Mrs. Emma Gaskins Wed to Marshall T. Bright

with Lula Jones Garrett

On Saturday evening, Edna I. Gaskin and Marshall T. Bright were married in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Maurice D. Doles, 1 Furnance Branch, Md., with the Rev. John T. Colbert officiating.

The bride is a grade supervisor in city schools and Mr. Bright is a postal clerk here. She was attired in a dress of aqua and silver metallic cloth, a calot of white flower petals and white lace mitts. Her corsage was of white orchids, and she was attended by her sister, Mrs. Crafton C. Reed. The latter wore navy with a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Bright was attended by his brother, Ralph L. Bright.

Relatives and intimates friends who were present included:

Miss Emma E. Bright, Mr. and Mrs. Crafton C. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Bright, Dr. and Mrs. Doles, Mrs. Bessie M. Troiman, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Day, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Murray.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Rawlings, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mason, Mr. and Mrs. C. Albert Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Matthews Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Hucles, Miss Laura W. Jones, Howard Gaskin and Marshall T. Bright Page, Mrs. Lawrence Abrams, and Mrs. Samuel Cannaan; and from Washington; Mrs. Emma E. Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Pinderhughes, and Dr. and Mrs. John L. Pinderhughes.

The evening before, William Rawlings, Al Wright and Ralph Bright held forth at the latter's Morgan Park home, with a stag for the bridegroom, with Charles King, Crafton Reed, William Day, Matthew Howard, Samuel Williams, Dr. Doles and Marshall Bright Jr., making merry.

TOWN TABLEAU:

Mae Wright Downs pouring cocktails for Louise Burge of the Howard University faculty, after the latter's appearance here, a Sunday ago, and exhibiting the swank, swank watch Delta Sigma Theta sorrors had gifted her (Mae) with, are her stepping down from their national presidency, recently;

Beatrice Hurt, wide-eyed over the surprise party that her household gave her following the annual football banquet, Thursday night, on Morgan State College campus. The hosts, Billy Reid, Annie Mae Chavis, Milcha Bowie, Appye Hurt, J. J. Hurt, Coach Eddie Hurt and Theodore R. Still, had garnered an elegant green alligator fitted case for her gift;

Dr. Maybelle Weaver holding forth at her Morgan Park place for members of the dental auxiliary. (I wonder if her being eligible for the dental auxiliary makes Dr. Basil Weaver eligible for the medical auxiliary. Check, girls, because that would be kind-a-fine);

Alpha Zeta chapter of Zeta Phi Beta inducting Lillian Webb, art supervisor; Gwendolyn DeCicilio, and Anna Hicks, school nurses;

Epsilon Omega chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha having as guest Grace Marr, first colored woman member of Columbia University faculty, who has recently been co-ordinator of undergraduate activities of the sorority. Miss Marr, who is teaching microbiology at Columbia, was guest of the Ivory Leaf Club at Morgan, Sunday;

Howard Cornish, of Morgan Christian Center, who bought a lottery ticket, the other day, didn't even want to sign the slip but merely to help the project — a children's charity—and turns up with the pawn which drew $50.

Absorbed in U. S. Supreme Court's nearings on restrictive covenants in Washington, Thursday, Mrs. Walter Hollander, member of the board of school commissions of Arrabouni Sidney Hollander, Judge Morris A. Soper and the Rev. J. Hiram Smith.

CUPIDOODLING:

Dr. James P. Grant Jr., Provident Hospital med resident, and Mabel H. Hines, Brooklyn (Md.) school marm, have made that certain move. Allen West and Gertrude L. Preston of the Roanoke, Va. school system jaunted up here for their merger. Bailey Conaway, veteran town caterer, took a bride last week. She is the former Margaret Gray, divorcee, an Easton, Md. school teacher. He's 67, and she is 27 years his junior. The Rev. Eli Lofton officiated. Eugene A. Richie and George Patterson, Morgan College students, took a turn before a parson, last week.

POT-POURRI:

Tradelle Williams, vice principal of Douglass High School, has been confined to her Madison Avenue home for five weeks with pneumonia. Though improved, she is still confined to bed. Harriet White, of the YWCA staff, spent the past two days in Provident Hospital, after complications developed from a cold. Helen Mae Flacks is recuperating at Provident Hospital after an operation, a Tuesday ago. The Balgia Greene (Geraldine Flacks) have made a hit with their families by presenting a new baby boy, the first grandson on either side and the first boy in the Flacks family for a period of 32 years. He arrived on Dec. 31.

PEREGRINATORS:

Mrs. Pauline Dame of Durham, N.C., returning from New York, where she has been since the holidays as guest of her niece and adopted daughter, Pauli Murray, attorney. Mrs. Dame recently retired from the Durham city school system after thirty-three years of teaching.

Kurtis Hurtte, popular concert artist and teacher, and his protege, Robert Hayward, president of the Young Artists, Guild of Baltimore, will be hosts to the members of (this guild at the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra concert to be held at the Douglass High School on Wednesday, January 28. In the party will be W. Sherman Smith, one of the sponsors of the guild; Jeanne Lopks, Elaine Taylor, Marie Franklin, Mildred Brent, Lawrence Willis, Shelman John son, Lionel Jiggetts, Louis Woodfolk and Betram Merritt.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Showes (she the former K. Estellena Birche) journeyed to Cincinnati last week to meet Richard's parents, relatives and friends. From all reports it was a gala occasion, for Cincinnati society went all out to welcome them. Over 200 attended the reception tendered them by Mrs. Elizabeth Jefferson, sister-in-law. Then there was the dinner party at the homestead.

They were feted at breakfast by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grandison, uncle and aunt of Richard. And friends gathered at the home of William Jones, long-time friend, for a session at cards. To top it off there was the swanky cocktail party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Johnson, also long-time friends of Richard, who is connected with the insurance business here; the madam is a member of the faculty of Douglass High School.

DATE DATA:

The benefit ball being planned by the entertainment committee of the Planned Parenthood Clinic for Thursday eve, the 29th, at Odd Fellows Hall is taking on all the trappings of a special event. Mrs. J. E. T. Camper is chairman, and the hostesses include Mesdames Berkley Butler, Cecil Thompson, James Blake, Charles Woodland, Gilbert Banfield, Robert Hilpsley, Marion Coombs, William Watts, Jerome Todd, Charles Blake, Evan Gilkes, Roland Williams, John Gunn, Grace Anderson, Bruce Alayne, Sarah Diggs, Maurice Adams, and Miles Connor.

Their dinner meeting will be held at the YWCA on Feb. 6, and have Dr. Alan Guttmacher as speaker.

On Saturday following, Gamma chapter of Chi Eta Phi Sorority will hold forth with their annual luncheon, at Union Baptist Church reception hall, for which date they have snared the Rev. C. Baker Pearle as speaker. Lilyan Slater is chairmaning the project.

Earlier the same day, (1 p.m.) Epsilon Sigma chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority will mark their Founders' Day with a lunch con at the YWCA, when Louise Young of Philadelphia, will be speaker. Miss Young recently returned from Finland where she filled an assignment for the American Friends Service Committee.

The 13th Pinochle Club will dance at Odd Fellows' on Friday, the 30th, and the Rayalettes, who dance at Morgan Hall on the 31st, will preface that affair with cocktails in the Blue Room of the York.

On Saturday, John L. Procope will host members of the women's auxiliary of the Monumental Medical Society, at tea. The following evening, at Zion Baptist Church, the group will present $2,000 to the hospital for purchase of bed curtains. Last year the auxiliary provided bed curtains for the maternity ward of the hospital.

This Sunday afternoon (the 25th) local Hamptonites are opening a drive to corral all absent members, with a meeting at the YWCA, when Dr. Charles Drew of Morgan State College faculty will be speaker.

And Sunday morning, members of the Democratic Women's Committee will join in a worship service at New Metropolitan Baptist Church.

And the Women's Co-operative Civic League has completed plans for its annual luncheon, which has been pushed up to February 28 and scheduled for Union Baptist Church. The conference, beginning at 11 a.m., will have as theme "Trends in Inter-Cultural Education," with Mrs. Marian Webb as discussion leader. Participants will be Miss Goldie Schimel, principal of School No. 27; Mrs. Elizabeth Henderson, principal of School No. 126; and Miss Annabell Hartman, teacher at Eastern High School. Miss Helen Stegman, administrative assistant in city schools will be speaker at the luncheon meeting at 1 p.m.

And those Baltimoreans who will dash up to New York to dine with the National Urban League and the Urban League of Greater New York (at $9.50 per plate) at Essex House, may chalk February 25 as the date that Edward S. Lewis, who formerly headed this branch, is executive secretary of the N.Y. branch. June McMechen will sing, and Henry A. Luce, editor; D. C. S. Johnson, president of Fish University; and Elmo Roper, public opinion analyst, will be speakers.

OMEGAS FETED

A Saturday ago the members of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity entertained their husbands and new members at a champagne sip at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Wyns.

FROTHS FLIGHTED—Mr. and Mrs. Milton Makel, who were married in Baltimore, Sunday, at St. Peter Claver Catholic Church. The bride is the former Miss Gloria Holt.
