Deltas Hear Call for Aid

Less "accent on accessories," and more concentration on the world's hunger problems, was called for, Saturday, by Miss Louise Young, member of the America-Friends Service Committee, and guest speaker at the Founders' Day celebration of Epsilon Sigma Chapter, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority.

A Delta soror in her own right, Miss Young recently returned from Finland where with some 20 other Americans, she effected a relief program under auspices of the Quaker Service Committee.

Human Need Cited

"We cannot sit snugly by and let the rest of the world starve," the young speaker declared as she emphasized the importance of working for the good of humanity, rather than for the "selfish dollar."

Delta founders attending the banquet at the YWCA were Sorors Jimmie Bugg Middleton of Washington, and Sorror Vashti Murphy of Baltimore.

Introduced by Soror Dukye Woode, the founders received orchids from Sorror Charlotte Mebane, president of the hostess chapter, who also presented other corsages to the speaker, and past grand presidents, Gladys Shepperd and Mae Wright Downs.

The guest speaker was introduced by Soror Pearl Cole Wilson, Soror Velma Ferguson was toastmistress.

JOLLY SPORTERS—Mrs. Alma Washington of 609 N. Eden St. entertained the group, last week. Mrs. Verragintia Bryson is editor.

Charm Talk Given to Nurse Trainees

The Provident Hospital School of Nursing held its fourth meeting on Tuesday night with Miss Rose Marie Davis of Lauretta's Beauty Salon and Mrs. Margaret Francis of the Madoline Beauty Salon as guest speakers for the evening.

The lecture emphasized correct make-up for young adults in the nursing profession. Miss Davis also demonstrated to the group how charming and becoming hair styles, while Miss Francis spoke on selecting the correct hair styles to correspond with individual characteristics and personality.

Chi Eta Phi's Celebrate Founders' Day at Luncheon

with Lula Jones Garrett

"Take what you have and make what you want" was the sage advice given by the Rev. C. Baker Pearle when he addressed Gamma chapter of Chi Eta Phi Sorority at their Founders' Day luncheon, Saturday.

Pointing out that nurses (Chi Eta Phi is a nurses group) seldom receive either commendation or appreciation due them, Dr. Pearle told the group there is a moral and spiritual advantage in being the under dog. He pointed to such pioneers as Frederick Douglass, George W. Carver and Marian Anderson who used their talents, not gifts from others, to achieve renown. He warned against the present trend in being more concerned over the idea of getting what others have, and told the group to consider the potentialities of the resources they have in their own grasp.

Dining at flower-decked tables, hearing the piano selections of Mrs. Frances Eubanks, the solos of Miss Evangeline Williams, and a brief talk by their national basileus, Mrs. Ailleen Ewell of Washington, provided a festive interlude for the sorors.

The speaker was presented by Lilyan Slater, who started us with another one of her hats, this time a fetching affair of spirals of white maline swathed in pale purple net. Presiding was Chi Eta Phi's Basileus, Pamida Friends, who introduced one of the smart spring prints, and who later held forth at cocktails for out-of-town guests.

There were a considerable number of the latter, including Mrs. Mabel Wooding, Mrs. Catherine Belton and Mrs. Shirley Barrett, neophytes of a Philadelphia chapter; Mesdames Phyllis Johnson, Anna B. Kerrick, Mildred Lucas; Misses Lucy Turner and Thelma Harris, of Washington; and Sadie Spradley, basileus of Alpha Chapter of that city.

And a gang of sorors including Bernadine Harrison in a black hat sprayed with egrets, shepherding a dozen guests and Louise Lockerman, smart in green and white print;

And scores of guests: Pearl Jackson, very dramatic in a stark white hat above her black frock; Verda Welcome, who snitched a favorite frock right from under my nose—a golden wool accented with black and gold print revers, pockets and blouse under a brief bolero; Marion Croxton in a two-toned custom-made hat which I am going to snitch right off her head the first time she isn't looking and Mrs. Dudley Lee in a sea-green, sequin-trimmed frock with interesting drape at neck and sleeves.

And speaking of clothes, there was Jeanette Christmas in the snarkiest gray suit, buttoned diagonally across the back, and repeated in revere at the front, topped by the swankiest mink coat in town, at the dinner party for Dr. W. E. B. Dubois, Friday evening. PC was host. Pauline Watts, the William Adamses, Yolande Williams, Roy S. Bond, attorney, Dr. J. E. T. Camper were others about.

"Planners" Fine Hostesses

Florine Camper's committee of hostesses for the benefit dance of the Planed Parenthood Clinic proved that a subscription dance can be a lovely affair.

In flower bedecked Odd Fellows' Hall, gals in lovely gowns danced in an atmosphere of beauty and gaiety. Most of the guests knew each other and laughter was the mood of the evening.

Seen there were:

The newly weds, Jimmie and "B.B" (Harris) Lomax, Thelma Weaver, just out of bed but not missing a dance, the Sunny Wilson's smoothies of the rug cutters.

Katherine Adams in black and white taffeta, Marion Banfield in gold threaded red jersey, the Camper girls in soft pastels with bows and flowers that become youth, Arnetta Davis in yards of white net trimmed with black.

Mae Folks in white satin, and Arenthia Williams in pink net gave the crystal ball good cause to sparkle.

At the punch bowl was Julia McDaniels. She was assisted by Frances Thompson and Grace Anderson.

Sarah Diggs helped Florine to greet the guests.

Hostesses of the evening were:

Mesdames Berkley Butler, Cecil Thompson, James Blake, Charles Woodland, Gilbert Banfield, Robert McDaniels, William Watts, Jerome Todd, Charles Blake.

Those present were:

She is the former Pearl Tucker, Coppin Teachers College student. Mr. Robinson, since his interruption to serve with the Army is continuing his studies at Morgan State College.

Other new officers are Olivia Dixon, vice president; Yvette Murphy, corresponding secretary; Louise Dennis, chaplain; Vivian Alleyne, parlimentarian; Catherine Carter, recording secretary; Clementine Knox, financial secretary; and Lucille Fitzgerald, treasurer.

After discussing plans to establish a charity fund, the group participated in games of brain-teasers, at which Charlotte Hackett, Gladys Jones, Clementine Knox and Margaret Brown excelled.

Hostesses included Mesdames Vivian Pendleton, Mildred Seaborne and Juliette Young.

VITAL STATISTICS

They have done it again—the Murphy twins, Vashti and Charleta, added to their family total two new citizens within the past two weeks.

The latter, Mrs. Leland Jones, and her new son, were still in the hospital when the former, Mrs. Roberta Matthews, moved in to welcome her new daughter. Their first, both sons, arrived within a month of each other less than a cousin years ago.

The Algernon Prestwidges (Gladys Thompson) added a son to their household, Thursday, making the family a foursome. A daughter arrived two years back.

Blanche E. Hillen

During the break at Morgan State College, everyone decided to have a good time

Friday night, the dances took the spotlight. The crowd jumped from one affair to another, that is from Morgan's dance to Cappin's dance at Morgan Halls.

Claude Vrghart took your Saturday evening with Fleming Jones calling in on Sunday. The Adams brothers planned a party also.

Delores Nelson has found a "new one," but he may be some one's "old one."

That young woman in Tubman House is still "leaping." Who knows, she might leap into first place.

The "post card mystery" is in session now that the basketball boys are away ever so often.

Rum Young went home to recuperate after that card he sent. Shouldn't have done it "chicken."

Heard Bruiser floored Bismark recently, or was it vice versa? Be that as it may, they are still "don tuns."

Like to welcome Mrs. J. C. Nelson back home and back to Morgan.

The name "Doris" seems to stick with you, George West.

Doris Stewart is wearing the "new look" and has it in her too.

Joel Montgomery looks good in blue.

This week I am presenting Morgan State's biggest "rabbler"—Congratulations, Mitch Witting-ham.Campaign Manager, Charlotta Carter.
