff Jones's boxing aspirations recently. Jackson, however, would like to fight Sonny Boy West more than any other of the top-rank battlers.

The boosting Jackson hears as he goes about his chores inside the ring could be jealousy of the fact that he is so proficient in his profession.

Lenny Ford to Play in Coast All-Star Game

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Lenny Ford, former Morgan State College grid star and this past season all-Big Nine selection, has accepted a bid to play with a College All-Star eleven against the Los Angeles Bulldogs of the Pacific Coast pro league.

The game, according to Ford, is set for Tuesday in the Los Angeles Coliseum and he will fly to the Coast along with Bob Mann and four white University of Michigan teammates, each of whom was a star in the recent 49-0 Rose Bowl win over Southern California.

The big Wolverine and was drafted by the Los Angeles Dons of the All-America Conference and has already been contacted by club officials. He has not signed a contract as yet.

Sports Chatter

WASHINGTON

North Carolina, a fast moving kids, turning back Howard University, 58-54, in an exhibition game at Lynchburg, Va., tallied 36 of 40 free throws to win. Oddly enough, Howard capitalized on 17 free throws to win the first tilt, 58-50.

Coach Hoyt Hawkins, whose North Carolina grid team felt the lash by graduation of Jay John Brown and two first string ends, and dropped to fifth place in the second division of the Dickinson Systems with two victories and six setbacks, headed East last week, presumably in quest of two good offensive flanks to bolster the Eagles' aerial attack next fall.

Sports Mission

Jackson, unsuccessful in a comeback attempt locally, Bee Ridgeway, who has lost something like six consecutive fights in the past, is slated to go to Cleveland, O., where he meets Al (Red) Priest, tonight (Friday), in a 10-round feature.

Terry Moore vs. Charley Millan, Coliseum (10 p.m.)

Barely Miss Cash

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Ted Rhodes and Bill Spiller, close-up finishers in the $10,000 Los Angeles open golf tournament, failed to share in the purse distribution, the AFBO learned late this week.

The money, according to Jack Leener, public relations director of the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the tourney, explained that the money was divided among the first 20 contestants. Rhodes, with a score of 292, was 23rd in the list and Spiller, with 295, was 33rd.

McKenley in KC

NEW YORK—National AAU secretary Dan Ferris announced late last week that Herb McKenley, U.S. quarter mile champion from Jamaica, will compete in the Knights of Columbus track meet in Brooklyn, Jan. 10, if he can get out of previous commitments to run in Australia. Ferris said that McKenley has cabled Australian officials asking them to release him from an agreement to run in exhibition meets there Jan. 24 to 26.
