EDITORIAL PAGE

Peace is the happy natural state of man.—THOMSON.

Death Comes to Our Community

When death strikes a community, taking from it persons revolved in, were hubs around which the lives of many others revolved, it serves to pause for reorganization.

Of course, the loss of Mr. McKeldin is not the loss of a Governor of Washington Junior High School. It is not closed with principal for 20 years, young men and women of this city grew up under his influence. Many of them have become leaders in the various fields of their chosen pursuits, but in the fundamental philosophy of life, they have generously into their lives something of W. Carto Anderson and they will carry the influence of his teachings into the future. For at least four more decades they will be in positions to direct the social, economic and political affairs of this and women will mainly. They will give expression to the Anderson teachings in the institutions they will control. Thus, the influence of Carto Anderson will live at home in Mount Calvary pews, and it is our deduction that it will be felt in the common community life and in the Episcopal Church in the common communion cup used in the Episcopal Church.

For reasons of sanitation, we have long since given up the common cup, but the Episcopal Church still clings to it as a symbol of fellowship and communion which has not put aside the common cup.

We observe that if the Episcopal communion cup, as it has been used by the group from practicing Christians is going to prevent one of the group from practicing Christians is going to prevent long to Heaven, then it might be established brotherhood and spiritual life and of Dr. McClanthen removes from Baltimore re- could have had his foundering parishioners. It has been from his Christian brotherhood if he had not been in the shadow of death as this transgression on Christ's teachings was enacted.

Claude M. Gray—Public Servant

Community Council of the death of the president of the Baltimore Transit Company, the Baltimore Transit Company is a public servant. Its business is the business of the people who live in this city. Its business is the business of the people who live in this city. Its business is the business of the people who live in this city